The History of Trinity College

GLENN WEAVER

"... the bill passed both houses of the Connecticut Legislature without incident, and the Charter for Washington College was granted on May 16, 1823. Great was the rejoicing in Hartford, and that evening can­ nons were fired and bonfires were lighted. All that remained to be done was to raise the sum of $30,000 demanded by the Charter, select the site, gather a faculty, and open the College for instruction." – Excerpt from Chapter II.

Thus began the struggle to establish the second institution for higher learning in Connecticut. The problems facing the first body of Trustees, headed by Bishop Thomas Church Browne, might have seemed insurmountable to men of less conviction or dedication of purpose.

This book, the first of two volumes planned, covers more than 100 years of history and tradition, from the founding of the institution in 1823 as Washington College, into the 1930's and the presidency of Dr. Remsen B. Ogilby.

It faithfully records the difficulties of the early beginnings of the College, its growth and periods of transition, the blunders and triumphs. The campus scene over the span of years in terms of student life is abundantly illustrated with photographs and drawings, many of which have never before been published.

The History of Trinity College is the product of exhaustive research that occupied the author for more than five years. It is a record to be read with absorbing interest by alumni and friends of the College, by devotees of Connecticut and New England history, and the general community of historians.

About the author:

In the Introduction to The History of Trinity College, Dr. Albert C. Jacobs, President of the College, commenting on the author, states: "... we found ourselves uniquely fortunate in having on our faculty one who was ideally suited to undertake this arduous and very demanding task. . . ."

Dr. Glenn Weaver, Associate Professor of History at Trinity, is a specialist in Colonial America and the history of the American Church and has published numerous works in these subjects.

After receiving his B.A. degree from Catawba College in 1941, Dr. Weaver received a B.D. degree from Lancaster Seminary in 1944; an M.A. in History from Lehigh University in 1947; and his A.M. degree in 1951 and Ph.D. in 1953 from Yale University.

Dr. Weaver has taught at Lehigh, Yale, Albany Teachers College, Connecticut College for Women, and his alma mater, Catawba. He joined the Trinity faculty in 1957 as Assistant Professor of History.

He is author of Jonathan Trumbull: Connecticut's Merchant Magistrate and the Centennial History of The Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection and Insurance Co. He has been a frequent contributor to such scholarly journals as the William and Mary Quarterly; Church History; The Connecticut Historical Society Bulletin; Social Studies; Pennsylvania History; The Historical Magazine of the Protestant Episcopal Church; and The Lutheran Quarterly. He is also a contributor to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

In 1956 Dr. Weaver was named "outstanding teacher in the field of American history in a Connecticut school or college" by the Connecticut Chapter of the National Society, Daughters and Founders and Patriots of America, Inc.
