LAWS OF WASHINGTON COLLEGE.

CHAPTER I.

Of the Admission of Students, and of the Course of Instruction.

SEC. 1. Every student applying for admission, shall present to the President a certificate of good moral character, signed by his Preceptor, or some other respectable person.

SEC. 2. Students may enter for the regular course, or to pursue such particular studies only as may be suited to their circumstances.

SEC. 3. Candidates for the regular course shall sustain an examination on the following studies, as a qualification for the Freshman Class: viz. English Grammar, Geography, and Arithmetick; Cæsar's Commentaries or Sallust, Cicero's Select Orations, Virgil, Jacob's Greek Reader or Græca Minora; the Gospels of St. Luke and St. John, and the Acts of the Apostles. The applicant must also be thoroughly acquainted with the Latin and Greek Grammar and Prosody, and with the writing of Latin and Greek, as taught in the Latin Tutor and in Nielson's Greek Exercises.

Candidates for an advanced standing shall sustain a further examination on those branches of learning, which have been pursued by the class which they propose to enter: and no person shall be admitted to advanced standing after the first term in the Senior year.

[Note.—The Græca Minora will not be received as a substitute for Jacob's Greek Reader, after the Commencement in 1827.]

SEC. 4. Students for the partial course must, on examination, be found qualified to pursue to advantage those studies of the regular course, to which they propose to devote their attention.

SEC. 5. Every student, admitted on examination, shall be placed on probation till the close of his first College Term; at which time, if his conduct and application to study shall have been satisfactory to the Faculty, he shall be admitted to Matriculation; and shall sign, in a book to be kept for that purpose, the following declaration:—"I do promise and engage, that I will conform to the laws and regulations, made for the government of Washington College."

* To be studied with the Classick Authors, throughout the Course.

The Faculty are authorized to make such occasional changes and substitutions in the regular course of study, as may be required

14 18 19 12 3 2 10
30 18 19 12 3 2 10
by the various intellectual powers of the several students, and as may accord with their views in reference to a profession.

SEC. 7. Students of the partial course may be received for such length of time as their circumstances may dictate, or as the inclination of their parents or guardians may require. They may apply themselves to any of the studies contained in the regular course, with a privilege of attending the Lectures, and to the study of the Modern European Languages. They may also be prepared to join any of the higher classes in the regular course. Such students of the partial course, as pursue their studies for a period of not less than two years, to the satisfaction of the Faculty, will, on leaving the Institution, receive an English Diploma, as a testimonial of their good conduct and proficiency in learning. Students of the partial course may, however, continue for a longer period, and may apply themselves to such studies as relate more especially to the pursuits to which they intend to devote themselves.

SEC. 8. Candidates for the regular course must be at least fifteen years of age, and for the partial course not less than fourteen.

SEC. 9. Masters and Bachelors of Arts, who shall signify to the President their desire to reside in the College, for the purpose of pursuing their studies, may be received as Resident Graduates. Rooms shall be assigned to them, and they shall enjoy the privilege of access to the library and cabinets of natural history, and of attending the public lectures of the professors. They shall be subject to the usual charges of room rent, attendance of servants, &c. and for the use of the library; and shall submit themselves, in all respects, to the laws of the College, on penalty of forfeiting their privileges.

CHAPTER II.

Of the Officers of Instruction and Government.

SEC. 1. The President, Professors and Tutors, shall constitute the Faculty of the College. The President shall superintend the government and instruction of the College, preside at the meetings of the Faculty, and cause their votes and measures to be executed; and shall direct all matters in relation to the Institution, according to the best of his discretion, and conformably to the regulations prescribed by the Trustees.

SEC. 2. The Professors and Tutors shall devote themselves to the instruction and government of the students, in conformity to the laws, and as the President shall direct. They shall attend the devotional exercises in the chapel; and, in the absence of the President, shall perform those exercises in rotation, unless he shall have specially appointed some one to attend to that duty. They shall have rooms assigned to them, within the College edifices, from which they shall absent themselves as little as possible during the hours of study, and particularly in the evening. Each officer shall visit the several rooms, which may be assigned to his charge by the President, at least once a day, and oftener if necessary, to preserve order, and to assist the students in their studies. Each officer shall report weekly, and oftener if necessary, to the President, every transgression of the laws or breach of order, within his knowledge. The Professors and Tutors shall exercise a kind and paternal government over the students—privately admonishing them as often as they shall observe any waywardness or neglect of duty. For more open and direct offences, they may publicly censure a student, and may punish by fine, when the penalty does not exceed one dollar.

SEC. 3. Meetings of the Faculty shall be appointed by the President, in his discretion, or at the request of a Professor. At such meetings, all subjects connected with the instruction and discipline of the College, and all plans for its better government and regulation, especially the distribution of rewards and encouragements, and the punishment of offences, except the censures and fines provided for in the preceding section; and in general, all matters which are by law referred to the Faculty, shall be discussed and determined by a majority of those present; provided always, that the President concur in such determination. The officers of instruction and discipline, shall also make reports to the President, of their several departments; and it shall be the duty of every officer to communicate to such meeting, or in his discretion, to the President, any information which he may have in his possession, important to the interests of the Institution. A Secretary shall be appointed by the Faculty, who shall keep a correct record of all their proceedings, subject at all times to the inspection of the Board of Trustees.

SEC. 4. The Professors shall deliver their lectures, at such times as the President may deem most proper.

SEC. 5. As many offences and misdemeanors may occur, against which no special provision is made in the laws, the officers are authorized to act, in such cases, in the way which, to them, may seem most reasonable and proper. They are to be considered as invested with a discretionary and parental authority—they are to treat the students with mildness and moderation; fostering in them a proper self respect; encouraging mutual confidence and esteem; and applying to all the more honourable and generous incentives to good conduct. They are to endeavour to correct the slighter offences and negligences, by private counsels and admonitions. Public censures are to be inflicted only on more flagrant transgressions, or when lenient and advisory measures have failed of success.

CHAPTER III.

Of the Students, and of Collegiate Exercises.

SEC. 1. The students of the regular course shall be arranged in four classes, as follows, viz: Freshman, Sophomore, Junior and Senior Classes. The students of the partial course, in addition to the study of Modern Languages, shall attend, in conjunction with the several regular classes, to such studies as may be assigned to them by the President, and they shall have the same number of daily recitations.

SEC. 2. The students shall daily attend morning and evening prayer in the Chapel—they shall attend at least three recitations in each day, except when some dispensation shall be made by the Faculty. They shall also perform all other collegiate exercises, which may at any time be assigned to them.

The order of daily exercises is as follows:

AUTUMN AND WINTER TERMS.

MORNING.				AFTERNOON.				EVENING.
Prayers & Rec		Stud H. & Rec.		Stud H Rec & Pr.		Study Hours		Bed Time.
H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H.

SUMMER TERM.

------	------	--	------	-------	--	---	---------	--	---	-------	--	----

SEC. 3. All students are forbidden to resort to the recitation rooms, or to the chapel, before the ringing of the proper bell; or to remain there after the recitations or prayers are concluded: and they are to retire in such order as the Faculty may prescribe. During the attendance on recitations, lectures, or prayers, the students are to maintain a becoming posture, and are strictly forbidden to talk, whisper, or cause any other disturbance. When any Trustee or Officer of the College shall enter the chapel, before the exercises are begun; or any room, where a class or a number of students are assembled, they shall rise from their seats in a respectful manner.

SECT. 4. The students are required to attend public worship on the Lord's Day, either in the College Chapel, or at such places of worship as their parents or guardians may desire. They are to abstain from their usual diversions on the Lord's Day, and also from playing on musical instruments except when employed by permission of the President, in the performance of sacred music.

SEC. 5. The students are required to be constantly in their respective chambers, and diligently to pursue their studies, during the hours appropriated to that purpose. They are also to abstain from all amusements, and from all noises which may cause interruption, such as loud conversation, singing, or playing on musical instruments, and the like.

SEC. 6. Every student who shall unnecessarily absent himself from prayers, recitation, lecture, public worship, or any other exercise which the laws require, or which the Faculty may appoint; or from his room in hours of study, or in the evening, or shall be tardy in his attendance, shall be subject to fine or other college censure.

SEC. 7. In hours of recreation, and at all other times, the students in their general deportment must be orderly and decorous, abstaining from low, tumultuous, or indecent amusements. It is expected that every student, on meeting a Trustee or Officer of the College, will pay to him the usual mark of respect.

SEC. 8. No class meeting, or other meeting of students, shall be held, without special license from the President; nor for any other purposes than for those expressed in the license; nor at any time that shall interfere with the college exercises.

SEC. 9. All students are required to reside in the College, unless by dispensation from the President. The rooms in which they are to reside, shall be assigned by the President, or such officer as may be appointed for that purpose; and every student is required to occupy the room assigned to him. No student may remove from his room, or occupy any other room in the College, without permission of the President. Every student shall be responsible for all damages done to his room during his residence in it; except in cases where it shall appear, that there was no fault or neglect on his part; and all repairs are to be made under the direction of a superintendant of the buildings, and the expence charged in the quarter bills.

SEC. 10. No student is allowed to make any alteration in his room without liberty from the President, and according to such directions as he shall enjoin; and each room shall be kept furnished with a good and sufficient bucket, at the expense of the occupants. The students are to keep their rooms clean and neat, their clothes, books and furniture in good order; and the walls, and every part of their rooms, undefaced: and they are not permitted, in hours of study, to lie down upon their beds, or to sleep in their rooms.

SEC. 11. Every student shall open his door, when required by a member of the Faculty; and an instructor, when he shall think it necessary, may break open any room into which he is refused admittance, at the expense of the person or persons so refusing; and may examine, in such manner as he shall judge proper, every thing in said room. The officers of the College may also visit any room, at any hour of the night that they may deem proper.

CHAPTER IV.

Of the Discipline of the College.

1. Of Encouragements and Rewards.

SEC. 1. The students of each class which shall be admitted after the annual Commencement in 1826, shall, at their first examination, be arranged in three divisions; and the several members, of the first and second divisions, shall also be numerically distinguished according to their relative standing; and at each subsequent examination, a similar graduation shall be made. In esti-rating the standing of the students, and in every distribution of rewards, their good moral conduct, orderly deportment, and punctual attendance on collegiate exercises, as well as their scholarship, shall always be taken into the account.

SEC. 2. For the further encouragement of the students, premiums will be offered by the Faculty for excellence in the particular branches of scholarship, and in the performance of such literary exercises as may from time to time be appointed, whenever the funds of the College shall warrant such expenditure, or provision be made for it, by the benefaction of individuals, zealous in the promotion of science and letters.

SEC. 3. Honorary distinctions for scholarship, for improvement in composition and elocution, and for good conduct, will also be made in the distribution of the several parts for all College exhibitions, and for the annual commencements.

2. Of Delinquencies, and their Punishment.

SEC. 1. The officers of the College shall keep correct accounts of all absences from collegiate exercises; and shall, without delay, require of the students to give their reasons for such absences. At the close of each week, they shall make report of the same to the President, to be recorded in a book kept for that purpose; those, with satisfactory excuse, being distinguished from such as are deemed censurable. And the President will call before him such students as may be reported for censurable absences, for the purpose of salutary admonition and advice. And if any student shall still persist in his irregularities, he is to be summoned before the Faculty, and solemnly admonished, and warned of the consequences that must result from such a course; which warning shall be recorded on the books of the Faculty. After such monitory discipline, if a student shall continue to be neglectful of his collegiate duties, and if his further continuance should be thought unprofitable to himself, or injurious to the institution, he may, at the instance of the President, be withdrawn by his parent or guardian, or be publicly dismissed.

The same course will be pursued with those students, who, though punctual in their attendance, may be censurably deficient in their preparation for any collegiate exercise. Tardiness will in all cases be noted as absence, but considered less censurable.

3. Of high Offences and Misdemeanors, and their Punishment.

SEC. 1. The punishments of the College shall be Expulsion, Dismission, Rustication, Suspension, publick and private Admonition, and Fines, at the discretion of the Faculty:—Provided, that no fine shall exceed ten dollars: Provided, also, that all fines imposed by the Faculty, shall by them be appropriated by way of Premiums, for the encouragement of students in the various branches of scholarship.

SEC. 2. High offences may be punished, at the discretion of the Faculty, with any of the College punishments. Misdemeanors are less offences, and may be punished with any punishment below suspension; or, if repeated or persisted in, with some higher punishment.

SEC. 3. The following are deemed high offences:— Any offence against the laws of the land, subjecting the offender to disgraceful punishment—Unlawful combinations—Gross violations of the respect due to the Faculty or other Officers of the College—Riotous and noisy behaviour, to the disturbance of the College or of the inhabitants of Hartford—Refusing or neglecting to attend, when sent for by the Faculty or any officer—Disobedience to the sentence of the Faculty—Refusing to give testimony in any case when required by the Faculty, or, falsifying therein—Obstructing or resisting the Instructors or other officers, in the discharge of their duties, or encouraging similar acts in others—Challenging, assaulting, or maliciously endeavouring to injure any student—Maliciously defacing or injuring the Edifices of the College, or any furniture, apparatus, books, or other valuable property—Throwing things against, over, or near the College; from the windows, in the entries, or down the stairs—Profane language—Intoxication, or having spirituous liquors in the College—Indecency in language, dress or behaviour—Dissoluteness, or other gross immorality—Playing at any game for money, or other things of value—Associating with any person under sentence of dismissal, rustication, or expulsion; or with any other prohibited person, or with any person of known vice and dissoluteness—Keeping any gun, pistol, or gunpowder, or firing, or using the same in the City of Hartford; or having in possession any dirk, sword-cane, or other offensive weapon, unless in case of military exercises being allowed by the Faculty—Being concerned in any bonfire, fireworks, or unauthorized illuminations—Being an actor or spectator at any theatrical entertainment in term time—Making, or being present at, any festive entertainment, or taking part in any publick celebration, except by permission of the Faculty.

SEC. 4. All offences, not enumerated as high offences, are punishable as Misdemeanors. Among these, are the following:— Being present at any ball, assembly, or party of pleasure in term time, without leave from the President—Going to any tavern or victualing house in Hartford, for the purpose of eating or drinking, except in the presence of a parent, guardian, or patron—Playing at cards or dice, or any unlawful game—Buying, selling, or bartering books, apparel, furniture, or any other property, without leave of the Bursar—Disobedience to any of the rules and regulations of the College, and disrespectful and unbecoming language or conduct, not amounting to a high offence—Idleness, negligence, and, in general, all behaviour inconsistent with the good order, peace, and prosperity of the College.

SEC. 5. In case of any combination to resist the Faculty, or the laws of the College; or of other offences, in which so many are actors or abettors, as to render it inexpedient to punish all concerned, the Faculty will select for punishment as many of the offenders, as they may judge necessary to secure the ends of government; and those who may have been the most culpable, when known; and also the older of those concerned in the offence, shall be selected for punishment.

Sec. 6. Also, where acts of disorder or violence are committed by individuals, who are screened from detection, by their situation, and by the disposition of those around them to withhold evidence, the Faculty may select for punishment any, who, by withholding evidence and screening the guilty, shall thus appear to be actors in, or abettors of, the crime.

CHAPTER V.

Of Examinations, Exhibitions. Commencements, and Academical Degrees.

SEC. 1. At the end of each of the College terms, the several Classes shall be examined by the Faculty, on the studies in which they have been engaged, in presence of the Trustees, and such literary gentlemen as may be invited to attend; and any student, who shall not be deemed by the Faculty to have sustained his examination, shall be required to make up his deficiencies during the vacation. At the public examination next before the annual Commencement, the members of each class shall be examined on all the studies of the year preceding; and no student, failing to sustain such examination, shall be allowed to pass to a higher class. In these examinations, the Faculty will mark by numbers their estimate of the performance of each student; which estimate shall be taken into account, in determining his relative standing.

SEC. 2. The candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, shall, at the examination next preceding the Commencement, be examined, in like manner, on all the studies of the Collegiate Course; and no candidate, who has not, in the opinion of the Faculty, sustained his examination, shall receive a degree. The time allotted to the examination of the Senior Class for degrees, shall be not less than four days.

SEC. 3. At the close of each winter term there may be an Exhibition by the students of the Junior Class. The exercises at this Exhibition shall be assigned by the Faculty, under such regulations as they may prescribe. Declamations, and other performances for premiums, may also, from time to time, be appointed by the Faculty.

SEC. 4. The literary society, styled "the Washington College Athenæum," is hereby recognized; and no new society shall be established in the College, without permission of the Faculty. No society which is, or hereafter may be, established in the College, shall hold its meetings, or perform any of its exercises, in hours appropriated to study. All public exhibitions of societies must be held by permission of the Faculty, and subject to such regulations as they may prescribe.

SEC. 5. The annual Commencement shall be held on the first Wednesday in August. All academical degrees shall be conferred by the President, with the consent of the Trustees. Such members of the Senior Class as may, in the opinion of the Faculty, have sustained their examinations, shall by them be recommended to the Trustees, as candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Every Bachelor, in or after the third year from the date of his first degree, if he shall have sustained a fair character, and shall perform such exercises as may be assigned to him for Commencement, may be a candidate for the degree of Master of Arts.

SEC. 6. The exercises of the Commencement shall be attended by all the students, in conformity with such arrangements as may be prescribed. If any student shall refuse to prepare, or perform the part assigned to him, at Commencement, or any College exhibition; or shall, at such time, or on any other occasion, exhibit any thing in publick, which has not been approved by the President, or Professor of Belles Lettres, he shall be subject to such censure as the Faculty may determine, and, if a candidate for the Baccalaureate, his degree may be withheld.

SEC. 7. Every candidate for a degree must pay to the President a fee of five dollars; and must also present to him certificates of the payment of all his College dues. In the bills of the term ending at Commencement, all the students may be charged the sum of one dollar and fifty cents each, for the expenses of a publick Commencement dinner. The other expenses of the Commencement shall be defrayed by the candidates for the first degree. Every person, on whom a degree has been conferred, may have a diploma if he desire it; and shall bring to the President a fair copy of the established form written on vellum or parchment.

SEC. 8. Persons who have received a degree in any other College or University, may, on application to the President, be admitted ad eundem, upon paying the customary fee. But honourary degrees, conferred by the Trustees on individuals of distinguished merit, shall be free from all charge.

CHAPTER VI.

Of Vacations and absence.

SEC. 1. There shall be three vacations in each year—the first, of six weeks, immediately after the annual Commencement; the second, of two weeks, from the Thursday preceding Christmas Day; and the third, of three weeks, from the Thursday preceding the twentieth of April.

SEC. 2. At the close of each term, every student shall deliver the key of his room to the President, or to such person as shall be appointed by him to receive the same—his name, and the number of his room, being inscribed on a label attached to it. And no persons, except the Professors and Tutors, shall reside in the College during the vacations, without special liberty obtained from the President.

SEC. 3. Every student is required to return punctually at the commencement of the term, or to present a satisfactory excuse for his absence, on penalty of losing his standing in the class. All absence from the College, at any other time than the specified vacations, or by permission of the President, will be punished by fine, or other College censure.

SEC. 4. Every student shall be amenable to the laws of the College for his moral conduct, whether present or absent.

CHAPTER VII.

Of the Library.

SEC. 1. The Librarian shall be appointed by the President and Standing Committee. He shall keep an alphabetical catalogue of all the books in the Library, divided into chapters, according to the subjects treated of in the several books, and containing references to the alcoves or shelves, where the several books are placed.

SEC. 2. Books may be taken by the following persons only:— Trustees of the College; those who have made donations to the Library to the amount of one hundred dollars; the officers of Instruction; President, Graduates, and Students.

SEC. 3. The Library shall be opened at such stated times as the President may direct; and the Students shall come in such order as the Librarian may prescribe.

SEC. 4. No Student shall take from the Library, without special leave of the President, more than one folio at a time, which he may keep four weeks; or one quarto, which he may keep three weeks; or one octavo, which he may keep two weeks; or two duodecimos, which he may keep the same time. Every student who shall not return his books as the law requires, shall be fined at the discretion of the librarian, not to exceed twenty cents for each week of neglect. All books received by undergraduates, shall be returned to the library at the close of each term; and all books, taken by other persons, shall be returned the week preceding the annual Commencement. All damage done to the books, by writing in them or otherwise, shall be assessed by the Librarian, who is to keep a correct account of all damages and fines which he may collect, and which shall be appropriated to the augmentation of the Library.

SEC. 5. No person, but a member of the Faculty, shall be allowed to receive more than three volumes at the same time; nor shall any person be allowed to detain any book more than three months. No officer of the College shall take from the Library, or have in his possession at one time, more than twelve volumes. And whereas some books, from their nature or costliness, ought not to be removed from the Library, the Standing Committee shall cause to be prepared a catalogue of such books, which shall not be taken out but with their permission.

SEC. 6. No person shall lend to another any book which he has received from the Library, under penalty of losing the privilege of borrowing for one year.

SEC. 7. No student shall, without permission, take any book from any library kept out of the College; nor may any Society purchase any books, or receive any into their libraries, which the College librarian does not approve; whose duty it shall be to advise with such society, and to assist them in making a judicious selection of books.

SEC. 8. A handsome book shall be kept by the Librarian, in which shall be inscribed the names of all contributors to the Library, together with a list of the books which they have contributed. And if any person shall make a donation of books to the amount of five hundred dollars, they shall be distinguished by having the name of the donor written over them.

SEC. 9. On the week preceding Commencement, annually, each book in the Library shall be taken down, and the books and shelves freed from dust.

CHAPTER VIII.

Of College Bills, and the Expenses of the Students.

SEC. 1. There shall be three terms in each year, and each Student shall be charged for Tuition, eleven dollars per term; for room-rent, three dollars and fifty cents per term; for the use of the Library, one dollar per term; for sweeping rooms, ringing the bell, fuel for the recitation rooms, and printing expenses, two dollars per term; the whole to be paid in advance, at the commencement of each term. The expense of repairing broken windows, and similar common damages and expenses, shall be assessed upon the students generally, at the close of each term; and any fines which a student may have incurred, together with charges for any special damage which he may have committed, shall be added to this contingent bill.

SEC. 2. All students entering upon an advanced standing, who do not come with a regular dismissal and recommendation from some other College, shall be required to pay into the Treasury thirty-three dollars, (being the amount of the annual tuition,) for each year of such advancement: Provided, that the President may, at his discretion, dispense with a part or the whole of this requisition, in favour of necessitous Students.

SEC. 3. The College Bills shall be made out under the inspection of the President, by the Bursar, who shall collect the same, and pay the amount to the Treasurer of the College. Nothing is to be deducted or refunded for absence, unless occasioned by sickness; or for any less period than half a term.

SEC. 4. To prevent extravagant or improper expenditure by the Students, all monies designed for their use shall be placed, by their parents or guardians, in the hands of the College Bursar, who shall superintend their expenses with a parental discretion. No student may purchase any thing without his leave. All necessary articles for the Students' use are to be paid for by the Bursar, who shall keep a correct account with each Student, of all receipts and expenditures on his behalf; and shall receive a fixed salary for his services; and he shall charge each Student with three per cent. on all monies so disbursed, and pay the same into the College Treasury. If any Student shall receive any money which does not pass through the hands of the Bursar, he shall be liable to dismission from the Institution.

SEC. 5. The Students shall board only in such houses as shall be approved by the President, and at a rate to be fixed by the Standing Committee; and no Student shall, during term time, change his place of boarding, without permission from the Bursar.

SEC. 6. As a farther preventive of extravagance, an uniform dress shall be prescribed by the President, and no Student shall appear in publick, in any other dress, during term time, under such penalty as the Faculty may inflict.

Every Student shall receive a copy of the Laws, for which he shall be charged the sum of twenty-five cents.
