Watkinson Family Papers

Background

Origin and Nature of the Collection

The Watkinson Family Papers combine manuscripts and other materials from a number of sources. First there are manuscripts, photocopies of manuscripts, and photographs that Marian G. M. Clarke assembled and used for her David Watkinson's Library: One Hundred years in Hartford, Connecticut, 1866-1966 (Hartford, CT: Trinity College Press, 1966). The provenance for these unfortunately was never recorded. The large group of papers pertaining to John Revell Watkinson, ca. 2,500 pieces, purchased in November of 1981 (A1 in the Watkinson Accession Book), inaugurated formal accessioning for Watkinson manuscripts. Other important individual items for which there is a secure provenance were donated by Mrs. Nicholas Palloti (A2, given before 1977 but only accessioned in 1981), Robert E. Todd (A25), Robert Watkinson Gray III (A26 & A27), and Mary H. French, courtesy of Stanley G. French (A68), and Leonard Banco (A199).

Brief Account of the Family of Samuel Watkinson, Sr., Just Before and Just After Coming to the United States

Samuel Watkinson, Sr. (1745-1816) was born in Sible Hedingham, Essex, England and married Sarah Blair (1743-1819) of Giffordland Dalry, Ayrshire, Scotland on 1766. The couple settled in Lavenham, Suffolk, England, where their 12 children were born: Mary Watkinson Perkins (1769-1840), Sarah Watkinson Pledger (1770-1830), John Revell Watkinson (1772-1850), Samuel Watkinson, Jr. (1773-1798), Elisabeth Watkinson Collins (1775-1828), Richard Watkinson (1776-1798), David Watkinson (1778-1857), William Watkinson (1779-1852), Anne Watkinson Wells (1781-1836), Edward Watkinson (1783-1859), Jane Watkinson Gill (1785-1859), and Robert Watkinson (1786-1867).

Samuel Watkinson, Sr. was a master woolcomber, and the family was wealthy. During the time of the French Revolution, Toryism made it difficult for the Watkinsons as members of a nonconformist church, who were looked upon as the friends of liberty, to continue to live in England. In 1795, the whole family immigrated to the United States and settled in Middletown, Connecticut. The male family members soon became active in business. Samuel, Jr., Richard, David, and William left Middletown and ended up working in New York City, when yellow fever broke out in the Middle Atlantic States in 1798. All four were stricken and Samuel, Jr. and Richard died, while David and William were able to recover. See Marian Clarke's David Watkinson's Library and Janet Siskind's Rum and axes: the rise of a Connecticut merchant family, 1795-1850 (Ithaca: Cornell University Press, 2002) for more background information and the unpublished genealogical studies connected with the Watkinson Family Papers for information on later generations of the family.

DAVID WATKINSON (1778-1857). 2 Boxes.

David settled in Hartford and married Olive Hudson (1781-1849), daughter of Hartford printer, Barzillai Hudson. There David became a partner with his brothers William and Edward. In 1819, he partnered with Ezra Clark and in 1835 with his nephew Alfred Gill and Ezra Clark, Jr. Besides running a successful general wholesale business, David became active in other business ventures in Hartford and Connecticut, including banking, insurance, and transportation projects. He and Olive were also very devoted to philanthropic activities. David was involved in the founding of Trinity College, the Wadsworth Atheneum, Hartford Hospital, and what was the predecessor of the Hartford Public Library. He also was active in what are today the Institute for Living and the American School for the Deaf. Both he and Olive Watkinson worked on behalf of the city's orphanages, and Olive was also involved in the Widow's Society. David and Olive had no children, and she predeceased him. When David died in 1857, he left a very substantial estate, much of went to his 30 nieces and nephews. The remainder was devoted to generous benefactions to the newly founded Hartford Hospital, the city's orphanages, the establishment of Watkinson Farm School (today's Watkinson School), the establishment of the Watkinson Prisoners' Aid Society to help released prisoners, and the establishment of the Watkinson Library. For more information on David Watkinson, see Marian G. M. Clarke's David Watkinson's Library: One Hundred years in Hartford, Connecticut, 1866-1966 (Hartford, CT: Trinity College Press, 1966) and Janet Siskind's Rum and axes: the rise of a Connecticut merchant family, 1795-1850 (Ithaca: Cornell University Press, 2002).
