On Military Mobilization

It is probable that the necessity of military service for our nation's young men will continue and increase, either for United Nations forces or for universal military training. Mobilization, of course, has serious implications for Trinity College.

Informed college administrators and selective service officials predict that college enrollments will decrease by twenty-five per cent by next September as students are called into military service. It is also likely that many young men of college age will volunteer. As a result, competition among colleges for the best students is increasing.

The College will therefore particularly welcome the suggestions of Alumni for young men who are qualified for entrance in the next freshman class or for transfer to the upper classes.

Work Starts on New Million Dollar Library

$650,000 Gift Enables College to Build

The Old Dominion Foundation, established by Paul Mellon of Washington, D. C., has given the College a gift of $650,000 to preserve the priceless collections of the Watkinson Library. In accepting this generous donation, the Trustees immediately added $400,000 from other gifts to construct a new library which will be erected east of the Chemistry building and will house both the Trinity and the Watkinson collections.

President Funston pointed out that the Old Dominion Foundation's aid in preserving the Watkinson books is of "highest cultural importance not only to Trinity but also to Hartford and the scholarly world at large." Recently the Old Dominion Foundation has purchased the Boswell Papers and the Bay Psalm Book for Yale University, and is noted for its philanthropic works devoted to preserving scholarly material and promoting scholarship.

A year ago the College offered to restore the Watkinson Library books to usefulness if the Library would merge with its own. The offer was approved by the Watkinson Trustees, the Connecticut Legislature, and the Superior Court. Meanwhile the Hartford Fire department ordered the Watkinson Library closed to the public. Because financial difficulties have prevented use of modern library practices, quite naturally the condition of the 130,000 books has deteriorated and it is impossible to get at many of them because of inadequate shelving and cataloguing.

Trinity men will ever be grateful to the Old Dominion Foundation's generosity, because it will soon mean that the College will have one of the finest small college libraries in the United States, that through the increased facilities students will be better instructed, and that scholars will have readily available much priceless material.

The Trustees have awarded the contract to build the new $1,000,000 library to the Industrial Construction Company of Hartford. Ground was broken on November 11 and the building should be finished within a year. The 167 x 102 foot building is to be a fireproof, four level structure with a capacity of 500,000 volumes and study space for 325 students.

The new library is to be placed in the center of the teaching campus for maximum accessibility. The site selected is between the Chemistry Building and the tennis courts. It will be 75 feet east of the Chemistry Building and will extend about 75 feet north of it. The main entrance to the library will be on the quadrangle level northeast of the Chemistry Building.

The interior of the building has been planned with two objectives in mind—to provide comfortable accommodations for readers and to make the book collections readily available. It will consist of four floors flexibly designed on the modular plan to permit future rearrangements should the need for them arise in years to come.

The ground floor or basement level will be principally an open stack for 200,000 Trinity books. The building has been placed on a sloping site in order to provide ventilation and daylight on three sides of this basement. Approximately 55 open study booths (carrels) will be located at windows while small reading tables will be placed at intervals within the stack itself. The remainder of this floor will contain receiving and sorting rooms, janitor's space, and public rest rooms.

The first or main floor with its main entrance on the quadrangle level is the principal floor of the building. The entrance is at the lower left hand corner of the plan printed below, facing west into the quadrangle. Just inside the entrance is the lobby, which has as its central feature the circulation desk controlling the exit. Part of the assigned reading collection is shelved back of this desk. Opposite the desk is a coat room near the entrance. Extending beyond this along the north side of the building is a new book and periodical reading area with lounge type furniture and a smoking room seating 75 readers. Straight ahead from the lobby is the main reading room with seats for about 90 persons. All these reading areas will have glass partitions with bookcases below. The lobby itself will be fitted with display cases for exhibition purposes.

To the right the lobby opens onto the card catalog area, a reference desk with provision for the reference and bibliography collections and microfilm reading close by, and an open reserve collection

by PROFESSOR D. G. BRINTON THOMPSON

The present weighs down upon us so heavily and stands so stark and grim before us that it is hard to view the immediate in its relation to the whole span of recorded history. This span hardly amounts to six thousand years, a very short interval compared with the millions of years of geologic time or even with the hundreds of thousands of years that man has been on earth. Man has often changed the style of his clothes, and has immensely increased both his mental and his physical tools, but, according to all available data, he is the same physical and mental creature that he was six thousand years ago.

When the settled civilizations of the Mesopotamian Valley first indistinctly emerged into history, governments had the same basic problems and characteristics that they have today. Governments to last any length of time had to hold the confidence of at least a considerable section of the people. This has been accomplished by protecting the population from outside aggression, by maintaining law and order, and by promising better conditions; sometimes not only in this world but also in the world to come; a very important factor when the prospect in this world was meagre.

The earliest governments had evolved a simple and yet very effective form of control, the priest-king. As chief priest, the ruler was the only one who could effectively intervene with the local deity, on behalf of his subjects, for more rain, more sun, or whatever the predominately agricultural population desired. The people had not absorbed the belief that they would better their conditions much themselves, and they depended heavily on the priest-king for supernatural help. He alone knew how to aid his subjects, and anyone who challenged him was a false priest and must be destroyed.

The priest-king also protected his state from outside aggression and maintained law and order. His word was final, since not only did he have the temporal power but he was divinely inspired. This simple and very effective form of control lasted long and has, in different forms, persisted to be revived as a major source of power today.

Other types of government developed: aristocracies, republics based on varying degrees of democracy; and governments where the king and the priest were separate, thereby weakening the king's power greatly. These forms tended, at times, to evolve from one another, but none were permanent, and soon, in one part of the world or another, examples of all could be found. However, at certain periods, in certain areas, one form would become predominant.

In the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, up to the first World War, the progress of representative governments, based evermore widely on the people, seemed making steady and inevitable progress throughout the world. Millions looked confidently forward to a not far distant future when government based on the consent of the governed, liberty, and a high regard for the sanctity of the individual would spread all over western civilization, and from thence become world-wide.

Then the catastrophe of World War occurred, for man had forgotten that science has no morals, inventions have no ethics, and that the promising structure with all its glittering material adornment lacked an adequate spiritual foundation. When the war passed, vast numbers of disillusioned people turned away even from the greatest ideals of their civilization. An age of tyrants ensued, one of many such that the world has endured. Grim dictatorships overthrew the representative governments in Germany and Italy, and also in many of the minor states of Europe.

The struggling parliamentary growth in Japan was stifled, and a new crop of dictators arose in Latin America. In Russia, the Duma, that had a good promise of eventually leading to self-government, was replaced by a dictatorship that has become the mighty threat that may overwhelm democracy and liberty for centuries. In the U. S. S. R. we see a remarkable resemblance to the earliest governments of history. Stalin is the priest-king and his polit-bureau are his acolytes. No more is it necessary to invoke a god to help the people, for the astounding rate of man's control over nature has made plausible the idea that man can gain his heart's desire in life through his own efforts, if only those efforts can be properly directed; and Stalin alone knows the proper direction. Woe betide anyone who claims equal or superior knowledge. He is the blackest of wretches who would mislead the people, and he must be destroyed, but first he must confess his error and acknowledge the infallibility of Stalin.

Stalin and his early associates had no need to invent a philosophy. Almost a hundred years earlier, Karl Marx, from the library of the British Museum, had proclaimed the inevitable class struggle and gave intricate and confused instructions for a new society to usher in a material millennium. His writings had such a strong emotional content that, although his historical predictions did not eventuate, millions were affected by his ideas. Thus the communists, by setting themselves up as the sole orthodox interpreters of Marxian socialism, have seized the most powerful revolutionary philosophy of the day. Their special hatred of non-communist socialists is easy to explain because these non-conformists dare to deny that Stalin is the only authority on socialism.

A belief in God or a future life, of course, must be ruled out since there must be no divided authority and the masses must have nowhere else to look for help. It was obviously impossible, in the present age, to invent a new apostleship, so God had to be abolished. Actually, recently, the Soviet has ceased in its attempt to eradicate all Christianity, and has fostered a subservient priesthood to tend those at the bottom of the Russian social scale,

Fifteen Faculty Members Appointed

who still cling to religion. Also this controlled church serves as a weapon for penetrating the largely Christian West. Communism still insists vigorously that the belief in any god is an archaic leftover to be tolerated only among a few inferior and very unimportant people.

Of course, Stalin as the modern version of the old priest-king has absolute temporal power, maintains rigid law and order, and protects his subjects from foreign aggression, which he continually warns would be at the throats of his people if he relaxed his vigilance.

There is no doubt that the priest-king form of rule represents a time-tried system for a group or individual to maintain power. Using modern techniques, which allow for the wide application of force, this type of government is immensely strong. There is no chance for a clash of spiritual and material power since they are one, and in a world in which faith has sadly faltered this lack of conflict is appealing.

Employment is constant, as all are employed by the state, which can never go bankrupt, as long as printing presses perform, even though the workers may get little for their pay. All labor is unionized, and all unions are strictly controlled by the government. Propaganda is ever-present, everywhere to strengthen the belief that Stalin is all-powerful, all-knowing, and all-benign. Elections in the U. S. S. R., where there is only one ticket, seem absurd to us, yet they are considered of great importance since the very fact that all, even the humblest, can cast their vote for the party tends to make all feel they have a personal part in supporting Stalin. It represents a great ceremony of unity.

Since this great monolithic state is really a modern version of a very ancient organization of power its weaknesses must be known. Historically the most important is the question of succession. Sooner or later all such autocracies founder on this problem. Hereditary rule has proved the best, although imperfect, solution, but Russia cannot at present readily avail herself of this method of regularizing the passing of power from one hand to another. By luck the Soviet may weather the death of Stalin, but inevitably, sometime in the future the state will be riven by the struggle over succession. Another infirmity, in comparison with the West, is the stifling of initiative and inventive capacity.

An obvious weakness is what has come to be known as Titoism, or the breaking away of outlying spheres of influence. This weakness is only serious for Russia in the face of a strong West. Tito would have been liquidated long ago and Yugoslavia brought to heel if it had not been for the strength of the West that would make this operation full of risks. Remove the fear of outside power and Russia could crush all deviationism, no matter how far removed, because modern science has made the transfer of striking power to even the most remote areas comparatively easy. The U. S. S. R. has the power and cares nothing for the cost.

We have been told ad nauseam that communism can only grow where material living conditions have become intolerable. Yet this is obviously false. Czechoslovakia, which had probably a higher standard of well-being than any continental nation that had been in the war went communist. There were no Russian soldiers there to force the change. Czechoslovakia was a full-fledged member of the United Nations and had full contact with the West. It simply lacked faith in the West, and refused to realize that communism cannot be accepted in part; one must accept it all or not at all, for its very strength is its utter rigidity. Finland, in a vastly worse position geographically than Czechoslovakia, and under the cloud of having been an enemy, has so far resisted communism principally because it has faith in its own ideals. India, an area of great poverty, is unlikely to go communist for the same reason—it has faith in its own beliefs.

The realization that communism represents really a very ancient but effective type of control based primarily on force should give a clearer understanding of this movement and how to resist it. Certainly the surest and greatest protection is faith in one's own civilization which with all its imperfections is better than this grim engine of pure force.

Dean Hughes Praises Faculty; Lauds Scholarship Rise in Annual Report

Dean Arthur H. Hughes in reporting for the academic year of 1949-50 states that the past twelve months may well be thought of as a paragon of school years. Continuing the Dean says, "It would be easy to cite one instance after another of help proffered voluntarily by faculty members in order to assist students and student organizations. When one considers the financial hardships that have beset the members of the teaching profession during recent years, one feels considerable satisfaction in realizing that professional standards at Trinity are higher than ever despite the undoubted deterioration in the economic status of college teachers throughout the land."

His report shows that 408 students were registered for a B. A. degree and 279 for science. (There were 232 freshmen.) Economics led with 130 majors; pre-medicine had 74; History 65; Engineering 50 and English 47.

The Curriculum Committee, after prolonged faculty discussion, introduced several changes in the course of study. The most important were a strengthening of the major requirements, with five courses the usual minimum in any given field of concentration; the abolition of our General Arts major and a supplementary requirement obliging all students to complete quantitatively the requirements of some major field; and the providing of interdepartmental majors of six courses, to be made available for interested students who receive the approval of the departments concerned. A psychology major was established to enable students to qualify for either an Arts or a Science degree in that field. A sub-College and non-credit course in Mathematics for Freshmen has been set up for certain men.

The average grade of the undergraduates soared to a new high—

77.4%—which speaks well of the student body. It is particularly gratifying to note that the fraternity average was slightly ahead of the neutral body. The deferred rushing plan instituted last year had much to do with this rise. Tau Alpha won the Fraternity Scholarship Cup with a most creditable average of 81.5 while the other houses were ranked as follows:—Delta Phi; Alpha Chi Rho; Theta Xi; Sigma Nu; Psi Upsilon; Delta Psi; Delta Kappa Epsilon and Alpha Delta Phi.

The Dean's List averages of 85% or better were obtained by a total of 259 men in the two terms as compared with 197 men a year ago. There were 17 required withdrawals as compared to 24 a year ago while only 55 men were placed on probation as compared to 93 in 1948-49.

In conclusion Dean Hughes praises the activities of the College Senate under the guidance of its prexy, Jay Geiger, and notes that it is becoming each year an increasingly influential factor in the control of many phases of student life and that in time it will inevitably take over a still larger share of leadership and responsibility.

with tables along the east wall of the building. Thus all the reading areas save the small reference area will have northern and eastern exposure, the best light for study purposes.

The mezzanine floor includes a locked stack for housing Trinity's special collections such as the Moore Chinese collection, four seminar rooms for upper class meetings, a music listening room, a staff lounge suited for small receptions and teas, and a balcony which overlooks the main floor library.

The top floor is to be devoted entirely to the Watkinson Library. Its 130,000 volumes will be housed in a single closed stack area. In addition there will be a small reading room, the Watkinson Librarian's office and a rare book section to be called the Trumbull room.

Report Innovations In Actuarial Training

Increasing opportunities for Trinity students preparing for the actuarial profession have been reported by Professor Harold L. Dorwart, chairman of the mathematics department.

The Placement Office has arranged summer employment programs for prospective actuaries with four insurance companies: Equitable, Travelers, Metropolitan and Connecticut General. The mathematics department is offering courses in higher mathematics which prepare students to take the first three of five actuarial examinations which generally determine the rate of pay of actuaries employed by insurance companies and government agencies.

A. Finley Schaeff, '52, and George E. Moore, Jr., '51, were two of 263 men who passed the second level actuarial examination this year among 1,142 candidates. Both are participating in the summer employment program as well as majoring in mathematics.

Delta Psi Marks 100th Anniversary

The Epsilon Chapter of the Fraternity of Delta Psi marked its one hundredth anniversary over the weekend of October 13-15. Founded on October 17, 1850, in 38 Brownell Hall on the old campus by the late Charles Frederick Hoffman, '51, the fraternity rented rooms on Main Street near the present Hartford Connecticut Trust building until the spring 1878 when it moved into its familiar Hall on Summit Street and Allen Place.

Over 140 members attended the Centennial Dinner at the Hartford Club. Martin W. Clement, '01, acted as toastmaster. Among those present were Frederick R. Hoisington, Sr., '91; Frederick R. Hoisington, Jr., '20; and Frederick R. Hoisington, III, '52.

John Mason, '34, in presenting a Saint Anthony pew end to the College, noted that Delta Psi alumni have played an active part in the development of their Alma Mater with 19 members serving

Opening Convocation

Governor Chester A. Bowles leaves the Chapel with President Funston after the Opening Convocation ceremony on September 28. The Governor, Mayor Coleman and President Funston addressed the students with the latter making a surprise announcement that the College would soon have a new library.

Ten Lectures In College Series

The Lecture and Entertainment Committee has scheduled ten public lectures for the College year.

Poet Robert S. Hillyer, former Trinity Professor of English, gave a reading from his own works and a critical commentary to open the public lecture series. Henri M. Peyre, Sterling Professor of French at Yale delivered a most interesting account on conditions in France and Western Europe.

Other lecturers will be: Nov. 30, Professor Gilbert Highet, Columbia University, Moore Greek Lecture; Dec. 14, Dr. Waldo L. Semon, Director Pioneering Research, B. F. Goodrich Co. "American Rubber;" Jan. 11, Whiting Williams, writer and lecturer; Feb. 15, Joyce Cary, English novelist, "The Novel as a Picture of Society;" March 8, David Bradley, Army Medical Officer, "Atomic Therapy in a Sick World;" March 20, Clifford Kamen, world traveler, "Our Fabulous Great Lakes;" April 12, President Harold Taylor, Sarah Lawrence College, "Liberalism in Education;" April 26, John Nicolls Booth, correspondent, "Through Himalayan Passes into Forbidden Tibet."

The College also co-sponsored the Rev. Paul G. Macey, Charles Henry Brent Lecturer on Church Unity, and assisted the Hartford Foreign Policy Association in bringing Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief Pacific Fleet World War II, to the campus for a talk on the Far East.

Class Size Reduced

The average class size at Trinity has been reduced this year from 19.2 to 17.3 students by an increase of the faculty by eight members and planned reduction of the student body from 916 to 887. This strengthening of Trinity's position for traditional small classes and personal relationships has changed the teaching ratio to one teacher for 11.2 students.

Alumni Fund Goal Set at $35,000 Harmon Barber, '19, Named Chairman

Harmon T. Barber, '19, has been appointed Chairman of the 1951 Alumni Fund by Hugh S. Campbell, '32, National Alumni President.

The goal for this year has been set at $35,000 which College Treasurer Getzendanner indicates is the amount needed in addition to income from other sources to meet College operating costs for the year. Decreased income from the summer and extension departments plus the increased costs of instruction due to additional faculty appointments are two of the principal factors affecting the 1950-51 budget.

Mr. Barber has been associated with the Travelers Insurance Company for thirty years and is now associate actuary in the casualty actuarial department. Last year he was elected president of the Casualty Actuarial Society. For many years he has been active in Windsor Town affairs, having served for ten years as chairman of the Board of Education and a director of the Public Library Association and Public Health Nurse Association.

As an undergraduate Mr. Barber was active in the Glee Club, Jesters, Ivy and Editor-in-Chief of the Tripod. His class elected him Secretary-Treasurer and Class Historian twice. He was manager of the Track team and Secretary of the Advisory Commission on Student Activities. His fraternity is Sigma Nu.

Mr. Barber has made the following appointments to the 1951 Alumni Fund Committee: George C. Capen, '10 Vice-Chairman; Walter W. Canner, '23 Special Gifts Chairman; George Malcolm-Smith, '25 Chairman of Promotion and L. Barton Wilson, III, '37 Vice-Chairman of Promotion.

The following new Class Agents have been named: Joseph H. Le-cour, '98; John Rosebaugh, '11; John G. Tracy, '33; Charles A. Tucker, '34; Barclay Shaw, '35; and William B. Starkey, '44.

Jesters Present Plays

Continuing the policy established last year, The Jesters are planning this season to present three plays in the arena manner in Alumni Hall. The first of these, The Male Animal by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent, was presented four times during the week of November 13th. The second, a Greek tragedy, will be presented in March. An added performance is planned for the meeting of the New England Classical Society. The regular season will conclude in May with Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest."

This year the College has increased the student activity fee so that all undergraduates will be admitted free.

Atheneum Plans Debates

Under the direction of John Wynne, '52, and Mr. John Dando, new faculty coach, the Atheneum Society has planned an active season of intercollegiate debates with Amherst, Columbia, New Haven State Teachers College and Wesleyan. A program for freshmen intramural and intercollegiate debating is also being arranged.

Deferred Rushing Plan Ends Successfully

The first year of deferred rushing ended on October 1st with the nine fraternities pledging 105 sophomores. Rushing began one week before under the direction of the Interfraternity Council which limited each rushee to two lunches and two dinners at one house as well as no off-campus rushing.

Alpha Delta Phi and Saint Anthony pledged 19 each while Alpha Chi Rho accepted 15, Psi Upsilon 11, Theta Xi 10, Sigma Nu 9, Delta Phi and Delta Kappa Epsilon 7, Tau Alpha 5, and the Commons Club 3.

Club Gets Quarters

The old college dining hall and student center of the 1900's, better known as Mother Stickney's, has been reconverted to a temporary student center with the Brownell Club having its quarters on the ground floor and Freshmen using the second floor. The building was moved behind Boardman Hall and Jarvis Laboratory in 1930 to make way for the construction of Cook Dormitory and Hamlin Dining Hall. Until this year it had been used as a faculty apartment house.

Prexy Gives Blood

President Funston was the first man in line when Lou Maradie, '50, and Al Miller, '51, organized the first Connecticut collegiate blood bank in early October. It is their intent to be able to ship at least five pints of blood every Monday under the auspices of the Red Cross to Korea and hospitals throughout the state.

Glee Club to Broadcast

The College Glee Club will sing on the Songs of New England Colleges program sponsored by the Monsanto Chemical Company over NBC stations in New England on Sunday, December 17.

College Ends Fiscal Year in Black; Getzendanner Notes Improvements

Treasurer Joseph W. Getzendanner, Jr., reports that the College has closed its books with an excess of income over expense of $4,477 for the fiscal year of 1949-50 ending June 30. Once again, the successful Alumni Fund which raised $30,956 plus a record regular enrollment of 918 at the beginning of the year were important factors in keeping the books balanced. It should also be noted that there were more resident students, a modest increase in investment income, an increase of tuition from $500 to $600 and a large Summer School enrollment due to a ten-week course being offered as against a six-week session.

Total income increased by 11% to a new high record figure of $1,227,000. Every effort was made to hold overhead expenses to a minimum and to avoid over-expansion of activities which cannot be supported in future years when enrollments may decline, Mr. Getzendanner reports. Educational and General expense increased by 3% over the preceding year, while Administration expense increased by $4,000 but remains at 13.5% of total, the same as last year. The main items for a General expense increase of $14,000 are the higher cost of the annuity plan for non-academic personnel as more employees passed the required one year waiting period, the printing of such special items as the View and the Bequest Books, and interest on bank loans.

Instruction expense increased by $22,000 to 42.7% of the total while the Library and Scholarship expense increased by $10,000 each, and the trend indicates that these two latter items will be higher. Maintenance expense decreased by $31,000 to 27% of the total. This includes a $13,000 cost of converting the Central Heating Plant to the use of Bunker "C" oil, which will pay for itself in sizable savings on future fuel bills.

Major repair and improvement projects were alterations in Boardman Hall, which will double its classroom space and permit all the evening classes to be held in one building; the installation of a sprinkler system in the basement, halls and stairways of Jarvis and Seabury Halls, Northam Towers, the basement of Hamlin Dining Hall and the entire kitchen area; the erection of a fence and piers by Elton Hall; and three sets of gateposts on Summit Street given by anonymous alumni.

The Athletic Association operated at approximately the same net cost as for last year ($35,100). The Dining Hall operated satisfactorily under contract to the same food management concern as last year, and the College received its full costs of operation of the physical facilities. The volume of business at the Union-Bookstore declined because the College promoted sale of secondhand textbooks to save money for the students.

Total endowment funds increased by $317,000 during the year, including $203,000 received by gift or bequest, $68,000 from profits on the sale of securities, and $44,000 transferred from the Development Program. Collection of $37,144 was made from Development Program pledges while 550 pledges totaling $36,786 were outstanding at the end of the year.

Colby Snaps Unbeaten String in Upset

Colby's thrilling 6-0 victory ended the Blue and Gold's eleven-game winning streak after the team had opened the 1950 season with victories over Sewanee, Coast Guard and Hobart.

Favored to upset their Maine rivals, who have never lost to Trinity, the Blue and Gold were clearly outplayed in the opening half. A Trinity fumble in the second quarter deep in our territory set up the game's only score. Late in the fourth quarter Eddie Ludorf's pass to Dick Garrison gave Trin a first down on the Colby four yard line. Jimmy Pickett raced around left end to score, but the officials spotted a back in motion. Pickett and Ludorf brought the ball up to the six inch line in two plays. Bill Goralski went off tackle twice but failed to make the distance and Colby took over on their three inch line. Two plays later the game ended.

When practice started early in September, Coach Dan Jessee, now the longest-termed of New England College gridiron mentors since Lloyd Jordan moved from Amherst to Harvard, felt he had a good team with a backfield even faster than last year and the middle of the line heavier and stronger. Dan pointed out, however, that the graduation of fullback Rog Hall, and lanky Bill Pitkin at end plus the resignation from College of Dick Aiken, star pass receiver and punter, left a tremendous gap to fill. Captain Whitey Oberg, all-East center last year, and his teammates have conceded nothing and have developed into another powerful eleven. Ed Ludorf's passes have been long and accurate; Bill Vibert's punting improved in every contest, while Bill Goralski the team's top running back, Al Magnoli, Tom DePatie, Art French, Dick Nissi, Jim Pickett and Hum DelMastro have shown plenty of ability to move the ball.

Red Ratcliffe, a 1948 letterman, is an able understudy to Captain Oberg at center. Unfortunately Bill Wills' knee injury has kept him sidelined.

Captain Whitey Oberg, all-East center, and Eddie Ludorf, regular quarterback and ace passer.

At guard Dick DePaolis, Dave Simmons, a 1948 letterman, Dick Ahern, Don Rathbone and John Wentworth, all lettermen, are the leading players. Rog St. Pierre, 200 pound fullback with last year's freshmen, has also shown up well.

Ed Kulas, Hoot Nicholson, Phil Simoni and Dave Smith are experienced tacklers while Dick Garrison and Chuck McElwee are scrappy and fast ends. Dick has developed into a fine pass receiver. Bernie Bogoslofski and George Smith have seen plenty of service on the flanks.

Ed Ludorf, veteran senior and ace passer, is the first quarterback with Bernie Lawlor and Bill Vibert able replacements. Bill is rapidly improving as a punter and is just as accurate as ever on the points after touchdowns.

In the season's opener against Sewanee (University of the South) clever Eddie Ludorf took to the air as the Southerners bottled up the Blue and Gold running attack. Sewanee was well coached and played an aggressive, heads-up game, but they were undermanned and the Hilltoppers ran up their ninth straight, 40-0. Bill Goralski's fast starting and alert intercepting easily made him the game's stand-out while Dick Nissi showed some hard running from fullback. Our defensive line played good ball and completely throttled the Sewanee running attack.

Coast Guard gave the Blue and Gold a tussle for three periods before the Hilltoppers broke the game wide open in the last quarter to rack up a 41-0 win. As a matter of interest the six touchdowns were shared by Magnoli, Goralski, Nissi, Garrison, DePatie and Bogoslofski while Bill Vibert kicked five points after touchdowns. Again the line played well defensively and the Cadets never got inside our 30-yard line. Ed Ludorf ran the team well and mixed up his selection of plays perfectly. Spadafora of the visitors proved to be a fine ball carrier, but never could quite break away.

Against Hobart a wave of "fumblyitis" plus the determined line play of the visitors checked the Blue and Gold on the ground, but Ludorf's long and accurate passes saved the unbeaten string by a score of 21-6. After Goralski sparked an opening drive in the first quarter to score Trin's first touchdown, Vibert kicked the extra point. Hobart came right back when Ralph Cardillo broke through for a brilliant 89-yard run for a touchdown. The conversion was missed.

The tide of battle rushed back and forth with fumbles by both sides to add to the excitement when Garrison snatched a Ludorf pass and went over after a 56-yard run. Reliable Vibert again converted. The score stayed 14-6 until late in the fourth quarter despite several long Hobart marches. Another Ludorf aerial to Goralski produced the final score and Vibert completed his third conversion.

In the Middlebury game the Hilltoppers regained the victory trail the hard way coming from behind to earn a 35-19 decision after the Vermonters rushed to a 13-0 lead. Taking advantage of a strong cross wind, the Panthers pushed over two quick scores. Opening up big holes in the huge Middlebury line, the Blue and Gold swept 75 yards to score and in the second quarter Magnoli and Goralski worked the ball down field with Nissi going over. A few moments later Garrison caught a long pass from Ludorf to score with Vibert successfully converting each time.

Goralski and Nissi each climaxed two second half drives for touchdowns with the reliable Vibert making the conversions. The Panthers were always a threat and scored once more, thanks to an effective screen pass.

It was an extremely hard fought contest. The speed of the "little giants," Goralski and Pickett who weigh 158 and 165 respectively, plus Ludorf's fine choice of plays proved to be the turning point as the Blue and Gold hammered out 18 first downs to Middlebury's 8.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

Fred Booth's squad of 40 yearlings is a big club in the line, and if the backfield develops it should have a good season. The leading candidates are Al Smith, six-two 198 pounder from Tenafly, N. J. at end; Bill Crenson, 170 pound defensive guard from Harrison, N. Y.; Bob Anderson, a 210 Middletown boy who is a fine all around back; Don Johnston from East Orange, N. J.; the leading quarterback candidate; and Pete Sivaslian, nephew of Ed, '33, from Albany, N. Y., a shifty halfback.

Varsity Soccer Team Off to Fast Start

Seven lettermen answered Coach Lloyd McDonald's call to the first practice but the severe injuries that Dick Hunter, a most promising back, and Lou Raden, star goalie, received in scrimmage leaves the squad's depth very thin. The new coach from Auckland, New Zealand, and an All-American player at Springfield College, sorely misses Nick Nelson, the Blue and Gold's first All-American player, Bob Wood and Jay Geiger, all New England players, and lettermen Jim Brainerd, Hank Goodyear, Don Wolford and Bill Howell.

Nothing daunted, McDonald, who is replacing the late Harold Shetter, has stressed team work and conditioning so that the squad has developed rapidly into a pretty fair first team. In the opening game against Worcester Tech Dick Almquist, Dave Hatfield and Maury Smith each tallied to give the Blue and Gold a 3-0 victory. These three Juniors are coming along well and with co-captains Rick Marshall and Cort Nelson will provide a strong nucleus. Coach McDonald is also counting on lettermen Cliff Stark, Bob Almquist and Fin Schaefer to see much service. He is well pleased with Putty Scott's work at goal when Lou Raden was forced out with a broken hand.

Against M.I.T. Bill Tryon, playing his first game at wing, kicked in the only goal of a very well played contest. The team continued its winning ways by outscoring Tufts 5-3.

The freshman squad turned back M.I.T. 2-1 and Choate 3-2 in its first two games.

Against powerful Cheshire Academy the team lost 19-0 in the season's opener. Cheshire has undoubtedly one of the strongest schoolboy teams in Connecticut this fall, and their first string line way outplayed the Blue and Gold for the first three periods.

The Wesleyan yearlings sparked by their spectacular fullback Ken Smith, also beat the Blue and Gold 19-0. Smith made two scoring runs of over 65 yards each. Don Johnston played well for Trinity and his passes were a constant threat.

Bob Anderson took personal charge of handing Monson Academy its first loss as he scored two touchdowns and made both the conversions, for a 14-12 victory.

Paul White, '49, Reports His Travel Experiences in Philippines

"Since school ended I have taken two trips to Manila—one by bus and the other by car. Both were interesting and very different. During the first one I went to visit a friend and went with him to Batangas Province. This is lowland country just below Manila and beautiful to travel in.

The first night we stayed at the Tagaytay Hotel owned by an old timer by the name of Oben Solee. He was very interesting and filled us with the famous Batangas steaks—the most wonderful piece of meat I have ever tasted—and bedded us down in a room from which we could see Lake Taal. This is the famous spot described by Ripley—the island within the island within the island. From our vantage point we could see the island that is nothing but a now quiet volcano and the other islands around. Too, it was the scene of many guerilla activities during the war.

The next day we went to Barrio Aya to visit more friends and lived in a Nipa hut for a couple of days, bathed in a little pool a few feet from a rice paddy, ate the strangest food—native food is rather tasteless to me, and I ate with my stomach doing flops at times—knew that I was in a very thickly infested Huk country, and walked the plantation watching the native laborers as they caught mud fish, picked coconuts, branded cattle, and ploughed rice fields with the ever patient carabao.

I also spent an evening with a vivacious woman, Yay (like guy) Panlilio, who has just written The Crucible, the story of Marking's guerillas during the war of which she was a part. The book is very good, but she is even more fun to talk to. I have yet to meet her husband, who is at the moment the chief of Quirino's Secret Service.

The next time I was down I stayed with Father Matlock at the St. Luke's Hospital and saw Lyman Ogilby ordained a priest. That visit was a lot of fun, too, because I had the opportunity to meet and talk with Bishop Binsted, Father Swift and many others. They are a wonderful group out here, and a person can be proud to be a part of it. They are doing grand work.

So you can see that my attempts to meet the people and get around are meeting with success. I have now been up north on a hiking trip as far as the Bontoc country and the Ilicos country. The more I meet and come to know the Philippino, the more I grow to like him. There is such gaiety to him, and his face always has expression. Add to that the southern part (Batangas), and I think you will agree with me that I am doing fairly well for a beginner with a year behind him. I am planning to apply for graduate work at Trinity in 1952, but may be I will have gone so native by the time that comes that I won't want to leave here."

Final Report on the 1950 Alumni Fund

by John S. McCook, '35, Chairman

The independent college today must turn more and more to its alumni for regular and generous support. A sizeable Alumni Fund is a relatively new thing to Trinity, but alumni are responding in increasing numbers to the College's appeal. Our goal this year was $30,000. By June 30th alumni, faculty, and parents had contributed $30,956.42 as compared with $19,689.00 in 1949. There were 1,178 contributors this year as compared with 862 in 1949.

This is good progress but we still have a long way to go until results even approximate Wesleyan's, Amherst's, Williams' or, in fact, most of the colleges with whom we are counted. Our alumni body is quite a bit smaller than theirs, so we may not reach in the near future any figure like $75,000 or $100,000 for annual alumni giving. But there is no reason why we cannot have as high or higher a percentage of contributing alumni. And there is no reason whatever why our average gift should not be as large as that of the Wesleyan alumnus.

Our success this year not only erased the potential budget deficit at the College but also brought ten outstanding students to Trinity on scholarships. You, who contributed to the Alumni Fund, are responsible for these fine results.

The 1951 Fund will be headed up by Ham Barber, '19. If your name was not on this year's list of contributors, get it on in '51. If your name was on the list, keep it there. Give regularly, give generously, and the results will make you feel that you have rubbed Aladdin's lamp.

The yearlings showed a much better brand of teamwork as they twice came from behind. Pete Sivaslian and Bill Crenson played a steady game.
 The Amherst Freshmen pounded out a 15-0 victory in the driving rain. The playing conditions were so bad that the game was marred by frequent fumbles and it was impossible to advance the ball except by rushing.

BOOKS

Dr. Harry T. Costello

We hope that those who are finding these booklists of value will let Mr. Mason know of their interest. Now that Trinity is to have a new Library, we need to take stock of what we have in our old one. Mr. Everette L. DeGolyer, Hon., '47, recently inquired how well off the College is with books on the history of science. A brief search by Professor Costello revealed the astonishing number of some eight hundred titles in this field, though of course a number of gaps also showed up.

This book of reminiscences by an English nobleman began, in 1944, a series of five volumes, constituting one of the notable autobiographies of our time. Its setting is England just before the First World War. Sequels: The Scarlet Tree, Great Morning, Laughter in the Next Room, and just out, Noble Esences.

Interview with India, by John Frederick Muehl.

This man lived and traveled in the deepest depths of poverty in India, to find out what it was like. Hindus are protesting it is not fair to judge a country by its depths, but meanwhile here is a true account, which shows us something of the real problem of Asia.

Christianity and History, by H. Butterfield.

This brief book, and his Origins of Modern Science, are two of the most meaty and penetrating discussions of European intellectual history among recent publications. Along the same line of readable intellectual history are Crane Brinton's Ideas and Men, and William P. Montague's Great Visions of Philosophy.

The Permanent Goethe, translated selections, 1948.

It is doubtful if many Americans read Goethe. "He does quite nicely for the Dutch, but with us he does not count for much"—in spite of widespread Goethe anniversary celebrations. This volume by the Dial Press is one suggestion for making up our deficiencies.

Star Reporters, edited by Ward Greene.

Thirty-four famous news stories, reprinted by Random House.
