ATTENDANCE ANNUAL SUMMARY

Year	1911-12	1912-13	1913-14	1914-15	1915-16	1916-17	1917-18
	13,772	16,737	20,685	19,645	14,851	11,390	10,545

The fact that, though the number of students in College decreased thirty-three percent., yet the attendance in the Library decreased less than eight percent. is noteworthy. The recovery from the demoralization incident to the introduction of Military Drill in the spring of 1917 does not account for the relative increase in the use of the Library during the past year, for neglecting the months of April, May, and June in each year, we find that the decrease in the use of the Library is only fifteen percent. as against the thirty-three percent. decrease in the size of the student body. It should be said, however, that the attendance last year was abnormally low. Whatever be the explanation, the fact of a relatively larger use of the Library is gratifying, and a matter of satisfaction.

INCREASE OF THE LIBRARY.

There have been added to the Library a total of two thousand and twenty-nine volumes and two thousand five hundred and seventy-three pamphlets. Of these three hundred and twenty-eight volumes were purchased, and seventeen hundred and one volumes and all the pamphlets presented.

Included among the purchases are eighty-seven volumes of periodicals, twelve volumes paid for from the appropriations of the Department of Civil Engineering and Drawing, five by the Department of Mathematics, and two by the Department of Biology.

Of the volumes added to the Library, eleven hundred and twenty-nine were bound, and nine hundred unbound. It should be noted that a considerable proportion of the unbound books have already been bound.

Owing to the small income from the Funds and the state of the book market, the purchases have been fewer in number and less significant in quality than normal. However a few are worthy of note: Harnack, History of Dogma, English translation, 7 vols.; Fragments of Sophocles, ed. Jebb, 3 vols.; Publications of the Henry Bradshaw Society, 52 vols.; Egypt Exploration Fund, Publications, 12 vols.; Kramer, Applied and Economic Botany; Keibel and Mall, Manual of Human Embryology, 2 vols.; Lull, Organic Evolution; Osborn, Origin and Evolution of Life; Ward and Whipple, Fresh Water Biology; Stokes, Aquatic Microscopy; Marks, Mechanical Engineers' Handbook, and Huberick and King, Prize Code of the German Empire.

GIFTS.

Appendix II contains the names of donors of the year; to these should be added the names of donors of current periodicals given at the beginning of Appendix I.

A few of the more important of the gifts of the year may be particularly mentioned.

From the estate of the late Rev. Dr. Henry Ferguson, '68, the Library has received some five hundred and eighty-seven volumes. Of these two hundred and eighty-two were books, and three hundred and five were volumes of periodicals, of which about one hundred volumes were bound. Of the unbound periodicals something over one hundred volumes have already been bound. These volumes were deposited in the Library by Dr. Ferguson on his resignation as Northam Professor of History and Political Science to become Rector of St. Paul's School. At the time, Dr. Ferguson let it be understood that the books were ultimately to become the property of the Library, and gave the Library the free use of them. On his death, Mrs. Ferguson and the executor of the estate, in order to carry out Dr. Ferguson's wishes, gave the collection to the Library.

Including as it does many works of first importance in the fields of Economics, Political Science, and History, together with complete files of the most important periodicals in these fields, the gift is of the greatest importance for the Library, and its money value is by no means inconsiderable. If Mrs. Ferguson had chosen to make any other disposition of the books, the Library would have found itself seriously lacking in material in this, or these, most important fields. As it is, the discontinuing of so many important periodicals is a matter of keen regret. As soon as the state of the funds will permit, the Library must arrange for the continuation of these periodicals. The Library and the College have in this gift another occasion for gratitude to Dr. and Mrs. Ferguson.

Through the kindness of another generous alumnus, Dr. Heyward Scudder, of the Class of 1891, the Library had for years received currently several important Chemical periodicals. After his death, the executors of his estate, Edward M. Scudder '77, and Willard Scudder '89, sent to the Library as a gift from their brother, a bound file of the Abstract Journal of the American Chemical Society. They also intimate that it is their intention to present to the College the scientific books from the Library of Dr. Scudder. Needless to say, their generous interest and good will, in which Dr. Scudder also shared, are highly appreciated.

Professor Henry A. Perkins gave to the Library over eighty volumes of which about sixty were bound. This gift included a number of very desirable new items, and some useful second copies. Several of the unbound volumes have already been bound, and more will be when money is again available. Professor Perkins has continued his generous subscriptions for periodicals as will appear from Appendix I. His generous interest is very gratifying to your Librarian.

Professor R. B. Riggs, as in former years, has given generously to the Library. This year he has given fourteen volumes, the larger part of these being important and interesting books dealing with the Great War, a kind of book we need and should have, but which our very limited income will not permit us to purchase.

Thomas Willing Balch, L. H. D., 1917, has as in former years sent us his own and other publications relating chiefly to International Law. His interest as well as his valuable gifts, is much appreciated. His brother, Edwin Swift Balch, Esquire, has also sent us two of his books.

The Political Science Club of Trinity College has given to the Library within the year seventeen volumes, dealing with the Great War. Through the Club and the kindness of Professor Riggs, the Library has the more important of the innumerable books of this class. Their usefulness is unquestioned, and since we cannot purchase them, these gifts are particularly appreciated.

Through the kindness of the Library of the General Theological Seminary and of Edgar F. Waterman, Esquire, the Library has been able practically to complete the files of the important almanacs published in the interest of the Episcopal Church, some seventy items being thus acquired. These publications are of considerable importance as sources for the history of the Episcopal Church, and of very great importance in tracing the history of the alumni of the College, of whom so many have served in the Ministry of the Church.

Professor W. Macneile Dixon, of London, has sent to the Library some one hundred and fifty publications relating to the War, many of them of much interest and value. The Library appreciates these gifts.

The Case Memorial Library of the Hartford Seminary Foundation has given to the Library some forty doctoral dissertations chiefly in Chemistry. They are a welcome addition to our collection of Chemical literature.

We again acknowledge gratefully the gifts by the Carnegie Institution, the Smithsonian Institution, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and the Government of the United States of their valuable publications.

President Luther and Mr. Waterman send frequently from their offices publications whose usefulness will be increased by their being made generally available in the Library; their kindness is highly appreciated.

THE STAFF.

Miss Elizabeth Thompson and Miss Edith M. Pratt have continued their work in cataloguing; of its faithfulness and effectiveness, the record of what has been accomplished is sufficient evidence.

Miss Helen Fay Gates served very acceptably during Miss Thompson's enforced absence during the summer of 1917.

The Student Assistants were Frederick Lamond Bradley, '21, Harold Vincent Lynch, '21, Robert Irvin Parke, '21, Hall Pierce, '20, Martin Brown Robertson, '18, and Walter Goldsborough Smyth, '18. All served faithfully and efficiently, and your Librarian would place on record his appreciation of their work and of the fine spirit in which it was done.

CATALOGUING.

We have again to report a year of gratifying progress in the work of cataloguing. The work of cataloguing the Quick Collection has been completed, as has the task of cataloguing the books secured from the Library of the late Rev. Dr. Samuel Hart. The books received in the Johnson, Clarke, Russell, and MacCrackan gifts have also been catalogued. The books received from the Rev. Dr. Ferguson's estate have been catalogued, and work on the periodicals is in progress. In figures the work accomplished during the year may thus be tabulated:

Number of books catalogued	9,417
Number of pamphlets catalogued	197
Number of books recatalogued	872
Number of pamphlets recatalogued	2
Number of books reclassified	115
Number of pamphlets reclassified	4
A total of books handled	10,607

The very large number of volumes catalogued during the year is due largely to the fact of there being many long sets in the Quick Collection.

Reviewing the work of the last two and one-half years, the period of Miss Thompson's service we have the following statistics:

Number of books catalogued	17,532
Number of pamphlets catalogued	445
Number of books recatalogued	2,596
Number of pamphlets recatalogued	120

Number of books reclassified	4,089
Number of pamphlets reclassified	139
	<hr/>
Total of items handled	24,921
New cards added to catalogue	34,980
New cards added to the shelflist	9,680
Number of old cards altered	8,096

In other words, nearly eighteen volumes, never before catalogued, have been added to the resources of the Library; some four thousand volumes removed from the Reading Room to the stack have been reclassified and fitted into their place according to the system used there; and some twenty-five hundred volumes, for one reason or another, have been recatalogued. Some thirty-five thousand cards have been added to the public card catalogue, some eight thousand of the old cards amplified or corrected. Altogether more than fifty thousand cards have passed through the Cataloguer's hands. The importance of all this in contributing to the availability of the resources of the Library can hardly be overestimated. Only as the work goes on can one properly estimate the richness and value of the contents of the Library; only as the work goes on can the possessions of the Library come to be used readily by the officers and students of the College.

The report for next year will not show nearly so large a number of volumes catalogued, for the greater part of the accumulated material has now been made available. There still remain, however, a number of smaller collections, and these will demand the greater part of the year. However, it is expected that the work of revising and amplifying the old catalogue, begun years ago by Dr. Carlton, may be resumed and forwarded. The old catalogue, or the old part of the catalogue, is little more than an author catalogue; the cards are not of the standard size; and the data must be revised and amplified in accordance with present-day practice. Moreover, subject cards and analyticals must be added to bring the catalogue to a proper standard of usefulness. This work must be distributed over a period of years, but a real beginning and, I trust, substantial progress will be made this coming year.

Altogether the results of the work of the last two and a half years in the work of cataloguing are most gratifying and encouraging. The smallness of the number of books bought during the period has helped to make this result possible. As our Funds become normally productive again and are augmented—as they must be if the Library is to continue to serve the College ever as effectively as in the past—the time of the Cataloguer and her assistant will be increasingly occupied with current accessions. Still we may anticipate a time when the catalogue will be in a reasonably satisfactory state.

BINDING

Through a generous appropriation by your body of one thousand dollars from the income of the J. Pierpont Morgan Fund, the Library has had bound during the year a total of one thousand and ninety-two volumes. By far the greater part of these were periodicals that had accumulated in the years that the Canfield Fund has not produced income, but a considerable number of books that from more or less constant use had begun to suffer were taken care of. Though much still needs to be done, yet this appropriation has enabled us to catch up with the binding of the most important and most used periodicals, and to begin the binding of files previously untouched. Most of the general literary periodicals are now bound up to the beginning of the year 1918. Some two hundred volumes of the History and Economics periodicals in the Ferguson gift were bound as was the greater part of the periodicals in the field of Biology.

Your Librarian would express his deep appreciation of this most needed and most useful appropriation, and ventures to hope that your body may find it possible to make an annual appropriation of from three to five hundred dollars until such time as the Canfield Fund again produces income, in order that the binding may be kept up to date, and the most imperative of what remains to be done provided for.

Unfortunately the Canfield Fund is not likely to yield anything for some time, and even at its maximum, the income is woefully inadequate. It is to be hoped that some friend of the Library will give additional funds, of which the income may be used for binding.

PUBLICATION

In July 1917, the Library issued as Vol. XIV Number 3 of the Trinity College Bulletin, a pamphlet of twenty-two pages under the title "A List of Books from the Library of the late Rev. Samuel Hart, D.D., D.Can.L., LL.D., added to the Library of Trinity College." The title is sufficiently descriptive, and little need be said in regard to the Publication.

It seemed fitting that a list in permanent form of the books received from our distinguished and beloved alumnus should be printed.

FUNDS.

The Canfield, the Northam, and the Sheffield Funds still remain unproductive, though the outlook for their untimate restoration to approximately their original amounts and full usefulness can be counted on. In the meantime, the Library finds itself in sore straits to meet what is practically a fixed charge for periodicals and continuations and at the same time supply even the most imperative needs of the members of the Faculty and the students. Fortunately this next year we shall have some income from the Alumni Library Fund from which we have received nothing since the death of the Rev. Dr. Samuel Hart, so long the Trustee. This additional income will be more than welcome. Very wisely, as it seems to your Librarian, the Association of the Alumni have placed the fund in the custody of the Treasurer of the College.

The foundation of the Thomas Balch Fund by a gift of $3,000 from a generous friend of the College is a great gratification to your Librarian. The Fund is a memorial to Thomas Balch, 1821-1877, a distinguished Jurist, Historian, and Publicist, whose name it is an honor to have associated with the College, and whose memory the College may well take satisfaction in aiding to preserve. The founder of the Fund provided also a beautifully engraved steel book-plate for the books purchased with the income of the Fund. This is the first Fund to be so distinguished, but your Librarian trusts that persons interested in other Funds and donors of new Funds may be moved to provide for other plates. A suitable book-plate adds much by way of distinction and by way of memorial to volumes purchased with the income of Funds given to the College by those devoted to its welfare and progress.

The income of the Thomas Balch Fund is to be used chiefly for the purchase of works dealing with International Law. In the present state of affairs in the world at large, a more useful gift to the Library would be hard to imagine.

Your Librarian earnestly hopes that soon other friends of the College may be moved to similar benefactions. As your Librarian has said before in his reports, even at the maximum of their income producing power, our Funds are hopelessly inadequate. With a Library not greatly inferior in size or value to the Libraries of Wesleyan, Amherst, Williams, or Bowdoin, and with needs no less, we have only about a third as much endowment, the income of which may be used for the purchase of books. Obviously if we are to maintain our place, the funds for the Library must be materially increased. The Thomas Balch Fund is the one Fund established within the last fifteen or sixteen years; your Librarian trusts that soon other friends of the College may see fit to supply this most pressing need.

THE LIBRARY COMMITTEE.

To President Luther and Professor Riggs, the resident members of your Committee on the Library, your Librarian would again express his grateful appreciation of counsel and help freely given in manifold connections and emergencies. The meetings of the Committee are uniformly helpful, and aid much in the working out of ideas and the development of plans for the benefit of the Library.

CONCLUSION.

The year, then, has been one of real progress and improvement in the Library. Particularly in respect to cataloguing and binding we have reason for gratification. In the matter too of funds we can be grateful and take courage; the new Balch Fund and the old Alumni Fund will do much to ease the financial straits, though we shall not be able to buy sufficiently to meet the just expectations of those dependent on the Library till our funds are very greatly increased. What has been accomplished in the last three years gives us courage to believe that in time resources will be added to us to enable the Library to do its full share in the work of the College.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ARTHUR ADAMS.

Librarian.
