Gerety Addresses Forum

Presidential Candidate Is Only Finalist Selected

-By David Gerber-
Assistant News Editor

After months of confidential meetings and discussions, Thomas Gerety, Dean and Nippert Professor of Law at the University of Cincinnati College of Law, received the unanimous recommendation of the Trinity Presidential Search Committee. Gerety addressed an audience of over 300 people Wednesday afternoon in an open forum held in the Washington Room.

"He is the only finalist that we are bringing back to campus because of a unanimous decision that this was the man that we wanted to present to [the students]," said Barbara Scudder '89, member of the Presidential Search Committee.

In her introduction, Scudder also explained that Gerety is officially still a candidate and that, "he has not been named president yet." The final decision will be made by the Board of Trustees when they meet this weekend. Student's suggestions and comments were strongly requested by both Scudder and by Katie Sherr '89, the two student representatives on the search committee.

Gerety addressed questions from students regarding issues ranging from changes in the curriculum to potential changes in the fraternity system.

According to Gerety, minority recruitment is one of the most important issues facing both Colleges and American society today. "It is the highest priority to make institutions like Trinity models of the way in which... all sorts of people work together. Anybody who is faculty member or an administrator or president should make it the highest priority."

Shawn Wooden '91, President of the Trinity Pan-African Alliance, commented on Gerety's assertion. Wooden said, "As far as how he'll actually benefit the black community here, we'll have to wait and see what he does rather than go by what he says."

cohol policy was presented to the candidate by Russ Kauff '90. Gerety said, "The freedom to drink, coupled with legal restrictions, is one of the freedoms you have got to learn to live with, unless there is an excess which may endanger you or another student. I would not expect myself, as president, to get involved with that, except by example."

Following the forum, Kauff expressed satisfaction with the answer to his question. He said, "I was very encouraged by his emphasis that the most crucial part of the college experience is the freedom that you're presented with. The freedom to make choices. Between that and his dislike of 'heavy handed' administrative policy towards social life is extremely encouraging. I would feel very comfortable with this man as president."

Critics of the presentation felt that Gerety avoided many questions by politically side-stepping the issues. "He was very ambivalent about many issues, and appeared hesitant to take a firm stand on many topics," said Wooden.

The candidate also carefully avoided comparing himself to retiring president James English. Gerety cited his limited exposure to the campus for his inability to offer specific policy decisions to hypothetical situations.

Primarily an academician, Gerety has taught both law and philosophy at several universities. Gerety mentioned that he would be interested in teaching a course if he were to become president.

Originally from Fairfield, Connecticut, Gerety attended Yale University, where he graduated Cum Laude with exceptional distinction in philosophy in 1969. He has also obtained his masters in philosophy, his JD, and his Ph. D. all from Yale. Gerety's resume is on reserve in the Trinity Library.

1989-90 Tuition Increases By $1500

-By Heather Smith-

Grant.

"There are many other items in the budget that we can't control, and we have to keep up with outside forces," said Sauer. Medical insurance is an obvious increase which has its origin outside of Trinity. In addition, the college also has to deal with double-digit inflation rates for science equipment and library books, both of which must be updated year to year.

Those areas are minor compared to the 22.8% increase in the costs of purchasing new computers for students and the Administration, maintenance of current hardware, and implementing new systems.

Total Student Aid will increase 12.2% over this year, and the portion funded by the college increased 15.5% to $2,986,000. Sauer added, "Funds from federal agencies are remaining static, so we have to pull money from the endowment due to the lack of outside money." The security improvements to enhance safety on campus are working, but they are costly.

The endowment grew 11.2% this year as it has for the past several years, and it is spent at approximately 5.0%. The revenue of the Capital Campaign does not reduce the tuition, but it will fund a proposed new building. The budget for 1989-90 includes an endowment income of $5,200,000 while the proposed income from tuition and fees is $25,680,850.

Students are overwhelmingly opposed to the increase. One freshman commented, "We will probably rate in the top ten most expensive colleges, but not anywhere close to the top ten academic institutions. I just don't see what Trinity students pay for that students at other schools don't."

The Dean of Students Office was unavailable to comment.

Sauer assured students that, "The Trustees and President are concerned about keeping tuition and fees under control. Trinity's increase is not excessive when compared with increases announced by our competitors among the other high quality institutions."

Sauer defends the budget. He said, "One day to the next you may not see a dramatic change, but changes go on behind the scenes very quietly. Balancing the budget for 1989-90 has been an extremely challenging and difficult exercise."

Students on Break Rescue Fisherman

-By Robert Cockburn-
Managing Editor

Three Trinity students rescued a man stranded on a jetty 200 hundred yards from shore during spring break in North Carolina. Coast Guard officials said waves were cresting at 3 to 4 feet when James Loutit '91, Steve Spaulding '91 and Levi Richardson '90 maneuvered their motor boat near the northern jetty of Masonboro Inlet to bring Clarence Marshburn, 34, to safety.

"He was really cold and had fallen off about four times," said Spaulding. Marshburn was soaked by the 61 degree seas and had been stranded for about 25 minutes.

Marshburn was fishing in his 14-foot motor boat when he fell overboard and his boat sped away, said U.S. Coast Guard Petty Officer Daniel Stonewall of Wrightsville beach. "He said he caught a fish and the boat got away from him," Stonewall said.

The three students were passing through the inlet at about 6:30 p.m. on April 4 when they saw the fisherman clinging to the rocks. "We had passed him the first time on the way out of the inlet, but as we were coming in we saw him waving," Loutit said. "We got the life preserver and a buoy and threw that to him. He had the life preserver around part of him and he jumped into the water and we pulled him into the boat," Richardson said.

Marshburn, who was wearing a T-shirt, flannel shirt and shorts was taken to the Wrightsville Beach Coast Guard Station where officials warmed him and called an ambulance. He appeared to be suffering from mild hypothermia and had cuts on his legs, officials said.

Marshburn was treated at New Hanover Memorial Hospital and released, a nursing supervisor said.

The Coast Guard later found his boat more than 20 miles down the coast, Loutit said.

"The amazing thing is that we have a video tape of all this. We just happened to have a video camera with us," Loutit said. Spaulding filmed the rescue, and the tape was later played on local and Connecticut television news.

Computers and Cash Stolen From Halden, Life Sciences

-By Patricia Pierson-
Copy Editor

The recent thefts of computer equipment and small sums of cash from Halden Computing Center, the Life Sciences Center, and Mather Hall has placed Security on the alert.

The missing funds and equipment, comprising two computers from offices in the Life Sciences building, a computer from the Student Accounts Office, as well as cash and components from Halden Computing Center, are believed to have been stolen by an employee or employees of the college.

"We're trying to determine who had access," stated Director of Security Biagio Rucci. Rucci noted that each case involved a "key theft", meaning there was no forced entry and the suspect(s) utilized keys to penetrate the locked offices.

The first such incident occurred on March 19, with the disappearance of two personal computers from offices in the Life Sciences Center, followed by a March 26 burglary in the McCook building.

In addition to the pilfering of equipment and cash on campus, Rucci noted that an erstwhile employee of the Computing Center had been purchasing thousands of feet of electrical wire from local businesses using phony Trinity College purchase orders. "He was let go; Then when he was let go we found we were getting billed for wires and material...we had no use for," said Rucci.

Using the alias of Ron Hayes, the employee, Ralph Tamalis, has since been arrested by the West Hartford police. Rucci disclosed that Tamalis has admitted to a history of substance abuse and used profits from sales of the electrical wire as a source of cash for drugs.

Tamalis had been an employee of the college since January 9 of this year. Stating that Security is currently examining Tamalis' possible involvement in the computer thefts, Rucci insisted he has not been designated as a suspect for the crimes.

"There are a couple or three people we're looking at; we're just trying to ascertain their positions in different locations," Rucci observed. With respect to Tamalis's false purchase orders, Rucci commented, "We're out of [the investigation] now," adding that the investigation is the responsibility of the West Hartford Police Department.

Rucci asserted that many of the disappearances occurred on weekends and involved hardware not identified with the requisite brand or marking as property of the college. "The pieces of equipment that were taken were the ones that weren't branded." Branding of computers renders them easily identifiable as stolen goods on the black market.

Director of Computing and Communications Systems John Langeland verified that, "The individual who was arrested has not been charged with the theft of the PC's...Nothing has really changed in the last week or so. We are increasing our efforts to make sure all this equipment is properly branded."

The College does not normally insure the kind of property taken in these burglaries, so their financial implications for the College cannot be determined at the present time.

Editorial

Trinity College is once again raising the price of tuition by more than $1500. To students new to the school this may come as a shock, but the senior class will probably remember than this is the third time in as many years that large tuition increases have been announced.

It has been estimated that when children who are now of less than two years of age reach college, they can be expected to pay seventy or even eighty thousand dollars per year at the colleges of the Ivy League and "little" Ivy's such as Trinity.

As has been seen since 1986, tuition is not only increasing but it is increasing at a progressively larger rate. This means that in this era of a president who claims to support education more any of his successors, education will become nearly impossible except by means of government financing or academic scholarship at many of the countries most prestigious institutions.

Even at a state colleges and universities, it has been projected that $30,000-$40,000 per year is not impossible for children being born now. President Bush can be congratulated for making his proclamation as "the education president" as he is aware that the continuing rise of the cost of higher schooling is one of the most pressing problems of our time. What and how much the President will actually accomplish remains to be seen, but it has become clear that the government is aware of the problem.

Back at home, it is now time for the students of Trinity College to wonder whether this problem is one which has to occur. Trinity's needs far outweigh its resources, but many of these needs have been given priorities which seem at best unwise and at worst simply foolish. Last semester alone the school spent an exorbitant amount of money to obtain a new telephone network with reduced long-distance billing. While the new system is convenient and will save money a decade down the road, it is not essential to our needs now, when we need more practical equipment, a larger faculty, and a library which could compete with larger schools. With the current increase in tuition, these problems will be alleviated, but not solved. One hopes that the school is enjoying their new phones.

World Outlook Article Inaccurate, Poorly Edited

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the World Outlook article on the dilemma facing the Republican Party in the March 21 issue of the Tripod. The copy itself is juvenile and far from The Associated Press style of writing. This is not, wholly, the writer's fault, but his editors as well, and part of a larger problem. However, I will first address the article's content.

Indeed, Rep. David Duke is a smear on the Republican Party. I agree that Duke's history as an active member of the Ku Klux Klan is completely reprehensible. However, I disagree with the writer's implication that the leaders of the Republican Party are unable to deal with the situation. Republican Party Chairman Lee Atwater has both censured Duke, and proposed that he have no access to party funds. (I can only assume that Einhorn missed this major news release).

I am also concerned with the second "dilemma" the writer brings up in his article - the staffing of the Bush Administration. The question put forth was, "... why hasn't the Bush Administration been totally assembled yet?" (I will save the splitting of the verb "been assembled" for later criticism.) If the author had done any research on his question, he could have answered it himself. However, being involved, personally, in the process, I will shed some light on the subject.

There are more than 10 times as many people applying for positions than there are positions available. Each one of these applicants must be checked, completely, by the FBI. Normally, these checks take approximately four months. However, being inundated with applicants, the resources at the Bureau are being strained and, subsequently, the process has slowed tremendously. Therefore, the fault lies not completely with the Administration, but more with the FBI.

As long as I am dealing with problems of the Trinity Tripod, I think much could be done to improve the quality of the paper. I understand that not every writer can be versed in all aspects of journalism. However, I do feel that it is possible to have the editors of each department knowledgeable of accepted writing styles and the basics of responsible journalism. Much more responsibility should be placed on these editors to perform their jobs properly by editing each article before it is published.

I cannot believe this story was proofed before it was printed. For example: "Ku Klux Klan" is misspelled; various titles have been misused or omitted; and there is generally poor grammar throughout (the singular "a country" given the plural "they" as a pronoun). These are a few of the errors just in the first paragraph of the story.

Perhaps courses in journalism and editing at the University of Hartford could be required before one is allowed to accept a position on the editorial staff of the paper.

Sincerely,
Joshua M. Bewlay '89

Peters Issues Open Letter To the Men of Trinity

To the Men of Trinity College:

When will we learn to get our act together? Why must we punish other members of the community during our drinking rituals? After a couple of days of academic work must we continue the notion of rewarding ourselves by getting wasted? Do we honestly believe that abusing alcohol followed by destructive behavior is actually a form of male bonding?

I have worked and lived in a campus community for the last 14 years. In fact, since my days of living at home during high school, I know only of campus residential life. I'm getting embarrassed, hurt and angry at the men of my community. The abhorrent behavior of my sex is not isolated, but rather commonplace, especially on weekends.

Some of our behavior can be attributed to our frustrations. It is difficult at times to be a man. There are many expectations of us, to perform, to succeed. We put most of the pressure on ourselves. Just listen to the talk in our locker rooms. It is filled with braggadocious dialogue of our sexual conquests. We have learned to distort the beauty of lovemaking and turned it into another form of power and competition.

Who are our role models? Let's face it, how many of us heterosexuals live the life of Hollywood's studs who always seem to "get the girl"? So, we realize we can't compete and turn to something that will help us achieve manhood. Drink to excess with the fellows (and brag about it in the morning!)

The true result of our performances is that we injure ourselves, emotionally and physically. To be honest, I'm running out of sympathy for my brothers. The real victims are the women of our community. They are abused verbally and physically on a weekly basis. Issues such as harassment, physical assault and date rape are quite common on our campus. Enough is Enough!

I was happy to hear the community outrage over the action of a few of our men a few weeks back ("Two Students Trash Cars", 3/14 issue). Some of the anger was directed at my office for allowing the men to remain on campus. Unfortunately, the community is not privy to all of the issues involving discipline cases, including the full penalties and the educational process that we hope will allow abusers to learn to be positive members of our community. One other point was confusing to some. It was pointed out that the alleged illegal function that supplied alcohol to the men was not in a fraternity house. The point was not to protect the Greek system, but to illustrate that we need to clean up behavior in our residence halls. It just is not responsible and down right dangerous to host functions that are based on alcohol.

O.K. men, so what do we do? Why don't we start by redefining our roles. What are the social forces that we should place on each other? What can we do to start helping each other out? The responsibility to check our abusive ways should not rest with the women of our community. Let's begin to do it ourselves.

In Hope,
Kirk W. Peters
Asst. Dean of Students

Volunteers, Hosts Needed For Community Workshops

To the Trinity Community:

This weekend, Trinity will host the first student conference dealing with issues of community service to be held in the state. Over the two days, there will be three sets of workshops dealing with such issues as Homelessness, National Legislation, Date Rape and Sexual Assault, Mental Illness, Environmental Issues and How to Work With Politicians. The conference is being designed to both address these issues and develop a plan of action to deal with them directly.

A planning committee comprised of students from several campuses across the state has been working for months to put together the agenda. Speakers will include Greg Ricks, Wayne Meisel, Senators John Larson and Trinity graduate Kevin Sullivan, and Commissioner of Education Norma Glasgow. A benefit concert will be held Saturday night featuring such bands as the Reducers and 6 Feet Under, and individuals George Logan '91, Katryna Nields

'91, and Tracy Blackman. Proceeds will go to the Connecticut Traumatic Brain Injury Association and is open to the campus. All events of the conference are open to Trinity students.

We, as host school, will need a great deal of volunteer help! Our most dire need is for rooms for those who will stay overnight. All that is needed is a floor to crash on—you will not be responsible for their entertainment! If you can offer space in your room for the night, PLEASE contact the Community Outreach office at 297-2160 or box 3024. Also, we need volunteers to help out with registration and other short term (1 to 2-hour) jobs. This will be a guaranteed fun and exciting experience!

Thank you in advance for your help and cooperation.

Sincerely,
Marissa Boyers, '89
President, Community Outreach

Community Outreach Conference Comes to Trinity

-By Neela Thakur-
News Staff Writer

"Students Building Community Connections...Into the 90's" is the title of the first annual statewide student community service conference that is being held this Saturday and Sunday, April 22 and 23, at Trinity.

The conference is planned to be an opportunity for students who are involved in community service or are interested in becoming involved, to meet with students from other schools and share ideas and create plans of action.

The conference has been organized primarily by six Community Outreach volunteers. These volunteers are Marissa Boyers '89, Kerry Mackay '91, Eleanor Traubman '91, David Friedman '91, Liz Goldthwait '91, and Clayton Hurd '92.

Ten Connecticut schools have been involved in the planning of the conference since November: Central Connecticut State University, Connecticut College, Sacred Heart University, Trinity College, University of Bridgeport, University of Connecticut, Wesleyan University, Western Connecticut State University, and Yale University.

Members of the service organizations from each of those colleges sat on a state-wide planning committee, chaired by UConn student Stephen Saloom '89.

Boyers, President of Community Outreach at Trinity, sat on that committee and said that a conscious effort was made to "involve lots of different types of schools, not just small liberal arts residential colleges." She feels that everybody's input is needed and that these colleges will be sure to offer some new and exciting perspectives about community service.

One of the main goals of the conference will be to make students aware of a nationwide college movement towards community service and involvement. Some of the issues that the conference will focus on will be Hunger and Homelessness, Adult Ill-literacy, Mental Illness, Cultural Awareness, and Drug Education.

The networking of the students will allow for everyone involved to examine the realities, discuss the problems, and brainstorm solutions. This will enable the students to begin to construct a plan of action for their community service projects.

Many of the Spotlight Speakers for the conference are involved in a national organization called the Campus Outreach Opportunity League (COOL).

Jude Hersey, the first Community Outreach Coordinator at Trinity, has also put much effort into the conference. She gives most of the credit for the conference planning to the students, who she feels are "doing a wonderful job."

Although many of the speakers are not students, most of the workshops will be led by students. One workshop titled Global Connections will be run by Eleanor Traubman '91.

The interaction between the various colleges is what Hersey feels will make this conference successful. Between 100-200 students from the ten schools are expected to attend the conference.

The Conference will begin with Registration 9:00 am Saturday, and will conclude Sunday afternoon at 1:00 pm. Saturday night, students will take a well-deserved break from their brainstorming and problem solving to enjoy a night of entertainment. Tracy Blackman, Six Feet Under, and The Reducers will be performing in addition to other bands which will be announced at a later date.

The concert will be open to everyone, and there will be an admission fee of $3. All proceeds will go to the Connecticut Trauma Brain Injury Association.

Host students are needed for Saturday night. Hosts need not take part in the conference, nor entertain the guests - they need only provide a place for them to stay.

For registration forms, host offers, or more information, just dial 297-2160, drop a note in Box #3024, or contact the Student Activities Office located in the Mather Campus Center.

Symposium Addresses Abortion Issues

Special to the Tripod

On Saturday Trinity was the location for a Symposium on Abortion Issues featuring ten speakers representing different perspectives on abortion. The event was organized by the Women's Studies Committee led by chair Liz Osterhus '89, Womens Center Coordinator Judith Branzburg, and professors Sonia Lee, Cheryl Greenburg, and Jane Nadel.

Osterhus introduced and moderated the first panel discussion which was intended to present the "neutral" aspects of abortion; medical, psychological and ethical.

Trinity College Assistant Professor of Philosophy Maurice Wade considered the "Ethical Issues of Abortion." Wade gave a general overview of the abortion debates and clarified the arguments on all sides.

Dr. Michael Bracken, Director of the Perinatal Epidemiology Unit at Yale-New Haven Hospital, spoke on the "Psychological Ramifications of Abortion." Bracken commented on his statement in the New York Times that the evidence on the psychological effects of abortion is conclusive. He felt that any negative psychological results were not a result of the procedure but rather of social influences.

Dr. Gary Nobert, medical director of the City of Hartford's Family Planning Clinic, lectured on the "Medical Aspects of Abortion." He cited his personal experiences of working in a hospital emergency room and witnessing the effects of illegal "coathanger" abortions. He also felt that women should be the ones making the decisions about abortion.

Lee served as moderator at the second panel. Director of the Hispanic Health Council in Hartford Candida Flores, stressed the "Impact of Abortion Policy on Hispanics." She noted that in light of an experience of her friend going through an abortion, women of color are more likely to suffer the negative consequences of unsafe abortions because of high medical costs.

Dr. Meredith Burke, coordinator of management information for Family Planning International Assistance in New York, informed the audience about "International Abortion Practice and Policy." She provided a wealth of statistics and results of research in support of her position that abortion should be legal and federally funded.

The third panel addressed legislative issues from the pro-life position and was moderated by Branzburg. Connecticut State Senator Fred Lovegrove, Jr. (R-28th Dist.) provided information on "State Initiatives on Abortion Legislation." Lovegrove has been an adversary of all efforts to fund abortion. He has also been a supporter of greater restrictions on abortion including a bill to require parental consent of minors.

Susan Smith of the Pro-Life Council of Connecticut spoke on "Current Strategies on Abortion Legislation." Also prepared with an arsenal of information, she ardently defended her pro-life position. Smith, a single mother for eight years became pregnant while in college. She claims that society does not provide adequate support to single mothers.

Greg Loken, of Covenant House in New York, who was scheduled to discuss the "Theological Foundation for Pro-Life" claimed that as a lawyer, he was better-suited to discuss the realistic aspects of abortion.

Assistant Professor of History Cheryl Greenberg served as moderator for the fourth panel. Klara Grape, the executive director of Connecticut National Abortion Rights Action League, spoke about "Current Strategies on Abortion Legislation." The Rev. Susan Wyan of the Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights, gave a talk on the "Theological Foundations for Pro-Choice."

Osterhus stressed that the symposium was not intended to represent one view more than the other, but rather as an educational event. There was a diligent attempt to evenly represent different aspects of the abortion issue so that people who attended would feel that they had been given complete information regarding the issues.

In keeping with this goal, the format was structured in panels rather than as a debate. For the same reason, an effort was made to prevent two people appearing on the same panel who had opposing views.

This fall, the committee narrowed the topic to abortion issues before the Supreme Court decided to hear the Missouri case of Webster v. Health and Human Services. The symposium coincidentally fell between the date of the NOW march on Washington and the date for the hearing of the Missouri case, which is April 26.

Clean-Up Volunteers Raise $5,000

-By John Claud-
News Editor

The Hartford Hunger Clean-Up took place this past weekend, with over 190 local students taking part in the largest student-run community service activity in the nation.

The Trinity chapter of Connecticut Public Interest Resource Group (ConnPIRG) was responsible for the state organization of the Clean-Up. Jen Van Campen '90 was the state organizer and Laura Thomas '89 was responsible of bringing the Clean-Up to other schools. Bruce Corbett '90 contacted worksites and arranged for their participation.

In Hartford, the Hunger Clean-Up was organized by the Trinity Chapter of ConnPIRG. Trinity students and University of Hartford and Hartford College for Women students participated today. Trinity and UHart students, who left from the registration point outside Jackson, visited sixteen worksites and raised over $5,000. The money raised will be given to local, national, and international food banks.

Over 100 cities participated in the Clean-Up nationwide this weekend. In Connecticut, worksites besides Hartford were located in Storrs, Fairfield, Danbury, Bridgeport, New London, and Middletown. Local college students were responsible for organizing and performing the tasks required by the worksites. Over 700 students participated statewide. They raised over $11,000.

Trinity President James English presented an address at the commencement of the Clean Up. "You should be proud of yourselves," said English, "because Trinity is certainly proud of you."

"We were disappointed with the weather, but as far as the turnout was concerned, I can't really be disappointed," said Samantha Kostner '89, Coordinator of the Trinity Hunger Clean-Up. "400 students were supposed to participate, and 200 showed up. I think that's a good turnout considering it was such a horrible day."

Several campus groups participated in the event, including almost all fraternities and sororities, several athletic teams, and several dormitory units.

The contingency from Sigma Nu worked at the Puerto Rican National Forum on Washington Avenue, painting three rooms, contributing to a $3,000 renovation of the Forum.

The worksites in Hartford included Foodshare, a local food warehouse, several schools and parks, and the weekend elderly service.

TCBWO Holds Black Women's Weekend

Four different speakers were the focus of a well-attended Black Women's Weekend last weekend at Trinity. On Friday, poet and professor Audre Lorde spoke on "Black Feminism in the Eighties". On Saturday, Educationalist Femi Bogle-Assegai, Professor Sylvias Arden Boone, and Film Critic Donald Bogle presented speeches on different issues concerning black women.

Two students Tijuana Murray '91 and Kimberly Jones '89 were the organizers of the event sponsored by the Trinity Coalition of Black Women with the theme "A Definition of Self: Putting Black American Women in a Historical and Social Context."

Director of Mather Campus Center April Brown who also helped with the event and was impressed with high attendance at each of the events. Brown felt that the purpose of the event was so that black women could pool together to learn more about their historical background with different themes and in different societies.

Brown also noted that TCBWO thought the weekend went well and that they learned a lot from the experience.

Lorde, who spoke on Friday night, is Thomas Hunter Professor of English at Hunter College of the City of New York. She has written numerous books including "The Cancer Journals"; "From a Land Where Other People Live," which was nominated for the National Book Award in 1974; and "A Burst of Light," a collection of essays and speeches. Her lecture on "Black Feminism in the 1980s" was the keynote address for the weekend.

Barbara Scudder '89 found Lorde to be an empowering woman and speaker. "She opened up the discussions to the audience asking what they wanted to get out of it," Scudder explained. "Her message was that learning was an interaction between new information and who you are. This interaction in turn motivates you to action. She also encouraged the audience to work for change."

On Saturday morning, Femi Bogle-Assegai led a discussion on "Black Women's Place in Matrilineal/Matrifocal Traditional African Societies" which was closed to the public. She was followed in the afternoon by Sylvia Arden Boone, Associate Professor of History of Art and Associate Professor of African & Afro-American Studies at Yale University. Boone's lecture called "Images of Beauty" concerned themes of beauty surrounding women of color.

Donald Bogle delivered a slide-illustrated lecture titled "Brown Sugar: Eighty Years of America's Black Female Superstars" Saturday night in Rittenberg Lounge. Bogle is well-known for his ground-breaking research on the lives and careers of America's finest black performers in movies, television, theater, and music.

His first book, the now classic "Toms, Coons, Mulattoes, Mammies, & Bucks" was named the Best Film Book of the Year by the Theatre Library Association. His dynamic portrait of America's greatest black female performers of the 20th century, "Brown Sugar: Eighty Years of America's Black Female Superstars," was made into a four-part documentary series for PBS.

Bogle has worked as a staff writer at Ebony as well as having written for Film Comment, Saturday Review, Essence, Elan, and University. Further, he has been a guest on such television programs such as Today, Entertainment Tonight, and Donahue.

Shawn Wooden '91 said "Lorde and Bogle-Assegai were great. Everything was well put together. I was glad I went because as a black male it gave me a different perspective on black feminism which is very different from white feminism."

Wooden also added that he hoped they would hold the weekend again, and that it would become a bigger event with more participation from white students.

Trinity Participates in NOW March

Special To the Tripod

Last Sunday, April 9, approximately twenty-five Trinity students attended the March for Women's Equality and Women's Lives in Washington, D.C.

Among those who marched were Gail Belanger '89, Marissa Boyers '89, Caitlin Dean '89, Amy Fiske '89, Seth Goodwin '89, Jon Mills '89, Julie Overeinder '89, Linda Vozzella '89, Julie Beman '90, Sarah Dolven '91, and Kharna Paige '91. Boyers also served as a "facilitator" or organizer for the event.

Professors Fred Pfeil, George Higgins, and Judith Branzburg, Coordinator for the Women's Center, also attended the march.

The march, sponsored by the National Organization for Women (NOW), was attended by approximately 650,000 people from all fifty states, Puerto Rico, and fifteen foreign countries. This is the largest number of people for a civil liberties march in the nation's history.

The marchers gathered to show support for both the unpassed Equal Rights Amendment as well as for the pro-choice aspect of the abortion issue. Most of the participants felt they were taking a strong and unprecedented stand for women's rights.

As Overeinder stated, "The issue is clearly about the unending battle for control of women's wombs, and that infuriates me." Branzburg seconded the view saying, "It is still a women's issue."

The march began with a rally at the Washington Monument at 10:30 am. Step-off was at 1:00, and the march proceeded down Constitution Avenue to the Capitol.

On the steps of the Capitol, a rally was held featuring speeches by women's rights leaders, politicians, and celebrities such as Congresswoman Pat Schroeder (D-Colo.), Bella Abzug, and Jesse Jackson.

The march was attended by mothers and daughters marching side by side, some with signs of "Mother by choice." Chants of "Shame" directed toward the pro-lifers, and "What about the babies?" toward the marchers competed for listeners on the streets. As Beman said, "I had a real sense of making history."

"It was an historical march, and one of the strongest demonstrations to take place in the capital or anywhere," stated Boyers.

"So many people came up to me, and told me repeatedly how glad they were I had done this and how proud I should be to have made this stand," Overeinder said.

Many of the marchers expressed disappointment and even anger at the press treatment the following day. The New York Times, for example, carried the story on the first page, but quoted the size of the march at 300,000, less than half of the actual number, and the numbers of counter-protestors at 2,000, ten times the size of their contingent.

Paige and Dolven both expressed frustration at the lack of attention paid to the march by the press, and said that they felt that the uniqueness of the event had been lost and even mistreated. Despite the incredible number of marchers, President Bush's official statement was "No comment."

According to Branzburg the press treatment was actually far superior to other marches. "I was pleased," said Branzburg, about the coverage and the attitude of the news reports in general. The fact that the march was pro-choice and the coverage was, for the most part, positive was a significant improvement over similar demonstrations of years past.

The march itself coincided with the upcoming Supreme Court case which deals with the limitation of the availability of abortion and funding for abortions.

The state of Missouri created certain laws in order to have them challenged in court. They hoped a case would be taken to the Supreme Court which would weaken the landmark Roe v. Wade decision passed sixteen years ago.

Upward Bound Sponsors "Believers"

The traveling black musical theater troupe The Believers will present "Faith Journey", a musical theater documentary of drama, song, and movement on the accomplishments of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. at 7 p.m. Saturday, April 29, at the Weaver High School Auditorium in Hartford.

The performance is sponsored by the Trinity College Upward Bound Parent Community Advisory Board and the National Performance Network Inc. Proceeds will benefit the Trinity college Upward Bound Program, which provides potential first-generation college students from Hartford and Bloomfield with the motivation and skills they need to pursue post-secondary education successfully.

"Faith Journey", according to Dennis Mink, director of Upward Bound, "presents black spirituals and freedom songs that reach beyond the barriers of class, race, and nationality."

The Believers, formerly AFRI Production, is a theater resource organization based in New York City. The group recently appeared in a four-part Public Broadcasting Service series titled "Thank God!", the musical history of the black church, produced by Tony Brown.

That program was viewed in 250 U.S. markets and 20 foreign countries and was seen by some 12 million viewers here and abroad.

Tickets for "Faith Journey" may be purchased at the door or in advance from the Trinity Upward Bound office, 76 Vernon Street. General Admission to the performance is $11, with group rates available.

For more information call the Trinity College Upward Bound office at 297-2123 or 297-2124.

Pike Initiates Escort Program

Hartford, CT--

Trinity's Epsilon Alpha chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha has begun a walking escort service for students during its parties. The program employs two non-drinking fraternity brothers in addition to the student monitors required by the administration alcohol policy.

According to President John K. Woodlock, the service is designed to walk anyone home who appears to be in need of assistance. The brothers volunteer to serve as "walkers" and agree not to drink any alcohol for the entire evening. Each student who takes a walking escort is logged into a register with his or her name, ID number, campus address and time of departure. Upon returning to the house, the escort logs in the time again.

"Our hope not only is to ensure the safety of anyone attending our parties, but also to reduce the liability of the fraternity when alcohol is served," said Woodlock. "We used the new service during our last party, and its success has determined that it will be incorporated into all of our open parties."

The "Walking Escort Service" has been established to enhance the security escort service already in place.

"Often, a student who may have had too much to drink is unwilling to wait for a security escort," said Woodlock. "Waiting for security could be too tedious and, instead, the student walks home on [his or her] own. It is this student that is at greatest risk of injuring himself. By offering an immediate escort to walk the student home, we are sure that he or she will get home safely."

The walking escort service has been endorsed completely by Biagio Rucci, director of Campus Security.

"This program is a responsible move on the part of the brothers," said Rucci. "By taking the school policy one step further, Pike is not only demonstrating some responsibility, but they are definitely decreasing their liabilities and the potential for a serious problem. I hope the trend catches on."

Faculty Promoted

The board of trustees recently announced the following promotions for faculty:

Trinity College professor of Psychology Karl Haberlandt has been appointed the Dana Research Professor for 1989-90 and 1990-91 at Trinity.

The appointment will allow Haberlandt to devote more time to his research on reading. During his two years as Dana Professor, he will present at least one public lecture on his work.

Haberlandt has been a member of the Trinity College faculty since 1968. He specializes in cognitive psychology, cognitive science and theories of reading comprehension. During his career, Haberlandt has received several grants from the National Science Foundation.

Haberlandt earned his Bachelor's in West Berlin. He holds master's and doctoral degrees in psychology from Yale University.

Richard J. Hazelton has been promoted recently to professor of physical education at Trinity College.

Hazelton, who has served as directors of the Trinity College athletic program since 1982, joined the Trinity faculty in 1974. He earned a bachelor of arts degree from Marietta College in 1966 and a master of science degree in physical education with a concentration in sports administration from the University of Massachusetts in 1976.

Hazelton is treasurer of the New England Small College Athletic Conference. He served as chairman of the North/South Hockey Tournament Committee of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference in 1987 and 1988.

Diane C. Zannoni was promoted recently to professor of economics at Trinity College.

Zannoni joined the Trinity College faculty in 1975 and specializes in teaching macroeconomics and econometrics. She has been published widely, particularly in the "Journal of Post-Keynesian Economics." She is currently conducting research at Cambridge University in England.

Zannoni received a bachelor's degree in economics from Villanova University in 1971. She received a doctoral degree in economics from the State University of New York at Stony Brook in 1976.

New Groups Formed

With the new president's imminent appointment, many student groups have seen this year as an especially opportune time to effect change. Both S.P.A.R.C. (Students Promoting Action to Revisualize Campus) and the SGA Ad-Hoc Committee on the Investigation of a Student Judiciary System are urging students for their input and their support.

The S.P.A.R.C. was formed two months ago by a group of students who felt that there were a lot of improvements which could be made for the Trinity community. One of their current projects is the increase of library access hours. All students are invited to come to the group's next meeting, Thursday, April 20th, at 10p.m. in McCook 102.

The SGA ad-hoc committee has met once and is expected to meet again this week. The purpose of the committee is to increase the role of students in the administration's disciplinary decisions regarding non-academic offenses. Many models are presently being discussed as possibilities for the "court's" structure and composition.

In order to eliminate the elitist nature that brought ruin to the Medusa, a former student judiciary, the committee is considering a jury format in which a jury is randomly selected from among a pool of willing students. All comments are highly welcomed. Students may either send their ideas to box 1643, or speak with their SGA representative.

“HOW I MADE $18,000 FOR COLLEGE BY WORKING WEEKENDS.”

When my friends and I graduated from high school, we all took part-time jobs to pay for college.

They ended up in car washes and hamburger joints, putting in long hours for little pay.

Not me. My job takes just one weekend a month and two weeks a year. Yet, I'm earning $18,000 for college.

Because I joined my local Army National Guard.

They're the people who help our state during emergencies like hurricanes and floods. They're also an important part of our country's military defense.

So, since I'm helping them do such an important job, they're helping me make it through school.

As soon as I finished Advanced Training, the Guard gave me a cash bonus of $2,000. I'm also getting another $5,000 for tuition and books, thanks to the New GI Bill.

Not to mention my monthly Army Guard paychecks. They'll add up to more than $11,000 over the six years I'm in the Guard.

And if I take out a college loan, the Guard will help me pay it back — up to $1,500 a year, plus interest.

It all adds up to $18,000 — or more — for college for just a little of my time. And that's a heck of a better deal than any car wash will give you.

total team effort in a 18-6 victory over the Engineers of M.I.T. The Victory was marked by team hustle and superb passing. John Francini had a great day feeding the shooters from behind the net. The entire midfield played excellent fastbreak Lacrosse moving the ball quickly and precisely in the transition game. Paul "Bunyon" Brian wowed the crowd with bone crushing hits. Doug Cameron, Peter Way and Chris Smith controlled the ground balls to dominate the midfield. Charlie Martin gave those watching the game a thrill with a sweet behind the back shot to score in the fourth period. The goaltending of both Henry Rotenstreich and Mark Tenerowicz was excellent.

Senior Doug Stebbins, the teams leading scorer sees this victory as important to the team's future success. "We are heading into the heart of our season. This win and the way in which the team came together to achieve it was exactly what we will need to beat rivals Williams and Amherst." Freshman attackman Ryan Martin also commented on the teams play and what are the important factors needed to remain successful, "Hard work, good transition play and hustle are what we displayed against M.I.T. We need to carry these aspects of our play in our remaining games, particularly against teams like Amherst, Williams and Bowdoin." Both of these attackmen noted the superior play of the Middies and Defensemen in their last game.

The Men's Lax team will face Amherst at home on Wednesday the 19th. Come down and enjoy the spring air and some exciting Lacrosse action.

Men's Crew Splits With Coast Guard and UMass

-By Eric Hammerstrom-
Sports Editor

In the past two weeks Trinity's varsity crews have faced tough opponents with mixed results. On Saturday April 8th in New London, the Bantam lightweights downed Coast Guard by a boat length, while the heavyweight oarsmen lost to the guardsmen by a ten-second margin. The Tables turned on April 15th at the Rainbow Reservoir, when the heavyweights defeated UMass by half a length and the lightweights lost to the Minutemen by 7.9 seconds.

Trinity's lightweight crew (now 1-2) jumped to a lead at the start of their race with Coast Guard. With a half-length lead following the starting sequence, the crew of cox Susannah Smetana '91, Mike Irwin '91, Brian Schultz '91, Capt. Mark Eller '89, Gunner Furgueson '90, Scott Mattoon '91, Jeff Barry '90, Ed Berkowitz '91, and Eric Ferris '91 opened the lead up to a full length 500 meters into the race. Trinity increased that lead, but Coast Guard was able to pull within a length at the finish line.

The heavyweight race found Trinity behind by two seats with 500 meters down. Heavyweight coxswain Rita Nagle '89 said, "We competed with them until 800 or 900 meters into the race, but at that point they opened it up." Coast Guard steadily moved away from the heavyweight crew of Nagle, Ed Kupa '90, Capt. Jud Paschen '89, Dylan Remley '91, Scott Goldsmith '90, Eric Hammerstrom '90, Mark Russell '91, Scott Gerien '90, and John Ulrich '90 to win by two boat lengths.

Trinity's coxed Four of cox Anna Porazinski '92, Scott Haddad '90, Neil Bisson '89, and Marc Paradis '92 was down by a length to a Coast Guard crew. Trinity closed the gap throughout the second half of the race to lose by only 0.6 seconds.

Last Saturday's home race with UMass saw the Trinity heavyweights with a two seat lead after the starting sequence. The Bantams extended that lead to half a length near the 1000m mark before UMass pulled back to within two seats. While the Bantam lead extended to a full length 1500m into the race, UMass staged a sprint comeback to finish two seconds behind.

The lightweights found themselves behind from the start to a very fast and underrated UMass crew. The UMass lightweights cruised finish 7.9 seconds before the Trinity boat.

The Bantams' coxed Four defeated UMass as they led from start to finish. The Four crossed the finish line with a length and a half of open water separating the two boats.

The lightweights then travelled to Boston to face Tufts on Sunday. Due to adverse weather conditions, the crews were forced to race on a shortened stretch of the Charles river. In a timed 4.5 minute contest, the Bantams stayed with the Jumbos for the first thirty strokes, but Tufts took over and finished with a lead of open water.

Trinity's freshman program has been quite successful thus far. On April 8th, Trinity's heavyweight Freshmen defeated Coast Guard. Coast Guard jumped out to a solid lead in the race, but Trinity (cox Sean O'Donnell, Drummond Boord, Scott Brown, Andrew Boerstling, Scott Tracy, Cliff Schwartz, Adrian Castell, Ari Colt, and Tim Moynihan regained several seats as the boats neared the 1000 meter mark. Coast Guard began pulling away once again, but Trinity capitalized upon a Coast Guard miscue with 300 meters remaining to win by three seconds.

The freshmen lightweights lost to Coast Guard when the Trinity crew of cox Matt Goldschmidt, Enrico Brosio, Drew Williams, Jeff Stevens, Jeff Hawkins, Ron Irwin, Shawn Bivins, Drew Kemalian, Eric Holtzman, and Matt McCormick fell behind at the start. Coast Guard finished twenty seconds ahead of the frosh crew.

A freshman coxed Four of cox Eric Holtzman, Cam Griffin, Steve Clement, and Mik Miyawaki defeated Coast Guard in a neck and neck finish.

In a freshman heavyweight race on April 15th, Trinity and UMass were even as both boats neared the 1000 meter mark. But the Bantams gained a half-length lead mid way into the race and increased their lead, finishing a full length ahead of the UMass crew.

The frosh lightweights defeated UMass, taking a half-length lead from the start and pulling away throughout the race. The Bantams defeated the Minutemen by open water.

The frosh coxed Four led UMass from start to finish, crossing the line 17 seconds before the Minutemen.

The Freshmen lightweights faced Tufts on Sunday, in a weather hampered 4.5 minute race and were defeated as the Jumbos came from behind to win.

Trinity will face Georgetown beginning at 10:00am on Saturday April 22nd at the Rainbow Reservoir.

BOX SEATS

By Patrick Keane

On April 3, the University of Michigan defeated Seton Hall to win the national championship under interim coach Bill Fisher. Bill Fisher is an inspiration to all of the assistants in this world, and as interim sports editor this week (for my other favorite Michigander Eric Hammerstrom), I too would like to go out with a 6-0 lifetime record and a ring on my finger.

The subject of my latest diatribe is the recent moral decay of major league baseball. The events of Wade Boggs's well publicized tryst with travel agent Margo Adams and the recent delving into the business affairs of Pete Rose have tainted professional baseball in the eyes of this writer.

Hey Wade, it would have been fine if you admitted it, but you said that all allegations against you were unfounded. Then once you finally admitted to the world that this affair was indeed fact, you then had to incriminate your own team members as well. Jim Rice, Bob Stanley, and every other member of the Red Sox should A) force Wade to seek psychiatric help and B) bludgeon him repeatedly with their Louisville Sluggers for his backstabbing practices. Boggs's licentious behavior has not only produced a schism in the Sox organization, but it has provided incredible material for sportswriters and talk-show hosts alike. These events have in no way affected Boggs's output thus far, as he is once again leading the American League in batting.

My next target in the immorality of major league baseball is "Charlie Hustler", Pete Rose. If convicted on the various charges of baseball betting, Rose could be handed the "death penalty" from commissioner Giamatti. The laws of baseball state that if convicted on the counts of betting on baseball the suspension will be one year, but if he is convicted for betting on his own team, he will be ousted from baseball for life.

In his playing days, Rose was noted for his vibrant play and hustle, and these characteristics seem to have found their way onto his off-the-field activities. It has widely been reported that Rose bet up to $10,000 a day during spring training at Tampa Downs. Rose has been quoted as saying that he goes to the track for relaxation and seldom bets. Sure Pete, and I like to go Pro Wrestling matches for the atmosphere. Rose has even enlisted the efforts of Cincinnati relief ace Rob Murphy (owner of a computerized horse-breeding business) to help him pick winners at the track. It has also been rather peculiar that three of Rose's bookie buddies have been placed in federal prisons for income tax evasion and cocaine trafficking charges.

Another activity in question is the selling of one's signature and personal memorabilia for cash. This past weekend there was a card show where one could purchase signatures of Yankee greats Whitey Ford and Billy Martin for a mere nine dollars. Great deal huh! There is something about the institution of selling one's signature that is totally ludicrous. Pete Rose merits $20,000 for such appearances, and you can purchase his autograph for $12. Rose also reportedly sold his 1975 World Series ring to pay off a gambling debt. He has produced many different items which were used in his many record-breaking feats. Five people claim to possess the bat Rose used to smash hit number 4,192, and many other claim to own the spikes and shirt he wore on this record-breaking occasion.

As I sit here clutching the bat Pete Rose used to break Ty Cobb's record, I wonder what major league baseball has become, and where it is going. I also hope and pray that Bo Schembechler gives me the job so I can be in the Box Seats next season.

Lacrosse Improves Record

-James A. Beakey, Jr.-
Sports Writer

The Trinity college Men's Lacrosse team is off to a strong 3-2 start this season. The Bants opened their season during spring break in Tampa, Florida. The Lax men enjoyed the hospitality of the world renowned Sailport Inn and the highly praised cuisine and grog of Whiskey Joe's. The Bantams made good work of their trip posing a regular season win over Siena College and a non-league victory over the Tampa Bay Lacrosse Club.

Siena College fell to the Laxmen 11-7. The victory was marked by exceptional team play and overall hustle. Leading the attack was Doug Stebbins. "Coach Stebbins" along with Charlie Martin netted three goals apiece in the victory. Other strong performances were turned in by seniors Chris Smith and Peter Way. Smitty found the net twice and Way scored one to lead the Midfield. Team members cited that the key to the win was the Bants' dominance in the ground ball column. The next night the Bantams faced off in a non-league game with the Tampa Bay Lacrosse Club. The laxmen were hard-pressed to gain a victory but met the challenge by winning 12-11 in overtime. Ryan Martin had a stellar evening scoring four goals, the fourth goal being the game winner in overtime.

After a successful Florida tour the Trinity laxmen returned to Hartford to prepare for Camels of Connecticut College. The Bants lost some of their spark from the Florida sun and came up short to their Conn. rivals, 10-8. The loss was especially harsh due to the fact that the Bants were leading 8-4 going in to the second half. Members of the team felt they lacked the hustle they had in Fla. and failed to come up with the important ground balls in the second half.

In their next game the laxmen reignited their engines and defeated the pachyderms of Tufts University. The game was a 12-11 thriller with excellent play coming from the defensive end of the field. In the second half Trinity found itself down 11-7. Midfielder Jeff Hagopian provided the lift the Bantams needed by winning face-off after face-off. That extra edge paid off when Stebbins netted the game winner on a pass from Ryan Martin with one minute left to play. During this last minute of play Rob McCool showed his mettle by coming through with some big defensive plays, stripping the ball from his opponents a number of times. Other notable play came from Freshman P.T. Scull at close defense.

In their next game Trinity faced the perennially strong Springfield Chiefs. The game was not a successful outing for the Bants who lost 21-6. The Laxmen could not beat the fleet footed Chiefs on their home astro turf field. All was not negative in this defeat though, midfielder Doug Cameron scored twice and Rob McCool played well against All-American Eddie Carey.

In their next game the bants returned to their winning ways with a

Women's Crew Off to a Quick Start

-Allison Wielobob-
Sports Writer

Trinity Women's Crew is off and rowing, fast and well. Tough Spring break training is starting to pay off. The racing season began April 8th at Connecticut College. Adrenaline flows and excitement grows with each race that follows.

On a bitter, wet, cold, and windy Saturday morning on which most Trinity Students were still enjoying their Spring breaks, the dedicated Trinity rowers were in New London, battling the crews of Connecticut

College. The rowing was tough, particularly when one is accustomed to the balmy weather of Tampa, Florida. Braving whitecaps and a headwind, Trinity's varsity and junior varsity women left Connecticut's first boat on the horizon. "Rowing in such conditions", said head women's coach Norm Graf, "is a true test of oarmanship." Connecticut College, already behind by lengths of open water, caught a crab near the thousand-meter mark that sent their boat perpendicular to the course and out of contention for winning second place against the already-ahead Trinity J.V. boat. The varsity boat had a great race in the horrible conditions, finishing in first place, and the proximity of the J.V. boat was an excellent reflection of the strength in the varsity program. The novice made a great debut as the eight rowed right through the Connecticut freshman. The novice four maintained a definitive lead through their whole race. Such a performance from relatively inexperienced crews is exciting! It is difficult to know what to expect for your first 2000-meter race. Both Trinity novice women's crews powered right through Conn College. Credit goes to coach Lou O'Brien for the visibly aggressive races rowed by the novice women. Both boats had open water on the novice Camels and held their positions through to the finish line. April 15th and 16th, the Trinity Women faced UMass and Mount Holyoke. This tough weekend of racing produced a mix of results for the crews but great rowing through and through. The varsity women faced a real challenge, going up against UMass. It was a hard race, there were no open water leads for anybody. UMass maintained a variable lead, holding off Trinity's sprint, and won by one second, the equivalent of two seats. The next day, the varsity women recaptured the Genevieve Goodwin Cup from Mount Holyoke. Trinity led from the start of the race and that lead grew along the course of the race. That same weekend, the junior varsity boat suffered a six second loss to a powerful UMass crew. Against Mount Holyoke the J.V. boat had the most exciting race of the day. The boats were neck and neck down the course, trading the lead back and forth. Trinity snatched the lead from Holyoke in the last 500 meters and held it by less than a seat until the last 250m; sprints began around this point and the J.V.s grabbed a two seat lead and held it across the finish line.

The novice eight beat UMass in a great race but lost to the Holyoke freshman. The novice four beat UMass and crushed their Mount Holyoke opponents in a grueling nine-minute race maintaining their undefeated status.

This Saturday, Trinity's entire crew program, both men and women, faces the Georgetown Hoyas at our home course on Rainbow Reservoir. Georgetown is always a good race, one of the most exciting matchups of the season, for all the boats of Trinity's program. Judging from the performances so far, the women are ready to row some great races against Georgetown.

Men's and Women's Track Off and Running

The men's sprinters, sure to be one of the most talented groups in New England, turned in some very fast early season times. In the 100m co-captain Russ Alderson '89 led a 1-2 finish by clocking a 10.9. He was closely followed by Rhoades Alderson '92. In the 200m, co-captain Scott Issac '89 led a 1-2-3 Trinity finish of himself, Rhoades Alderson, and Steve Shorte '92. In the 400m, Issac won by more than three seconds over his nearest competitor by clocking a 48.7 for the one-lapper. Senior Pete Ostrander '89 also had a fine day as he took a second in the 110m high hurdles and a first in the 400 intermediates, where he was followed by soph hurdle specialist Rich DiPrea '91 (third place).

In the middle and long distances, Trinity scored all over the place. It started in the 3000m steeplechase as senior Chris Dickerson '89 won with Mike Fagan '90 following in third. There was also excellent results in the 1500m where Mike Joyce '90 and Kevin Hall '92 ran strong races to take second and third place respectively. This finish was also the same in the 5000m where Eric Gazin '91 took second and Bruce Corbett '90 took third. The team of Doug Wetherill '92 and Campbell Barrett also ran well by striding to a one-two finish in the 800m.

Excellent efforts were also put forth in the field where Trinity won six out of the eight events contested. The men went 1-2 in the pole vault as Steve Redgate '91 and Rich Skubish '89 took to the friendly skies successfully. Also skying was George Logan '91 who won the high jump, where Pat Bayliss '91 placed third. Logan also won the triple jump with James Lane '92 and Aaron Sobel '90 completing a 1-2-3 triple jump finish. Sobel also finished second in the long jump with Scott Sandora '92 placing third.

The weight events went well for Trinity as Chuck Gill '91 and Steve Gorman '90 took first and third in the hammer. Jeff Buzzi '90, Rob Conklin '91, and James Lane '92 swept the javelin (1st, 2nd, and 3rd). J.B. Wells '91 heaved his way to a first in the shot as Sam Gourley '90 took third. Wells also placed second in the discus.

The men rounded out their victory with excellent efforts by the relays as the 4x100m relay won and the 4x400m relay took second.

On April 8th, the men's and women's teams were back in action at Westfield State in a meet that included Westfield, Coast Guard, Williams, Middlebury, and RPI. The teams were also back in typically unpredictable New England weather, but despite the chilling temperatures put forth excellent results.

Once again, the women had a great showing in the sprints as McGowan won both the 100m and 200m. Her short-sprint partner, Dre-wiacki, earned a pair of thirds in the 100 and 200. Meanwhile, Taffuri, ran a hard-fought race in the 400m to take second. Neilan also competed well in a fast 100m hurdle race to finish fifth.

Wehrli was once again in fine form in the 1500m race where she fended off two pesky Williams runners to win. Mulready was close behind in fourth place with a quick time for the metric mile. Wehrli also finished fourth in a tightly-contested 800m race. In the long distances, Summers took to the track for the 5000m and ran to a fifth place finish.

In the field, McGowan continued her domination of the long jump by winning with a leap of 16'1.5". Taffuri also continued to perform well by taking a second in the triple jump.

Jen Moran also showed that she is taking to the high jump quite well by placing fourth. The weight events found VanCampen in command as she won the discus by a comfortable margin and finished third in the shot. Lindsay also competed well in the javelin as she took a fourth.

The 4X400m relay team ran to a third to round out the scoring, but unfortunately, the Lady Bants were nipped by a deep Williams team.

The men's team story had a slightly different ending as they were able to outpoint all comers and hold on to a 14-point margin of victory. Issac continued his winning ways by taking the 200m in 22.2 and the 400m in 49.2. His performances were supplemented by fine efforts on the part of the rest of the Bantam sprinters. Rod Moore '89 and Rhoades Alderson '92 rocketed to third and fourth in the century while the younger Alderson added a third in the 200m. Moore also placed sixth in the 200m. Meanwhile in the hurdles, Ostrander placed second in the 110m highs and third in the 400m intermediates amidst tough competition.

Two of the fastest races on the day came in the middle- and long-distances. In the 800m, frosh Wetherill, who is already enjoying an excellent first outdoor campaign, ran a 1:58.4 to take third. Dickerson completed a difficult 3000m steeple/5000m double by taking second in the steeple and fourth in the 5000m.

Turning to the field, Trinity was once again well-represented in the weight events. In the discus, Gourley, Wells, and Gorman placed 4th, 5th, and 6th respectively. Wells also took a third in the shot with Gourley coming in sixth. Also, Rob Conklin has shown great improvement in the javelin where he continued his successes by winning. He was followed by Buzzi in third.

The jumps also provided some great results as Moore finished second in the long jump. Also, Skubish and newcomer James Mackey '92 took second and fourth in the pole vault. Logan led a 1-3-5 finish in the triple jump with Lane in third and Sobel in fifth. One of the highlights of the day was Logan's win in the high jump at 6'8". His jump broke a 12-year old school record which he previously co-held.

The relays capped off a tremendous day for the Trinity men as the 4x100m 'A' relay won in 43.6. They were followed by the 'B' relay in an unofficial fifth (only one relay team could score). Also, the mile relay took a fourth to help seal the win for Trinity.

Due to space considerations, the results from Trinity's meet against Connecticut College and Wesleyan held last Saturday will be released next week. However, both the Trinity men and women won, which shows even more the rewards that both teams should reap at the NESCAC championships in two weeks. Next week, the Trinity men will carry an 8-0 record (5-0 in the NESCAC), while the Trinity women will take a 6-1 record (4-1 in the NESCAC) up to Worcester, Mass. to compete in a quad meet against always-strong WPI, Tufts, and Coast Guard. This meet should go a long way in determining how ready the men and women are to winning NESCAC championship team titles. As always, Trinity track stands ready for the challenge.

Tennis Faces A Host Of Opponents

-By David Yoon-

The Trinity Men's Tennis Team suffered three tough losses last week, losing to the University of Connecticut, Amherst College, and M.I.T. This was disappointing especially after the team's great start in its 9-0 romp over W.P.I. in the season-opener. They also reflect the tough and, somewhat chaotic, schedule that the tennis team faces with a number of matches against tough Division I and II schools.

On Saturday, the team traveled to Boston to face a talented M.I.T. squad. The bleak and dismal weather that day reflected how the team played and their slump in general. The rain forced the two teams to play indoors. M.I.T., a Division II power, shut out the Bants 9-0, limiting the varsity to only one set won. Sophomore Jorge Rodriguez at the number six slot was edged out by M.I.T.'s Leon Ting in

Baseball Off To 5-2 Start

After seven games of the baseball season the Trinity Bantams have a record of 5-2. A good start to a season in which good things are expected from the team. The Bantams got off to a quick start in Florida, winning five of six games with a blend of good pitching and plenty of offensive support. If both of those things continue up north, Trinity will be a tough team to beat.

The first game in Florida was played against Hartwick College of Oneonta, New York. The Bantams got two hits apiece from Keith Loneragan and J. P. Marra as they defeated Hartwick 8-6. Marra drove in three runs. Dave Federman picked up the win in relief of Paul Stanton. Federman pitched five innings without giving up an earned run and recording three strikeouts.

Game two pitted the Bantams against Hillsdale College of Hillsdale, Michigan. Trinity won 11-3 as Dave Port gave up one earned run in six innings for his first win of the season. Matt Miller (2 for 4, 3 rbi) and Rocco DeMaio (2 for 4, 4 rbi) led the Bantam attack. Rick Rogalski and J.P. Marra also added two hits apiece for the Bantams.

Trinity dropped its only game of the trip in the third game of the trip, losing to Hillsdale 8-6. Freshman pitcher John Dauphinee took the loss. Chris Donlon, in relief of Dauphinee, gave up one earned run in four innings. Jason Hicks made his first appearance in the field, playing first base, and hit a homerun in his first collegiate at bat. It was one of two that Hicks hit in Florida.

Game four saw Trinity get back to its winning ways with a 3-2 victory over rival Williams College. Jason Hicks started the game and pitched well, giving up two earned runs in five innings. Dave Federman, in relief of Hicks, pitched four scoreless innings to pick up his second win.

The fifth game turned into a slugfest as Trinity defeated Colby College 13-11. Jay Williamson had a big day with four hits (one home run, 2 doubles) and five rbi's in six at-bats. Jason Hicks, who hit his second home run, and J. P. Marra each added three hits to help fuel the Bantam fire. Matt Miller and Keith Loneragan also hit their first home runs of the season. The winning pitcher was Dave Federman, who increased his record to 3-0.

The final game of the Florida trip saw Trinity beat up on Hartwick College. Behind the strong seven inning, three earned run performance of pitcher Dave Port, Trinity won 11-4. Port increased his record to 2-0 with the win, and also struck out six batters. Rick Rogalski homered and drove in three runs for the Bantams while Matt Miller, Jay Williamson, Rocco DeMaio, and J. P. Marra all added three hits.

The Bantams got a taste of reality in their home opener against Williams. A ten run eighth inning did Trinity in as Williams came from behind to beat the Bantams 14-9. Miller, Marra, Rob Delena, and Loneragan all had two hits for Trinity.

The Bantams are 5-2 and look like they are on the way to having a good season. The pitching, for the most part, has been consistent and the hitting is not a question. This Trinity team should be an exciting one to watch. The Bantams next home games begin at 1:00 on April 22nd when they host Tufts for a double-header.

Team Leaders as of 4/15:

three sets, 1-6, 7-5, 7-5, in a very exciting match. Tom Reuter, Trinity's freshman sensation, lost to Alexis Photiades at the number three spot 6-1 in the first set. The second set went to a tiebreaker with Photiades winning 7-2. The doubles teams for Trinity which have fared well in the past, did not do so Saturday with Juniors Chris Pouncey and Jamie Gabriel at number one losing 6-1, 6-3 to M.I.T.'s Kai-Ye Ho and Brian Brown.

Earlier in that week, the tennis team traveled north to face the Lord Jeffs of Amherst College, one of their tougher league opponents. The Bantams also lost this one by the score of 7-2. The winners on that day were Pouncey at number four and the doubles duo of Senior Co-captain Brian Johnson and Reuter at number three. The Pouncey match proved to be a very exciting win and showed that the Trinity tennis team has the potential to be force this season and in years to come. Pouncey beat his opponent, Junior Andy Gentin, by the score of 6-4, 7-5. This was a hard-earned win for Pouncey in a close match, with his superb net play and experience proving to be too much for his M.I.T. counterpart.

Reuter and Johnson played tough and held strong in a marathon match decided in three sets. After losing the first set 6-3, they played strong and won the second set in a tiebreaker. Then Reuter and Johnson took control and won the third set 6-4 which was decided by a difference of one service break. The Reuter-Johnson duo has proven to be a success mainly due to the improvement of the players' overall net play. Reuter, like many European clay court players, possesses a strong baseline game but a less superior net game. He and Johnson have dramatically improved their net play and have learned to play well together. In the UCONN match on April 10, Reuter and Johnson came back from being down 6-4 in the first set and a match point in the second to win the set and the match 4-6, 7-5, 6-2.

The UCONN match mentioned earlier proved to be the most excited match yet. The Huskies, a Division I team, edged out the Bants 5-4. Trinity's coach, Larry Hutnick, said of the match, "[The UCONN] match had to be the most exciting match in the history of Trinity tennis. There were four three-setters and we were down 4-2 after the singles." As the coach said, the team was down 4-2 after the singles and needed to sweep the three doubles matches to win.

The winners in the singles were Rodriguez at number five, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, and Senior Co-captain Peter Barlow at number six, 6-3, 1-6, 6-1. After the singles, the players were down and obviously disappointed but the team did come back in a display of tremendous character. Barlow and Rodriguez at number two won rather handily 7-6(7-2), 6-2. After the Reuter-Johnson match, the dual match was tied at 4-4 and the outcome rested in the hands of Pouncey-Gabriel.

In this most exciting match, Pouncey and Gabriel started the match poorly and out of synch and consequently lost the first set 6-2. The problems continued for the twain as they were down 1-4 in the second. Then something clicked as Pouncey and Gabriel started to get into a groove and, with it their showboating style of play. In the sixth game of the second set, they began to take control. Thus, they won the next six of seven games to take the second set 7-5.

After taking the lead 4-1 in the third set, Pouncey and Gabriel seemed to have things under control until UCONN's Todd Farin '89 and Glenn Marshall '89 began to play tough. They broke Gabriel's serve at love in the sixth game and eventually tied Trinity at 4-all. The match remained tied at 6 apiece and it was close even to the end when Farin-Marshall edged out Pouncey-Gabriel 9-7.

Despite the losses last week, the positive outcome of this series was that the team is having fun and has the enthusiasm that wasn't there last year.

Track: Men 8-0, Women 6-1

There's a saying about New England weather - that if you don't like it, then wait a minute. At the end of March, the Bantams put all thought of New England weather behind them as they headed to sunny Tampa, Florida for pre-season training and a meet against Middlebury College. However, as luck would have it, the one day that rained on the Bantams' parade just happened to be the day of the meet against Middlebury. This, however, did not stop Trinity's charge as both the men and women cruised to easy victories over the less-experienced Panthers.

The women won 12 out of 17 events on the day as every member got off to fine starts in the short-lived outdoor season. The sprints confirmed that the Lady Bants will have no shortage of talent in this department as the tandem of tri-captain Kay McGowan '89 and newcomer Hilla Drewiacki '92 took first and second in both the 100m and the 200m. Also, tri-captain Fif Taffuri '89 ran a controlled 400m to win that event. In the hurdles, senior Eileen Neilan '89 handled the responsibilities as Trinity's top female hurdler by taking seconds in both the 100m high and 400m intermediate events.

The middle- and long-distances also benefitted from fine opening outdoor performances from tri-captain Gail Wehrli '89 who won both the 800m and 1500m. Wehrli was joined in the 1500m by Michelle York '91 (3rd place) and by Candace Mulready '90 (3rd place) in the 800m. Additionally, the Lady Bants made short work of the 3000m with Sue Kinz '89 and Claire Summers '92 taking first and second respectively.

However, the Trinity women were not finished there as they also went on to dominate the field events. McGowan won the long jump with Tara Lawson taking third. Taffuri took the triple jump, one of her best events, with Lawson again taking third. Lawson became a true triple jumper by also taking second in the high jump. The discus and the shot featured the excellent performances of New England weight threat Jen VanCampen '90, who took third in the disc and garnered a win in the shot. In the other weight events, Pam Barry '91 took first in the hammer and second in the javelin. Chris Lindsay '91 won the javelin while Alisa Coren '92 placed third in the hammer.

The 4X100m also found the women in first with a time of 54.2 which contributed to Trinity's 87-49 victory over Middlebury.

The men found themselves in an equally victorious position with a 111-51 win over Middlebury.
