PREFATORY NOTE

This Obituary Record is the twenty-fourth issued, the plan of devoting the July issue of the Bulletin to this use having been adopted in 1918. The data here presented have been collected through the persistent efforts of the Treasurer's Office, which makes every effort to secure and preserve as full a record as possible of the activities of Trinity men as well as anything else having value for the history of the College.

Readers who find it in their power to correct errors or to contribute further information will confer a great favor if they will at once communicate with the Treasurer's Office. Material corrections and additions will be incorporated in the next issue of the Necrology.

Attention is particularly called to those alumni for whose biographies we have only meagre data. It is hoped that relatives and friends may be able to supply additional information, so that an adequate record may be preserved.

ARTHUR ADAMS.

OBITUARY RECORD

Remsen Brinckerhoff Ogilby

PRESIDENT

1920-1943

The whole College community was profoundly shocked and grieved by the untimely death of President Ogilby on August 7, 1943. He had been in his Office the day before and had gone down to his summer home in Weekapaug, Rhode Island, for a few days of much needed rest and recreation. Many knew that the rest and relaxation were sorely needed, but none knew just how great the need was.

Saturday morning, he had gone for a swim, wishing to teach Miss Mary F. O'Connor, a maid in the service of the family, to swim. He was stricken with an heart attack, and died before he could be brought to shore.

Dr. J. Bard McNulty, Acting Alumni Secretary, prepared an admirable memoir of President Ogilby for the November 1943 issue of the Trinity College Alumni News. Dr. McNulty expresses the love and affection in which President Ogilby was held by Trinity men. There, too, are printed the formal Resolutions of the Trustees and the Faculty. Here will be presented the bare facts of President Ogilby's biography.

He was born April 8, 1881, in New Brunswick, New Jersey, a son of Charles Fitz Randolph Ogilby and his wife Agnes Brinckerhoff. His father was engaged in the insurance business, and removed to Boston when his son was a small boy. He was prepared for college in the Roxbury Latin School and entered Harvard with the Class of 1902. He was an Editor of the "Harvard Crimson" and Chairman of the Senior Prom. Committee. He was graduated with the B.A. degree in that year. In 1907, he received the M.A. degree in course from Harvard.

After his graduation, for two years, he taught at the Groton School. In 1904, he entered the General Theological Seminary in

New York, but remained only two years. In 1906, he entered the senior class in the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Massachusetts, graduating with the B.D. degree in 1907. In 1921, he received the LL.D. degree from Wesleyan University; in 1923, the Litt.D. degree from Columbia; the S.T.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1942; and the L.H.D. degree from Hamilton College in 1943.

He was ordained Deacon in 1907 and Priest in 1908, by Bishop William Lawrence. He was an Assistant Minister in St. Stephen's Church, Boston, 1907-1909. In 1909, he went to the Philippine Islands, as Headmaster of the Baguio School, at the request of Bishop Brent, a life-long friend. From 1912 to 1918, he served also as Rector of the Church of the Resurrection and of St. James Chapel in Baguio.

In 1918, he returned to the States and became a Chaplain in the U. S. Army with the rank of Captain, and for a time served as Chaplain at West Point. He served at Debarkation Hospital No. 5 in New York City till June 1919. He maintained his interest in the work of army Chaplains, and was commissioned as a Major and later as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Reserve. After leaving the Army, he taught for a year in St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire.

He was elected President of Trinity College, April 24, 1920, and was formally inaugurated November 17, 1920. The twenty-three years of his administration were the period of greatest growth in endowment, buildings, and in the number of students in the history of the College. In his Report to the Trustees in 1940, President Ogilby called attention to the fact that the number of students had increased from 167 to 530; the faculty had increased from 25 to 62 members; the endowment from $1,688,777 to $3,943,139; and the value of land, buildings, and equipment from $1,341,553 to $3,806,664. During this period, were built the Trowbridge Gymnasium, the Chapel, the Chemistry Building, the Cook Dormitory and Dining Hall, the Goodwin and Woodward Dormitories, and the new dormitory, appropriately named Ogilby Hall. The Chapel may in a sense be regarded as his monument, for into it went his deepest religious feelings and his thought and labor. He especially delighted to play the carillon and became an accomplished performer. Changes equally profound had come about in the curriculum and in the administration of the College. The College will long remember and be grateful for President Ogilby's work and influence, even when measured alone in these tangible evidences.

He also became a leading citizen in his adopted city, Hartford.

He was a Director of the Hartford Hospital, and was especially interested in the Hospital's Training School for Nurses, of the Newington Home for Crippled Children, the Hartford Park Board, and a member of the Connecticut War Council. He was a Trustee of the Watkinson Library, of the Lenox School, and of the Salisbury School. He was appointed by the Governor a member of the Commission on Safe Driving and was most active in its work. He was a member of the University Club of Hartford, of the Twentieth Century Club of Hartford, of the Century Association in New York, of the University Club of Boston, and of the Authors Club of London. He was a member of the Harvard Alumni Association of Connecticut. He was long Commodore of the Weekapaug Yacht Club. He was a member of the New England Classical Association. He delighted in the Latin exercises of Trinity Commencements and delighted to crack jokes in Latin, sometimes at the expense of the dignified recipients of honorary degrees.

Though he wrote easily and well, he published little. He was one of the literary executors of Bishop Brent, and was engaged in writing a biography of him. This, unhappily, he did not live to complete. His "Inaugural Address" was published in No. 2 of Vol. XVIII of the Trinity College Bulletin.

His Address of Welcome to the New England Classical Association was printed in No. 3, of Vol. 22 of the Classical Journal, November 1926. He contributed an "Appreciation of Flavel Sweeten Luther" to the Churchman, Vol. 137, No. 12, March 1928. His 44th Founders Day address delivered at the Gilman Country Day School in Baltimore in 1941 was printed by the School. His speech delivered at the 127th Anniversary Dinner of the New England Society in the City of New York was printed in the 1932 Year Book of the Society. He prepared a biographical account of William Edmond Curtis, Trinity '68, dwelling especially on his part in Cleveland's purchase of gold to maintain the gold reserve of the U. S. Treasury.

He wrote a "History of Trinity Campus", which was printed as No. 2, Vol. XXXVI, April 1939, of the Trinity College Bulletin.

A paper entitled "Et Praevaletbit" was printed in "Four Trinity College Papers", No. 2 of Vol. XXXIX of the Trinity College Bulletin.

He was a facile and graceful speaker and an unusually good preacher; he had many requests to speak and preach and accepted them gladly, giving generously of his time and energy.

He was greatly pleased to be sent, with Bishop Brent, to represent the American Church at the enthronement of the Archbishop of Canterbury in 1928.

August 24, 1919, at Paul Smith's, N. Y., he married Lois Manley Cunningham, daughter of Frederick G. Cunningham, of New York, whose wife was Leila Lyman. The children are: Peter Brinckerhoff, born March 13, 1921, Hamilton, '43; Lyman Cunningham, born January 25, 1922, Hamilton, '43; and Alexander Ogilby, born January 13, 1928. He is survived by his wife and the three sons.

The funeral service was held in the College Chapel on Tuesday, August 10, 1943, at two-thirty in the afternoon. The Rev. Henry McFarlan Brinckerhoff Ogilby, President Ogilby's brother, was in charge, and was assisted by the Right Rev. Malcolm E. Peabody, a life-long friend. A service for members of the College faculty and the undergraduates of the College was held at five o'clock. The Rev. Raymond Cunningham, '97, and the Rev. Professor Arthur Adams, of the faculty, were in charge.

Grenville Kane

Class of 1875

Grenville Kane was born in New Rochelle, N. Y., July 12, 1854, a son of Pierre Corne Kane and Edith Brevoort. He was a great-grandson of Henry Brevoort, and a grandson of Henry Brevoort, both eminent citizens of New York.

He was prepared for College in St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire, and entered Trinity in 1871 with the Class of 1875. He was a member of the Epsilon Chapter of Delta Psi, and was a member of the Crew in 1873 that rowed at Springfield. He was graduated with the B.A. degree in 1875. In 1878, he received the M.A. degree, and in 1925 the honorary L.H.D. degree. In 1925, he was elected a Trustee, serving till 1929, when at his request, because of advancing age, he was transferred to the Advisory Council. He was especially interested in the College Library, and served as a member of the Library Committee.

He entered the Law School of Columbia University, graduating with the LL.B. degree in 1878. He was admitted to the New York Bar in that year and practised his profession in New York City.

From 1906 to 1922, he was a member of the banking firm of Tailer & Co., of New York. He was a Director of the Erie Railroad Company (Chairman of the Finance Committee, 1922-1937), a Director of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway Company, of the Colorado and Southern Railroad, of the Chicago and Erie Railroad, and of the New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad Company. He was a Director of the City Bank and the Farmers Trust Company. He was a Trustee of the New York Public Library, and was long a member of the Committee on Rare Book Purchases. His knowledge in this field was great and his judgment of values keen. His own collection of Early Americana was superb and of great value. He made a special study of the manuscripts and of the printed editions of Ptolemy's Geography.

He was a member of the New York Yacht Club and was long Fleet Captain. He sailed the racing Yacht Ailsa across the Atlantic to take part in the Cowes Regatta. He was a member of the Naval Historical Society and served as its President. For a time, he was a Director of the John Carter Brown Library of Brown University, Providence.

He was a member of the Union Club; of the Grolier Club, of the City Midway Club, all of New York, of the Tuxedo Club, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and of the Newport Country Club, and of the Point Judith Country Club, in Rhode Island.

He was a founder of Tuxedo Park in 1886, and was the last survivor of the founders.

April 28, 1881, he married Margaret Adelaide Wolfe, only daughter of John Wolfe, of New York City. Mrs. Kane died some three years ago.

He died at his home in Tuxedo Park, July 17, 1943. He is survived by his five daughters: Mrs. A. Stewart Walker, of New York; Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., of New York; Miss Margaret Dorothy Kane, of Tuxedo Park; Mrs. Henry L. McVickar, of New York; and Mrs. Garrow T. Geer, of New York.

Charles Carroll Edmunds, Jr.

Class of 1877

Charles Carroll Edmunds, Jr., was born in Green Bay City, Wisconsin, June 18, 1858, a son of the Rev. Charles Carroll Edmunds, a graduate of Nashotah House in 1854, whose wife was Maria Goeller.

He was prepared for College in Burlington College, Burlington, New Jersey, and entered the Class of 1877 in the sophomore year (1874).

He was a member of the Beta Beta Chapter of Psi Upsilon and distinguished himself in scholarship. Because of failing health, he gave up the active work of the Ministry for several years, but was Rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, Philadelphia, 1919-1920. He was Minister in Charge of St. John's Church, Norristown, Pennsylvania, 1925-1926.

During the last years of his life, he lived quietly at Aldan, Pennsylvania, taking occasional services as opportunity offered. He was devoted to the College and seldom missed a Commencement.

September 21, 1886, in Roxbury, Connecticut, he married Ada Hawes, daughter of George William Hawes, whose wife was Catharine Mary Moakley. The children were: Louisa Jackson, born in New York City, September 15, 1888, graduated from the West Chester, Pa., Normal School in 1917, married August 23, 1920, Joseph Rasonor Fowler; William Curtis Cooley Ball, born November 28, 1890, in Rockville, Connecticut, George Washington University, 1920; and Ada Mary Alling Ball, born in Alexandria, Virginia, November 10, 1900.

John Ridgely Carter

Class of 1883

John Ridgely Carter was born in Baltimore, Maryland, November 28, 1869. He was a son of Bernard Carter, an eminent lawyer of Baltimore, who was a graduate of St. James College, Maryland, and of the Harvard Law School, and who received the LL.D. degree from Trinity College in 1888. His mother was Mary Buckner Ridgely, a member of another eminent Maryland family. The Carter family has sent many of its members to Trinity College. Bernard Moore Carter and Charles Henry Carter were members of the Class of 1882, the Reverend George Calvert Carter, of the Class of 1887, Shirley Carter, of the Class of 1894, and Julian Stuart Carter, of the Class of 1898.

John Ridgely Carter was prepared for College at the Shenandoah Valley Academy, Winchester, Virginia, and entered Trinity College in 1879 with the Class of 1883. He was a member of the Phi Kappa Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi. He was a member of the Track Team, and held the record for the quarter mile. He was Presenter on Class Day. He was graduated with the degree of B.A. in 1883. In 1886 he received the M.A. degree and in 1911, the LL.D. degree from the College. He studied at the University of Leipzig in 1884. In 1887, he received the LL.B. degree from the University of Maryland. He was a student at the Harvard Law School during the year 1887-1888, and in 1889, was admitted to the Maryland Bar.

From 1889 to 1892, he practised Law in Baltimore with his father.

The years 1892-1894, were spent in travel in Europe.

In 1894, he entered the diplomatic service, and from 1894 to 1896, was Secretary to the American Ambassador in London. He was Second Secretary of the Embassy from 1896 to 1905, and Counselor, 1905 to 1909. From 1909 to 1910, he was Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Roumania, Serbia, and Bulgaria. From October 1910 to June 1911, he was Minister Plenipotentiary in charge of the Embassy at Constantinople.

August 12, 1911, he was appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Argentine Republic, but declined the appointment.

February 15, 1912, he entered the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and September 21, 1914, became a partner of Morgan, Harjes & Co., in Paris. Mr. Carter returned to the United States in advance of the German occupation of Paris in 1940.

During the first World War, he was Treasurer of the American Red Cross in Europe and was made Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor. He was much interested in the "Light House" organized in France after the War by Winifred Holt to care for men blinded in the conflict, and long served as its Secretary.

He was a Governor of the American Hospital in Paris and was Warden and Treasurer of the American Church of the Holy Trinity in Paris. He received the Grand Cross of the Crown of Roumania and the Medaille de la Reconnaissance (France). He was a member of the Metropolitan Club in Washington; of the Knickerbocker Club in New York; of the Marlborough, Turf, St. James', Bachelors', Prince's, and Beefstake Clubs in London; and of the Cercle de l'Union, Tavellers, and Cercle Interallié in Paris.

May 24, 1887, in St. John's Church, Washington, D. C., he married Alice Morgan, daughter of David Pierce Morgan, a New York financier, whose wife was Caroline Fellowes, a daughter of William Fellowes, of Staten Island. She died January 30, 1933. The children were: Caroline Mildred, born in Cambridge, Mass., March 2, 1888, who married Viscount Acheson in St. George's Church, London, July 21, 1910, and Bernard Shirley, born Biarritz, May 29, 1893.

Mr. Carter died at the Knickerbocker Club, New York, June 3, 1944.

Charles McLean Andrews

Class of 1884

Charles McLean Andrews, the most distinguished alumnus of Trinity College in the field of scholarship, died September 9, 1943, at a hospital in New Haven; he had been in failing health for three or four years.

He was born in Wethersfield, Connecticut, February 22, 1863, a son of the Rev. William Watson Andrews and Elizabeth Byrne

Williams. The father was graduated from Yale in 1831, and was a Minister in the Congregational Church—later in the Catholic Apostolic Church. Professor Andrews' grandfather was the Rev. William Andrews, a graduate of Middlebury College in the Class of 1806, whose wife was Sarah Parkhill.

He was graduated from the Hartford Public High School in the Class of 1880, and entered Trinity College in September of that year.

He was a member of the I.K.A. fraternity, later of the Sigma Chapter of Delta Phi. In 1884, he won the Tuttle Prize for an essay on "The Future of Astronomy", and also won the Oratorical Prize that year. He was graduated with the B.A. degree in 1884, was Class Poet, and received an appointment to speak at Commencement.

During the years 1884-1886, he was Principal of the West Hartford High School. From 1886 to 1889, he was a graduate student in History in Johns Hopkins University under Herbert Baxter Adams, and in 1889, he received the Ph.D. degree.

In 1890, he received the M.A. degree from Trinity College and in 1905 the L.H.D. degree. In 1896, he was elected a member of the Trinity College Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. In 1910, he received the honorary M.A. degree from Yale University and in 1935 the Litt.D. degree. In 1936, he received the same degree from Harvard University. He received the LL.D. degree from Lehigh University in 1934 and from Johns Hopkins in 1939. He was Associate Professor of History, later Professor, in Bryn Mawr College from 1889 to 1907; Professor of History in Johns Hopkins University from 1907 to 1910; and from 1910 to his retirement as Emeritus in 1933, Farnam Professor of American History in Yale University. He was Editor of fifty volumes of Yale Historical Publications from 1912 to 1933, and was deeply interested in the work of the Yale University Press. He was a lecturer in Helsingfors University, Finland in 1911, in the Universities of Iowa, Wisconsin, and Chicago in 1919, and in William and Mary College in 1938. He was abroad in 1892, 1893, 1902-1904, 1905, 1907, 1909, 1911-1912, and often in later years.

He was a member of the American Historical Association (President 1925), of the Historical Societies of Connecticut, Virginia, Pennsylvania, of the American Antiquarian Society, of the American Philosophical Society, of the New Haven Colony Historical Society, of the Colonial Society of Massachusetts, a corresponding member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, an honorary member of the Historisch Genootschap, Utrecht, Holland, and a corresponding member of the Royal Historical Society (England). He was a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the American Institute of Arts and Letters, and a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

A full bibliography of Professor Andrews' writings, as well as a sketch of his historical work, is found in the January 1944 number of the "William and Mary Quarterly". The bibliography covers pages 15 to 26, and includes 102 items. Here we need mention only two or three of his most important publications. His doctoral dissertation at Johns Hopkins, The River Towns of Connecticut is still regarded as a model and as a classic in its field. His greatest work is his Colonial Period of American History, in four volumes, the first of which on its publication in 1934 received the Pulitzer Prize (1935).

June 19, 1895, he married Evangeline Holcombe Walker, Bryn Mawr, 1893, a daughter of John Crawford Walker, a physician of Indianapolis whose wife was Laura Marvin Seymour. The children are: Ethel Walker, born May 30, 1897, married December 3, 1920, John M. Harlan, and John Williams Andrews, born November 10, 1898, Yale, B.A., 1920, Yale LL.B. 1926.

Mrs. Andrews is also a person of distinction and an historian in her own right. Her best known book is her edition of the Journal of a Lady of Quality (1920—two later eds.)

Professor Andrews' kindly and singularly charming personality and his sterling character endeared him to the generations of students who came under his influence. His teaching was unusual, and he may be said to be the founder of a "School" of American History.

Francis Banks Whitcome

Class of 1887

Francis Banks Whitcome was born in Yantic, Connecticut, November 20, 1865, a son of the Rev. Ephraim Lord Whitcome, a Minister of the Episcopal Church, whose wife was Louise Ann Thrasher.

He was prepared for college at the Episcopal Academy of Connecticut (Cheshire) and entered Trinity College in September 1883 with the Class of 1887. He was a member of the Beta Beta Chapter of Psi Upsilon. He was a member of the baseball team, and of the Ivy Board. He received the Latin Prize in 1885, and the Second Prize in Chemistry in 1886. He received election to Phi Beta Kappa in 1886, and was graduated with the B.A. degree in 1887, receiving an appointment to speak at Commencement. In 1911, he received the M.A. degree in course from the College.

He was a Tutor in Latin in St. Stephen's College during the year 1887-88. He was graduated from the Berkeley Divinity School in 1890, and was ordained Deacon in 1890 and Priest in 1891 by Bishop John Williams of Connecticut. He was in charge of Christ Church, Unionville, Connecticut, 1890-1891; Rector of Trinity Church, Branford, Connecticut, 1891-1894; Rector of St. Luke's Church, East Greenwich, Rhode Island, 1894-1899; Rector of St. Paul's Church, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 1899-1912; Rector, Christ Church, Watertown, Connecticut, 1912-1930; Institutional Chaplain, Dutchess County from 1930 to his death January 28, 1944.

He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, of the Rectory Club of the Diocese of New York, a member of the Dutchess County Historical Society, of the University Club, Poughkeepsie, Vice-President of the Trinity College Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, sometimes Trustee of the Episcopal Academy of Connecticut, and sometimes a Trustee of the Berkeley Divinity School.

September 11, 1890, in the Chapel of St. Stephen's College, he married Mary Elizabeth Lewis, daughter of John Neher Lewis, a farmer of Annandale, N. Y., whose wife was Christina Jane Nelson. The children were Louise Jane, born September 21, 1891, and Francis, born January 22, 1897, died November 5, 1897.

William Whaley Bellinger

Class of 1889 (Honorary)

The Rev. Dr. William Whaley Bellinger, Vicar of St. Agnes' Chapel, Trinity Parish, New York City, for thirty-five years, who received an honorary M.A. from Trinity College in 1889, died in St. Luke's Hospital, New York, April 6, 1943.

He was born in Richland Ponds, Barnwell District, South Carolina, December 25, 1863, a son of Amos Northrop Bellinger, a physician of Charleston, whose wife was Maria Louisa Whaley. The Bellinger family is one of the oldest and most distinguished families of South Carolina.

Albert Milford Turner

Class of 1933 (Honorary)

Albert Milford Turner, who received, honoris causa, the M.S. degree from Trinity College in 1933, died at his home in Northfield, Connecticut, June 28, 1944.

He was born in Northfield, Connecticut, February 26, 1868, a son of Abraham Manning Turner, "a Yankee farmer and trader", whose wife was Elizabeth Filley.

He was educated at Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham, Massachusetts, and graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University with the Ph.B. degree in 1890.

He became a Civil Engineer, first, with the Erie Railroad. From 1892 to 1905, he worked with A. B. Hill, a Consulting Engineer of New Haven, engaged chiefly in the construction of trolley lines in Connecticut. From 1905 to 1914, he was engaged in mining or quarrying feldspar and quartz in Massachusetts and Connecticut. In 1914, he became Field Secretary of the Connecticut State Park and Forest Commission. Later he became Secretary of the Commission, serving till his retirement some two years ago. He had much to do with the development of the Connecticut System of State Parks, and in 1933, he received a medal from the American Scenic and Historic Society in recognition of his work.

He was a member of the Connecticut Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Park Executives, the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, the American Geographic Society, the Sons of the American Revolution, and the National Conference on State Parks. He contributed often to periodicals, especially those dealing with parks, and landscape architecture.

June 14, 1923, in Northfield, he married Helen Catlin, a daughter of John Howard Catlin, a manufacturer, whose wife was Josephine Wooster. His wife survives him. There were no children.

Charles Lincoln Taylor

Class of 1938 (Honorary)

Charles Lincoln Taylor, distinguished citizen of Hartford, who received the M.A. degree, honoris causa, from Trinity College in 1938, died at his home in Hartford, March 30, 1944.

He was born in Hartford, September 10, 1875, a son of Edwin P. and Carrie Lincoln Taylor. His grandfather, Charles L. Taylor, and his maternal great-grandfather, Levi Lincoln, were prominent men in the industrial and business life of Hartford in their day.

Mr. Taylor graduated from the Hartford Public High School in 1894. He entered at once into the business life of the city, carrying on the enterprises in which the family had long been engaged.

He was President of the Taylor and Fenn Company, President of the Collins Company, President of the Farmington River Water Power Company in Springfield, and a director in some twenty other corporations, including the Travelers Insurance Company, the Hartford Gas Company, and the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company. He was a trustee of the American School for the Deaf, the Children's Aid Society, and the Wadsworth Athenaeum.

April 19, 1898, he married Bertha H. Smith. The children were the Rev. Charles Lincoln Taylor, Jr., Dean of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Massachusetts; James A. Taylor, of West Hartford; Mrs. Paul M. Butterworth, of West Hartford; and Mrs. Sarah Butler, of West Hartford, all of whom survive him.

He entered the service of the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company. In 1941, he was transferred to the Albany Office of the Company, where he was an Assistant Cashier. In 1941, he was sent to the Richmond, Virginia, Office of the Company as an Assistant Cashier. He was a member of the University Club in Albany, a member of the Masonic Order, and was a communicant of St. John's Church, East Hartford.

In 1941, he entered the Army and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant. He was killed in action in Italy. The exact date of his death has not been learned, but it was some time in March, 1944.

John Francis Reynolds

Class of 1939

Obit pro patria

John Francis Reynolds was born in New Britain, Connecticut, August 1, 1917, a son of William Francis Reynolds, whose wife is Mary Hartigan, a graduate of Teachers College of Connecticut, New Britain, in 1907.

He was prepared for college in the New Britain High School and entered Trinity in September, 1935, remaining till mid-years, 1938.

After leaving college, he was a salesman for Armour & Company in Brooklyn, N. Y.

In February, 1941, he enlisted, reporting at Fort Knox, but was soon transferred to Pine Camp, N. Y., for service with a Tank Corps. He was then sent to Maxwell Field as an Aviation Cadet. He was graduated from the Advanced Flying School at Moody Field, March 25, 1943, and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant.

He was killed with twenty-five others, when a plane he was piloting crashed at the Laurinburg-Maxton Army Air-Base field, two miles from Maxton, North Carolina. The cause of the accident is unknown.

He had been home for a short leave a few days before his death and was expecting to be sent overseas. He had said he was going to name his new plane Jacklyn after one of his nieces, and had told his brother, William, "Don't worry about me" as he said good-bye at Brainard Field.

He is survived by his parents, by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hartigan, of New Britain, formerly of Unionville, and by his brother, William, and his two nieces.

John Sterling Saunders

Class of 1940

Obit pro patria

John Sterling Saunders was born in Detroit, Michigan, September 4, 1918, a son of John Boersig Saunders, a graduate of West Point and a Colonel in the U. S. Army, and of his wife, Ruth Sterling.

He was prepared for college in the Cranbrook and Bloomfield Hills High School and entered Trinity in September, 1936, with the Class of 1940. He, however, remained only a part of his freshman year.

After leaving college, he attended the Highland Park Junior College for two years. At the time of his enlistment in the Army Air Force in December, 1941, he was employed as a junior draftsman by the Fisher Body Corporation. He attended various training schools and was made a Staff Sergeant and an Aerial Gunner in June, 1942. He flew to a base in England as a member of the crew of a flying fortress in September, and from there went on missions over Western Europe. A telegram from the War Department informed his mother that he was "killed in action November 8, 1943, in the Western European Area." No other details are known. He received posthumously the Order of the Purple Heart with Citation and the Air Force Citation of Honor.

He was a communicant of Christ Church, Cranbrook, Michigan.

Mark Rainsford

Class of 1941

Obit pro patria

Mark Rainsford was born in New York City May 11, 1918, a son of Laurence Frederic Rainsford, M.D., a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, whose wife is Helen Morgan, and a grandson of the Rev. William S. Rainsford, long Rector of St. George's Church in New York City.

He was prepared for college in the Middlesex School, Concord, Massachusetts, and entered Trinity in September, 1937, with the Class of 1941. He was a member of the Alpha Chi Rho Fraternity, and was active in student affairs. He was a member of the Track Team, Vice-President and Secretary of the Jesters, and Art Editor and Photographer for the Ivy. In 1940, he was much interested in the campaign to purchase an ambulance to be sent to Britain from the College, and contributed much to its success by drawing portraits of members of the faculty. He left college at the close of his senior year without taking his degree.

In September, 1941, he volunteered for the Signal Corps of the U. S. Army, receiving a commission as a Second Lieutenant. He was assigned to camouflage work, for which his ability and experience fitted him admirably. He received training in camouflage work at Fort Belvoir, Virginia. Shortly before his death, he was transferred to the Air Corps. He was killed "in line of duty" in a plane crash near Nashville, Tennessee, on the night of July 28, 1943, a catastrophe in which twenty-two persons lost their lives. The plane was one of the fleet of the American Airlines, and the crash occurred about twenty miles southeast of Bowling Green, Kentucky. His untimely death brought to an end a career of great promise and possibilities.

July 21, 1942, he married at Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y., Elizabeth Earle Dodge, Wells, 1942, daughter of Cleveland Earle Dodge, a banker of Riverdale, whose wife is Pauline Morgan. A daughter, Gale, was born April 2, 1943, in New York City.
