TRINITY COLLEGE, HARTFORD, CONN.

Trinity College, under the name of Washington College, received its charter in 1823. The present name was adopted in 1845. Its chief founder was the Right Rev. Thomas Church Brownell, Bishop of Connecticut. Established by Episcopalians and administered in sympathy with their tenets, it is not a Church institution in the sense of being directed by the Church. Its advantages are placed at the service of those of every creed.

Formerly on the site of the present State Capitol, it was transferred in 1878 to new buildings in the southwestern part of the city. The principal of these in the English Secular Gothic style, 653 feet long, including Jarvis and Seabury Halls and Northam Towers, is one of the most imposing and admirably fitted educational edifices in the United States. It is intended to form the west side of a great quadrangle. Outside of the lines of this quadrangle on the south, are the Observatory, the Boardman Hall of Natural History, and the Jarvis Laboratories for Chemistry and for Physics. To the north of it are the Gymnasium, houses of the President and Professors, and Chapter Houses of the Fraternities. Below the College Campus to the east, and within three minutes' walk, is the spacious Athletic field. In beauty of situation, healthful conditions of life, and equipment for its special work, the College is not surpassed.

The College has distinct courses of four years in Arts, in Science, in Letters and Science, and in Letters.

The Faculty includes thirteen professors, seven instructors, five lecturers, a librarian and a medical director.

Among the Elective studies within the respective courses, there is no important subject for which adequate provision is not made.

Properly qualified candidates not desiring to pursue the whole studies of any course are allowed as Special Students to pursue certain subjects, receiving certificates of satisfactory work.

The Library contains 42,648 volumes. Generous contributions of the Alumni are making possible a rapid addition to its resources. A Reference Reading Room is open every day and on five evenings of the week.

The Jarvis Chemical and Physical Laboratories have every equipment for the most advanced work.

The Hall of Natural History contains Biological Laboratories provided with the most modern appliances.

In the year 1903-1904 a full technical course in Civil Engineering is for the first time made available for all qualified applicants.

There are fifty scholarships for the aid of necessitous students. The three Holland Scholarships yielding each $600 per annum, are awarded to the three best students in the three lower classes respectively. The Russell Graduate Fellowship of $400 is awarded biennially in the interest of higher graduate study. Prizes to the amount of $500 are also awarded to undergraduates for success in the work of the various departments.

Two examinations for admission are held at the college in each year, the first on the three days following the Annual Commencement, and the second in September, immediately before the beginning of the Christmas Term.

For Catalogues, Examination Papers, or information, apply to the President or to the Secretary of the Faculty.

Has received from its policy-holders since its organization in 1846, $216,751,123.41; it has returned to them or their beneficiaries $214,279,820.43, or 98.86%, besides which it has in hand $65,277,179.21 for the protection of those that remain. What it has returned and what it holds equals 128.98% of what it has received for premiums. Its expenses have been but 9.13% of its total income.

It is the simple fact that no American company matches this record. And it is this record of the past, the present maintenance of the conditions which made it possible, and a financial condition of unusual soundness and strength, that we offer as the best possible guarantees of the future.

AGAIN, after twenty-one years, and for the eleventh time, Trinity has a new president. This time the office falls upon one of her own sons, of her own training, brought up under the shadow of her own buildings and traditions. Flavel Sweeten Luther, of the class of '70, for twenty-one years our professor of mathematics, is too well known to Trinity men to need introduction or commendation. He has remained at Trinity in spite of tempting offers to take up other work, he has believed in Trinity always. Now he takes up a new work, one for which thirty years of study, growth, and development, have qualified him to become our leader. He becomes president at a time when the students, the alumni, the friends of Trinity are not only willing but anxious to be led by a strong man, who has enthusiasm for and belief in Trinity; a leader who has executive ability and will be a worthy representative of the higher education typical of the New England college. In behalf of the student body we pledge our new president hearty support in his high office and the great work that he will do for Trinity.

EDITORIALS

THE eleventh issue of the TABLET is to be the Alumni Number.

The devotion of one issue entirely to contributions from graduates has become an unwritten law of the Board. We therefore simply remind the Alumni of the number, announce when it is to appear, and trust that no explanation of its objects, or dissertation on its value, is necessary. We should like, however, both, to earnestly request contribution, and to impress the fact that we shall need the usual variety of material. Those who have kept up their interest in the college, and have watched the growth, or possibly the decay of organizations they supported during their undergraduate years, we urge to give their opinions freely. Criticism will be acceptable, either in the form of editorials or communications. We should also be most grateful for fiction or verse by men who contributed the literary material of the TABLET while they were in college, and essays by those who have pursued particular branches of science. We hope that this year even more than the usual interest will be taken in the number, and that enough material will be submitted to make it, as it certainly should be, the best of the year. For the benefit of those who are desirous of contributing to the Alumni Number, we give the following details. Manuscripts should be directed to the editor-in-chief, addressed simply Trinity College. No articles received after the twenty-third of May can be used, as the number cannot be delayed on account of conflict with the last issue before Commencement. Contributions must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer. They will be published anonymously, however, if such a wish is expressed.

THE personal department of the TABLET, the present board feels, is an important one. Efforts have been made to make it as complete as possible, but we are willing to admit that as yet we have not been successful. The difficulty has lain in the fact that our sources of information are limited, and follow the same lines. Personals which have not an account of the progress of our most prominent men cannot interest the majority of our graduate readers, and such news ought not to be several months old. Under the present method of obtaining items, however, at least half of the honors conferred indirectly upon the college, are omitted altogether. If we are to hear from the men who have not followed the clerical or medical professions, for instance, or those scattered in the cities with no local association of Alumni some plan must be adopted. We should like to offer the suggestion that the graduate secretaries, after their periodical correspondence with their classmates, might send some brief items to the editor of this department. If they would forward some facts of interest occasionally, that is three or four times during the year, the TABLET might be expected to be of more real use to the body of the Alumni than it has been hitherto. We should be glad to receive suggestions, and the opinions of those whom a plan of this kind would most concern.

THE dinner given by the Detroit Association of Trinity Alumni at the University Club on the evening of April 9th, shows what a remarkably strong influence the college has in that city. In the club Trinity stands third in numerical strength, the University of Michigan naturally being first, and Yale second. At the dinner all the Trinity men in the city were present, or "accounted for," and the evening proved a most enjoyable one. Among the guests were: Superintendent Martindale of the Public Schools, the Principal of the great Central High School, the Head master of the Detroit University School, the Rev. Mr. Woodcock of St. John's Church, and the Rev. Dr. Maxon of Christ Church. At the call of Strathearn Hendrie, '87, toastmaster, speeches were made by the Rev. Dr. Peters, '50, Dr. Maxon, Mr. Woodcock, and Professor Luther.

THE New York Association of the Alumni gave a dinner Wednesday, April 20th, at the University Club, which was, perhaps, the most successful affair of the year. Including the graduates from the neighboring towns, the attendance was nearly one hundred. Alexander T. Mason, '81, acted as toastmaster, and called upon the following: the Rev. H. B. Hutchins, '54, the Rev. Dr. E. M. Stires, Frank L. Wilcox, '80, W. C. Skinner, '76, L. A. Lockwood, '55, and F. S. Luther, '70.

THE poor attendance of undergraduates at our various indoor and non-social functions during the winter, has occasioned much comment about college. The calm, judicial observer, would come to the conclusion from the number of such complaints, and the appearance of the hall or gymnasium on the evenings referred to,

that the majority of these reformers must have concealed themselves while they made a survey of the premises. A more detailed examination, however, brings to light the fact that even those who felt the want of college spirit so deeply, went somewhere else on all, except perhaps one, of the nights when a general gathering was needed. Such inconsistency might be simply amusing were it not evident that a real want of interest is being shown by the college body. The failure to give more than a day or two's notification, is undoubtedly responsible for the non-appearance of a few individuals. It would certainly be a coincidence if all of us found we had no engagement, or work to do on the evening following the day when a notice was posted. Still, this excuse cannot be pleaded for the majority of those absent. At least half stay away because they "don't care particularly" for whatever is going on. We mention these unpleasant facts, and the more unfortunate state of mind which is prevalent, without attempting to suggest any definite remedy. It can only be hoped, if we are unable to arouse the principal offenders directly, that those who are interested in the welfare of the college, may be moved to exert their influence over the former. A little push before an occasion would be worth more than the usual amount of criticism afterwards.

AT this time of the year when our major athletics, baseball, and track, seem to be absorbing the minds and finances of the college body, an important branch is in danger of being overlooked. Tennis, although not under the jurisdiction of the T. C. A. A., has in former years asserted itself strongly in our athletic life. The number of prizes and trophies gained by its teams, testify to the support which was accorded it. There is no reason to suppose that there are not men in college at present, who can play well. Certainly we have plenty who enjoy the game, and are anxious to improve. Nothing can be done, however, until the Tennis Association makes the repairs on the courts, necessary at the beginning of each season. This organization being, in the nature of things, dependent upon its members, we must turn to the college as a whole. A good proportion should join immediately, expecting to pay the small dues (one dollar for the term) which the rules require. The season is beginning late this year on account of the weather, and further delay is inexcusable.

BILLY BEAVER.

(With apologies to Mr. Kipling.)

“WHAT are those Sophomores yelling for?” said Billy in his bed.
“To turn you out, to turn you out,” the Junior roommate said.
“What makes you laugh so loud, so loud?” said Billy, sore afraid.
“I’m thinking what you’ll get to-night,” the Junior roommate said.
For they’re hazin’ all the Freshmen, and they’re coming round your way.
Can’t you hear their steps approaching, can’t you hear ’em, Bill? I say;
They’ve gained the lower landing and they shout your name away,
And they’re hazin’ all the Freshmen in the college.

“What makes them call my name so hard?” said Billy, filled with dread.
“To wake you up, to wake you up,” the Junior roommate said.
“What made that oaken door fall down?” said Bill, yanked out of bed.
“Some husky Sophs, some husky Sophs,” his Junior roommate said.
They’re hazin’ all the Freshmen and at last they’ve come around.
Now they’ve halted Billy Beaver by his classmates on the ground,
And he’ll dance in half a minute up the campus at a bound—
Oh, they’re hazin’ all the Freshmen in the college!

"His bed was right hand bed to mine," said the Junior, undismayed.

"He's getting little sleep to-night," another Junior said.

"I've worn his gloves a score of times,"—the Junior shook his head.

"He'll have no need of gloves to-night," another Junior said.

They are hazin' Billy Beaver, you must mark him to his place,

For he hit a mighty Soph'more with a brickbat, in the face;

Now he's got to run the gauntlet, so he'd better take a brace,

While they're paddlin' all the Freshmen in the college.

"What's that that's limping up the stairs?" the Junior roommate said.

"It's all that's left of Billy B.," the other Junior said.

"What's that so black upon the wall?" the Junior roommate said.

"His shade is crawling back to bed,"—the other Junior fled.

For they're done with Billy Beaver, yes, they're done and gone away.

Can't you hear their steps retreating, can't you hear 'em, Bill? I say.

Ho! the Sophs 'll all be sleeping, they'll need their cuts to-day,

After hazing all the Freshmen in the college.

MONOLOGUE

Senior loquitur.

OH, no, my accounts aren't so very bad. Bills? Yes, but a hundred dollars or so in bills due isn't anything to worry about when one has ten dollars real money. Me careless? Good Lord, no! I'm an expert accountant beside the average college man. Why, I know, actually, how much I owe—that is, I know pretty nearly, and I scarcely ever have to hang up anything. Say, did you know "Stag" Morris 'or? Yes, he was captain two years and batted .390 his last season. Well, he roomed with Bob Price in 138 Lamson, and I used to see a whole lot of them both, because I roomed across the hall. Talk about complete communism, that room made Plato's "Republic" look as if it was running in the next heat, and one of Robespierre's pipe dreams couldn't have lasted three rounds. If Bob went to New York to see his haberdasher, Stag wore new cravats for a month, and I once heard Rice curse his room-mate out for having a dinner coat cut a little longer than he himself cared to wear. They say that they played cold hands all the night after commencement to decide which owned the various clothes, pictures, pieces of furniture, and so on. Anything they had had more than a few months was as much one's as the other's, for all they could remember. It was just the same with money, too. Stag's allowance would come in about the first of the month, and they'd cash it together. When they got back they'd hide what was left of it in Bob's dress trousers or in some tobacco jar. If Bob wanted a dollar he'd take it, and if Stag spent very much of his own money without Rice's getting a good share, he'd get called a thief and a tight-wad for it. But it all evened up on the fifteenth, when old man Rice mailed the monthly alimony to his son.

This common treasury game was all to the good — most of the time. Usually about the tenth or twelfth of the month, though, Stag would want some recreation, and go to the book case, or wherever the bank was situated just then, for the silver certificates. Nothing doing. When pressed for an answer, Bob would remember to have lost a little on the boat race, or 'fess up to a supper with the boys last evening. In their early days this was wont to cause — er, recriminations and unpopularity against the offender, but they soon learned to tide the difficulty over. Some of the times they had in raising the wind —! Their selling Napoleon's signature from the history room won't be forgotten for a while. But people can't really make much except temporarily on most of those deals. They did once, though — no, twice, for they once sold some sad old shoes for a quarter, merely on the strength of a five-cent shine. That was clear gain, but their record was made on the mandolin. You see Stag Morris had a fine mandolin, — he knew it was his, because his chum didn't know music when he met it on the street. Now one fine afternoon near the end of the month, there was need of money, but never a sight of it. They picked out the mandolin as the most marketable, on the solemn promise of getting it out next pay-day. The merchant took it out of its canvass case and said, "I vill gif you fife tollars on him." Five dollars is a whole lot of money from a pawnbroker. Well, they got it out all right when the money came, but in just fifteen short days they had it back again. That sort of habit grows on one, and it got to be a regular custom to hock it at the same shop just before allowance time, till it knew the way, and used to buck if it was carried in any other direction.

But Bob was the Napoleon of finance with the prophetic soul. He said they were going to forget it some day, and a good mandolin would be gone for next to nothing. This was just as they were setting out to turn it into cash for the seventh time. Then something like an idea seemed to hit him, and he made a dive for the cosy-corner, and tore down from the wall—a mandolin, at least it must have been a mandolin once, but half the keys were shy, and the hole in the rear made it look as if a tackles-back tandem had struck it. With chuckles and chortles they exchanged it for the "sho' nuf concert piano," and took it along. The game was, that the second time they had taken it there, the old boy didn't open the case, but only asked if it was the same instrument. After the second time he just took the case and they took the five, no questions asked. So down they went, and I'll be—hazed, if it didn't work like a charm. Five good dollars, and only a battered wall ornament and a cheap canvas case gone. You should have seen them. I thought they must have inherited a million at least.

Do you know, next September, I saw the old original mandolin sitting up in the window of another store, with a big card, "For Sale" on! Thank goodness I don't have to worry about that kind of—Oh, I say, I beg your pardon, but would you just as lief not speak for a minute or two? That's Collier's man, and I—, I really —, I really don't care to see him.

COLLEGE AND CAMPUS.

At a college meeting, held in the Latin Room on March 26, Allen, '04, Roberts, '05, Jones, '05, and Meredith, '05, were appointed a committee to draw up appropriate resolutions on the death of the father of William P. Stedman, '05. The committee accordingly presented the following resolutions:—

“ Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God in His infinite mercy to take from this life the father of our fellow-student, William Perry Stedman, be it

Resolved, That we, the students of Trinity College, extend to our fellow student, William Perry Stedman, our deep and heartfelt sympathy in his hour of affliction, and

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the family of the deceased.

The special musical service in afternoon chapel, Sunday, March 27, consisted of an organ recital by Clifton C. Brainerd, assistant organist. The program follows:

Prelude,	Lemaigre
Theme Provençal,	Du Bois
There is a Green Hill,	Gounod
Solo by D. W. Gateson, '06,
March Funébre,	Chopin
The Palms,	Faure
Solo by V. W. Mori, '07.
Prière,	Callaerts
Fantasia (on themes of Faust)	Eddy-Gounod
Postlude, Grand Choeur in G.	Chauvet

The college closed for the Easter vacation on Wednesday, March 30, and opened with evening chapel on Monday, April 11. The present term will end, officially, with commencement on June 22.

A college meeting was held on April 13 to consider an invitation from the First Regiment, C. N. G., to take part in their “Mardi Gras” procession on the sixteenth. It was decided to accept the invitation, and Allen, '04, Buffington, '04, and Wherry, '04, were appointed marshals of the Trinity division. But as, on the night appointed, a sudden touch of winter set in, the Trinity delegation was not large.

Maddox, '04, has been appointed scrub baseball captain. Games are played between the 'varsity and the scrubs about three times a week.

The music in afternoon chapel on Sunday, April 17, consisted of an organ recital by Mr. Arthur Priest, organist of Christ Church, Hartford, who gave as his programme :

Spüzzen für den Pedal,	Schuman
Andante,	Boëly
Offertoire,	Lefebvre-Wely
Adagio from First Sonata,	Mendelssohn
March,	Guilmant

John I. Welsh of Shamokin, Penn., an old Michigan player and well known as a coach, has been chosen by the graduate advisory committee of the athletic association as coach for next fall's football team. Mr. Welsh has had great success as an "instructor of football" and has the reputation of having never coached a losing team.

The '04 class tree was planted at the end of the row near the Bishop on the east side of the campus, at 1.30 P. M. on April 18. The usual ceremonies were held, Dr. Martin, the '04 class officer, delivering the oration. Some confusion was evidently created in the weather bureau by the change in date, as the day was "brite and fare."

The best german of the year, so far, proved to be the fourth, which was held in Alumni Hall on April 18, and was led by Phillips, '06, and Burgwin, '06. Every member of the club was present, while there were several invited guests and three alumni. The favors were especially attractive, consisting of fans, rosaries, candlesticks, sun bonnets, etc., for the girls; and canes, large steins, tobacco pouches and similar articles for the men. A prize round with a fan for the girl and a gun metal cigarette case for the man was won by Miss Frisbie and Allen, '04. A novel feature was the exciting "driving figure," used here for the first time. The members of the club present and their partners were as follows: McIlvaine, '04, with Miss Lincoln; Allen, '04, with Miss Brainerd; Remsen, '05, with Miss Cutler; Clement, '05, with Miss Mary Roberts; Ewing, '05, with Miss St. John; Gostenhofer, '05, with Miss Matson; Graham, '05, with Miss Sampson; Burgwin, '06, with Miss Hubbard; Phillips, '06, with Miss Elizabeth Hubbard; Hunt, '06, with Miss Welch; Marlbor, '06, with Miss Sanford. The guests were Grange, '06, with Miss Helen Parker; Barbour, '06, with Miss Erwin, and Curtiss, '06, with Miss Frisbie. The graduate members were Prince, '99, with Miss Skinner, Johnson, '03, with Miss Claghorn, Weibel, '03, stag. The members of the club who attended, stag, were Schwartz, '06, and Fackler, '06. The chaperones were Mrs. Curtiss and Mrs. Buell.

The last meeting of the Missionary Society was held in the Latin room on April 18. Alaska was successfully disposed of.

Maercklein, Burgwin and Haight, all '06, have been appointed second assistant track managers.

On April 19th the seventh annual contest for the Frank W. Whitlock prizes was held in Alumni Hall. The speakers and subjects were: Character and Political Philosophy of Thomas Jefferson; Frederick Bethune Bartlett, Connecticut. Tennyson's Conception of Immortality, as shown in "In Memoriam;" Charles Edward Gostenhofer, New York. Phases of the Abolition Movement; Charles Jarvis Harriman, Connecticut. Character and Political Philosophy of Thomas Jefferson; Carlos Eugene Jones, Iowa. Phases of the Abolition Movement; Bayard Quincy Morgan, Connecticut. The judges, Mr. L. P. Waldo Marvin, Mr. Arthur Perkins and Mr. Edgar F. Waterman, awarded the first prize to Morgan, '04, and the second to Gostenhofer, '05.

A dinner of the Hartford Alumni Association was held at the Hartford Golf Club on April 18. About forty graduates, representing twenty-one classes, were present. In the absence of Morris, '96, the president of the association, F. L. Wilcox, '80, of Berlin, presided. An informal toast was responded to by Acting-President Luther, who gave accounts of observations taken during his recent trip of the Trinity alumni associations in the west. Other speakers were Professor McCook, Professor Ferguson, for the Faculty, Col. W. C. Skinner for the trustees, Senator Wilcox, '80, J. B. Brainard and E. K. Hubbard, '92, P. S. Bryant, '72, W. S. Schutz, '94, E. F. Waterman, '98. Trinity songs were sung under the leadership of Pitblado, '91, and Ellis, '98. At the business meeting held after the banquet, the following officers were elected: President, W. L. Wilcox, '80; secretary, E. F. Waterman, '98; executive committee, E. S. Van Zile, '87, L. A. Ellis, '98, and H. J. Blakeslee, '98. It was decided to hold at least three meetings like this one during the coming year.

Dr. Rainsford, who was to have preached in the chapel on April 24, was obliged to postpone his visit on account of illness.

The musical service in the chapel on April 24 was an organ recital by Professor Herbert M. Hopkins, the chapel organist. The program was as follows:

Offertoire,	Batiste
Marche Funébre	Batiste
Venetianisches Goudellied,	Mendelssohn
O, Rest in the Lord (Elijah)	Mendelssohn
Domine Deus,	Rossini
Allegretto Maggiore and Coda (Op. 14, Sonata I.)	Beethoven
Postlude

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of the Trinity Tablet :

DEAR SIR :—

SEVERAL college organizations have been subjected to criticism, at various times recently, in your columns. One however, but for a single short article, has been passed over, though it seems that this particular one is more in need of it than any. Reference is made to the Musical Organization. There is probably no other organization in college conducted in so slipshod a way as this, though it is plain that none is more important as an advertisement for the college, if only it is properly managed. Last spring a management was elected for the ensuing year. The duty of such is generally to make engagements. That is what the baseball and football managements do. They do this also at the end of the old season, and have their schedules made out and submitted to the committee long before the new season commences. The schedules are published in the TABLET for the information of all concerned. How about the musical clubs? When college opened last fall, not a single engagement had been made, and there have been just two outside concerts this whole college year, even those engagements being merely picked up by chance. The reason given seems to be that the material this year was not good enough to warrant a carefully prepared schedule. How was the material known last summer, when the schedule ought to have been prepared? Do the baseball and football managements wait until they know what kind of teams they are going to have before they make out their schedules? The very idea is absurd and must be equally so in this case. If the men in the clubs had known that there was a definite schedule, they would have had something to work for, and consequently have felt obliged to take more interest. No one will work when there is no goal to work for—that is self-evident. The musical clubs, according to all accounts, did very creditably at the Junior Week concert, and if given a chance outside would undoubtedly do the same. It may not be too late now, a concert worth anything at all is always acceptable. If this article cannot have any effect on this season, it is earnestly hoped that it will direct the attention of all who have the welfare of the college sincerely at heart, to the necessity of some immediate reforms in this important branch of college activity.

 In thought his father sat.
 “It cost you this?” “Well, yes,—you know,
 I spent it on a bat.”

YALE 11, TRINITY 0.

WEDNESDAY, March 23d, Trinity opened her baseball season with Yale at New Haven. Although Trinity had had no team together for practice, she played an encouraging game. The men had not batted against curved balls and no infield was selected before the contest. Grange pitched in clever form but errors helped to swell Yale’s score.

PENNSYLVANIA 19, TRINITY 1.

At Philadelphia, Wednesday, March 30th, Trinity was an easy prey for the University of Pennsylvania. The University began a batting carnival, and for eight innings Grange endured more than his share of misery. All sorts of things happened, redounding in the main to Trinity’s discom-future. Trinity hit the ball freely, but the Quakers sharp fielding prevented contributions to the base hit column. Trinity's two hits were in the third inning and netted a run.

TRINITY 6, BROWN 4.

Wednesday, April 6th, Trinity defeated Brown at Providence by a fine exhibition of ball playing. Grange pitched for Trinity and he was a puzzle for the Brunonians. Brown scored four runs in the first three innings, but as the game progressed Trinity took the lead. Brown started out on luck. The first man struck out. Cunningham dropped Hoyer's fly, the latter going to second on an error. He stole third. Wells walked and stole second. A passed ball let Hoyer in for the first score and advanced Wells to third. Tift secured a base hit, scoring Wells. The next two were easy outs; Jones hitting to Cunningham to Hine and Ostly striking out.

Trinity scored in the second inning. With two out, Allen got to first on Hoyer's error, Hine hit safe, scoring Allen and himself, crossed the plate when Jones dropped Grange's fly. Grange was caught while stealing second. Brown added one run to her score in the second and third innings respectively.

In the second, Dravo made short work of Paine. Ebud was passed to first on balls and stole second. Kent flew out to Morgan but Dickinson hit safe and Ebud went home. Hoyer was retired, Grange to Hine.

In the third inning Wells and Tift both hit to Grange who threw them out at first. Jones singled, stole second and reached home on Townsend's error. The remaining six innings were without a score for Brown.

Trinity scored in the fifth on Ebud's error and twice in the seventh by bunched hits. Cunningham struck out. Clement was hit and crossed the plate on Allen's double. Hine hit for two bases, scoring Allen. A neatly executed double play by Dickinson and Jones prevented further scoring.

Trinity scored once in the ninth on Burwell's single, Clement's sacrifice, and Hine's third consecutive hit.

Both teams fielded well, but Trinity bunched hits, while Brown could not locate Grange at opportune moments.

TRINITY 4, NEW YORK UNIVERSITY 3.

Thursday, April 7th, Trinity defeated New York University at New York. Townsend pitched in superb form and earned his victory. He struck out eleven men and allowed only two hits. There was something of a scare in the eighth inning, when N. Y. U. got together and made a lively bid for the game, scoring two runs and tying the score. Trinity made fewer hits than she should have, by trying to kill Lillis' shoots.

In the second inning Trinity cornered two runs. Clement made a single and Allen helped him to the next base. Burwell rapped out another single and Clement went home. Burwell also scored on Townsend's hit. Morgan and Off failed to make good. N. Y. U.'s run came in the next inning. Rogge got first on Burwell's error, stole second, and made home on Lillis' single. Trinity increased her lead in the fourth. Cunningham got his base on balls, and completed the circuit on Townsend's hit.

N. Y. U. created some excitement by tying the score in the eighth inning, with the help of a single and several errors.

In the closing inning, Trinity scored the winning run. Cunningham found the ball for a double, and reached the plate on a single by Townsend.

COLUMBIA 11, TRINITY 2.

Friday, April 8th, Trinity was easily defeated on South Field, New York, by Columbia. The game was a combination of long hits, errors, and good pitching. Some raw efforts in the field by Trinity tell the unpleasant tale. Grange pitched well, but his mates ought to be arrested for non-support. Columbia outplayed Trinity at all points of the game and fielded in faultless style.

For the first two innings Trinity blanked the New Yorkers, and in the third scored a run on Allen's single and Townsend's double over the right field fence. This propitious beginning aroused Columbia, and was followed by some strenuous work on their part. Five runs crossed the rubber in their half of the running and the contest was safely put on the shelf. Nohowell started the fusillade by walking, and then followed a wild throw, an error, several bunts which were poorly handled, and to cap the climax, a swift two-bagger. When the smoke had cleared away, Columbia emerged with five runs.

Columbia cornered two runs in the next inning on Nahowell's one spot and Frambach's homer. Two doubles and a single yielded two more in the following inning. Columbia scored twice more by hard and sequential hitting.

Trinity's other run was Morgan's drive for four bases in the final inning. It was one of the longest hits seen on South Field for some time.

HARTFORD 7, TRINITY 6.

Thursday, April 21st, Trinity dropped an interesting ten-inning game to the Hartford leaguers. Grange pitched well enough to win but his support weakened at critical moments. Trinity showed a marked improvement in batting, and but for some raw efforts in the field would have won the game.

Trinity lost a golden opportunity to score in the first inning by a dearth of hits. With three on and none out, Hine struck out. Clement hit a slow one to third and Townsend was thrown out at the plate. Allen made the third. In her half Hartford bunched two singles, but steady work in the field and in the box prevented a score. Again in the second, Trinity had men on second and third, but there they remained.

In the fourth, Evans singled for Hartford. O'Hare hit one to the right garden for a sack, but Clement's fine throw retired Evans at third. Grange struck out the third man.

Trinity succeeded in making the circuit in the next session. Grange walked and Morrison gathered in Townsend's attempt. Morgan singled and Duffee made three futile attempts to find the ball. Hine's one spot and King's error urged Grange and Morgan across the plate. In the last half of the inning, however, Burwell dropped Dean's weak fly and the latter took second. Parkins swung gracefully three times and retired, but King got a life on Hine's bungle. Rotchford sent home the men on bases with a single, and scored on Nagel's drive to the pastures green for two sacks. Duffee dropped Morrison's fly but caught Nagel at the plate. Morrison stole second and scored on Evans' hit. Duffee ended the agony by pulling in O'Hare's sky scraper.

The sixth saw Trinity shut out by Hartford's fast play. With men on the first two corners and two down, Townsend ripped off a double, but Dean's throw caught Dravo at the rubber with two down. Hartford scored on a hit batsmen, an inexcusable error, and a single.

Trinity gathered in two points the following inning, on Duffee's and Hine's singles and Tyler's misplay.

Hartford cornered a run in the eighth in the same way that she made her previous score.

Trinity made a good rally in the ninth, and tied the score. Townsend drew four wide ones and scored on Morgan's hot two-bagger. Hine sent Morgan home with a single. The other men were easily fielded out.

Trinity blanked Hartford in the last half of this seance, but in the tenth the leaguers cut the balloon loose. Burwell made a mess of King's modest grounder and Rotchford got a free pass. Both men advanced a base on Burwell's error, and Morrison sent in the winning run with a single.

INDOOR TRACK MEET.

The indoor meet held in the gymnasium on Thursday evening, March 24th, resulted in an easy victory for the sophomore class. The meet brought forth several hotly contested events, but the sophomore team was so far superior in numbers and quality that the result was never in doubt. A new feature, the flying rings, was added to the interesting program and met with hearty approval. The event was won by Boyd, 1905, with Reed, 1906, a close second. The twenty-yard dash furnished several close heats.

Pond, 1906, won the final in record time, with Reed, 1906, close on his heels. In the twenty-five-yard hurdles, Phillips, 1906, beat a fast field and won the event in the creditable time of 4 1-5 seconds. Reed, 1906, again won the cup for the best work on the parallel bars, but Perry, 1906, came within half a point of the winner. Reed's work was graceful and easy, and won merited applause. Reed, 1906, also won the McCracken cup, given to the best all-round athlete. Phillips, 1906, was a good point winner and did well in his events. Bulkley and Boyd were a strong combination, and won all the points credited to the juniors. Pratt, the only freshman who took part, won 2 1-2 points. Owing to the length of the meet, the shot put was called off. The summary:

Twenty-yard dash — Won by Pond, 1906; second, Reed, 1906; third, Phillips, 1906; time, 2 4-5 seconds.

Pole vault — Won by Winston, 1906; second, Boyd, 1905; height, 8 ft. 6 in.

Rope climb — Won by Pond, 1906; second, Boyd, 1905; third, Bulkley, 1905; time, 9 seconds.

Standing high jump — Won by Bulkley, 1905; second, Boyd, 1905, and Winston, 1906; height, 4 ft. 4 in.

Twenty-five-yard hurdles — Won by Phillips, 1906; second, Bulkley, 1905; third, Curtiss, 1906; time, 4 1-5 seconds.

Parallel bars — Won by Reed, 1906; second, Perry, 1906; third, Bulkley, 1905.

Fence vault — Won by Phillips, 1906; second, Reed, 1906; third, Pratt, 1907, and Boyd, 1905; height, 6 ft. 1 1-2 in.

Horizontal bars — Won by Reed, 1906; second, Perry, 1906; third, Boyd, 1905.

Running high jump — Malor, 1906, and Phillips, 1906, tied for first place. Boyd and Bulkley, 1905, tied for third. Height, 5 ft. 2 in.

Flying rings — Won by Boyd, 1905; second, Reed, 1906; third, Bulkley, 1905.

High kick — Won by Phillips, 1906; second, Reed, 1906; third, Pratt, 1907; height, 8 ft. 1-2 in.

Potato race — Won by Phillips, 1906; second, Pond, 1906; third, Pratt, 1907; time, 30 3-5 seconds.

The officials — Referee, Prof. F. S. Luther; Judges, Prof. Henry Ferguson, Prof. H. M. Hopkins, and J. McA. Johnson, '03.

Judges of the parallel and horizontal bars — Mr. M. E. Coughlin and Mr. G. B. Velte.

Timers — Prof. F. S. Luther and Prof. F. C. Babbitt.

Committee on arrangements — Buffington, 1904, Remsen, 1905, Gostenhofer, 1905.

Scorer — Hinkel, 1906.

Announcer — Harriman, 1905.

Starter — Mr. G. B. Velte.

Points won by 1904, 0; 1905, 26 1-2; 1906, 78; 1907, 2 1-2.

Manager M. H. Buffington of the track team announces the following schedule for the spring:

April 30th — Annual Interclass Meet,

May 7th — Trinity vs. The College of the City of New York at Hartford.

May 14th — Trinity vs. Union at Albany.

May 21st — Twenty-first Annual Intercollegiate Meet, at Worcester.

THE STROLLER

AS THE STROLLER was strolling along the walk, the other day, at peace with himself and the world (the world's opinion not obtained) he sauntered carelessly up to the bulletin board to see what was happening in the affairs of men and beheld an invitation from a committee down-town, inviting the college body to take part in what the corresponding committee-man naïvely called a "Mada Gra." Now THE STROLLER is no adept in the art of spelling, having once been known to spell "commissioner" committioner, on the idea that commissioner had something to do with a committee, yet the form "Mada Gra" was certainly startling. But then, how was the poor secretary of the committee of arrangements, struggling distractedly in his office with a pile of correspondence, to know that in the mazes of a "furrin' tongue" the mystic word was spelled "Mardi Gras." THE STROLLER is not one to make capital out of another's mistakes, and to tell the truth, THE STROLLER secretly believes that the spelling "Mada Gra" was due, not to the committeeman, but to his stenographer, as the young lady in question used latter for later all through the letter, in a way that was delightful. But the whole scheme of celebrating Shrove Tuesday on a Friday in the last of April is certainly a grand idea. It seems to THE STROLLER that here is a chance for the gown to learn something from the town. How charming it would be to read on the bulletin board, some bright spring morning, a notice something like this: "By order of the Faculty of Trinity College, New Year's Day will be celebrated to-morrow, the tenth of June, Anno Domini, one thousand nine hundred and four." Or "It was decided at a college meeting, to-day, to have the Fourth of July, this year, on the sixteenth of October." Or on the same plan THE STROLLER thinks that he would introduce a motion providing that "'All Saints Day' will hereafter be held every week day until further notice." THE STROLLER does not doubt that he could pass this motion, for who ever heard of a motion being defeated in a college meeting?

And speaking of that brings us to the manner in which things are organized in college meeting. Some enterprising Junior is given a lacrosse stick for a Christmas present by some well-meaning relative, who was under the impression that he was giving the aforesaid collegian a tennis racket. Immediately the junior starts to play lacrosse and decides that it is the greatest game ever invented; and that Trinity must have a lacrosse team. He interests a few of his fellows with the old, old argument of: "The University of Delaware has a lacrosse team, and so has the College of Florida, and so we are 'way behind the times if we don't have one," (not realizing that the last mentioned institutions have three thousand men to Trinity's one hundred and thirty-five [fifty] [seventy-five] [ninety]. As a result, a college meeting is called, the captain of the football team, the secretary of the faculty and the head waiter in commons, are all called on for their opinions, and as none of them have ever seen a lacrosse ball and in fact don't quite know whether it is played with a ball or with checkers, they all make wildly enthusiastic speeches to the effect that no home is complete without a lacrosse team; at which the meeting cheers deliriously and stamps wildly. Immediately some one springs up and says, "Mr. Chairman, I move that we form a lacrosse team at once," at which prolonged cheers shake the windows, with cries of "Make it two teams and a scrub." Next the man who owns the lacrosse stick is elected captain and the best looking man in the senior class is elected manager. The captain consults for a minute or two, in whispers, with the manager, and then announces that first practice will be held on the campus at four o'clock. At that the manager takes off his coat, goes to the blackboard, and calls for subscriptions to buy flannel shirts for the future team, with the result that every one in the meeting calculates how much longer he can stave off the attacks of the suit-pressing company, and loudly perjures himself to give five dollars. With a closing speech, in which some stray member of the faculty who is invited "to give us a few words," mentions "lacrosse" five times, at each of which such stamping ensues that three benches and a foot-rest are broken to bits, the meeting closes. It is discovered however before all leave the room that but nineteen and a half freshmen are present.

* * * * *

Four o'clock comes around and THE STROLLER looks out of his window. In a far corner of the campus a lone figure is seen, hitting a lacrosse ball into the air in an absent-minded manner. The next week appears the TABLET, with an editorial on "What is the matter with Trinity teams?"
