TRINITY COLLEGE, HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT

NOVEMBER, 1974

THE EIGENBRODT CUP WAS GIVEN FOR THE 36TH TIME during the annual Reunion-Homecoming Weekend. This year's recipient was George C. Capen '10, (left) a retired insurance executive from West Hartford. Looking on is President Lockwood. A complete account appears on page 3.

President's Report Looks Ahead

President Lockwood has used his 1973-74 Annual Report to explore apprehensions about the future and to answer the question "Why have a college like Trinity?"

Published as a background study to assist in college planning, the paper also provides a look at some of the institution's general academic goals for the years ahead. The report also gives an insight into the current debate on the academic goals of the independent liberal arts college.

In releasing it, Dr. Lockwood said "Undergraduate education must be significant or it will become little more than a happy diversion for a certain age group, a stopping-out place for young adults."

Trinity, he predicts, will be a pacesetter in higher education while retaining considerable flexibility. "We cannot avoid playing multiple roles, but we can and must decide which roles deserve the greatest amounts of our academic energies and resources," he said.

Dr. Lockwood feels that there exists an uncertainty as to why smaller independent colleges should exist. He said that the turning of the tide in favor of large, publicly supported institutions has so altered the dimensions of academia that some assumptions have become outmoded.

He stressed that Washington's phrase 'post-secondary education' should not be used to lump together all types of education under this one classification, "for it implies a functional equivalency between a school of hairdressing and Harvard which can only threaten the liberal arts with another dose of vocationalism..."

The educator asks "Among the purposes which Trinity theoretically might fulfill, which makes the best sense?"

The sanctuary for scholarship may lead to intellectual discoveries, he said, but he added that it runs the risk of failing to search out values of use to the student in understanding himself and his cultural setting.

Dr. Lockwood also touched on the area of preprofessional preparation, which has troubled liberal arts colleges. He said that while adequate background in a field is essential for a successful career, there is still debate over the degree of undergraduate specialization.

Answering the question of whether or not the future is brightest for colleges which concentrate on professionally-oriented programs, he said that he does not believe that a college can successfully anticipate specific curricula needs in relation to changing requirements in the job market. The administrator added that there is not any evidence supporting the claim that students choose a professionally-oriented college.

He said that there is a final argument from some faculty members who believe that professional knowledge is what remains from an undergraduate education.

"Here," he said, "the evidence refutes that claim: what endures are the attitudes, perceptions, and general intellectual skills a student acquires in college."

Regarding new curricula, Dr. Lockwood pointed out that Trinity and other colleges have experienced a shift toward greater freedom over the last five years. He said that new programs at the college are working well. He added that the curricula is frequently re-evaluated in order to keep pace with changing times.

Trinity, he revealed, has an enviable five year record of running in the black, and during the year had the largest number of completed admissions applications in its history.

During the years to come, Dr. Lockwood concluded, Trinity will continue to evaluate the question of what goals are most appropriate for the liberal arts college.

Mellon Foundation Grant Of $200,000 For Research

The College has received a grant of $200,000 from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation of New York for a special program to stimulate professional development and outreach in Trinity's faculty.

The grant, to be used over the next three to five years, will provide for faculty research fellowships and for a series of symposia planned each year by faculty from several disciplines.

Research fellowships will be awarded annually, providing faculty with time and opportunity to undertake research or some other appropriate scholarly activity on campus. The results of this research will be the subjects of public

20th Parents Weekend Draws Many Visitors

A record number of parents of students were on campus November 1-3 for the 20th annual Parents Weekend.

Included in the weekend schedule were the Parents Association Dinner, football, soccer, cross country, lectures, discussions, plays, exhibits and carillon concerts.

Parents had an opportunity on Friday to visit classes.

A highlight of the weekend was an address by President Lockwood at the Parents Association Dinner attended by more than 800 in the Hartford Hilton. His subject was "On Planning Ahead," and the talk dealt with Trinity's response to current conditions and also individual student response.

"... As we think about Trinity's future, we continually remind ourselves that our greatest contribution — and simultaneously our most practical — is the preparation of young people to make judgments, to decide what is important and what is significant, what is right and what is wrong," Dr. Lockwood said.

"... Undergraduate education at Trinity, as we plan ahead, must somehow find a way to remind us of the basic issues facing humanity. Somehow our planning of courses and hours and housing and budgets must never overlook the fact that we are seeking to prepare people to act in behalf of humanity," he concluded, referring to the fact that we sit content with food surpluses in some areas of the world while others are dying from starvation in other countries.

A faculty - student panel session on the topic "The Value of a Liberal Arts Education in Time of Crisis" was held Saturday morning.

Weekend athletic events included a varsity football game with Coast Guard, a cross country race with Worcester Polytechnic Institute and freshman soccer with Wesleyan.

In the arts, there was a Theatre Arts Production, "She Stoops To Conquer", in the Goodwin Theatre on Friday and Saturday nights, a carillon concert following the football game, and an exhibit of Charles Noel Flagg in the Austin Arts Center.

First Presidential Fellows Meet

Twenty-two seniors have been honored by being named the first Presidential Fellows at the College.

The Presidential Fellowships were established this Fall by President Lockwood to recognize the academic achievements of outstanding undergraduates. Each of the Presidential Fellows named was chosen for the distinction because he or she possessed wide ranging intellectual concerns and an interest in academic disciplines other than his or her special area of interest.

"The purpose is to bring notice to outstanding seniors who have done well in a given discipline and also to bring them together informally with their contemporaries, the faculty and myself," Dr. Lockwood said.

The first dinner for the fellows, followed by a colloquium on the values of the liberal arts, was held October 17. Two dinner meetings are planned per semester.

Presidential Fellows named are: A. Victoria Baker, a modern language major from Bethlehem, Pa.; Kevin C. Baker, an economics major from Whitehouse, Ohio; Marlene K. Connor, an English major working with the Department of Education from New York, N. Y.; Martin

H. Dodd, a biology major from Norfolk, Conn.; Gregory B. Duffy, a philosophy major from Linden, N.J.; Donna Epstein, a sociology major from Chicago, Ill.; James R. Gomes, a political science major from Lowell, Mass.; Peter A. Grape, a chemistry major from Fairfield, Conn.; Margaret S. Holmes, a music major from New York, N.Y.; Phoebe C. Kapteyn, a classics major from Great Barrington, Mass.; and Sharon J. Laskowski, a mathematics major from Bristol, Conn.

Also named are: Andrea M. McCrady, a history major from Pittsburgh, Pa.; Harrison Miles, Jr., an engineering major from Portland, Ore.; William J. Ogonowski, an intercultural studies major from Terryville, Conn.; Robert A. Orsi, a religion major from Bronx, N.Y.; Elizabeth L. Provost, a psychology major from Farmington, Conn.; Susan L. Reeder, a studio arts major from Carlisle, Mass.; Douglas H. Rome, a theatre arts major from Worcester, Mass.; Cynthia A. Rowley, an urban and environmental studies major from Perrysburg, Ohio; Joan M. Starkey, an art history major from Brookline, Mass.; Michael J. Stavola, a physics major from Wethersfield, Conn.; and John B. Traino, an English major from Wilmington, Del.

A FULL TUITION SCHOLARSHIP CHECK from Loctite Corporation in Newington was recently presented to Peter A. Grape (center), a senior majoring in chemistry. The presentation was made by Loctite's president, Dr. Robert H. Kriebel (right) and Dr. Henry A. DePhillips, Jr., chemistry department chairman. The scholarship is given annually in memory of Dr. Kriebel's father, the late Dr. Vernon K. Kriebel, who was a longtime College faculty member and chemistry department chairman. After his retirement from the College, Dr. Kriebel founded the firm now known as Loctite Corporation.

presentations. The symposia are expected to deal with basic areas of academic interest.

President Lockwood said the grant "will provide an excellent opportunity for members of our faculty to further their professional development through on-campus research, and will greatly enable us, as a faculty, to identify and pursue common intellectual concerns. We expect that the symposia, especially, will be of interest to the public at large as well as the Trinity community. The symposia will be important occasions when professors come together in public to consider issues which go to the core of a liberal arts education."

Dr. Lockwood said the Mellon Foundation grant "is especially appropriate at a time when, at many institutions, teaching faculty are becoming isolated by specialization and frustrated about their job potential. This grant, intended to enhance teaching and encourage faculty renewal when this has become difficult, greatly helps Trinity in sustaining the quality of its faculty. It fits into Trinity's own broad objective of improving the academic opportunities available to the faculty."

The College has 130 faculty teaching in 19 academic departments and four program areas. With an undergraduate enrollment of 1,650 men and women, there is a student-faculty ratio of about 13 to one.

The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation supports education, health and medicine, cultural projects and institutions, conservation, civic programs and community services. Its present name was adopted in 1969 at the time of a merger of the former Avalon and Old Dominion Foundations.

CAMPUS NOTES

"Losing People," the seventh and latest novel of THOMAS BAIRD, associate professor of art history, has been published by Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich. Five of Mr. Baird's seven novels have been published by Faber & Faber, London. Baird published his first novel in 1962.

At the September 28 meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Civil Liberties Union, Dr. SAMUEL HENDEL, professor of political science, was elected a vice-chairperson. The organization of more than 275,000 members is dedicated to the support and extension of civil liberties and civil rights. At the last biennial conference of the Union, Dr. Hendel presented a paper of "Separation of Powers Revisited in Light of Watergate", scheduled for publication in the Western Political Quarterly.

Three faculty members of the Studio Arts Department: GEORGE E. CHAPLIN, painter and associate professor and director, studio arts; JOHN D. FERGUSON, sculptor and visiting artist; and ROBERT A. CALE, printmaker and artist in residence, were represented in an exhibition at Gallery 5 East in East Hartford.

President LOCKWOOD is one of five college executives named as a member to the advisory council to the State Commission for Higher Education. The advisory council gives advice to the Commission for Higher Education and to the Board for State Academic Awards.

About 70 persons recently attended a dinner in honor of Dr. RICHARD K. MORRIS, former chairman of the department of education, and at present consultant in education. Dr. Morris was presented with a chronograph by P. ANTHONY GIORGIO '63, outgoing president of the Trinity Education Graduate Association. It was announced at the dinner that a Richard K. Morris Book Award will be established and awarded to a graduating senior. The association also elected RICHARD P. MORRIS '68 (no relation to Dr. Morris) as its new president.

Reunion-Homecoming Proves Busy Weekend

THE ALUMNI ACHIEVEMENT AWARD was given to George F. Will '62, (left) Washington editor of The National Review and syndicated columnist and commentator. Looking on is David R. Smith '52, incoming president of the National Alumni Association.

Good weather and a win over the Lord Jeffs of Amherst contributed to the success of this year's Reunion-Homecoming Weekend, held November 8-10.

Alumni started arriving late Friday afternoon. Friday night, Dr. Ranbir Vohra, chairman of the Department of Political Science, spoke in McCook Auditorium on the topic "Prospects in East Asia." Other Friday night events included an organ recital in the Chapel by Mark Kennedy '68, a student production of "She Stoops to Conquer" in the Austin Arts Center and a film clip presentation by the Trinity Club of Hartford titled "Parade of Stars," which featured football film clips from the 1949 and 1964 seasons.

Saturday proved quite busy for returning alumni. After registration and coffee in the Austin Arts Center, the Trinity Education Graduate Alumni presented Dr. Louis Rabineau, Chancellor-Designate for the Connecticut Commission for Higher Education. Dr. Rabineau spoke on "The Relationship of Secondary Education to Higher Education". President Lockwood then showed slides of his travels through the Sahara in the Austin Arts Center. There was also a soccer game against Amherst.

The buffet luncheon in the field house provided many alumni an opportunity to see old friends.

After lunch, alumni and guests watched the Bantams trounce the Amherst eleven. A post-game reception in the Austin Arts Center provided another opportunity for alumni to get together.

Following a reception in the Red Room of Mather Campus Center, the annual Reunion-Homecoming Dinner was held in Mather Hall Dining Room. After dinner, election of new officers of the National Alumni Association was held, and awards were presented.

Many of the alumni then went to the Washington Room, where there was dancing until the wee hours.

Award For Service

A highlight of the Reunion-Homecoming Weekend was the presentation of awards to seven alumni, which were made at the Saturday night dinner.

George C. Capen '10, a retired insurance executive from West Hartford, became the 36th recipient of the highest alumni award, the coveted Eigenbrodt Cup. George F. Will '62, Washington editor of The National Review and nationally syndicated columnist and commentator, received the Alumni Achievement Award.

A plaque was presented to John T. Wilcox '39, a vice president of Connecticut Bank & Trust Company, for outstanding service as president of the National Alumni Association from 1972-74.

Four Alumni Medals for Excellence were awarded. Recipients were: John G. Craig, Jr., '54 executive editor of the Wilmington, Delaware, Morning News and Evening Journal; Joseph H. Ehlers '14, consulting engineer and attorney from Washington, D.C. and Russellville, Kentucky; Dr. Charles E. Jacobson, Jr. '31, a physician from Manchester, Conn. and Robert M. Kelly '37, Hartford's superintendent of schools.

Five other awards were given at the dinner.

The Jerome Kohn Award, given to the reunion class with the largest percentage of alumni returning to campus, went to the Class of 1929.

The Board of Fellows Bowl, awarded to the reunion class with the best spirit, went to the Class of 1954.

The 1934 Alumni Fund Trophy, presented to the class which received the highest point score in the Alumni Fund, went to the Class of 1964, which also received the 1916 Alumni Fund Trophy, which is awarded to the class, out ten years or less, which achieves the best record in the Alumni Fund.

It was also announced that the George C. Capen Trophy, given to the best alumni association for the year, went to Los Angeles.

18 New Officers Selected By National Alumni Assn.

A number of new officers were elected by the National Alumni Association at the Reunion-Homecoming Dinner.

Officers elected for a one-year term are: David R. Smith '52, president and Bernard F. Wilbur '50, senior vice president.

New vice presidents are: Donald J. Viering '42, alumni fund; George P. Lynch, Jr. '61, campus activities; Joseph A. Hourihan '66, admissions; John C. Chapin, Jr. '70, area associations and Megan J. O'Neill '73, public relations. Thomas M. Boyd '62 was elected secretary and John T. Fink '44 is the new treasurer.

Members of the executive committee for a two-year term are: S. Anders Yocom '63, Francis A. Pugliese '51, Quentin B. Keith '72 and John T. Wilcox '39, ex officio. Junior Fellows for a three-year term are Siegbert Kaufmann '46 and Peter W. Nash '55.

Donald J. Viering '42 was elected to a three year term on the athletic advisory council. John C. Gunning '49 and Alfred M. C. MacColl '54 were elected to three year terms on the nominating committee.

Alumni Medals For Excellence

HISTORY WAS MADE THIS FALL when Walter L. Champion (right) enrolled as a freshman majoring in English and writing. That fact wasn't unusual, but what proved interesting was the fact that his mother, Mrs. Barbara J. White (left) is a junior majoring in sociology. It is believed that their enrollment together marks the first time that a mother and son have been undergraduates together at Trinity. The two were recently the subject of feature articles by Hartford and New Haven newspapers.

New Faculty

Ten new members have joined the Trinity faculty as of September, in addition to five new visiting faculty members.

The following have been appointed assistant professors:

Dr. ANDREW BAUM, assistant professor of psychology, is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh. He comes to Trinity from the State University of New York at Stony Brook, where he received his Ph.D. in 1973, and served as a research assistant and instructor in the psychology department. Dr. Baum has also been a research associate for the Research Group for Human Development and Educational Policy at Stony Brook, and a research assistant at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. MICHAEL W. MARLIES, visiting assistant professor of philosophy, is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University, and received M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Brandeis University in 1970 and 1973 respectively. He has taught at the University of Calgary, Simmons College, Northeastern University, and, during 1973, was a special lecturer in philosophy at the University of Iceland.

Dr. ISAAC SASSON, visiting assistant professor of chemistry, specializes in organic chemistry and holds degrees from The City College of New York, Long Island University, and a Ph.D. from the University of Connecticut. He is now a post-doctoral research fellow at the University of Connecticut and has been a teaching assistant at both Long Island University and UConn.

Dr. TERI LEE VIERIMA, visiting assistant professor of physics, is a graduate of St. Olaf College, and holds a Master of Philosophy degree and a Ph. D. from Yale. She has done research work and was a laboratory assistant at St. Olaf and at Yale. In addition to her research work, she has also published articles in the Bulletin of the American Physical Society and The Physical Review.

Dr. WILLIAM A. TARENKO, part-time visiting associate professor of modern languages is a graduate of Augustana College. He received an M.A. from Middlebury, an M.Ed. from the National College of Education and a Ph.D. from East Coast University.

There are six new instructors:

Mr. THOMAS A. CHAMP, instructor in history and intercultural studies, is a 1970 graduate of Rutgers University and received an M.A. from the University of Rochester in 1972. Before coming to Trinity he was instructor in Afro-American history at the University of Rochester and taught at the State University of New York at Geneseo.

Mr. STEVEN L. CHRISTOPHERSON, instructor in education, is a 1970 graduate of Stanford. He is expecting a Ph.D. in Educational Psychology from Cornell University, where he was an ESEA Title IV Research Trainee from 1970-73. At Cornell he was also a research assistant on a Hatch Grant, and served as a lesson writer for a remedial reading program for the junior college level being developed at the University. He has worked at Bucknell University as a test item writer for an introductory educational psychology course.

Mr. LARRY A. FADER, instructor in religion, received a B.S. from Columbia University in 1968, and an M.A. from Temple University in 1971. He has also attended Jewish Theological Seminary, and expects to receive his Ph.D. from Temple this year. Before coming to Trinity, he was a teaching assistant and instructor at Temple and a lecturer at LaSalle College.

Mrs. MARY MCNALLY, instructor in economics, received a B.A. from George Washington University in 1965, an M.A. from the University of Connecticut in 1968, and expects a Ph.D. from UConn this year. A specialist in mathematical economics and advanced economic theory, she has been Economist for the U.S. Department of Commerce and the Windham Regional Planning Agency, and has been part-time lecturer at the University of Connecticut and Eastern Connecticut State College.

Mr. WILLIAM PUKA, instructor in philosophy, will receive a Ph.D. degree from Harvard this year. He holds a B.A. from Hofstra University and M.A.'s from Rutgers and Brown Universities. He has also been a Harvard Graduate Prize Fellow and has been a teaching fellow at Harvard. A former research assistant at Rutgers Interdisciplinary Research Center, he was an instructor at the University of Massachusetts before coming to Trinity.

Mr. ROGER D. SHOEMAKER, instructor in theatre arts, comes to Trinity from Catholic University, where he received a Master of Fine Arts degree following his thesis production of Shakespeare's "The Tempest." A 1968 graduate of Yale University, he has been director of drama workshops at the Moorestown Friends School, the William Penn Charter School, and the Takoma Park-Silver Springs Community Foundation. He has directed plays at Antioch College, Immaculate Conception Academy in Washington, and the Theatre of the Living Arts in Philadelphia, worked as material coordinator for Pennsylvania Public Television, and has had varied acting experience.

Ms. EUNICE J. BELGUM, assistant professor of philosophy, is a graduate of St. Olaf College, and received an M.A. from Harvard in 1969. She expects a Ph.D. from Harvard this year. The recipient of a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship and a Harvard Graduate Prize Fellowship, she has been a social work assistant at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Hospital, and a teaching fellow at Harvard University.

Dr. MICHAEL P. SACKS, assistant professor of sociology, is a 1969 graduate of Queens College, and received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Michigan in 1971 and 1974 respectively. Before coming to Trinity he was an instructor at Towson State College in Baltimore, Md., and lecturer at University College, Northeastern University. He has also been a visiting scholar at the Harvard Russian Research Center, and interviewer for the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan.

The newly appointed visiting faculty members are:

Mr. JORDON L. PECILE, visiting associate professor of English, is a 1954 graduate of Cornell. He studied at the University of Florence under a Fulbright grant, and went on to do graduate work at Princeton, where he received the NDEA award in comparative literature. He later transferred to the Writers' Workshop at the University of Iowa, was awarded the Iowa Writing and Teaching

AN HONOR BESTOWED ON ONLY ONE OTHER AMERICAN has been given to the Rt. Rev. Robert B. Gooden '02, retired Episcopal Suffragan Bishop of Los Angeles. Three days before he reached his 100th birthday, he was invested as a Grand Prelate in the Military and Hospitaller Order of St. Lazarus of Jerusalem, an ancient order dating back to the third century. Roman Catholic Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen is the only other American to receive this distinction. The investiture took place in the clergyman's home parish, St. Mark's, Glendale, California, where the preacher for the birthday observance was one of his sons, the Rt. Rev. Reginald Heber Gooden, Hon.D.D., Assistant Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Louisiana.

Fellowship, and earned his M.A. in 1967. From 1969-70 he was a Fulbright Teaching Fellow in France. Mr. Pecile has published short stories in several magazines, including Atlantic Monthly and Epoch. His story "The Barrel Lifter" was awarded first prize for "Atlantic Firsts" for 1963 and was later televised in Canada. He has taught at Mount Holyoke, the University of Aix-en-Provence and the University of Iowa.

Dr. THOMAS S. FREUND, visiting assistant professor of biology, received his B.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Lehigh University. He has been research associate of oral biology at the University of Connecticut Health Center.

Mr. RICHARD J. HAZELTON, head freshman football coach at Amherst for the 1973-74 season, will be assistant professor of physical education as well as assistant football coach. A 1966 graduate of Marietta College, he has done graduate work at the University of Massachusetts toward a Master of Arts in Physical Education Administration. Before going to Amherst, he taught at Lancaster High School, Lancaster, Ohio, where he also served as assistant varsity football coach, defensive coordinator, and head trainer for all sports.

James F. Wilman

Appointment

James F. Wilman has been appointed assistant director of public information at the College.

A former regular Army captain, his news experience includes administration of the Korea Bureau of Pacific Stars & Stripes and writing and editing for The Associated Press. A former associate university editor at Northeastern University, his background also includes corporate and advertising agency experience.

A native of Princeton, Massachusetts, he is a graduate of Tabor Academy and Boston University.

He is a member of Rufus Putnam Lodge, A.F. & A.M., Worcester County Commandery, Massachusetts Consistory and Aleppo Temple Shrine. He is also a member of the Massa-Schussers Ski Club.

Hartford Alumni Elect New Slate

The Trinity Club of Hartford elected eight new officers at its 15th annual meeting held October 24 on campus.

H. Dyke N. Spear, Jr. succeeds Norman C. Kayser as president. Other new club officers elected are: Wendell S. Stephenson, vice president; George P. Lynch, secretary; Benjamin Silverberg, treasurer and Roger E. Martin, assistant treasurer. Ms. Rosamund Mancoll and William Borchert are new members of the club's executive committee.

The REV. FRANK ZUBEK reminisces that more than fifty years ago he was Dean at the Cathedral of our Merciful Saviour at Faribault, Minnesota when ARCHER BEDELL, a classmate and roommate, was city engineer. They both live in St. Paul, Minnesota and see each other occasionally. He still has vivid memories of those early days -- 1904-1908 -- when Prexy Luther would greet the men on the walk, calling them by their names; the enrollment was about 200; and Shorty Martin, Pirate John McCook, Soapie Babbit, Boohoo Johnson were some of their favorite professors, along with Bobby Riggs, and they loved them,

As JIM CAHILL said when last I saw him that the 1927 Class Notes in THE REPORTER were beginning to read like an obit column. Our latest loss has been D. EVANS BROWN whose passing I learned of early last summer. I am sure we all remember his hearty laughter and sunny disposition which I understand he retained until the very end despite years of intense suffering. We share the loss of a valued classmate with his family.

As usual, the news and views of fellow classmates during the summer has been zip. It is difficult to believe that no one cares or that they are just vegetating. At least, since his retirement, ANDY FORRESTER has kept busy around his house and walking his big boxer 'steen times a day. He has a lot of fun planning trips that somehow or other he never seems to take. I understand that FRANK CONRAN is working on his Masters in gin rummy but this rumor has not been confirmed. Perhaps we will see some of you few remaining at the home football games this fall.

Forty members of the class returned for the 40th reunion September 28th -- 32 of them with wives. They were: ANANIKIAN; ARNOLD; BASHOUR; BAYLEY; BENJAMIN; BREMER; BREWER; CHILDS; CIVITTOLO; COIT; CRAIG; DAUT; DAY; ELY; EWING; GODDARD; GREEN; GRENFELL; HARING; HENEBRY; JACKSON; KELLY; KINGSTON; MASON; MAYO; ANDY ONDERDONK; RANKIN; ROSENFELD; ROSTEK; SCHMOLZE; SCHNEIDER; SCHULTZE; SHAW; SHENKER; SMITH; SNOWDON; TUCKER; UHLIG; WARD and ZLOCHIVER. We were keenly disappointed that the BILL BASCHS, the BERT HOLLANDS, the KARL HOLSTS, the ADE ONDERDONKS, and the WARREN REUBERS were unable to attend at the last moment.

We are grateful to President Lockwood who discussed some of the College's problems and answered questions for 23 of us. Before the Trinity-Williams football game there was an informal picnic near the President's home. Rain held off for the game which was close and exciting.

After a most pleasant reception at Ruth and CHARLIE TUCKER's, the class dinner was held at Phyllis and JOHN MASON's in Avon. Despite a cloudburst the tent stood firm and resounded to many droll stories. We were honored to have Mrs. Morse S. Allen, the Joe Clarkes, the Ray Oostings and the Clarence Watters as our guests.

The reunion concluded with a delicious brunch at the home of Helen and CHUCK KINGSTON in West Hartford.

Our Illinois scholar and freshman classmate, DAVE MURRAY, recently wrote me about his past and present activities. After graduating from the University of Illinois in 1957, he attended the University of Illinois College of Law, graduating in 1960. Following six months in the Air Force Reserve, Dave settled down to the practice of law in Sterling, Illinois. He is a partner in the firm of Ward, Ward, Castendyck, Murray & Pace, and specializes in general civil law.

In addition to being active on the Illinois Board of Regents, Dave just completed a three year term on the Board of Governors of the Illinois State Bar Association. Locally, he is serving as district campaign manager for his friend, congressman Tom Railsback, and is president and chairman of the board of the Sterling Chamber of Commerce and Industry. Dave, his wife Helen, and their three children enjoy tennis, skiing, sailing and flying. He indicated that he expects to come east soon, and hopes to see old friends.

TRINITY SPORTS

Football

Trinity stands at 6-1, rated the No. 1 small college football team in New England by the UPI Coaches Poll. The Bantams have won six in a row over Bates 34-8, RPI 27-7, Colby 17-0, Middlebury 17-14, Coast Guard 20-16, and Amherst 24-19 after dropping their opener to Williams 17-14.

AT PRESS TIME

Trinity beat Wesleyan, 21-15, ending the football season with seven wins and one loss. Details will appear in the December issue.

Trinity handled Bates 34-8, scoring two first quarter touchdowns nine seconds apart in possibly the fastest scoring effort ever on Jesse Field. Rich Uluski, sophomore defensive end, scored on an interception with Tom Cangelosi immediately behind with a fumble recovery on the kickoff. Mike Maus, Trinity's junior kicking specialist, hit two field goals, a 27 yarder and a record 48 yarder. Halfbacks Jim Balesano and Othar Burks scored on 5 and 23 yard runs.

On the road the Trinity defense tallied two more interception touchdowns by linebacker Bill Curren, 26 yards, and safety John Wiggin, 36 yards against RPI with Balesano rushing for two more on 2 and 5 yard carries.

The travelling Bants shut out the White Mules of Colby 17-0, scoring on another Balesano touchdown for 2 yards and a Maus 36 yard field goal, plus a 61 yard punt return by Rich Tucci. After a scoreless first half Trinity broke open to score 14 points in the third quarter capping them with a fourth quarter field goal.

Meeting Middlebury for the first time since 1953, Trinity defeated the then number one ranked Panthers. Sophomore fullback Pat Heffernan had 227 yards and two touchdowns and was named the ECAC Rookie of the Week. Balesano added another 125 yards as the Bants tallied 431 yards against one of the best defenses in New England. Both of Heffernan's scores came in the first quarter with Middlebury doing the same in the second. The 14-14 deadlock at the half was ended by Maus' 42 yard field goal in the third quarter.

Coming home to a Parents Weekend crowd and the Coast Guard Cadets Trinity again called on Maus for two field goals of 37 and 42 yards. Defensive end Rich Uluski scored his second touchdown this time on an end zone fumble recovery. Rose hit tight end Bill Levy on a 17 yard pass for the other score. Ahead 20-14 in the fourth quarter, to preserve their win, the Bantams gave up an intentional safety with five seconds left. Maus was named ECAC Kicker of the Week for his field goals and punting, including a 72 yard punt downed on the Coast Guard one yard line.

On Reunion-Homecoming Weekend Trinity, then 5-1, faced Amherst also 5-1. Both had five game winning streaks with the Lord Jeffs rated number one and the
