TRINITY DOWNS COLGATE, 23-0.

Surprises the Collegiate World of Football.

Trinity made it three straight this season, by defeating Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y., Saturday, by the overwhelming score of 23-0.

The students and followers of the Trinity team generally, had not expected that Colgate would be defeated, rather thinking the game would result in a draw, and that such a large total should be run up was entirely unexpected. Although outweighed man for man by the New York collegians, Trinity was superior in every department of the game, and by the diversity and suddenness of its attack had Colgate entirely at its mercy.

Trinity displayed the most promising form of any game thus far. The playing was brilliant, but of such a character that it was machine-like in its precision.

Captain Ramsdell played the most spectacular game of the season. Many times two Colgate tacklers would hang to his legs and neck, only to be ignominiously thrown off or dragged along for five or ten yards. His runs of ten to thirty yards were very important factors in Trinity's scoring.

Hudson, Collett, Lawlor, Ahern and Bleecker all played in a way to merit applause. Ahern's touchdown from a blocked punt was a feature of the game.

Trinity scored once in every quarter, Ramsdell making two touchdowns and Carroll and Ahern one each.

Gildersleeve kicked off at 3 o'clock to Colgate's twenty-yard line. At this point for the only time in the game, Colgate looked dangerous. By a series of rushes the ball was carried to the center of the field, and Colgate's supporters were enthusiastic. Trinity held for downs however.

Ramsdell made the first of his runs and with a punt by Carroll put the ball within striking distance of the goal and Trinity scored an easy touchdown. Gildersleeve failed to kick the goal. Again in the second quarter Trinity scored, Gildersleeve kicking the goal after Ramsdell's touchdown, bringing the total up to eleven points.

At the commencement of the second half Colgate returned to the conflict with redoubled energy, but Trinity was equal to the occasion and held for downs with such regularity that Colgate resorted to a punting game. Ramsdell again made a touchdown for Trinity and Gildersleeve kicked the goal. Score at end of third quarter, Trinity 17, Colgate 0.

In the last period of play Trinity kicked off to Colgate's ten-yard line. The ball exchanged hands several times when Stipp, Colgate's fullback, fumbled. Ahern catching up the ball sprinted for Trinity's fourth score. The goal was successfully kicked and the score remained the same until the end of the game. Trinity 23, Colgate 0.

For Colgate, Stipp and Loeber starred. Hudson, whose ankle is not yet in first class shape, had a slight twist given to the injured member, so was removed from the game in order that no risk might be taken. Lawlor was shifted to tackle and Lennox was substituted at guard. Bleecker played at center for the first time and showed up as a crack Varsity man. The lineup:

Colgate.		Trinity.
McGlaughtin,	l. e.	Gildersleeve
Thurber,	l. t.	Howell
Jones,	l. g.	Lawlor-Lennox
Dockstander	c.	Bleecker
Tennion	l. g.	Clark
Blanchard,	l. t.	Hudson-Lawlor
Loeber,	l. e.	Ahern
Ellis,	q. b.	Cook
Ramsey,	l. h. b.	Ramsdell
Cook,	r. h. b.	Collett
Stipp,	f. b.	Carroll

Touchdowns, Ramsdell 2, Carroll, Ahern. Attendance 800. Time of quarters, ten minutes each.

There will be special practice for the second team this week as there will be many substitutes used in the game against Norwich, Saturday. Wesleyan will be only a week after this game and there is no need of having Varsity injured men unnecessarily. Therefore it is hoped that there will be a large number of "scrubs" present each day to further the objects of Coach Gettell by their aid. They will undoubtedly get a chance to show their ability against Norwich.

COMMUNICATION.

Student Takes up Discussion of Literary Activity.

To the Editor of The Tripod:

Your recent quotation from the "Independent" concerning the dearth of good literary material in college magazines is both opportune and propitious. It is almost provoking to think that at the very institution where the supposedly best of manhood is in its bloom, where the finest of our country's youth is congregated, where here abound books and theories,—that there this same youth is lethargic if not hostile to things intellectual and poetic.

The fault is not with the preliminary training of the men who make up the modern college body. As a matter of fact, many a high school literary periodical would make some of our college magazines look like a poster on a picket fence. When the average young man first enters college he has his lofty ideals and poetical visions well enough, but these things are soon knocked out of him by his coming in contact with those professors who can criticize but not inspire, chide but not encourage, destroy but not create. For one reason, some professors at some colleges actually lack the creative ability; for another, they belong to the old, worn-out school of half-baked thought and simply cannot fall into the modern,—the natural way of thinking.

Literature, it must be remembered, is the mirror that reflects the time and the life with which it deals. Now the life that is, is. It cannot be itself and something else simultaneously. Moreover, social life cannot be controlled or altered by any power in the universe. It makes and breaks churches, dogmas, and philosophies; it sets up and drags down kingdoms and empires; it surges upwards and downwards and in all directions like the mighty currents of the ocean. Hence, those college professors who decry modern literature are akin to the old woman who tried to weep back the tide. They would have the young man observe life with one consciousness and interpret it with another. That however, is utterly impossible. Because, just as given organ cannot function for any other purposes than those which necessitate its existence, just so cannot the human consciousness function for any other purpose than that which gives rise to its being. The given organ, to return to our simile, can, however, be destroyed, and that is just what happens to the interpretative consciousness, that is, to creative thought,—it is killed.

Now to come to my second point. I aid the comment quoted by you is propitious. It is so because, being followed by your proposal to devote one or two columns of the Tripod for the publication of literary material, is a sign that there are a few men at Trinity, whose creative faculty, be it said to their credit, cannot be easily killed. Furthermore, the presence of a literary medium will help raise the scholastic standing at Trinity, for there is nothing that is so conducive to good scholarship as the ability to formulate creative thought. Let us have something that will encourage that kind of thought.

PROF. GETTELL'S BOOK.

Advanced Sheets of Introduction to Political Science Received.

In the course of the new two days the publishing firm of Ginn and Company will issue Prof. Raymond G. Gettell's book entitled "Introduction to Political Science." The advance sheets of this book have been in use at Trinity as a text in the political science course since the opening of the fall term, but owing to the international copyright laws which require that the book shall be issued in England on the same day that it is issued in the country, Prof. Gettell's book can not be put on sale here until it is also published in England.

As yet no review of this book has appeared and Prof. Gettell will not permit the publication of the letter; he has received from the men who have read the proof of his copy, but an opinion of the work by one of his pupils and based on the advance sheets already in our hands may not be without value.

Probably the most striking feature of the book to one who has listened to Prof. Gettell's lectures for two years and learned to know his methods and habits is the directness and naturalness of the style.

In every line one may read that enthusiasm for his subject and clear logical treatment and development that distinguishes Prof. Gettell's lectures; and it is the consensus of opinion that when an author is so absorbed in his work that he forgets all literary affectations and efforts toward effects, writing just as he talks and thinks, that it is then that he will put his best work into his book, and give to the reader the benefit of all those resources which are at the command of the writer.

The enthusiastic, direct style of treatment used by Prof. Gettell combines with a mind which has at its command a wonderful mass of thoroughly digested and systematized facts and material necessary to the genetic and historical treatment of political science. Finally add Prof. Gettell's keen, logical theories on the reflective side of this science and we have an ideal combination.

As Prof. Gettell states in his preface the book is only an introductory course; and it certainly seems to be well adapted for such work. It gives the outlines and essential features of political science in such a clear, graphic manner that one can gain a very good idea of the nature of the study simply by a glance at the various diagrams and the outlines of the chapters.

"NOW THEN—TRINITY!"

Saturday's victory was as welcome as it was unexpected. Needless to say it is a very pretty feather in the cap of both coach and players to score a shut-out against Colgate, the team which but a week before held Brown, one of the most aggressive universities in New England, to a no-score game. After due consideration of the fact that last year was the first time in some years that Colgate was on Trinity's football schedule, and that the game, played in the enemy's territory, resulted in a no-score game, it may be assumed that this year's victory will be accepted as all the more gratifying by all the followers of Trinity football. The opponents of last Saturday were worthy of Blue and Gold metal, and in no way can there be any criticism given or taken by supporters of either team. On the other hand, a great deal may be said of the good which necessarily accrues from the meeting of two such colleges in the various branches of athletics.

The Tripod takes this opportunity to agree with the writer of the alumni communication, whose letter appeared in our last issue. Although there are various contingencies which inadvertently arise in the making of a schedule for any team, nevertheless, it may safely be asserted that no excuse can possibly be offered for some of the poor games which have been arranged for in the past few years. In a matter of policy, especially in the careful planning of a campaign, of course there are many details to be considered, which do not appear on the surface, to the chance observances of the uninformed outsider. However, taking it all in all, we feel that the mere association with some of the larger and stronger colleges and universities than those which now appear frequently on our schedule would be welcomed by alumni and undergraduates alike. In which connection, we believe an annual game with Colgate to be a step in the right direction.

Alumni Notes.

The fourth of the 1910 series of five dinners of the New York Trinity College Alumni was served at Reisenwebers, 58th street and 8th avenue on October 10th. President Luther was the guest of honor and gave an interesting and newsy talk on current events at college. Those present were, Dr. E. O. Flagg, Charles Bowman, H. W. Hayward, E. P. Taylor, Jr., F. R. Heisington, A. B. Sutcliffe, J. A. Wales, A. S. Wynkoop, W. M. Austin, J. P. Braden, Jr., and his brother, J. H. Lecour, Jr., J. J. Penrose, De F. Hicks, C. A. Lewis and A. D. Vibbert. Dr. Flagg, '48, recited one of his distinctive poems in his usual spirited manner and the rest of the evening was pleasantly passed in song and college reminiscences. The fifth and last of the series will take place on Nov. 14th. There are twenty-seven regular subscribers, others dropping in for occasional dinners. One hundred postals are sent each time to the more active alumni, to serve simply as reminders. All Trinity men are invited without a special notice.

Intercollegiate Notes.

The "Amherst Aggies" are making preparations to enter a relay team at the coming Hartford track meet and also for a dual meet with Trinity at Amherst.

Wesleyan opened the year with the largest enrollment in the history of the institution, the freshman class numbering 140, almost half the whole total which is something over 340.

The freshmen of Syracuse University won the annual flour rush, after which wrestling matches were held between sophomores and freshmen. The class of '13 won five out of six matches. Another victory scored up to the credit of the freshmen was the salt rush.

Under a new rule of the faculty at Wesleyan, any student desiring to secure advance credit upon his entrance to college must secure it before mid-year of his freshman year, a fee of five dollars for examinations for extra credit being charged.

At Amherst the faculty have announced a rule that no freshman may participate in outside activities during the first semester with certain exceptions. The Amherst Student has taken exception to the letter and is hoping for an explanation of the cause of such discrimination, as the Student is barred from freshman aid.

There was a phenomenal registration at Columbia this year, a gain of 1345 students over last year's total being credited to the college, which makes it the largest University in the United States.

Why should I insure my life?

Because it is a debt you owe to those who are dependent upon your earnings for their support.

You admit that it is your duty to supply their needs from day to day, but forget that it is equally your duty to provide an ever ready and sufficient equivalent for your earning power, which your family stands in constant jeopardy to lose by your premature death.

Guard your family against disaster
and yourself against dependency
in old age.

When should I insure my life?

Now! The cost will never be less, and to-morrow you may not be able to obtain insurance at any price.

Even if others are not now dependent upon you, take time by the forelock and you will be the better able to meet future responsibilities, and at a smaller premium.

Where shall I insure my life?

In a purely Mutual Company.

In a company that earns, declares,
and pays annual dividends.

In a company that is doing a conservative business.

Such a Company is The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn. It furnishes perfect protection at lowest cost.
