BASEBALL PRACTICE OUTSIDE.

Professor Flynn to Take Charge of Team When Coach Connery Leaves.

On Wednesday afternoon, the baseball team was at last able to get outside. Since the diamond itself was not in condition for practice, the football field was used in its place. Batting practice took up the better part of the afternoon, for this is the first opportunity the men have had to try their ability with the stick. The results were very promising for the first day's work and some excellent hitters will doubtless be developed.

When it becomes necessary for Coach Connery to leave the squad to go to the Hartford team on April 10th, the team will not, as last year, be lacking in a coach. Professor Flynn, Trinity, '97, of the department of mathematics, has volunteered his services as coach. This news is extremely welcome to players and all other undergraduates alike. Last year when Connery left the team it took a decided slump and lost several games which should have been victories. With Professor Flynn to keep up the work of coaching there is no need to fear such an event this year. Familiar with the methods of Coach Connery there will be no break in the routine of the work and the good results accomplished by Connery will not be wasted.

Contrary to the statement made in the Hartford "Courant" of recent date, Coach Connery had nothing to do with the so-called appointment of Professor Flynn as his successor in coaching for the remainder of the season. The Athletic Advisory Committee of the college has been attempting for some time to secure the services of Professor Flynn, knowing his capabilities as a coach, and the eminent respect which is afforded him personally by all undergraduates. On account of the press of work due to his position as a member of the faculty, and other duties incumbent upon him, Professor Flynn preferred, at first, not to consider the offer of such a position of added responsibility, but finally, the urgency of the case and his superabundance of college spirit led him to accept, and now the college is to be given the best of services, gratuitously.

The first game of the season at New Haven next Wednesday is but a short time off, and the men are straining every effort to be in the best of condition, in spite of the weather which has done its worst to hold them back. A large number of undergraduates are making arrangements to accompany the team to New Haven and get a line on their work.

The members of the baseball squad will be the guests of George D. Howell, '82, at Heublein's rathskeller next Monday evening. It is proposed to have some old Trinity men talk to the squad, and strengthen the enthusiasm of the men. Mr. Howell, who is the president of the Hartford Alumni Association of Trinity, gave a similar dinner to the football men last fall.

TALKS UNDER Y. M. C. A. AUSPICES.

"The Ministry as a Vocation."

On Tuesday night, after the regular meetings of the Y. M. C. A. Bible Classes, Mr. Lane, Amherst, '10, now a student in the Hartford Theological Seminary; Paul Roberts, '09; and Mr. Ormsbie, Brown, '09, both studying at present at the Berkeley Divinity School, delivered short addresses on the subject, "The Ministry as a Vocation." They treated the subject in the broadest manner possible, not narrowing their talks down to any special denomination, but presenting their reasons in a light that would be applicable to anyone, regardless of his religious belief.

Mr. Roberts, the first speaker, showed how the ministry was, as a rule, criticised by college men, what wrong ideas college men had toward the ministry, and how it was the duty of each man to try and help his fellow man as much as possible, and to bring him into right relations with the church. In closing he urged all to make a decision as soon as possible as to what their future work in the world should be, not to take the first opening which presents itself, but to think seriously in what kind of work they can do the most good for the world. Mr. Lane, who spoke next, showed what kind of men were needed in the ministry and what harm could be done by the wrong kind, and by those who were not intellectually and morally fit to carry on such a great work. In closing, he said that there were three kinds of men that were not wanted in the ministry, namely the effeminate, delicate man; the bigot; and the man who is morally unfit.

Mr. Ormsbie, the last speaker, developed Mr. Roberts' remarks, laying special stress on the importance of a man making his decision as to his life-work while in college. He also showed how a man's mind was often changed when in college from the work of the ministry to more worldly vocations.

The talks were listened to with the greatest attention by all present, and it is to be hoped that as a result of these talks, men so inclined will be drawn to the ministry and that those already contemplating such work will be strengthened and encouraged.

ALUMNI NOTES.

'88—The Rev. Godfrey M. Brinley and Mrs. Brinley were visitors at the college last week.

'93—On March 21, James Cullen was elected President and General Manager of the Cincinnati Ice Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, the third largest ice company in the Middle West.

The Frank W. Whitlock Prizes.

Two prizes, of thirty and twenty dollars respectively, were founded by a legacy of Mrs. Lucy C. Whitlock of Great Barrington, Massachusetts, and by her direction bears the name of her son, who was a graduate of the class of 1870. The three students to whom have been awarded the Alumni Prizes in English Composition will deliver their prize themes in public in competition for the Whitlock Prizes. In determining the award, regard will be had both to composition and delivery.

Rather than submit to having their hair clipped as punishment for shaving the heads of a number of freshmen, 300 students of the Louisiana state university went on strike, and as a result the institution is closed.

PROFESSOR KLEENE ON SOCIALISM.

Lectured Last Night Informally.

The Trinity College Society for the study of Socialism held its first regular meeting in the History Room at 7:30, Thursday evening. J. G. Phelps Stokes has been secured to lecture before the society on April 11th. The following names were proposed for admission and referred to the Executive Committee: L. R. Foster, A. A. Hollings, W. W. Cotter, R. H. Brockett, R. H. Segur, and G. A. Feingold. The meeting then adjourned, and Professor Kleene was introduced by President Trachtenberg as the speaker of the evening.

Professor Kleene spoke substantially as follows: Socialism is something which no one can afford to be ignorant of. Socialists challenge the fundamentals of the present order of society and to define Socialism is difficult, but it is in general—

"Collective or social control of the instruments of production in most or all industries." Individual socialists would possibly take exception to this definition. Often the word socialism is used in a broad, vague sense, we can say, however, that we have all been influenced by the socialistic system of thought. Just as it is difficult to define the term "Christian," so it is to tell exactly what a Socialist is. Socialism has spread so widely that it has taken on a great variety of forms. It includes some who believe in complete collective control. Others think that the community should exercise only partial control of industries. Some are so-called municipal-socialists. Then we have the doubters who believe that we should gradually come to co-operative working of industry. Society should be a unit according to this type of socialism. Both the conservative and the radical agree in a way. The radical, however, believes that the present system is hopeless.

A century ago, the thought of a society for the welfare of all was not dreamed of. Competition or "hands off" was the ideal. Men like Adam Smith believed in letting men alone, in industrial freedom—Whereas this was not entirely satisfactory, it was the natural order and accepted for a time. People looked at things merely from the point of view of their own class. The Socialists have challenged this.

Socialism is like a vapor in one atmosphere it spreads out in a fiery nucleus. The fiery nucleus may be divided into classes, 1. Marxian, 2. Revisionist Marxian, or toned down Marxianism.

Marx spread his views in the forties of the nineteenth century. In the sixties, the Socialist Democratic party was organized. This party went into politics for revision. The Anarchists are another branch. The largest branch of these were an off shoot of Marxianism and believed that the only way to realize their socialistic ideals was to overthrow the present government.

"NOW THEN—TRINITY!"

EDITORIAL.

With the deepest sense of true appreciation, The Tripod records the fact, that a loyal son of Trinity has volunteered gratuitously his services as coach of the baseball team for the coming season.

Not enough is able to be said upon the subject of self-sacrifice which acceptance of such a position carries with it, and we feel that Professor Flynn should not only be accorded the heartiest of thanks by the college, but that every man in college should do his best to show his personal appreciation, by supporting the coach and the squad enthusiastically, and consistently throughout the season.

It is such an occurrence as this which binds the members of the faculty and undergraduates more closely together, and makes everyone feel that to have college spirit, and to be a son of Trinity means more than words can express.

A strong sentiment is prevalent throughout the college body that different and better methods of press work should be employed by correspondents and representatives of daily papers and other periodicals.

It will be remembered that organizations have been started in the past, along the lines of press club work, and also that such means of promoting the interests of Trinity have failed primarily because of the lack of efficiency, and secondarily because of the general want of interest in such work, which can at the outside be but little less than gratuitous.

However at the present time, with the approach of outdoor athletics, which will bring the college into prominence, on account of the excellence of the schedules, if nothing else, there is a great and growing need of good work in the writing and presenting of the results to the reading public.

With this in view, we feel that a small group of men who would work harmoniously and efficiently, ought to be given the official recognition and authority, both to proceed to organize, and to publicize the college and its affairs effectively. If this were to be taken up in the right spirit, and given the proper reception by those concerned, a good start might be made this year in the right direction. Therefore, The Tripod will undertake, through its columns, to push this matter, and to urge all those in any way interested in the subject to come forward with their own ideas, and all communications will be gratefully received, either in confidence or for publication as the writer may designate. We hope to be able to note progress within a very short time, and request that the motto adopted by our President be kept in mind on this occasion, "Now Then—Trinity!"

PROF. KLEEN ON SOCIALISM

A respectable man and a disreputable relative shows the respective relation between the anarchist and the socialist. Connected with anarchists and Marxianism is the Syndicists, who believe that socialism can be realized only by organized labor. Briand, the recent prime minister of France, was a socialist. Many socialists believe that organized labor can manage things, the capitalist and ruling classes will simply give up their jobs. but this style of socialism has not shown itself in this country as yet.

The Fabian Socialism in England takes in many of the literary men. They want to realize socialism gradually and believe in delaying or hanging around in order to accomplish their ends. It is hard to separate these groups.

Socialism is centuries old. From the time of Plato, ideas that look like socialism have been prevalent. Modern socialism has sprung up in opposition to the present order of things. Everything is now done on a national scale by electricity or other power. The modern system has brought in 2 classes: the owners of machinery and the workers. These classes did not exist before the industrial revolution.

Fourier, Owen and Cabet are examples of Utopian Socialism. They had a ready made scheme, a perfect form of society. Persuasion was all that was necessary to accomplish this. Modern socialists despise Utopian schemes. Marx—the founder of modern Socialism in his "Communist Manifesto" appeals to all workingmen to unite and overthrow the present system. Marx expected that capitalism would bring about its own downfall, and about the only thing modern socialists agree upon is that the present system is wrong.

On motion, a vote of thanks was passed in behalf of Professor Kleen for his interesting presentation of the subject of the history of socialism.

HOCKEY ELECTIONS.

Burgwin, '14, Captain, and Little, '14,
Manager.

On Thursday, the 28th, the hockey team met and elected Burgwin, '14, captain; and Little, '14, manager, of the team for next year. The past season was discussed and reviewed, and although the lack of ice prevented the playing of many of the scheduled games,
it is to be concluded that the team
made a very creditable showing in all games played. Those present were S.
P. Haight, '11, F. J. Brainerd, '11, C. H.
Howell, '12, A. E. Rankin '12, G. C.
Burgwin, Jr., '14, and T. W. Little, '14.

While the management of the hockey team for next season has been handed over to two members of the class of 1914, although as a rule upper classmen
hold the position of captain and manager of the athletic teams, under the circumstances, the elections are in accordance with the best interests of the college. There is plenty of good matterial in college for next year's team,
but through a coincidence there is only one upper classman who will be in the squad that will turn out for the team next winter. Because of his holding the captaincy of the football team his time would necessarily be so filled that he would not be able to act as an officer of the hockey team.

Burgwin's record of playing throughout this season as a member of the team points to the fact that under his guidance hockey will prosper next winter
at Trinity.

Little also undertakes his duties as manager with an excellent record behind him. He was manager of the Hartford High School football team in his senior year.

BASKETBALL FINALS.

The final basket-ball game of the inter-class series between the seniors and sophomore teams will not be played this week on account of the sickness
of several of the senior's best players.
On Monday, the thirteenth, the seniors defeated the juniors by the score of 19-11, and the sophomores defeated the freshmen by 20-11. The game will probably be played the first part of next week. It will be hotly contested on both sides. The seniors have several 'varsity men in the lineup, while Horan,
who is reputed to be one of the best basket-ball players in the state, will play forward on the sophomore team.

Why should I insure my life?
Because it is a debt you owe to those who are dependent upon your earnings for their support.

You admit that it is your duty to supply their needs from day to day, but forget that it is equally your duty to provide an ever ready and sufficient equivalent for your earning power, which your family stands in constant jeopardy to lose by your premature death.

Guard your family against disaster and yourself against dependency in old age.

When should I insure my life?

Now! The cost will never be less, and to-morrow you may not be able to obtain insurance at any price.

Even if others are not now dependent upon you, take time by the forelock and you will be the better able to meet future responsibilities, and at a smaller premium.

Where shall I insure my life?

In a purely Mutual Company.
In a company that earns, de-
