ANDREWS OLDEST GRAD. WAS OFFICER IN CIVIL WAR.

Colonel Robert Andrews of East Orange, N. J., now holds the distinction of being the oldest living graduate of the college. Colonel Andrews was a member of the class of 1853. Rev. John T. Huntington of Hartford, a member of the class of 1850, for many years held the honor of being the oldest living graduate. Dr. Huntington died the first part of this month. Only one other member of the class of 1853 survives—James Perrie Bowman of St. Francisville,

COLONEL ROBERT ANDREWS.
(Courtesy, "The Hartford Courant.")

La. Colonel Andrews holds his distinction as senior graduate by reason of the fact that his name begins with the first letter of the alphabet, whereas that of his classmate begins with the second. Dr. Huntington held the honor for the same reason, as for many years he and Rev. Gerret Eber Peters of Detroit were the only two survivors of the class of 1850. Since the first commencement, it has been the custom at Trinity to award the degrees in alphabetical order.

Colonel Andrews' military title dates back to the Civil War, when he served for four years in the Union Army. He was a colonel on the staff of General Sumner, of the Second Army Corps of the Potomac.

Colonel Andrews was born in Wilmington, Delaware, in 1832. Before entering Trinity College he attended Cheshire Academy. He was a student at Trinity from 1849 to 1853, and was the best Greek scholar of his time in college. He also excelled in mathematics. After his graduation, Colonel Andrews went West and was one of the biggest construction engineers in that part of the country, building railroads, bridges, and canals. He continued in this line for forty years. He then manufactured heating apparatus in New York City. He retired from that line of business nine years ago.

BERKELEY SCHOLARSHIP IN MEMORY OF TRINITY MARINE. Local Chapter of Sigma Nu Donates $100 to $6000 Fund.

The memory of Lieutenant Harold Colthurst Mills, '15, will probably be perpetuated at Berkeley Divinity School in the form of a scholarship fund which is being raised by popular subscription. Lieutenant Mills was the first Berkeley undergraduate to die in service. He was wounded at Chateau Thierry on June 10, 1918, and died five days later in a hospital behind the lines.

Lieutenant Mills was graduated from Trinity in June, 1915. He continued his studies at Berkeley Divinity School until June 19, 1917, when he enlisted. He received his training at Fort Benjamin Harrison and Fort Niagara, and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant. He sailed overseas in January, 1918, and saw several months active service with the 6th Regiment, U. S. Marines Corps.

It was in the intense action at Chateau Thierry in June, 1918, that he was fatally wounded by a high-explosive shell. He was buried on June 15, 1918, with services by a Nebraska Methodist minister, who was serving as a private soldier.

A movement is now on foot at Berkeley Divinity School to raise $6,000 to constitute a fund to provide a scholarship to be used in educating men at Berkeley to carry on the work which Lieutenant Mills had planned for himself—that of missionary work in Alaska. The project is in the hands of an executive committee of Berkeley undergraduates and is making rapid progress. While at Trinity, Lieutenant Mills was a member of the local fraternity of Sigma Psi, which has since become a chapter of the Sigma Nu fraternity. The members of the local chapter have pledged $100 for the scholarship fund.

PROFESSOR GRIFFITH-JONES TO ADDRESS POLITICAL SCIENCE CLUB.

Professor E. Griffith-Jones, principal of the Yorkshire United Independent College, Bradford, England, will address the Political Science Club at its first regular monthly meeting Thursday evening, January 30, at 8 o'clock. The subject of his address will be "British Democracy in the Melting Pot of the Great War." At the request of the department of information of the British government, Professor Jones has come to this country to explain to American audiences the British point of view of the moral issues of the Great War, to relate a true account of the situation in England, and to further the feeling of brotherhood which has arisen between Great Britain and the United States as a result of the war. The general public is invited to the meeting.

TRINITY TO SEND FIVE DELEGATES TO BOSTON CONGRESS FOR A LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

The Political Science club will meet at noon Tuesday to take action on an invitation to send five delegates to the Congress for a League to Enforce Peace to be held at Boston on February 7 and 8. This congress at Boston is for New England only and is one of nine sectional congresses which will be held throughout the country between February 5 and March 1.

In the call for the congress, which was sent out over the signatures of such men as William H. Taft, Lyman Abbott, Anna Howard Shaw, A. Lawrence Lowell, Alton B. Parker and others, the aim of the congresses is stated: "To give those who helped win the war, either on or behind the fighting line, a chance to express their views on a league of free nations." This is important for the number attending and the enthusiasm shown at these gatherings may influence the Senate in the ratification of such a league.

The following speakers are to appear at the Boston Congress: Hon. William Howard Taft; James W. Gerard; Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, President Harvard University; Mrs. Philip North Moore, President National Council of Women; Hon. Henry Van Dyke, former Minister to the Netherlands; Hon. Frank P. Walsh, former joint-chairman of National War Labor Board. There will also be other speakers to represent Labor, Agriculture, Women, Commerce and Business, the Church, and Statesmanship.

CHINESE STUDENT AT TRINITY.

Another Chinese student, Kong-Wun Liu, entered Trinity the middle part of last week as a special student. He is 24 years old and has been in this country only three months, having completed a four years' course in Tokio's Commercial College, where he studied English. After spending two years at Trinity, where he expects to specialize in English and Economics, he will go for two years to Columbia University. After his course at Columbia, he intends to go to England to attend Oxford University for one year. He is a personal friend of Chih-Huang Lin, who was at Trinity last year and who is now at Columbia.

SENIOR CLASS ELECTS.

At a meeting of the Senior Class last Thursday, the following officers were elected: Arthur M. Goldstein, President; Edward M. Hyland, Vice-President; Harmon T. Barber, Secretary-Treasurer and Historian; and Irving E. Partridge, Class Senator.

COMES TO TRINITY AFTER ACTIVE SERVICE "OVER THERE." Under Shell Fire for Five Months.

The only man now at Trinity who has seen actual fighting over there, is Frederick C. Beach, '22. He tells of many exciting experiences which he has had at the different fronts as a member of the 104th Ambulance Co., 26th Division. Although he is only twenty years old, he has seen nineteen months of service, having enlisted in the 104th, May 25, 1917, at Bridgeport, and receiving his discharge January 4, 1919, at Camp Upton.

Beach was under constant fire from the middle part of February until July 22, 1918, except for the few hours now and then that it took him to move from one sector to another. He was personally acquainted with Rev. Walton S. Danker, '97, Chaplain, with the rank of Captain, in the 104th Regiment, who was mortally wounded in the town of Royaumeix by shell splinters on June 16, 1918, and died two days later,—the first American Chaplain to lose his life in the Great War. Beach was in the town, and in fact, a few minutes after it all happened, was at the scene where the shell landed.

He says that on Saturday they had returned from strenuous duty in the Toul sector to Royaumeix, a small town about eight or ten miles behind the front. They were sent there to get a rest, as the town was never shelled by the Germans. About ten o'clock the following morning, however, while most of the civilians were at church, the Germans started to shell the town and it was during this bombardment that Rev. Danker was mortally wounded, a shell landing in the street near where he was standing talking to a group of soldiers. Every one of the group was either killed or wounded by shell splinters. In a few minutes, Beach was on the scene with other first-aid men and stretcher bearers, and he was helping to carry off two of the group while Rev. Danker was being carried off to a dressing station two or three blocks away. Rev. Danker was sent on the same day to Evacuation Hospital No.1, where he died two days later.

Beach was in the Battle of Chateau Thierry and Belleau Wood from the beginning of the drive, on July 18 until July 22, when he was relieved on account of shell shock near Epieds. He was then sent to an Evacuation Hospital and from there to a Base Hospital. Since then he has been at about nine different hospitals in France and three in the United States, returning from overseas the latter part of October, and receiving his discharge three weeks ago at Camp Upton.

He commented on the fact that the GERMAN.

A recent number of "The Modern Language Journal" prints a resume of views expressed in the French publication, "Les Langues Modernes", respecting the teaching of German in public schools in France. The period covered is that of the war, August, 1914, to June, 1918, and the prevailing tone of the writers is on that account the more impressive.

In the November-December number of the French magazine, 1915, the Inspector General of Public Instruction is quoted as "advising the pupils to study more German than ever." "Defeated Germany," he thought—and he was certainly a brave man to count then so confidently upon her defeat—"Would not disappear from the map"; and Frenchmen would "need to keep in touch with all its commercial, industrial and intellectual development." That same year one authority even advocates teaching German script, "for its practical use!"

In 1916 a certain teacher feels that after the war the economic struggle will begin anew, and notes with pleasure "an increase in the number of students of German."

In the same year a Mr. Simmonot, in a report, said to be "a standard", argues: (1) that German has pedagogic and educative value superior to that of the Romance languages; (2) that "German is a scientific necessity for scholars, historians, chemists, physicians and engineers"; (3) that "German is a political necessity, since even after the war there will be an ethnic group of over one hundred millions of German-speaking people"; (4) that German is a military necessity; and that the knowledge of it had been of "immense value" to the French General Staff, in making and meeting military preparations; (5) that "boycotting a language, like boycotting in general, is poor policy"; moreover that it is "practically and pedagogically impossible."

Mr. Simmonot's report arranges the five principal modern languages, according to their practical value and consequently in their order of precedence in school curricula, in two groups. The first group is English, German, Russian. The second group is Italian and Spanish. I have personally long been of the impression that Russian ought to be taken up seriously and taught both scientifically and practically in our colleges. The only Russian-speaking people who have thus far been able to carry messages respecting our institutions directly to the heart and mind of Russia have been men like Trotsky, with no genuine sympathy for our governmental, social, or even literary life. It's high time this were changed. And with that change I should earnestly advocate a more sympathetic personal attitude towards the considerable number of really fine fellows of Russian origin who come up to our colleges from our high schools — there are, of course, marked exceptions.

In a number of the "Langues Modernes", appearing in January, 1917, the statement is made that, for admission to the two great military schools for officers, the Polytechnique and Saint-Cyr, either German, English, or Russian is required, with some second modern language as an elective.

It appears plain that the war has roused in France a feeling against the study of German similar to what we have experienced; and no doubt the study fell off there as well as here. But on the whole, the country seems to have kept a level head, as, with occasional exceptions, we have done here. And time, which has introduced needed corrections of exaggerated notions heretofore prevailing respecting the importance of the German language and the superiority of German scientific and pedagogical methods, may be relied upon to bring in similarly desirable corrections of views in the contrary direction.

While the two English-speaking nations and their branches hold their present position on the stage of practical affairs, it is hardly conceivable that either of the two chief constituent elements in their language should be permanently eclipsed. And the war, which began by greatly stimulating the study of one of them, is ending by kindling zeal for the study of the other—the same men who at first occupied France finding themselves now in occupation of German territory and sending home for material wherewith to "plug up" in German, just as, a few months before, they had sent for similar material for getting up their French.

Here in Trinity, with the disbandment of the Students Army Training Corps, the number of students of German has at once more than doubled, although it is still far below its ante bellum mark, and of course very far below the number who are studying French. It is hardly necessary to say that this increase is without political, or patriotic significance, as the citations above made from French writers at every stage in the history of the war sufficiently indicate.

JUDGE BUFFINGTON ADDRESSES BOSTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Hon. Joseph Buffington, class of 1875, delivered an address on the subject of "The Future of the Foreign-Born in America", before the Boston Chamber of Commerce on January 20. His audience, which was composed of more than five hundred representative business men of Boston, were very deeply impressed with the message which he brought and the manner in which he delivered it.

Judge Buffington was introduced by Mr. Frederick P. Fish of Boston, one of the best known lawyers in the United States. Mr. Fish is a personal friend of Judge Buffington of years standing. At the meeting, there were as guests men who are also friends of the Judge: Dean Hodges of Cambridge; Mr. Cyril Maude; Mr. Geo. H. Howell of Pittsburgh; Mr. Ellery Sedgwick, Editor of the Atlantic Monthly, and other prominent men interested in the Americanization work in which Judge Buffington is so much interested.

During the afternoon of that day, the Judge delivered a similar address before some three hundred members of the National Civic Federation, Women's Dept., at the residence of Mrs. Frederick Lothrop Ames.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE VOTES TO SUPPORT BASEBALL TEAM.

Track Abandoned This Season.

At a meeting of the athletic graduate advisory committee, it was decided that the college should be represented by a baseball team this season, and that track should be abandoned as a major sport for the time being. The question of which team should be supported this season had been uppermost in the minds of the officers of the Athletic Association and the team managers since the opening of the semester, and Manager Puffer of the baseball team had been unable to work out a definite schedule until he was certain that a baseball team was to be a reality.

So far as actual material was concerned there was little to choose between baseball and track. In many cases, the same men are equally good in both branches of sport, but would be unable to participate in the events of both in the same season. Baseball is more nearly a self-supporting sport than track, however, and this, combined with the fact that baseball provides a longer schedule, influenced the advisory committee in making its decision.

It was the sentiment of the committee that the schedule be limited to about ten games. This provides a shorter series than in former years, when about eighteen contests were usually arranged. Manager Puffer had been considering a Southern trip during the Easter recess, but the curtailment of the recess to four days makes an extensive trip impossible.

The Athletic Association will soon begin its campaign for membership.

The freshman basketball team lost a "hard-luck" game at Windsor, Saturday evening, when they dropped the contest to the Loomis Institute team by a single point, the score being 28 to 27. The game was one of the fastest and most exciting ever seen on the Institute floor, and spectacular shots by members of both teams continually brought the large crowd to its feet and made the rafters ring with applause.

The game see-sawed along during the first half, with first one team and then the other getting the lead. In the last minute of the half, a field goal by Johnson tied the score, only to have Sturm put his team in the lead by a scant two points a second later.

During the second half the play was even closer. With about five minutes to play, Trinity seemed to get together, and while the prep school team was trying to find the ball, Reynolds dropped two nice shots for two points apiece. These two scores gave Trinity a three-point lead and the game looked safe. Then Griswold tore down the floor and scored a field basket. With a minute left to play Loomis forced the play into Trinity's territory and Griswold lifted the ball out of a scrimmage almost under the basket for the winning points.

From that time on till the end of the game Loomis played a stalling game holding the ball as long as possible on every opportunity. The game

NEW YORK ALUMNI MEET TO GIVE DINNER IN HONOR OF DR. LUTHER.

The annual meeting of the New York Association of the Alumni was held on Thursday evening, January 23, 1919, at the University Club, New York City. The meeting was followed by a smoker and supper. Many alumni were present, and helped make the evening merry.

The resignation of Dr. Luther from the presidency of the college was the cause of general regret, and it was decided that the New York Association tender him a dinner in the spring in appreciation of his long and distinguished service to the college.

The keynote of the speeches of the evening was the necessity of finding the right man to guide Trinity in these times of reconstruction and to place the college on the right course for a secure future. Many of the alumni took part in the discussion. Among those who spoke were Messrs. W. E. Curtis, Robert Thorne, Rev. H. L. Lonsdale, D. C. Pond, M. H. Coggeshall, E. S. Van Zile, and C. A. Johnson.

Mr. Robert Thorne, president of the association, presided over the meeting. Mr. C. A. Johnson, Secretary of the Alumni Council, gave an interesting talk, in the course of which he spoke of Dr. Luther's service to the college, the necessity of selecting the right man as Dr. Luther's successor, the more active participation of the alumni in college affairs, Trinity's part in the War, and a history of the college year so far.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Robert Thorne; Vice-Presidents, W.F. Morgan, Rev. Dr. C. A. Hamilton, E. S. Van Zile, Rev. Dr. E. P. Newton; Secretary-Treasurer, F. C. Hinkle, Jr. Executive Committee: J. A. Wales, F. R. Hoisington, Uldric Thompson, Jr., P. H. Bradin, P. R. Smith.

WM. L. PECK WAS WOUNDED AT SOISSONS.

According to a letter received from William L. Peck, '16, he was wounded last July at Soissons. The letter is as follows:

Rheinbrohl, Germany,
December 18, 1918.

To the Editor of the Tripod,

Dear Sir:

I was very happy today to receive two numbers of "The Tripod." I had not seen any for a long time. It surely was good to see the old paper again and to find so much news of the college and my class notes. The college must be very much changed, but I hope you will soon be back to your old peacetime basis, if you are not already. I have intended several times during the war to write to "The Tripod," but have not had much time. I enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps in April, 1917, and came to France in December, 1917. I just went into the trenches in March and remained in a fairly quiet sector until the middle of May. On the first of June, I hit the big show at Chateau Thierry and was fighting on that front the whole month. I was slightly wounded near Soissons in July and went to the hospital, but got back in time for the St. Mihiel drive. I was sent to the Army Machine Gun School in October and rejoined my outfit in November for the big drive north of Verdun. I was in the final battle on the last night of the war, and afterwards on the long hike through Belgium, Luxemburg and Germany, and across the Rhine. I am now stationed at Rheinbrohl, on the Rhine. If all goes well, perhaps I shall be with you for Commencement next June. Anyway, I live in hope. My best wishes to all of you at Trinity.

SEMESTER LENGTHENED BY TWO WEEKS.

No Mid-Term Examinations.

The Easter recess will be shortened one week and an extra week will be added in June, according to a vote of the faculty. This decision results from the fact that a full year's credit is being awarded for the period from January until June, and it is impossible to crowd a sufficient amount of work into the regular second semester.

The Easter recess will begin on Wednesday, April 16, and end the following Monday, April 21, instead of a week later, as is customary. The new arrangement will cause commencement to fall on Monday, June 23, instead of June 16 as is listed in the catalogue.

No mid-term examinations will be held, except in half courses that are completed before June.

The first paddling-bee of the year was held Monday evening, when a number of sophomores scientifically combed the "dorms" and made the night musical with the smack of paddles on pajamas. Since that time there has been a noticeable increase in respect for the Freshman rules on the part of the new men.

by our Personal Representative, Mr. Salten.

After all, the three prime factors in determining the desirability of an overcoat or a suit of clothes are: Style, Service and Value. That is the three-fold appeal of these clothes. They have the Style which comes from being modeled by a designer whose experience has been gained in the custom-tailored field. They have the Service which begins with fine all wool fabrics and which is enhanced by genuine hand-workmanship. And they have the rare Value of being hand-tailored at the price of those that are not.
