

"BILL" DUFFY HERE HALF A CENTURY

VENERABLE AND INIMITABLE
JANITOR PRESENTED PURSE
IN RECOGNITION OF FAITH-FUL SERVICE.

William Joseph Duffy, the beloved "Bill" of generations of Trinity graduates, completed his first fifty years of service of the college and her sons on Saturday night, and in recognition of his long and faithful service, a purse of fifty dollars was presented to him at the Sophomore smoker on Saturday night.

Bill was born in Ireland on November 25, 1851, and came to Hartford in 1870. Three days after he arrived in Hartford he was hired by the Rev. George S. Mallory, who was then treasurer of the college, and on May 16, 1870, began his service at Trinity as janitor, fireman and watchman. At that time the college was situated on the present site of the State Capitol. Work on the present buildings was started in 1876, and Bill assisted in their construction. He also helped in the four-hundred-hour job of moving the statue of Bishop Brownell from the Capitol grounds to its present site on the east campus.

Before the buildings were occupied Bill lived in 26 Jarvis, as the insurance required someone to be in the buildings. At that time electric street lights were just coming into use, and Bill says that he could sit in his room and see to read by the one at the corner of Vernon and Broad Streets. Of course there were no trees between Vernon Street, and the college at that time.

HAMILTON HOLT ADDRESSES POLITICAL SCIENCE CLUB.

Editor of "The Independent" Speaks for League of Nations.

Hamilton Holt, editor of "The Independent", made a stirring plea for the ratification of the covenant of the League of Nations in an address delivered before the Trinity Political Science Club Thursday evening. In the opening part of his talk he described the circumstances leading up to the Peace Conference and pointed out the differences between Versailles where the men who shaped the affairs of the world were bourgeois and at Vienna over a hundred years ago when the nobility laid down the program for the peoples of the world to follow. He described the difficulties which he had as a member of the press in securing admittance to the Peace Conference when the covenant of the League of Nations was read by President Wilson, and gave a graphic description of the great personages in the room in the Quai d'Orsay at that time. Especially noticeable was Premier Clemenceau of France with his silken mittens, triangular skull cap and silk earlaps.

Mr. Holt stated that for fully a half minute after the close of the president's speech urging the adoption of the covenant there was a dead silence that was far more eloquent than the most vociferous applause. Continuing he said:

"Then and there the world substituted coöperation for competition, the Senate of the United States to the contrary notwithstanding. It was the first time in all history that the entire world had sat in on the diplomacy of nations.

"President Wilson returned to this country and submitted the covenant to the people. He afterwards said that he had made every effort to secure the ratification of all the suggestions of the members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The foremost republicans made suggestions for changes in the covenant, and in every case in which the four leading constitutional authorities of the republican party agreed the suggestions were adopted. Taft made five suggestions, all of which were adopted. Strangely enough Senator Lodge used these same five points in his debate with President Lowell of Harvard; but, while Taft says that he is perfectly satisfied with the action taken, Lodge declares that the suggestions have not been adopted.

"I am a republican, and my party, had it had sense enough, might have claimed to have perfected the treaty. They could have used this for political capital in the coming elections and they might have got away with it. But they didn't have the brains to do this. Instead they started to poison gas the treaty."

Mr. Holt then described the four

BASEBALL TEAM DEFEATS BROOKLYN POLY, 6 TO 2.

Pitching of Reynolds and Errors of Brooklyn Bring Victory—Trinity
Weak With Bat.

Trinity won the baseball game Saturday afternoon, defeating Brooklyn Polytechnic, 6 to 2. The Trinity team was weak with the stick, but the excellent pitching of Reynolds, and a flock of misplays by Brooklyn in the first three innings gave Trinity a commanding lead.

Reynolds retired the first two men to face him on strikes, and the third man was an easy infield out. In the Trinity half of the inning, Cram was safe at first on an error, and got second when Schepps dropped the throw from home. Nichols walked, and Reddish laid down a pretty sacrifice. Leeke fanned, but Lynch came through with a clean single, scoring two runs. Buckley fanned.

The three Brooklyn men who came to bat in the second inning were all retired on infield taps. Ortgies opened the Trinity half of the inning by striking out. Doran hit to left field and got to second when the ball bounded off the fielder's glove. Reynolds got to first on an error. Cram singled, bringing in two men. Nichols flied out to the first baseman, but Reddish pushed another run across by a single. He was caught stealing second.

The first Brooklyn man to come up in the third inning flied out to Nichols. The next man singled, and Schepps was hit by a pitched ball. Reynolds rose to the occasion and fanned the next two. Leeke drew a free pass, and advanced when Lynch was safe on the Brooklyn first baseman's error. He scored when Ratner muffed up Buckley's grounder. Ortgies and Reynolds fanned, and Doran went out to the first baseman unassisted. Brooklyn put across their two runs in the fourth inning on three singles, a passed ball and an outfield fly. Neither team threatened during the remainder of the game.

"DEPARTED SPIRITS" PRESENT- ED BEFORE AUDIENCE OF 300.

The Sophomore Smoker of the class of 1922, smiled on by the fickle weatherman, and marked by two athletic victories and the completion of the first half century of service of Bill Duffy, reached its climax on Saturday night in Alumni Hall, where a three-act sketch, "Departed Spirits", was presented to an audience of three hundred alumni, undergraduates, sub-freshmen and faculty members. The show was great, the speakers real Trinity men with a message, and the singing was the real Trinity stuff. Of course those necessary adjuncts to a Sophomore smoker—corn-cob pipes, tobacco, cigarettes and drinks (soft) were there. There was a cleverly-arranged program, neatly printed, and a special issue of THE TRIPOD. The unanimous verdict of the alumni was "The best smoker since the one my class gave", which is of course all that can be expected as no smoker is possible which will equal that of ???.

A REVIVAL.

According to those alumni who saw it, the Sophomore Smoker exhibited for the first time in several years, that spirit of enthusiasm of which we have heard so much, and for which the "good old days" are famous. The college is "coming back", and we undergraduates are helping it to do so. However, we must not let our efforts slow up while we congratulate ourselves on one success. We must keep on working. Let us finish the year maintaining the same spirit we have shown during the past term, and start off next fall with a record-breaking entering class. It is up to us to persuade those sub-freshmen who were here Saturday—and many others—to enter Trinity, and to carry on that which we have revived.

MEMORIALS.

Probably few of the undergraduates realize that many of the trees which are on our campus are not merely decorations. They are memorials to classes which have gone before, and the trees were planted that the classes might leave useful and ornamental monuments to their names. In view of this fact, it would seem that plates, designating the planters, should be attached to each one. THE TRIPOD hopes that those who have the power to take steps to make such improvements will do so, and also that future classes will see fit to plant class trees as well as ivy.

FAITHFUL SERVICE.

Last Saturday, Bill Duffy completed his fiftieth year at Trinity College. There are few alumni living who do not know "Bill", and no one who knows him does not honor and respect him. He has been a faithful friend and helper of Trinity men for so long, that the campus would seem quite empty without him. What would a class day be without "Bill's" assistance? He surely is an important part of the college. Be it fair or stormy, cold or hot, he does his work—and does it well without complaint. Let us all take a lesson from Bill Duffy. If we are as faithful to our life work as he has been to his, there will be no doubt as to our success.

"Bill" Duffy wishes to thank, through THE TRIPOD, all those who helped to make the fiftieth anniversary of his coming to Trinity a memorable event.

divisions of the senate on the treaty—those in favor of the treaty, those in favor of mild reservations, those in favor of drastic reservations, and those "who would take the treaty by the tail like a dead cat and throw it over the fence." He called for a vote on the treaty, and the larger part of the audience were in favor of mild reservations. Mr. Holt then pointed out that the audience had voted as the majority of audiences all over the country had done, and that the Senate of the United States was not representing the opinion of the majority of its constituents. According to Mr. Holt, the only thing that the Senate had proved during its fight was that either side of the Senate was strong enough to lick the other. He then read the twenty-eight articles of the treaty and discussed briefly each one of them. In discussing universal disarmament, he said that if the United States refused to ratify the league they were taking upon themselves the responsibility for starting Europe off again on a competitive armament basis, which, in the opinion of Mr. Holt, will end up in the overthrow of every government in Europe, for he said "The people of Europe have had enough of militarism, they will endure it no longer."

In closing, he told of his experience on the battlefields of France and called attention to the fact that fully as great an uproar of opposition was raised when the constitution of the United States was proposed for adoption. "If we adopt this Declaration of Interdependence our boys will not have died in vain."

Bill has yet to have an alumnus return for commencement whom he cannot at once call by name and class. He tells many tales of men who are now venerable grads, but who, in their undergraduate days were just like the present students. In one of his tales no less personages than Dr. Ernest deF. Miel and Robert Thorne, one of the trustees, figure. Dr. Miel had ordered two quarts of ice cream brought to his room. Bill was taking the cream along the walk when Thorne met him and told him that Miel wanted the cream brought to Thorne's room. Duffy did so, then found out that Miel didn't know anything of the disposition of his order, so Bill charged the cream to Thorne, much to that gentleman's surprise and chagrin.

During the half century that Bill has tended the fires and shoveled the snow here, there have been many changes. Northam Towers, Boardman Hall, Jarvis Laboratories, the gymnasium, the commons—which, by the way, was originally a classroom building—and Williams Memorial have all been built during his time. The college opened on its present site with only Jarvis and Seabury Halls. When the college opened there were not rooms for all the students who wished to take advantage of the college, and many of them roomed in the houses on Vernon Street. The first college commons was a small wooden building on the present site of Northam Towers. Later it was moved to the basement of Seabury Hall, and finally shifted to the present building.

College traditions have grown up around Bill Duffy during the past fifty years in which no other figure can ever take his place. Bill, on the bench with a Trinity team, always brings victory. The blindest ignorance can be converted to knowledge sufficient to pass an examination, only by shaking the hand of Bill before the ordeal. Bill planted fourteen of the class trees that now grace the campus. Of course class day wouldn't be class day without Bill Duffy passing the punch, and the 'baccy for the long clay pipes.
