The Class of 1922, according to Mohnkern, will resume the practice of holding the smokers at the fraternity houses which was abandoned by the Class of 1921. The present Junior Class also expects to have a big smoker and general get-together in the College Union late in the year as a climax to the series of smokers. The date for the first smoker has not yet been set.

TRINITY FIVE TAKES CLOSE GAME. URBAN, ALL-AMERICAN FOOTBALL MAN, STARS FOR VISITORS. BOTH SIDES STRONG ON DEFENSE.

Trinity blasted the hopes of Luke Urban and his Boston College five, out for their ninth straight victory, Friday, turning back the Bostonians, 23 to 20. Both teams guarded so closely that the game quickly developed into a foul shooting contest between Canner and Urban, with the winning margin three points to Canner's credit. The defense of both sides was so strong that the few field goals scored were of the sensational variety.

The first five minutes of the game showed the development into the Canner-Urban duel. Both men missed their first attempts, then each scored one. Canner followed this with another free shot and Bolles dropped a sensational basket from the end line. Neither team could work the ball down under the basket. Both Urban and Canner came through again, then Hickey scored from the floor for Boston. Urban tied the count at five all with a foul. Boston jumped into the lead through a field goal by Mahoney and another free shot by Urban. Canner added a point, and Boston jumped their score to thirteen when Urban sank a field goal and a foul. Canner duplicated his rival's performance and Miller broke into the scoring column with a basket from the floor. The half ended without further scoring, Boston leading 13 to 10.

Trinity Takes Lead.

In the second period, Trinity opened up its passing game for the first time in the battle and gradually pulled up on even terms and took the lead. Canner dropped two fouls which Urban evened with a field basket. Canner added another point. Nordlund took a Boston shot off the back board and dribbled through the entire Boston team for a pretty basket, bringing the score to 16 to 14, the visitors still leading. Bolles tied the count with a long shot. Canner put the Blue and Gold in the lead with a free shot which Urban duplicated, again knotting the score. With eight minutes to play, Canner dusted off his rangefinder and added three points from the fifteen-foot line. Urban could not stand the pace and accounted for only one point. Canner cancelled this with another free throw. With two minutes to go, "Freddy" Tansill suddenly remembered that he had not yet electrified the spectators with his usual clean shot from mid-floor. He quickly rectified his omission and closed the home scoring. Boston made frantic efforts to tie the score in the last moments of play. Hickey succeeded in scoring a double counter, but the remainder of the visitors' shots went wild and fell into the hands of the waiting Trinity guards.

Captain Tansill's fighting spirit was the outstanding feature of the game. Closely following him came Nordlund and Miller. On these three men fell the brunt of Trinity's guarding game, and they put up a remarkable exhibition. Bolles and Canner alternated on the floor work and ably assisted in holding down the accurate eyes that Urban's coaching has developed. The passing game of both teams was kept in the background by the strong defense, almost all the shots attempted being long ones. For the losers, Urban was the outstanding figure. His team-mates fed him continually and he showed the same ability on the basketball court that made him an All-American end last fall.

The summary:

Trinity		Boston College

HOOVER DRIVE.

"Inasmuch As Ye Have Done it Unto
the Least of These, My Brethren,
Ye Have Done it Unto Me."

This week the "Hoover Drive" for the starving children of Europe is officially started. The cause is one of the most worthy of all the pre-war, war, and post-war activities. None of us can afford to neglect to respond to such a call as the thousands of starving are extending to us. Many of them are students, many of them if they are permitted to live, will be students. Can we not give them a small portion of that which we are enjoying? We, Americans, are extremely fortunate compared to our unfortunate brethren across the sea. Trinity has always stood for the Country and the Church. As loyal Americans, as true Christians, we can best fulfill our duty by giving aid to those who are so sorely in need of it.

MORE NOISE.

A marked improvement was shown in the cheering at the last basketball game. Let us try to keep up the good work. It helps the team; it boosts college spirit.

1923 SMOKER.

We notice that the Sophomore Smoker committee has arranged an excellent program for the annual event. It is not too early to start work to make the affair a success. We are sure that the whole college body will support the class of 1923, and we urge all those who are called upon for assistance to respond willingly. The Smoker boosts the college, we must all do our bit to help it along.

PROFESSOR GALPIN WRITES ON "LES ESCHEZ AMOUREUX."

Article in "Romanic Review" on Fourteenth Century French
Allegory.

Professor Stanley L. Galpin has an article in the current number of "The Romanic Review" entitled "Les Eschez Amoureux: A Complete Synopsis with Unpublished Extracts." The notes on which the article is based were made in the Dresden Royal Library during the summer of 1912. "Les Eschez Amoureux" is a French allegorical poem of the Fourteenth Century written in imitation of the well-known "Roman de la Rose." The first forty-four folios resemble the first part of the "Roman de la Rose", except that instead of going into the garden of love to pluck a rosebud the poet in his dream enters the garden and plays a game of chess with the object of his affections. The second part of the allegory (folios 45 to 144) is didactic, like the second part of the "Roman de la Rose." In it Pallas gives the poet advice and information on miscellaneous subjects (love, manner of living, Paris and its university, the various professions and how they should be pursued, the duties of husband and wife, the rearing of children, music, the music of the spheres, the value of physical exercise, the management of servants, the kind of house it is best to live in, the kind of water one should drink, and five ways to get rich).

Among the points of human interest in the poem is the poet's naive wonder at the size of city of Paris: "If you speak first of the people who live in it, the sum cannot be told. It is a regular ant-heap, for the people before and behind are as thick as the hair on your head." The students at its university are unusually industrious: "They study without stopping, both by night and by day, and endure all with patience in order to acquire virtue and knowledge." He makes two interesting points when speaking of the age at which one should marry. People should not marry when too old, he says, otherwise their children will not be old enough to support them when they are no longer able to work. Nor should they marry too young, because the children born of such a marriage would be too nearly of the same age as their parents and would not treat them respectfully.

BISHOP COOK PLAYED
BANDIT WITH JESSE JAMES.
Trinity Alumnus a Schoolmate of General Pershing as Well.

The Rt. Rev. Philip Cook, Bishop of Delaware, Trinity '98, is now the idol of all the small boys of the "bandit" age in his diocese, and the reason lies back in the days before the bishop matriculated at Trinity. When he was attending school, and playing at banditry and other forms of outlawry in Missouri, according to a speech at the Kiwanis Club in Washington, he had as his playmate the redoubtable Jesse James himself. General John J. Pershing was also a member of the "gang." The bishop did not state in his address which one of the three was the leader in the make believe hold ups, and other illegal expeditions.
