HOOVER LUNCHEON.

Student Body Eats Meagre Fare to Help Starving.

Almost $400 was raised for the Hoover European Relief Fund at a famine luncheon held in the college union Thursday, February 17. Nearly the entire student body ate stew of a type similar to that served in the relief kitchens in the stricken regions of the continent, each man paying a dollar for his lunch, and most of the men contributing more. The stew was prepared in the union cafeteria, and the students filed through, getting a ladle of stew in an army mess kit and two slices of white bread.

President Ogilby spoke after the meal, expressing his pleasure at the showing of the student body on this, the first chance it had had during his administration, to register as a unit. Walter S. Schutz, '94, told of his experiences with the Y. M. C. A. in Germany and Poland, and Judge L. P. W. Marvin spoke of the organization of the drive. John M. Holcombe, Jr., told of conditions in Vienna and cited one instance in which cannibalism resulted from the lack of food.

Says Europe Has War Spirit.

BISHOP NICHOLAI TELLS POLITICAL SCIENCE CLUB CONTINENT IS THREATENED BY REVOLUTION WITHIN AND YELLOW PERIL WITHOUT.

Bishop Nicholai of Ochrida, who is touring the United States on the invitation of a number of American colleges and churches, was the speaker at the last meeting of the Political Science Club, held in the public speaking room on February 15. Although educated in Europe himself, Bishop Nicholai severely arranged the educational system of which he was a product as a process developing merely brains as such, and giving no attention to the spirit, and declared that to feed the three and half million children with food alone, and not with the American spirit, would mean that they would be turned into three and a half million more war machines.

Bishop Nicholai said: "I represent a church which has a larger membership than the population of the United States; I represent the Serbian people, which is a small thing; and I represent the humanity of Europe which is a large thing. Serbia alone lost 1,300,000 lives during the war and now has 200,000 war orphans. The women are doing all of the men's work and they are cultivating the fields better than the men used to do. We in Serbia feel sorry for the Austrians, our enemies of yesterday, who are worse off than we are. As President of the Serbian Child Welfare Association I wish to thank you for your relief work. Your organization has been a very wonderful thing, and Europe thinks more of America now than she did when America entered the war and saved a very critical situation. But America must send many well educated men and women to Europe as well as food and money. She must educate the youth of Europe away from the war spirit. If you leave the three and a half million children now starving in Europe to European education, they will become merely three and a half million more war machines.

"Europe's situation today represents a most awful sight. Europe is broken, not only economically but spiritually and morally. Before Europe opened the great slaughter called the World War, she was broken in spirit and morals. America has been told only of the secondary causes of the war. The primary cause of it was Europe's wrong spirit—the spirit of materialism and pride. The present unhuman and anti-Christian spirit has been forming ever since the French Revolution. The most responsible agencies for the fall of Europe have been her churches and universities. The church was divided against itself and lost credit and influence. The universities have emphasized brain power and developed cleverness, caring nothing for the moral and spiritual behavior of their students. Some of the things done by university students, the men who have since become the intellectual leaders of Europe, are not fit for telling in this respectable company. At my own university I have seen professors come to the university in the morning and find the portals guarded by empty beer barrels and drunken students. The professors, however, merely smiled and passed on.

"It has been a one-sided education offered to the youth of Europe; knowledge divorced from conduct, man divorced from God, earth divorced from Heaven—it is no wonder

SUDDEN DEATH OF
EDWARD B. HATCH, '86.
Prominent Hartford Alumnus Succumbs to Pneumonia After Short Illness.

Edward B. Hatch, president of the Johns-Pratt Company, and one of the leading manufacturers of the state, died Friday afternoon, February 18, at his home in Hartford of pneumonia.

Mr. Hatch was born in Hartford, December 20, 1861, a son of George Edwin Hatch and Laura (Styles) Hatch. He was graduated from Trinity in the class of 1886 and the same year entered the employ of the Johns-Pratt Company, just being organized. The founders were Henry W. Johns of New York, and Rufus H. Pratt of Hartford. Mr. Johns was made president; Charles H. Patrick, vice-president, Mr. Pratt, secretary, and Mr. Hatch, clerk. Mr. Hatch, having thoroughly learned the business, was elected president and treasurer in 1898. He had continued as president since that time.

The business was very small at first, but developed gradually, and under Mr. Hatch's management increased to large proportions. The plant was increased as the business warranted until now approximately 500 hands are employed. The products of the company go all over the country.

Mr. Hatch served two terms as a Hartford water commissioner, and took a deep interest in that department.

He was first appointed in 1911, serving until 1914. In 1916 he was appointed a water commissioner again, to serve an unexpired term, and he resigned in 1917, being succeeded by Judge A. C. Bill.

He was a director in the Hartford-Aetna National Bank, vice-president of the Dime Savings Bank, vice-president and a director of the Hart & Hegeman Manufacturing Company and a director in the Hartford County Mutual Fire Insurance Company, the Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection & Insurance Company, the Holyoke Water Power Company, Jewell Belt- ing Company, Standard Fire Insurance Company and the Bush Manufacturing Company.

He was senior warden and one of the leading members of Trinity Church and a member of the Church Club of Connecticut. He was a member of Company K, First Regiment Connecticut National Guard, for five years.

In Masonry, Mr. Hatch was a member of St. John's Lodge, F. & A. M.; Pythagoras Chapter, R. A. M.; Wolcott Council, R. & S. M. and Washington Commandery, K. T. He was also a member of Sphinx Temple of the Mystic Shrine.

Mr. Hatch belonged to the Hart-

TRINITY QUINTET DEFEATS ALBANY.

FIRST GAME OF TRIP GOES TO HAMILTON—WEST POINT WORKS HARD TO WIN—CANNER STARS IN ALL GAMES.

(Special to THE TRIPOD.)

West Point, N. Y., February 23—Trinity is on the point of leaving West Point this morning for Hartford where the squad will put in its last practice on Thursday before it meets Harvard at the Hartford High gym on Friday night. The trip through New York has been a huge success, although the team only won one out of the three games played. This game, Albany, which from Hartford, looked like a game for the second team, turned out to be a real game, and forced the Trinity team to travel.

Hamilton was a disappointment, for after trimming them in Hartford, Trinity expected to repeat at Clinton. Nine hours traveling was too much of a handicap, and although the team fought well, it did not win. Hamilton gave the team a wonderful time after the game, and "Ed" Hyland and some of the other alumni met the boys in Utica.

Albany also entertained royally, and Major Read, '84, was on hand to root for the quintet.

When the team reached here it was agreeably surprised to find itself turned over to Noel, '21, who guided them around the military academy and looked after the team generally.

Things look good for a win over Harvard, especially as the team so clearly outplayed West Point, one of the strongest teams in the East, during the second half. It is likely that the same lineup that has started the games on the trip—Canner and Bolles, forwards, Miller center, and Nordlund and Tansill guards will start against Harvard.

Army 30, Trinity 21.

A remarkable come-back in the second half of the West Point game was the feature of the trip. The first period closed with the Army on the long end of a 22 to 7 score. In the second period the team showed the fight which has characterized their recent games to a superlative degree. They registered fourteen points to eight for the cadets making the final count 30 to 21. This spirit brought Canner into the limelight as an accurate shot and a great fighter. He dropped four baskets from the floor and played an aggressive defensive game which frequently broke up a threatened Army score.

In the first session Vickules, French, and Dabazies, the cadets' offensive trio found the basket with all sorts of sensational shots, caging three, four, and two goals, respective-

ANOTHER CHANCE.

There is still time, for those who have not already done so, to contribute to the European Relief Fund. The contributions from the college have nearly reached the four hundred dollar mark. If it is possible, Trinity should donate at least five hundred dollars. On Monday evening the Jesters are to give a performance, the proceeds of which are to be added to our previous contributions to Mr. Hoover's fund. Let us all turn out and support them.

COLLEGE ELECTIONS.

It is interesting to note that in the last Athletic Association voting, only sixty per cent. of the undergraduates cast ballots. We are all members of the A. A. It is the duty as well as the privilege of each one of us to take part in all elections. Under our system of voting, everyone has ample time during the day to cast his ballot. It is to be hoped that at the next elections we will register one hundred per cent. efficient.

BASEBALL.

Shortly there will be a call for baseball candidates. Indications are that we will have a good team this year, provided that the right interest is taken by the undergraduates. Everyone who has the least ability should report for practice at the first call, and should stick with the squad as long as his services are required.

Dr. Frank Crane says, "This world is working under the delusion that work is an affliction. Work is a God-blessed privilege!"

ATHLETES AND EXAMINATIONS

The accusation has not infrequently been made that the American colleges and went to show undue partiality to budding athletes. It is assumed that the young man who can bring fame to his Alma Mater by deeds of prowess upon the football field or the diamond will not be held too strictly to account if he cuts lectures or otherwise acquits himself poorly upon examinations.

This extremely current belief in large measure is unfounded. In most of the colleges the athlete obtains few favors of his instructors, and if he fails in his work he is dropped. Moreover, in this matter the faculties usually have the whole-hearted support of the student bodies themselves.

It is a pleasure to quote the following from the "Daily Princetonian" of January 29:

"More than ever before undergraduate opinion now supports the traditional Princeton attitude that no man will be kept in college merely because he is a valuable member of the football team or of any other team. No matter how good an athlete a man may be, he has no business in college unless he is willing to do his academic work. There is absolutely no excuse for the promiscuous cutting on the part of some of these men and their daily lack of preparation in preceptorials."

In other words the undergraduate and the alumnus in their desire to have the athlete kept in college bring pressure to this end, not upon the instructors, but upon the delinquent young man himself. If he shirks his work he is apt to find that his popularity with his college mates has waned perceptibly. It is a hopeful sign that the student today realizes that after all he attends college primarily to secure an education and not to win football games. If the spirit displayed by the "Daily Princetonian" is typical of that on every campus, it will be an easy matter to uphold the high standards of American education.—New York Sun.

TO EVERY UNDERGRADUATE.

The athletic association needs your support, not by giving, but by saving and helping others to save.

Every year hundreds of dollars' worth of equipment has to be replaced because of its misuse by the players and also by the negligence of managers and assistant managers in not keeping accurate record and care of this equipment. We are endeavoring to put into effect a new system whereby the managers will be more easily able to check up the athletic equipment, and the management asks the support of every undergraduate in making the replacement of athletic equipment less expensive. With just a little consideration on everyone's part we can very easily get back on to a basis whereby our bills can be paid on time, and also where we will not have to be continually asking the alumni for their support.

Named first were thy walls for the sire of a nation—
Its warrior with sword and its shepherd with rod.
His trust was thy trust, built on Christ the Foundation;
His hope in one Country, one Church and one God.

Halls thine, not profane as mere temples of learning,
Of classical lore, and of disputant creed,
Must lead in the thought whereto myriads are turning—
Of Christ the one Sower, His Word the one Seed.

Vaunt now in a Name which all others transcendeth—
The Name of thy Patron—One just yet severe.

That God to His Church of His Unity lendeth;

He liveth as One—so His Church must appear.

God Triune inflame thee! That God, whom thou preachest,
Illume thee to glow as a perishless sun!

Thy destiny hangs on the Truth that thou teachest;

Teach God and one Church, and the Victory is won.

And rent as was robe of your sacrificed Priest,

Emblazon your flag with His mitre and ephod;

His Ark make your ship, His true Body your Feast!

ford Club, the Farmington Country Club, the Hartford Golf Club, Republican Club of Hartford, and the University Club of Hartford. He was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity.

Mr. Hatch married Miss Georgia Watson, daughter of the late George W. Watson. Besides his widow, he leaves two children, Helen (Mrs. Richard J. Goodman) and James Watson Hatch of Hartford. Another son, Edward Watson Hatch, died in the service November 28, 1918.

He also leaves two grandchildren, James Watson Hatch, Jr., and Cynthia Hatch, children of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Hatch.

William R. Blair, '75.

William Robinson Blair, one of the best known members of the Allegheny Bar, and referee in bankruptcy for the Western District of Pennsylvania, died at his home in Pittsburgh on December 19, 1920, of pneumonia. He had been ill for three or four days.

Mr. Blair was born in Pittsburgh and was the son of John Cust Blair, a pioneer steel manufacturer associated with the Shoenberger Company, and Anne (nee Robinson) Blair, the daughter of General William Robinson, Jr. Mr. Blair prepared at St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire, and graduated with an A. B. degree from Trinity in 1875. He also graduated from the Columbia University Law School in 1878. He began the practice of law soon after his graduation. Upon the passage of the Federal Bankruptcy Act in 1898, he was appointed referee for his district. Mr. Blair's record in this important position proved him to be unexcelled, and he was recognized as an authority in bankruptcy procedure.

Mr. Blair was president of the St. Paul's School Alumni Association of Pittsburgh for twelve years, a member of the Pittsburgh Club, the Pittsburgh Golf Club, the Oakmont Country Club, and the Allegheny Country Club. He was a vestryman of Trinity Church, (Pittsburgh), of which the Rev. E. S. Travers, D. D., '98, is the rector, and a trustee of St. Margaret's Hospital. While at Trinity Mr. Blair was a member of the Beta Beta Chapter of Psi Upsilon Fraternity.

Lloyd Saltus, '87.

Lloyd Saltus, the son of Nicholas and Maria Seymour (Sanford) Saltus, died at his home in Morristown, N. J., on January 16, 1921.

He was born January 14, 1864, in Brooklyn, N. Y. He prepared for college at Saint Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and entered Trinity with the Class of 1887 but left in the middle of his Sophomore year.

In 1902 he married Miss Sarah Seaman of Brooklyn. He is survived by two sons and two daughters. A third daughter died about a year ago.

On leaving college he engaged in the grain commission business for a time and then undertook the study of law. In 1893 he took up art work, but the handicap of poor eyesight caused him to retire from all work until 1904, at which time he took up painting. Since 1912 he was an invalid.

A brother Rollia S. Saltus, who graduated in the class of 1892, survives him.

He was a member of the Psi Upsilon Fraternity.

FLAYS EUROPEAN EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

that divorce of married people is the star under which Europe is living. The richer Europe became in science, the lower she became in morals. The more she gained in wealth, the more she damaged her soul. Her spirit of goodness was gone before the war started. The deniers of Christ and the deniers of soul got the upper hand; Dostoevsky fell before Nietzsche; Gladstone and Alexander II before Bismark and the Kaiser; Beethoven before Oscar Wilde; St. Simon before Marx. And each of these leaders had an army of followers.

"The individual leaders of Europe were the cleverest brain machines. They talked of the 'great individual' and the 'superman.' The theory of man's ape origin darkened the human conscience and excited brutality. Europe lived on theories. She thought she was living a real life, but in fact she was living a life of fantasy and imagination.

"The peasantry of Europe is different from the town folk. It believes in God and in a moral law in life and in the universe. Goodness is the principle of life among the peasantry; cleverness among the townspeople. The difference between the two is very sharp and the animosity between them is growing. Another peasant war such as once before devastated Europe is not impossible. It is not the peasantry of Russia, however, who are back of the revolution there; they care for nothing except the destruction of the townsfolk, and it would seem that they had not long to wait for Petrograd, which before the war had a population of 2,000,000 now has but 500,000.

"Europe's condition today is a warning to America. Mankind is looking today to the Anglo-Saxon. America has shown a chivalrous spirit during Europe's catastrophe. She has joined what she considered the right side and fought well. But Europe is constantly breeding war and soldiers. The modern spirit of Europe is the war spirit. It is the spirit of war within the man himself and it must be projected in external wars.

"Let America look after the churches and universities. Let the churches of America confederate, if they cannot unite, and appear as one spiritual body before Europe. Let the American colleges and universities take care of the spiritual and moral education of the young generation. The spirit of the American people is cheerful, bright and charitable. Let the spirit be increased. Let the Americans who go to Europe be unashamed to mention the name of Christ. Let them pattern after George Washington, who said: 'Our highest glory ought to be the Christian character of our people.'

"America is trying to do her utmost to rescue Europe from her economic troubles. Europe's trouble is deeper than that. Only a spiritually and morally strong America can help Europe. Unless America helps Europe's regeneration (reconstruction is an idle term), Europe will perish in one of two ways; by revolution from within or the overflowing of the dark cloud of Asia which is already hanging over her. In the latter case, America will stand alone as the champion of the white race and of Christianity, and it will be too late for her to do anything for Europe. To prevent either catastrophe happening, America must send not only clothes and food and money; she must give of her spirit."

AID FOR HARDING.

TRIPOD Offers President Cabinet Selections of College Body.

Feeling that President-elect Harding might find the selections of such an intelligent body of men as the Trinity student body of interest in solving the perplexities with which he is beset in selecting his cabinet, THE TRIPOD last week forwarded to the next executive the results of a straw vote on the cabinet held at Trinity after the election last fall. It is undoubtedly owing to the fact that Mr. Harding has been rather busy pruning the inauguration program which his admirers sought, that no reply has been received as yet. The sentiment on the campus, however, is that our next president is to be forgiven for his failure to reply to even such a weighty communication.

Below is the letter sent to Mr. Harding:

Trinity College,
Hartford, Conn.,
February 15, 1921.

Hon. Warren G. Harding,

Dear Sir:

Enclosed you will find a copy of the Trinity College TRIPOD containing the results of a straw vote held by the students some time ago. They have considered the question of the probable personnel of the next cabinet, and we are sending you the results of the vote.

Respectfully,
THE TRIPOD BOARD.

Trinity's choice for the cabinet was: Secretary of State, Charles E. Hughes; Secretary of the Treasury, Frank O. Lowden; Secretary of War, General Leonard Wood; Secretary of the Navy, Admiral William S. Sims; Attorney General, former Senator Sutherland; Secretary of the Interior, Governor Allen; Secretary of Agriculture, Henry S. Wallace; Postmaster General, Will H. Hays; Secretary of Labor, John F. Burke; Secretary of Commerce, Walter Dickey.

Service Men Graduate.

Due to the fact that the war interrupted their course of study, several men have had to remain in college an extra half-year to make up the time lost by answering the call to the colors. The half-year having ended at mid-years, the following men have been graduated: E. G. Armstrong, J. H. Callen, N. C. Strong, E. E. Norris, H. T. Reddish, and G. A. Boyce.

Armstrong was a top sergeant in the S. A. T. C. at Trinity and was very efficient in that capacity. Callen, '21, was a sergeant in the S. A. T. C. and would have finished in three years had it not been for the half-year interval, as would Strong, '21, also an S. A. T. C. student. Norris, '19, was a member of Troop B, which was later made into the 101st Machine Gun Company. He went to France with that outfit and while there studied at the University of Rennes. Reddish, '20, was a second lieutenant in the Coast Artillery Corps and Boyce, '20, was in the U. S. N. R. F. Boyce is at present a master at St. Paul's School and Norris is a salesman.

Edward G. McKay, '17, spent the week-end on the campus. McKay is athletic director at the Norwich Free Academy and is teaching there, reading law in his spare time. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta and was captain of the baseball team while in college.

ALUMNI TO ELECT TRUSTEE ON JUNE 18.
Nominations for Successor to William S. Eaton Must be in by March 14.

The following notice has been sent to all alumni by the treasurer, regarding the election of a trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of William S. Eaton:

An election by the Alumni, of one Trustee, will be held Saturday, the 18th day of June next—said Trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of William S. Eaton.

It is required that the person to be voted for at this election shall have held for a period of at least five years a degree from Trinity College, and shall be previously placed in nomination by the votes of at least seven electors. As an Alumnus of the College you are, therefore, invited to make nomination for the said Trustee, and enclosed you will find a blank ballot for this purpose. Please forward the ballot in the enclosed envelope of the Treasurer, so that it shall come to hand on or before March 14, 1921.

On Tuesday, March 15, the ballots will be opened and counted by the Executive Committee, and each person receiving seven votes and upwards will be declared nominated as an Alumni Trustee and eligible at the election to be held June 18. Thereupon a list of such nominees will be sent to the Alumni with a blank ballot for the election.

"DON'T THINK MUCH OF THEM", LAMBERTON.
Trinity Coach Not in Favor of Houghton's Ideas on New Football Rules.

Coach Lambertson gave "The Courant" the following interview on the proposed changes in the football rules:

"Concerning Houghton's proposed changes I don't think much of them. It's a little pitched to say its becoming a combination of basketball and baseball. The shape of the ball alone would keep this from happening. Everybody admitted that the old game was too congested, too slow, and gave the defensive team too much advantage. This is also the cause of so much agitation in respect to baseball which gave rise to the new lively ball and the restrictions placed on the pitcher, etc. The old game was made for the lumbering, slow witted giant but since athletics have become so generally popular, people demand speed, weight and brains. How many fight followers would come to see a card made up wholly of heavyweight bouts?

"The forward pass opens up the area of possible attack and naturally the defense has to spread to meet it. To accomplish the spread, it takes speed and brains. Every coach will admit that a pass is dangerous, not twenty per cent. of those attempted a season are completed. The ball is hard to throw and hard to catch and it's no easy matter to get a man put in a position to make a catch. It takes ability and skill as well as the defense against an overhead attack, and ability and skill coupled with a mind to think quickly which the old player did not need to possess.

"About changes in the rules, I think they'd better leave them alone. As long as you have bodily contact, you'll have injuries. All these things could be left to the discretion of the officials under unnecessary roughness. It all comes down to a question of intent (legal training, etc.,) if it is obviously done to injure player, penalize it, if not, it's part of the game. It's my opinion and a good many others who I have talked to on the subject that they'd better let well enough alone. Of course, some people wouldn't be satisfied if St. Peter and the apostles drafted the rules, and others feel that in order to show your knowledge of the game you've got to criticize and suggest changes, but I think the vast majority are more than satisfied. The only change I think is at all worthy is that it should be required by the rules that the players be numbered. This would help the spectators and students to follow the plays. The scouts know the players, anyway, so it wouldn't make their work a great deal easier."

ly. French added to these four foul points.

Against this attack Trinity could register only two field goals, by Nordlund and Miller, and three fouls. The team played a more or less dense game in this period, particularly in passing and in missing easy shots under the basket.

The closing half found a different spirit in the team. They went into the fight like traditional Trinity teams do. The only Army men to score were the two guards who accounted for four baskets from the floor. Canner led the attack with four goals, long shots and short ones looking all the same to him. Bolles followed with two and was cheated out of several more by the fast backboard. Nordlund contributed one, which he caged after a pretty dribble.

That the game was exceptionally clean is evidenced by the fact that only five fouls were called in the second half when play was fierce.

Army		Trinity
Vichules	LF	Bolles
French	RF	Canner
Debezies	C	Miller
Pfeiffer	LG	Nordlund

Score, Army 30, Trinity 21; goals from field, French 4, Vichules 3, Debezies, Kessler for Whitman, Storick 4, Nordlund 2, Miller, Bolles 2; goals from fouls, French 4 out of 6, Smythe 0 out of 4, Canner 3 out of 7; substitutes, Army, Bennet for Vichules, Lawson for French, Whitson for Debezies, Kessler for Whitman, Storick for Pfeiffer, Timberman for Storick, Smythe for Kessler; Trinity, Hoard for Tansill; time of halves, 20 minutes; referee, Joe Deering, Columbia; umpire, Paul Looney, New York University.

Hamilton 24—Trinity 18.

Trinity lost a close game on the Hamilton court at Clinton, N. Y., Saturday, February 19, by a 24 to 18 score. Whether the all-day trip to Clinton, or the strange court, was responsible for the loss is uncertain, but one certain thing is that the team did not play their usual brand of basketball.

Trinity led at half time, 12 to 9, but in the second period could cage only one field basket. Extremely inefficient work on the part of Referee Bachelor aided in keeping down the score. Hacking, pushing, and running with the ball went unpunished by the official who instead called time out and requested the two teams to stop such rough playing.

In the first period Canner scored twice from the floor and four times from the foul line, while Miller and Tansill contributed two points each, Captain Tansill's shot being of the usual sensational variety.

In the second half Bolles broke into the score and Canner caged each of the four fouls called on Hamilton.

For the home team Lawlor, the big forward, was the whole scoring machine, and accounted for as many points as the entire Blue and Gold team.

The summary:

Trinity		Hamilton
Bolles	LF	Lawlor
Canner	RF	Keehn
Miller	C	Garner
Tansill	LG	Cowan, Campbell
Nordlund	RG	Stern

Score, Hamilton 24, Trinity 18; goals from floor, Bolles, Canner 2, Miller, Tansill, Keehn, Lawlor 4, Cowan, Campbell; goals from fouls, Canner 8, Lawlor 10; referee, Bachelor, Springfield; time of halves, 20 minutes.

Trinity 19—Albany Law School 15.

Albany Law School showed surprising strength on the second game of the trip and held the team to a 19 to 15 victory. The game was the first defeat Albany has suffered on their home court. Although the score was close, Trinity threw away enough easy scoring chances to run the score over the thirty mark. The team showed decided improvement in their defensive work over that exhibited at Hamilton but could not sink their shots. The only brilliant offensive play of the game was made by Canner in the second half when he caged a long, low shot from the center of the floor.

In the second half the lawyers came within a point of tying the score. Trinity did not register a point in this period until eleven minutes after play began. During this same time Albany counted three points. Only one foul was called on the home team in the second half.

Trinity		Albany Law School
Bolles	RF	Powers, Valentine
Canner, Hoard	LF	D'Aprile
Miller	C	Taylor
Tansill	RG	Behan
