WESLEYAN AND TRINITY.

A bit of news more welcome than the resumption of athletic relations with Wesleyan is hard to imagine, unless, of course, it were that compulsory chapel were to be abolished or unlimited cuts granted. The generation which bore the unnatural grudge against Wesleyan culminating in the unsavory incident of four years ago has gone, leaving, it is our belief, not the slightest vestige of its unseemly attitude.

The present generation at Trinity holds the neighboring institution in highest esteem. A number of Trinity men, fortunately many of them Freshmen, have attended Wesleyan social affairs, and owe the Middletown students considerable gratitude for their hospitality. There has been no evidence of ill feeling against Wesleyan among Trinity undergraduates for two years at least, and although the Freshman and Sophomore classes have heard of former conditions, none of them have developed that belligerent spirit which characterized their predecessors.

Times have changed for the better, it seems. No man at college today could imagine a pitched battle with a "Frog Hollow" gang, and yet, we are told, such occurrences were not uncommon. The West Siders and Trinity students, owing to the influence of Coach Drew, perhaps, are the greatest of friends. And the same absence of ill-feeling exists for Wesleyan today.

Now that the whole trouble has blown over, let us hear no more about a Wesleyan-Trinity feud. Let by-gones be by-gones.

PRIZES AT TRINITY.

It has been a source of wonder to members of the Faculty that students do not take advantage of the numerous scholarships and prizes offered by the college. There are few colleges which offer as many prizes for scholastic effort as Trinity. Upper classmen know that; why they do not seize their opportunities is a mystery. Perhaps the Freshmen are not aware of them. Here are some of the prizes open for competition to members of the Freshman Class:

Two prizes of $30 and $20, respectively, are open to Freshmen taking Chemistry II.

Three prizes of $25, $20 and $15, respectively, for the best essays on subjects to be selected in consultation with the Professor of English.

Two prizes of $30 and $20, respectively, are open to the winners of the above essay prizes and one other, for the delivery of their essays.

A prize of $50 for the best essay on a subject to be announced.

A prize of $25 for that member of the Class of 1924 who shall have held during his college career the highest average standing in the courses in Physical Training. While this prize is not awarded until the Senior year, work done in "gym" courses this year counts toward it.

For two years the instructor in Freshman English has offered a prize for the best oration delivered by one of six members of the class chosen by him. The prize offered heretofore has been a book.

A prize of $600 to the student attaining the highest rank in the Freshman class. More definite information concerning prizes can be found in the College Catalog.

AGAIN THE GLEE CLUB.

Last Monday, in the student-body meeting, President Ogilby announced that the Glee Club would be financially backed by the Trustees for a concert downtown to the extent of two hundred dollars. He expressed the hope that the club would continue its good work. Every one applauded, which must signify that their hopes were somewhat similar. But, unfortunately, the club now is not continuing this good work. The last two rehearsals Mr. Paramov has had the remarkable turnouts of twenty-one and twenty-two faithful souls, which includes three new recruits.

The Glee Club needs more men, men who can read music, who can sing, or even those who can do one without the ability for the other. Is it going to get them or not? That's the present dilemma. The club is a success so far; there is sufficient financial backing to make the concert a reality. The question is: Are we going to let it fail in such a disgraceful manner? Are we going to give opportunity for the faculty to say as usual, "I told you so?" and let them be justified again in their already sufficiently justifiable misgivings about all student-projects?

Mr. Paramov has worked, worked well and hard. The Glee Club members have given up their time, just as valuable as yours perhaps. Do you think you can justifiably allow yourself to be the cause for the failure of Trinity's first real Glee Club in years? For the love of your college, for the love of yourself, for the love of Mike, or any kind of love or even hate, come out and make the Glee Club go!

ST. PATRICK'S DAY SCRAP.

In a few weeks the campus will be the scene of one of those time-honored affairs, commonly known as an inter-class scrap. St. Patrick's Day, dear to the heart of every true Hibernian, will soon be here and with it the annual big scrap between the Sophomore and Freshman classes.

It is hoped that the powers that be in this noble pile will draw up certain specific regulations governing this affair, which must be strictly held to by the contestants.

Last year every one in attendance at the scrap, with the exception of the Freshmen, were greatly surprised when a large auto truck appeared on the scene. Wise indeed was the budding Bismarck who planned and executed this scheme so well. However, it is quite apparent that aerial bombs and poison gas would be of great discomfort to the spectators as well as those engaged in the cultivated art of removing shirts from others' backs.

HOW MEDIEVAL STUDES SOCKED THEIR EXAMS.

Many and diverse are the methods that have been and are employed by college students in their efforts to "hit" mid-year and final exams. The following dialogue between two students of the University of Heidelberg, quoted from the "Manuale Scholarium", a Freshman Bible of 1481, shows how the boys of the Middle Ages used to go about it.

Cam.—"I have a letter from my parents, from which I learn that unless I take the examinations, I shan't get any more help from them. Anguish torments me, and fear disturbs my soul."

Bar.—"Why so?"

Cam.—"I fear I shall not be promoted."

Bar.—"Why not?"

Cam.—"Many things are in the way. I haven't done up my work, and my masters dislike me; I've accomplished little, and I fear I'll be rejected. So, you see, 'tis no small matter that distresses and disturbs me."

Bar.—"Consult your master. He knows what ought to be done and what avoided in this matter."

Cam.—"I have consulted him. He advises against it; he says I know too little."

Bar.—"I know his frame of mind: he's out to scare you. But why should you be so afraid? Quite obviously there will be much more ignorant ones than you in the examination. As for me, I should assume some courage; you know that the timid accomplish nothing."

Cam.—"There's something in what you say; but fortune isn't always fair. If I should be turned down, my master would think himself excused, because of his warning. I should be so terribly disgraced that I couldn't look my father and mother in the face. I should have nothing, and should be the laughing stock of all."

Bar.—"But it isn't such a serious matter. Listen to just one word: If you have money, you can bestow tokens of honor and respect on your examiners. In our age, gifts do much; for three or four florins, you'll buy the favor of all."

Cam.—"Your advice is good. Already I feel better."

Bar.—"And you must follow it. If you want anything from a peasant, you must first get his good will, or your labor is futile."

Cam.—"I don't think I shall venture in vain, for my hands will be full of money."

Bar.—"Do you remember reading in Orvid:

'Believe me, men and gods with gifts are pleased;

Even angry Jove with offerings is appeased?'

Cam.—"I'll tell my parents to send me more money."

Bar.—"How much did you just get?"

Cam.—"At the last market, the merchants gave me ten florins. I'll write for ten more. Before the examination, I'll make a collation, (a 'feed'), and invite all the masters whom I've ever offended by word or deed, and I'll set them up handsomely to get their favor. (See foot note.) But look here, another thing is bothering my head."

Bar.—"What's that?"

Cam.—"I haven't been attending my courses regularly, and wherever I haven't been enrolled in lectures and exercises, I fear I shall get no certificate."

Bar.—"You'll get it done all right, for your master is obliging, and often gives a boost to others, when they ask anything of him. Call your master by name, and I'm sure you'll get whatever you seek, even if you've never been in the lectures."

Cam.—"You encourage me. But I shall be perjured!"

Bar.—"Every promoted bachelor is perjured, and everyone knows that few of the masters themselves are free from this disease."

Cam.—"I see a merchant to whom I must speak. So long!"

Note—"Several ingenious candidates have confessed to me that they never studied an hour, nor looked into any system of the sciences, till a month before they were examined. How well the examiners perform their duty, I leave to God and their own consciences * * * It is also well known to be a custom for the candidates either to present their examiners with a piece of gold, or to give them a handsome entertainment, and make them drunk; which they commonly do the night before examination, and sometimes keep them till morning, and so adjourn, Cheek by Jowl, from their drinking room to the school, where they were to be examined.—Quaere, whether it would not be very ungrateful of the examiner to refuse any candidate a testimonium, who has treated him so splendidly over night?" SOUNDS CALL TO BALL PLAYERS

BASEBALL COACH FRED STONE.

BASEBALL PROSPECTS.
 Infield letter men, who have returned to college, are: Norman, first baseman; Cronin, the pigmy, hard hitting shortstop; and Newsholme, the stellar fielding third baseman. The second base position will be hotly contested, as several men in the Freshman class have signified their intention of going out for it in addition to last year's reserves.
 A veteran outfield delegation will be on hand to take care of the outer gardens. Keating, Pryor, and Shields, letter men, and Riley Dixon, Wright, and several others, will compete for the right to hold down a regular job out where the clover grows. Jones, regular backstop for two seasons, will doubtlessly hold down the same position this year, with Pryor, another catcher of ability.
 Trinity's adherents are counting upon these experienced 'varsity and Freshman players to build up the fallen prestige on the diamond this spring. The season will open on April 15 when Lowell Textile furnishes the opposition on the home field.

Tonight Trinity was defeated by one of the strongest teams it has met this season 25 to 15. The University of Maine quintet is one of the strongest outfits in New England, having defeated the Atlas team, champions of Connecticut, and lost to Yale by only three points.
 For the first few minutes of the initial half neither team scored a point. Finally Maine scored a field goal which started things for them. From that time on the Pine Tree statesmen were never outpointed. At the end of the first half the score stood 20 to 7 in favor of the University of Maine. Ten of the Maine-ites points were free tries.
 Trinity seemed to take on a new lease of life in the second stanza and played an entirely different game out-scoring the blue- and gray-clad men from Maine by eight points during the half.
 The game was slow for the most part, but interrupted at times by the brilliant dribbling of Captain Berg of Maine, who was easily the outstanding star of the game making 9 points for his team. Everett dropped six out of eight free shots.
 Captain Keating, of the Hilltop five, played a fast game, but was kept guessing by Berg. Keating starred for Trinity, making 3 field goals.

The Best Business Career

IS what every ambitious senior is thinking about at the present time. Life insurance is one of the best, one of the most desirable, and one of the most satisfactory as a permanent calling.

In assets and volume of business, life insurance is one of the three leading businesses of this country, yet the field is comparatively underdeveloped. Only 7 per cent of the economic value of human life in the United States is covered by insurance. This gives an idea of the big field still to be worked, especially business insurance for firms and corporations.

As to remuneration: Reports of college graduates who have entered business indicate that life insurance is at the very top as a source of income. Now is the time for you to consider what you are going to do after graduation. If you are ambitious and willing to work hard and are interested to know about life insurance, address

WESLEYAN AND TRINITY.

Wesleyan found it unadvisable to alter or lengthen her schedule. However, it is generally understood that a grid-iron encounter will take place the following year.

"The news is hailed with satisfaction by the students of both institutions, who feel that there is no longer ground for estrangement. There has been practically a complete turn-over in the personnel of the student bodies of both colleges since the unfortunate incident of four years ago; those between whom a bitter feeling existed have passed into the ranks of alumni. It is then entirely within the bounds of reason and good common sense that athletic relations be resumed. Proximity has made such action but a matter of time. It seems absurd that two institutions containing red-blooded young Americans should hold aloof from each other; their common interests demand that they consider the matter intelligently. The battle ax has been buried, and the pipe of peace passed around. Let us hope that in the future Trinity and Wesleyan will consider each other in the light of sincere friendship."

A Class Distinction

The Hinge-Cap is the insignia of Williams Shaving Cream and of Williams only. You'll notice three things about Williams every time you shave. 1. Williams lather is heavier and holds the moisture in against the beard. Quicker and more thorough softening takes place. 2. Williams lather lubricates your skin — your razor actually seems to "glide" the hairs off. 3. Williams lather leaves the skin in marvelously fine condition. No matter how frequently you shave, your face stays cool, smooth and comfortable.

You'll enjoy every shave with Williams. It is a pure, natural-white cream without any artificial coloring whatsoever.
