SOPHS CAPTURE FIRST SPOT IN INTRAMURALS

Frosh Hold Second Place—Seniors and Juniors Tied

The Sophomore Class walked away with the interclass basketball pennant yesterday afternoon by winning its sixth victory, defeating the Freshman Five 27 to 15. The Frosh combination made second place by winning four games and losing two, while the Juniors and Seniors tied for third spot each with five defeats and one victory to their credit.

Monday afternoon the Sophomores added their third triumph by outclassing the Juniors 27 to 17. The 1926 quintet was made up of Burr and Newsholme, forwards, Sampers, center; Riley and Thoms, guards. Burr and Sampers starred for the winners. The losing team included Freeman and Peiker, forwards, Birch, center, Merchant and Lischner, guards.

The same day the Freshmen handed the Seniors a decisive defeat by outpointing them 19 to 5. The Frosh five was composed of Mairs and Kennedy, forwards, Dixon, center, Fliess and Bloodgood, guards; the Senior lineup comprised Quinn and Tuozzolo, forwards, Terrell, center, Dorison and Thomas, guards.

Wednesday afternoon the Seniors forfeited their match to the Sophomores. The Juniors forfeited their game to the Freshmen after having piled up a lead of eight points. Freeman, forward on the 1925 team, protested a personal foul pronounced on him by referee Fred Stone. He was given another foul for disputing the referee's decision and Peiker, captain of the Junior quintet, entered the argument. Whereupon the referee ordered the latter from the floor; the rest of his team followed him.

Friday afternoon the series wound up with the Sophomore-Freshman contest, ending 27 to 15 in favor of the former, and an exciting over-time game between the two upper classes, won by the Seniors 26 to 23. The Juniors were in the lead until Merchant was forced from the game for personals, leaving them with only four men. When the last whistle was sounded the score read 23 to 23, but in the extra period the Seniors tacked on one field goal and one try after foul.

The standings:

	Won	Lost
Sophomores,	6	0
Freshmen,	4	2
Juniors,	1	5

BASEBALL PRACTICE TO START NEXT MONDAY.

Coach Fred Stone has issued the first call for baseball candidates and has announced that the first practice will be held in Alumni Hall Monday afternoon. Six letter men have signified their intentions of turning out for berths on the regular nine: Captain Norman, first baseman; Cronin, shortstop; Newsholme, third baseman; Jones, catcher; Mackinnon and Shields, outfielders. Stone's hopefuls for the pitching staff are Comfort, who has great speed and considerable "stuff" on the ball, Newsholme, who may develop into a snappy little twirler, McKniff, who served as reserve pitcher last season and showed more than a little ability in the Mass. Aggies and St. Stephen's games, and Farrell, who occupied the mound for his preparatory school, Barnard of New York City.

ARCHAEOLOGIST TALKS OF GREEK EXCAVATIONS

"Pre-historic Greece; a Study in Archaeological Reconstruction", was the lecture given by Director A. J. B. Wace, of the British School of Archaeology in Athens and Charles E. Norris lecturer of the Archaeological Institute of America, in the Public Speaking Room Thursday evening. Mr. Wace's talk was profusely illustrated with stereopticon slides of old and new archaeological discoveries in Greece and in the territory in the vicinity of the Aegean Sea. The lecture was made possible by the bequest made last year by Charles E. Moore, '76, whose intention was to stimulate interest in the study of Greek.

Mr. Wace spoke as an authority, having made numerous important investigations and excavations at Mycenae since he became connected with the British School in 1914. Previous to that time he had been in charge of the excavations at Sparta which revealed the shrine of Helen and Menelaus, besides conducting similar work in Thesaly and Corinth.

Mr. Wace described the discoveries made at Mycenae in 1876 which were of such great importance and significance as to create world-wide interest, such as has recently been manifested in the excavations in the Valley of Corinth. (Concluded on page 4.)

HAWLEY AND WEBSTER AWARDED FELLOWSHIPS

Faculty Selects Russell and Terry Scholars of '24

W. Hawley, '25, and S. W. Webster, '23, were announced as the recipients, respectively, of the Russell and Terry Fellowships by the Faculty Tuesday afternoon. Both fellowships provide funds for graduate study at Trinity or any other approved institution.

Hawley entered college three years ago and is eligible for graduation this June. His home is in Hartford. Webster, whose home is in Bel Air, Maryland, is a member of St. Anthony Hall. He was elected to the Medusa in the Spring of 1922, but did not return until last fall.

S. W. WEBSTER, '24.

The Russell Fellowship, awarded Hawley, endowed by a legacy of $10,000 from Henry E. Russell, Esq., of New York, yields an annual income of about $500. It is awarded biennially, by vote of the Faculty, to a member of the graduating class who gives evidence of superior ability, and who engages to pursue an approved course of non-professional graduate study at Trinity, or at some American or foreign university approved by the Faculty. The incumbent holds the Fellowship for two years.

The Terry Fellowship, awarded Webster, endowed by a legacy from Miss Mary A. Terry, of Hartford, yields an annual income of about $600. It is awarded annually by the President, upon the recommendation of the Faculty, to a member of the graduating class who gives evidence of superior ability, and who engages to pursue an approved course of graduate study at Trinity, or at some other college or university approved by the Faculty. The incumbent holds the Fellowship for one year, and is known as the Mary A. Terry Fellow.

B. U. GAME CANCELLED, LEAVING EIGHT SLATED.

The game with Boston University, scheduled for May 10 at Hartford, has been cancelled, according to an announcement made by Manager D. M. Hadlow, '25, Thursday afternoon. Through some delay on the part of the Athletic Advisory Council in negotiating the guarantees, the Hub authorities allowed the date to go to another college. The loss of the Boston U. game leaves only three home games on the meager Trinity slate, those with Lowell Textile, Dartmouth and Wesleyan, the C. C. N. Y. game having been cancelled by the council a week ago. The whole schedule now comprises but eight games. The Memorial Day game has not been arranged, though it is known that Manager Hadlow is trying to sign up contests with Rochester and Colgate for a western trip.

LABRADOR MISSIONARY GIVES PHASES OF WORK

Picturing Labrador as a place where romance, adventure and outdoor life abound, Dr. Harry Paddon, surgeon and head of the Indian Harbor Hospital and who for more than fifteen years has been connected with the Grenfell Mission of Labrador, gave a talk on missionary work among the Labrador fishermen at the chapel exercises Friday morning. Dr. Paddon joined Dr. Grenfell's Mission when he was only sixteen years old. He returned to London, England, his home, and studied medicine, then went back to Labrador to remain in connection with the missionary work ever since.

One of the greatest crimes of the age, said the speaker, is misrepresentation. Pictures of missionaries in broad-brimmed hats reading the Bible to naked savages under palm trees deceive young men. Dr. Paddon admitted that he had entertained a mistaken idea of missionary work until he plunged into the work at the mouth of Hamilton Inlet, Labrador, with Dr. Grenfell. He described Grenfell as a sportsman, a gentleman, and a man with a boundless capacity for doing good.

Young men who have worked for the Grenfell Mission have enjoyed it because in Labrador their dreams of romance, adventure and out-door life become realities. They have taken a hand in everything: tarring the hospital roofs, liming the walls, "spilling up" freight from the railroad trains,

"ROLLO'S WILD OAT" SUB-FRESHMAN COMEDY

Jesters to Present Play at Hartford Club, May 10

"Rollo's Wild Oat", a three-act comedy, by Clare Kummer, which scored a success at the Punch and Judy Theatre, New York City, with Roland Young in the leading role, has been picked by the Jesters for their Sub-Freshman Week-End production, to be staged at the Hartford Club Saturday, May 10.

G. W. O'Connor, '24, chairman of the Week-End committee, announced last week that the Jesters would undertake the entertainment, instead of allowing the Student Body to put on its own musical show, as in former years. The Jesters decided to hold the show at the Hartford Club in place of Alumni Hall, where Sub-Freshman entertainments have been presented hitherto. No action was taken by the Student Body in the matter.

The cast for "Rollo's Wild Oat" has not been selected. Mrs. Halley Gelbart Reynolds, who coached the Jesters' Junior Week-End play, "The Turtle Dove", will supervise the coaching of this production. The feminine roles of the comedy will be taken by students.

In the try-outs held in the Public Speaking Room, last Tuesday, the following men were selected for speaking parts in the Sub-Freshman Week-End play: M. E. Dann, '26, B. E. Dubin, '25, R. R. Eastman, '24, W. S. Fliess, '27, A. H. Forrester, '27, L. A. Mansur, '25, G. W. O'Connor, '24, W. J. Schuyler, '27, W. H. Segur, '27, M. B. Sherman, '26, H. W. Smalley, '27, J. Williams, Jr., '26, and P. O. Zwissler, '25.

Sereno B. Gammell, '24, is president of the Jesters; N. W. Manocchio, '26, production manager, and M. E. Dann, '26, advertising manager.

EVENING OF FRENCH MUSIC FOR STUDENTS

An evening of French music will be afforded students Thursday, March 27, when the Julius Hartt School of Music of Hartford will give a concert in Alumni Hall under the auspices of the college French club.

S. Berkman, '16, of Hartford, will give a brief sketch of the history of French music. Miss Harriet Hartt, pianist, and Mr. Mosche Paronov, pianist and director of the college Glee Club, will play, accompanied by a cellist and a violinist. Mrs. Robert Green of Hartford will sing characteristic French songs in costume.

cruising the hospital boat, and taking sick watches. So great is the attraction of the territory, said Dr. Paddon, that he is never happy until he has returned to it.

Speaking of the religious phase of the work, the speaker said, that the Labrador missions are in a probationary stage and, therefore, did not wish to force any one belief on the people. That rare thing, practical idealism, is to be found in the work. There is no strife among the men of all sorts of religious denominations, "God is Love" being the common creed of all men. It is a disillusionment, Dr. Paddon stated, to find the churches wasting their strength in civilized countries in bitter controversies. "An honest doubter is ever worth more than a superficial unbeliever", is his opinion. It is not seldom the case for men to go to teach the wilderness dwellers the beauties of Christianity and instead themselves receive a lesson in the solutions of the great problems of life from those whom they intended to teach.

ON FINANCES.

The most disturbing and also the most comforting element in our daily life is money. When we are chased for it we are uneasy and unhappy; when we receive it we are happy and carefree. Placing it in this light the Finance Committee is the Simon Legree of the college and all its members are of the hated money-lending class. Yet when we look at it sensibly we can't help but admit that the committee is performing a very important function of college life. The bill put through the Senate that created the Finance Committee is so far the most constructive piece of legislation yet produced by the alleged dead student body. In spirit like the Federal Reserve Act it has organized and solidified all our money activities and has enlarged our credit with the business men of Hartford. Where in former times credit for the students to run their activities was lacking, now we can get credit with any of the business houses through the sanction of our Finance Committee. I know of nothing that tends to put a more shady aspect on any institution or organization than having a poor credit standing. The credit rating of a man in business reflects his own attitude toward life in many cases and surely this makes it worth while to guard our business reputation if for no other reason.

No doubt there are many hitches in the working of the actual machinery of the committee as it stands, but for a new unit on the campus I have yet to find its equal for efficiency. I do not say this boastfully, but merely to point out to the students that it is working and will continue to work in better fashion in the succeeding years in proportion to the co-operation given by the students themselves. For the most part the men have assisted the members of the committee to do their work; to these men we offer thanks. But in many cases men have not only refused to pay but have intimated that it would take nothing less than a pair of oxen to extract the money from them. Without question these men have their own idea as to the necessity of paying the assessments made. But they cannot deny that they were made by the student body and it is up to them to live up to the rules since they did not see fit to offer an objection that was sustained by their fellow students who are living under the same conditions and experiencing the same difficulties, under which they live. The following is enlightening:

Unpaid Assessments	Amount
29	$177.00
Total Balance all Classes,	$709.56

About 15 per cent. of the men in college have not paid their last term's campus bills. Isn't that a bit too large for a college so small? Can't we have a little better spirit than that? If credit in business reflects the business man's spirit, then credit in college reflects the college spirit. Do we want it said that of the 200 men we have here, only 85 per cent. are really here? I don't believe any man in college wants that said and so the only remedy is to make up the deficiency.

One of the great difficulties of the Finance Committee is that it has no real power. That is, it cannot enforce its right to collect the money supposed to be paid in for the activities on the campus. It seems to me that if it could have the power to recommend suspension for non-payment of bills without sufficient excuse another step in the right direction would be made. Of course, it is infinitely better to collect these assessments without a fuss but if the men must be driven, then some way of doing it must be devised.

The figures show a balance now; let's leave them that way and come across with the next term's assessments.

FRANK S. JONES,
President Senate Finance Committee.

THE CALL TO LABRADOR.

If you get no satisfaction out of doing something for some one else without pay for so doing, then don't read this article.

Elsewhere in this paper there appears the substance of a talk given last Friday in chapel by Dr. Paddon on the work of the Grenfell Association in Labrador.

One of Dr. Paddon's motives in coming to talk to you was this. The Grenfell Association can use this summer in Labrador young men of your age who are willing to go there and work for the Association. Such men must pay all their expenses such as the cost of the trip to Labrador and return—and board while there. They receive no remuneration for their services, but that highly satisfactory one of doing something for someone else.

Imagine, if you can, the life of the people in Labrador, ice bound the greater part of the year, and completely isolated in small settlements. Until the coming of Dr. Grenfell they had no means of getting medical attention. Due to malnutrition, because of poor fishing seasons many of them contracted tuberculosis. The Grenfell Association has greatly altered this situation. These people now receive medical attention, and in severe cases are given food to carry them through the long winters by the Association. In almost every case have these people paid back to the Association in full value for food given them.

The Association wants you to help them this summer. Can you paint a house, or help build one? Can you sail a boat? Can you dig a ditch? Are you a good machinist? If so, get in connection with the International Grenfell Association, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

—A LABRADOR ENTHUSIAST.

A PUSSY-FOOT OUT OF PLACE.

What manner of law or moral principle must it be that has to be defended by men surreptitiously and with fear of detection? We print below a communication which came to us quite anonymously.

The Editor of THE TRIPOD:
"_____ expects every man to be a gentleman." Thus ran a spirited notice sent to the members of the senior class at a certain college urging them to make their Prom a "dry" affair.

"Conduct at social functions is always an index to the reputation of a college class", so the notice continues.

"Every man a gentleman" is a proper slogan for the graduating class of any university or college. It is the proper approach to the drinking problem in collegiate life. Incidentally, it sets an example worth considering to men of more mature years who pride themselves on their gentility.

If the Trinity seniors by these self-denying ordinances can keep their Proms dry, when by a little trouble and ingenuity they could be made very "wet" indeed, they would materially aid law enforcement in the City of Hartford. They will both reflect the steady and growing light of public opinion, and give its beams new warmth and strength.

Those who attended the Junior Prom in February will agree with the editor that this bit of moralistic waving-of-the-flag is wholly uncalled for. We do not wish to embarrass the writer, but to the influence of what can we attribute his thinking that his fellow collegians were the least "queer" at the Prom?

YALE HAS ITS GUNDELFINGER AND TRINITY ITS TOMES.

Up from the dim forgotten ages when our Alma Mater was Washington College, and was situated "in the suburbs of Hartford", comes a delightfully dust-laden breath from the past in the form of a little book by Robert Tomes, '35. "My College Days", as indicated by its name, is an account of the author's career as a student, the early days of which were spent at Trinity. While, therefore, the discussion of that period occupies but a portion of the entire book, there is included in that portion a sufficient number of incidents to make it well worth mentioning.

Tomes, it seems, came from New York to Washington College "an institution lately established by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Brownell", with no very definite aim as to a career. This difficulty was, however, pleasantly overcome by his roommate's choosing the practice of medicine as an occupation. Tomes being strongly attached to this roommate made a like selection that they might continue their pursuit of knowledge unseparated. This little act is the spirit and keynote of the entire general attitude of the student during his time at Trinity. Perhaps there is much to criticize in the opinions he sets forth as well as the untrammelled manner in which he expresses them, but on the other hand they are his own impressions and a most valuable mirror of what one student really thought of the college.

A few extracts from the book itself will serve to give an idea of the vast differences between the college of that day and of our own:

Of transportation: "In those days there were no railroads; the only means of travel from New York to Hartford were by the steamboat and mail-coach, or 'stage.' * * * Sailing along Long Island Sound and up the Connecticut River, we landed at the wooden pier of the little capital city, where we were greeted on our arrival by a large concourse of curious people and noisy boys; for in those days the coming in of the boat was an event which awakened the interest of the whole population."

Of student expenses: "For one dollar and seventy-five cents a week, the highest price paid, those hungry youths were supplied daily with three substantial meals."

Of Hog River: "A very pretty, clear stream, winding along banks alternately of smooth pasture-land, knolls tufted with wild growth, and forest woods."

Of Hartford: "It retained so much regard for its traditional Puritanism as to begin the Sabbath, according to the Jewish model, on the Saturday evening, when all the shops were closed, and every amusement as well as business suddenly ceased. * * * There was no theatre, the repeated demands for the establishment of one being severely refused by the public authorities."

Of student attire: "They used to lounge in their rooms, or even attend chapel and the lectures, and go about the college grounds and neighborhood in a negligence of person and attire that greatly shocked me. Their habitual dress was a long, loose, and almost shapeless gown of thin printed calico."

Of enrollment: "There were not more than sixty or seventy students in all. * * * There were seventeen students in the Freshman class when I entered."

Of behavior: "Hazing and smoking of Freshmen, blocking up chapel doors and breaking locks, infecting recitation-rooms and rendering them uninhabitable, barring out president and professors, transferring tin signs and sign-boards from town shops to college walls, and other ancient observances were duly honored."

Of the Faculty: "The Professors seemed to me in the recitations as if they only had an hour's start of the pupils. * * * Some were absurdly unfit for their places."

Of Bishop Brownell: "A venerable, amiable man, who performed his collegiate duties in a very perfunctory manner. Contenting himself with a good-natured smile to every student he met, and an occasional homily on some general moral obligation, delivered in his peculiarly bland manner from the chapel rostrum or pulpit, he left the rest to his incompetent subordinates, who were equally remiss in fulfilling their duties as guardians and teachers."

Of Henry Clay: "He was received by the whole body of students. * * * 'I did not,' he said, 'come here to be treated with any form or ceremony, but to see you as friends; in a word, to take a drink and a chew of tobacco with you.'"

Of athletics: "We played no outdoor games, regarding cricket and foot and baseball and other invigorating pastimes as quite below the dignity of collegiate students. * * * We occasionally, however, took a sleigh-ride en masse to Wethersfield, famous for its onions, its pretty girls and its delicious 'flip.'"

Of Tomes' degree: "The parchment has turned yellow with age, but the view of the college at the top is clearly discernible, with the projected wing that was never built, added to give completeness to the picture, but which to me is only the symbol of the sham establishment whose pretensions were always full in advance of its performances."

And finally of Tomes himself: "From the very first recitation I proved a superiority to all my fellows, which I bore easily to the end of my collegiate course."

A DENIAL OF ALTRUISM.

To the Editor of THE TRIPOD:
I was mildly astonished to read, in the issue of THE TRIPOD dated February 23, the following paragraph:

"For two years the instructor in Freshman English has offered a prize for the best oration delivered by one of six members of the class chosen by him. The prize offered heretofore has been a book."

I infer from this that I have been offering prizes, since I have been instructor in Freshman English for two years—almost three, in fact. I pass over the implication that the prize is awarded according to my arbitrary choice.

Despite the fact that I have been unaware of these activities, I find your editorial both interesting and moving. I feel impelled to live up to the reputation for generosity which you have so amiably given me. Accordingly, I shall be glad to offer a book as a prize. I must, nevertheless and in all modesty, decline to select the Freshman to whom it is to be awarded; and I refuse to award it for an oration. Most Freshmen do not want to make orations; still more are not gifted with ability to make orations; and to those who have both longing and ability to make orations, I consider it highly undesirable to give opportunity.

"Best Paid Hard Work in the World"

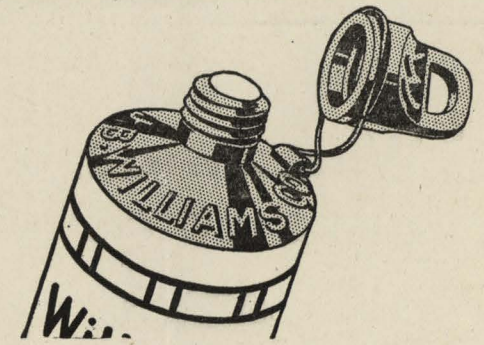

IS the way a JOHN HANCOCK salesman described his work. He is a college graduate and in five years has put himself at the very top of his business. He never yet has called upon a prospect without a previous appointment. The best life insurance salesman today work on that plan, making it a business of dignity, such as any worthy and ambitious college graduate can find satisfying to his mental needs, and highly remunerative as well.

The man above quoted is the John Hancock's youngest general agent. This shows what college graduates of the right type can do in this business, how they can build up earning power and at the same time provide for an accumulated competence for the years to come.

Graduation is a vital period in your life and you are liable to hold to the business you start in. It would be well before making a definite decision to inquire into life insurance as a career. Address, "Agency Department."

Sixty-one years in business. Now insuring One Billion Seven Hundred Million Dollars in policies on 3,250,000 lives

WILLIAMS is a wonderfully popular shaving cream. Here's why:—It's heavier, faster-working lather, the way it lubricates the path of the razor and eliminates painful friction, the soothing ingredient which keeps the skin so smooth and cool even in daily shaving—these are qualities men like! They also like its purity—no artificial coloring. With the new Hinge-Cap, Williams is winning more friends than ever before. See if you ever used a shaving cream as good.

Williams Shaving Cream

For the best sentence of ten words or less on the value of the Williams Hinge-Cap, we offer the following prizes: 1st prize, $100; 2nd prize, $50; two 3rd prizes, $25 each; two 4th prizes, $10 each; six 5th prizes, $5 each. Any undergraduate or graduate student is eligible. If two or more persons submit identical slogans deemed worthy of prizes, the full amount of the prize will be awarded to each. Contest closes at midnight March 14, 1924. Winners will be announced as soon thereafter as possible. Submit any number of slogans but write on one side of paper only, putting name, address, college and class at top of each sheet. Address letters to Contest Editor, The J. B. THE BOX-SCORE KEEPERS SWEAT OVER THIS ONE

Last year the ball team received nation-wide attention for pulling two triple plays in one week and in successive games. The year before, when "Eddie" Cram, '23, was captain, the team made one of the queerest plays on record.

It was in the Worcester Tech game, and three men were on bases and none out. The batter hit to Cram, the shortstop. Cram scooped up the grounder and threw home to catcher Nordlund, who touched the plate and threw to Norman at first base. Nordlund's throw went wide and threw Norman off the bag. The runner seized his opportunity and dashed to second, letting the batter make first. The man on second tried to make home, but Norman had retrieved the ball and thrown to Robinson, the third baseman. He and Nordlund trapped the runner between third and home, running him down. Then Nordlund, believing three men were out, took off his glove and rolled the ball to the pitcher's box. Jones, the second baseman, realizing Nordlund's mistake, sprinted to the center of the diamond and called to Tuck, the pitcher, who had also mistaken the number of men out and was proceeding toward the bench. Tuck turned, caught the ball and touched the runner an instant before he reached the plate.

Thus, in one play, Cram made one assist, Nordlund an error, an assist and two put-outs, Robinson three assists, Nordlund four assists, Tuck one put-out, and Jones what might be called one assist. Figure that out!

the Kings in Egypt. Since then it was thought that nothing further of importance would be found in the Mycenaen districts, but Mr. Wace's recent supplementary work has not only been of the utmost importance but has shed new light on the pre-historic town of Mycenae. The ruins have remained much the same as they were in 468 B. C. when the town was destroyed.

ALTRUISM DENIED.

In determining conditions to govern the award of the prize thus hastily offered, I beg that I may have the collaboration of the man in whose fertile brain the scheme was hatched—the Editor of THE TRIPOD.
