GOVERNOR CROSS REVIEWS FLAGS HERE BEFORE ARMISTICE DAY CHAPEL SERVICE

Foot Guard Band Assists Organ as Representatives of Twelve Groups Bear Colors

PRESIDENT SPEAKS

Contrasts Faith and Fear, Citing the Flag as Symbol of Our Nation's Strength

To commemorate the fifteenth anniversary of Armistice Day, His Excellency, Wilbur L. Cross of Connecticut, journeyed to Trinity College to review the Color Guards of various military organizations with his staff on Sunday, November 12. The parade began promptly at 10.45 a. m., the executive party standing firmly at attention while the companies marched east to the south side of the Chapel and then executing a right-flank maneuver, passed in review for the first time. Multi-colored flags made a vivid spectacle against a background of snow, while the marchers continued past the reviewing stand for fifty yards or so before wheeling about and returning to stand for inspection. The adjutant went through the ceremony of surrendering his sword and "Taps" were then played for the men killed in the Great War, as the flags dipped. This impressive portion of the ceremonies ended as the Color Guards, preceded by the Governor and the military dignitaries, entered the Chapel for the special Sunday morning service.

The Governor was accompanied by President Remsen B. Ogilby, Brig. General William Ladd, Major-General George M. Cole, (retired), Colonel George A. Wardinski, Assistant Adjutant-General, Colonel Michael A. Conner, Colonel Robert F. Gadd, Quartermaster-General Colonel E. Taylor, and Major John J. McGarry. Major Alvin W. Hyde, Commander of the First Company of the Governor's Foot Guard, present with his staff and with other regular army officers attached to the National Guard and the Organized Reserves, also formed the reviewing party. Commanding the troop was Major Irving A. Partridge, aided by Adjutant-Captain Arthur M. Grayson.

Following the ceremonies on the campus, the band entered the Chapel, taking their places in the North Chapel. Immediately behind them came the Crucifer and the choir, closely followed by Governor Cross and his reviewing party and other military guests. The final group to come into the Chapel was the Color Guards. As Captain Tasillo, conductor of the band, directed the musicians in playing "The Stars and Stripes", the Guards, led by Major Partridge, passed up the aisle to the Chancel steps. The long majestic line of colors that marched by were representative of twelve companies and posts: 169th Infantry Connecticut National Guard, First Company Governor's Foot Guards, 304th Infantry Reserves, Charles L. Burdett Post, Spanish War Veterans, Lieutenant Caldwell Robinson Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post No. 8 American Legion (Hartford), Russell K. Brown D. S. C., Robert E. Brown Post 131 American Legion, Edith Cavell Post, British War Veterans, Jewish War Veterans, Polish War Veterans, and the Trinity College Colors. Then followed the hymn, (Continued on page 4.)

PLAY TO BE GIVEN IN CONJUNCTION WITH HOP

Jesters Will Offer Milne's "The Fourth Wall" in Alumni Hall Saturday

The Jesters, college dramatic society, will offer their first production of the year when they present "The Fourth Wall", by A. A. Milne, at 7.45 Saturday evening, November 18, in Alumni Hall. Arrangements have been completed to combine this presentation with the annual Sophomore Hop, which is to start directly after the play. Tickets are on sale to cover the entire evening's entertainment at a price of $3.50 each.

"The Fourth Wall", which has been in rehearsal since early in the college year, is being coached by Rex Howard, president of the Jesters, who is also taking a part in the play. Several changes have taken place in the cast, which will be as follows:

Susan Cunningham,.....
Ralph MacEldowney
Jimmy Ludgrove,.....Paul Adams
Adams, the Butler,....Donald Hurd
Edward Laverick,....Anthony Casace
Edward Carter,....S. H. Niewenhaus
Major Fothergill,....Curtis Junker
Mrs. Fulverton-Fane,....James Wilcox
Jane West,.....Harold Bayley
Arthur Ludgrove,.....Rex Howard
P. C. Mallet,.....James Davis
Sergeant Mallet,.....John Tyng

Of those taking part in Saturday evening's performance, only Howard and Adam have had any previous experience with the Jesters. Last year the organization produced "Hay Fever" and "The Bad Man", both of which were favorably received. Two years ago "Wings Over Europe" met with such success that a special performance was given at Connecticut College in New London.

The 1935 Ivy Board wishes to announce that a representative of the Warren Kay Vantine Studio will be at the college on November 20 and 21 to take orders for pictures taken of members of the junior class. All proofs must be returned at that time, and each man should set aside the pose that he has chosen for the Ivy. Notice of the time and place of the interviews will be posted later.

TRINITY ELEVEN ENDS SUCCESSFUL SEASON OF 4 WINS AND 2 LOSSES

Dan Jessee's Gridmen, Defeat Both Wesleyan and Amherst in Last Two Games

NEW SPIRIT SHOWN

Team Came from Behind to Take Lead Often—Prospects for Next Year Called Excellent

Last Saturday the football season came to a close with a hard-earned victory over Amherst, which followed a more decisive victory over Trinity's greatest rival—Wesleyan—the week before. Dan Jessee, who has just completed his second consecutive season as coach, has developed this year a team which has proven itself more successful than any team representing Trinity for many years, and alumni and undergraduates look upon this season as the first step in Coach Jessee's program designed to put Trinity on the map in football. Winning four games out of a schedule of six, the eleven has distinguished itself as a team which made up its handicap in experience and numbers by a spirit which was out to do its best at any cost.

The most remarkable feature of the football season just ended was the ability of the team to overcome a lead against it in the first half of a game, and thus win its final and most difficult two games—Wesleyan and Amherst. In both of these contests, Trinity was considered the under dog. The reason for the upsets in the team's favor is attributed to Coach Jessee's irrepressible spirit. He has brought something new to football here: a self-assurance and confidence in one's teammates. The steady improvement in individual and collective play due to this attitude of mind was distinctly noticeable in the latter part of the season. Offensively, the team often showed great strength; but, with the exception of brilliance on the part of individual players, the defense was not outstanding. Coach Jessee plans to continue next year the work he has begun in developing an adequate pass defense.

The first game on the schedule this year was Colby, and resulted in defeat 12 to 0. Trinity, despite the tremendous handicap of a weak pass defense and injuries, held its opponents scoreless until the final period of the game. The best defensive work was done by Captain Kingston at guard and Maher at center. The first scoring tally made by Colby was the result of a long pass from fullback Alden to Captain Peabody, and the second came shortly afterwards on another pass which gained thirty yards.

INTRAMURAL TEAMS RUN IN MEET NEXT FRIDAY

Fraternity and Neutral Groups to Compete in Annual Race for Lyman Ogilby Trophy

The annual intramural cross-country competition will be held Friday, November 17, at 4.15 o'clock. Teams will be organized from the different fraternity and neutral groups. The award to the winning team is possession for one year of the Lyman Cunningham Ogilby Trophy and fifteen points toward the Alumni Trophy.

Any team winning three legs on the Lyman Ogilby Trophy gains permanent possession of it. At present the Sigma Nu fraternity has two legs on the prize. In addition to the trophy, gold, silver, and bronze medals will be presented to the first three runners to complete the race. The team winning the competition gains fifteen points toward the Alumni Trophy, the second team ten points, and the third, five.

The rules governing the race require that every competing man shall have covered the course at least once before Wednesday night, November 15, and that he shall report to Professor Oosting by that time. Each team may enter not more than ten men in the race.

The scoring for the Lyman Ogilby Trophy will be as follows: The winner of the race scores five points, plus one point for every man finishing after him; the second man scores three points, plus one point for every man finishing after him; and the third man one point plus one point for every man finishing after him. Every other man who completes the race scores one point for each man finishing after him. The maximum time allowed for completing the course will be announced before the time of the race.

Trinity Eleven Takes Advantage of Every Opportunity to Down Sabrinas

MAHER BLOCKS KICK

Kellam Intercepts Pass That Opens Way to Victory—Amport Makes Winning Point

A spirited Trinity football team brought home from Amherst last Saturday a 7 to 6 victory over a strong Sabrina eleven. Set back in nearly every attempt at ground-gaining during the first half, the Blue and Gold opened the third quarter with a strong offense which carried them through for the first triumph over the Jeffmen since 1915.

During the first quarter the Blue and Gold could do little against the hard charging Amherst line, while the Jeffmen advanced the ball from mid-field to the Trinity one-yard line before losing it as a fumble rolled over the goal line.

The second play of the second quarter brought Amherst their score. A pass, Thomas to Debevoise, was good and the latter raced 30 yards along the side line to score. The kick for point was blocked by Maher. After this the Blue and Gold defense tightened up and neither team made much ground until, near the end of the quarter, Fritzson, on a pass, got away for 13 yards. On the next play Gallaway added 11 more on an end run. Brewer and Sampers then ran through the Jeff line for 20 more yards to bring the ball deep into Amherst territory. An intercepted pass, however, stopped this rush and the quarter ended shortly thereafter.

The second half opened with a determined Blue and Gold team kicking off. The ball changed hands several times with not much ground made until an intercepted pass by Kellam on the Amherst 42-yard line gave Trinity an opportunity. Two line plunges by Gallaway netted 15 yards. A fine pass from Marquet to Alexander brought the ball to the 8-yard line, and successive charges moved it up to the two-yard line. Kellam then tied the score on a finely executed end-around play. The winning point was made by Amport with a beautiful place kick. For the remainder of the quarter the ball see-sawed back and forth, neither team making a real threat.

Near the end of the final quarter Kellam intercepted a pass on the Amherst 11-yard line, but the Trinity attack failed and the Jeffmen took the ball on downs. Amherst then advanced by passing and rushing to the Trinity 24-yard line, but a fumble recovered by Amport stopped their advance and the game ended. (Continued on page 6.)

PROGRESS

It is most fitting that our first Alumni Issue of the term should appear immediately after one of the best grid seasons Trinity has seen in many years. The recent triumphs of our football team should recall to the minds of our Alumni the powerful elevens that represented the Blue and Gold some ten or fifteen years ago, when the undergraduates formed a compact, loyal body that made up for what it lacked in numbers with an intense spirit. But although the College has grown steadily since the war, adding new equipment and a larger number of students each year, yet its undergraduates, even as more diversified members of a larger institution, have not lost the sense of loyalty so prevalent in Trinity's younger days.

We have been most fortunate, during the past three and one-half years, to witness the rapid growth of the College under the enthusiastic guidance of President Ogilby, for we arrived soon after the opening ceremonies of the new gymnasium, and have seen the completion of the Cook dormitories, the inauguration of our chapel, and a freshman class each year the largest in our history. New sports have been recognized by the Athletic Council, new courses have been offered, and a new Trinity-conscious undergraduate body worked toward making Trinity one of the most outstanding of New England's smaller colleges.

Yet we are constantly conscious of the lack of one essential unit so vital to our continuance and further growth. The crowded condition of our chemical laboratory is one that should be corrected to take care of the increased number of students, and to facilitate the teaching requirements of the professors. We have grown and prospered. Let us not fail to provide ourselves with a modern laboratory, so essential to the progress of Trinity.

THEY DIED FOR PEACE

The Christian churches of the country have of late been taking a definite stand against militarism of any kind. Since this essentially Christian attitude has taken some nineteen hundred years to develop, it is not surprising to see a great deal of reaction on the part of several of the churches. It was with some dismay, however, that we beheld the Armistice Service here on our very campus last Sunday. If the heroic dead have to be honored by such artificial means, far better even that they lie forgotten. The trooping of the colors and the beating of the drums is no sincere way to honor those who died as a result of just that sort of nationalistic jingoism, nor is it an effective means of preventing that bloodthirsty spirit from prevailing. November 11 is the anniversary of the Armistice, not of the date of our declaration of war. It seems logical enough, therefore, that the Armistice should instill in the minds of all peace and humility rather than war and pride.

If we are to believe all the indications that the youth of the country is solidly set against militarism, how are we to explain a service of this sort taking place at a college? It is not that Trinity is reactionary; the poll taken last year in the Tripod showed that the student body as a whole was tremendously in favor of last Sunday's warlike demonstration; the sight of guns in the chapel could not have roused their spirits to the high pitch of self-glorification that such a sight seems to evoke in the masses. A prayer for the dead is worse than hollow if it is preceded by bugle calls and a roll of drums. It is not in the spirit of a true Christian, or of a true American, or of a true Trinity man.

COLLEGE LIFE 100 YEARS AGO.

James Henry Elliott of Brattleboro, Vermont, entered the Freshman Class of Washington College in January, 1833, and graduated August 6, 1836. His father, Samuel Elliott, was a lawyer and prominent citizen of Brattleboro, and his mother was an older sister of Rutherford Hayes, whose son was later President of the United States. Certain letters that James Henry Elliott and his brother William wrote home to their family during their college course have just come to light. For the edification of undergraduates of today, extracts from these letters will be printed in the Tripod, the first installment following below. Henry led his class during the entire time he was a student here. He was seriously ill during his Senior year, but made up his examinations before Commencement, and was appointed Orator of his class. He died within a year after graduation.

His younger brother, William Cowper Elliott, entered as a Freshman in September, 1834, but was compelled to leave on account of ill health two years later. He also led his class during the years he was here.

First Extract from Letter from William Cowper Elliott to his sister Belinda:

"While at breakfast this morning at Madam Franklin's I thought I would go to the city and buy two sheets of the largest paper I could find, & fill one, & send the other for you to fill. But when I asked the price, finding it to be four cents a sheet I concluded to take but one, & that for my own use. Tuttle thinks I have a job before me to fill it, but it is not much considering the writer & his habits . . . . The sleighing here has entirely vanished, but to fill an idle moment, Skating has come. Day before yesterday, I had a fine skate upon the Hog of about two miles in ten minutes. . . .

(Noon) I have just returned from a walk to the city, saw nothing remarkable other than Hartford mud, which is very much so to a stranger.

23d Friday. Yesterday evening went to the Bible class at Dr. Haweses lecture room. The chapter was the fifth of Romans, one that has caused a great deal of controversy in the world. At such a time & on such a chapter, Dr. Haweses talent shines very conspicuous . . . . Whilst we were busily engaged in our studies last eve, a thundering noise was made in the entry occasioned by rolling down the stairs a log of wood. Several others followed during the evening. Shortly after this a long blast was blown in the upper story from a tin horn. Indeed they kept it up during the whole evening in each section, & one was sent away for this & several other offences.

24th. . . . After a good breakfast upon Indian pudding I took a good skate for an hour, then attended the Atheneum, after which Henry Tuttle & myself cracked a lot of walnuts, the fruit of last fall's

Medusa Reminds Student Body of Traditional Chapel Seating

It has long been a custom at Trinity College chapel services that the freshmen sit in the pews nearest the aisle, the sophomores in the second row, and the juniors and seniors in the third and fourth rows in turn. It has also been customary for the Faculty members to leave the chapel first, followed by the undergraduates in the order of their class, with the freshmen remaining in their pews until all of the upperclassmen have passed down the aisle.

That these traditional regulations have been overlooked during the year has been quite apparent, and we trust that, with this reminder, the students will observe them more fully in the future.

tramps. . . . Of late I have been reading a book entitled 'Polar Seas & Regions'. . . . Somehow I like to read of the north, & I attribute it partly to my constitution, since I like the cold. During the coldest weather this winter, I would often go out for the purpose of inhaling the cold air. It was so pure, so excellent, so cold. At present I am reading President Wheaton's journal of a tour in England & France. . . .

I returned to the college, & had a fine skate. There were no boys upon the brook other than some half dozen negro boys whom I stumped to catch me, agreeing not to go more than five rods. After a fine play of about fifteen minutes, I let one of them catch me, at which he was much pleased. . . .

. . . . I took supper upon bread & pie & then went to the city, stopping at Mr. Delibers & got some shoes which had been mending for eighty cents. Took my washing from Mrs. Taylors & truded home.

Jan'y 25th. Sunday eve. . . . I have heard today of the death of two missionaries at Batavia, who were slain & devoured by the natives. . . . When we see men devouring cannibal-like the messengers of God, who were sent to do them good, to show them the way of life & salvation, to preach the knowledge of a dying, suffering Saviour, what more convincing proof can we have of the depravity of the human nature, & the depths of iniquity to which it will sink when left of God?

Monday. . . . Whilst taking the best of comfort, sleep, this morning, I was awakened by the sound of the College tocsin, & compelled to get up, which by the way is one of the greatest evils of college. After prayers & recitation took a breakfast upon buckwheat cakes. Then amidst mist & fog, went to the city & carried my washing. . . . At present Hartford mud is to be seen here & there. You can walk sometimes three or four rods before you are entirely covered."

RUSSO-AMERICAN IMPLICATIONS

Great as may be the economic significance of M. Litvinoff's visit to Washington, American recognition of the U. S. S. R., considered in a purely political light becomes one of the most important pieces of international news since the War of 1914. The actual reestablishment of diplomatic relations is now only a matter of days; the obstacles to be overcome assume unimportance compared with current economic demands and the will of the two most potentially powerful nations of the world. But the international aspects of recognition may well change the history of the world within the next decade.

Unpleasant as such an outlook may be, a Russo-Japanese war is, under present circumstances, almost a certainty. The United States has always steered clear of entangling treaties, but the mere recognition of Russia may either hasten or retard this impending conflict. On the one hand, Japan may strike immediately, fearing that the United States, already unfriendly towards her, may find cause for aiding Russia, rather than herself, in providing much-needed supplies and munitions. On the other hand, recognition may swing the scales of peace back to a balance so perfect that the Mikado's scions will have to delay many years in extending the empire of the sun. Formal relations between the Soviet and America may give Russia just enough prestige and financial backing to prevent any immediate attack from the East. In either case, recognition will cause newspaper readers to look ever more eagerly for items reporting attacks by Manchurian garrisons on Russian bandits who chance to be encamped in the lee of the Trans-Siberian railway.

1933 ELEVEN COMPARES FAVORABLY WITH GREAT TRINITY TEAMS OF PAST

First Year Since 1922 That Blue and Gold Had More Victories Than Defeats

WESLEYAN UPSET

Statistics of Teams From 1900 to Present Reveal Many Broken Jinxes

Is Trinity football coming out of a cyclical slump? We have our periods of economic depression and prosperity. Is our football history subject to regular periodic impulses, also? If we accept this theory, may we not exercise our imaginations a little more and seriously consider the idea that the preponderance of victories over defeats in the season just finished points to better years ahead? For the past ten years our defeats have over-balanced our victories by an average ratio of four to one. 1922 was the last year in which Trinity scored more wins than losses, taking four games out of seven that year. In the years immediately following, our football records gradually sank to lower levels until low ebb was reached in 1928, a season of six defeats out of six games. Since then our seasonal records have had a gradual trend upward producing one win out of five in 1929, and two out of six the last three years. This season, producing four out of six games to our credit, has capped even the 1922 record and has not been equaled since 1916, when the Blue and Gold warriors of the old school brought home five games out of seven. Trinity football reached its peak during the eight years preceding the War when they attained the enviable record of a six out of nine average. In both 1907 and 1911 the teams were defeated but twice in eight games. So much for seasonal records. Let us turn our attention to our last two gridiron opponents of the year, Wesleyan and Amherst.

Our recent defeat of Wesleyan is an accomplishment of which the 1933 team may well be proud. Digging again into the dusty annals, we find that out of twenty-three games played with our Middletown rivals since 1902, Trinity has won nine and lost fourteen. Wesleyan is one of the very few of the forty-three odd teams with which we have played in the past thirty years that never permits a tie score. This fall's 14-6 triumph was the first in eight years, the Blue and Gold having taken the honors with a score in 1925. 1915 witnessed the last of a series of Trinity victories dating back to 1907. The boom period scores over Wesleyan were as follows: 1907, 5-0; 1908, 42-0; 1909, 12-6; 1910, 5-0; 1911, 14-13; 1913, 14-0; 1915, 9-0. Relations were broken off during the War period and were not resumed until 1920.

THE ALUMNI SECRETARY REPORTS TO THE ALUMNI—THAT:

Trinity College won hard-earned victories over Wesleyan and Amherst in football. Trinity College is larger today than ever before in her history. The dormitories and fraternities are taxed to capacity. The student body is enrolled from 23 states in the Union. The teaching staff numbers 47 full-time professors and instructors. There is one member of the faculty for approximately every nine students. Fifty-three men hold endowed scholarships, and 111 hold unendowed scholarships. Trinity College is providing funds for the unendowed scholarships out of money which should be used for running expenses. Trinity College is face to face with a situation which is tending to impair her further progress. That situation is the lack of adequate facilities for the teaching of chemistry. Trinity College MUST have a new Chemistry Laboratory. In order for Trinity College to go forward on the basis of her 1933 record, she must have the support of each and every one of her Alumni.

Victories over Amherst have been truly rare and highly celebrated events. Trinity's 7-6 victory this fall was the fourth out of a twenty game schedule in the past thirty years. Thirteen games have been lost and the remaining three resulted in ties. 1915 was the date of our last triumph over Lord Jeff. Trinity carried away the honors by a 13-0 score in 1911, 14-0 in 1913, and 7-6 in 1915. Amherst was tied, 6-6 in 1908, 0-0 in 1914, and 7-7 in 1930.

Many games previous to the War days were played with colleges and universities that now number their stadium crowds by the tens of thousands. The Blue and Gold met West Point teams on seven occasions, holding the cadets to two touchdowns in 1912. Trinity played Yale three times, losing with a score of 6-0 in 1917. In 1919 Trinity succumbed to Princeton by a score of 23-0, opposing the equivalent of three fresh teams during the battle. The 1911 team fought Brown to a 6-6 tie. Trinity defeated Bowdoin 27-0 in 1912, played them to a scoreless tie in 1913, and came through on the winning end in 1914 by a 21-17 score. In 1909 a duel with Colgate resulted in a scoreless tie, the Blue and Gold coming back the next year to pile up a 23-0 score. The 1911 team added another victory over Colgate to the record, 9-0. In 1908 Trinity lost to Cornell, 18-6. Holy Cross suffered defeat at the hands of Trinity by scores of 28-0 in both 1908 and 1910. Union was defeated 46-5 in 1907, having won two other matches with Trinity. Williams has been encountered four times, losing one game 38-0 to the 1915 team.

JUNIOR PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN FOR 1935 IVY

Vantine's Studio Schedules 84 Sittings—Engraving Contract to Howard-Wesson

Eighty-four individual pictures of members of the junior class were taken on November 1 and 2 for publication in the 1935 Ivy. The Tripod room was rigged out as a temporary studio, and the portraits were taken by the Warren Kay Vantine Studio, of Boston. Several action photographs were also taken of the Trinity-Wesleyan football game.

The contract for engraving has been awarded to the Howard-Wesson Company, of Pittsfield, Mass. As yet the printing agreement has not been signed, but it is expected that this will be done within the week. The Howard-Wesson Company did the engraving for last year's Ivy.

Few changes over the style of the 1934 book are being contemplated by the present staff. As several fine views of the campus were obtained last spring, a photographic theme will be followed, with only a small portion of art work. Pictures of the soccer, cross-country and squash teams will also be run, in addition to those of the recognized sport groups.

Announcement has been made of the appointment to the staff of William J. Angus as a member of the business board, and of James A. Wales in the capacity of photographic representative.

ATHLETIC NOTES.

There will be a football game between the freshmen and the members of the varsity squad who did not receive letters on Thursday, November 16, at 4.15. This will serve as a wind-up to the current grid season.

Now that fall sports are over, the call for candidates for swimming and basketball is soon to be issued. The first basketball practice is set for 4 o'clock on Tuesday, November 21, while Joe Clarke will take charge of the swimmers at 5 o'clock on Monday, November 20. Last year Coach Oosting's quintet hung up a record of ten victories and two losses, and the tankmen scored five wins, with but two defeats.

Among the members of last year's successful squad who will return to the court are Martens, Liddell, Sampers, Daut, Kelly and Kearns. Three men were lost to the swimming team through graduation last year, but prospects appear good with the return of such veterans as Mowbray, Coit, Motten, Tucker, Day, Hall and Angus.

Examinations in soccer and football will take place on Monday, November 20. Freshmen and transfers may have their choice of either exam, and all sophomores should report for the sport in which they were not quizzed last year. The soccer exam will be given in the Public Speaking Room at 4 o'clock, and the football quiz is to take place at the same time in Alumni Hall.

PRESIDENT ENTERTAINS AT FOOTBALL DINNER

Captain Kingston Presented with Silver Wrist Watch by His Teammates

President Ogilby gave a dinner last night for the varsity football team. As his guests he invited all the men who played in the Amherst and Wesleyan games, Managers Tucker and Curtis, Coaches Oosting, Jessee and Clarke, Dr. Bulkeley, and Martin Ohlin.

After the dinner, Captain Kingston was presented with a silver wrist watch by the members of his team, in recognition of the leadership that gave Trinity the most successful football season it has had in the past eleven years. On the watch were inscribed his initials, and underneath them the scores of the Wesleyan and Amherst games: T. 14: W. 6, and T. 7: A. 6.

FRESHMAN ELEVEN HAS DISAPPOINTING SEASON

Yearlings Lose to Wesleyan 1937 and Williston Academy, Tying Suffield

To all appearances the freshman football season for 1933 was not a particularly successful one, yet as the weeks went on the team steadily improved, as may be seen from the results of the game. In the early part of the season the team suffered a loss of valuable players through injuries. Henderson and Brown remained on the injured list for the remainder of the season after the Williston game, but Lepak, also injured, returned to strengthen the backfield against Wesleyan.

After two weeks of practice the newly-assembled freshmen on October 14 met the veteran Williston team on the latter's grounds, where the Trinity eleven was easily outclassed. Lacking Kobrosky and Henderson, the team proved weak, and disorganized. Much of the success of the opposing team may be placed in the fact that it had been working with the same players for nearly two years.

Two weeks later the team, undaunted by its previous defeat, met Suffield on October 28 and held them to a scoreless tie. Trinity had yet to show its scoring power, but its defense had improved noticeably. Here also the Blue and Gold yearlings showed a fighting spirit which had been utterly lacking in the Williston game.

TO TRINITY MEN:

It is with pleasure that I announce that Mr. Curtis W. V. Junker, 81 Vernon Street, will act as my representative at Trinity College.

THE FLAGS IN REVIEW AT ARMISTICE DAY
CEREMONY LAST SUNDAY.

"God of Our Fathers", during which the Color Guard took their places near the Chancel.

The Reverend R. B. Hutt, led the congregation in the 14th Psalm, followed by the Lesson, taken from the Eighth Chapter of Deuteronomy, which was read from the Chancel. An appropriate anthem, "A Prayer of Thanksgiving", was then rendered by the Choir, after which the address was given by President Ogilby.

Taking for his text Isaiah 10: 18, the President said:

"Here the prophet, picturing in vivid language the woes that he sees are going to befall the Assyrians, states as the climax of their collapse that it will be as when a standard-bearer fainteth. What cold fear could be worse? This morning we are thinking in terms of the opposite end of the gamut, and the sight of the massed flags of our country, held high before the altar of God, should serve to quicken our faith and rouse us to gallant living.

Faith and fear are two age-old motives that sway the social life of men. Contrast them: fear, the dread of starvation, the terror of invasion, the smell of death—is imperative in its demands, and the herd faces outward in desperation. But fear breeds suspicion, and its typical motor impulse is flight. Faith on the other hand is uplifting, creative, ennobling, and when it does resolve itself into action, it is always forward.

And the motive inspired by the flag is faith. Today, when the vision of many men is clouded with doubt, we need the sight of the flag occasionally to remind us of the inherent strength of our nation. It helps us to give the lie to those who might try to frighten us into unsound action, who strive to dress up questionable procedure in terms of a last resort. It draws us close together, it defies sectionalism and class, it reminds us that our nation is not merely a geographic unit, but a social entity, with a living soul. I commend to the young men of this college the sight of these massed flags as a symbol of the faith that must be theirs in the days that lie ahead."

At the close of the sermon, the congregation united in singing two verses of "America." During this hymn the Colors were massed in the Chancel with the national flags nearest the altar and the regimental flags behind them, and with the guards under arms at the foot of the steps. With due ceremony, President Ogilby blessed the Colors after the completion of the hymn.

The flags remained at "present arms" during the rendition of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic", the last stanza of which was sung by Duncan Peckham, a member of the Choir. Then as the entire congregation stood at attention, the Colors dipped and the Foot Guard Band played the National Anthem. Immediately at the close of this, President Ogilby pronounced the benediction. The Colors passed out of the Chapel, followed by the Governor, his staff, and the other dignitaries assembled.

Blue and Gold Soccer Team
Meets With First Setback at Hands of Jeffs

On Friday, November 10, the Trinity soccer team was defeated by the Amherst aggregation on Hitchcock Field at Amherst by a score of 6 to 1. The Sabrinas played a fast and sure game and kept the ball in Blue and White territory throughout most of the game.

In the first quarter Amherst made its first goal of the game with a corner kick. Mahoney made the shot from a corner of the penalty area. When the ball left his toe, it curved around and went through the uprights without being again touched by any player of either team. The Jeffs tallied twice in the second quarter. Their defense was impenetrable, and the Amherst backs saw very little action in their own territory.

The Sabrinas opened the second half with two goals in rapid succession, and still their airtight defense held the Blue and Gold booters scoreless. It was not until the last quarter was well under way that the Trinity team was able to score. The playing was carried into Amherst territory and Burnside received a pass near the Jeff goal. He headed the ball through the standards for the Blue and Gold's only score of the game. Amherst scored once more before the final whistle, and the game ended at 6 to 1.

the score of 25 to 7. Most outstanding was the offensive work of Eigenbauer and Marquet. All three Trinity touchdowns came after impressive marches down the field, and Worcester made its lone touchdown in the final quarter due to the excellent running of quarterback Swenson. Trinity showed decided improvement in this game and gave promise of the success which came in later games.

Although the team continued to improve, the attack of the Coast Guard Academy, of New London, which mixed a running attack with a successful general offense, was too strong for it in the third contest of the season. The defeat by a score of 13 to 0 might be considered due to Cadet Lathrop's sensational running which accounted for the two touchdowns of the game. Of the Trinity men, Kellam showed the most improvement, his good punting being a feature of the contest.

The fourth game, after a lay-off of a week, showed by far the most mediocre football played by the team this year. Connecticut State was defeated 13 to 0 at Storrs. The result of the contest was never in doubt, but the consistent line marches by Trinity into enemy territory often terminated by being either checked on downs or penalties. Brewer, Trinity fullback, starred as line-plunger, while Cronin of the Dolemen was also outstanding.

The climax of the season came the following week at Middletown before a large crowd. Trinity won its most coveted victory over Wesleyan, 14 to 6. The first half terminated with the opponents in the lead, 6 to 0. After the half-time, however, the excellent line work of Captain Kingston and Amport, and Eigenbauer and Sampers in the backfield brought about the two touchdowns which turned the tide for Dan Jessee's men. Here it was that the spirit showed by the team came into play, and the determination to win keyed up linemen and backs alike to play their best football of the season. Hanaghan at tackle, despite a sprained ankle, showed his usual dependability, and won the highest praise for his excellent game.

Slated to lose to Amherst last Saturday on account of its lack of reserves and an expected let-down after the Wesleyan game, Trinity ended its season victorious 7 to 6 over the Lord Jeffs to upset most expectations. This was the last game to be played between these two teams for some time, as Amherst is not on the schedule next year and probably will not be for several years at least. Like the game directly previous, the team was forced to accept the opponents' lead of 6 to 0 in the first half due to apparent lack of team work. Maher blocked the kick for the extra point. In the last half, a team of different spirit marched out on the field to catch Amherst off guard and score the winning touchdown, and Amport's successful kick for the point put Trinity in the lead which it kept throughout the remainder of the game. Particularly praiseworthy was the work of Kellam at tackle, who crashed through the line to break up the opponents' passing attack, intercepted two Amherst passes, and ran the ball over the goal line on a trick play to score for Trinity. The play of the whole team in the Wesleyan game was good, but in this, its final game, every man outdid himself further to give Dan Jessee a well-deserved successful season.

Without doubt, the team this year would have been even more successful than it was had there not been many injuries and a decided lack of good reserve material. Of those men graduating next June, the team will particularly miss Captain Kingston, guard; Brewer, fullback; Gallaway, halfback; Fritzson and Kelly, ends; Snowden, guard, and Henninen, tackle. Prospects for next year, however, are unusually good. Amport, Kellam, Hanaghan, Alexander, and Maher are expected to carry on the outstanding work in the line which they showed this year. In the backfield, such men as Eigenbauer, Marquet, Sampers, and Weber will strengthen the offense. In addition to the reserve material developed on the first squad this season, it is expected that further reserves may be found among this year's freshmen, on whose football team, coached by Hank Phippen, were several promising candidates for next year's varsity.

THE ROVER BOYS

ON A DATE.

The scene is a telephone booth. Tom Rover, whose twinkling grey eyes were never twinkling, is running his index finger down the right hand column of a page in the Hartford telephone directory and has just stopped it at the thirty-fifth name from the top. Dick, who has just taken the receiver from the hook, is gazing with steadfast brown eyes at a penny on which he is pouring a liberal amount of salt with a steadfast right hand. Wilberforce, who is at present on the shelf, owing to the pool hall having burned down, is also around, reflectively trying to take the bottom of the coin booth out. Chairs, tables, Isosceles Glotz, and other dumb, inanimate objects are likewise to be seen. Isosceles is thinking up ways of making a bigger damn fool of himself than he already has and so does not count very heavily. As the curtain rises, Dick inserts the penny gingerly and is rewarded for his efforts by a resonant ding. This is a very good thing until the telephone company comes around to find out why they're in the red again.

At any rate, the connection has now been established and the fun-loving Tom (being gifted at rapid-fire repartee as my young readers already know) dials the number and waits. Not, however, for long. In the middle of the first ring, a voice with all the winning charm of a dyspeptic sea-lion, says, "Yeah, this is Hogan's garage, what can I do for you?" This is an easy one for Tom, who knows all the answers, and you may be sure that his brothers simply rolled on the floor when the fun-loving Rover asked the man if he had a broom and the man said, "Yeah, so what?" and Tom answered in the approved fashion.

However, after three more pennies, during which the trio succeed in getting a Chinese laundry, a Swede maid, and Governor Cross, the operator guesses right and Tom is on his way. Ya-hoo, and was this jolly? Ten minutes are wasted while Tom insists that the lady guesses who he is. Nothing loathe, she tears off 26 names, none of which sound anything like Tom Rover. Follows, then, considerable parley, in the course of which Tom asks if she has anything on tonight, raising his eyebrows roguishly at his brothers at the same time. This will serve as a very good example of Tom's paralyzing wit and its effect on brother Wilberforce, who dislocates his jaw in a sudden fit of laughter and as a result does not look his best for the rest of the evening. Even serious Dick is forced to smile, and it is found necessary to take I. Glotz out in the hall and pour water on him.

Well, after another 20 minutes or so it develops that this is one of those rare evenings that Potty is at home, although (as she is at pains to inform the now perspiring Tom) she has broken a date with Frederic March just a half hour ago because she didn't like the way he parted his hair. Further query also elicits the even stranger fact that both sister Nasal and sister Gertie (who will do very well for Wilberforce) are also at home, owing to "Vince" Astor and Cornelius Vanderbilt having had an accident on the way up from New York. This, of course, leaves the way clear for our dashing heroes, who clutching bus tokens feverishly, dash down to Broad Street and depart for the swamps via downtown.

There are now practically no more hurdles to face, excepting, of course, the walk from the bus stop to the abode of the Zilch sisters which is finally accomplished by way of a compass, Dick's knowledge of the stars, and the well-known Rover determination. The Zilch sisters, who are loudly in favor of a saunter to the Tap Room, are cut down to a balcony seat at the Allyn and escorted there. Tom's comments on the picture are very funny until a man with a uniform leads him out by the elbow.

There is also the trip home, during which Dick mutters to himself and Tom says, "Why not?" one hundred and four times, and Nasal says, "Simply because!" one hundred and five times. Wilberforce entertains himself practicing pool shots out one of the side windows until he falls asleep and the first thing you know they are home and warm and dry in the Zilch domicile and the author is very happy because he is through with the article and the reader is very happy because he is through with the article and everybody is very happy except maybe Tom, Dick, and Wilberforce Rover, who have just discovered that the buses have stopped running and that they will have to walk back. And here let us leave them. (Ed. note—Yes, let's.)

DUMONT AND SENFTLEBEN ELECTED BY ATHENAEUM

Former Chosen Vice-President, and the Latter Secretary—Senftleben Talks on Bible

The weekly meeting of the Athenaeum Society was held Monday evening, November 6, in Athenaeum Hall. Dumont and Senftleben were elected to the vacancies in the offices of vice-president and secretary, respectively.

Plans were discussed for future meetings, and it was decided that a debate will be held every other week. At the next meeting, J. V. Davis, Sarcia, and L. Stein will give five-minute speeches on topics of their own choosing. At the succeeding meeting, there will be a debate on the federal control of water power. Martino and Senftleben will uphold the affirmative side, while Dunbar and Rulnick will argue the negative.

President Senft discussed the Bible, stressing four points: the Bible is a bird's-eye view of the development of civilization; it contains some of the best literature ever written; it is the best of text books on human nature; and it is the story of the most successful life ever lived on this planet. The problems of finding and translating old manuscripts of the Bible were also discussed.

The meeting was concluded with the reading of a few of Stephen Leacock's humorous selections by Senftleben.

The swimming examination for all new men will take place in Trowbridge Memorial on the afternoon of Wednesday, November 22.

U. S. Type 14 is produced mostly in southern Georgia—a few million pounds in northern Florida and Alabama.

U. S. Type 31 includes what is called White Burley tobacco. It was first produced by George Webb in 1864. It is light in color and body, and is milder than the Burley used for pipes.

U. S. Type 32, Maryland tobacco, is noted for its "burn". In this respect Maryland excels most other tobaccos.

These are the kinds of home-grown tobaccos used for making Chesterfield Cigarettes.

SENATE APPROVES IVY, ORCHESTRA CONTRACTS

A. Onderdonk and Bose Voted as Committee to Audit Books of Organizations

Three members of the undergraduate body appeared before the Senate at its last weekly meeting on Monday, October 30. It first heard Charles Kirby, who presented a contract, which was signed, concerning the hiring of the Trinity Troubadours for the Senate Dance held Nov. 4.

James Hanaghan, business manager, announced that the 1935 Trinity Ivy staff requested the Senate's permission to sign a contract for printing and engraving with the Howard-Wesson Company, of Pittsfield, Mass. Charles Tucker presented the accounts of the Union.

The Senate voted to appoint Andrew Onderdonk and Bose as a Senate Auditing Committee to audit the books of all student organizations. It also decided to pay for its attendance at the dinner tendered the Associa-offensive power by scoring two touchdowns against Wesleyan on November 3. With a tie of 12 to 12 in the third quarter, Wesleyan in the closing minutes was successful in completing a long pass which resulted in their 19 to 12 victory.

In the freshman team the varsity should find considerable material for the 1934 season. Kobrosky stood out particularly in the backfield, while Lepak, Little and Penfield also did good work. Other men who show promise are Lindell, Brauer, Laidlaw, Parker, Miliken, Budd and D'Angelo. Certainly if not a winning team, the freshmen proved to be a hard-fighting and spirited eleven.

1934 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE.

The football schedule for next year, recently approved by the Athletic Advisory Council, finds Hartwick College of New York, replacing Colby in the season opener at home. Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute will be the second opponent, at Hartford, replacing Amherst on the schedule. The third and fourth games, with Worcester Poly. and Coast Guard Academy, will be played away. Connecticut State will visit Trinity for the fifth encounter, and Wesleyan will climax the season in the annual game, to take place on Trinity Field.

COAST GUARD DEFEATED BY HARRIERS IN FINAL

Mountford Finishes First in Cross-Country Meet; Score 26-29

The cross-country team brought its season to a close with a victory over the Coast Guard Academy harriers on the Trinity course on Thursday, November 10. The meet was closely contested, the score being 26 to 29 in favor of the Blue and Gold.

Mountford led the runners home in the fast time of 14 minutes, 12¼ seconds. He was followed by Dean of the Coast Guard, who in turn was followed by two Trinity harriers, Gladwin and French. Next came a group of three Academy men, Chester, Buxton, and Fahy. In the last three positions were Bauer of Trinity, Arnold of Coast Guard, and Lane of Trinity.
