Cardinals Take First Places in All Events Except Dashes

TANNER STARS

Captain Hall and Burke Outstanding as Blue and Gold Team Loses, 49-28

Last Saturday the Trinity swimming team journeyed to Middletown only to be overcome by a strong Wesleyan outfit. Taking all but two first places, the Cardinals piled up enough points to capture the meet by the score of 49 to 28. Tanner was the outstanding performer for the winners, although Merz and Pullman, also of the victors' team, gave him a good run for the individual honors. Hall and Burke were instrumental in keeping Trinity in the running.

In the first event the Wesleyan Medley Relay team found little difficulty in nosing out the Trinity representatives. Again in the 220-yard swim Wesleyan garnered the first two places to give them a substantial lead. In the 50-yard dash, however, Trinity retaliated by capturing both the first and second positions. The race was an extremely close one, but Hall and Burke finally succeeded in breaking through. In the 440-yard swim Tanner gave a beautiful exhibition to gain his second win. There was a lively race for the other two positions with R. Motten edging out Joslin. The 100-yard dash was hotly contested from the starting gun, but Burke splashed through to win closely followed by Hall. In the final and most exciting

CONN. STATE DEFEATED BY ONE-POINT MARGIN

Trinity Basketball Team Rallies in Final Minutes of Game to Triumph, 28-27

The Blue and Gold basketball team just nosed out Connecticut State 28-27 last Tuesday night, in a hard-fought game played at the Hopkins Street gymnasium. With less than five minutes left to play, the Trinity five started a rally which gave her the one-point victory over the Statesmen. Captain Martens was outstanding for the home team with his flawless handling of the ball, while Lewis, scoring nine points, played well for Connecticut State.

In the first few minutes of play the Statesmen obtained a four-point lead, sinking one basket and two fouls. The Blue and Gold scoring machine, however, soon started functioning, as Ferrucci scored on a foul shot, followed shortly by a basket. These, coupled with a basket by Sampers and a long shot by Kearns, put Trinity into the lead by three points. The margin did not remain, as the Connecticut State five soon tied the score at nine all. The score was again tied at eleven all, but then Martens, Kearns, and Sampers opened up to give the home team an 18-13 lead at the half.

At the beginning of the second half, Connecticut staged a brilliant offensive, scoring ten points to Trinity's one, and making the score 24-19. A few minutes after this, Captain Lipman of State was banished from the game with a personal foul count

WATTERS GIVES CHAPEL TALK ON LIFE OF BACH

Deplores Student Criticism of 'This Awful Bach Stuff'

Mr. Watters gave a brief talk in chapel last Wednesday on the life of Bach and the forces of circumstance that influenced his musical style. He said that the Bach family were all talented musicians, among whom were organists, violinists, and flute players. At stated intervals they would meet at the home of Vitus Bach, a miller and a baker, to revel in the musical entertainment produced by their own collective genius. An amusing incident which portrays their skill is told of them. They would mix various folk tunes into one, and by careful timing do a very respectable piece of work. Being deeply religious, they also spent their hours playing secular music. This had a profound effect on Bach; for in later years nearly all of his music was written for religious purposes.

Bach's instrument was the organ. In his youth, his very soul longed to bring out his musical fancies by means of this king of instruments. As time passed on, he became a skilled organist.

Bach assimilated into his own compositions the different style modes of Germany, France, and Italy. His delightful dance suites were inspired by French music; his secular music by Italy and Germany. He used other composers' works as a guide to his own; but was, however, intensely original. He revolted against prescribed methods. His knowledge of all types of music caused him to be the most individual musical thinker. Like the chemist, he combined elements of music to obtain compounds his contemporaries had never heard of.

Mr. Watters told how he was playing selections from Bach one afternoon. When he had finished he was astonished to hear remarks made by

FIVE TO SEEK VICTORY IN 2ND WESLEYAN GAME

Final Clash of Trinity Courtmen to Take Place on Thursday at Middletown

The basketball team will end its schedule at Middletown on Thursday in a return game with Wesleyan. Trinity was victorious in the first encounter this season, defeating her arch rival by the score of 32-24.

The Blue and Gold has lost but three out of eleven games, bowing to Amherst, a powerful Brown team, and again last week to Coast Guard Academy. The Wesleyan five seems to be a rather inconsistent aggregation. They have beaten and been beaten by Coast Guard. In the same week, they broke Amherst's streak of eight wins and were overwhelmed by Williams. Behrens, Wesleyan center, was injured in the Williams' encounter and may not be able to play against Trinity.

Despite the fine record of the Hill-toppers, the prevailing opinion, shared by the players themselves and those who have watched their games, seems to be that the team has not for any appreciable length of time in any game reached the heights of which it is capable. It is seen that it would be a fitting climax to the schedule as well as to the court careers of our Seniors if, in this one game, the quintet could click.

The probable starting lineup will be:

Wesleyan.		Trinity.
Goode	LF	Martens
Tompkins	RF	Sampers
Behrens	C	Kobrosky (or Nelson)
Burton	LG	Ferrucci
Havens	RG	Kearns

NEW DEAL RESTRICTIONS DEPLORED BY STEVENSON

Political Science Club Speaker Tells of Gov't Attempts to Control Press

"A free press has been saved for the country only by the courage of its newspapermen," said Mr. G. S. Stevenson, former State Railroad Commissioner, in an address before the Political Science Club last Friday evening. Mr. Stevenson spoke of the efforts of the New Deal, in a misdirected attempt at "twenty-four hour reform", to curtail the rights given the American people by their Constitution to private property and to individual liberty.

The speaker traced the course of American business depressions, giving as causes the overreaching endeavors of a good, honest, and ambitious people. Recovery has followed each, and in so doing has illustrated nature's law of the self-destruction of extremes. That such a law exists seems to be denied by the New Deal, in which desire for personal power has played a greater part than the conservative principles on which it was brought into office. Propaganda has been spread by Senate investigations in which salient facts are hidden and others distorted, to the extent that the public has no real means of discerning truth. Control of the Press has been attempted by the regular issuance of departmental information which papers are asked to print without knowledge of its accuracy. Following the opposition to such a system, started by a New York publisher and supported by the outspoken criticism of Frank R. Kent of "The Baltimore Sun", the newspapers, in refusing to sign their Code as drafted by the Government, have retained one of the factors most necessary to the ideals of democratic government—freedom of the press.

SHAW CHAIRMAN OF BALL

Five Class Day Positions Awarded; Committee to be Formed to Select Poet

Territt H. Mowbray of Flatts, Bermuda, was elected permanent President of the Class of 1935 at a meeting of the Seniors held last Thursday evening. Other elections to permanent class offices were John S. McCook as Vice-President, and William H. Warner as Secretary-Treasurer.

Following the regular business meeting of the class, in which payment of class dues and plans for reunions after graduation were discussed, it was decided that the Senior Ball would take place during the spring, and Barclay Shaw was elected chairman of the committee in charge. This committee is appointed annually by the chairman of the dance. Shaw will announce his selections at some later date.

Class Day officers were then elected and the following men chosen: John S. McCook, Class Day Chairman; Daniel L. O'Neill, Class Historian; Charles Weber, Class Prophet; Frederick M. Senf, Statistician; and Territt H. Mowbray, Presenter. It was decided that a special committee would be formed to select the Class Poet.

These are the last class elections held by the Seniors as undergraduates.

COAST GUARD QUINTET DOWNS BLUE AND GOLD

Trinity Never Overcomes Lead Piled Up by Opponents in First Half

The Trinity hoopsters sustained their third loss of the season by the score of 36-25 at the hands of an alert Coast Guard Academy five on the victors' spacious court, last Saturday evening. Sis Sampers once again was the first to tally, giving Trinity a slight lead which was soon lost and never regained. Trinity's attack was woefully weak in the first half, while their opponents played a careful, opportunist type of game, cashing in on a good percentage of their attacks to lead 13-9 at half time.

The play speeded up in the second period and Trinity started to pierce the enemy defense, with Martens and Sampers on the scoring end of maneuvers. Coast Guard stubbornly refused to relinquish their advantage, however, and grimly held on until the pace began to tell on the Blue and Gold. With five minutes left to play, and our men but two points behind, it became apparent that Trinity had shot its bolt, and Coast Guard, sensing it, put on the pressure. Lightning-fast block plays left Waldron and Cass free for set shots which invariably found the basket, Ferrucci and Kearns made good on beautiful shots, but their efforts were nullified by the expert tosses of Captain Weller, who played a fine all-around game. Bob O'Malley, a freshman and Jayvee player, made his first appearance in a Varsity uniform, and spe-

LOYALTY

Now that the class of 1935 has elected its permanent officers, we are grimly reminded of the fact that within a few short months nearly one hundred Seniors will bring their undergraduate days to a permanent close, and that the fever of professional and business existence will eclipse the present problems of college life. The Seniors are a prominent and talented class, and we cannot but expect that individually their success in the world will be assured. But their strength and unity as a class, and the wise choices they have made in these elections, lead us to expect even more—loyalty to Trinity, even when all further association with the college may be cut off by pressing duties and, perhaps, forbidding distance. The very existence of an institution such as this must largely depend upon the interest of its graduates. The intelligent interest and benefactions of many of our present alumni have shown the way, and have won our most profound gratitude. We hope that the Seniors will never forget what this support means to them now, and what their support will mean to future Trinity generations. The College has every right to demand loyalty in return for benefits received. Its influence will always have its effect upon each graduate as he advances in life equally as each graduate will have his effect, for better or for worse, upon the future of Trinity.

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of the Tripod:

In relation to the recent interest shown on campus concerning the revival of a literary pamphlet, such as the "Trinity Tablet," it would be profitable to review the history of a literary venture such as this.

The first publication of the "Tablet" was in April, 1868, under the co-editorship of W. C. Brocklesly and J. B. Cheshire, and contained a variety of items, such as campus news, essays, editorials, and obituaries. For the main part the "Tablet" had news, campus and alumni, much like the news of the present "Tripod." Its first editorial stated in part, "It has recently become popular at most of our colleges to publish a journal of College News; the world at large is favored with an almost infinite number of periodicals, and why should not the college world put forth exponents of its thoughts, its desires, and its feelings?" This policy of putting forth a newspaper instead of a literary pamphlet was prompted, no doubt, by the failure of the "Hermethean," which contained nothing but essays and editorials. "The Hermethean" was published in 1833 at Washington College, the present Trinity College, and died about 1837.

The "Tablet," however, did not keep to its original purpose, for in 1889, the essays preceded the news articles in position and space. The news was written in a general way and was quite brief. The editorials filled the first page with a good many short stories following; too, the size of the paper dwindled in shape, although not in bulk. At this time it was being issued every three weeks.

Again in 1903 it changed a little more, or perhaps entirely, towards a literary pamphlet, like the early "Hermethean." There was no more news, but only essays along with the editorials. It was at this time that the present "Trinity Tripod" began its publication, announcing its sole intention of printing college news. So in 1903 there were two Trinity College papers, one a literary pamphlet and the other a newspaper.

These two papers ran in close competition until 1908 when the "Tablet" was forced to announce its failure. For a good many years the subscriptions had been falling off not only because of the competing paper but because of the lack of interest shown by the alumni of the college. Their lack of support greatly depleted the resources of the "Tablet's" treasury; the undergraduates had also lost their interest. By this time the contributions of essays and poems had greatly diminished, and so, without material, the paper proved useless.

This brief outline is submitted as a reminder that the "Tablet" undertaking suggested by undergraduates is tremendous, both from the financial and contributive standpoints, and is to be considered a warning to those who would revive such an institution. SKEPTIC.

HERE AND THERE

From the "Tribune" we learn that on April 12, 120,000 students throughout the country, opposed to war and Fascism, are planning a one-hour strike at 11 a. m.

We were wondering about our own little group of pacifists, but then remember the Easter vacation begins on the 10th. Too bad.

We really thought the Klu Klux Klan had ceased to exist, but lo and behold, they are still quite active in Alabama, and are doing their best to dictate!

Plans are being approved at Williams to install a taproom on the campus. In discussing the approval, the "Record" states that one of the features of the room is that it will be a place where "students might hold informal gatherings, talk, discuss campus problems, and plan to make the world safe for democracy."

The latter reminds us of some of our own Bond experiences.

We note with genuine disappointment that George Jean Nathan's "American Spectator," that has been published for two years, will close up shop with the present March issue.

The University of Hawaii, winner of their New Year's Day California game, is negotiating for a 1937 meeting with Yale.

The Connecticut State "Campus" compliments our athletic department on the good care it takes of the soccer nets, and they wager ours will last twice as long as their own. Isn't that nice?

A Edward Newton, a famous bibliophile, in a recent address at Wesleyan said he believed "Moby Dick" to be the great American novel and perhaps an epic, and it would become as famous and as much read as "Paradise Lost."

Money has again claimed a victim for itself. Frank Grigoris, the sandwich man, who was rewarded with money and a Wall Street job for returning $42,000 worth of bonds, is now being treated in a psychopathic ward, having gone completely out of his mind as a result of an unaccustomed extravagance in living.

In the University of North Dakota six railroad cabooses have been equipped for living quarters owing to the poor conditions in the dormitory.

CAMPUS PERSONALITIES

"Music hath charms." There are an unsuspected number of musically inclined students at Trinity. Fostering this inclination, our Music Department boasts of a man highly esteemed in musical circles the country over.

Mr. Watters first showed promise of becoming one of the finest organists in this country when he was a gold-medal pupil of Mark Andrews. Since then he has risen steadily in the musical world. During 1926-27 he was in France studying organ improvisation under Marcel Dupre (who played our Chapel organ last year). Friday morning in the Chapel, where we waylaid him, Mr. Watters was using one of Dupre's devices to help him memorize one of the compositions he will play at the Bach 250th Anniversary programs in the Chapel during March. He was playing a selection from memory, and at the same time reading a story in a magazine. Dupre used to require him to play the composition's time—and note-perfect and then report on the story read. Sounds quite impossible!

He was for a time Organist and Choirmaster at the Church of the Ascension in Pittsburgh, and more recently held the same position at St. John's Church, West Hartford. Charley Wilding, '35, sang, some fifteen years ago, in his choir at Christ Church in Rye, New York.

He is a member of the National Association of Organists, which was recently joined to the American Guild of Organists, of which he is a Fellow. He played the inaugural recital on the new organ in the Harvard Memorial Chapel. On January 30, last, he played at the Church of St. Mary the Virgin in New York City, one of a series of recitals by various celebrated organists.

In addition to his classes at Trinity, he has also a Monday class in organ at Wellesley....Bach is his favorite composer....During the summers, he occupies himself with golf and composition, and is now working on a Symphony for Organ, depicting five scenes from the Crucifixion. The structure of this composition is classical, the harmony ultra-modern. It includes a new principle in form, but what the principle is we'll have to wait to find out, for he would tell us nary a word about it. He expects to play the Symphony at one of his Lenten recitals....His repressed desire is to enter (and win) the Paris-Rome Auto Race. But the closest he can get to realizing that is to try to cut down his Hartford-Boston time....He has a two-year-old son, Stanley, who recently broke into print for the first time via the Hartford "Times"....His pet abomination, oddly enough, is organ recitals.

THE CURTAIN

Short Holiday.

Mr. Joe Droegge, '37, has sent us the following criticisms of "Hollywood Holiday":

I sat through a comedy a few evenings ago—leastwise it was billed as a comedy—called "Hollywood Holiday." Bebe Daniels played the actress-wife, Ben Lyon the actor-husband, and Skeets Gallagher the family friend, who doubled as the butler. The plot was a mixture of the following constituents: a new contract, a matinee idol, a screen-crazy deb. Stir well and season with a few not too good wisecracks, and you have the whole show in a nutshell. The "humor" in the piece was supplied by Mr. Gallagher's taking off his trousers on the stage. The whole affair struck me as being designed for bucolic consumption, and not too well done, at that. A short "Holiday," we predict.

Pretty War.

We'll probably be accused of spreading propaganda, but we should like to venture the statement that the attitude of any rational person towards war should be one of disgust. War is generally pretty fruitless, and is never worth the price it pays for any possible gain. Most people realize the fruitlessness of war, and there has been much sensible talk about it of late. The movies, attempting to catch this feeling on the wing, are turning out a few anti-war pictures. Claude Rains, as "The Man Who Lost His Head," was an excellent example of the sensible human rebelling against war profiteers. "The First World War," a motion picture inspired by Laurence Stallings' photographic record of that name, does as well as a mere movie can to induce the proper feeling of horror in its audience. Its shots have a ring of veracity to them, and some of them are extremely candid. But there is still evident the noble glory of war, and when the next world conflict occurs, the bugle and the uniform will call many "patriots" to the slaughter.

Even for its temporary effect, however, the picture is worth going to see, for it is a finished product. Palace Theater. Co-feature: Ramon Novarro, Eleven Laye, Charles Butterworth, and Edward E. Horton in "The Night is Young," a pleasant musical.

Cinema.

"The Whole Town's Talking" (Loew's): This picture, now running the second week, deserves its popularity. A dual role, played with amazing versatility by Edward G. Robinson, is the making of the picture. Included in the story is a brilliant satire on the third-degree methods of our modern police courts. If you haven't seen it yet, do so by all means.

"The Iron Duke" (Allyn): Needless to say, the personality of Arliss, and not Wellington, dominates this picture. But his personality is always pleasing and masterful, and any role he assumes is generally well done. Made in England by Gaumont-British, the story covers the hundred days following Napoleon's return from Elba. Historically, the picture covers the same period as did "The House of Rothschild," and is perhaps a sequel to it. A rare picture, and certainly Arliss at his best. Co-feature: The Michigan State Police frolic about in "Car 99."

"One More Spring" (Fox-Poli): Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter in a brother-and-sister relationship of two down-and-out people who stay together for mutual support, and later team up with two more people, a ruined banker and a penniless musician, who are in the same boat. With the coming of spring, their fortunes change. A skillful adaptation of the novel of the same name, by Robert Nathan.

Starting Friday.

Loew's: Lee Tracy, Sally Eilers and Jimmy Durante in "Carnival," a romance of small-town troupers.

Ray Oosting and Wesleyan's basketball mentor, Dale Lash, were teammates on the Springfield College five.

"Frannie" Ferucci captained the Southington High School quintet in his junior and senior years, led the baseball nine in his fourth year, and played high school football in '31-'32 and '32-'33.

Bill Buess is searching the campus for men interested in lacrosse. The Indians' game is an early spring sport and a grand conditioner for baseball.

Jimmie Ryan, the chef at Commons, and his assistant, Tony DiMauro, have been noticed at every home basketball game this season.

Jack Maher has received an offer from the Philadelphia Eagles. We wonder if Jack will don professional togs this fall.

Freddie DePeyster, who rowed for the Yale crew, has consented to offer his services this spring as coach for the Trinity crew.

Blue and Gold Tankmen Beaten as Storrsmen Win First Six Events of Meet

The Blue and Gold tankers dropped a very close meet to the strong Connecticut State mermen at Trowbridge Memorial Pool last Tuesday, the final score being 41 to 36. Three new records were set.

The meet started out to be a walk-away for the Storrsmen, but a remarkable comeback by the Hilltoppers narrowed down the final score. At the end of the first six events Trinity was not able to garner a single first place, the score at this point favoring the invaders 39 to 12. In the remaining three events, however, Trinity gained a total of 22 out of a possible 24 points, while limiting Connecticut State to two counters.

Weigold of the visitors won his event handily to set a new pool record of 5:36.7 minutes in the 440, while his teammate, Longley, just touched out Onderdonk in the 150-yard backstroke to set another pool record at 1:49.1 minutes. Trinity's Lou Little put on the best diving exhibition seen in the local pool this year to win the dives with ease, while his running mate, Mixter, barely squeezed out a close second over Badzilek of the visitors.

The biggest thrill of the afternoon was provided by the Blue and Gold's record-smashing victory in the 400-yard relay, cutting seven seconds off the College record to win in 3:55.1 minutes. Don Burke made up a two-yard deficit, giving Captain Hall, anchor man, a four-yard lead which enabled him to finish the event by a margin of inches.

The summary:

Medley relay—Won by Connecticut State (Franz, Bacon, Weigold). Time, 3:27.9 minutes.

220-yard swim—Won by Johnson, (State); second, Hall, (T); third, Moore, (State). Time, 2.29 minutes.

50-yard dash—Won by Longly, (State); second, Burke, (T); third, C. Motten, (T). Time, 25.6 seconds.

STEVENSON SPEAKS.

Administration which have been foisted upon the American people, said Mr. Stevenson, are words to be despised. Man's economic endeavor has ever been based on just those principles; why, therefore, should they be used as aims peculiar to the New Deal?

In closing, the speaker expressed the belief that the repeated triumphs of the American people over trying circumstances leaves assurance that today's struggles are but a passing phase.

against him. Two successful foul shots and a basket by the Trinity team reduced the team from Storrs to a single basket lead. With five minutes left to play, the score stood at 25-23 in the Statesmen's favor. Four successful foul shots, however, two by Captain Martens and one each by Ferrucci and Nelson, along with a basket by Sampers, pulled the game out of the fire for Trinity. Even though Connecticut State managed to sink one basket before the game ended, the Blue and Gold team walked off the floor, leading by a margin of one point. Captain Martens and Sis Sampers tied for scoring honors on the home team, with 7 points each.

The Trinity Jayvees, in the preliminary easily defeated the Connecticut State Freshmen 25-11. Except in the early minutes of the game, the Blue and Gold team's lead was never threatened. O'Bryon and Warner played well for the Jayvees.

ATHENAEUM TO SPONSOR
DEBATE WITH FEDERAL

Three Colleges to Participate in Forum to be Held in April

"Resolved, That Democracy is an Outworn Form of Government" is the topic for the debate which will be held at the Y. W. C. A. in Hartford on April 5 under the sponsorship of the Athenaeum Society. The Federal College will support the negative side while the affirmative will be taken by two girls from Mount Holyoke College of Hartford, combined with two men from Trinity.

The teams from the three colleges are to be composed entirely of freshmen. As yet the Trinity representatives have not been selected, although a tentative list of eligible freshmen has been drawn up. The selection of the debaters will be based upon the scholastic standing and aptitude of the candidates.

Although the Federal College was instrumental in planning the debate, the Athenaeum Society is to sponsor the Trinity element. Mr. A. E. Gamble is coaching the Mount Holyoke in Hartford team.
