

CHEM. LAB. TO BE OPEN TO GRADUATION GUESTS

Installation of Equipment Begins as Construction Work Nears Completion

Since the actual construction of the Chemistry Laboratory is practically completed, installation of equipment by the Kimbel Company of Chicago has begun. A number of the large desks, specially designed for the laboratory by the Kimbel Company from specifications prepared by Professor Kriebel and Professor Smith, have arrived and are being set in place. Orders have been sent out for the auditorium chairs and other equipment.

Last Thursday evening a careful study of lighting fixtures was conducted by Professors Kriebel and Smith, Doctor Ogilby and Mr. Eastman, together with Mr. C. J. Bennett, engineer. Various types of chandeliers and lights were installed temporarily by the Baldwin-Stewart Company, for inspection.

A moving picture machine was set up in the projection room of the auditorium, and several reels with sound attachment were shown. Careful consideration was given to the apparatus so as to make sure that the pictures would be seen well from all of the five hundred seats of the auditorium. Since it is entirely possible that the next few years may bring changes and advances in the art of reproduction of moving pictures, the projection room has been designed with an unusual amount of room so that newly-invented apparatus may be installed from time to time.

The mystery of the two blocked-up windows on the Cook Dormitory side of the new building is solved by the fact that behind these windows is located the Balance Room, which must be kept dark. These windows, however, were put in and then blocked up in the event of possible later changes in the arrangement of the building. The wall of the new laboratory, which faces Cook will be left unfinished, similar to the condition of the chapel wall, waiting upon the future erection of a new dormitory when sufficient funds are available.

The contractor, Mr. Peaslee, is planning to bring the work along in such a fashion that at commencement time it will be possible for alumni and graduation visitors to inspect the building to advantage, although it will not be entirely finished until next summer.

TENNIS AND GOLF TEAMS TO CLASH WITH BOWDOIN

Captain Stein, Parsons, O'Bryon, Rohowsky Sure of Positions as Trinity Racquetees

On May 1 the Bowdoin tennis team invades Trinity on its regular "spring training trip", which also includes a match with Wesleyan. Despite the handicap of even worse weather than the Trinity team has experienced this spring, the Polar Bears loom as very formidable opponents. The match with Trinity is their first of the year. Consequently there are no comparative scores indicative of their ability.

Coach Altmaier reported that this will in all probability be one of those matches in which the final outcome depends upon the sheer fight of the team. He said that this year's team is not quite as strong as last year's, because of graduation decimation, but that the individual members are dis-

TRIPOD NOTICE

There will be a meeting at four o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Psi U. House of those men, who indicated by submitting their names to the editors, that they wished to enter the spring Tripod competition. All who plan to try out for the paper are requested to report on time for the meeting.

BASEBALL TEAM DOWNS COAST GUARD CADETS

Six Runs in the Eighth Give Morris Victory in his Debut—Score 8-4

The Blue and Gold baseball team won its second victory of the present campaign, defeating the Coast Guard forces 8 to 4 on the home field last Saturday. Ed Morris, freshman star, made his first start of the season and withstood some weak hitting and fielding behind him to win after a six-run rally in the eighth. He pitched a beautiful game, cutting off the Cadets without an earned run. Several of the nine hits which he allowed were of the "fluke" variety.

Tommy Thompson, Coast Guard pitcher, set the Trinity men down without a hit for the first six innings, but he weakened in the eighth, and his infield fell apart at the same time to allow the Jesseemen to push over six runs and sew up the game.

Both teams scored twice in the third. Whalen reached first on Lindell's error and scored on Davis' double to right-center. The latter advanced to third on an infield out and scored on a passed ball by Parker.

Trinity combined an error, a walk, an infield out, and two wild throws to count two runs in their half of the same inning. Downs walked, Ferrucci was safe on an error and Morris on a wild throw to first. Then Downs scored and Ferrucci advanced to third when Thompson took Parker's roller and threw wildly to first. Ferrucci was thrown out at the plate, and then Morris counted when Johnson tried to get Parker stealing.

Coast Guard scored in the seventh when Russell got on base on an error and scored when Parker dropped Kobrosky's perfect throw of Blouin's single to left. In the eighth Cass' single with two out followed by two successive errors by Downs gave the Cadets another counter.

Then came Trin's big inning, their half of the eighth. O'Malley opened by working Thompson for a pass. Parker beat out an infield hit for the second Trin hit of the game. Then Kobrosky got a fluke hit in right, filling the bases with none out. Allen was hit by a pitched ball forcing in one run. Lindell hit a roller to Schrader on third, who threw wildly over the catcher's head allowing Parker and Kobrosky to score. Then Allen and Lindell romped home on Barnewall's single to right. The latter went to second on the throw in and to third on Downs' infield out, and counted on Ferrucci's long fly to center field. Morris set the Guardsmen down in order in the ninth to win the game.

Morris seems to be the answer to Dan Jessee's prayer for another pitcher to help Captain Ray Patton through the long, hard schedule ahead. He pitched a clever, heady game, mixing his fast one with a sharp breaking curve and a good knuckler with perfect control, and had he received good support in the field, he would have had no difficulty in shutting out the Cadets in spite of their nine hits. In contrast with the Amherst game, the Blue and Gold team seemed very weak

COMMITTEE ANNOUNCES MAY 15 AS DATE FOR ANNUAL SENIOR DANCE

Adolph Hoehling, Chairman, Gives Out List of Patronesses for Gala Spring Ball

ORCHESTRA SELECTED

Jerry Johnson's Thirteen-Piece Band Coming Directly from Tour of Florida and N. Y. Resorts

The outstanding social event of the year, and the last for the class of 1936, the Senior Ball, will be held this spring on Friday evening, May 15. The committee, headed by Adolph Hoehling, has almost completed arrangements for the dance, which is expected to draw a record crowd of 175 couples.

The feature of the dance will be Jerry Johnson and his orchestra, who will just finish an engagement in Albany in time to come to Hartford. This 13-piece band has recently been playing at Florida resorts and is currently on the air over WGY. Johnson specializes in swing numbers, but is also adept at the smoother rhythms, boasting a full-grown harp among his instruments. Some of the band's Victor records have been rated as best sellers.

Among the patronesses who will attend the dance are Mrs. R. B. Ogilby, Mrs. T. L. Hood, Mrs. H. M. Dadourian, Mrs. Odell Shepard, Mrs. D. E. Jessee, and Mrs. B. W. Means.

The committeemen who are assisting Hoehling are Desmond Crawford, John Williams, Robert Christenson, Reuel Benson, Philip Spelman, John Geare, Howard Winter, Vincent Triglio, John Hanna, Peter Mitchell, James Miller, and George Weeks.

As usual, several houses will hold dances and house parties. Most of the fraternities have not yet completed their plans, but Psi U. will hold a house party over the week-end, and it is expected that the Alpha Deltas will be one of the groups who will hold dances on the following Saturday night.

There has been some delay in deciding the locale of the ball, but the committee has been forced to change its plans, and will announce the place some time this week.

Tickets to the ball will be five dollars a couple, four dollars for paid-up Seniors, and three dollars for the lowly stag.

STRONG TUFTS TRACK TEAM DEFEATS TRINITY

Capt. Haight Takes First Place in Hurdles—Truex Leads Scoring for Losers

The Blue and Gold's green and inexperienced track team dropped a 67-59 decision to Tufts last Saturday on Trinity Field. The Hilltoppers made a bid for victory as long as the field events held out, but they had nothing to withstand the power of the Jumbos on the track, who captured six of the running events exclusive of the hurdle races.

Captain Bill Haight took both the high and low hurdles to become Trinity's only double winner. In the latter, Arbeene of Tufts took the lead for the first 75 yards until Haight caught him in the stretch and went on to win. Clem Motten finished a good second to Haight in both events. Steve Truex led the Trinity scoring

CHAPEL NOTICE

Mr. Philip E. Taylor of the Economics Department will speak at the regular Wednesday morning service in Chapel tomorrow. The subject of his address will be "The Theories Involved in the New Taxation."

IL DUCE'S IDEAS WORK ENTANGLEMENT ABROAD

Dr. Ogilby Offers Comparison Between Onsets Coloring France and Judah

In Wednesday morning chapel, on April 22, President Ogilby spoke on present world conditions, using as a basis for his talk a passage from the Scripture lesson. He mentioned how Bishop Brent had spoken of Woodrow Wilson as "a man riding to his doom." The Bishop was prophetic in this statement, believing that the plan, which Wilson had organized for peace with the League of Nations, was not on grounds that could be tested. Moreover, Wilson's failure was partly due to the lack of his country's devotion. The League of Nations' scheme grew more and more ineffective, beginning with Japan's Imperialism and its failure to control it, and in recent months, with its inefficiency to stop a war which every European nation has endeavored to control.

This is the most general consensus of opinion ever made against Italy. The necessity for massed international action was not fulfilled, with the result that "Hell on Wheels" has taken action against a weak nation but, nevertheless, a Christian nation. Dr. Ogilby quoted Mussolini from one of his recent speeches. "There is an instinct for war in human nature... war is more fruitful... it relieves hate and bad feeling, is creative of new values, a sower of seeds... war is justice, nobility and brotherly pity." Dr. Ogilby went on to say that this was certainly the most horrible example of rationalization and pernicious rhetoric, in an endeavor to justify an unholy cause that ever existed.

In referring to the Scripture lesson, the President said that France is in approximately the same position as Judah was, that is, between two great powers and constantly beset by them. Any attempt at alliances will undoubtedly end as Judah's did. Isaiah tried to impress upon a vacillating king the peril of balancing one nation against another; France borders on the same peril in her endeavor to boost protection. Now, that she has obtained Russia's aid, she does not know whether to ally herself with Italy or with England for protection against Germany. Either alliance will cost her the friendship of the other, as Hitler, a menace to world peace, speaks of a "strong Germany as a bulwark against war in Europe" with his tongue in his cheek. The underlying factor, a situation of national strangulation, is serious, in the mind of a people, who remember the last war and still choose to face it again.

The situation in the Far East is even more serious, for there is no basis of mutual understanding and international relationships such as there is, of necessity, in European affairs. The difference in psychology renders Japan an extremely difficult nation with which to treat. America's problem also remains great. Our idealism of 1919, our conception of ourselves as a savior of the world, the arranger of affairs, is hopelessly lost. The

MEMBERS OF TRUSTEE BOARD HOLD MEETING

Reports of Committees, Trustee and Faculty Appointments Considered and Passed

The regular spring meeting of the Board of Trustees of Trinity College was held on Saturday morning, April 25. The following members of the board were present at the meeting: Newton C. Brainard, James L. Goodwin, George S. Stevenson, J. H. K. Davis, all of Hartford; Justice Philip J. McCook, Charles E. Hotchkiss, Lawson Purdy, A. N. Jones, R. B. O'Conner, Bern Budd, and Richardson Wright, all of New York City; Charles F. Smith of New Britain; William H. Eaton of Pittsfield; Dr. Ogilby and Dr. Roger Motten of Hartford, Treasurer.

The report of Dr. Ogilby and the usual reports from the standing committees were presented and accepted. On the nomination of the executive committee, the Hon. Frederic C. Walcott of Norfolk, was elected a member of the board. Mr. Walcott has a long career of service in Connecticut, serving as United States Senator, while at the present time he is head of the State Welfare Commission. He received an honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Trinity eight years ago.

The following appointments to the faculty were made on nomination of the joint educational committee: James Notopoulos of Altoona Pa., Instructor in Greek. He is a graduate of Amherst, and received the degrees of B.A. and M.A. at Oxford. Edward R. Atkinson of Boston, was appointed Instructor in Chemistry. He holds a Doctor of Philosophy degree from M. I. T. Robert L. Burwell of Annapolis was also appointed as an Instructor in Chemistry. He is receiving his Ph.D. this spring from Princeton. Mr. Doolittle was reappointed Instructor in Physics, and Mr. Arthur H. Hughes was reappointed Instructor in German. It was also voted to appoint Professor Barret to the Hobart Professorship of the classic languages and literature.

A resolution was adopted commending the students of Trinity for the part they played in flood relief under the direction of the Red Cross, and the President was instructed to convey to the students this appreciation of the Trustees.

TRINITY FACES COLBY AND STEVENS, MAY 2, 4

Stiff Opposition Expected in Two Games—Patton and Morris to Pitch

On May 2 and 4, respectively, the Trinity baseball team will face the Stevens and Colby teams on the home field. Stiff opposition is expected in both games. Trinity had a hard time edging out a good Stevens outfit last year, and the box scores of earlier games show that May 2 will see a smart combination invading Hartford, urged on by the incentive to avenge last year's defeat.

Colby is a newcomer on the schedule, and little information is now available regarding the team's strength. This much is known, however, the Maine college goes in strongly for baseball and football. Rumor has it that they have no basketball team, but spend the winter months warming up in the cage. They are members of the Maine League which includes the

IN DEFENSE OF THE V. F. W.

Some time before the spring vacation started, a chapter of the Veterans of Future Wars was started at Trinity. At the time it seemed to be a good joke—and not much more than that. Some students were inclined to smile, pledge their support to the movement, and then forget the whole thing. Perhaps the idea appeared on the surface to be too obviously farcical. We thought that the Princeton students, who originated the idea, were merely laughing at government bonus legislation, and at first they may well have been doing that and nothing more. Now, however, the movement has taken on a deeper significance.

Sponsored by more than a hundred colleges, secondary schools, and non-educational organizations, given publicity in print by newspapers and magazines throughout the country, on the screen by a March of Time demonstration, and on the air by news broadcasts, the Veterans of Future Wars are no longer to be scoffed at. They represent a good-natured, but at the same time reasonable, gentlemanly, and intelligent attitude on the part of American youth toward the flaws in the bonus system. They may even go further than this.

With war more than a mere possibility for the future, they may indicate, even unconsciously, a growing hatred of war in the minds of those individuals who are to be American leaders of tomorrow. The Veterans have been criticized by spinsters and the like for daring to suggest that they be paid and that in advance—for the privilege of dying for their country. These critics have made two mistakes. First, they have missed the point of V. F. W. policies, and second, it is no privilege to die in a modern war, because one does not die for one's country, but for other reasons which we will not take up here. As we see it, there is no reasonable criticisms to be made of the movement. We feel that basically the Veterans have any and all critics of their present, nation-wide attitude very neatly behind the eight-ball.

COLBY, STEVENS BASEBALL

University of Maine, Bates, and Bowdoin, all formidable aggregations.

Coach Jessee has not decided just how the mound duties will be distributed, but it is more than likely that Ed Morris, freshman ace who showed up so well against Coast Guard, will go the route in one of the two encounters with Patton handling the other.

Trinity fans who braved chilling weather to see the home club pound out a close 8-4 decision over a plucky Coast Guard nine, were treated to the sight of a completely reshuffled infield. Not satisfied with the inferior type of ball the infield had displayed against Amherst, Jessee tried out a new combination. Freshman Dave Allen was the only one to remain in his accustomed place. O'Malley turned up on the other side of the diamond at shortstop instead of his usual second base position. Downes was at second and Lindell held down third while Morris was pitching.

The new combination seemed a great improvement in both the final score and the extent of errors made. Moving O'Malley to short proved a good move when that veteran prove his worth by stopping every ball hit his way. With a little more hitting, Trinity should come through the greater part of its encounters successful, in spite of the greenness of much of the material.

THE CURTAIN

Three Men On a Horse

A boy named Alex Yokel once sat around Chicago police stations digging out news for the Examiner. At 21 he was city editor of the paper. Before Mr. Yokel embarked on so precarious an undertaking as a theater producer, he had his ups and downs in the newspaper world.

Three Men On a Horse came to his attention when his bank account was fighting the odds of debility. Mr. Yokel tried various sources for money, each of which presented him with a different excuse for abandoning the idea of production. Finally Warner Brothers thought the exhibition might be worth a try.

It was. The play has had lengthy runs on Broadway and on the road and shows no immediate signs of letting up. Three Men On a Horse hovers between farce and comedy and its company in New York owes its great success to very adroit casting. John Cecil Holm and George Abbott, its co-authors, have collected as much as $6400 per week in royalties. The show will be at Bushnell on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, April 30, May 1 and 2, with an extra performance on Saturday afternoon.

The Moon's Our Home might have been an agreeable lampooning of the mad circle where celebrities are led around by the nose and pretend to dislike it. It lays claim to being nothing but a flaccid little comedy, for which, strangely enough, Dorothy Parker wrote additional dialogue.

Miss Margaret Sullavan, as the darling of Hollywood, is a refractory young lady, who shows her disdain for punctilio by breaking vases, diving into bed and rubbing her mop of hair against the spread, and talking back to her grandmother. When the personable Mr. Fonda jumps into her moving carriage, she agrees to join him at a mountain place far from the madding crowd. And there, ignorant of each other's identity, they carry on at a great rate, taking long ski jumps into piles of snow and walking back from sleigh rides without the sleigh and the horse. They also find the opportunity to wrestle in the approved "Private Lives" style.

Miss Sullavan manifests her ability as a comedienne, whenever she is permitted, while Mr. Fonda is completely obfuscated by the whole goings-on. It is hatchet-faced Margaret Hamilton, however, in the role of the innkeeper's wife, who is worth the price of admission. (Allyn.)

Captain January is the latest vehicle for that empress of emotions, Shirley Temple. She has now descended to the banalities of opera, and the scene in which she sings the sextet from "Lucia" with Guy Kibbee and Slim Summerville is enough to make any intelligent person quite fractious. (Capitol.)

Mr. Deeds Goes to Town, now in its second week at Loew's, is important to us, because Gary Cooper does a genuine acting job and Jean Arthur, the girl with the brass voice, stirs up a dull courtroom with considerable gusto. J. F.

Veterans of Future Wars

(Released through Associated Collegiate Press)

The story of the organization and growth of the country's latest phenomenon, the serio-comic Veterans of Future Wars, which has spread from Princeton University to most campuses throughout the country, is dramatically told as one of the principal episodes of the new March of Time on the screen released nationally April 17.

Although scarcely two months old, the "Veterans," brain child of three Princeton undergraduates with an hilarious idea of prepared patriotism and a bonus before they fight, now has more than 20,000 members and 144 posts over the country.

The March of Time turns its cameras first on the university and college undergraduate today, much more aware than was his father of the world outside. It shows the political clubs which exist on every campus and the interests of the youths who must fight the next war. Marching across the world's front pages they see the armed forces of Europe and hear in new terms the old story of 1914. They know of the activities of the Veterans and their fights for bonuses.

The episode shows the start of the Veterans of Future Wars and the sensation it caused at Princeton. Soon fifty schools had organized and an office had been opened. In the corridors of the national capital appeared a new kind of lobbyist to buttonhole politicians. As veterans and bonus advocates strike back, the idea behind the national travesty is shifting and broadening. The profiteers of future wars and other similar groups are organized.

Today, however, the undergraduate pranks have begun to take on a deeper significance. As the Veterans of Future Wars incorporate in New Jersey and become a new national youth movement, the film points out that they are potentially capable of killing, through ridicule, many a warped idea that today menaces the peace of the world.

Several hundred college students took part in making the film and camera crews were sent to the campuses of Princeton, Rensselaer Polytechnic at Troy, New York, and Sarah Lawrence College at Bronxville, New York, in order that every part of it might be authentic.

It is the first time that the March of Time has devoted an episode to the activities of the undergraduates, and it will be of interest to students everywhere as a photographic record of their interests this past semester.

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of the Tripod:

I have recently received information that, in the last Senate elections, 74 students cast ballots. This, to put it briefly, is a disgrace to the college. It seems peculiarly indicative of the spirit at Trinity, however, and is probably an indication that the student body is coming to the point where the regulation of undergraduate affairs will not concern them.

Once upon a time, old grads tell us, there was a body of students in the college who took a great interest in its own government, talking of elections and candidates long before election day came, and striving as hard as they could to make the undergraduate body a social as well as an academic group.

Let's look things squarely in the face. This expecting students to be interested in their own government is old-fashioned. Let's abolish these ancient cobwebby institutions. Let's abolish the Senate. A very effective system of faculty government of student activities might well be instituted in its place. That would make elections unnecessary and would save the student from worrying about anything but what movies were in town, how many beers he could down in one evening over the rocks, and whether his family would raise his allowance if he asked them. There would be more time for things like that.

Of course, some of the reluctance on the part of the students to participate in class activities may be explained by the little matter of class dues. Class dues are another thing that ought to be abolished. What difference does it make whether a class ever has its own officers, smokers, or social get-togethers? Don't the fellows know each other? Don't they know who is in their class? Of course they do! Dances, for instance, given by any class, are stupid. You can dance at the Nineteenth Hole for much less, meet a nicer crowd, and get tight where no faculty are apt to see you, besides. It's too bad the Senior Ball contract has been signed already; the class might have thrown the whole thing over and have had a good, stinking brawl at any of the taverns for half the price.

Perhaps it's even too late to suggest abolishing class dues. The students seem to have taken the matter into their own hands. Recently the Trustees took the trouble to find out whether the students would like their dues applied to the college bill, or whether they would rather pay them outside. Apparently they would not care to do either; they just aren't interested. If you doubt this, just go to the archway office right now and take a look at the petitions addressed to off-campus men which the off-campus men haven't even taken the trouble to remove from the racks!

Yes, the whole thing is becoming outdated. Statistics will show this very easily. There are 489 men in college, of which 127—about a quarter—had paid their dues at the time of the elections. Of these 127, 74 men voted. These 74 were made up of 26 seniors, 19 juniors, 18 sophomores and 11 freshmen—a steady decline. Probably by the time the 11 freshmen who voted have become seniors, they will have learned better.

There is a way, of course, to solve the whole problem. Let's take the 74 men in school with a little spirit, and send them to a college that can fit them in with men of their kind, say Wesleyan, for instance. And, by looking around hard, Wesleyan could send, in exchange, 74 students with no spirit whatsoever. Then Trinity would be homogeneous, and no one would ever worry about anything.

A SENIOR.

IL DUCE'S IDEAS

President urged that, in accepting our responsibility of America's problem, we strive to lay hold of an eternal basis—the truths of science, as in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips", a character says, "There are permanent values; our task is to preserve them."

Dr. Ogilby closed by saying that we must arrive at the conviction that there is something deeper beyond. It cannot all be a pitiable chaos with no way out. So may we strive to understand lasting truths, in a word, a definite foundation with relation to the Kingdom of God.

ELECTIONS OF SENATE, COLLEGE MARSHAL, AND A. A. SECRETARY HELD

Ten Prominent Juniors Chosen to Comprise Governing Body of College for Next Year

SMALL NUMBER VOTE

A. Bruce Onderdonk of Canal Zone Named Treasurer of Senate by Retiring Members

Because so few students had paid their class dues, only 74 men were able to vote at the elections in the Union Thursday, April 23, at which the Senators for 1936-37 and other student officers were elected. Arthur Bruce Onderdonk, Alpha Delta Phi, has been appointed Treasurer of the Senate by the retiring Senators. The other officers will be elected by the incoming Senate.

The new members of the Senate are as follows: James Henderson, Jr., of Washington, D. C., Alpha Chi Rho; William Goodsell Hull of Bristol, Alpha Tau Kappa; William Reed O'Bryon, of Albany, N. Y., Delta Kappa Epsilon; Clifford Colmer Nelson, of Bayonne, N. J., Delta Phi; Robert Pringle Bainbridge, of Hingham, Mass., Delta Psi; Raymond Stanton Patton, Jr., of Washington, D. C., Psi Upsilon; Stephen Matson Truex, of East Hartford, Sigma Nu; Andrew Harry Santoorjian, of Hartford, off campus neutrals; and Raymond Henry Dexter, Jr., of Rocky Hill, on campus neutrals. James Henderson, Jr., was also elected College Marshal, while Robert Dodge O'Malley, of Manchester, was elected Secretary of the Athletic Association.

LORD JEFF NINE TRIMS WEAK TRINITY, 6 TO 3

Excellent Pitching by Patton Fails to Counteract Poor Aid from Teammates

Playing their second game of the season, the Blue and Gold baseballers tossed away an excellently pitched game by Captain Ray Patton to the invading Amherst team here last Thursday. Although Patton yielded only five bingles, the Lord Jeffs found this did not in any way hinder their offensive activities, for some one in the Trinity infield could generally be counted on to throw it or kick it away when a hit was needed. Presented with three unearned runs, Amherst added three more of its own merits to gain a comparatively easy 6 to 3 decision over the lackadaisical Trinity nine.

Amherst sewed up the game in the fateful seventh inning when they thrust five runs across the plate on three hits, a walk, and two errors. Turner opened the frame by drawing a pass, and all hands were safe when Jaspersohn failed to handle Captain Boyle's grounder with a possible double-play in sight. Warner bunted and succeeded in beating out for a hit when no one attempted to field the ball. With the bases filled, Balme drove a boulder down the third-base line that struck the bag, scoring Turner. Myers then broke the deadlock with a line smash to center, on which Boyle and Warner rode home with the winning counters for the Lord Jeffs. Balme and Myers tallied the final runs of the day for the visitors when O'Malley played croquet wicket to Godell's grounder.

Trinity drew first blood in the third inning on Bob Parker's home run with O'Malley on base. Ferrucci, first up, reached first base when Third Baseman West booted his grounder. Morris followed with a safe hit, but Ferrucci was nipped at the keystone on the throw-in from the outfield when he rounded the base too far. O'Malley then forced Morris at second. Not in the least bit handicapped by a badly split finger, Trinity's heavy-hitting catcher caught one of Eppler's half-speed pitches on the fat of his bat and lifted it over the left field fence. Kobrosky singled and stole second, and Allen walked, but Alexander ended the inning by bouncing out.

Amherst picked up its first run in the fifth frame when Jaspersohn erred on Boyle's infield tap, permitting Turner, who had doubled, to score all the way from second.

After the Blue and White's five-run splurge at the beginning of the seventh, Trinity rallied feebly and managed to tally once in its turn at bat, but this completed all the scoring for the afternoon. Bob Parker rapped out a single and was forced around the bases and across the plate when Eppler lost control and issued bases on balls to Allen, Barnewall, and Jaspersohn. The Blue and Gold threatened again in the eighth inning, but with the bases filled and two out, Eppler slipped the third strike past Dave Allen. In the sixth, seventh, and eighth cantos, the seemingly paralyzed Trinity bat bearers left a total of nine runners stranded on the bases.

The star of the afternoon was Bob Parker, who in addition to fielding his position errorlessly, hammered out three hits and scored two runs. Parker figured in the scoring of all three of Trinity's markers. Ray Patton clearly outpitched Eppler, Amherst's hurling star, who spent a busy afternoon trying to keep the Trinity batters away from the plate. Eppler (Continued on page 4.)

playing decidedly better form than they were at this time last year.

When asked for his line-up, Coach Altmaier said that it has not been definitely chosen or the positions assigned as yet. He, however, named the veterans, Captain Louis Stein, John Parsons, and Bill O'Bryon as sure starters along with Rohowsky, freshman star. Charlie Harris, outstanding freshman last year, is also sure of a berth if he is able to arrange his schedule so that he can play. The other position will be filled by either Soule, Storms, Barrows, Patterson, or Bates.

Bowdoin is also sending down a golf team to play the newly-organized Trinity team. The Trinity line-up has not yet been announced.

TRACK OUTLOOK GLOOMY FOR MASS. STATE MEET

Team's Inexperience, Coupled with Insufficient Practice, Hurt Hilltoppers' Chances

In an attempt to balance last Saturday's loss to Tufts, Captain Bill Haight, star Blue and Gold hurdler, will lead his teammates against the Massachusetts State trackmen on Saturday, May 2. Despite the setback received in their initial start, the Trinity athletes, considering their inexperience and the heavy toll taken by last year's graduation, made a fairly promising showing against Tufts, and although the outlook is not bright, the team stands an outside chance of winning.

Four years have passed since a Trinity track team last tasted defeat at the hands of the Massachusetts

State warriors, and although this long succession of wins is seriously threatened, the Hilltoppers expect to put up a good fight. The advantage of a winter track season, possessed by both Tufts and Massachusetts State, will be reduced by the passage of time. Last Saturday it was evident that Coach Oosting's proteges lacked both experience and sufficient practice.

Led by Kellam, Alexander, and Warner, holders of five college records, the Blue and Gold team decisively conquered Massachusetts State 70-56 last year. Without the services of these three luminaries, Trinity is at a decided disadvantage this year. In the dashes it must chiefly rely on Truex, who also is the best bet in both shot put and discus. A hand injury has deprived the team of the services of Phillips Hawkins, two-mile runner. This unfortunate loss enabled Tufts to finish one-two in that event and possibly spelled the difference between victory and defeat.

Last winter in a triangular meet with Worcester Tech and Tufts, the Massachusetts State team made an almost identical showing to that of Tufts. It seems evident, therefore, that Trinity, to capture the meet next Saturday, must show decided improvement over its performance in the Tufts' contest.

SENIOR BALL ORCHESTRA

A. A. Hoehling, Chairman of the Senior Ball Committee, has announced that Jerry Johnson and his Orchestra will provide the music for the Senior Ball, May 15. Johnson is now playing at the Kenmore Hotel in Albany and formerly played at the Palomar, a fashionable resort in Los Angeles, well known on the West Coast. He has also played for the movies and recorded for Victor and Bluebird.

yielded eight hits and nine bases on balls, while Patton, by way of comparison, gave up only five hits and four passes. Only Trinity's careless base running, which cost the home team at least three runs, enabled Epple to weather the Blue and Gold batting assaults.
