JESSEEMEN DROP CLOSE DECISION TO VERMONT IN PITCHERS' BATTLE

Budzyna Fans 8 Trin Batters and Yields 5 Blows, as O'Malley and Shelly Make 4

SCORE 4-3

Crowd of 5000 Jams Vermont Field to See Home Team Obtain Winning Run in 9th

Saturday, May 21—Before a crowd of 5000 spectators attending the New England Music Festival, the University of Vermont nine nosed out Trinity 4-3 in a pitchers' battle between Bud Budzyna for the Catamounts and Ed Morris for the Hill-toppers on the Vermonters' field this afternoon.

Budzyna allowed the Jesseemen but five hits in avenging a one-run defeat the Blue and Gold tagged on him last year. He had excellent control, walking only one batter while striking out eight. Morris was wild at the start of the contest, but he settled down as the game progressed and turned in a creditable performance. He gave up six safe bingles to the Catamounts, walked four, and struck out three.

Vermont got away to a one-run lead in the first inning, and added another in the third. Budzyna was mowing down the Trinity batters with amazing regularity and at the start of the eighth the score was 2 to 0 in favor of the Burlington battlers. In this frame the Jesseemen tallied three times to take the lead. The markers were chalked up by virtue of a single by Lapac, a walk to Capobianco, a

REV. ROELIF H. BROOKS URGES BIBLE AS GUIDE

No Other Work Combines Drama, Romance, and Poetry as Well as the Bible

Basing his talk upon the Biblical phrase, "Whatsoever was written beforehand was written for our time," the Rev. Roelif H. Brooks, '00, Rector of St. Thomas's Church, New York, recommended, while speaking in Wednesday Chapel, the Bible to the students as a guide to life.

The Rev. Mr. Brooks, whose talk was promoted by the recent installation in his church of a window containing the images of the three Bishops who were appointed by King James to translate the Bible, said that the King James Version of the Bible was in his opinion one of the true wonders of the world. These three men—Lancelot Andrews, Bishop of Winchester and Master of Corpus Christi College, Oxford; Bishop Felton, Bishop of Bristol and Master of Christ College, Cambridge; and Bishop Smith, Bishop of Gloucester and later Master of Corpus Christi College, Oxford—completed their task in six years after translating almost the entire work from the originals and writing the material out with pen and ink. "Think of the amazing contribution these men made when they wrote this book, the language of which we have never have been able to improve upon," said the speaker. It is undoubtedly one of the three greatest English classics.

Many people have gone too far in making their own interpretations of phrases of the Bible, but it is very good training and experience for young men to try to find the real

MEDUSA TAPS FOUR MEN IN ANNUAL CEREMONIES

Bassford, Morris, Gorman, and Muir Are Chosen by the Honorary Society

Thursday, May 19—Ethan F. Bassford, William H. Gorman, Edward L. Morris, and Robert M. Muir were tapped this evening for the Medusa, Trinity Senior Honorary Society, by the graduating members of that organization in an impressive ceremony conducted by the Bishop's statue on the campus.

The combination of a murky night and of fitful gusts of wind sweeping through the elms fitted in quite well with the slightly macabre solemnity of the occasion. At precisely ten o'clock, by the time that all members of the junior class had lined up in a close circle about the statue, the senior Medusa representatives, garbed in flowing black robes, made their appearance on the campus, coming from an underground room in the dormitories. Each of them bore aloft a torch, and as they gathered in a little circle some distance from the awaiting juniors, they made an awesome picture. At length one of them detached himself and, after marching around the junior-encircled Bishop loudly slapped one of the shadowy figures on the back and led him over to the little knot. This was repeated until all new members had been chosen, and then both old and new members of the Medusa solemnly filed away.

Bassford, who comes from Nutley, N. J., where he attended the Nutley High School, has taken a prominent part in extra-curricular activities at Trinity since his entrance three years ago. He was elected Editor-in-Chief of the "Ivy" last fall and also was promoted to the Editorial Board of the Tripod in the middle of his sophomore year, although the press of duties and responsibility placed upon him by the former position forced him to resign from the latter a few

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

At a meeting of the Interfraternity Council held Thursday evening, the following were elected to office for the year 1938-39: Robert Murray Muir, '39, undergraduate head; Ethan F. Bassford, '39, secretary; Alfred W. Driggs, Jr., treasurer. Beekman Budd was appointed chairman of a committee to write the booklet entitled "Information for Freshmen," which gives the new student the etiquette and rules of rushing.

Prof. Robert B. W. Hutt will continue as the faculty head of the Council. The office of an undergraduate head to work with the faculty head was just created this year. An amendment was added to the rules that no upper-classman may visit a freshman after 9 o'clock on weekdays and 12 o'clock Saturday during the second week of rushing.

ALUMNI ELECT OFFICERS AT PITTSBURGH DINNER

Luncheon in Honor of President Ogilby Given Before Dinner at University Club

Tuesday, May 17—The alumni of Pittsburgh and its environs held a spring dinner at the University Club in Pittsburgh this evening. The dinner was attended by seventeen alumni, three guests, President Ogilby, and Thomas Wadlow, '33, Alumni Secretary.

Elections for the offices of the Pittsburgh Association took place, and the following were selected: Hill Burgwin, '06, president; John B. Moore, '13, vice-president; Joseph Buffington, Jr., '18, secretary; James G. Marks, '33, treasurer.

Moving pictures of the college itself and of the various college activities were shown. Dr. Ogilby gave a talk about Trinity today and how it was holding up the standards of the past. After the speech given by President Ogilby there followed an informal chat concerning questions of importance in relation to the college. Among the alumni present were: William H. Bleeker, '12; G. D. Bowne, '06; Joseph Buffington, Jr., '18; George C. Burgwin, Jr., '14; Hill Burgwin, Jr., '06; Alvord B. Churchill, '16; Lowell T. Lyon, '16; J. W. Lyon, '21; James G. Marks, '33; J. Bigelow

TRACKSTERS FACE TUFTS IN SEASON'S LAST MEET

Jumbos Strong in Distances and Running Events with Folsom, Quinlan, and Atkinson

This Saturday afternoon the Trinity track team will play host to the Tufts squad in the final meet of the current season. Trinity enters the meet with but one defeat suffered at the hands of a very superior Wesleyan team, and three victories over R. P. I., New Britain State Teachers, and Massachusetts State.

Tufts will bring a very strong aggregation down from Medford, which has already competed in the New England Intercollegiates against the Blue and Gold and has compiled a higher total as goes the point score. Tufts is predominantly strong in the running events, especially the distances. The probable entries for the Jumbos will find Arbeene pitted against Captain Brennan, Steve Brennan, Chet Collier, and Herby Pankratz in the dashes; Bob Folsom, the Jumbo's ace middle-distance man, will line up against Herb in the 440, with Adams from Tufts, another man to be heard from, will team up with Quinlan, Tufts star miler (who has beaten Tommy McLaughlin), in the half against Tommy; in the mile Ernie Schmid, undefeated to date in dual meets, stands a very good chance of losing his hard-won laurels to Quinlan, who took the mile in the New England Intercollegiates, held at Worcester, in the four-twenties; the two milers are Atkinson, and Nygaard who took one two in the Intercollegiates in the fast time of 10:04.7, at least thirty seconds faster than any of the Trinity two-milers' times this season. In the hurdles, Clem and John Alexander can expect trouble from Burton and Bewton of the Jumbo squad. The field events finds the Jumbos particularly strong in the broad jump with a twenty-two man, Arbeene, and Adams. In the high jump the Medford men have three contestants to push Bori and Gus up to the six mark in Grant, Pollard, and Wilson. Pollard, also, takes care of the javelin for the Tufts team, along with the shot. The pole vault finds Wilson and Viellux as Trinity's twelve-foot trio's most dangerous rivals, and the discus uncovers Herman as the best Jumbo bet to offer serious resistance.

JESTERS GIVE COLORFUL PERFORMANCES OF "LEAR" IN THE COLLEGE CHAPEL

Much Credit Due Prof. Shepard and Mr. Greenley for Work in Directing "King Lear"

BENJAMIN WINS PRAISE

Regal Pageantry of Court Scenes and Sincere Pathos of Death Scene Highly Lauded

By James S. Neill, '40

Saturday, May 21—The color and stirring pageantry of the Shakespearian plays was once again recaptured tonight and last night in the College Chapel, when, against a plain background and with artistic lighting effects, the Trinity College Jesters presented their version of "King Lear."

For the Jesters it was their first Shakespearian attempt since "Coriolanus" was given several years ago, and credit must be given them for trying as difficult a play as "Lear."

The pageantry that ran throughout was evidenced in the first scene when Lear, masterfully portrayed by Sam Benjamin, enters with all his court, to divide his kingdom among his three daughters—Goneril, Regan, and Cordelia. The "glib and oily tongues" of Goneril and Regan prove their love for Lear to be more than Cordelia's, and the vast domains of the eighty-year-old King are divided jointly among them. Goneril and Regan, played by Richard Ames and Bradford Colton, soon find that they are of one mind, and together with the Earl of Gloucester's bastard son, Edmund, plot to turn over the old King to his enemies and to obtain the rest of the land. But their pro-

JESSEEMEN END SEASON WITH MASS. STATE GAME

Meet Wesleyan Here Tomorrow, and Baystaters Saturday in Year's Finale

In a final effort to counterbalance the four setbacks received at the hands of Yale, Colby, Worcester Tech, and Vermont and to register two more games on the victorious side of the ledger, the Jesseemen will play host to the baseball warriors from Wesleyan and Massachusetts State this coming week. The Blue and Gold's record to date reads four losses to as many wins, with their last opportunity of turning in a better than .500 season offered them in their final two games of the year against Wesleyan tomorrow, and Massachusetts State this Saturday.

To date Wesleyan, in the throes of a mid-season slump, has lost six successive games; their last to Boston U. this last Saturday by a 10 to 8 count in a game which saw the B. U. lads score ten runs during the first four innings off faulty Cardinal fielding and pitching. Trinity was previously victorious over the Wesmen on the Cardinals' own home grounds due to some fine pitching on the part of Ed Morris and some classy slugging on Pete Rihl's part. The Cardinals' choice for a starting hurler will be selected from Cotter, See, Grosvenor, or Peterson, with Cotter having the best chance of pulling down the assignment after his effective relief pitching performance against the Boston U. sluggers. The probable batting order for the Wesmen will read: Bogue, cf; Morningstar, rf; Horne,

Sally Rand, Intellectual Siren of Soap Suds, Exhibits a Keen Business Ability

By Albert Rundbaken, '38

Sally Rand, essence of the notorious entertainment, settled back entirely unassumingly in her dressing room at the State Theatre a few minutes before enthraling a capacity audience with her dancing, the other day, and, between mouthfuls of a box lunch, discussed authoritatively no less a subject than to learn considerably more of the individual "responsible for making three world's fairs famous." Well informed, egotistically self-confident, moderately headstrong, and determined to direct her business affairs personally—as evidenced by her taking charge of the whole theatre office, managers and all, in getting some damaged advance notices repaired and forwarded to Kansas City where she is appearing next—Sally Rand impressed a stranger as the brains of her organization of some eight individuals. Some of her "teasers" had been cut by the State projection man, which spoiled their sound tracks, bringing her into com-

JILTED AGAIN

The Jesters have failed again to make a financial success of their latest production, a failure which is in no respect the fault of that organization. For some time the Jesters have been attempting to curry the favor of the student body as well as that of the public at large. Experience has taught them that to gain support and offset numerous deficits of the past years they must launch a program to "educate" the masses.

Consequently, when plans were made for the production of "King Lear", a publicity manager was appointed and authorized to spend a large share of the play's budget for advertising purposes. It was an ambitious program and well done. Radio broadcasts were staged, posters were placed about the city, advertisements inserted in the daily papers; in fact, the town and students must have known that the Jesters were up to something. And the Jesters had every reason to expect a fair return on the investment.

The gate receipts for the two nights showed no upward trend—the college body remains as obdurate as a brick wall. On opening night some one hundred and thirty admissions were paid in, and Saturday night the receipts were slightly less. Approximately half of the admissions, however, came from townspeople and from students at neighboring schools and colleges. Trinity men were as rare as a Republican in South Carolina. Evidently a prophet is not without honor save in his own country.

We wonder what it takes to overcome the frame of mind possessed by the majority in this college, a group so reluctant to support their own organizations that help and sustenance must be sought from the outside to a great extent. Editors before us have tried to analyze the workings of the student mind, and like them we, too, must admit our failure to understand. We have only admiration for the fortitude and courage of the Jesters. Hampered by the physical surroundings of the Chapel, the group managed to give a sound performance. If discouraged by the attendance, they never showed it, but we could not blame them in the least if they asked the Bard of Avon's forgiveness for the ineptness of fellow students, and then plunged into the murky waters of the Hog River.

Massachusetts State, however, brings a much better balanced and potentially stronger ball club to Hartford this Saturday. Opening the season with a twelve-game winning streak that was momentarily checked by Amherst's stocky Michell, and then by Boston U., the Baystaters continued on their merry way against Tufts and Wesleyan last week. A recent shift made by the Mass. State coach will probably send Fran Riel, brother of slugging Fred, at second base, to the mound against the Blue and Gold in Trinity's windup game of the season. Other possibilities for the starting assignment include center-fielder Bemben, Lefty Blake, or Bokina. The probable Bay State batting order will read: Fred Riel, 2b; Couper, ss; Tappin, rf; Towle, 1b; Bush, lf; Bemben, cf; Ingram, 3b; Steff, c; and Fran Riel, p.

SPORTS SIDELIGHTS

By E. A. Charles, '40

Ray Oosting seems a little anxious, and possibly even worried, as to the outcome of the Tufts track meet this Saturday, for the Tufts coach (a bit of a wag), it has been rumored, claims that "This is the year!" And Ray is in no position to argue at length, as the Jumbos have one of the strongest running squads that the home forces have faced all season. To top it all off, the Pachyderms from up Medford way went and turned in a much more creditable showing at the recent intercollegiate meet held at Worcester than did our gang in blue.

To take the meet, it begins to look as if the Blue and Gold must sweep the sprints, hurdles, and all the field events. There are fine prospects for a record-breaking duel in the quarter, as Herby Pankratz is slated to toe in against Folsom, the Jumbo ace, who beat Herby in the trials up at Worcester, but trailed Herby by scant inches in the finals of the event. The other half of the tornado twins, Tommy McLaughlin, has more than his share cut out for him when he takes the post Saturday against Quinlan, the Jumbos' ace half and miler, who nosed out Tommy up at Worcester in one real fast 880. The mile and two-mile will just about be races against time, as even the staunchest efforts put forth by Ernie "Express" Schmid and Ray "Gun Lap" Perry do not begin to approach any of the times set by those Tufts time-machines. Among the Jumbo entrants in the field events, Arbeene, a swarthy broad jumper, has been known to leap twenty-two feet, and the Tufts No. 1 high jumper was tied for a first up at Worcester. So, all in all, it should be one swell meet for the spectators.

Ed Morris was pitching his arm off up at Vermont, they tell us. "Big Ed" was setting the Catamounts down with but one hit over an eight-inning stretch, until the boys in green got together and ganged up on him for those winning tallies in the twilight innings.

Had you noticed how Ed has been sailing along this year? He was pitching another nice game down at Wesleyan until a big seventh inning for the Cardinals almost tripped him up.

The athletic program heads into the home stretch this week-end with two ball games—one with Wesleyan this Wednesday, and Mass. State on Saturday, and that Tufts track meet Saturday. All, incidentally, on campus. Should we lose a ball game we would favor the Baystaters over the Cards as our conquerors . . . not that we will, of course, especially if Ed Morris is really hot in the afternoon. Oh that track meet—well, we've mentioned that before. All that needs be added is that those Tufts lads have been eating our dust for three years now and think that they're on the verge of something or another, but we just can't see what.

By the way . . . Were the Jessemen stunned when they stepped out onto the field up at Vermont before a gallery totaling somewhere over the 5000 mark! . . . They're calling Captain Clem "5-6" Motten now. It appears that Clement turned in one first, two thirds, a double, and a triple tie for third to garner the sum total of 65-16 points. . . Did we hear some complaints from Ralph Erickson about an inexperienced squad at the start of the campaign (true, that new pro ruling gave him his needed pitchers)—but have you taken a squint at the forty-oners' record to date: seven victories to one defeat? . . . Ernie Schmid only remains among the ranks of the unbeaten today because the bureau of standards or something decided to make the mile as long as 'tis. Two feet less and the mighty atom would still be trailing those RPI men to the tape. He trailed those Engineer milers 5278 feet of a mile before he gave that extra ughmp.

BLUE AND GOLD DEFEATS RENSSELAER TRACK TEAM

Trinity Runners Take R. P. I. by Count of 77 1-2 to 48 2-3; Pacelia High Scorer

Saturday, May 21—The Blue and Gold forces of Trinity invaded the portals of R. P. I. at Troy, N. Y., today to take the Rensselaer track team by the score of 77 1-3 to 48 2-3. Taking nine firsts and tying for first in two other events, Trinity showed a well-balanced team on a fast track.

Two R. P. I. records for the low and high hurdles were broken, while the Trin record for the century was tied. Carlson (R) won the high hurdles, setting the R. P. I. record at 15.6; and tied with Motten (T) for first in the low hurdles, setting this time at 25.8. Brennan of Trinity captured the hundred - yard dash, equalling the Trinity record set by Steve Truex last year. Brennan also took the 220-yard dash by a scant margin.

McLaughlin of Trinity came through to capture two firsts in the 440 and the 880-yard runs, turning in excellent times. Pacelia, taking the broad jump and tying for first in the high jump and the pole vault, garnered the highest number of points during the day. Motten of Trinity, high-point man of the Wesleyan meet, placed in five events, tying for first in the low hurdles and placing in the high hurdles, high jump, pole vault, and the broad jump.

Perry and Charles in the two-mile run turned in the best times this year, although they were not able to take that event. Ernie Schmid, on the last 220-yard lap of the mile run, moved from fourth place to sprint to victory.

KING LEAR

ject miscarries, and Edmund is killed by his brother Edgar, while Goneril and Regan are murdered. The soul-rending tragedy of the final scene, with the old king bringing in the body of Cordelia, the death of Lear, and the assuming of power by Albany, Edgar, and Kent, was portrayed with a vividness that paralleled Lear's sudden madness scene in the wild night of thunder and lightning.

Enough praise cannot be given Benjamin for his creation of the role of Lear. Although a little too forceful and ambitious at times, he put on a Lear that was decidedly well done. Robert Harris, as Edmund, well showed his talent for anticipating his role's reaction to the dialogue and then sending it forth in his facial expression. His speeches were excellently done. Others who should be singled out for special recognition include: Lewis Sheen, as Edgar, the "poor, mad Tom,"; and Arthur Sherman, as the Earl of Gloucester.

Not enough credit can be given to Mr. Howard Greenley, whose experience in producing plays helped so much in creating "Lear." His lighting ideas, with the blending of color and intensity, aided the representation a great deal. Professor Odell Shepard, as director of the play, must come in for a large share of the praise, for his able help in the speaking parts was very much in evidence. The storm sounds effects, produced by Mr. Watters at the organ, were unexpectedly realistic.

The chapel with its high vaulted ceiling and the plain background, provided an ideal setting, but with the acoustics and seating arrangements what they are, the play should never have been staged there. The effect created could have been just as well done had the play been presented in the Chemistry Auditorium, where both learning and seeing

HERE AND THERE

Well, it's pretty near the end of the year and we'd like to pass out some unasked-for comments.

We like the Tripe, in fact we even worship the feet it steps on in its flight, but why must we have a year of no fires, floods, or hurricanes just when we get on the sheet?

We hope that none of the other college papers took any of our drive to heart. Anything we said in this column against any rival was all in good fun (except maybe a crack or two at the "Argus"). For a while there, it began to look as though our Wesleyan companions put out their paper with scissors in one hand and the Tripod in the other.

For the benefit of those who wonder, we're staunch Republican and intend to remain such, especially with the local Democrats in such hot water. At one time or other we've been Fascist, Socialist, Democrat, or stubborn New Englander (who isn't just stubborn, but who really doesn't know which way to turn). But all is changed now; Pop lost his job with the WPA.

Why can't the boys leave the poor Bishop alone? He hasn't done anything to deserve the punishment he gets and, besides, the birds take care of a good part of decorating him.

If you missed Dr. Hutt's annual lecture, be sure you get in on it next year. It's astounding the number of seniors who get through four years of college with so little knowledge of the facts of life. We go every year just to be sure there isn't something new that we should know about. Don't miss it! It's tops!

R. B. O. hit the headlines again. This time he and another Trin grad, Mike Connors, got in the swanky funny mag of the season, "New Yorker." It was all a long discussion of the markers on Prexy's car. Mike seems to think that personalities on the plates lead to safer driving. We hope it works that way.

FROSH WINNING STREAK BROKEN BY KINGSWOOD

Ball Team Adds Milford to List of Victories, But Gives Way to Kingswood

After winning five straight, the freshman baseball team dropped a close 3-1 game to Kingswood Wednesday. Trinity scored one run in the first inning while Kingswood drove in two. Kingswood scored another in the second inning. Steers started off the pitching for Trinity and in the second inning was replaced by Gordon, who pitched good ball throughout the remaining part of the game.

The frosh baseball team ran into an unusually strong club when it played Milford, the heaviest hitting opposition of the year. The Milford shortstop led the hitting with three hits, one being a homer to left field with man on base. Strang turned in another fine performance, winning his fourth consecutive victory. Trinity trailed until late in the game, when it was finally able to overcome the early Milford lead and win 5-4. Thomsen led the freshman hitters with two for four. Debona made a couple of good hits, and Walsh starred in left field.

single by Shelly, and another single by Captain O'Malley. The Vermonters came right back in their half of the eighth to tie the game up again, and, after holding the Hilltoppers scoreless in the first of the ninth, bludgeoned Ed Morris when they came to bat again. Berry opened the barrage by pickling one of Morris's curves for a double into deep left. Nicholson then laid down a perfect bunt and beat it out for a hit. The Catamounts' shortstop, Beauchemin, then completed the rally by slashing a single to right, scoring Berry with the winning run.

Ralph Shelly, Trinity's slugging little left fielder and third baseman, kept his batting average over the .500 mark by getting two safe blows in four trips to the plate. Captain Bob O'Malley also got two for four while Ed Lapac got the other Trinity safe blow. Vermont's six hits were distributed among six batters. The season's record is now four victories and four defeats with two games still to be played.

"IVY" NOTICE

At a meeting of the Sophomore Class Tuesday night, the following were elected to edit the 1940 edition of the Trinity "Ivy": James S. Neill, Editor-in-Chief; Palmer J. McCloskey, Jr., Business Manager.

manding action with a barrage of tirades against the hapless movie operator. A "teaser" as she explained it, is a short length of film that precedes her act at a theatre, "Showing a little, and making you want to see more."

Witnessing this little act was disillusioning in the extreme, showing up the lady of the fans and the bubbles, the girl who turns a breeze into a tornado also as a keen business woman, totally foreign to the glamorous nymph-like form, that flitted so enticingly about the stage a few minutes later.

By asking questions between spasms of rolling and unrolling "teasers" on the part of Miss Rand, her box receipt checker and a couple of ushers, the following information was gained: The Harvard boys were "very nice" and behaved well when Miss Rand spoke to them recently. The present trends which provide her with most of her material for the new famous public speeches need only careful following in the daily newspapers for intelligent discussions, which are accomplished without delving into the archives of any library. Modern education of a formal nature often prevents intelligent actions because of its exclusion of practical experiences so necessary for truly intelligent acting. The movies hold no attractions for Miss Rand, who is planning definitely to go on the legitimate stage, having already performed satisfactorily in several dramatic pieces. Theatre managers do not take any chances when they book her act, her previous box-office records stamping it as a sure success—and, incidentally, she had many of her recent records on the tip of her tongue, something her "checker" couldn't boast of.

In developing her fan dance she worked it out as a composer, say Debussy, might work out a musical composition, developing his inspiration through his particular medium of expression, be it the dance or music.

Born as Helen Gould Beck on a small farm in Hickory County, Missouri, Miss Rand was inspired to become a dancer at the age of six when she saw the great Pavlova perform. She left high school to enter Christian College at Columbia, Missouri, leaving that institution because of failing family finances. Before gaining fame as a fan dancer, she worked as a cigarette girl, and posed at an art institute during the day where she was further inspired to express an appreciation of line, color, and harmony in a dance, having taken lessons for a great number of years.

FROSH NINE DEFEATS WESLEYAN YEARLINGS

Hurler Strang Fans Eleven as His Mates Pound Out Easy Fifth Straight Win

Monday, May 16—The Wesleyan freshman baseball team continued in the losing column as it went down today before Ralph Erickson's powerful frosh nine which chalked up its fifth straight victory. The Blue and Gold boys were in trouble at only one point, in the first inning, but came back strong and coasted to a rather easy 9-4 triumph.

The Wesleyan nine opened with a barrage of four runs in the last half of the first after a shaky start by the Trin frosh. Ted Strang quickly recovered, however, and as the game grew older he continued to hold the opposition scoreless. It appeared that a real contest might develop when Trinity scored one in the second and four more in the sixth to make the outcome doubtful until the last Strang allowed but ten scattered hits while helping garner three of his team's eleven blows. Danny Whitlock, hurling for the losers, pitched a good game but was given poor support, for the home team made six errors to Trinity's two.

meaning of those unexcelled lines. One soon realizes how so many changes and differences of opinion can develop. For a long time it was thought that the sentence, "Cast your bread upon the water, and it will be returned to ye," applied to charity, but later it was found that the ancient peoples had the same word for food and for rice and thus the sentence meant that the men threw their rice in the water. There has been much criticism by scientists of the miracles that are recorded, but close investigation has usually shown that these so-called miracles were not impossible and highly probable. While looking through the ruins of Jericho archaeologists have found that the walls were so constructed that it would not have taken much of a disturbance to make the mighty walls crumble. They have also found that a fire was raging at the time of their collapse and this may have helped the trumpets in destroying the city.

It is hard for some people to realize that for years the Bible has been the "Best Seller" in the world. In the past years this book, which is printed in one hundred and ninety-seven languages and dialects, was bought by over seven million people and that the sale in China was the largest in six years. Why is this true? Because in this book is found such drama, romance, and poetry as can be found in no other volume or ten volumes sold. If you want to find pure common sense, go to your Bible. If some problem is perplexing you, this book will probably contain the answer. For those young men who are beginning to face the world alone there is no better guide for life than the Bible.
