

DR. AYDELOTTE DEFENDS CHAMBERLAIN'S POLICY IN THE CZECH CRISIS

Political Science Club Holds Election of Officers for 1938-1939

HUFFMAN NEW HEAD

Guest Speaker Argues That Small Nations Should Yield Rights to Larger Neighbors

Tuesday, October 18—Over forty persons gathered in the Cook Lounge tonight for the first meeting of the Political Science Club this term. Truman Huffman as temporary chairman, conducted the election of officers.

The officers for this year are Truman Huffman, President; Ed Morris, Vice-President; Frank Barnes, Secretary; and Leo Gilman, Treasurer.

The new president introduced Dr. Aydelotte, the speaker of the evening. Dr. Aydelotte chose as his subject the defense of Chamberlain's policy in relation to the Czech crisis, developing it from five different angles.

He believes that the Sudeten cause is just and that the present developments are not at all surprising in view of the history of post-war Europe. Furthermore, both Wilson and Lloyd George foresaw trouble when these Germans were given to Czechoslovakia. The Sudeten minority has been uneasy under Czech rule ever since 1920 when many of the Sudeten party withdrew from the Czech Parliament.

He propounded the argument that Czechoslovakia is not worth fighting for, regardless of the fact that Germany's chances of winning a war against the Western Powers are negligible. Even with the resources of the Danube river valley at Germany's command, the superior resources of the Allies and the British blockade would have told in the long run.

He cited the improvement of the international situation since the Munich settlement as justification for almost any concession, although he looks dubiously toward future developments.

It is his opinion that small nations have no rights when the needs of their larger neighbors are concerned. He looks toward the time when Europe will be composed of only five large countries. As for the ten million

CHARLES WALKER GIVES RECORDING BROADCAST

Monday, October 24—Opening a new series of Trinity College programs, which will consist of recorded music from the College Library, a program of early harpsichord music was offered over WTHT this evening, conducted by Charles D. Walker, '40. The first section of this series, it was a presentation of the development of piano music from its origins to the present day, with phonograph recordings of the works of the principal composers who contributed development.

Since the harpsichord was a direct ancestor of the piano, it seemed fitting to commence with some examples from compositions for this instrument. The program was as follows: William Byrd (1543-1623)

—Sellinger's Round Wolsey's Wilde Henry Purcell (1658-1695)—Suite in G minor

—Le Tambourin

FRESHMAN ELEVEN OPENS SEASON AGAINST CHOATE

Yearlings Given Outside Chance Against Unbeaten Choate Aggregation

On Saturday, the twenty-ninth, the freshman eleven will play Choate, their first opponent of the season. On November 3 they will take on Marianapolis, and on the twelfth, Suffield. Coach Erickson has been whipping them into play so that the first encounter should inaugurate an undefeated season. The game will be a tough one, for Choate, who last week took the Yale boys 19-6, has had a victorious record against Milford Academy and Deerfield.

The freshmen are heavier than last year's men, and their scrimmaging with the second team has shown some tough material, and some good line-work. They ought to justify their conceit by putting up a stiff defensive and a smashing offensive, and come home from Wallingford with honors. The following will be the starting

Herbert Hoover Airs Opinions on Fraternities, National Affairs, and Colleges—Munich Agreement is Unimportant

By George F. Butterworth, 3rd, '41

Herbert Hoover, ex-president of the United States of America, asserted his belief in local government, individual initiative, small colleges, and honorable neutrality in war and fraternities at an interview last Tuesday morning.

Mr. Hoover was pleased to note the energy exerted by the citizens of Connecticut in clearing away the damage caused by the recent flood and hurricane. He remarked that the New England States have always been known for the thrift and individual initiative of their citizens and that, for that reason, there is very little town or state debt in this section of the country.

He went on to point out that the people of New England, however, do not seem to realize the amount of national debt which will be their lot to pay in the future. New England's share, he stated, is in hundreds of millions of dollars. When asked how long the present spending program of the New Deal could continue, Mr. Hoover asserted that it would depend upon the method used to acquire money. If the Administration borrows from the banks, it can continue until confidence in them is lost.

The ex-president expressed a hearty wish that we dig out of the depression with the same spirit as the Connecticut families are displaying in digging out of the storm wreckage. He observed that the WPA workers are responsible for only about two percent of the storm clearance work, because most of the labor has been done by private individuals on their own land or by large companies.

Mr. Hoover was then asked for his opinion regarding the four-state compact for flood control in New England. Mr. Hoover asserted that his belief in local government is still strong and that he sees no good reason for Federal interference with the project. Enlarging upon this, he explained that he had helped organize the first interstate compact for water control out in Colorado, and that he felt this to be a good solution to the flood problem here. Before the Boulder Dam (formerly the Hoover Dam) was built out in Colorado, it was planned that the Dam be paid for by the sale of power contracts to private companies with rate regulations to protect the customer. These contracts are now paying for the dam, and when it is paid for it will revert to the states, although the Federal government put up the dam and controls it now.

"The United States should stay out of other people's wars, if that can be done without any loss to our national honor and independence!" Mr. Hoover further expressed his stand upon foreign affairs with the opinion that the totalitarian states will not invade this hemisphere because the risk involved would be incommensurate with the benefits which they might obtain.

The effect of the Munich Agreement upon economic relations of the world was minimized by Mr. Hoover. He said that the economic system of Europe had changed very rapidly recently, and that the Agreement would effect no profound changes in the trade systems in use. He then introduced the view that the European powers are beginning by means of these quotas to build up trade provinces. Great Britain has one in India, Africa, and Australia; Germany is building one in Europe; and Japan is building one in the Far East. He said that the United States should proceed to build up a trade province of its own in the Western Hemisphere.

FALL ORGAN RECITAL PROGRAMS ANNOUNCED

First Recital, Featuring Ludwig Theis, to be Heard Over WTHT Tonight

Programs for several of the series of fall organ recitals in the College chapel have been announced by Dr. Clarence E. Watters, the arranger of the series.

The first of these is a recital to be given by Ludwig Theis, noted German organist, now traveling in this country, at 8.15 tonight in the chapel. The first two selections and part of the third will be heard over Station WTHT.

The program for Theis's recital includes:

1—Prelude and Fugue in G Major, J. S. Bach

2—Choral: Prelude, "Wachet auf ruft uns die Stimme,".....J. S. Bach

3—Doris Toccata,.....J. S. Bach

4—Intermezzo,Joseph Haas

5—Canzone,Joseph Renner

6—Ciaccone in F Minor, Johann Pachelbel

7—Choral in A Minor,.....Cesar Franck

8—Improvisations,Ludwig Theis

On the following evening a recital will be given by Dr. Watters at 8.00 over WTHT. The program, which numbers five choral-preludes by Johann Sebastian Bach, contains:

1—"Praise God, all ye Christians."

2—"Whoever lets the dear God reign."

3—"We cry unto Thee, Lord Jesus."

4—"Dearest Jesus, we are here."

5—"We all believe in one God, Creator."

Dr. Watters' next program, to be held on November 2, consists of the Third Trio-Sonata in D Minor in three movements by Bach—Andante, Largo, and Vivace.

SEABURY SOCIETY

An informal meeting of the Seabury Society will be held tonight, October 25, in the cafeteria after the organ recital of Ludwig Theis. All students who are interested in Church work, especially those entering the ministry, are invited to attend a discussion with Mr. Theis at that time.

Trinity Counts Twice by Air Route, Scores in All Four Periods to Win, 26-0

RIHL KICKS WELL

New Londoners Threaten in First Half, But Field Goal Attempt Fails—Complete 13 Passes

Saturday, October 22—Scoring once in every quarter, and showing offensive power for the first time this season, the Trinity football team put on the pressure and whipped the Coast Guard Academy eleven this afternoon on the Hilltoppers' field by a score of 26-0.

The first touchdown pushed over by the Jessemen came early in the first period. To open the contest, Stan Alexander kicked off for Trinity to the Kaydets' ten-yard line, where the ball was taken by Kincaid and brought back to the thirty-two. Two line plays failed to gain and Goerecki punted to Ed Morris on the Trinity thirty. Morris brought the pigskin to the thirty-five before he was downed. On the first play from scrimmage, Morris broke off tackle and raced twenty-eight yards to the Coast Guard's 37. Pacelia and Ryan made it first down on the Kaydets' 25 on two line plays. After two line plays had netted only two yards, Ryan faded back and threw a bullet pass straight down the middle which Bill Kelly caught and stepped over the goal line for the first score of the afternoon. Stan Alexander attempted to place kick the point after touchdown, but his boot was wide of the uprights.

The remainder of the first quarter developed into a punting duel between Hal Goerecki for the Coast Guard and Pete Rihl for the Blue and Gold, with Rihl having a slight edge. The period ended with the ball on the Coast Guard 45, with the Kaydets in possession of the pigskin, fourth down and one yard to go for a first down.

To start the second quarter, the New Londoners' quarterback elected to punt, and Trinity started its offensive from the Hilltoppers' 33. Pacelia, on a spinner play, smashed through the center of the line for forty-one yards, carrying the oval to

SCHNEIDER TO LECTURE UPON MICRO-CHEMISTRY

Dr. Frank Schneider, of Trinity's Chemistry Department, has been announced as one of the speakers at the 188th Meeting of the New England Association Saturday, October 29, at St. Joseph's College, West Hartford.

His lecture and accompanying demonstrations will be on micro-chemical methods and their use in chemical education.

H. C. Moseley, of the Ethyl Corporation of Boston, and Sister Mary Benigna, Ph.D., of St. Joseph's College, will also lecture and demonstrate, respectively, upon gasoline (including tests on anti-knock gasoline) and upon the micro-determination of nitrogen in animo acids.

The Welcome Address is to be given by Sister M. Rosa, Ph.D., Dean of St. Joseph's. In charge of the meeting are the Rev. Raymond G. Lafontaine, Chairman of the Western Division, Ralph E. Kierstad, President, and William O. Brooks, Secretary.

SAVE THE PENNIES

The Jesters, although weakened by financial losses and a lack of enthusiasm among the students, resulting in general disfavor with the administration, are rallying to the call of the footlights once again. This fall they are collaborating with the Wig and Candle, the dramatic organization of Connecticut College for Women, to produce what they are hoping and praying will be not only an artistic success but also a financial triumph.

We take it for granted that their show will be a first-rate performance, and they in turn are exerting every bit of effort they possibly can so that the college will not be disappointed. In all fairness to ourselves and to the Jesters we should consider it our responsibility to insure the Jesters a financial success. Why is it that all of us would rather spend our idle moments and spare dimes at neighboring beer-joints, movie houses, and pseudo-night clubs than attend the functions of our college organizations? It is not only the Jesters' plays that suffer through the complete lack of interest of the college body, but in fact practically every college affair is a flop—financial or otherwise. Whether it be an informal Senate Dance, or a formal class ball, or whether it be a class meeting or a rally where admission is absolutely free, a Trinity man is conspicuous by his absence.

Last year the Jesters went over to Poughkeepsie to present The Warrior's Husband with the Vassar Philatheis. On two successive evenings the house was filled to capacity—with Vassar girls and their friends. A tremendous ovation was given the cast. The following week-end the play was presented in Hartford before two practically empty houses. Needless to say, the Jesters received neither a fitting ovation nor adequate monetary remuneration.

Are we going to let this happen when the Wig and Candle, spurred on by two triumphant performances in New London, come up to Hartford to present The Late Christopher Bean with the Jesters? Soon tickets will be placed on sale. Why not economize during the next few weeks and buy a ticket or two—what's one less beer of a Saturday night?—so that there will be a full house at the Hartford Club on December the tenth?

HOOVER INTERVIEWED

Asked for his opinions regarding fraternities, Mr. Hoover said that although he was not a fraternity man he considered them to be worthwhile organizations. He was a neutral at Stanford, where the campus student body was very evenly divided between fraternity men and neutrals. At that time he disliked fraternities and campaigned against them. Since that time his opinion has changed somewhat and he feels that fraternities make a convenient place for a certain type of mind.

Mr. Hoover was also asked for his opinions about small colleges. He said that he thought them a fine institution and that it would be a sad day for this country if the small college should disappear. The personal contact between students and teachers, he further stated, is very valuable indeed, although the large college can claim an advantage in its superior equipment and extreme specialization. Mr. Hoover said that he felt particularly well qualified for appraising the small college since he had recently come into intimate contact with a number of them while campaigning for funds for them.

HERE AND THERE

Aside from the recent victory itself which the football team achieved last Saturday, there are a few other items deserving of praise.

The new public address system is certainly a welcome improvement. The same may be said of the scoreboard. Then comes the crowning glory in the return of Thurman, the Chanticleer, from apparent oblivion. His presence is amusing and significant. Amusing because he is a rare "bird." Significant because there are some ingenious individuals who do more than just talk about "school spirit."

Into Treasurer Eastman's office last week strolled a person dressed in the ministerial black befitting his profession. The visitor asked the whereabouts of the deceased. Treasurer Eastman, amazed, contacted College Physician Lundborg who was equally amazed. Probably the most bewildered of all was the thwarted undertaker who departed speedily in his great, shiny wagon without the usual awesome cargo.

It has been rumored that the Jesters had a little difficulty in dodging their playmates—The Wig and Candle actresses from Connecticut College for Women. A sudden transfer of luggage from a certain rooming house on Washington Street to the Bond Annex took place.

Suggested change in a popular song: "Oh where, oh where, can my Franny be?"

Because of frequent Saturday night observations there is reason to believe that the most popular "night spot" is rapidly assuming a less desirable atmosphere.

Last Thursday, President Ogilby took a group of undergraduates to his summer cottage at Weekapaug, Rhode Island, which was badly damaged in the storm. He, with the assistance of the students, built a wind-break to prevent the sand around the cottage from being carried away by future storms. What is worthy of note is that one member of the group came from South Dakota and had never seen salt water before. Escorted by two Holland Scholars, he jumped into the Atlantic Ocean for the first time and actually got wet all over. It is reported that certain young ladies in South Dakota are receiving by mail exaggerated reports of the incident, duly certified by the Holland Scholars concerned.

President Ogilby also got wet!!

Most amusing reflection of the week was the possible comparison that might be drawn between a certain man and a certain animal.

STRONG AMHERST SOCCER TEAM CONQUERS TRINITY

Sabrinus Score Twice in Last Five Minutes to Overcome Invaders' Lead

Wednesday, October 19—The Trinity soccer warriors today went into the hills of Massachusetts in quest of that coveted Amherst scalp and were at the point of getting it when the hosts put on a drive and pushed the sphere through the rectangle twice within the last five minutes of play, to win by the count of 2-1.

The Blue and Gold booters had gone into the battle with but few people risking their money on them for the simple reason that not once this year have they come back to their camp the victors. It looked for a while as if the dopesters were wrong again, but as has so often been the case in the last few weeks, the Trinity men were not able to hold back that last minute drive of their opponent. Taking advantage of a penalty kick in the first quarter, Bates, veteran inside right, put the score at 1-0, and it remained at this until the final drive of this eighty-eight minute war.

During the first period a strong wind made the Amherst aggregation play a defensive game while their enemies shot at their fortified rectangle with but one direct hit. During the second quarter the natural elements put the Trinity men on the defense, and it was during this time that Coach McCloud's trained kickers showed their real possibilities, as the onslaughts of the Sabrinus were turned back one after another to leave Trinity still in the lead as the half ended.

Though no scores were made during the first part of this last half, it was apparent that it was just a matter of whether the Trinity defensive men, Gaboury and Ferguson, could keep the ball from passing between the bars before the end of the game. As is usually the case, a defensive game was a losing game. A penalty was called on McGee, a fullback who was doing a good job for Trinity, and the Sabrina center-forward slipped a fast one past Gaboury to tie the score. To see victory snatched from under their noses was more than the men of Blue and Gold could stand and Amherst slipped another one through before they got on their feet again. Mac's men put on a final rush that almost netted a goal, but this failed. It was too late for more thrusts as the game ended with Trinity once again on the short end of the score.

SPORTS SIDELIGHTS

By E. A. C., '40

In our coming game with Wesleyan, we still like ourselves the best, but that doesn't mean a thing. Even in comparing the scores (always a risky business) of the Coast Guard game which the Cardinals took by a 27 to 0 count as against our 26 to 0 scalping of the same team, we must take into account the following: the crippled condition of the Coast Guardsmen when they faced us, and also the psychological letdown that they had had from the Norwich victory of the previous week.

However, we firmly believe and hope that our side has gotten all of its bad ballplaying out of its system in the Worcester Tech and Hobart games; and if the boys tackle, block, and work those trick plays as they did against Coast Guard last Saturday, we expect to see one swell ball game. And we aren't forgetting a vastly improved pass defense that intercepted pass after pass thrown by an air-minded Coast Guard team.

How did you like that end-around spinner with Jack Wilcox carrying the ball that went for our second touchdown last Saturday?

It seems that Dan used that same play four years ago, in those good old days when a defeat came every second year or so, with a certain Mr. Kellam pulling out from the line and carrying the ball. Incidentally, Kellam was the college record-holder in the hundred-yard dash, until Steve Truex came along, and with that play was the leading scoring guard in the country.

Who, where and why did the Rooster (pardon me—Chanticleer) come from? Yes, I mean our be-ribboned mascot that was escorted with such pomp and circumstance onto the field last Saturday between the halves of the game. Will it journey down to Middletown and insure us of another victory, or will it be chicken gumbo by that time?

For their work in the Coast Guard game we would like to hand the week's gold medals to:

Pete "60 Minutes" Rihl, whose kicks bottled up the Sailorboys from New London in their own backyard with kicks of 51 and 43 yards.

Kelly's pass-snatching (as spectacular as ever), with his tumbling catches made him the leading scorer of the day as he teamed up with Bill Ryan in as sweet a passing combination seen around here since the Kobrosky-O'Malley duo.

Bill Ryan was not only a thorn in the Coast Guardsmen's side with his sensational interceptions, but also threw a mean and vicious pass that threatened to lay his receivers low. It reminded you of a big siege gun as Willy raised his arm and then let the ball fly...boom!

And to Jack Carey goes our vote for the best defensive work of the day as usual. Jack went into the game with a suspiciously chipped vertebrate, but refused to have pictures taken of it.

Those Coast Guard cheers certainly tickled your ears, but then when you are forced to cheer in the line of duty that is probably something again. A suggestion has been advanced that we assign an ensign or whatever is the nautical equivalent to a top-sergeant, to every fifty Trinity men in an effort to get our side to learn the cheers. It's getting pretty bad when the cheerleader has to go up into the stands and tell the boys that only two "Trinitys" come on the end of that locomotive.

Have you noticed?... That our erstwhile swimming team has been practicing every day in the gymnasium and remind one of a bunch of floundering seals as they flop through their daily dozens?... That that half-cracked cross-country squad is still crazy enough to think that they won't lose that Wesleyan meet by a perfect score?

Wesleyan, Trinity Renew Traditional Rivalry Saturday

Evenly Matched Teams Will Battle Saturday Afternoon at Middletown

DADDARIO TO PLAY

Star Wesleyan Back Injured in Coast Guard Game Ready to Play Against Trinity

The traditional rivalry between Trinity and Wesleyan will be renewed next Saturday on the Redmen's gridiron at Middletown, when the football teams of both institutions clash. This year neither team's record is too imposing and on comparative scores the two combatants appear to be quite evenly matched. Both have faced the Coast Guard Academy eleven and both boast a victory over the Cadets, Wesleyan by 27-0, and Trinity by a 26-0 score.

The Cardinals have also faced Connecticut State, Bowdoin, Haverford, and Amherst. Their record shows but one victory in these four contests, that being at the expense of Haverford. State, Bowdoin, and Amherst all downed the Wesmen. Wesleyan, though, in all these games except the Amherst encounter was minus its star back, Mim Daddario, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in the Coast Guard fray. He is back in shape now, however, and is expected by Wesleyan followers to make the going plenty rough for the Trinity forces next Saturday.

Trinity, in four games, has for a record wins over Union and Coast Guard, a loss to Worcester Tech, and a draw with Hobart. Not until last Saturday against the Coast Guard did the Jesseemen show more than a smattering of an offensive drive, but against the Cadets they showed that their attack is a powerful one when functioning properly.

Both squads should be in prime physical condition for the game Saturday and this should be a big factor in measuring the merits of both elevens. Neither will have an excuse from this source to offer. Last year Wesleyan won the game by a 7-0 score and the Trinity men who played in that contest will be out to get revenge for that beating.

Trinity and Wesleyan both depend on passing to gain much of their offensive yardage. Saturday should witness a passing duel between two flashy sophomore backs who can really rifle the old pigskin, Bud Kay on the Wesleyan side, and Bill Ryan for Trinity.

AYDELOTTE SPEECH

Czechs, they must be sacrificed as there isn't anything called international justice, anyway.

He concluded his remarks by observing the undeniable fact that as long as war is held off there is always a chance that there will be none. He pins his hope on the possibility that if Germany is given all she desires she will become saturated and will have more to lose by a general war than to gain.

After some discussion, in which Dr. Aydelotte praised Secretary Hull for his actions during the crisis, the meeting was adjourned.

CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM TO MEET WESLEYAN RUNNERS

Opponents Expected to Present Strong Squad; Freshmen Will Also Compete

Coach Oosting's flashy cross-country team is slated to represent Trinity next Friday in a home meet with the Wesleyan hill-and-dalers from Middletown. The opponents now boast the same strong team which gave Trinity its only trimming of the season last year; nevertheless, it is anticipated that the local boys will give a good account of themselves on the varsity three and a half mile course here. The freshman squad will also meet the Wesleyan frosh the same day on a course of two miles and a half.

The Wesleyan team is led by Heermans, who is acclaimed as one of the best tracksters in New England. The visitors are fortunate in having a team of experienced veterans while Trinity, on the other hand, has lost several valuable men from last year's squad. Captain Herb Pankrantz, Bill Charles, and Riley, however, are reported in good condition for competing. Jim Caffery, who was outstanding in the Springfield meet last week, is expected to be the mainstay for the Trinmen. Bennett is improving steadily and will probably be in the lineup; while Heap, Smith, and Kaplin are working hard and will stand by for emergencies.

The freshmen are perhaps in a better position to win over their opponents than the varsity, since competition will not be as great and because of the fact that Smellie and Rosen have had good success this season. They have had experience and are expected to bring home the bacon. These two will be ably supported by Dupreux, Linendall, Elrick, and Vincent.

RYAN'S BULLET PASSES SHOW WAY AS TRINITY CRUSHES COAST GUARD

the Coast Guard 27, where he was stopped by the safety man, Kincaid. Ryan lost ten yards on a reverse, but a pass, Ryan to Kelly, made up this distance and another aerial by the combination made it first down for the Jesseemen on the Kaydets' 13-yard line. Morris and Pacelia carried the ball to the six-yard marker on two line bucks. On the next play, Pacelia spun, faked the ball to Morris, and threw a lateral pass to Jack Wilcox, who carried the sphere over the last white marker. The play was unusual due to the fact that Wilcox was playing in the guard position. Morris neatly booted the ball between the uprights for the extra point, making the score 13-0 in favor of Trinity.

After the next kickoff, the Coast Guards made their only real offensive drive of the afternoon. Starting on their own thirty-five, the Kaydets moved to the Trinity six before they were stopped. Goerecki tossed a long pass to Crock which was good for forty yards and a first down on the Blue and Gold 27. After two of his passes were grounded, Goerecki made connections with McLendon and it was another first down for the Sailors on the Trinity 15. Three line bucks and the aid of an offside penalty against the Jessemen still left the Coast Guards short of a first down. On fourth down, O'Neill attempted a field goal but his kick was wide, and this put an end to the scoring hopes of the New Londoners for the remainder of the afternoon. They never got nearer to the Trinity goal line than the Blue and Gold thirty-yard marker thereafter.

In the third quarter, Kincaid, after running back one of Rihl's punts, fumbled and Trinity recovered on the Coast Guard 45. In two plays the Jessemen had another touchdown under their belts. Pacelia crashed through center on a reverse for fourteen yards and then Rihl whipped a long pass to Kelly and the ball was across the goal line. The play was good for thirty-three yards. Knurek tried to convert but his attempt was wide, and the score at that point was Trinity 19, Coast Guard 0.

The final Hilltop score came early in the final quarter. The Kaydets, although deep in their own territory, were desperately trying to avert a shutout and were throwing passes with great abandon. One of these wild tosses was intercepted by Hamilton on the Kaydets' 30 and from there, with the aid of a fifteen-yard penalty against the New Londoners, the Jessemen scored again. Big Ed Morris plunged over from the two-yard mark, and the score of Trinity mounted to 25 points. Morris neatly split the up-rights with a place kick and that completed the scoring for the afternoon. For the remainder of the contest the play was mostly in the Coast Guard territory, and the game ended with the Kaydets grimly trying to score but being unable to penetrate the Blue and Gold defense. When the final whistle blew, the scoreboard read, Trinity 26, Coast Guard 0.

The much publicized Trinity band did not materialize. They were probably scared away by the fine enlisted men's band that the Cadets brought down.

This was the first time since 1934 that the Cadets had marched on the Hilltop gridiron and they gave the crowd a treat with their maneuvers before the game.

ON OTHER FRONTS

Georgia Tech won from Cumberland in 1917 by a score of 222 to 0. They piled up 32 touchdowns, 27 extra points and a field goal.

Dartmouth College is a man's school, and of course their plays must feature all-male casts—and thereby hangs a tale.

Studiously considering the advantages to be derived from buying a Players' season ticket book, two members of the still very "green" freshman class were seen observing the billboard in front of Robinson Hall the other day. Before parting with their five almighties they wanted to be sure of getting their money's worth.

After contemplating for a while, the smarter one of the two pointed an accusing finger at the female lead in last year's show. "Huh," said he, "Rotten makeup. He doesn't even look like a woman!"

"Check Everything but the Chesterfields"

You'll find smokers everywhere keeping Chesterfields with them all day long. They add to your pleasure when you're on the job and when you take a night off.

It takes good things to make a good product. That's why we use the best ingredients a cigarette can have—mild ripe tobaccos and pure cigarette paper—to make Chesterfield the cigarette that smokers say is milder and better-tasting.
