Hughes Will Not Be Candidate For The College Presidency

By Edward Jager

Dean Arthur H. Hughes, acting president of Trinity College, will not be a candidate for the permanent presidency, the Tripod has learned.

Recently the Dean made the following statement concerning the new academic year:

"The 129th year of the College is one of great opportunity for each individual enrolled in this record-breaking student body. For the hundreds of young men deferred from military service, it is an opportunity to enlarge their capacity for leadership. For every student, it will be one of the most important years in personal development of those qualities of intellect and character toward which college experience is directed.

Trinity Policies Continued

"The lives of graduates of 125 classes indicate the soundness of Trinity policies of education. During the interim period during which I have been called upon for temporary leadership of the college community, these policies will be continued. I know that with the continued cooperation of the Faculty and Student Organizations, there will be a full measure of opportunity for each young man who would take a share."

The Board of Trustees of Trinity College named Dean Hughes acting president of the College on September 7 in order to release G. Keith Funston, who assumed a new position as President of the New York Stock Exchange on September 10.

Committee Considering Candidates

'Command Decision' Jesters' Next Play

Command Decision by William Wister Haines, the Jesters' first production of the year, will enjoy a run of five arena-style performances on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday, November 8, 9, 10, 12, and 13, in Alumni Hall.

The play, which has appeared on Broadway, was originally written as a novel and was later made into a movie starring Clark Gable, Van Johnson, Walter Pidgeon, and Brian Donlevy. Mr. George E. Nichols, III, of the English department is directing the Jesters' production.

Tickets will be distributed free to students presenting athletic identification cards and to faculty members in advance of the run of performances. The Jesters have stated that, due to the new schedule of five shows, townspeople will be encouraged more than previously to attend performances, and the organization has urged that students obtain their tickets early.

The Jesters have tentatively scheduled the production of Murder in the Cathedral, by T. S. Eliot, in the chapel during March. The group is also planning a spring show for senior weekend.

On its program for the coming year, the Jesters are planning readings of plays and trips to attend dramatic performances at other colleges. Trips to nearby women's colleges are included on the agenda.

New Vernon Street Houses Occupied; TCC Moves Into 118, Tau Alpha to 94

The Commons Club has recently moved into a new house on Fraternity Row. The house, at 118 Vernon Street, given to them by the College for as long as they want it, is the new home of President Dick Ellison and his associates who formerly had their headquarters in North Jarvis.

Besides a full program of parties and social events, the Commons Club has many other activities planned for the coming year. First on the agenda is the formation of an eating club. This project will start as soon as the six men, who, due to the housing shortage are living in the kitchen and dining room, are able to find other accommodations.

Second, is the dedication of their library gift to the College in memory of President Ogilby, who founded the Club in 1931 while he was College President.

They also plan to remodel the basement, and renovate certain parts of the house so that it will comply with the fire laws.

After a summer of renovation, the new Tau Alpha house at 94 Vernon Street was opened at the beginning of rush week by the returning brothers.

The house, the former official residence of the Mayor of Hartford and then President of Trinity College, was purchased late last year. Before it could be ready for occupancy this fall, much work had to be done during the summer. Among the structural improvements are a fire-escape, windows on the third floor, several supporting beams in the basement, a new bathroom, much re-plastering, a new staircase to the third floor, and a new oil-heating system.

Coming back to campus two weeks before the beginning of classes, the fraternity's members completed some of the job by painting and furnishing the five downstairs rooms, painting several of the upstairs rooms, and refinishing the upstairs and downstairs hallways.

In the new house, approximately seventeen men will live dormitory style, all sleeping on the third floor and studying and dressing on the second. This is the first time any fraternity house on the Trinity campus has tried the dormitory arrangement.

With the finishing of the new house and the procurement of several pledges, the fraternity will again petition the Ekklesia or convention of the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity this summer for a charter. Should Phi Gamma Delta accept the bid, it would mean the re-activation of the Phi Gam house that went out of existence on the Trinity campus early in the 1920's.

Bloodmobile to Visit College October 22

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Trinity on Monday, October 22, the Senate announced Monday night. Senator Chip Vaile was appointed to secure further details, which will be announced later. Minor students, it was pointed out, must have parents' permission to donate blood.

Also at its meeting Monday, the Senate:

(1) Discussed the room situation, on campus, particularly regarding rent charges. A report is to be secured from Mr. Robertson of the Treasurer's Office concerning athletic department, dormitory room, and building upkeep finances and presented to the student body. Copies of the full Treasurer's Report are to be placed in the library and distributed to the fraternities and Brownell Club.

(2) Appointed Doug Lee to ascertain the cost of replacing photo equipment stolen from Jarvis Physics Lab darkroom during the summer.

(3) Recommended that seniors who have put a deposit on a class ring ask for return of same from the bookstore.

Thirty-nine '51 Men Called Into Service

By Dick Hirsch

Although there was an air of pessimism prevailing among the members of the class of 1951, because of the world situation, last June's graduates were not the least bit lethargic in applying for employment and graduate schools.

Of the 196 graduates, thirty-nine were in some form of Military Service when these statistics were compiled in August, 1951.

Statistics obtained from the College Placement Office reveal that of 62 men who applied to various graduate schools, 53 were accepted. The largest portion of this group is attending Medical schools. Twelve men were accepted to further their Medical studies at such universities as Pennsylvania, Yale, Columbia, Chicago, and Cornell. Ten graduates are now attending Law School, and six have entered Theological School. The men who entered Graduate Schools are doing work in eighteen different fields at twenty-four different institutions.

Graduates in search of employment have fared extremely well. Seventy-five men are already employed, while only eight have not found suitable positions as yet. Thirty-three men entered some phase of industry, while thirteen have entered the insurance business. Seventy-five men have become affiliated with eleven miscellaneous occupations including advertising, banking, teaching, journalism, and investment.

Placement Office statistics show that during 1951, 2400 personal interviews were held by Placement Director John F. Butler with seniors and underclassmen. Forty-nine companies came to Trinity in 1951 and held 477 interviews. Approximately 900 referrals were made for other off campus interviews. The salary range for 1951 graduates increased, the average being $2800 with Science majors commanding the largest salaries.

Training Program for New Tripod Men to Hold First Session

A training program for all new men on the Tripod staff will hold its first meeting Thursday evening at 8 P. M. in the Tripod office. Freshman candidates on the news, feature, sports and business staffs are required to attend.

The first program will deal with the organizational set-up of the Tripod. Later sessions will cover writing techniques, headlines, copy preparation and make-up.

The course will be under the supervision of Managing Editor Richard Yeomans.

Following balloting last Sunday, the Interfraternity Council announced that 136 sophomores have been pledged by the nine fraternities and the Commons Club. This is the largest pledge class in the history of the college.

Rushing opened at 9:00 Monday morning, September 24, and closed at 12:30 A. M. Sunday, September 30. Four seniors and eight juniors were also pledged.

Alpha Chi Rho pledged 23 men, followed by Delta Kappa Epsilon, which accepted 22. Both Delta Phi and Sigma Nu pledged 19; with Alpha Delta Phi taking 15; Delta Psi, Theta Xi, and Tau Alpha, 11; Psi Upsilon, 7; and the Commons Club, 8.

French Businessmen Tour Trinity Campus

A group of twenty-one French businessmen, interested in a wide range of industries, who have been in this country only a short time for the purpose of learning modern American business and manufacturing methods visited Trinity College on Tuesday, September 25. Trinity College was selected as a typical smaller American college, situated in a typical American city by their sponsors who had arranged their tour as a sort of Marshall plan in reverse. Their leaders were Mr. Maradin, who lives in New York and Mr. Mignon who accompanied them from Paris.

Professor Naylor showed them through the Chapel; then, Dr. Wright and Mr. Mason took them down to the swimming-pool where some of them enjoyed a swim. Others visited Professor Naylor's course, The Survey of French Literature. After lunch in Cook Lounge with the faculty, they were escorted to the Convocation in the Chapel, where they were privileged to have a section of seats reserved for them. They were much impressed by their first contact with an American academic ceremony. Afterwards, Mr. Donald Engley, the Librarian showed them several copies of beautifully illuminated Livres d'heures, mediaeval French prayer books of inestimable value. They were extremely interested in American collegiate life, and kept up a barrage of questions concerning colleges and also religion in America.

We Begin Number 129 . . .

Trinity officially began its 129th year last week with the largest convocation in its history. Enrollment is at an all-time high of 919 undergraduates, with 289 in the freshman class. The spirit of the student body stands in secure contrast to the chaotic world around us.

There will undoubtedly be problems facing the college community this year, and there will be—we hope—criticisms and suggestions from the students through the Senate and the Tripod. Your letters to the Editor on pertinent campus issues are a necessary part of this paper.

We look toward this 129th academic year with feelings of optimism and enthusiasm. The freshmen have already organized themselves into a strong class as evidenced by their very successful "Beanie Binge," their projected social events with the nearby women's colleges, and their general interest in extra-curricular activities at Trinity.

The upperclassmen, too, are back at work. Last week's fraternity rushing was well handled as well as exhausting. The inter-fraternity friendship on Vernon Street seemed to have been heightened by the keen competition of rush week and the element of snobbery often associated with fraternities shows a welcome decline, with 136 out of the 149 aspirants receiving bids.

We have seen once again that Trinity will hold its own on the athletic fields, especially while they continue to have the enthusiastic student support already shown.

The college trustees are busily and carefully searching for a man to assume the presidency of the college, recently vacated by Keith Funston who has now assumed his new position as head of the New York Stock Exchange. For the second time within ten years, the same tall, grey-haired, distinguished gentleman has moved into the president's office. We are happy to have Dean Arthur Hughes as Acting President. We know he has a big job with many problems facing him this year; and we hope we speak for the whole student body when we offer him our co-operation in helping him make this one of Trinity's most successful years.

Sad Sacks . . .

Probably the college's most immediate problem is that of crowded dormitory conditions. In anticipation of an enrollment cut as a consequence of the draft, the administration has seen fit to admit an extraordinarily large freshman class (originally numbering about 305) and a number of transfer students. As a result, a few Sophomores have been forced to live off-campus, and one extra freshman has been assigned to each of the frosh dorms in Jarvis, Northam and Seabury.

The unfortunate situation in itself is indeed nobody's fault. None of our administrators have been lucky enough to be crystal ball gazers by profession or avocation.

The problem now is how to alleviate the situation! Certainly, the six hapless sophomores who have been paying $90 for the use of the Commons Club kitchen as a dormitory room are deserving of a quick change for the better.

We believe that this situation is still bad enough as to warrant an emergency measure. We therefore suggest that the now-vacant president's house be converted into a temporary dormitory, with those men who cannot be accommodated, receiving rebates commensurate with their inconvenience.

Atheneum Society . . .

Tomorrow night in Woodward Lounge one of the college's most up-and-coming organizations will meet for the year's first regular meeting; the Atheneum Society will start its series of intra-club debates with the question, "Resolved, That an Autonomous German Government be Allowed to Rearm."

With the addition of twelve new members and the increased Senate appropriation, the club, under the leadership of faculty advisor Dando and club President Wynne, expects to attend more intercollegiate tournaments, to participate more in inter and intra club debates, and to make several longer trips than last year.

All in all, it looks like a good year for one of Trinity's oldest and now one of its most alive organizations.

My Interview With Mrs. Roosevelt

By Joe Wollenberger

I had just finished my last exam: French 212; what a pain in the neck to be stuck in school until June 7. I scurried as quickly as possible to the railroad station so as to be in time to catch the 4:16 for New York. As I waited on the platform for the train to arrive four people came up the stairway leading to the track. One of the four looked very familiar; suddenly it came to me. It was Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the late FDR. She seemed to me to be taller than I had ever pictured her. When the train pulled in Mrs. Roosevelt stepped into the parlor car while I entered the peasant's coach directly behind.

As I sat in my reclining chair I thought to myself, "What a chance this would be to get a really good interview for the Tripod." But what a reporter—in a situation like this, and without a piece of paper. Then I thought of the pros and cons. Why should I bother, etc., etc. Actually these were but coverups for my lack of courage. Finally I got my nerve back and went to find a piece of paper. I approached a prosperous looking man with a large briefcase and asked if he had a sheet to spare. As he gave me the paper I told him what it was for; he smiled and answered: "If it was Mrs. Dewey I'd give you the whole notebook." I thanked him and cautiously entered the forward car.

Mrs. Roosevelt was seated alone (the others had only seen her off as she had just delivered a lecture in Hartford), reading the "New York Times." I excused myself in several different ways and asked if I might take a few minutes of her time. She was exceedingly friendly and acted as though she were an old acquaintance. She said she would gladly answer any question that she possibly could. It seemed to me that she was happy to have someone to talk to (though I'm sure there are many better suited celebrities who would have welcomed the opportunity that I had seized). Then I excused my appearance and showed her the ink on my fingers blaming it on my exam. For the benefit of the Tripod's feminine readers I will add that the number one woman in the nation was wearing a green print with white flowers.

I settled next to her with my precious paper leaned against my wallet. My first question: A lot of people criticize the United Nations. Just how successful has the U.N. been?

Mrs. Roosevelt did not even have to think about that one. She said that the U.N. was very successful in the areas in which it had been allowed to function. Great work has been done in specialized organizations such as the World Health Organization. This group has investigated the causes of disease in many of the backward countries throughout the world and through the use of modern cures has been successful in almost completely stamping out malaria and tuberculosis.

She continued: The World Agricultural Organization has made similar strides surveying world conditions, finding where improvement is needed, and supplying modern ideas and machinery to retarded nations.

The United Nations, she said, was not successful in military fields though a better understanding has been promoted. The difficulties in the Security Council all began with Russia's refusal to allow inspection of her atomic projects.

My second question: Is the United States' share of soldiers in Korea proportional to the other U.S. contributions to the United Nations?

According to Mrs. Roosevelt all forces in Korea were contributed on a voluntary basis. The U.S. wants to send troops but has not been ordered to do so by the U.N. The U.N. could not decree that we send a certain number as that is not within its power. Only economic relations come directly under its control.

The United States was ready to withdraw entirely from Korea before all this trouble started, she stated. "We gave more troops in the beginning because we were close by with many bases in the vicinity. Australia was the second nation to send men and the forces of other countries are slowly building up. We, however, still carry the battle."

The last question: It is completely beyond my conception to know how it would feel to live in the White House. If I'm not being too personal just how did it feel?

"For me," Mrs. Roosevelt answered, "it really was not much different than living anywhere else except that there were added privileges, duties, and social functions. For my husband there was a great difference and I could see the strain. All the final decisions on foreign policy and things of that sort had to come from him. That would wear anyone down."

I stood up, thanked her for giving me so much of her time, and again excused myself for having bothered her. She told me it was nice talking to me and we shook hands. Chest out, I sauntered back to the peasants and revised my scribbled notes.

An Open Letter

To the Student Body:

The overcrowded conditions at Trinity have come to the attention of the Senate. In running down the many resulting rumors and upon investigation the Senate wishes to submit this letter of explanation.

To begin with, we must look back to April and May of the last school year when every college in the country was faced with a great decline in enrollment for the next academic year due to the rampant draft boards. Figures of this anticipated decline ranged from 5% to as high as 35%. To compensate for this predicted loss, Trinity, like practically every other seat of learning in the country, sought to alleviate the coming decline by increasing the size of the incoming freshman class and by initiating a new class to enter during the summer session.

This year four men were abducted by the draft and two others enlisted. Four other students did not return to college. In any normal year the figure of those not returning to college would be much higher—perhaps as high as fifty. All reports and predictions last May pointed to an even greater figure of non-returns. The college, hoping to have a student body of approximately 850, are now faced with a total of 919. The administration's zealous efforts to keep the student body up to the optimum number have resulted in overcrowding as the draft boards did not snatch as many persons as expected.

All in the administration's power is being done to make things as comfortable as possible for all the resident students at Trinity this year. There are a few Sophomores misplaced or in temporary quarters, this will be righted as soon as possible. Of them approximately 12 failed to register for a room last May. Consequently they may not now be living under ideal conditions. The college cannot be held responsible for carelessness of a very few who because of low priority numbers did not bother to register. Adequate space certainly would have been provided if those students had signed up no matter what their priority. College authorities did not know that the men planned to return until a short time before school began.

We will endeavor to accommodate any constructive criticism made to us and individual problems will be taken care of as soon as possible and the Senate requests cooperation from the students.

The Senate.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor of the Trinity Tripod:

The following message has been sent to President Funston, and by authorization of the Board of Fellows, a copy is sent herewith to you:

"At the meeting of the Board of Fellows, June 15, 1951, the Chairman was requested to extend to you the greetings of the members of the Board, an expression of our appreciation of your distinguished service as President of the College, our regret that your leadership will soon be terminating, and our earnest desire for your success and happiness in the important post you are soon to occupy. When we think of you, there will always come recollections of friendly, happy associations in a common cause—the welfare and the development of Trinity College.

"In this expression of our high regard, there is included an appropriate share for your dear wife, whose gracious hospitality we have so often enjoyed."

Sincerely yours,

(s) Clarence E. Sherman.

Welcome (or welcome back) to When What's Where! For Tripod readers unacquainted with this column, first, a brief explanation of what it's about.

When What's Where is a calendar of goings on in the city of Hartford in the way of entertainment. It contains information of what is being presented (chiefly movies, plays and concerts), where, and when. Also, any special information as to prices.

As a new feature this year, the editor will present a preview or review of the top attractions of the week. The two features for this week are both sports movies.

“ANGELS IN THE OUTFIELD”
(A Preview)

“Angels in the Outfield,” which opens Thursday at Loew’s Poli Theatre, is, as one might guess, a baseball tale. Furthermore, it’s one that could happen only in the movies.

As told by Guardian Angel #RX 32, the Heavenly Choir Nine sets out to reform Guffy McGovern. Said Guffy McGovern was manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, which, at the time the story opens, is in seventh place in the National League. McGovern, it seems, was possessed of a most uncontrollable temper and manners and speech not used in polite society.

The job of Angel RX 32 is to reform Guffy. But even to convince McGovern that there is such a thing as an angel takes some doing. Finally, after the manager’s scepticism disappears, the two make a deal: McGovern is to stop swearing and fighting, in return for which the Angel will win him some ball games.

So, as long as Guffy behaves himself, his team wins. When he forgets and punches the manager of the Braves, the team loses.

Then little orphan, Bridget White, whose prayers brought the case to the attention of the Angels, sees an angel standing beside each player and one beside McGovern in the dugout. Reporters are present; they play up the story; McGovern is accused of being crazy—but the Pirates continue winning ball games and driving toward the pennant.

“SATURDAY’S HERO” (A Review)

The much-publicized “Saturday’s Hero” arrives at E. M. Loew’s for a week beginning Friday. Advanced press releases have advertised it as the story of the “kept men” of commercial college football; of the boys who get tuition, board, room, laundry and spending money—as well as fixed grades—for their Saturday afternoon talents.

“Saturday’s Hero” centers around one Steve Novak (John Derek), a great player for a New Jersey high school. He receives some two dozen offers to play “pro” college football, decides on Jackson University in the South where he thinks he can study engineering at the same time.

At Jackson, Novak meets his “benefactor,” T. J. McCabe—and T. J.’s young niece (Donna Reed)—, is placed under a faculty advisor who has no use for football, and leads his freshman team to an undefeated season.

Then comes the summer banquet circuit. Steve is too busy now to even visit his dying father. Then it’s more football, more books, more fixed grades, more spring training, more football.

In a particularly rough game, Novak is injured with a shoulder separation. Violating all rules of common sense at the insistence of his “benefactor,” Steve continues playing with a special brace until injured again,—permanently.

No longer useful as a football machine, he is abandoned, forced to go back to his home where his Dad has just died, and seek work in a dye shop.

With a Hollywood ending, however, Steve wins the girl.

For a picture with its advance build-up, “Saturday’s Hero” is somewhat of a disappointment. Its main deficiency is lack of believable realism. Although based on true practices of “big time” colleges, the producers have gone overboard—one is never allowed to forget Football Commercialism or any of its numerous synonyms.

The movie moves fast—from football season to a winter shot to spring practice in only a few minutes of screen time.

“Saturday’s Hero” does, however, have some excellent photography. The close-ups of football players, both individual and groups are well done. There are scenes of campus and fraternity life that every college man will recognize.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 22...THE WOODPECKER

Woodrow almost bit off more than he could chew when he tackled the cigarette tests! But he pecked away 'til he smoked out the truth: Such an important item as mildness can't be tossed off in a fleeting second! A "swift sniff" or a "perfunctory puff" proves practically nothing! He, like millions of smokers, found one test that doesn't leave you up a tree.

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a day-after-day basis. No snap judgments! Once you've enjoyed Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why...

After all the Mildness tests...

Freshman Soccer Preview

Coach Lauds Forwards; Star Forward Injured

The Freshman Soccer squad of '51 will have a tall order in equalling the record of last year's undefeated team. The boys and the coach feel confident that with a few good breaks they can do it.

Coach Simos, who is new at Trinity, says the boys show a tremendous amount of hustle and spirit which seems to be indicative of the students at Trinity College. He goes on to say that he is very much pleased with the turnout for soccer this year, but he refuses to disclose the names of his potential starters.

Strong Student Interest

"At Trinity," said Mr. Simos, "There seems to be a student interest in athletics that very few schools have. Each boy who participates in a sport does his very best for the benefit of the team."

The first week of practice showed that the team will have a very good forward line. However, the week didn't go by without a mishap to one of these men. Shang Nai-Yong, a player with a great potential ability, broke a bone in his leg.

M. I. T. First Game

The first game of the year is October 13 at home against M. I. T. The remainder of the schedule is: October 16 with Choate away. The next is November 3 against Monson home. November 8 away against Cheshire, and the last game, November 15, against Wesleyan is at home.

If the team rounds into the shape they are expected to be in by the first game, we hope to have a season that is equal to last year's.

Star of The Week

By Bill Dobrovir

Bill Goralski, top scorer in Connecticut colleges last year, unanimous choice for All-New England honors, and captain of the 1951 team, is the mainstay of the backfield on both offense and defense. He is expected to supply the breakaway punch to a relatively inexperienced backfield.

Bill, a 21-year-old senior from Avon, Conn., stands 5' 8" tall and weighs 158 pounds. Compactly built, Bill, the team's only three-letter man, depends on great breakaway speed and almost magical deception in his broken-field running. As a fan said at the season's opening game, while watching Billy's spectacular opening touchdown run, "He's got bear grease on his hips." Bill is a hard and sure tackler on defense, and plays the safety position with the sure touch of a veteran.

Lawlor, Nakaso Draft Weakens Grid Picture

The varsity football has been hit hard by the draft. Bernie Lawlor, slated to be the first-string offensive quarterback, and Sam Nakaso, an important factor on the defensive picture, have gone into the Army.

Although George Smith and Bill Vibert have been tried at the quarterback spot, neither has as yet proven to be an adequate replacement for Lawlor.

The Sports Barrel

By Alan Kurland

The college athletic situation has hit a new low in the past few months. During the latter part of the past school year, we were all shocked by the disclosures of bribery among college basketball players in New York. Immediately, educators, coaches, and students in schools outside the New York area adopted a "holier-than-thou" attitude. They blamed the dishonesty on "commercialism," "moral depravity," and a number of other hard-to-define-but-easy-to-shout-about causes. Yes, they said, it happened in New York, which overflows with gamblers and bookies, but it can't happen here. Bradley University inaugurated a "back-to-campus" tournament designed to take college basketball out of the arenas and auditoriums and back into the gyms and field houses. But during the summer the wise guys were rocked back on their heels. Bradley, which had championed itself as a fortress of probity, was revealed to be the center of a vast "fix" racket. And the basketball scandal has not ended. More arrests are coming—not only in New York, but also in cities that have previously been recognized as paragons of athletic purity. But college athletic scandals have not ended with basketball.

West Point, long regarded as the acme of virtue among American educational institutions, recently uncovered a rash of cheating among its students. As an example of low morality, the West Point Case was not very strong. Although cheating is not to be condoned or excused, the Cadets involved were only doing what college men, business men, and government officials all over the country are doing. Cheating has become the "natural" thing to do these days—just take a look at the news from Washington. What was important in this case was that the Army football team, from a practical viewpoint, was wiped out. All but two of the football lettermen, and a number of basketball and football players were indicted and expelled from the Academy. Therefore, the scandal has been blamed on athletics. What the exact cause was we do not know. But what we do know is that this is another of the ways in which college athletics have declined lately.

The president of William and Mary College recently resigned amid the flame and fury of a growing athletic scandal. A former Michigan football star, Allen Jackson, in an article in the October Atlantic, has condemned college football and all the commercialism attached to it. These are merely two more examples of how the corruption and filth in college sports are being exposed.

As we look at all these miserable incidents which are occurring in colleges all over the country today, we realize how lucky we are to be at Trinity. Watching a football game at Trinity Field, or a basketball game at Memorial Field House, we get a strong feeling of pride at the fact that, as a friend from Long Island University told us, "There's no money in betting on Trinity games." "Not enough interest," he called it. Well, the kind of interest the games at Bradley and LIU and CCNY received we at Trinity would rather not have. Sports on the hilltop are clean, and that's the way we hope they stay. In the not-too-distant future it may come to pass that the small, honest colleges will have to form the backbone of college athletics. When the "commercial" schools have corrupted themselves out of the picture, it will be schools like Trinity that will support the whole system.

Intramural Forecast

The 1951-52 intramural season engages ADP. All games will start opened today with touch football and tennis inaugurating the play. Today, in football, Sigma Nu met Delta Phi and Alpha Chi Rho played Alpha Delta Phi. In tennis today, The Dekes played Tau Alpha and Brownell met Delta Psi.

Tomorrow, in football, DKE meets Tau Alpha and Brownell plays Delta Psi. Friday, also on the football field, Theta Xi plays Delta Phi and Psi U engages ADP. A new sport, as far as the Trinity intramural program is concerned, will start this fall. An informal golf program has been inaugurated this week. The lowest scores on a team will be handed in to someone from another team and turned over to the Athletic Department. The players will compete on the Goodwin Park Course. The competition will be ended on November 15.

this term

We're willing to bet right now that reading The New York Times every day will help bring up a sagging average.

We're not guaranteeing you straight A's in all your courses because if you're majoring in Sanskrit or ancient Babylonian plumbing The Times may not be much help. (But don't be too surprised if you come across something about them, because we follow archeologists all over the world and report their findings.)

But when it comes to courses like eco, poli sci, government, home economics (yes, even that!), English and all sorts of other courses, you just can't beat The Times for giving you the information you need to stay at the head of your class.

And since most of us aren't total grinds, there's plenty of entertainment in The Times...like complete news of sports...the movies and the theatre...book reviews...food and fashion news...a daily crossword puzzle.

VARSITY ELEVEN TRAMPLES DICKINSON BY 27-7

Goralski Runs for 96 Yard Opening TD; Magnoli, Bogoslofski, Kulas Also Shine

By Dave Fisher

Trinity opened the football season with a flash Saturday as the Blue and Gold swept through a weak Dickinson team for a 27-7 victory. Billy Goralski's touchdown sprints of 5 and 96 yards were the highlights of a performance that saw him easily pass the 100 yard mark in rushing.

The opening performance of the team showed that its greatest deficiency lies at the quarterback position. Bill Vibert, who started and played most of the game, is a well-trained, mechanical signal-caller while George Smith, his replacement, is an excellent ball-handler. But neither one of them can pass. Their combined efforts resulted in three completions in ten attempts, and these went for only 13 yards.

The downfield blocking of the team was excellent, permitting the two long runs that broke Dickinson's back. Goralski took Kertland's opening kickoff near the sideline at the four, cut diagonally behind several fine blocks to the opposite side of the field, and then turned on the speed to outrun everybody. The second touchdown came midway in the quarter when Al Magnoli, whose running would be the outstanding feature of any game in which Goralski did not participate, cut over tackle, twisted and turned through several would-be tacklers, and then had the way clear for a seventy yard scoring jaunt opened for him by Dick Aiken's fine block.

Scoreless Second Quarter

The second quarter was scoreless, despite Magnoli's fine running and by outstanding defensive play by Bernie Boroslofski and Ed Kulas. Early in the last half Kulas recovered a fumble to start a touchdown drive. Goralski took a pitchout wide, and two plays later Magnoli had a first down. Goralski again carried, this time through the entire team for 20 yards, but a penalty pushed the ball back and Dickinson held on the 6.

The Red Devils were forced to punt, and Magnoli carried twice down to the four, when Del Mastro took over for the third touchdown.

Goralski Scores Again

Dickinson started to move after the kick-off, but Goralski batted down a long pass and then Del Mastro intercepted and threaded his way to the one. On the next play he lost four yards. Goralski cut wide off tackle and followed perfect blocking into the end zone without a hand being laid on him.

Trinity's short kick-off was returned to the 33. Dickinson's outstanding back, Wilbur Gobrecht, bulled his way almost into the clear and was finally hauled down on his own 45. He then took a pitchout and passed to Harkness, who made a falling catch. A penalty pushed them back to the 28 but Clement Jablonski's pass carried to the four.

Kertland Makes TD

Gobrecht was held to a one yard gain. John Wentworth stopped Jablonski cold. Gobrecht tried the line again, but was met by a solid wall composed of Ed Palmer, Castellani, French, and Wentworth. On fourth down Kertland faked the Trinity team out of position with a pass to Jablonski good for their only score.

Varsity Soccer Roundup

By Ted Oxholm

The Trinity Soccer team officially opens its 1951 season this Saturday against the Worcester Tech eleven. With only four men returning from last year's starting lineup, Coach McDonald finds himself with an eager but inexperienced squad. The loss of such men as Lou Raden and All-New-England Court Nelson will be keenly felt but last year's Frosh team had a successful record a year ago.

Schaefer and Scott Co-Captains

Co-captains Fin Schaefer and Put Scott head the list of returning lettermen. Schaefer will be playing his third straight year at inside right and will lead the line this year. Scott was a utility man until the middle of the schedule last fall when Lou Raden was hurt; then he did a meritorious job filling in for Lou at the nets. Bob Almquist will be back at his regular left-halfback post for the third year. Bill Tryon, the fourth returning regular has been shifted from half-back to right-fullback to strengthen the team defensively.

Maury Fremont-Smith and Dave Hatfield are both expected to nail down the outside right and center forward posts but Hatfield has some strong competition in the persons of Ron Humphreys and Paul Kinley.

The remaining backfield positions are currently being played by Dave Mackenzie, Dick Marshall, and Dick Hunter, all up from last year's Frosh team.

Pete Carlough is filling the vacancy left by Court Nelson, but Sandy MacKimmie is also expected to fill in there. Sophomores Neil Mutchler and Ed Nahas are fighting it out for the inside forward spot.

Scrimmage Against Springfield

The team had its first scrimmage on Saturday against Springfield and did fairly well, but inexperience was evident. However, McDonald plans to stress teamwork and plays this week, and they should be an improved team by Saturday. The team possesses speed but lacks depth in the backfield.
