TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Connecticut
Dedication

To

Edward Leffingwell
Troxell
Ph. D.
Professor of Geology

This Fifty-fifth Volume of the IVY is dedicated by the Junior Class of Trinity College, as an appreciation of the countless contacts he has made between himself and the Class of 1930
Tradition is always a thing dear to every college man. In this volume of the Ivy, the Board of Editors has tried to bind together pages from the book of college days, so that an interesting record may be kept. Above all, they have aimed at a book which will be of interest to all—alumni, undergraduates, and friends of Trinity.

Trinity

Yes, I can see it all;
Old Northam Towers tall;
The flagstaff white;
The soft moonlight;
O'er Trinity.

While through the dim of years,
Again "Neath the Elms" I hear
Where the Bronze Bishop guards,
Keeping watch and ward,
O'er Trinity.

Phi Beta Kappa
Beta of Connecticut

The Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity, founded at the College of William and Mary, December 5, 1776, is an honorary society, membership in which is conditioned upon high scholastic standing. The Trinity Chapter, known as the Beta of Connecticut, was chartered by the Yale Chapter, the Connecticut Alpha, June 16, 1845, and is the eighth in order of foundation.

The Charter stipulates that persons elected to membership in the Beta of Connecticut shall be men of honor, probity, and learning. To satisfy the scholastic requirements, a student must have attained at least the equivalent of Grade A (the highest grade of excellence) in at least ten courses, and of Grade B (the second highest grade) in ten additional courses. Election to Phi Beta Kappa has always been regarded as a mark of high distinction in scholarship.

Football, 1928

The 1928 football season was the worst in the history of Trinity football. A large squad reported at Plainfield, Conn., in September. After a week of hard conditioning work, Coach Merriman brought the squad back to Hartford. There was lack of capable backfield material. The linemen were big, but slow and inexperienced, Captain Brown, the only veteran back; Kelly, Cooper and Hardman were the only regulars from the 1927 team to report. The members of the 1931 Freshmen were, for the most part, overrated. Coach Merriman had to devote a great deal of time teaching these men fundamentals, which they should have been thoroughly drilled in while on the Freshman team.

Trinity field was in excellent condition; a new press stand had been built and the scoreboard was repainted. The team, equipped in new, gold jerseys, turned for the first game with Lowell Textile. Coach Merriman had warned the student body, at an enthusiastic rally the night before, that the team had not come along as well as he had hoped, and that Lowell Textile had a very strong team. His predictions were true. The team played well during the first half, but weakened in the second half, and Lowell rolled up a 24-0 score. This game clearly showed a weakness in blocking, tackling and general lack of football sense on the part of most of the men, which was not overcome for the rest of the season.

Trinity probably played its worst football of the season against Worcester Tech. The field was wet, hindering Trinity’s heavy line. The Blue and Gold offense was totally ineffective, being stopped nearly every play by the Worcester line. After two disheartening defeats, Trinity was expected to be given its third by the Upsala team. They had a veteran team, which was one of the best in their history. The Trinity men, having found out in the first half that they could hold the opponents’ offense, went out in the second half, determined to score. Several long marches toward the Upsala goal were stopped because of poor generalship on Trinity’s part. The game resulted in a scoreless tie. It was a disastrous game for Trinity, because Weinstein, Glynn, Hardman and Gillies were injured.

Gillies was the only man of the injured quartet to make the trip to Hamilton. With the line badly depleted, Hamilton could not be held in check, and they gave the team a 46-0 defeat, the worst of the season. Chatfield was responsible for several of Hamilton’s touchdowns, effected by long runs. Kelly and Hardman reported for practice the Monday before the Wesleyan game. The rest of the team had come through the Hamilton game badly bruised, but not injured. The team worked with determined spirit. Cooper was shifted to center, while Kalasinsky took his place at tackle. The day of the Wesleyan game was stormy and cold. Both teams had difficulty in handling the wet ball.

The first half was keenly contested, but Wesleyan had a lead of 6-0. During the second half, Trinity seemed to tire, and Wesleyan ran up the score to 24-0. An unfortunate ruling disqualified a touchdown made by Nye, early in the second quarter. Trinity fought hard throughout the game. Captain-elect Cooper played three quarters of the game with a broken nose. The work of Captain Brown, Nye and Durand was particularly outstanding.

The closing game of the season was at Amherst. The "Lord Jeffs" were prepared for a 50-point victory. Amherst kicked off; Trinity marched about sixty yards to the shadow of Amherst's goal post, only to lose the ball on a fumble. The team held Amherst for downs. Once again they fumbled the ball, and Gottlieb, Amherst's quarterback, picked it up and ran more than fifty yards for a touchdown. This was the only game in which Trinity showed any sustained offense. The Blue and Gold made more first downs than Amherst. Fumbling and poor judgment kept Trinity from several touchdowns. The 34-0 score fails to indicate the keeness of the contest.

The outstanding player was Captain Brown. In every game of the season, he was more than half the team's defense. He fought through and through, never yielding a point or giving up hope until the final whistle was blown. It was unfortunate that Brown had to be the captain of such an ill-fated team. Weinstein was probably the most consistently effective linesman. This 200-pound sophomore should be very valuable during the next two seasons. Captain-elect Cooper played well at both tackle and center. His work in the Worcester and Wesleyan games was particularly noteworthy. Kelly was handicapped nearly all season by injuries, and could not do his best work.

Forecasts are futile, but the outlook for 1929 is very fair, particularly with the splendid material that is to be found in the present Freshman class. The Junior Varsity played only two games, but they played them well, and won. There will be good additions with Phippen, Geiger, Eberle and Ullman.

Basketball, 1928-1929

Climaxing the most successful season in Trinity's history, the Varsity basketball team outplayed and defeated Wesleyan, March 2, at the Hopkins Street Gymnasium, 25 to 17. This victory, which was all the sweeter because an injury the previous week had removed from the lineup Bissell, individual star of the team and high scorer, gives the 1928-29 squad a record of ten victories in fourteen games, and an undefeated season on its home floor.

Adding last year's record to this year's, gives the College sixteen victories out of eighteen starts on the home court. The 1927-28 team, which won eight and lost six games, was defeated at home only by Williams and the Connecticut Aggies. Williams won again this year, inflicting the only unquestionable defeat of the season at Williamstown, but the Aggies were conquered in the final second of play. Among the teams defeated were also Lafayette and Hamilton. The College scored 414 points in fourteen games, to 292 for its opponents, making the average per game 29 4-7 to 20 6-7.

This record was compiled by a team that did not contain a letter man from the previous year, and that at the start of the season lacked even a captain. Of the 1927-28 squad, three letter men were graduated, one left college on account of scholastic deficiency, and one, Captain-elect Hallstrom, on account of illness. In addition, the first two substitutes did not return. With this disheartening prospect, Coach Ray Oosting set to work with the remnants of his former squad strengthened by the addition of Bissell, a junior, who previously had not reported for basketball. There was but one bright spot on the basketball horizon last December—the second team of 1928 had been unusually strong, and had played as a unit throughout the season. Four members of this squad were available.

Starting the campaign against an Alumni team that contained four members of the 1928 Varsity, the College won, 39-12. After the Christmas holidays, the first intercollegiate game was played with Tufts at Medford, and resulted in defeat, 22-25. Here, failure to shoot accurately was responsible for the loss. Trinity had possession of the ball two-thirds of the time, but could not drop it through the netting. Clark University, played at home, was swamped, 49 to 16, and the Albany Law School (operated by Union College), after offering surprising opposition, also was sent away defeated, 25 to 17. Then came the game that, more than any other, molded this latest Blue and Gold quintet into the finest basketball team that ever has represented the College. Lafayette, with a seasoned, hard-playing squad, invaded New England, and Trinity joined Wesleyan and Williams in repelling the invasion. The score was 33 to 26. This victory was dearly bought, however, for the next night the team was called upon to play Worcester Tech at Worcester, and, tired out by one of the hardest games ever played at Trinity, lost, 27 to 29, putting up the poorest brand of ball shown all season.
After the mid-year examinations, and as a Junior Prom day attraction, the Connecticut Aggies came in for their annual game, bringing a large squad that, at full strength, was one of the strongest combinations in New England basketball. For seven years the Aggies had won every game played at Trinity, and the College was conceded little chance to break the string of victories. The game was extremely close throughout, the Aggies taking a one-point lead by a sensational field goal three minutes before the second half ended. Trying then to "freeze" the ball, their plans were wrecked by Slossberg, one of the best floor players in college ranks this year, who took the ball away from an Aggie dribbler, and let go a long shot. It missed, but less than a second before the timer's gun was fired, Slossberg's companion forward, scooped up the ball and let go a shot. The ball had scarcely left his hands when the game ended, defeat turning into victory after the playing time had expired.

Next on the schedule was a New York trip, that resulted in one defeat and one victory. Pratt Institute won, 24 to 27, and Brooklyn Polytech beaten, 26 to 20. At Williamstown, the team suffered the only unquestionable defeat of the year, the Royal Purple scoring a triumph, 20 to 32. This was the identical margin of victory by which Williams had previously beaten Wesleyan, that score being 37 to 25.

Back home to end the season, the College beat Upsala 39 to 11, Hamilton 33 to 23, and Lowell Textile 23 to 9. This last game cost the services of Bissell, who, from his guard position, had scored one-third of the points registered by the team, and about whom the entire attack had been built. With three minutes to play, Bissell wrenched his left knee so badly that he was in the Hartford Hospital for five days. With this important cog missing, Trinity dropped from a position as slight favorite over Wesleyan to the familiar place of under-dog. But in the week before the game, Coach Oosting entirely revamped his attack, with Glynn, a former Ridgewood, N. J., High School captain, in Bissell's place as left guard. Using two teams in an effort to tire the small Blue and Gold squad, Wesleyan was outgeneraled and outplayed in every minute of the game. Trinity strategy forced the Cardinal and Black to abandon its favorite zone defense at the end of the first half, which closed with Trinity leading, 12 to 8. In the first ten minutes of the second half, the Middletown team was still held, the score at that point being 14 to 13, Trinity leading. Then the supposedly tired-out team staged a scoring spurt that in five minutes gave a 25 to 14 lead. In the last five minutes, a whirlwind dribbling game still held the Cardinal helpless, and the game ended, 25 to 17.

Coach Oosting will have this team intact for next season, not a member of the squad being a senior, and in addition he will have the services of three freshmen, who have developed rapidly this winter.

Baseball, 1928

Trinity's baseball season was once again unsuccessful. The pitching was poor, the hitting weak and the fielding inconsistent. As a result the team was beaten eight times, and failed to win a single game. The team showed very good baseball at times, but unfortunately, it was unable to keep it up for nine innings. This fact was proven on several occasions; most conspicuously against Providence College, who had one of the strongest teams in the East. The season opened early, against Rhode Island State at Kingston. The wind, which blew up from the ocean, and the rain made the weather anything but ideal for baseball. The game was called at the end of the fifth inning. Neither team scored. Harvard decidedly outclassed Trinity. The score was 20-0. Charles Solms' three-bagger was the only feature for Trinity.

The Stevens game proved to be one of the most interesting ones of the season. Stevens got off to a good start and a six-run lead. Trinity scored six runs in the fifth and sixth innings, and two more in the seventh, thereby obtaining an 8-6 lead. "The Engineers" tied the score in the eighth. The rest of the game was a pitching duel between Captain Whitaker and Braden. Stevens pushed across the winning run in the fifteenth inning.

Mastronarde pitched well against the Connecticut Aggies, but Trinity failed in the batting. The score was 3-1. Providence's batting strength could not be held in check, and they won a one-sided victory, 22-10. In this game, Slossberg, who was Trinity's most dependable batter, broke his leg. Close games were lost to St. Michael's and Clark. Both these defeats could have been victories, had Trinity taken advantage of their many opportunities to score. In the first Wesleyan game, Trinity held a 2-1 lead for seven innings. They played good baseball against a strong team. In the return game, Mastronarde pitched a splendid game, but received poor support in the field and in the batting. The scores were 6-2 and 2-0.

Track, 1928

For the first time in more than a decade, a winning team was turned out in track. Coach Oosting had a fairly large squad, from which a well balanced team was developed. There were no men of unusual calibre on the squad, as is shown in the fact that Trinity failed to score in the New England Intercollegiate Meet. One college record was broken, when William Even, ’28, threw the discus 110 feet, 10 inches, in the Clark meet, the last meet.

The opening meet, with Worcester Tech, had to be cancelled, as their track was under six inches of water. The following week, Mass. Aggies came to Hartford, confident of an easy victory. The year before, they had one by an overwhelming score. They returned to Amherst with another victory, but only after a very hard meet, which was not won until the last two events. The score was 66-60.

Conn. Aggies were defeated for the second year in succession. The meet was well contested, but Trinity outscored their rivals in both running and field events. Captain Jackson, Ikeler and Even each won two events. The closing meet of the year was an astounding victory over Clark. Clark won but three first places, and were outscored, 93½-32½.

Varsity letters were awarded to the following men: Jackson ’28, Gibson ’28, Beers ’28, Even ’28, Hey ’29, Ikeler ’29, Dower ’29, Lovering ’30, Nye ’30, Strong ’30, Apter ’31, Hall ’31, Higgins ’31, Frank Smith ’31, Weliver ’31, and to Manager Morgan ’29.

Tennis, 1928

Trinity's 1928 tennis team was the most successful team turned out in that sport for many years. For the first time since relations were resumed with Wesleyan in 1924, the Blue and Gold defeated the Cardinal and Black in tennis.

In the opening match against Tufts, there was only one veteran on Trinity's line-up. The three newcomers, Britton, Smith, and Reppert played well and won their matches. The only match lost was the second doubles. Trinity encountered stronger opposition from the Clark team than they had anticipated. Smith and Reppert won their singles, and Britton and Smith won in the doubles.

Wesleyan received the surprise par excellence, when Trinity gave them their first defeat of the season in a close, hard-fought match. For the three preceding years, Trinity had been beaten by 6-0 scores. Captain Bissell and James Smith were the individual stars of the match. Smith defeated Douglas, the Wesleyan captain 4-6, 6-4, 9-7. Teaming with Ralph Britton, they beat Perry and Douglas 6-8, 7-5, 6-4. Captain Bissell defeated Perry, 6-3, 9-7, and teamed with Reppert, won the deciding contest of the match by defeating F. and A. Longacre.

Trinity met defeat for the first time when Worcester Tech won 4-2. Bissell won his match and teamed with Reppert, winning the doubles. The strong Springfield team shut out Trinity in the closing match of the season.

Letters were awarded to Captain Bissell '30, Britton '31, Reppert '31, Smith, J. C. '30, and to Manager Morgan '29.

Organizations
The Senate

The Senate is the governing body of the undergraduates. It has power over all student organizations. The Senate is chosen by the College Body president, who is also the president of the Senate. There must be no less than five men, no two of which can belong to the same fraternity. The present roster is:

GEORGE HARDMAN, President
Robert Bartlett
Morris Cutler
William Ellis

Paul Ihrig
Harwood Loomis
Henry Uhlig

Uhlig, Bartlett, Ihrig
Ellis, Hardman, Loomis
The Medusa

The Medusa takes care of all disciplinary action. It is composed of seven men. They are chosen by the members of the Medusa of the Senior Class. On Tap Day, the juniors sit on the fence, and the senior Medusa members choose the new delegation. The greatest honor is to be the first man tapped. The present roster consists of:

GEORGE HARDMAN, President
Andrew Brown
William Ellis

Paul Ihrig
Harwood Loomis
Sophomore Dining Club

The Sophomore Dining Club is the sophomore honorary society. The men are chosen by the junior delegation. There is no definite number chosen. The most outstanding members of the sophomore class receive the honor of belonging to this club. The 1930 delegation consists of:

JOSEPH LOVERING, Chairman

Frederick Cooper
Philip Cornwell
James Gillies
Adam Knurek

John MacInnes
Ralph Rogers
Herbert Snow
William Sturm
Kappa Beta Phi

The Kappa Beta Phi, of which Trinity College is the Alpha of Connecticut, is an honorary fraternity. The members are elected to the organization. The fraternity symbolizes the promotion of good fellowship and welfare. The members wear a charm similar to the one awarded to Phi Beta Kappa members. The men forming the Trinity chapter are:

HARWOOD LOOMIS, '29, President

Britton, Ralph, '31
DesChamps, Normand, '30
Gillies, James, '30
Gooding, Jack, '31
Hardman, George, '29

The Jesters

The Jesters were re-organized in the fall of 1923. Since that time, they have presented two plays a year. The parts are cast through competitive trials. A single part makes a man a Junior Jester. Two major parts, one major and one minor part or three minor parts make a man a Senior Jester. Charms are awarded to Senior members. The present Jesters are:

The Tripod

The Tripod was established in 1904 and was incorporated in 1913. It is a weekly paper, and is written up and made up by students. Membership to the boards is by competition. The men trying out for positions must work a year before they can be elected to the board and then they must work two years before they are awarded a charm. The Tripod is now made up of:

The Varsity Club

The Varsity Club was established in 1927. As the name implies, it is made up of men who wear the "T". Every year the club sponsors a smoker, which is given in Alumni Hall for the sub-freshmen. The chairman for this year’s smoker is James Archibald Gillies. The men in the Varsity Club are all familiar ones.

The Literary Club

The newest of our clubs is the Literary Club, organized in 1928. It has several aims, one of which is to develop literary talent. Another, and perhaps the most important, is the collecting of material to be used eventually in a school literary paper. The papers are read at the meetings and are kept by the secretary. The members are elected to the club. The present ones are:

The Athenaeum Society

The Athenaeum Society was organized in 1928. It was formerly a club, but had dropped out of existence for a time. The club discusses topics of general interest and debates are held. The club is a splendid one for anyone interested in law, because it gives such fine opportunity to do quick and accurate thinking. The men who have been elected to the club are:

The Trowbridge Memorial Gymnasium

Rearing its bare steel girders up in silhouette against the sky, stands the skeleton frame of Trinity’s New Gym. Our New Gym! That is how all Trinity men have thought of this edifice-to-be, the Trowbridge Memorial. They have hoped and waited for it a long time, and so this sharp-angled, gaunt structure seems beautiful to them now, for it is the tangible embodiment of a promise and the fulfillment of long desire.

The laying of the cornerstone of the Trowbridge Memorial Gymnasium took place before a large group of students and members of the faculty last February, the twelfth, at noon, when President Ogilby dedicated the building to the memory of Samuel Breck Parkman Trowbridge, Trinity, ’83. The ceremony was simple, but very impressive. Following the dedication, a box was placed inside the cornerstone; the contents were briefly enumerated by Mr. Brill, the Faculty Manager of Athletics. After the stone was sealed the whole group of students and faculty were led in a series of cheers for the architect, Mr. Bennett, the supervisor, the workmen, and then for Trinity College itself.

Work on the new gymnasium building is progressing rapidly; by June it is probable that the structure will be sufficiently advanced to appear really imposing from the exterior, and if all goes according to schedule it should be ready for use in the fall. The outside is to be faced with white stone. The ground floor will contain a regulation swimming pool, thirty by seventy-five feet and adequate locker rooms. The second floor will consist of a gallery surrounding and overlooking the pool below; this gallery will be large enough to accommodate approximately four hundred spectators. It will be directly accessible from the vestibule on the first floor by means of two staircases. The top floor is to contain a set of six squash racket courts and additional locker room, as well as showers.

The students at Trinity are quite naturally waiting in eager anticipa­tion for the day when the new swimming pool and squash courts will be ready for use, for those will fill a long need of the college. But beyond this, the Trowbridge Memorial holds for Trinity men a deeper significance that increases with longer association with their beloved Alma Mater; it fills them with an intense pride, for the new building represents the first step in a program of future expansion that will some day make Trinity great. The Memorial is the first gymnasium unit; next will probably be a field house and then finally the gymnasium proper, equipped for light apparatus work and general practise. In addition, we will have in the near future a fine, new chapel; the ground will very likely be broken next fall. This building will be an extension of the Library wing of the college and will be built in Gothic form to harmonize with the rest of the main buildings. And so we all look forward to the day when Trinity will be a new Trinity; —no, not a new Trinity, for we hope she will always keep all the old traditions and noble principles of the liberal college,—but certainly we look to see a greater and finer Trinity than ever before.

KENNETH ALLEN LINN.
The St. Patrick’s Day Scrap

_In the Bedtime Story Manner of Thornton W. Burgess_

“Just the morning for a St. Patrick’s Day Scrap,” said jolly Aunt Volstead and off she ran lipperty, lipperty, lip, toward the Trinity College Campus.

“Oh, goody-goody,” cried little Clarette. “Now we can all see those horrid Freshmen punished,” for the Freshmen were far from popular with those kindly Hartford folk and Aunty had often promised the children that if they were good they would be allowed to watch this yearly performance.

Soon she returned, bearing in her arms a number of bright, shiny, new paddles, lemon squeezers and what not. The children crowded around in glee and soon all were supplied with fun-makers, except little Benedictine, who, of course, was too young and was given a quart bottle of gin to secrete beneath his overcoat while playing leap frog with the members of the faculty. As quick as you could say “Jack Robinson,” the little ones were off. Round Mr. Sun was just peeping over the Purple Hills when the merry little party arrived ‘neath the elms, singing and laughing at the prospect of the sport.

“I bet the Freshmen get here first,” exclaimed little Sherry, as he sat cross-legged on the grass smoking a very doughty pipe.

“Ha, ha, ha—you joker, you,” laughed Aunty Volstead. “You will be lucky if you see them at all for I fear they may be weary after a night spent in decorating all the town’s war memorials.”

“Oh, do you think so, Aunty?” said tiny Angelica, and she began to cry, for Angelica dearly loved a fight.

“Hush, dear,” said Aunty Volstead with a kindly pat, for she loved her little charges and it hurt her to see them unhappy. “I was only joking. And now, children, I will tell you a story. I was out in Winsted last night, when looking up from the gutter, what do you suppose I saw?”

“Snakes,” cried little Reisling, whose father had often had delirium tremens, greatly to the delight of his children.

“No, Reisling,” said Aunty Volstead, “not snakes.”

“Pink Lizards,” suggested Moselle, Reisling’s sister.

“Come children,” said Aunty Volstead with a hearty laugh, “you are not very wide awake this morning. I saw a stranger. And what do you suppose the stranger had?”

_one hundred ten_
"A snoot full," chorused the Sauterne twins. "He was pie-eyed—tight—"

"No," replied Aunty Volstead laughing merrily. "It was before noon. The stranger had a broken hand and was the chairman of the Sophomore class, who in trying to capture all the Freshmen all by himself had been captured, brought to Winsted, given a pocket full of money and told to stay there until after the scrap this morning."

"Did he?" exclaimed all the children breathlessly.

"If my eyes do not play me false, he is coming across the campus now, leading his class of brave, handsome men toward that tree with the white marker on it," said Aunty Volstead proudly.

"Oh, look," cried tiny Tokay, "See the crowds of Freshmen marching up Vernon Street."

"But why are all the Sophomores trying to hide behind that tree?" queried sober Muscatelle.

"You don't understand, dear," explained Aunty Volstead, "that handful of brave men are going to try to keep those dozens or rather hundreds of Freshmen from getting their flagbearer up into the tree."

Just then the whistle blew and as round Mr. Sun grew larger in the Blue Sky, all the merry wood folk gathered near to watch the sport. There was Prexy and the Seniors and Eddy and the Juniors and Louis Schuler and oh, just everybody.

With a shriek the Freshmen fell on their prey and soon nothing could be seen but arms, legs, clothing and what have you flying through the atmosphere. The happy children jumped up and down in glee. But old Father North Wind blew coldly on their sport and they grew restless and uneasy because nobody seemed to be getting killed or anywhere near in fact. However, Aunty Volstead had become all hot and bothered, already in excitement having bitten her fingers as far as the knuckles and after having pulled out all the hair on her head had begun pulling out her teeth, for it seemed as if the valiant Sophomores must give in.

"Whoopie," bellowed Aunty Volstead as the whistle blew once more and she rushed over and embraced all the Sophomores, kissing each lovingly. Then she turned to the children and exclaimed, "The Sophomores have won, dears, but don't let on that you are happy, but give a cheer for the defeated Freshmen."

"Agreed," sobbed they all, as twelve little throats united in seven lusty Trins which made Aunty Volstead's face fall you may be sure. Yet she had to stand in good with that vast number of faithful beer customers for—business is business!

In 1620 the Pilgrims crossed the ocean. This is known as Pilgrims’ Progress.
The reason that Taft was not elected in 1912 was that the Republican Party separated him.
Algebraical symbols are used when you don’t know what you are talking about.
Geometry teaches us to bisect angels.
A circle is a round, straight line with a hole in the middle.
Edward III would have been King of France if his mother had been a man.
There were no Christians among the early Gauls. They were mostly lawyers.
To kill a butterfly you must pinch its borax. (Note: Professor Bassinette has done some intensive study on this particular mores.)
A vacuum is a large invisible place where the Pope lives.
Lord Raleigh was the only man to see the invisible Armada.
When Caesar delivered his oration, he was a prefix.
Andrew Jackson was called “Old Hickory” because he was a little tough when he was a boy.
Benjamin Franklin discovered electricity by rubbing cats backward.
Typhoid fever is prevented by fascination.
Horsepower is the distance a horse can carry a pound of water in an hour.

WE HATE—

The fellow who gets up at 5 A. M., jumps into a cold shower, steams and blows for half an hour and then jumps back into bed and says “Boy, ain’t that great?”
The fellow who studies all the time and then crib off our paper in an examination.
The fellow who tries to make up with his girl only a week after Christmas—he should wait two weeks.
The guy who meets us on the street and hollers: “What d’ye know?”
The guy who thought that “Georgie Tech” was a girl friend.
The girl who says she had her hair bobbed because it was falling out.

PROLOGUE

An able-bodied associate of Dr. Schuler strides importantly down the campus, heavily laden with teacups and saucers. He is swallowed up by the yawning portals of Williams Memorial. Twenty-three and a half pairs of eyes follow his peregrination into the depths of the edifice, and twenty-three and a half pairs of eyes dog his recessional to the refectory.

A gleam of intelligence shines forth from one of the numerous Omega Delts, draped about the library steps (Ed. Note: Motif for a Grecian urn). "If I had your brains," a sweet, girlish voice undulates across the campus, "I'd just know there was a faculty meeting."

THE MEETING

A chubby, cherubic gentleman, whom you'd just know was a microbiologist, is enjoying his tea—from his saucer. A rather well-built, youngish person, who resembles an assistant professor, manages his utensils with all the art of a trained acrobat. We think he could do a back flip and still keep his tea in his cup. Oh, for such a perfect body. (Ed. Note: We have passed Physical Training, so we fear nothing.) A tall man, almost drooping so, clears his throat and in a plaintive tone, says, "Gentlemen, according to Wundt, it must be psychic. It simply must be, because it isn't logical—"

"You're wrong again. It's in the mores," interrupts another cherubic looking person, untangling his fingers, and smoothing his abdomen.

"You have no conception, gentlemen. Where is your problem? The only thing that will solve the case, is bigger and better derivatives." This from a swarthy, foreign appearing gentleman.

Words seem to come from nowhere. "Trinity College could be unique, by abolishing all major courses, and majoring in the minors." The voice must have come from that unobtrusive gentleman in the corner, although we did not see his lips move. A Kewpie-like individual, nestled in a huge chair near the head of the table, gurgled over his teacup, "Tee-hee, gentlemen."

Whereupon a certain professor gleefully untangles his left leg from his right ear, and nods assent. Words of wisdom come from a bristly-haired, quick-spoken gentleman, "This case is as difficult as that of the freemartin!"

A girlish treble rings over the teacups, "Well, gentlemen, I think it would be great fun, if we all got together and washed the dishes."

The solemn faculty procession wends its way, teacups in hand to the sink in the Dean's office.

The faculty has convened.
JEST IN PUN

I suppose you heard about the burglar and the judge. Well, it seems that the judge says to the burglar: “Just fooling away your time in that apartment, I suppose?” And the burglar answered: “No, I was taking things seriously.”

Here’s one from the student body, no, not Al Breed, but you know he is quite a debater, rooms in Jarvis, of course you know the one. He was in the refectory (the Commons) the other day and he bought some doughnuts. “Hah, who invented the hole in the doughnut?”

And Mrs. Wilhelm immediately bites and says: “Who, a fresh air fiend?”

Here is a very clear and concise one, although a little mite dirty: “Pitt, your answer is as clear as mud.” “Well, that covers the ground, doesn’t it?”

Professor Hutt told this one in class, (Logic—Philosophy IB).

P. H.—You know more than I do.

A certain Soph—Of course.

P. H.—I know you and you know me.

Hee, hee—we fooled you that time. I bet you thought you were going to have something psychic.

Now, where shall we go? Let’s try the Mathematics Department.

Mr. Folley—Now class, pay close attention to the board, while I run through it again.

Of course, he was explaining a problem.

You know a certain Freshman came up to me in the library one day, oh, his name, well, you see it advertised on certain bottles, which are connected with a slightly warmer climate than this vale of tears,—where was I—oh yes, this Freshman came to me and he said, “I’d like to have something light to read over the week-end.”

So this is what I told him—“Why not try this treatise on hydrogen atoms?”

You don’t get it? Well, here’s one which reminds you of that old proverb of the salt of the earth and so forth.

Once there was a traveling salesman—oh, you heard that one—Well, this one is about a salt salesman. He came up to me one day, and I says to him, I says: “What do you do for a living?”

“I’m a salt salesman.”

“A salt-seller?”

“Yes.”

“Shake.”

The 1930 Ivy has appeared on the campus. The editor wishes to thank everyone who has been instrumental in making the book a success. He particularly wishes to thank President Ogilby for his many kindnesses, Mr. Oosting, Mr. Brill for their instinted aid, the Howard-Wesson Company, the White, Ogden and John Haley Studios for furnishing the photos, the Advertisers, and among the undergraduates Messieurs Dann and Laubin. And to all others, who have assisted in the slight, but always important details, further appreciation is offered. The Calhoun Printing Company should be particularly noted for their kind co-operation.

TRINITY COLLEGE, Hartford, was founded in 1823, as an institution for the training of intellectual leaders of society; men who could think straight and thus be able to solve problems of any sort. The original name was Washington College and the founders were Episcopal churchmen whose object was to nurture a liberal college in which no restrictions should be placed upon the intelligence in its search for truth. The charter expressly forbids the application of any religious test to professor or student. In 1845, several colleges having adopted the name of the first President, the name was changed to Trinity, thereby giving to the New World a college name long famous in Cambridge, Oxford and Dublin.

A century ago the social organization limited Trinity’s field to the development of young men for the ministry and law, since those two professions claimed the civic and intellectual leaders of community life. With the years, however, society has so broadened that intelligent men can now find room in every phase of man’s activity. Trinity has not lost sight of its original purpose; neither has it failed to keep step with the world. The curriculum has been expanded and remoulded so that a young man of the necessary mental ability may now fit himself for any chosen work. The emphasis of the entire course, moreover, is upon intellectual power. Trinity believes that a man who can think clearly and with sufficient power to carry him through to the end of the problem is better prepared for life than is one whose mind has been made a storehouse of knowledge. With this emphasis in every course, the curriculum has been divided into several groups of studies, each group leading toward a specialty, yet giving the broad cultural background that is essential to the most accurate thinking.

Trinity has remained a small college because she believes that only through intimate daily contact with outstanding minds and characters can the potentialities of young men be fully developed.

The Great and Glorious Class of Thirty
Let me tell you--

The old "Time Tried and Fire Tested" insurance companies are constantly studying the subject of fires—how to prevent them from originating—how to stop them from spreading and how to extinguish them when they do get started. And this helps to reduce the risks which daily confront fire-fighters.

We know that insurance doesn't bear the fire burden—it merely distributes the load—and the lighter the load the better off we are, the better off the insurance companies are and the less the public has to pay for the protection.
