The following letter was received by President Funston from Vannevar H. Bush, who received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science last June. As you know, Dr. Bush is President of the Carnegie Institution of Washington and a leading scientist in the development of the atomic bomb.

"The development program which Trinity College is undertaking in connection with its one hundred twenty-fifth anniversary commands attention and interest both as warranty of the continued flourishing of the College and as testimony to the vital importance of liberal arts education today.

"The need, responsibility, and opportunity for liberal education— for the general adaptiveness of mind which liberal studies inculcate — never were greater than now. For the successful operation of a civilization so complex and delicately interrelated as ours, we require not only expert specialists with their alert concentration on particular necessities, but also men deeply sensible of the basic principles of right action in the affairs of men and swiftly responsive to them. The enduring truths of the relation of man to his world, to himself, and to other men bulk their largest in the disciplines with which liberal education is concerned. It is imperative — as new demands for comprehension of these truths confront us — that liberal arts colleges such as Trinity be strongly prepared to do their full share in the education of men of good will."

PROFESSOR EDWARD F. HUMPHREY, NORTHAM PROFESSOR OF HISTORY AND POLITICAL SCIENCE, LECTURING ON WORLD AFFAIRS
President's Message

As was reported in the last issue of the Alumni News, Tom Wadlow, after many years of effective service, has resigned as Alumni Secretary to accept a position with Rockford College, in Rockford, Illinois. Tom will be missed; he has played a significant part in developing the fine relationship which now exists between the alumni body and the College.

This relationship is recognized as being so important that the Trustees are planning to foster it to an even greater extent by strengthening the Alumni Office organization here on the campus. A new position with broad responsibilities is being created on the staff of the College: Assistant to the President. Since the major responsibility of this position will be to direct a strengthened Alumni Office to serve as the representative of the Alumni on the campus, and to work closely with the Alumni in selecting capable young men for the College, this position carries with it the title of Director of Alumni Relations and Secretary of Admissions. The Assistant to the President will be provided with an adequate staff to carry on the duties assigned him, which will include certain activities in fund raising. Under this new arrangement it is expected that the College will be able to work with the Alumni more closely not only in connection with traditional alumni affairs, but also in securing the best possible students for the College as well as in enlisting the financial support of prospective friends of the College and foundations with whom the Alumni can put us in touch.

Albert E. Holland, whom many of you already know as a Trinity alumnus of the class of 1934, and who has had broad and successful experience in business and government, as well as more recently on the staff of the College in charge of admissions, has been appointed to the position as Assistant to the President. Bert will carry on those duties which Tom Wadlow has undertaken in the past and as soon as possible he will get around to the several local Alumni Associations to meet you and to explain our program for the future.

Mr. Alex Creedon, the President of the National Alumni Association, as well as the heads of the larger local associations, have collaborated with me in establishing this new position and in selecting Bert Holland to fill it. They enthusiastically favor the new and strengthened arrangement. I know that in turn you will support Bert wholeheartedly.

Sir Alfred Zimmern

Sir Alfred Zimmern, internationally known British historian, has accepted an invitation to become a visiting lecturer for the Trinity Term. Commencing Thursday, February 27, Sir Alfred will give a series of four public lectures in the Chemistry Auditorium on "The World Crisis."

The dates and topics are as follows:

February 27, "The Nature of the Crisis."
March 6, "The Political Outlook."
March 13, "The Social and Economic Outlook."
March 20, "The Intellectual and Cultural Outlook."

Sir Alfred was made Director of Political Intelligence in the British Foreign Office in 1918. In 1925, he became Director of the Geneva School of International Relations. He was Professor of International Relations at Oxford University from 1930 to 1944, when he was appointed Deputy Director of the British Foreign Office Research Department.

All alumni are most cordially invited to attend these lectures.
A College Chaplain's Ministry

THE COLLEGE CHAPLAIN'S ministry is unique in that the college community is made up of members of many different religious persuasions, or of no persuasion. This requires that the College Chaplain's ministry be in a unique way ecumenical, necessarily going beyond the boundaries of a single denomination's faith and practice.

I offer these few thoughts for those who may be interested in the life of a college community, and in things which bear on the ecumenical movement, or the movement toward the unity of the Churches.

Those of us who are interested in the Ecumenical Movement at the student level see two types of ecumenicity. The first is Minimum Ecumenicity, which means doing nothing which another group cannot subscribe to. This is the "lowest common denominator" principle, which, when applied to worship, for instance, involves throwing out now this, now that particularism, resulting finally in a watering down to the point of utter insignificance. By the time you're through you have no service, but rather a collection of innocuous elements which admittedly offend no one, — but likewise inspire no one. This view is naively subscribed to by those who are at the outer fringes, but is decisively rejected by those who wrestle seriously and thoughtfully with the actual problems in the field of inter-denominational student activities.

The other view is Maximum Ecumenicity, which looks for a far greater richness of Christian thought, experience, and fellowship by having the various emphases of the Churches brought together to supplement and enhance each other. This position demands that those who come together on the Ecumenical level have good strong roots within their own Church family, that they be committed and informed Churchmen, who then come together to cooperate with those of other persuasions to bear their own witness strongly, and to learn from the witness of others.

Common sense demands that we avoid even flirting with the "Minimum" point of view, and that we take all possible steps to breed good convinced Churchmen who will join with others for the fullest possible witness.

This philosophy of Maximum Ecumenicity recognizes realistically the fact that it is impossible for the Chaplain to avoid holding some definite position, and doing some definite things. He is authorized to be a Chaplain by virtue of Ordination, which occurs in some one Church family, and he is necessarily a representative of that Church. He would violate his Church's authorization, and along the way would become either a "great vagueness" or a blithering idiot if he tried to represent all possible positions on all possible subjects. He must have his roots down deeply and firmly, and then bear his witness at the Ecumenical level.

The Sectarian Danger: However, the College Chaplain who works under the philosophy of Maximum Ecumenicity must show a truly catholic breadth and inclusiveness in his ministrations. He must minister alike to the man who wants to "talk it over with the Padre" over a cigarette in the office, and the one who wants to make a formal confession.

He must check himself constantly, to guard against the danger of sectarian exclusiveness, which would deny certain forms of ministry, or certain facilities for the Christian life which Christians of varied backgrounds find helpful.

It's with this point in mind that I am quite willing to hear Confessions, and also to reserve the Sacrament in the Crypt Chapel; both things at the request of a number of students. Thereby we make available things which some of my flock find helpful, and yet, as in the case of the reservation, try to do it unobtrusively so that it will not be a stumbling-block to those who for one reason or another do not favor it.

I am quite sure that there would be grave danger of "flirting with hypocrisy" if we made a policy of excluding such matters, while claiming to be truly broad. The College Chaplain above all must bear strong witness to his heritage while ministering with true breadth and inclusiveness to the variety of Christians with their varied practices, who come under his pastoral care.

New English Course

Wordsworth has said that the properties which make a good poet are "vision, and a faculty divine." These same properties, it happens, make a good college. Trinity's faculty, though perhaps not divine, has nevertheless had vision enough to allow the English Department to institute a new experimental course at the Freshman-Sophomore level. The new course, called English A-14, was inaugurated last September with an enrollment of forty volunteers. The object of the experiment is to discover what values there may be in a two-year course in reading, writing, and speaking.

The foundation of English A-14 is a group of carefully selected great books: the Odyssey; the Bible; Paradise Lost; Fielding's Tom Jones; Melville's Moby Dick; parts of Emerson, Plato, Shakespeare, and a few others. These works, read during the course of two years, are studied carefully for whatever values they may contain. No attempt is made to develop a history or survey of world literature. The Odyssey is the first book studied, for example, and the Bible, the second. The students find stimulating ideas in these books, as well as in the contrasting viewpoints of Hellenism and Hebraism. When they come to a study of later books, of Moby Dick, for instance, they are prepared by their early reading for a real understanding of the religious overtones and the epic sweep of this American masterpiece.

English A-14 is not simply a literature course. It includes writing and public speaking, both based upon the reading. The themes are not "exercises" in the usual sense. Students are not specifically required to define a word, to relate a personal experience, or to write an exposition. The themes in English A-14 deal with the ideas which have been found in, or have been suggested by, the students' reading. Some of the papers are critical; some are attempts to throw new light on old problems. Research papers are popular. Character studies are not uncommon. Indeed, there is no limit to the variety of the written work.

Public speaking is also a vital part of English A-14. Not only do students learn self-confidence through speaking, but they learn to discuss important ideas with their fellows in open forum. The speeches, like the themes, are based upon the reading. Thus every speaker can be sure that his audience is made up of individuals who are both interested and informed.

Perhaps the most novel feature of the course is its length: two years. Hitherto, students have taken English A in their Freshman year and a required literature course in a later year. This traditional pattern still obtains for men who are not enrolled in English A-14. Under the new two-year plan, however, composition and literature are taught concomitantly through the Freshman and Sophomore years. They are brought together as organic parts of a single course.

"Reading maketh a full man; conference a ready man; and writing an exact man," observed Francis Bacon, and the experience of more than three centuries has not altered the truth of the observation. English A-14 is an experiment in producing full men, ready men, and exact men. Whether or not the experiment will succeed is a question yet to be decided. Trinity is justly proud of its present traditional Freshman and Sophomore English courses — proud of them, but not smug. The College is ready to explore new possibilities in education. English A-14 is such an exploration.

THE FIRST NUMBER OF THE NEW TRINITY REVIEW has been published by Fred D. Neusner, '47, and Harold W. Gleason, Jr., '47. It contains some very interesting fiction, non-fiction and poetry by the faculty and students. Extra copies are available and will be gladly mailed to any alumni free of charge. Please send your request to John A. Mason at Trinity.
Ned G. Begle

Seismograph

Trinity College has received a gift of $5,000, from Mr. Ned Griffith Begle of Greenwich, Connecticut, for installing and maintaining a seismograph at the College. The instrument, a new type now on the market, is being constructed by the Diamond Instrument Company of Wakefield, Massachusetts, and in the early spring will be installed in Boardman Hall. We are indeed grateful to Mr. Begle for this contribution, because it will not only be of use in the instruction of students but also will make possible, investigation of earth tremors and research work in the nature of the composition of the earth. All studies will be carried on in cooperation with the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey at Washington in its seismic studies of the whole country.

Mr. Begle is a graduate of Michigan University, 1901, and was a member of the famous football team of that time. After graduation he entered the woodenware business, and became the president of the Berst Manufacturing Company in Minnesota. In 1919 this company was sold to eastern interests, and Mr. Begle became president of the consolidated Berst, Forster, Dixfield Company. He retired from active business in 1936, but is still chairman of the board. He has been given much credit for his efforts in the development and improvement of the safety match.

For many years the Department of Geology at the College worked for the securing of a seismograph. It was through the good offices of some of our senators, Lonergan and Danaher, and Mr. Martin Clement, '01, that the U. S. Senate was prevailed upon to vote a large sum of money for the installing of a seismograph here. The student body, largely through the work of Elliott Stein and John Cohane, contributed $1,000 for this purpose. The coming of the war suspended all further activity. Now it is a pleasure to announce that except for one instrument, privately constructed and used, this will be the only seismograph in operation in the State.

The procedure of installing will be as follows: a cement pier three feet square extending down six feet to the bedrock of Boardman Hall will be constructed. When this dries and hardens in a month or so, the new seismograph will be installed; the instrument itself will be in a specially built room in the basement. Through the electronic control, i.e. by radio tubes, it will operate the recorder in the office of the Department of Geology where, like reading a ticker tape, the seismogram will be readily available.

Wadsworth Atheneum

Bird Collection

The Trustees of the Wadsworth Atheneum have loaned their natural history and bird collections to Trinity. The College is indeed very grateful for this interesting group of Connecticut birds which is now located on the main floor of the Museum in Boardman Hall.

Older alumni may remember that these collections belonged to the now defunct Hartford Scientific Society and were formerly on exhibition in the Morgan Memorial Galleries of the Wadsworth Atheneum. These consisted primarily in the Dr. William Wood collection of Connecticut native and migratory birds, the John H. Sage collection of birds, birdskins, and other ornithological material, the Neff collection of bird nests, and miscellaneous biological collections. As the art collections of the Museum expanded public interest in the natural history material slackened. When the Morgan Memorial was closed from 1934 to 1944 for lack of funds for maintenance, the bird collections were put away in moth balls, so to speak, for preservation.

This fine collection of birds — permanent residents, winter residents, summer residents, water birds, and migratory birds — is available not only to our students but also to the public. Bird lovers of Trinity and of Hartford will be afforded a splendid opportunity to work once again with original specimens.

Alumni Placement

Dean Arthur H. Hughes has taken over all alumni placement from the Alumni Office. Any alumnus seeking a job is reminded that the College hears of many business openings.

Lecture Series

This academic year a faculty lecture committee with Professor James A. Notopolous, Chairman, has been most successful in securing many fine lecturers for the students, faculty and public.

The series started in October with Padraic Colum, the Irish poet, giving a reading from his poems and stories. His ready wit and bubbling humor made the evening entertaining.

Dr. Filmer S. C. Northrop, Professor of Philosophy and Master of Silliman College, Yale University, discussed "Foreign Policy of the United States." He urged the unification of ideologies of all nations.

On November 20, Trinity was honored to have as her guest, Field Marshal, Lord Wilson of Libya. He lectured on "The Strategical and Political Importance of the Middle East" and the first part of his talk was broadcast over WHTT on the regular student radio program. Lord Wilson is the head of the British Joint Staff Mission in Washington, and was successor to General Eisenhower as Commander of the Allied forces in the Middle East in World War II.

On December 2, William L. Laurence, Science Editor of the New York Times, gave a most interesting address on "The Implications of the Atom Bomb." Twice winner of the Pulitzer Prize for science reporting, Mr. Laurence said, "When Russia realizes that the people of the United States are standing united behind the Baruch plan, she will be forced to accept it." Mr. Laurence traced the development of the harnessing of atomic energy, and described his reactions to the atom bomb tests at Los Alamos, New Mexico, and at Nagasaki.

Thomas J. Dodd, chief prosecuting attorney at the Nuremberg trials, gave a very informative talk on January 14 about the recent Nazi trial and its implications.

These lectures have been held in the Chemistry Auditorium and have been well attended. They have done much to add to the cultural life of the College and the community.
Alfred N. Guertin

Ever since Alfred N. Guertin's Trinity track team days he's been going full speed ahead and following his career leaves us breathless. After graduating with the Class of 1922, he became associated with the actuarial department of The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company. His outstanding work there secured him an invitation in 1929 to join the Insurance Department of the State of New Jersey as Chief Assistant Actuary, and in 1932 he was advanced to Actuary.

During this period Mr. Guertin took an active part in the affairs of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. This led to his chairmanship of two special actuarial committees, which prepared voluminous reports that gave rise to the Standard Nonforfeiture and Valuation Laws, already enacted in 24 states and known in the insurance world as the “Guertin Laws.” As a result of legislation in additional states in 1947, it is hoped that country-wide use of the new mortality tables and benefit formulas included in these laws will be possible by January 1, 1948. To understand the technicalities and tremendous amount of work which preceded the Guertin Laws is difficult enough for the initiated. For our purpose it is enough to know that the task required the application of many minds, led with boundless energy and courage.

Today Alfred Guertin is considered one of the outstanding actuaries in the country. He is a high staff officer of the American Life Convention, the largest organization of life insurance companies in the world. He is a Fellow of both the Actuarial Society of America and the American Institute of Actuaries, and has served on a number of their committees.

Mr. and Mrs. Guertin reside in one of Chicago's north shore suburbs with their two sons, who are of school age.

Student Radio Programs

The Radio Program Committee had its turn at post war reorganization late this past fall. We were able to take to the air the very night after elections. Since then we've been broadcasting every Wednesday evening at 8:15 over WTHT, the Hartford Times Station, 1230 on the dial.

The gang at work on the committee for the past three months lines up like this: Bernard Mullins, Jr., '47, Chairman; Merritt Johnquest, '47; Mishel Piastro, Jr., '48; Dave Austin, '50; Robert Obrey, '50; and Ned Williams, '50. Let's be fast with charges while we're at it, however, and announce that the new man at the top is Merritt Johnquest. The Mullins faction, at this writing, expects to graduate in January despite the mid-year catastrophes.

The inaugural show for the 1946-47 series had Dean Hughes, Jack Tyler of the Medusa, and Bob Toland of the Senate before the mike, with a grand send-off speech by the Dean, and stories from Jack and Bob about our two leading campus organizations. The second program saw a tremendous turn-out in the Chern Auditorium — the event was a radio football rally — Dan Jessee, the team, the cheerleaders, the Pipes, and no end of noise and singing by all present.

Field Marshal Lord Wilson's visit to the College couldn't escape our mike, and we caught his address from the Auditorium the night of November 20th. The programs since then have listed as stars, the Jesters, the Debating Club, the Pipes, then a program entitled “Christmas in Prison Camps” with Bert Holland and two members of his Barbed Wire Club, and Chaplain O'Grady on Christmas day.

We started the New Year one week late. Our first for '47 heard student Ted Lockwood interrogating George Cooper of the faculty — the subject was England, the Labor Party there, and interesting notes on the political situation in the Isles.

For January 15, it was the College quartette, the Pipes, again — and by rather forceful demand of students, alumni and all who heard the program in December.

That takes us up to date. For the future, we have big ambitions. There are many college organizations who have yet to contribute their bit to our series. We're making plans to carry the Winter Sports banquet, the Medusa tapping, the Interfraternity sing, and other winter and spring events, when and where possible. The committee is planning a novel feature this year too—there'll be an Interfraternity Quiz Cup, if things go O.K.—a cup to go the rounds in competition each year.

We wish that you alumni who've heard any of our broadcasts and want to hear a particular kind of program would write to us. All suggestions are most welcome. Until we're reading your letters, then, it's so long 'til next "News."

Bernard L. Mullins, Jr., '47

Faculty Radio Programs

In friendly competition with the student radio program committee the Trinity faculty inaugurated a series of programs each Friday at 6:15 P.M. over Station WDRC, 1360 on the dial. The committee consisting of Messrs. Allen, Holland, Mason, Shaw and Williams have planned some very interesting talks and discussions which have been well received.

President Funston opened the series on November 8 and introduced Martin W. Clement, '01, who outlined the advantages of a liberal arts education. Professor Shaw of the History Department gave two excellent talks on United Nations assembly problems and the chances of peace in 1947. Mr. Holland read excerpts from the secret diary he kept at Santo Tomas internment camp. Professor Constant interviewed Mr. William L. Lawrence, Science Editor of the New York Times, on the atom bomb. Other programs have been: Professor Taylor and Mr. Mayer, Director of the Hartford Art School—"Modern Art"; Professor Towle—"Higher Prices in 1947?"; Professor Hood, a reading of "A Christmas Guest" by Selma Lagerloff; Dr. Glassner—"Peacetime Uses of Atomic Energy"; Professor Allen—"Best Sellers"—and Dr. Salmon, visiting lecturer of Philosophy—"England Today."

The Faculty Radio Committee welcomes your suggestions about these programs.

William R. Peelle

William R. Peelle, 1944, will be Assistant to the Director of Alumni Relations. He will start work under Bert Holland on admissions and alumni work as of February 1.

Bill entered Trinity in 1940 with the class of 1944 after his graduation from Episcopal High School, Alexandria, Virginia. He was a member of the freshman basketball and tennis teams, and won his letter in basketball his sophomore year. He is a member of Delta Psi fraternity.

In August, 1942, he entered the Coast Guard as a Coxswain. He completed his officer's training early in February, 1944, and joined the P.C., U.S.S. 590 as an Engineering Officer. Bill was on this ship until she was lost in a typhoon off Okinawa on October 9, 1945.

He returned to Trinity in February, 1946, and completed his requirements for the B.A. degree this January. Bill has been Commodore of the Trinity Nautical Association, and has done much to restore interest in sailing at College.

He is married to the former Jean Lewis Barlow of Plainfield, N. J., and they are living at 22 Sumner Street, Hartford.

Under the sponsorship of the Connecticut Daughters of the American Revolution, the Trinity History and Government Faculty are conducting six programs on "Self-Government" over Station WTHT at 7:15 P.M. each Saturday—January 4 through February 8.
Christopher V. Salmon

It has been Trinity's good fortune this term to welcome into her Philosophy Department Christopher V. Salmon, a visiting lecturer from London, England.

Dr. Salmon has visited this country once previously, when he attended Princeton University on a fellowship, after graduating from Balliol College, Oxford University. His graduate work also includes a year at the Sorbonne, University of Paris, and two years in Germany, where he took his Ph.D. under Edmund Husser, renowned German philosopher. Then he taught at Queens University, Belfast, Ireland, and later, at Bristol University in England. During the war he did a most commendable job as assistant director of talks on the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Dr. Salmon is teaching courses in Aesthetics, Logic and Contemporary Philosophy during the Trinity Term. His wide interests also include art and music, and his wife in her own right is a well-known Mayfair artist.

We know that their presence will be a continuing pleasure to the faculty and students, and hope that for them it will prove happy and rewarding.

Robert S. Morris

There is an old saying, "When you want to get something done, get a busy man to do it!" Northey Jones used this line of reasoning when he selected Bob Morris to be Alumni Chairman for the 125th Anniversary Development Program. In accepting the position Bob probably will give up half of his business hours to help his Alma Mater, and will tell you, "This will take ten years off my life." When all is said and the results have been won, Bob will have spent three quarters of his time on the job, and end it up looking ten years younger!

As an undergraduate Bob played football for four years, and was on the track team for two. He was class president his Sophomore year, class day president, and permanent class secretary; a leader of the Glee Club, member of the College quartet (the Pipes of those days), Choir, Junior Prom Committee, Senate, Sophomore Dining Club, the Medusa, and Alpha Chi Rho Fraternity.

After graduating B.S. in 1916, Bob studied for his M.S., which he received the next year. During the fall of 1916 he found time to coach the Trinity football team, as well as work in the Bonding Department of the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company. He served in the U. S. Navy as an Ensign aboard the U.S.S. Kroonland and Mongolia. From 1919 to 1929 he was with Tripp and Andrews, investment bankers; from 1929 to 1932, a partner of E. T. Andrews & Company; and since 1932, President of Robert S. Morris & Company, investment bankers.
SWIMMING
On January 11 at the Trowbridge pool the team lost to M. I. T., 39 to 36. Captain Jack Tyler won the 100 yard free-style, was second in the 50 yard, and swam anchor on the victorious 400 yard relay. His brother Bob won the 220 and 440. Dewey Yeager's smooth style earned him an easy triumph on the diving.

The remaining meets against Boston University; Worcester Tech*, February 15; Amherst; Coast Guard*, February 22; Williams; Bowdoin*, February 28; and Wesleyan will provide plenty of strong opposition, but Joe Clarke's squad will concede nothing. He has some boys who are rapidly rounding into form and may spring several surprises.

* Meets at home.

SQUASH
Squash has been resumed this year under the eagle eye of Dan Jesse. Matches with Williams, Wesleyan, Harvard, Yale, Amherst, and Army have been arranged. The first five players — Dick Weisenfluh, Frank Borden, Bob Toland, Ed Geiger, and Ed Kelly — are all evenly matched, but except for Weisenfluh the others lack tournament experience. In the first intercollegiate contest Williams won 4-1 with several of the matches going to five games. Wesleyan was beaten 5-4 at our courts. Two informal games with the Hartford Golf Club have been played.

WRESTLING
Wrestling will be conducted informally this year with matches against Yale, Wesleyan and Springfield on the schedule. Don Phelps will be the coach. It is hoped that next year we will have a regular schedule of intercollegiate competition, and incidentally a proper place to practice in our new Field House.

BOSTON ALUMNI

President George Almond, '24, of the Boston Alumni Association reports that the luncheon meetings on the first Wednesday of each month at Patten's Restaurant, Second Floor, 41 Court Street, at 1 P.M. are gaining in popularity. On February 19 the Boston Alumni plan a dinner at the Hotel Commander, Cambridge, at 6 p.m., before the Harvard basketball game.

HARTFORD ALUMNI

The Hartford alumni held their annual meeting at the Hotel Bond on January 9 with 160 in attendance. President Funston announced that the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving had contributed $25,000 to the Development Program. He outlined the Program in detail. Tom Flanagan, '12, told about the Advance Gifts Committees and reported that much progress had been made in organization throughout the country. The Pipes and Mr. Harvey Davies, a humorist musician, entertained. Chuck Kingston, '34 was elected president; Bert Gable, '22, vice president; Jim Cosgrove, '35, secretary; and Jim Bert, '28, treasurer. Nelson Shepard, '21, was re-elected chairman of the Scholarship Committee.

PHILADELPHIA ALUMNI

The Philadelphia alumni met at the Yachtman Club on December 9 for dinner with 24 attending. Bob Morris and Bert Holland spoke on the Development Program and the College. Ray Montgomery of New Haven was a welcome guest. There will be a spring get-together—maybe on Charlie Easterby's new yacht! The officers remain the same—Ron Kinney, '15, president; Wales Dixon, '27, vice president; Norm Pitcher, '26, secretary; and Charlie Easterby, '16, treasurer.

Our New Field House

We all know of our lack of indoor playing space at Trinity; that our “home” basketball games are played “away” from the campus at the Hartford High gym or at the Armory; that our spring practice in baseball and track depends on the New England weather; and so it goes. The Bronze Tablet, which you recently received, tells of the 125th Anniversary Development Program and has pointed out that the Hartford Alumni campaign is now in full swing. Soon other areas will be approached. The new Field House will be a memorial to our sixty-eight fellow alumni who gave their lives in World War II. Let's all back the Development Program and make the Field House a reality by next winter.

Alumni Campaign - January 31 - $286,110
