THE 1934 TRINITY IVY
VOLUME 59
PUBLISHED BY THE JUNIOR CLASS OF TRINITY COLLEGE HARTFORD CONN.
FOREWORD

IN THIS BOOK we have attempted to express, in some degree, the spirit of the Class of 1934. We have not intended merely to record the history of the college year, but rather to portray the true picture of Trinity.

It is our hope that our humble efforts may have fulfilled this purpose.

History of the College

In 1822 a group of eighteen clergymen met at the home of Bishop Brownell at Hartford to draw up a memorial in which they prayed the General Assembly of the state to grant a charter to a college "with power to confer the usual literary honors." Once before, in 1810, an effort had been made to enlarge the charter of Seabury College, an Episcopal institution founded in 1801 at Cheshire, but the General Assembly had refused to grant the request. At the beginning of the nineteenth century Yale was the only college in Connecticut, and was not only closely connected with the Congregational Church in administration, but was in complete control of the legislature. Accordingly, any suggestions by the Episcopalians as to a charter for a second college were promptly discouraged.

However, during the War of 1812 the Episcopalians in this part of the country conducted themselves with such undoubted loyalty as to win the respect of all, with the result that when Bishop Brownell and his associates made application for a charter under the name of Washington College, their petition was promptly granted by the legislature. The amount of money necessary for the incorporation was raised in a very short time, as well as $50,000 toward the endowment of the college. The trustees had adopted the same plan that had been used by Yale to determine the location, inviting the larger towns of the state to contribute to the funds of the college, in competition for its site. When the decision was finally announced in favor of Hartford, cannons were fired off and bonfires were lighted to mark the celebration.

The site selected was that which is now occupied by the Connecticut State Capitol, then known as "College Hill". There were fourteen acres in the tract purchased. Work was commenced on the buildings in June, 1824, and they were ready for occupancy in May, 1825. The original college had two buildings, Jarvis and Seabury Halls, both of brown stone. The former, a dormitory for about 100 students, was designed by Solomon Willard, architect of the Bunker Hill Monument, and the latter, containing a chapel, library, museum and classrooms, was designed by Professor S. F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph.

The Rt. Rev. James Church Brownell was elected president of the college and it opened its doors to students for the first time on September 23, 1824. There were nine students at the time—one senior, one sophomore, six freshmen and one partial student, not a candidate for a degree. The original faculty of five was increased to eight in a few years. Growth was rapid, through the willingness of the college to accept as students men who were not candidates for a degree—"partial students" as the early catalogue called them.

The first commencement was held in 1827 when a class of ten men was graduated. In the previous year the college had conferred its first honorary degree on Alexander Jollay, Bishop of Moray in Scotland.

Bishop Brownell, the first president, retired in 1831 and Rev. Dr. N. S. Wheaton was chosen to succeed him. He was a graduate of Yale who had been active in the interests of the college and had been sent to England by Bishop Brownell, bringing back to this country a telescope and some scientific apparatus of real value. In addition to his activities for the church and for the college, he was a successful architect, and designed Christ Church in Hartford. He retired as president in 1837 and was succeeded by Rev. Dr. Silas Totten, a graduate of Union College and Professor of mathematics at Washington College. During his administration the citizens of Hartford gave another dormitory to the college, called Brownell Hall after the first president.

It was during the presidency of Dr. Totten, in 1845, that the name of the college was changed from Washington to Trinity. The change was made by the legislature on petition of the corporation, which gave as its reasons the confusion arising from the fact that there were other colleges in the country called Washington, to "attest forever the faith of its founders and their zeal for the perpetual glory and honor for the one holy and undivided Trinity," and to secure for the college a name which at Cambridge, England, had long been associated with sound learning. In the same year the Board of Fellows was organized and the alumni body was organized as a part of the college. From 1849 to 1889 the Bishop of Connecticut was ex-officio chancellor and president of the board of trustees, and in 1859 a board of visitors for the college was appointed. In 1857 trustees from other states than Connecticut were admitted and in 1883 the charter was again amended to permit the election of three of the trustees by the alumni.

Dr. Totten resigned in 1848 and Rev. John Williams was elected president. He was a man of power and highly esteemed as a scholar and a dean, and was the first president from the alumni of the college itself, having been graduated in 1835. He gave theological instruction from which grew the Berkeley Divinity School. The cares of this school became so great that he resigned as president of the college in 1853 and was succeeded by D. R. Goodwin, a graduate of Bowdoin. During the Civil War, from 1860 to 1864, the college was under the presidency of Samuel Eliot, a cousin of Harvard's famous president. He was succeeded by Dr. John B. Kerfoot, a native of Dublin, Ireland, prominent in the councils of the church, who left in 1866 to become Bishop of Pittsburg. For the next year the college was in charge of Professor John Brockelsby as acting president.

Abner Jackson, the only president of Trinity to die in office, assumed his duties in 1867. An alumnus of the old Washington College, he was called to the presidency of his alma mater when president of Hobart College. During his administration the enrollment reached 100 for the first time, in 1871-72. It was also during his time that the college property was sold to the city of Hartford to be used as the site of the State Capitol. A move to the outskirts of the city was decided upon and the present property acquired. The services of Mr. Thomas
Burgess of London were secured as an architect. Ground was broken on the new site in 1875, and the official move came three years later. The first two buildings erected on the new site bore the same names as the original two buildings, Seabury Hall and Jarvis Hall. Northam Towers was added later, making the line of buildings continuous. The gift of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan of the library and the administration building, dedicated in 1914 in memory of his life-long friend, Bishop Williams, not only increased the effectiveness of the college, but also crystallized the original intention of Burgess the architect in carrying out some portion of the quadrangle idea.

In 1869 the statue of Bishop Brownell was presented to the college and in 1871 Chester Adams of Hartford left the college $65,000, the largest individual gift received up to that time.

On the death of President Jackson, Rev. Dr. T. R. Pynchon was elected to fill his position, holding office until 1883 when he resigned the presidency, but continued to teach until 1902, becoming professor emeritus. He was succeeded as president by Rev. G. W. Smith, a graduate of Hobart. During his administration the courses offered were increased from one to four; in addition to the old arts course, the college now offered a course in science, a course in letters and science, and a course in letters. Dr. Smith tendered his resignation in 1903 but it was not accepted until 1904, Dr. Flavel S. Luther being acting president. He was elected president in 1904, and held office until 1919. Professor Henry A. Perkins served as acting president for one year and in 1920 Rev. Remsen B. Ogilby, graduate of Harvard, assumed office.

The impressive celebration of the Centennial of the college in 1923 marked a turning point in its history. The successful completion of the Centennial Endowment Fund at that time gave the college financial security which it had never had before. Definite growth in plant, in faculty, and in numbers of students followed naturally. Outstanding in the presidency of Dr. Ogilby has been the extension of the building program. The first unit of a gymnasium project was completed in 1929 as a memorial to S. Breek P. Trowbridge, and contains a swimming pool, squash racquets courts, and locker rooms. A new dormitory, Cook Hall, containing a dining hall, has been erected with funds left by Charles W. Cook, and was first occupied in the winter of 1932. The consecration of the new chapel in June, 1932, marked the completion of this gift to the college by William G. Mather of Cleveland. Plans are also available for the extension of the Library and Administration Building to make connections with the west wall of the chapel, and for extending Cook dormitory.

UNDERGRADUATE LIFE

Some of the undergraduate rules of the college have a strange ring in the ears of the person living in the Twentieth Century. No student was allowed to attend any "festive entertainment in the City of Hartford or vicinity." In summer the first recitation was held at five a.m. and in winter at 6 a.m., and students were not allowed to sleep in their rooms or lie down on their beds during study hours. Bedtime was at 10 p.m., and after 10:30 no student was allowed to leave his room. Tutors and professors had authority to punish any infraction of the rules by a fine not exceeding $1.

The students were prohibited from playing any musical instrument on Sunday, "except when employed, by permission of the President, in the performance of sacred musick."

The punishments of the College were Expulsion, Dismissal, Rustication, Suspension, public and private admonition, and Fines not exceeding ten dollars. Actions which were deemed "high offences" included: "Riotous or noisy behavior, to the disturbance of the College or the citizens of Hartford—Refusing to give evidence in any case when required by the Faculty, or falsifying therein—Challenging or assaulting, or maliciously endeavoring to injure any student—Throwing things against, over or near the College; from the windows, entries or down the stairs—Profane language—Intoxication—Having spiritous liquors in the College—Indecency in language, dress or behavior—Associating with any person under sentence of Expulsion, Dismissal, or Rustication—Being concerned in any bonfires, fireworks or other unauthorized illumination—Being an actor or spectator at any theatrical entertainment during term time—Making, or being present at any public celebration except by permission of the Faculty."

Among misdemeanors are: "Going to any tavern or victualing house in Hartford, for the purpose of eating or drinking, except in the presence of a parent, guardian, or patron—Playing at cards or dice, or any unlawful game—Buying, selling or bartering any books, apparel, furniture, or other property, without permission of the Bursar—Idleness, negligence, and, in general, all behavior inconsistent with the good order, peace, and prosperity of the College."

The chapter dealing with College bills and expenses of students states that, "To prevent extravagant or improper expenditure by the students, all monies designed for their use shall be placed, by their parents or guardians, in the hands of the Bursar, who shall superintend their expenses with a parental discretion. No student may purchase anything without his leave.

"As a further preventative of extravagance, an uniform dress shall be prescribed by the President, and no Student shall appear in publick, in any other dress, during term time, under such penalty as the Faculty may inflict."

Then, heaping coals of fire on the head of the luckless undergraduate, the Laws close with this section: "Every Student shall receive a copy of the Laws, for which he shall be charged the sum of twenty-five cents."

In 1825 the Athenaeum literary society was organized and two years later its rival, the Parthenon, was founded. Both societies died in 1870. The poet, Park Benjamin, was the first president of the Parthenon Society. The Missionary Society, which survived until fairly recent years, was organized in 1831 and had as its first president, George Benton afterwards a missionary to Crete. It was through this society and one of its members, Augustus F. Lyde, of the class of 1830, that the Board of Foreign Missions of the Episcopal Church was organized. The Connecticut Beta of Phi Beta Kappa, the scholastic honorary society, was organized at Trinity in June, 1845.

One of the early organizations of the college, perhaps traceable to the large number of students from the south, was the Washington College Archers, a student cadet corps. The corps had a black and white uniform and paraded in Hartford and Springfield. The sophomores had a ceremony of burning the conic sections, the juniors had their exhibition, and the seniors their class day, modelled on that of Harvard. Commencements, until 1875, were held in Christ Church, and the Commencement procession, as long as Bishop Brownell lived, passed his house with the band playing “Auld Lang Syne”.

The earliest form of athletics in which the students engaged seems to have been rowing. The old college was situated on the bank of the Park river, better known today as the Hogg River, and Trinity was one of the four colleges which assisted in the establishment of the College Union Regatta at Worcester. In 1858 Trinity raced with Brown, Harvard, and Yale at Worcester. In 1873 the college had a crew in the international race at Springfield and the next year sent the crew to Saratoga.

Literary activities at Trinity began with the old societies but the trend was away from forensics, and at some unknown date the publication known as the Cabinet was started. In 1869 the Tablet was begun as a monthly, and in 1878 it was made bi-weekly. It was primarily a literary publication and lasted until 1904. In that year The Tripod was started as a college news organ, beginning as a daily publication, but very soon changing to a semi-weekly. When the World War came in 1917 most of the staff left college and the paper was changed to a weekly. In 1920 the paper was enlarged to its present size and continued as a weekly publication. It serves both as an alumni and undergraduate organ. The Chapbook, a literary publication, was started in 1919 in an effort to revive the Tablet, but was short lived. The Ivy, the year book issued by the junior class, is the oldest undergraduate publication of the college.

ORGANIZATIONS
The Senate

In previous years, it has been the custom of the Senate to deal only with the financial matters of the various campus organizations. This year, under the leadership of President Paige, the Senate has attempted to concern itself with undergraduate problems as well. With the advent of this policy, the Senate, consisting entirely of members of the Senior Class, felt that it was not representative of the different class opinions, and consequently Charles T. Kingston and Territt H. Mowbray, President of the Junior and Sophomore Classes respectively, were invited to attend the Senate meetings.

This plan met with the immediate approval of the student body. But, although this plan was indicative of the Senate's intention of being a representative body, the method of electing the College Body President who would in turn select his Senate still remained in effect. Consequently, with this thought in mind, the Senate set about making changes in its constitution which would allow for the election of the Senators by the student body. A committee was formed for this purpose composed of Thaddeus C. Jones, James J. Sharkey, Charles T. Kingston, Jr., Senators, and Willard J. Haring, Editor-in-Chief of the Trinity Tripod.

Under the new plan, two Seniors from each fraternity as well as two from the neutral body are nominated, one from each group to be elected in the College Body elections. These men upon entering office would elect their own head who would become College Body President. The system of having the Treasurer for the coming year elected by the outcoming Senate was upheld by the Senate, so that the group from which the Treasurer is chosen will have no further representation. This plan achieves the purpose of giving to the undergraduates the right to select their own representatives in the most powerful student group on the campus.

At various times during the year, the Senate has also held dances in the Commons which proved highly successful, and of great delight to the students and their friends.

Altogether the Senate has completed a good year, and has accomplished much. They have laid the foundation for future Senates to build upon, a great possibility which needs only the co-operation of the student body to become a reality.

The Trinity Tripod

Among the literary publications of Trinity College, the Trinity Tripod remains among the oldest. It was founded in 1904, and is published weekly. During the last few years, it has undergone many changes, until at the present time it stands as one of the most completely organized bodies on the campus.

In the winter of 1932, at the annual elections of the officers, James J. Sharkey, although he had had little connection with the Trinity Tripod previous to that time, was asked to become Editor-in-Chief which he did. Under his careful surveillance and ambitious policy, the standard of the Trinity Tripod was appreciably raised.

In the fall of 1932, due to the appearance of an article for which he assumed responsibility, Sharkey resigned, and Willard J. Haring, then Managing Editor, succeeded him.

Since that time the Trinity Tripod has followed the policy inaugurated by Sharkey, and continues to maintain a high standard, much credit for which is due to the unfailing efforts of Harold R. Bayley, Jr., Managing Editor, and Andrew Onderdonk, Business Manager.

Throughout the year, the Trinity Tripod has faithfully performed its duties, and has received the general acclaim of the college, a fact attested to by the support which it has received from the undergraduates, the Faculty, and the alumni as well. This support has been most clearly manifested in the communications which have appeared from time to time, and is indicative of the interest which is felt by all the members of the college.

The Athenaeum

The Athenaeum, Trinity's debating society, has just weathered the most crucial year in its history since its revival five years ago. Faced in the fall of '31 and spring of '32 with an extreme and crippling lack of undergraduate interest in its aims, values, and accomplishments, the Society strove valiantly to survive. A regular succession of meetings each Monday night was maintained; varied programs, including inter-society debates on problems of world importance, individual speeches by members, speeches by members of the Faculty, and general discussions, were followed out at meetings. The interest of the members was maintained while the benefits of the Society were distributed among them by having each participate regularly in activities.

In the fall of 1932, Mr. Rex J. Howard, then President of the Society, addressed the assembled freshmen, outlining the aims of the Athenaeum and explaining the method of gaining membership. Aspirants for admission were asked to deliver a three-minute speech, on any topic, before the Society in meeting. Freshmen interest was aroused by the remarkable history of the organization, and by its evident value.

The oldest society extant at Trinity, the Athenaeum has had a colorful history including several crises similar to the one just passed. The organization was first formed in 1824, and for twenty years it played a prominent part in campus life. During this period the Society accumulated, from donations of members, a considerable library which they presented to the college with the stipulation that the latter provide a reading room. Thus was the present library founded.

In 1855, a rebel group broke off from the mother Society and formed the Parthenon, a vigorous rival with the same purposes as the Athenaeum. The two organizations existed side by side in bitter rivalry for some years, both well supported by the college body. Then both suffered untimely deaths, and after various unsuccessful attempts at revivals, they remained quiescent for many years.

Finally, in 1928, the Athenaeum was revived by a group of college men who felt the value of a debating society organized for the mutual benefit of all the men in college. Since that time, the Society, in addition to its paramount activity of developing its members' abilities, has participated in three intercollegiate debates, winning all of them, thanks to the able coaching of Dean Hood. This phase of the Society's work is interesting, for from this little group of less than thirty interested students, a three-man team is picked to represent Trinity in the field of intercollegiate debate.

The Society's aims, promoted by its weekly programs, are to develop ability in debating and public speaking (formal or informal), and incidentally to increase each man's facility of expression by bettering his grammar, vocabulary, and general fund of information.

The college is gradually becoming more interested in the Athenaeum and more appreciative of its work. With continued application of effort, the college body will be made to realize the obvious benefits which such a Society can furnish, both to individuals and to the college as a group.

Glee Club

The Trinity College Glee Club, one of the highly organized societies on the campus, in completing its thirtieth year of activity has once again fulfilled a commendable purpose in affording many students the opportunity to unite in a common interest. As a representative body, the Glee Club has been of great value in augmenting outside interest in the college and widening its circle of friends through its series of concerts, given during the winter and early spring.

Under the direction of Mr. Clarence E. Watters, who succeeded Professor A. Tillman Merritt last September, the concerts this year were limited to a smaller number, for which, however, a more intensive schedule of practices was inaugurated.

The first concert was held at the Hartford Retreat on December 15, followed by a dance. The second concert, the most enjoyable from a social standpoint for the members, was given at Edgewood Park Junior College in Greenwich on January 13. A dinner preceded this, at which partners were arranged for each member of the Club. The evening was climaxed by a dance lasting until shortly after midnight.

On February 24 the Club journeyed to Springfield, Mass., for the New England Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest. Nine clubs participated in this competition, which was held in the afternoon at the auditorium, each group rendering Edward Elgar's "Yea, Cast Me from Heights of the Mountain" and an optional number. A concert was held in the evening before a large audience, at which the clubs sang two individual numbers followed by a group of songs rendered by the combined chorus of about 270 voices. At the conclusion the decision was made in favor of Amherst College, Wesleyan University, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, respectively. On Sunday, April 2, the Glee Club and the Hartford Junior League took part in a choral vesper service at the new college chapel. The season was concluded by the annual home concert, held in Alumni Hall on May 6. A dance was given for the benefit of the young ladies and their escorts who attended. Practice for these concerts was held three times a week, consisting of a separate rehearsal for tenors and basses and one joint rehearsal.

The Glee Club had a membership this year of about forty, twenty of whom were new material. A revision of the Club's constitution, made in December, entitled ten men to charms under the two-year eligibility clause. A smaller number of men of longer experience have maintained a valuable nucleus about which the Glee Club has been organized from year to year, James Henderson, William Norvell and George Richardson having completed four years of service, and Edwin Greene, Nicholas Hubinger and George Lee having completed three. In December James Henderson succeeded William Norvell as president, Nicholas Hubinger was elected vice president, and Charles Wilding succeeded Walter Johnsen as librarian. Dennis Farnell acted as student conductor. Curtis Junker held the position of manager, assisted by Barclay Shaw.

The Jesters

The past year, the tenth since the Jesters reorganization in 1923, has been a busy and artistically successful one for Trinity's famous dramatic society.

Since it was apparent from the signal financial failure of the laudable production of "Wings Over Europe", that the college did not like plays of the serious type, it was decided that light comedies should be presented this year. Accordingly, P. E. Browne's three act farce, "The Bad Man", was chosen for the fall production. It is the story of a Mexican bandit, Lopez, who, while making a raid on a ranch near the border, finds a little relaxation in mixing in the business of the several antagonistic people staying there. By the power of his gun, he arranges the financial and love affairs of the main characters to the great satisfaction of all save the villain, who is shot in the happy ending. A large share of the success of this production was due to an excellent performance by Harry J. Oxford in the part of Lopez, ably supported by Graham A. Day as the juvenile lead, Herbert Scull as the feminine lead, Donald Dumont as the villain, and Douglas Gladwin as an elderly invalid uncle.

The presentation of this play showed more clearly than ever the deplorable lack of support from the student body, against which the capable and hard-working Jesters must labor. To remedy this situation, they decided to redouble their efforts toward educating the college to the excellence and value of the dramatic society, and to do this by increased publicity, lower admissions, and by producing plays more acceptable to the college man.

In line with this policy, "Hay Fever", a riotous English comedy of manners by Noel Coward was chosen for the spring production. "Hay Fever" presents the situation of an extremely ill-mannered family, headed by a retired actress and a psychological novelist, faced with having to entertain four guests for a week-end in a house inadequately supplied with guest rooms and servants. The cast included J. J. Sharkey as the actress, supported by L. J. Carson as the daughter, T. Chapin as the son, and Rex Howard as the father. Other members of the cast included Graham Day, J. Williams, Herbert Scull, Eugene Gane, and N. T. Clark.

And so the Jesters have rounded out another year of accomplishment, presenting two major productions and two minor, as well as several German plays, ably coached by Mr. Ulmer, and well received by the college. The year's success, from an artistic point of view, has been due mostly to Mr. Helmbold's coaching. Financially the Jesters have fared well, ending the year with a smaller deficit than usual.

The Interfraternity Council

The day of active fraternity rivalry and petty dispute may be said to be past when representatives of the various fraternities represented on this campus meet together for discussion of mutual problems and co-operation in their solution.

The need for such an interfraternity group had long been felt here, and, after several informal meetings in the Common’s lounge, the Council was formally organized on the evening of March 9, 1933. This meeting was entirely taken up with matters of organization. No constitution was drawn up, rather the group decided to formulate a set of precedents for reference in the future.

The purpose of the Council, as set forth at that meeting, is “to encourage cooperation among the individual fraternities, and between the college and the fraternities as a unified group.”

Dr. R. B. W. Hutt, Professor of Psychology and a member of Theta Delta Chi (not represented on this campus), was selected as Presiding Officer. The other officers elected for the year were J. Jack Sharkey, Sigma Nu, Secretary, and Herbert O. Bell, Psi Upsilon, Treasurer.

Each fraternity is represented by the head of its house, a Junior delegate and an Alumnus representative, the heads of the houses, being the voting delegates for the year. Meetings of the Council have been held twice each month and in the interim detail work has been cared for by the Executive Committee made up of the three officers.

The Council will sponsor an Annual Interfraternity Bridge Tournament, presenting a cup to the winning group. The cup will become the permanent possession of the group winning it three times.

One of the Council’s most important committees made up of Charles T. Kingston, Delta Psi, and Lewis A. Wadlow, Alpha Delta Phi, is the Fraternity-College Relations Committee. It is through this committee that the Council proposes to make its contact with the administration of the college, concerning matters of compromise and co-operation.

Varsity Football

After three weeks of steady practice under the watchful eye of Coach Dan Jessee, serving his first year at Trinity, the football team led by Captain Jack Campion opened the season against a superior Colby eleven which turned back the Blue and Gold by the score of 19 to 7. The visitors' heavier line and more experienced play being largely responsible for the victory. For Trinity, Sampers and Maher, both Sophomores, starred on the defensive, while Armstrong and T. Wadlow excelled on the offense. For Colby, Alden and Fuller were outstanding.

In the Worcester Tech. game on the following Saturday, a blocked punt early in the first quarter followed by a 35-yard run by Drago on the next play accounted for the Engineers' margin of victory. The game ending 7 to 0 in favor of Worcester Tech. The game was listlessly played except for this one spectacular moment, both teams presented woefully weak offensives, and seemed to prefer to remain on the defensive. The most promising feature from the Trinity standpoint was that again two Sophomores, Sampers and Eigenbauer, had borne the brunt of the attack. For Worcester Tech., Noreika and Drago played well.

Chastened by two defeats in a row and determined to improve its record, the team manifested new signs of life during the next week of practice. The full extent of this new vigor with which the team became vitalized was fully realized in the New York Aggie game which Trinity won 48 to 0. Starting with a rush, the team, with backfield and line synchronizing flawlessly, in machine-like precision scored three touchdowns in the first quarter. From then on there was no fear of the visitors' attack, and it became literally a question of how high the score would go. Sampers and Brewer each crossed the goal line twice, and L. Wadlow once. Armstrong, kicking with his usual accuracy which was so marked during the season, converted six straight extra points after missing his first try.

Traveling to Storrs for the next game, Trinity won its second victory of the season by defeating Connecticut Aggies 7 to 0. Sampers scored the winning touchdown in the first quarter, and Armstrong supplied the extra point. Throughout the entire contest, both sides threatened time and again, but neither had the power upon reaching scoring territory to take the ball across, although Trinity barely missed another touchdown late in the second quarter. All the afternoon Armstrong seemed ready to break loose in the open field, but the wary Aggie men managed to hold him to short gains.

In the traditional Wesleyan game, the well-known jinx seemed to hold true. After a bitter struggle throughout three quarters, the visitors led by the inimitable Larry Schlums managed to score early in the last quarter, thereby eking out a 7 to 0 win. The game was marked by the excellent defense play of both teams. Mahler, Eigenbauer, and Fritzson starred for Trinity in the line, while Brewer and Armstrong shone in the backfield. For Wesleyan, the hard-running Schlums and Terrell, a beautiful open-field runner, were outstanding. Throughout the entire contest the interest of the spectators was held at the highest pitch. Four times the Blue and Gold held the invaders on the one-foot mark, only to be turned back in the same spot by Wesleyan.

In the final game, a superior Amherst team invaded Hartford to win a sweeping victory by the score of 31 to 0. At no time during the contest did Trinity threaten, and seemed content to hold the visitors score down. Captain Cadigan of Amherst was the shining light of the game accounting for one touchdown personally, and being responsible for two others when his perfect passes easily found their marks.

The team’s record for the season was not impressive, out of six games played the Blue and Gold won two and lost four. The splendid work of the Sophomore members of the squad lends an optimistic note to an otherwise dull season. It must be remembered however that it was Coach Jessee’s first season at Trinity, and that the squad was thereby handicapped reaching its top form in only two games, the New York Aggie game and the Wesleyan game.

Varsity Basketball

After several seasons of basketball ranging in quality from mediocre to good, Trinity found a record team in the 1933 quintet. In addition to compiling the unprecedented total of ten victories out of twelve games, the Blue and Gold enjoyed the distinction of having scored the highest number of points ever run up by a Trinity basketball team, and of defeating Wesleyan at Middletown for the first time during Ray Oosting's career as coach. Victories over Harvard and Amherst also marked a season of which Coach Oosting and his men may well be proud.

There was no one outstanding on this record team; an able group of players, well coached in deceptive attack and unerring defense, was responsible for this most successful of years. At center, Captain Bob Daut got the tap on his opponent in every game. There was a wealth of material for the forward positions: Kearns, a newcomer who showed up very well; Liddell, who had a stroke of bad luck when a "charley horse" forced him to remain on the sidelines for most of the season; Martens, a sophomore, and perhaps the flashiest player yet to see action on a Trinity court; and Sampers, a dependable substitute. Providing a well-nigh impenetrable defense and performing in every game were Kelly and Duksa at the guard posts.

In the opening game Trinity had little trouble in overcoming Haverford, 49 to 25. The second encounter found the Blue and Gold opposing a strong Pratt team at Brooklyn, and it was only after a hard struggle that the game was won by a score of 26 to 25. Amherst next fell a victim in another close one, losing to Trinity, 29-27. Worcester was then defeated at Worcester for the first time in eight years by a score of 32 to 19, and little difficulty was encountered in recording the fifth straight win of the season in a 50 to 12 victory over St. Stephen's.

Travelling to New London the Blue and Gold were forced to yield to a scrappy Coast Guard five half way through the season. As this team had previously bowed to Wesleyan, a 40 to 31 defeat at its hands did not promise well for the next encounter, which was with the Cardinals on their home court, but an alert Trinity quintet took the confident opponents by surprise to score an upset, 27 to 18, in a game featured by the close guarding on the part of both sides. Following this great victory, the weak New York Aggies were easily defeated by the record score of 70 to 28.
Connecticut State aggregation also proved an easy victim, with Trinity scoring its eighth seasonal triumph.

In what was perhaps the most important and colorful game of the year, Harvard was next downed in a fast and rough exhibition, 33 to 28. Then followed a disappointing defeat at the hands of Wesleyan in the return meeting at Hartford. The game was close throughout, neither team gaining an advantage of over six points at any time, but the Blue and Gold could not cope with the Cardinals’ style of play and the final score was 26-22 in favor of Wesleyan. Trinity closed the season with its tenth victory over Clark in a slow game, winning by a 39 to 30 count.

The sole member of this record Trinity team to be lost through graduation is Dukas. Although the jayvees had a poor season and will in all probability not contribute much in the way of material for next year’s prospects, Daut, Martens, Captain-elect Kelly, Liddell, Kearns and Sampers should prove the nucleus of another fine squad, and Coach Oosting should have little to worry about when January rolls around again.

Although the Trinity swimming team lost its final meet to Wesleyan, it ended its season with an enviable record. This group, representing a sport which was only recognized as a major one last year, gained five victories against two defeats. These two losses were at the hands of Wesleyan and Amherst in contests held in foreign pools. Trowbridge Memorial pool, however, was the scene of victories over Union, Worcester Tech, Connecticut State, and Bowdoin.

The season started off in January with a defeat by Amherst. All of the events except the distance races were fairly even. The 200-yard relay was by far the most exciting. The lead changed back and forth several times, Amherst finally winning.

Bolstered by the Freshmen stars Motten, Hall, and Dickerson, the team won the second meet with a close victory of 39 to 38 over Union. Trinity seemed far behind in the scoring column; but the crack 200-yard relay team consisting of Adams, Hall, Mowbray, and Mortimer equaled the college record to beat the Union four and win the meet by one single point.

Co-captain Mortimer led the attack against Worcester Tech in a spectacular meet which witnessed the breaking of three college and two pool records. Motten and Mowbray did excellent work. Helped by their teammates with points here and there, they managed to give Trinity a 37 to 34 victory.

The outcome of the Connecticut State meet was never in doubt, as Trinity started to pile up points from the first event. The squad kept up its habits of breaking records. Adams, Coit, and Mortimer started off the meet by under-swimming the previous record in the medley relay by two seconds. Motten and Coit also lowered the times in the 220-yard dash and the 200-yard breast stroke race. To finish the meet the record holding relay team repeated with a victory.

The squad next traveled to New London to win a hotly contested meet from the Coast Guard aggregation by a score of 47 to 37. Trinity went down confident of an easy victory, but the Coast Guard proved to be strong. But by accurate placing of men by coach Clark the team achieved a hard fought victory.

In the final home meet of the season, the Trinity group still chalking up new college records, overwhelmed Bowdoin, 50 to 27. This was Trinity’s fifth straight win. It seemed to have been a habit of Trinity by this time to break records. Motten, Mowbray, Adams, Coit, and Mortimer again did the usual by beating or tying the college marks.

The final meet with Wesleyan proved to be a heart-breaker. The Middletown swimmers were forced to extend themselves to the limit in order to squeeze out a 43 to 34 win over Trinity, setting up two new intercollegiate and two new college records.

The team formed the habit of winning swimming meets right from the start. This, together with excellent team spirit, made the first year of organized swimming completely successful.

The 1932 Baseball Season

The 1932 baseball team broke even on a twelve game schedule, winning six and losing a like number—not a startling record, to be sure, but more than satisfactory because of decisive victories over such teams as Williams, Wesleyan and Connecticut State. Eight veterans from the previous year reported to Coach Wright in the latter part of March. Adams, who finished a notable career on the mound, received able support from Henebry and Houlihan, with Captain Phippen performing consistently behind the bat. The infield was made up of Bockwinkel, Elliott, Kelly and Fontana. Bell, Vanniec and Armstrong, who formed the regular outfield, perhaps the strongest feature of the team, were assisted by Carey and Vignati.

The first three games of the season were dropped to Lowell Textile, Rensselaer and Worcester. Such a start was far from encouraging, but in the Williams game this losing streak was broken in a surprising 4 to 1 victory for the Blue and Gold. That Trinity had found itself was apparent in the next encounter with Amherst which, although dropped by the close score of 2 to 1, was a thriller from start to finish and provided some of the best baseball seen during the season.

After these two hard games, the Blue and Gold coasted to an easy victory over a weak Clark nine, 11 to 0, scoring the only shutout of the year. Henebry pitched a flawless game and was chiefly responsible for limiting Clark to two hits.

After dropping a dull game to Connecticut State, Trinity handed a decisive defeat to Wesleyan in the first contest of the annual series, 7 to 1. Taking Massachusetts State in its stride, the team repeated over the Cardinals at Middletown in the tenth game of the season. This was a free-hitting encounter, but the Blue and Gold kept the lead throughout, the final score being 12 to 6. Then a previous defeat was avenged when Connecticut State was overcome on Memorial Day, 9 to 8.

After a brief interlude for examinations, a record crowd saw the Trinity nine defeated in its final game by Harvard on Commencement Day, 10 to 3. Adams accounted for all of the Blue and Gold's runs in the first inning when he drove out a home run with two men on base. In the second inning Harvard retaliated with a home run, and went on to win, aided by the pitching of Loughlin and Devens.

The 1933 squad will miss the work of Fontana and Elliott in the infield, as well as that of Phippen at catcher. Most of all, perhaps, will it feel the loss of Adams, one of the best pitchers Trinity has ever seen. However, the pitching staff is by no means weak this year, the outfield is strong, and an encouraging amount of material should fill the breaches in the infield, with Captain Bockwinkel at first base, and the position behind the bat.

The 1932 Track Season

The 1932 track season was one of the most successful of all time, and certainly the most outstanding in recent years. Not only did Coach Oosting’s squad win all four of the dual meets in which it participated, but three new college records were set. In the high jump Kellam surpassed a mark of long standing when he cleared the bar at 6 feet, 1½ inches. The discus record, which had been broken only the year before, was again shattered by Alexander, with a toss of 127 feet, 1 inch. Accounting for the third in this record-breaking series was Thayer, who threw the javelin for a new distance of 171 feet, 5½ inches.

In the opening meet, Norwich University was defeated by a score of 78 to 48. The Blue and Gold showed its strength in every event except the shot put. Massachusetts State provided the strongest opposition of the year in the next dual contest, but Trinity’s well-balanced squad was too powerful. In the third meet Clark was easily overwhelmed, 107 to 18. Strangely enough, the only first places gained by the visitors were in the distance events, which had previously been a strong feature of the Blue and Gold.

On May 14th a picked group of men journeyed to the annual Eastern Intercollegiates, where they obtained a total of seven points, failing to place in the team scores. The final encounter of the season resulted in a 73 to 53 victory over Connecticut State.

The present season finds a strong array of letter men to provide a nucleus for another successful squad. Captain Swanson, a consistent point earner in the 440 and 880 last year, should repeat his past performances. Kellam, a versatile athlete, competes in the dashes, the broad jump and the weight events, as well as the high jump. Alexander and Thayer, the other title holders, are also on hand. Harris, who did good work in the distance races two years ago and led the cross-country squad in the fall, should take care of the mile and two mile. Daut will again see action in the hurdles, the broad and high jumps, and the dashes. The pole vault, weakened by the loss of Convey, the shot put and the hurdles, an event that will miss Captain Christy’s ability, seem to be the chief weaknesses, but Coach Oosting’s call was answered by a group of seventy-five candidates that should provide some good material.

Looking back on the 1932 season with satisfaction, perhaps the most fitting comment that could be made would be the desire for a similar record this spring.

Tennis

In spite of numerous handicaps the 1932 tennis team had one of the most successful seasons in years, winning five of its nine matches. The resignation of Captain Arnold at the beginning of the season, the poor court facilities, and the limited financial aid given by the College were some of the obstacles facing the small squad which turned out after the Easter vacation. However the men, with Martini, Burke, and Craig as veterans from the previous season, went ahead arranging their own practice periods on local park courts, and succeeded in building up a well-balanced team.

The strength of the team was shown in the opening contest when Trinity upset the strong Springfield College aggregation, 5-4. The second match with Worcester Institute of Technology was also a victory for the Blue and Gold, 4-2, as was the third with Connecticut Agricultural College. This last was a complete victory for the Trinity net men. No matches were lost and only one singles player lost more than two games in his match.

The powerful Amherst team checked the winning streak by an 8-1 win in the fourth contest. Mowbray was the only Trinity man to win his singles match. The next with Fordham University was the highlight of the season, Trinity winning by one match, 5-4. Despite the efforts of Fordham's captain, Donovan, Metropolitan New York Junior Champion, the steady play of the lower ranking men, Burke, Craig, Greenberg, decided the match.

Following another easy win from Clark University, 9-0, the 'varsity lost its last three matches to Wesleyan, Williams, and Holy Cross. The Wesleyan match was interrupted by rain after the Cardinal racquetmen had won the first five singles matches. The Williams aggregation was the strongest opponent of the season, and had little trouble in winning, 8-1. Mowbray again saved the team from a shutout by winning his singles match. The result of the Holy Cross match was in doubt until the last doubles play which the Holy Cross team managed to win, gaining a 5-4 victory. The absence of Burke from this match was a decided factor in the result.

The construction of six new courts, and the enthusiasm shown by the large squad which has turned out for tennis this year, mark a successful season for 1933. Despite the absence of Captain Donley, Mowbray, Craig, and Jackson form a strong nucleus for the team.

TRINITY COLLEGE
HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT

One Hundred and Sixth Annual Commencement, New Chapel
June 20, 1932

Commencement week-end for the year 1931-1932 began on Friday, the 17th, and ended with the graduation exercises on Monday, the 20th of June.

On the first day, Friday, the seniors celebrated their class-day, having their exercises in Alumni Hall at 4 p.m. That evening were held the annual meeting of the Trinity College Corporation and several fraternity reunions.

Saturday, the 18th, was Alumni day, and this began with a service at eight in the morning in the old chapel. At 9.45 the academic procession lined up in front of Northam Towers and the consecration of the new chapel began. At these exercises the Right Reverend James DeWolf Perry, D.D., Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church presided, assisted by nine other bishops, eight of whom hold degrees from Trinity College. It was a most impressive service, and the attendance even exceeded capacity. Following this was a carillon recital, given by Ernest Gammons of St. Stephen’s Church, Cohasset, Mass. At 11.30 the Trinity Alumni Association held its annual meeting in the public speaking room, and proceeded thence to the Alumni luncheon, held in the new dining hall at one o’clock.

At 2 p.m. there was a baseball game between Trinity and Harvard, the latter winning by the score of 10 to 3. Eddie Mays starred for Harvard, and Trinity’s pitcher, Ray Adams, played his final game for the college with his accustomed brilliance. Another carillon recital was held at four-thirty. During the afternoon Phi Beta Kappa had its annual meeting. From four until six, President Ogilby held a reception at his house, and at six o’clock there was an organ recital. Numerous class dinners were held that evening, including that of the “Class of 1923” at the University Club.

On Baccalaureate Sunday, the 19th of June, four services were held, affording opportunity for all guests and undergraduates to attend. It opened with an early Communion service, and at eleven o’clock, after a carillon recital, Presiding Bishop Perry spoke at the morning service. The afternoon was occupied with musical concerts, a carillon recital at four p.m., and following a vespers service, at five o’clock there was an organ recital given by Dr. Tertius Noble of New York City. That evening the Right Reverend Frederick Bethune Bartlett, D.D., bishop of North Dakota, gave the Baccalaureate sermon.

On Monday the 20th, the one hundred and sixth Trinity College Commencement began after the academic procession had formed in front of Northam Towers at ten o’clock.

May 15, 1933, was the 110th anniversary of the granting of the Charter to Washington College, the second college established in Connecticut. In 1845 the name was changed to Trinity College. The earlier name was a profession of loyalty to the father of our country, and was also an indication of his particular Christian affiliation. The latter name emphasized the traditions of the older Trinity Colleges, the ideals of which have been carried forward in the opportunities here offered for a cultural education.

By tradition and by choice Trinity has been a conservative institution. Other colleges have been pioneers in new fields, and have endeavored to discover new methods by which truth may be sincerely sought, and the treasures of the past made available for the welfare of the future. Although much that is laudable has been achieved along these lines, it still seems clear that no satisfactory substitute has been found for hard intellectual work at difficult tasks under wise guidance.

At Trinity the unit is the classroom, in which a small group of students assemble to work under the direction of a man chosen primarily for his ability to teach. Many Trinity professors have done research work of real value in their respective fields, but this should be appraised in terms of the increased efficiency added to their teaching.

No amount of architectural glory of a college, no elaborate schemes of requirements, no mushroom growth in the numbers of a student body should blur the judgment to be passed upon the effectiveness of the teaching process. A group of selected students working hard under a carefully selected teacher is the proper ideal of education.
