Fall 1993

Feminist Scholarship Review

Linda McKinney
Trinity College

Deborah Rose O’Neal
Trinity College

Michael A. Smith
Trinity College

Julia Holmes
Trinity College

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalrepository.trincoll.edu/femreview

Part of the Feminist, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Commons

Recommended Citation

http://digitalrepository.trincoll.edu/femreview/19
THE MADONNA OF THE ROSE—OKAYAMA
Letter From the Editor

Women's Center: Reviewed Sources

Women's Center: Additional Sources

Trinity College Library: Additional Sources

Gallows Hill Bookstore: Additional Sources
Letter From the Editor

Fall 1993

To the recipients of Feminist Scholarship Review:

The theme of this issue of FSR is women and religion. No--don't do it! Don't close the cover and put FSR aside!

In this issue, we are not going to advise you about the benefits or detriments to your life that embracing religion: either a specific religion or a generalized spirituality will bring. We are not going to tout any particular system of beliefs or even attempt to distinguish systems of beliefs from established religions. We are not going to sermonize, galvanize or organize you, either. The mission (good word for this theme, Don't you think?) of FSR is to provide you with sources of feminist scholarship on this campus, and that is what we intend to do for you on the subject of religion.

I admit to having had reservations about this topic. I wondered if I would be interested in the sources I would review. In reading one of these sources, however, I discovered that my reluctance might have had more to do with my own belief system than with any of the excuses I had concocted for putting off my research. The discovery came directly from a quotation in Women's Studies Quarterly one of the sources reviewed here. In an article on feminist studies in religion, Judith Plaskow states that "The suspicion on the part of many intellectuals in our secular culture [is] that anyone interested in religion must be a reactionary...While feminists can study and make without automatically being seen as in collusion with them, the same trust--and interest--has not been extended to feminist work in religion." (p.9)

I had to consider the possibility that this was an attitude I might be harboring in the reservoir of my assumptions, deep down in the pool. Anyone who has ever fished one of those deep pools knows that's where the biggest ones--the lunkers--loll, the ones who resist all but the most persistent efforts to pull them and reel them in. Once I admitted to this assumption, reeled it out and looked at it in the sunlight, I felt much freer about pursuing my research, and much more interested in what I might uncover in the area of women and religion.
Perhaps your reaction was not at all like mine. In another article in Women's Studies Quarterly, Delores Williams reminds us that "For some women, religious experience provide[s] the self-esteem and courage needed to pursue their...work." (p. 81) Whatever your personal reaction, though, religion is a topic about which we all have lots of hidden assumptions. By its very nature, it touches on our deepest beliefs. The sources named and reviewed in this issue may shed some light on your assumptions, hidden prejudices and beliefs. Our hope is that, at the very least, these sources will provide some thought-provoking and interesting reading in an area not often dealt with in feminist contexts.

--Deborah Rose O'Neal
"Sociology of Religion" has gone through several actual and proposed name changes in an attempt to accurately depict its content and orientation. The spring, 1993 issue is the first issue, in fact, to carry this name. The journal does hold true to its title. Articles rely on case studies, survey data and ethnographic fieldwork to illuminate the status of specific groups, such as Catholic women pastors and women in Black Spiritual Churches, within the larger religious context. Since the theme of this issue is religion and gender relationships, the articles deal with empowerment and disenfranchisement of women within established religions. Consideration is given to such topics as the experience of conversion, ministry style and establishment of new monastic communities, all with regard to gender. Aspects of Catholicism, Protestantism, Judaism, the Catholic monastic movement and the Black Spiritual Movement are examined as they relate to gender.

Conclusions vary in terms of positivity and negativity. An article on dual ordination tracks by gender, for example, suggests that this trend seems to be creating positions for female clergy that "are likely to remain lower-level, functionally subordinate and female sex-segregated." (p. 28)—quite clearly a negative conclusion. In an article entitled, "The Limited Empowerment of Women in Black Spiritual Churches", Hans Baer recapitulates the history of this movement with regard to women and concludes that, though it does not directly address female empowerment, Black Spiritualism does accept "women's legitimate role as religious authorities without question..." (Haywood qtd. in Bae p. 68). This is one of the articles that sees the role of religion for women at least somewhat positively.

"Sociology of Religion" consists entirely of thematic articles with a short section of book reviews at the end of the volume. The articles are framed in a research format. Though occasionally, the use of "jargon" can obscure meaning for the layperson inexperienced in either field (religion or sociology), it is not so prevalent as to prevent overall understanding. That is, the articles are not "easy read", but are informative and interesting and are worth the effort sometimes needed to glean information. For a single volume, there is a surprisingly broad field covered here.

--Deborah Rose O'Neal
The specific theme of the most recent issue of Women's Studies Quarterly (WSQ) is "Spirituality and Religions." WSQ defines its purpose as that of introducing "new feminist scholarship and theory applied to teaching and the curriculum, original sources and resources of direct use in course and program development." The quarterly also publishes essays and creative work on feminist themes and works to keep a focus on "intersections of race and class with gender" as well as on "perspectives of minority groups", both nationally and internationally. The articles contained in this Review require time and effort to read and digest; they are not an "easy read". But the information given is always stimulating, and seems to be true to the stated purpose.

WSQ divides this thematic issue into four topics of "Teaching about Women and Religion", "Scholarly Witness", "Spiritual Witness". The final subtopic, "Resources", contains an annotated bibliography and reviews of several books, a sourcebook and model course syllabi. In this issue, a variety of forms of the study of religion are covered, from the rational/analytical to the intensely personal. Articles include metacognitive studies such as Plaskow's review of the course of feminist study in religion which, she concludes, moves from critical analysis of patriarchal text through recovery of feminist history to recent creative writings which construct new systems or transform the old to suit feminist needs. These stages can occur simultaneously as well as sequentially. Scholarly witness articles include a study of "Visions, Inner Voice, Apparitions and Defiance in Nineteenth Century Black Women's Narratives" by Delores Williams, which is fascinating as well as focused on a unique topic. Personal witness accounts are not neglected, either, and includes Betty L. Hart's moving "Death Comes a Spirit: The Legacy of My Mothers" in which she connects personal loss with religion in the statement, "Yet death is a spiritual matter, for how else can I transform the pain and frustration of losing someone I love into a philosophy...forming a fearfully symmetrical balance between rationality and faith". (p.137)

In all, this issue of WSQ is highly informative on the topic of religion and spiritually, though the articles are dense and take time to absorb. Perhaps some aspect of religious experience in the feminist context is neglected here, but not for lack of effort to include all levels of experience in this fine issue of WSQ.

---Deborah Rose O'Neal
In Lost Goddesses of Early Greece, Charlene Spretnak skillfully pieces together myths of the pre-Hellenic goddesses as they existed before the shifts to a patriarchal, classical society. Spretnak reveals the exploitation of these goddess myths by the Olympian system of mythology, and explores the reasons for this exploitation. Her collection of myths is both colorful and absorbing and the introduction to each myth demonstrates how early goddess myths became distorted with the onset of classical mythology.

In her own words Spretnak hails the book's "political function of reclaiming stolen history and its spiritual function of illuminating a sacred tradition" ("Preface" XV). She successfully restores to the goddess myths what patriarchal society has undermined and inverted: the glorification of the feminine as representing the cycle of nature. Spretnak describes how thousands of years before classical myth evolved and was recorded in the seventh century B.C., Greece was firmly rooted in matrifocal society and the religion of goddess worship (17). From 2500 to 1000 B.C., a series of barbarian invasions resulted in a new patriarchal social order for Greece, as well as a new system of Olympian gods (17). The wise, powerful, life-giving goddesses who were incorporated into this Olympian system of mythology were greatly altered: "the great Hera was made into a disagreeable, jealous wife; Athena was made into a cold masculine daughter; Aphrodite was made into a frivolous sexual creature; Artemis was made into the quite forgettable sister of Apollo; and Pandora was made into the troublesome, treacherous source of human woes" (18). Spretnak brilliantly reclaims the goddess myths' original significance and integrity; she beckons them forth from obscurity and enthrones them in their rightful historical place.

The Lost Goddesses of Early Greece serves as more than a reinstating of lost history; it encourages readers to participate in "the gestalt fields of myth and symbol that are both ancient and elemental, the embodied recognition of the dignity of the female, the active concern about wisdom and justice in the Earth community, and the beckoning lifelong path of unfolding and transformation" ("Preface xii).

The Lost Goddesses of Early Greece is a poignant defense of a bedimmed women-centered tradition. Women readers especially will find it both empowering and freeing to discover their ancient and noble past and the possibility of incorporating its ideals into their spiritual lives.

--Julia Holmes
No, Feminists Don’t All Think Alike
(Who Says We Have To?)

Gloria Steinem, bell hooks, Naomi Wolf, and Urvashi Vaid: No Rules, No Limits, No Holds Barred!
FEATURES

COVERAGE

bell hooks, Gloria Steinem, Urvashi Vaid, and Naomi Wolf

Get Real About Feminism—The Myths, the Backlash, the Movement 34

Lani Guinier: The Anatomy of a Betrayal

How a Friend of Bill was targeted by the Right and abandoned by the White House by Karen Bronner 50

The Ambush Road to Peace

Out of the many tragedies of the Middle East, one woman creates a passionate feminism by Halina Diet Jahnau 70

PHOTO ESSAY

Scenes: Exploring the Ties That Bind by Joanne Yon 44

NEWS

INTERNATIONAL

South Africa Through Women's Eyes by Sylvia Vollenhoven 10

Canada's Largest Women's Group Is Making Waves by Michele Landberg 18

After Victory, Women's Human Rights Movement Takes Stock by Gayle Kirkshaun 20 - Dispatches 16

U.S.

EMILY's List May Not Rise Like Venus by Laura Berger 88

Selling Babies Is a Big Business for Rugas Abortion Clinics by Lisa Petriello 92

Misogyny Reaches New Peaks 91 - The Penile Code by Kate Rounds 94

Action Alert Colorado Sequels? 93

BOOKS

Writing Our Own Lives by Phyllis Root 76

New Moon: A Magazine for the Girls' Movement by Barbara Finder 79

Bold Type: A Giant Leap from "Mankind" by Laura Follette 80

Bookshelf 79 - International Bookshelf 81

FICTION AND POETRY

Fiction: The Rideaway by Martha Rothblad 59

Poetry: Teachers' Advisory by Sharon Van Shy 61

Invitation by Diane Swart 87

A Woman's Secret by Ruth Forman (inside back cover)

ARTS

The Secret Garden of Agnieszka Holland by Barbara Kruger 92

Lovers' Eyes in the Kitchen by Nancy South 94

Ms. Smith Goes to L.A. 94

Barbara Branden: A Womanist in Speculations by Denise E. Simon 85

Interview by Lynne E. Stephen 86

HEALTH

Information Content: Principle vs. Practice by the Boston Women's Health Book Collective 66

Native American Women Uncover Nonplant Answers by the Native American Women's Health Education Resource Center 69

Health Notes 66

DEPARTMENTS

Editorial: The Welcome Table by Marzia Ann Gilmore 1

Letters 4

Sports: Final Play by Kathleen Sharp 22

Potions: When the Music Doesn't Play by Pearl Cheeth 27

Egoism: Living Where You Live by Hannah Holmes 30

In the Space of Conversations by Nancy Mears 64

Naming Names by Julia Feifer 95

Guest Room: Don't Blame Mother by Paula Caplan 96

No Comment (back cover)

SNAPSHOTS

Cynthia Faube 21 - Lisa Tiger 33 - Zap Mama 75
VO L U M E 24/N U M E R E 6
O C T O B E R 1 9 9 3

F E A T U R E S
THE QUEEN RULES
Straight outta Jersey, Queen Latifah reigns over an empire. By Deborah Gregory

WOMEN WHO MAKE A DIFFERENCE: MAGGIE WILLIAMS
Hillary Rodham Clinton’s Chief of Staff is one powerful sister.
By Vanessa J. Gallman

VOICES FROM THE COLLEGE FRONT
Students nationwide speak their mind — on everything. By Natasha Tarpley

MY OTHER ME
Are the differences between men and women only in our minds?
By Renita Weems

STALKED
Women are being stalked by men in increasing numbers.
By Claire Scraft. Plus, one woman’s nightmare.

B E A U T Y FOUNDATION PROBLEMS SOLVED!

ANSWERS
Your questions about dry skin, relaxer burns and more.

PRODUCTS: REVITALIZE!
Relax and refresh with the latest products for hair, bath and body.

F A S H I O N
STYLE: KICKING IT!
Hosiery takes the spotlight as an essential accessory. By Myra Dandridge

LUSH LIFE
Dressing romantically wearing clothes from Essence/Butterick patterns.

C O N T E M P O R A R Y L I V I N G
SPECIAL TRAVEL SECTION
CANADA’S BLACK PRESENCE
Take a trip along the Underground Railroad, explore Eastern Canada’s Caribbean culture, meet our Africanadian sisters, and taste some of North America’s best cuisine.
By Andrea Davis Pinckney and Valerie Vaz

RECIPES: HOOKED ON SALMON
Here’s how to make this fish even more delicious. By Jonell Nash

VINTAGE: VODKA EYE-OPENERS

PARENTING: MAKING THE GRADE
These tips will help you help your child in school. By Joy Duckett-Cain

D E P A R T M E N T S
LETTERS

HEALTH
Prevention Set Ware: Fighting Keloids
Between Us

ESSENTIALS Collecting Black, Fighting Back, Nutrition Films and more . . .

INTERIORS The Death of My Cousin

BROTHERS Black And PC On Campus

6 | 28 | 34 | 40 | 42 | 46 | 48 | 55 | 136 | 138 | 140 | 144

W I N D O W S Shedding Silence
P E O P L E Rosie Perez, Michelle Randall-Williams, Angie and Debbie Winans, Rita Dove; new books
I N T H E S P I R I T Recovery
S H O P
G R A F F I T I
H O R O S C O P E Libra
B A C K T A L K Erasing the Color Line

Ravel in the opulence of velvet and ruffles with Essence/Butterick patterns.

78
Theorizing Lesbian Experience

Special Issue Editors

Toni A. H. McNaron, Gloria Anzaldúa, Lourdes Arquigüelles, and Elizabeth Lapovsky Kennedy

Editorial

757 (Be)Coming Out: Lesbian Identity and Politics

Shane Phelan

765 The Trials of Alice Mitchell: Sensationalism, Sexology, and the Lesbian Subject in Turn-of-the-Century America

Lisa Duggan

Margot Gayle Backus

791 Judy Grahn and the Lesbian Invocational Elegy: Testimonial and Prophetic Responses to Social Death in "A Woman Is Talking to Death"

Carolyn Woodward

815 "My Heart So Wraap": Lesbian Disruptions in Eighteenth-Century British Fiction

Lisa M. Walker

838 How to Recognize a Lesbian: The Cultural Politics of Looking Like What You Are

Trisha Franzen

891 Differences and Identities: Feminism and the Albuquerque Lesbian Community

Revisions/Reports

Margaret Randall

907 To Change Our Own Reality and the World: A Conversation with Lesbians in Nicaragua

Archives

Joan Nestle

925 Excerpts from the Oral History of Mabel Hampton

Karín Aguilar-San Juan

936 Landmarks in Literature by Asian American Lesbians

Beth Brant

944 Giveaway: Native Lesbian Writers

Jewelle Gomez

948 Speculative Fiction and Black Lesbians

Review Essays

Alicia Gaspar de Alba

956 Tortillerismo: Work by Chicana Lesbians

Rosemary Hennessy

964 Queer Theory: A Review of the differences

Ellen Lewin

974 Special Issue and Wittig's The Straight Mind

Greta Gaard

980 Lesbian and Gay Kinship: Kath Weston's Families We Choose and Contemporary Anthropology

Sherri Paris

984 A Lure of Knowledge: Lesbian Sexuality and Theory by Judith Roof; insideout: Lesbian Theories, Gay Theories edited by Diana Fuss

989 United States and International Notes

994 About the Contributors

Index to Volume 18

1000 Author/Title Index, General

1009 Author/Title Index, Books Reviewed

1021 Notice to Contributors
Contents

SPIRITUALITY AND RELIGIONS

4  Editorials

Teaching about Women and Religion

9  We Are Also Your Sisters: The Development of Women's Studies in Religion, Judith Plaskow
22  The “Problematics” of Writing about Sacred Ritual and the Spiritual Journey, Gloria F. Orenstein
38  Response to Gloria Orenstein, Christine Downing 42  Letter to Christine Downing, Gloria F. Orenstein
48  Spirituality: Recycling Soul by Story (Or Is It Story by Soul?), Minka Shura Sprague

Scholarly Witness

Past

55  The Once and Future Heroine: Paleolithic Goddesses and Popular Imagination, Mary Zeiss Stange
67  A Life Without and Within: Juana, Ramírez/Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz (1648/51-1695), Electa Arenal and Amanda Powell
81  Visions, Inner Voices, Apparitions, and Defiance in Nineteenth-Century Black Women's Narratives, Delores S. Williams
90  Feminist Spirituality and Social Reform: Examples from the Early Twentieth Century, Catherine A. Faver

Present

106  Why Women Need a Feminist Spirituality, Judith G. Martin
121  Casting a New Circle, Mykel Johnson

Spiritual Witness

In Autobiography

137  Death Comes a Spirit: The Spiritual Legacy of My Mothers, Betty L. Hart
143  Feminist Theology as Survival Literature, Louise B. Silverstein
153  A Dual Thrust, Mary M. Simpson

In the Arts

159  Shedding the Snakeskin: Movement, Art, and Spirituality, June Keener-Wink
163  Story, Myra Goldberg
171  As for Now Passing, Katy Ryan
173  Vashti Leaves the Royal Palace, Rita Signorelli-Pappas
174  A Goddess for Me, Lois Bunse
175  Eve's Renting the Big House to a Younger Woman This Summer, Lois Bunse

Resources

Bibliography

177  Feminist Theology and Spirituality: An Annotated Bibliography, Sally Noland MacNichol and Mary Elizabeth Wals

Reviews

197  The Gnostic Gospels and Adam, Eve, and the Serpent by Elaine Pagels, Joan E. Hartman
200  Weaving the Visions: New Patterns in Feminist Spirituality, edited by Judith Plaskow and Carol P. Christ, Leonore Hoffmann
202  Mama Lola: A Vodou Priestess in Brooklyn by Karen McCarthy Brown, Tom F. Driver
204  The Re flowering of the Goddess by Gloria Orenstein, Jo Gillikin
206  Four Centuries of Jewish Women's Spirituality: A Sourcebook, edited by Ellen M. Umansky and Dianne Ashton, Susannah Heschel
CONTENTS

WOMEN'S STUDIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF UTRECHT

Rosi Braidotti
Maria Homan
Bertkeke Waaldijk
Yvonne Ast
Rosemarie Buikema
Marjolein Verboom
Anneke Smelik
Lieve Vandermeulen
Maike Mehler
Ineke van Wangendijk
Joke J. Hermsef
Renee Heller
Teresa de Lauretis
Christien Franken
Amalia Djeffman
Helma Lutz
Jann Ruyters

311 An editorial introduction
325 “From student activity to university policy advisor”
327 Reading Anne Frank as a woman
337 “Now I'm learning to look to the future”
339 Dialogue with a many-voiced past: Milena Jesenská and her biographers
347 “Farewell parties all the time, but don’t think you can get away from it!”
349 And the mirror cracked: metaphors of violence in the films of Marleen Gorris
365 “You can call me a late bloomer”
367 Countering textual violence: on the critique of representation and the importance of teaching its methods
379 “Once you have seen how scientific knowledge is made, you give up the idea that what you are ‘discovering’ may actually be ‘nature’”
381 Now foolish then wise: Belle van Zuylen’s game with sexual identity
391 “I am still combining physics with Women's Studies”
393 Feminist genealogies: a personal itinerary
405 Between the acts: moments of being a Dutch female feminist graduate student in Women's Studies
415 “Recovering black women’s history”
419 Feminist theory in practice: an interview with bell hooks—encounter with an impressive female academic fighter against multiple forms of oppression
427 Something to suit all ‘viewpoints’: feminist magazines in the Netherlands

(Continued on inside back cover)

ISSN 0277-5595
WSINDA 16(4) 311-460 (1993)
Women in World Religions: Collected Works

Women in world religions is a huge topic. How does one become sensitive to the differences in women's experiences across traditions and cultures without dedicating a lifetime to research and study? There are several volumes available which present collections of research on women and religion with both a scholarly and a sensitive perspective.

This book is the result of a program of seminars organized by the Oxford University Women's Studies Committee. It turns its attention to the everyday religious experiences of ordinary women, how do women perceive themselves and their roles within varying religious traditions.

This book grew out of Arvind Sharma's decision to give a course on women and world religions when he was resident at Harvard's Center for the Study of World Religions. He admits that a man putting together a book written by women scholars is potentially male chauvinistic but found that academia is more concerned with what is "engendered" that the gender. This collection balances fact and perception with emphasis on sacred textual material.

The chapters on individual religions are by women scholars who are historians of religion. They are able to appreciate a religious tradition from within its own framework and from their own feminine perspective. The traditions presented include Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism, Judaism, Christianity, Islam and tribal religions of aboriginal Australia.
The Annual Review of Women in World Religions (State University of New York Press)

This annual periodical grew out of the positive reception to Sharma's Women in World Religions. It describes itself as "polymethodic, interdisciplinary and multinational" in its approach to the study of women in world religions attempting to bridge humanistic and social scientific academic circles. Each annual has a different theme.

The goddess is the theme of the 1991 volume presenting major articles on the true story of Euripides' Helen, the three faces of Shulamite, Cinderella and the Black Virgin, the "permeable self": goddess consciousness and social realities, and a discussion of the intersection of goddess, feminist, and scholar.

The 1992 volume contains research articles on the heroic women including heroic modes of women in Indian myth, ritual and history, the role of Sister Nivedita in Indian Neo-Hinduism, the female hero in the Islamic tradition and Florence Nightingale as altruist.

--Linda R. McKinney
The Feminine Face of God: The Unfolding of the Sacred in Women
by Sherry Ruth Anderson & Patricia Hopkins

Women Mystics in Medieval Europe
by Emilie Zum Brunn & Georgette Epiney-Burgard

Mama Lola: A Vodou Priestess in Brooklyn
By Karen McCarthy Brown

Womanspirit Rising: A Feminist Reader in Religion
Edited by Carol P. Christ and Judith Plaskow

Mother Ann Lee: Morning Star of the Shakers
by Nardi Reeder Campion

Cult of the Virgin Mary
by Michael P. Carroll

Diving Deep & Surfacing: Women Writers on Spiritual Quest
by Carol P. Christ

But She Said: Feminist Practices of Biblical Interpretation
by Elisabeth Schussler Fiorenza

The Female Ancestors of Christ
by Ann Belford Ulanov

Women and the Genesis of Christianity
by Ben Witherington III

Women & Gender in Islam
by Leila Ahmed

The Gospel According to Woman: Christianity's Creation of the Sex War in the West
by Karen Armstrong

--Michael A. Smith
Believe there is a great power
silently working all things
for good,
behave yourself
and never mind the rest.

-- Beatrix Potter