Inauguration Notes

Under the able direction of Thomas S. Wadlow, Inauguration Marshal, the exercises on February 22nd will long be remembered as a most happy occasion in Trinity's history. No detail was overlooked — and even the raging wind of the day before cooperated by dying to a zephyr. Registration of the delegates from colleges took place in the reading room of the library with Professor Harold Lockwood in charge. A small luncheon was served in Cook Dining Hall for the delegates, trustees, and guests of the College. Mr. Edward Gammons of Groton School gave a carillon recital before the exercises.

A canopy from Alumni Hall to the north Chapel door had been erected for the academic procession which was led by Dean Frederick Copeland. The extra stands had been installed in the Chapel under the rose window, and when the exercises started there were very few vacant seats. From 3 P.M. to 4 P.M. radio station WDRC of Hartford broadcast the proceedings, and the reports we received from listeners have been most favorable. Mr. Gammons continued the carillon recital after the ceremony, and President and Mrs. Funston received at tea in Cook lounge assisted by Dean and Mrs. Arthur H. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Newton C. Brainard, and Professor Henry A. Perkins.

Sincere thanks should be given Mr. Wadlow and his committee, Lew Wallace and his staff, and to all students who helped make the program run so smoothly.

Editor's Note

I wish to thank the many alumni who either have spoken to me or who have written in about the Alumni News. The suggestions and criticisms have been most helpful.

I hope you will continue to use the enclosed card for alumni notes or to write letters of your doings or of your Trinity friends that will be of interest. It is my intention to write up as many as possible of these notes, and also to give you as much news as we have space for about Trinity activities.

For lack of room I could only summarize the inauguration. The College April bulletin, however, will be a word by word account of the exercises, and if you would like a copy please write me.

President Funston and Bishop Gesner entering the Chapel for Inauguration
Inauguration of George Keith Funston

At exercises conducted with full academic pomp George Keith Funston, class of 1932, became Trinity's thirteenth president on Washington's birthday. The Chapel was filled to capacity with guests and alumni when Dean Frederick C. Copeland, Faculty Marshal, led the procession of Trinity faculty; sixty-seven delegates from educational institutions (twelve of whom were college presidents); Governor Raymond E. Baldwin; Mayor Cornelius A. Moylan of Hartford; James Brewster, State Librarian; John K. Clark, Vice-President and Chairman of Phi Beta Kappa Foundation; and trustees of Trinity to the chancel.

The Invocation was delivered by the Rt. Rev. Conrad Herbert Gesner, '23, Bishop Coadjutor of South Dakota. After the singing of the hymn "Holy, Holy, Holy," A. Northey Jones, '17, made the speech of presentation of the President, and Mr. Newton C. Brainard, Chairman of the Inauguration Committee, invested Mr. Funston by handing to him the key to the College library as a symbol of his authority over the College. President Funston then delivered his speech of acceptance.

Dean Wallace B. Donham, George F. Baker Professor of Business Administration at Harvard University, delivered greetings from the Educational Institutions of New England; Professor Vernon K. Kriebel from the Faculty; Eliot L. Ward, '13, from the Alumni; and Albert E. Holland, '46, from the Undergraduates.

The Centennial Hymn by Professor Odell Shepard was sung before the conferring of the Honorary degrees. Professor James A. Notopoulos read the citations in Latin, and President Funston conferred a Doctor of Laws degree upon Wallace B. Donham, a Doctor of Humane Letters degree upon Victor L. Butterfield, and a Doctor of Divinity degree upon the Rt. Rev. Conrad H. Gesner.

Dr. Donham was graduated from Harvard in 1898, and from the Harvard Law School in 1901. He entered the legal department of the Old Colony Trust Co. in Boston, and became Vice-President in 1906. In 1919 he was appointed Dean of the Harvard Business School which position he held until 1942. He then became George F. Baker Professor of Business Administration, and is still actively teaching at the school. His citation refers to him "like Odysseus of old, his toils o'er, has followed knowledge like a sinking star."

Dr. Butterfield was graduated from Cornell in 1927, and received his Ph.D. from Harvard in 1936. He went to Wesleyan in 1935 as director of admissions until 1941. He successively became dean of freshmen, associate dean, and in 1942 acting president. In 1943 he was formally installed as President. His citation mentioned the friendship between the two colleges and that Dr. Butterfield is "a staunch defender of the liberal arts" and "your companion on a journey toward the same goal."

Bishop Gesner graduated from Trinity in 1923 and from the General Theological Seminary in 1927. He served a mission church in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, for two years, and Trinity Church in Pierre, South Dakota, until 1933. He was appointed rector of the Church of St. John in St. Paul Minnesota, a position he held until 1945 when he was consecrated Bishop Coadjutor of South Dakota. His citation described how he had influenced President Funston to come to Trinity College.

Trinity is proud to welcome these distinguished men to her roll of honorary alumni, and hopes that their association with the College will ever remain a happy one.
After singing of "'Neath the Elms" Dr. Victor L. Butterfield, President of Wesleyan University, gave the address. The exercises concluded with the Benediction by Bishop Gesner.

Summary of President's Inaugural Speech

G. Keith Funston, in accepting the presidency of Trinity College, said in part "that liberal arts education will continue as its aim the development of self-reliant, responsible and enlightened citizens of the United States and of the world. Trinity will remain a small liberal arts college for men. Everything possible will be done to aid returning veterans, but limitations of plant, faculty and endowment will restrict the size of the College to about 575 students, which is approximately 10% larger than normal."

"The keystone policy of the College is to maintain a faculty of able teachers and scholars. Changes in curriculum will not be spectacular because Trinity has always prescribed a majority of a student's courses — a policy now being reintroduced in many colleges. High standards will continue to be maintained, and an attempt made to give a man background and breadth, and to teach him to think, so that after graduation he can bring to a profession or to a specific job a viewpoint and an approach which will increase his effectiveness both as a wage earner and as a citizen. A student will not be prepared for narrow and highly specialized vocations, but his choice of a career will be kept in mind in mapping out his course of study. Vocational guidance will be provided for undergraduates, and help will be extended to seniors and alumni in finding a job. The major activity of most men after leaving college is the earning of a living — and a liberal arts college must recognize this."

"Trinity must remain 'a personal college' by giving increased individual attention to the students and enlarging the opportunity for contact with the faculty and administration. All courses should be taught in such a manner as to keep the student in touch with what is going on in the world. The morning's newspaper should be brought each day into the classroom discussion of every course."

Pointing out that the College is non-sectarian and will remain so, he indicated that a full time chaplain will be appointed to administer unto all students regardless of their faith, and to give every man an opportunity to gain an understanding of and obtain an appreciation for the Christian values.

President Funston believes that the city of Hartford's cultural facilities should be used more by the students, and in turn promised that Trinity will do all that is possible to serve the community by continuing to provide for a sizeable number of local boys and by continuing the Extension and Summer School. As before the war, fraternities and athletics will be supported by the administration as integral parts of college life.

In conclusion, President Funston stated "the over-all aim and goal is to maintain Trinity's position as one of the Nation's finest small colleges."

Phi Beta Kappa
100th Anniversary

On February 21st the Beta Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa held its 100th anniversary celebration with a banquet in Cook Dining Hall for all its members. Professor Morse S. Allen, President of the Chapter, presided. Following the dinner there was an open meeting in the Chemistry Auditorium for all Connecticut Phi Beta Kappas at which Judge Philip J. McCook, '95, and John K. Clark, Vice-President of the United Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, were the speakers. Judge McCook warned against the lowering of educational standards, and Mr. Clark urged intelligent and forceful leadership to check "the economic crime of non-production" and provide "guidance for the befuddled workers in our unions."

Campus Notes

On February 13th at nine in the morning, Professor Brinton Thompson noticed smoke pouring very heavily from the top of the southeast corner in Northam Towers. The flames could be seen on the ceiling of the fourth floor room, and only prompt action by the Hartford Fire Department kept them under control and in the tower. The cause of the fire is unknown.

As Prexy Funston was hurrying from his office to the fire, a fire extinguisher salesman walked in to explain his wares. He quickly commented "I see you're too busy now!" He then left his card and departed. (Editor's note: — We think this was a golden opportunity for a realistic demonstration!)
Recipients of Honorary Degrees

Shrivenham University
Shrivenham American University, the Army's GI university in England, is undoubtedly the shortest-lived full university in the history of the world, past or future. It opened the first of August and closed December 5, 1945, had two terms, 8000 students, and a faculty of 250, somewhat over half of them recruited from stateside colleges and universities. And I have no doubt there was never before so much contact between a university and the cultural opportunities around it. I personally saw Stonehenge, Bath, Stratford, Coventry, the Penn country, the Scott country, Washington's ancestors' home, the universities at Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburg, and London; and made trips of professional interest to the Wiltshire County Mental Hospital, the Institute of Experimental Psychology at Oxford, and the Royal Naval Training Station at Plymouth. The Army provided transportation on all these trips for faculty and students alike, except that the trip to Scotland was between terms and so had no student members. The question arises as to whether the students or the faculty got more education.

The faculty were educated in another way also. In my own experience, and in spite of the week-end trips, I never before had students do so much work per class period. (I can't say never since, for my present students are the same type that we had at SAU.) Over half the students had previously had a year of college work. Their average intelligence was much above that of the average college student here at home. Most of them were expecting to return to college when they returned home.

Handicaps in lack of books, equipment and supplies were never entirely overcome, but the Supply Division did a really magnificent job in providing almost everything needed from chalk to microscopes. The University was divided into eight schools, Agriculture, Commerce, Education, Engineering, Fine Arts, Journalism, Liberal Arts, and Science. Liberal Arts enrolled the greatest number of students and we psychologists were surprised and pleased to find that after English we had the largest number of students in the Liberal Arts Section, 450 in Introductory Psychology the second term — a number which would have been larger if we had had more teachers to offer more sections.

Did the university justify the money and energy spent on it? Practically the entire university answered yes to this question; yes in terms of knowledge gained, in terms of indoctrination for return to civilian life, and in terms of general morale. There are three other types of gains, however, which I should like to mention. First: 138 college presidents, deans and professors from over 100 institutions had actual classroom experience with GIs in their native habitat, so to speak, experience which cannot help but increase our understanding of the problems of these men when they return to college. Second: we advertised the American system of higher education throughout Great Britain, advertising which was needed. Third: there are signs that the contacts established will result in a great increase in the exchange of students and professors across the Atlantic in both directions, than which I can imagine no better way to the friendship and understanding which is more important to peace than any charters or constitutions. Item: the Shriverham Society, designed to maintain and extend the faculty's contacts with their colleagues in Britain. Item: the suggestion by Professor Charles R. Wilson of Colgate (who was at Biarritz, Shriverham's counterpart in France) that "the Federal government establish in foreign countries American Universities for American students... endowments created from the sale of surplus American war property abroad." (New York Herald-Tribune, March 1, 1946.) As the end of SAU approached Sir Norman Mackenzie in The New Statesman and Nation reported on a visit to SAU and said that he was convinced of the need for a greater interchange of students between British and American universities and suggested that the British government take over a half share and support SAU for two more terms as an Anglo-American university. Another suggestion was that SAU continue with the then-present faculty but with a student body made up in equal parts of American soldiers, British university students, the large number of displaced Poles who were wandering around Britain at the time, and German PWs. What an opportunity to spread American ideas in Europe! Or am I talking about Utopia?

Enrollment

Like all colleges Trinity has been flooded with applications for admission next fall. It is the College's intention not to exceed 575 students which will be about 10% larger than before the war. Preference will be given to Trinity veterans, except that about 150 places for preparatory and high school seniors must be saved.

Summer School will start on June 24th for ten weeks, and thus enable many veterans to accelerate their work. No freshmen will be permitted to attend this session.

It is planned to convert the Extension School into a second or evening shift to take care of up to 200 additional students. Most of them will probably be non-resident Trinity veterans who are returning to obtain credit for a degree.

By extending our facilities next fall we believe that we will take care of all returning Trinity veterans and also build for the future. Please, therefore, continue to talk up Trinity to sub-freshmen, because when the rush of service men is over in a year or two we want a strong college.

The College land south of Boardman Hall will again be used for Victory Gardens by the local residents. This plan is under the sponsorship of the Hartford Times.
Alumni News

President Funston and Tom Wadlow are making plans to visit nearly all our Alumni Associations this spring. SPRINGFIELD met March 20 at the Hotel Sheraton; NAUGATUCK on March 22 at the Waterbury Country Club. BOSTON will meet at the Harvard Club on Monday, April 25 and PHILADELPHIA on Friday, April 29, at the Bellvue Stratford.

The Trinity HARTFORD Alumni Association is taking a new lease on life under the able leadership of Ham Barber, '19. President Barber, Vice-Presidents Ed Donnelly, '08, and Chuck Kingston, '34, and Secretary Jim Cosgrove, '35, are running a membership campaign. It costs $5.00 to join. And what you get is really something: a free ball game, use of pool, squash courts and tennis courts; cut rates on a season ticket for home games; reduced price on tickets for the three annual dinners and the satisfaction of being real support to the Hartford Association.

Meanwhile Nels Shepard, '21, is doing a real job as Chairman of the Hartford Scholarship Committee. He and his men are digging up some unusual boys for the College. They are superior students, and it is rumored that some of them will remind you of Doctors Mickey Kobrosky, Bob O'Malley and Jim Hanaghan.

Reunions

Reach for a red pencil and mark the week-end of June 15th. This will be a big time at Trinity — the first post-war reunion.

As usual, the “five-year plan” will be emphasized. That is to say, classes out five, ten, fifteen, etc., years will hold regular reunions.

In addition a good many other classes are expected to make up for reunions they have missed in recent years. Tom Wadlow suggests that class officers go to work early on reunion plans because post-war conditions at hotels and clubs make it more difficult to arrange dinners.

Here is an outline of Commencement week-end:

Friday, June 14  Fraternity Reunions
Saturday, June 15  Class Day Exercises
                Alumni Luncheon and Entertainment
                President's Reception
                Reunion Dinners
Sunday          Baccalaureate Service
Monday          Commencement Exercises

New Engineering Laboratory

Through the generosity of Mr. Karl W. Hallden, '09, Trinity will soon have a new engineering laboratory. It will be a one-story brick building, 40 by 85 feet, and will be equipped for experiments in heat-power, fluid mechanics, and testing of materials. The present electrical engineering laboratory will remain in the physics building. It is hoped that the new unit will be completed in time for the opening of College next fall. The probable location will be behind Jarvis Laboratory.

While Trinity does not give an engineering degree, a student may select a pre-engineering group so that he can continue his studies at a graduate school, or he may take an engineering major. The new building will equip the engineering department with laboratory facilities comparable to those presently enjoyed by the physics, chemistry and biology departments.

Mr. Hallden, president of the Hallden Machine Company of Thomaston, Conn., is keenly interested in the development of practical engineering studies which purpose will be served by the laboratory about to be erected.

We at Trinity are very grateful to Mr. Hallden, and we believe all our alumni will be highly pleased with this fine addition to our campus.

(Karl W. Hallden, '09)

Athletics

The 1945-46 basketball season was not successful as to victories — two wins and ten losses — but Ray Oosting's team showed definite improvement in its last games by defeating Union 40-37, losing to Wesleyan, the little three champion, 31 to 35, and to M.I.T. by two points in a double overtime. Amherst was beaten 33-31, and a strong Coast Guard team was given a stiff battle. The team played well defensively, while on several occasions George Linardos and "Jigger" Sitarz showed brilliant flashes of offensive ball handling.

The swimming team had a most successful season with wins against Bowdoin, Coast Guard, twice; Wesleyan; Amherst; and Brown while losing to Williams and Harvard. Both the Coast Guard meets were thrillers — being decided by the final relay. The Tyler brothers — Dave, Bob and Jack — have had a great year with Dave scoring 87 points, Bob 49, and Jack 51. This is a total of 187 points out of 314 rolled up by the team. Dave holds the college record of 24.1 in the 50 yard dash, and came within one-tenth of a second of erasing the New England record in the 150 yard backstroke, with a 1:41.1 effort against Harvard. Jack holds the college records in the 220 and 440.

Joe Clarke, Trinity's able swimming coach, sent a team to the New Englands at MIT on March 16th which won second, and the Tylers will probably go to the Nationals at Yale on March 28th.

The Newton C. Brainard squash tournament has been resumed after a lapse of three years. Sixteen players have entered, and Frank Borden beat Bob Toland for the cup. A few informal matches with Wesleyan and Hartford Golf Club were arranged.

Regular schedules will be played this spring in baseball, track and tennis. There will be intramural competition in softball and track among the fraternities and the neutral teams.

The Winter Sports dinner was held in Cook Dining Hall on March 18th with Edward T. Kennedy, swimming coach of Columbia and four time Olympic coach, the principal speaker.

Faculty News

JOSEPH CLARKE was in charge of the Trinity College Preparatory School swimming meet held at the Trowbridge pool on March 9th with Hotchkiss easily winning over Mt. Hermon, Canterbury, and Hopkins Grammar. Exeter and Moses Brown School had to withdraw at the last moment. President Funston and Dean Copeland spoke at a dinner given for the teams in Cook dining hall after the meet. Joe was general chairman of a Red Cross water carnival at the Trinity pool on March 13th.

GEORGE COOPER, who will return in September as an instructor in History, has written a most interesting article in the December 25th Foreign Commerce Weekly entitled the "Preliminary Stages of Transition in Britain." Mr. Cooper is vice consul in the United States Embassy in London.

PROFESSORS COSTELLO and MEANS attended the American Philosophy Society at Sarah Lawrence College on February 21st and 22nd.

PROFESSOR DADOURIAN has written an article for the Hartford Courant Magazine opposing the May Bill which seeks peacetime compulsory military training. He has also addressed the Unity Club of the Unitarian Church in Hartford on the same subject. He has published an article in the February American Journal of Physics entitled "The Moon Illusion." He participated in a round table discussion — Is Russia a menace to World Peace? — over Station WOR on a nationwide hookup on March 8th.

PROFESSOR NAYLOR'S French 3 students are dividing up into four teams for the production of a play "Huit Chevaux, Quatre cylindres, et pas de truites." Mine. la Comtesse de Coral of Hartford will be one of the judges.

PROFESSOR HENRY A. PERKINS recently addressed the Mattatuck Historical Society Stamp Club on the artistic, technical, historical and financial aspects of the pure joy of collecting those useless little scraps of paper called postage stamps.

PROFESSOR SHEPARD presided for a youth group meeting on February 14 at the Emanuel Synagogue, Hartford. All young people 15 to 18 years old from the Central Baptist Church, the Unitarian Meeting House and the Synagogue were invited.

PROFESSOR TROXELL represented Connecticut at the American Association of State Geologists at the University of Indiana on February 22nd.

PROFESSOR WATTERS will give three organ recitals in the College Chapel on April 7, 14, and 21. They will be from 9.30 A.M. to 9.45 A.M. and will be broadcast over Station WTIC, 1080 kilocycles. He made a recital tour to Montreal and Quebec in January.

Track Schedule

Saturday, May 4, Massachusetts State, home
Saturday, May 11, Eastern Intercollegiates, away
Saturday, May 18, Middlebury at Middlebury, Vt.
Saturday, May 25, Union, home
Tuesday, May 28, Wesleyan at Middletown

Facility Changes

PROFESSOR F. WOODBRIDGE CONSTANT of Duke University has been appointed to succeed PROFESSOR HENRY A. PERKINS as head of the Physics Department. Dr. Constant prepared at Lawrenceville School for Princeton from which he graduated B.S. in 1925. He studied at Yale as a Sloan and Loomis Fellow, and received his Ph.D. in 1928. He pursued his research at California Institute of Technology on a National Research Council Fellowship before going to Duke University in 1930.

ALLEN R. HYDE, son of CLEMENT C. HYDE, HON. 1912, former principal of Hartford Public High School, has been named instructor of Mathematics. Mr. Hyde graduated from Harvard in 1934, and received his M.A. in the classics in 1938. During the war he was a First Lieutenant with the Army Engineers at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

LOUIS A. LaBRECQUE has been appointed an instructor in French. He graduated from Syracuse in 1941 and was with the 29th Division during the war.

DR. FRANCIS L. LUNDBORG has resumed his duties at College as assistant Medical Director.

PROFESSOR HENRY A. PERKINS is retiring this June from the Physics department after 43 years of teaching. (Editor's note) — The next Alumni News will review Dr. Perkins' career.

WILBERT S. RAY has been appointed assistant professor of Psychology. Dr. Ray graduated from Washington and Jefferson College in 1923 and received his Ph.D. from Wisconsin in 1930. He taught at Hillsdale College in Michigan before going to Adelphi College, Garden City, New York, as head of the Psychology Department. Obtaining a leave of absence he taught at Shriverham American University in England which was a unit of the Army Education program.

S/S TRINITY VICTORY
15 February 1946
(Enroute Japan)

Office of The President
Trinity College,
Hartford, Connecticut

Dear Sir:

On behalf of myself and the crew members, I wish to take this opportunity to present our thanks to TRINITY COLLEGE, for the wonderful library donated to this ship. Such a fine, and complete selection of good reading, is being thoroughly enjoyed by all hands on board. We, of the Merchant Service, sincerely appreciate such literary gems as can be found in this truly grand group of volumes, covering such a wide variety of subjects.

Perhaps the College would be interested in a brief resume of this vessel's history since being commissioned. It has, by no means, been without incident worthy of mention. Voyage No. 1, to Okinawa, was literally a baptism by fire! The ship was subjected to, at least, nine separate air attacks, emerging from all, entirely unscathed! Quite remarkable, considering that adjacent ships were suffering hits. Typhoons were also prevalent at this time. Finding ourselves in imminent peril of being cast upon the beach, we hurriedly steamed to sea. This maneuver gained the necessary sea room in which to ride out the fury of one of the most severe typhoons, ever recorded in that area. Needless to say, ship and crew alike, performed in a noble manner.

Voyage No. 2, to Korea, was by comparison, routine and uneventful, following such a hair raising series of events as were experienced on the maiden cruise. At present, the ship is enroute to Yokohama, bearing a cargo of vitally needed Army supplies. The length, duration, and itinerary of the present voyage, remains problematical for the present, we most fervently assure you, and the student body as well, that: our appreciation, and gratitude, is none the less heartfelt, and sincere. We feel utterly confident that this ship, following in the footsteps of the fine college whose name it bears, shall enjoy a long and useful career.

Our thanks again, conveyed from a happy ship, and may the future prove itself to be both bright, and constructive for the "Two Trinities."

Respectfully, and Sincerely Yours

HOWARD L. SILVA
Master, S/S Trinity Victory
