George Capen Says:

During the past few days, I have analyzed this year's Alumni Fund, now at $33,500. Frankly, while I am not disheartened, the results so far are not encouraging.

When the National Alumni Association accepted on behalf of all the alumni a goal of $50,000, it was done because we knew that all alumni realize the importance to Trinity of an outstanding faculty. We knew, too, that a successful campaign would depend on these two factors: (1) Increased contributions from those alumni who have given in the past, and (2) contributions from the large number of alumni who had not contributed previously. The increases are just not coming through, and the rate of new contributors is very disappointing.

However, a cheering trend is the fine showing of our younger alumni, those of the Classes of '49, '50, and '51.

I know that Trinity alumni are interested in the faculty both because of the importance of good teaching at the college and also in recognition of their own personal appreciation of the men still at Trinity who taught them. But we are going to have to do a lot better in this Alumni Fund if the increases in faculty salaries given last September are to be covered.

So far, 894 alumni and 118 parents have contributed $33,500.40. You might be interested to know that the parents have contributed 37% of the total amount raised to date. We still have about three months to go. Therefore, I ask you, if you have already given, to consider seriously the amount of this gift, and, if you have not yet given, to do so. The roster of alumni contributors follows.

EDITED BY JOHN A. MASON, '34

VOLUME XLIX NEW SERIES NUMBER 1 (March, 1952)
Professor Thomas Hume Bissonnette, 1885-1951

With the death on November 30, 1951, of Thomas Hume Bissonnette, J. Pierpont Morgan Professor of Biology, Trinity lost another of its great teachers, a scientist of international fame, and one of the personalities which molded the Trinity of the past twenty-five years. Never having taught one of the numerically large courses and harassed in recent years by ill-health, he is perhaps not known as vividly by the present college community as that of earlier years. But a large group of physicians remember him as one who not only taught them but who helped them to maturity of intellect and of personality. The older faculty members remember him as one to whom they turned with trust and confidence when the faculty needed leadership and some one with courage.

Radiating an inward integrity and a fierce passion for truth, justice and excellence of performance, he turned his mark into his students. While constantly engaged in research, he was primarily a teacher; his duties to his students and to the College took precedence over his personal studies. Every student was a challenge of whom to make something; every class was awaited with impatient enthusiasm; every closing bell a personal insult.

As a teacher he was able to combine old-fashioned drill with the development of individual student initiative and responsibility. In his classes, students learned public speaking, expository writing and the use of reason as a solution to problems instead of emotion, unquestioned authority, and prejudice. They also gained a large collection of stories, a view of behind the scenes scientific biography, and the impact of a rich and complex personality. A free thinker in the best sense of the word, his ideas expressed in class furnished meat and impetus to many a college "bull-session."

He was born in 1885 in Dundas, Ontario, into the family of a Canadian physician. He began the medical curriculum at Queens University, but the death of his father made continuation of this study financially impossible. For a number of years he taught a variety of grades and subjects in different public schools in Canada. He enlisted in the Canadian Army in World War I, and was gassed and blinded temporarily at the front in France.

Although he became an American citizen in 1931, his Scottish ancestry, his British background, and his war service in both the Canadian and British Armies was a constant satisfaction and source of pride. Worry over the fate of Britain in the early years of World War II helped undermine his health. He was able also to contribute to World War II in uniform, serving for a year at the U. S. Army University at Biarritz, France and in Germany.

After World War I, he entered the University of Chicago from which he received his Ph.D. in 1923 and where he met and married his wife, Julia Powers. After two years as Professor of Biology at Coe College, he came to Trinity in 1925.

Already forty years of age, and with no published research except that occurring from his graduate studies, he plunged into a scientific career with the vigor and enthusiasm of a youngster. At his death he had almost ninety scientific papers to his credit, and was recognized as a world authority on the reproductive cycles of birds and mammals.

He was one of those fortunate scientists who are able to make one of the larger generalizations in his field. Never a scientific politician nor one to junket about the world on self-advertising tours, he was starred in the American Men of Science, one of the major honors which can happen to a scientist, and he received one prize of $1000, the Walker Grand Prize from the Boston Society of Natural History. While he worked indefatigably at his research, it was never a life's work but a life's pleasure.

In one other area, he gained national fame; that was as the director of the summer course in Invertebrate Zoology at the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass. Between 1926 and 1941 there passed through his class a great number of the people who were to become the future professional biologists of America.

With such a love for teaching, it was fitting that he held his classes on the morning of the day he was stricken by a series of fatal cerebral hemorrhages.

J. WENDELL BURGER
Freshman History Study System Changed to Personalize Instruction

by Professor George B. Cooper and Dr. Norton Downs

Perennial problems of the freshman history courses this year have resulted in fundamental teaching changes directed toward greater personalization of instruction.

Western Europe from the fall of the Roman Empire to the present continues to be the subject matter of the course, including Byzantine history to the death of Justinian in 565 and the emergence of Islam as a religious and political force affecting Christendom. The caveman to atom and world history courses used by some other colleges are felt by the Trinity History Department to have a diluted intellectual value. The course acquaints the student with the development and evolution of the civilization in which he lives. Nationalism, the unification of Germany and Italy, and the recurrent push of Russia beyond her borders are only three of the European questions which must be understood by the intelligent American. In considering the evolution of the cultural pattern which has come to us from Europe, students delve into such fields as medieval scholasticism, the Renaissance, political thinkers of the Enlightenment, Marx, the British Fabians, and the religious systems which have competed for spiritual allegiance since 1500.

For the past 15 years, this material has been presented at Trinity in lectures to the entire freshman class twice a week and discussed in smaller sections of about 20 men meeting once a week. All department members lectured in the fields for which they were best prepared as historians. The growth of classes following the war made it increasingly difficult to maintain personal student-teacher relationships under this system. The department was also unsatisfied with student appreciation of historical continuity, which they consider an important part of the beginner's training. The intellectual advantages of different approaches and points of view were often lost by students discovering the factual narrative for the first time.

Last September, consequently, instructors in freshman history dropped the lecture plan in favor of small sections meeting three times a week. A common syllabus and final examination, book reports, map assignments, and weekly objective tests set similar standards for all sections. Continuity in the development of historical themes has been effectively improved by the individual class meetings, closely controlled by the instructors. After a semester of trial of the new method, the history department is convinced that personal supervision is possible in large survey courses.

Many textbooks have been written for large impersonal courses at other institutions and the Trinity History Department has been unable to find a text to accommodate its course. Department members are collaborating, therefore, on writing a textbook particularly suited for the Trinity course.

The great fault of history texts is the compression which is the inevitable result of the passage of time. Hitler, Stalin, the United Nations and the atom bomb must now be taken up in the last chapters of books which only 25 years ago ended with Coolidge prosperity. Pruning begins generalization. Reference to "trends," "forces," "deep underlying movements" and other ambiguities is increasing. Students face the intellectual danger of thinking that there are forces, trends and dark movements at work which are somehow independent of the personalities, hopes, ambitions, and ideals which are the true ingredients of historical narrative. To avoid this compressed text approach, the Trinity syllabus requires 150-200 pages of outside reading weekly of more leisurely explanations by leading authorities such as Gibbon, Bryce, Pirenne, G. N. Clark, Morley, H. A. L. Fisher, Carl Becker, Crane Brinton, Von Ranke, Morley, Taine, and other classic writers.

Faculty News

ACTING PRESIDENT ARTHUR H. HUGHES has announced the promotion of six faculty members, four of them to the rank of Associate Professor and two to Assistant Professor. The new Associate Professors are Dr. Lawrence L. Barber, Jr., Government; Dr. George B. Cooper, History; Dr. Edwin N. Nilson, Mathematics; and John C. E. Taylor, Fine Arts. Dr. Eugene W. Davis of the History department and Daniel B. Risdon of the English department are the new Assistant Professors.

Dr. Arthur Fanta, acting chairman of the Government Department, gave a series of four lectures in December on International Relations and Politics. Over two hundred Connecticut elementary and secondary school teachers attended.

Dr. Robert H. Smellie, Jr., '42, assistant professor of Chemistry, is teaching a new course on the use of delicate instruments used in modern chemical and physical research. One of the first courses of its kind to be offered by a small college, some of the instruments studied will be the Spectrograph, the Polarograph, the Ultra-Violet Spectrophotometer, and the Polarizing Microscope.

Professor Barber, who is in Luxembourg on a Fulbright Scholarship, writes that he attends the Chamber of Deputies sessions several times a week. Since Luxembourgh is used most of the time, he takes his babysitter along to translate the proceedings.

Dr. Black's book "The Railroads of the Confederacy" will be published next fall by the University of North Carolina Press.

Dr. Downs has signed a contract with the University of Chicago Press to publish his "Essays in Honor of Congers Read, President of the American Historical Association 1949-1950."

Dr. Feldman, '46, has been awarded a Ford Foundation scholarship which will enable him to intern as a classics teacher at College. He is now teaching classical humanities and Roman Law.

Professor Taylor has been engaged by the College to paint a posthumous portrait of George N. Hamlin, '91, which will be placed in the Reading Room of the new Library.

Professor Vogel has written a workbook for use in public speaking classes. It is being tested at College this spring.

Dr. Wright's poetic translation of Victor Hugo's Les Djinns, title "Goblins!" will be published in the Spring issue of Poet Lore Journal.
College, Fraternities
Bar 'Hell Week,' 'Help' Plan Grows

The College in cooperation with the undergraduate Interfraternity Council has abolished "hell week" customs in fraternity initiations. Most of the ten houses on campus either have long standing policies against such practices or have substituted "help week" in place of stunts and paddlings.

Dean of Students, Joseph C. Clarke, has been working with the Interfraternity Council for the past two years toward the complete cessation of all-night hikes, hazing, and other sophomoric stunts. The National Interfraternity Conference has also been working on this problem for many years and has reported considerable progress in stamping out "hell week" throughout the country.

Dean Clarke has urged the fraternities to undertake community service projects and to work with Hartford social agencies in projects for under-privileged children.

Evening Enrollment Up

Two hundred forty-three students have enrolled for evening classes in the Trinity Term. This represents an increase of ten percent over the registration in the Christmas Term reversing the usual ten percent drop in the second semester.

Seniors Try New Plan

The first all-day career Counseling symposium was held on February 12 for the Seniors. Job opportunities and the nature of different types of work were outlined to the Class by business executives.

Dr. Burger, Faculty Member for 15 Years, Promoted to Morgan Biology Chair

Dr. J. Wendell Burger has been promoted to the J. Pierpont Morgan Chair of Biology, succeeding the late Dr. T. Hume Bissonnette as professor and department chairman. Coming to Trinity in 1936 as an Instructor, Dr. Burger was promoted to Assistant Professor in 1939 and to Associate Professor in 1947.

A native of Philadelphia, Dr. Burger graduated from Haverford College and received his master's degree from Lehigh and his doctorate from Princeton. While at Lehigh he served two years as a teaching assistant and at Princeton was a Fellow in Biology. He is a member of Sigma Xi, Phi Beta Kappa, and the American Society of Zoologists and is listed in American Men of Science.

Dr. Burger has published extensive findings on the experimental modification of sex cycles of fish, amphibia, reptiles, and birds under research grants from the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia. The New York Heart Association and the National Heart Institute of the United States Public Health Service have underwritten his recent investigations of the physical factors of circulation in sharks and lobsters.

For fifteen years he has been actively associated with the Mount Desert Island Biological Laboratory summer research center in Salisbury Cove, Maine. He has been on its board of trustees since 1940, and served as managing director from 1947 to 1950.

Dr. Burger has been active on the Hartford Hospital School of Nursing Committee and succeeded the late President Ogilby as its chairman in 1944.

Summer Move of Ten Miles of Books
Scheduled to Start After Commencement

Work on the new library building is now moving rapidly ahead. The arrival of brownstone shipments and gypsum roofing plank along with favorable winter weather in January and February have made it possible to close and heat the building.

The builder now predicts "substantial" completion by May 1. This will make it possible to install furniture and equipment and prepare the shelves for the books by Commencement time. Moving of ten miles of books will start Monday, June 16, the day after Commencement. Professional movers, aided by Trinity students serving as packers, will do the job.

The moving of the Trinity collection of 225,000 volumes will take approximately four weeks. The present book stacks will then be dismantled and re-erected on the top floor of the new building to shelve the 150,000 Watkinson books. This move will begin about August 1 and take from three to four weeks.

The Watkinson books must be moved from upstairs in the Wadsworth Atheneum in downtown Hartford, through one of the busiest districts of the city, to the College campus. With good fortune the two book collections should be in their new home by Labor Day and the new Library ready for the start of the 1952-53 College year.

A reading collection will be established in the present Library for the use of Summer Session students and probably will be moved to the new building on the last day of the Trinity move. If this is done, operations on a small scale will begin in the new building before the end of the Summer term.
Faculty Profiles

DR. COSTELLO

Perhaps one of the most erudite scholars ever to teach ‘Neath the Elms, one who possesses more all-around knowledge than any other faculty member, and undoubtedly one of the most loyal followers of Blue and Gold teams and Trinity events whether a public lecture, the Jesters, or a fire, is Harry Todd Costello, Brownell Professor of Philosophy.

Professor Costello’s fame is known around the world for his Booklist, the fourth edition of which has been recently printed. As one of the most eloquent alumnus says in discussing the book, “Professor Costello is one of the most profound bookmen in the country and his list is easily the best in the field, far superior to some of its better known—or perhaps better advertised—competitors.”

In its twenty-seven year history the Booklist has influenced education in such unlikely places as Johannesburg and Peking. Professor William M. Randall, as an inspector for the Carnegie Corporation, found it used as a guide for buying in dozens of small colleges in the West. In its annotated list of over 800 books Professor Costello has used ten classifications:—natural science, social and psychological sciences, philosophy and religion, history, travel and geography, biography, fine arts and music, classic civilization, foreign literatures and English Literature.

Professor Costello was born on November 1, 1885, in his beloved Richmond, Indiana, and he still returns there in the summer holidays. After graduating from Earlham College in 1908, he received his master’s and doctor’s degrees from Harvard where he had the opportunity for study under James Santayana, Royce, Palmer and Munsterberg. He studied at the University of Paris for a year under Henri Bergson before returning to Harvard to give a joint course with Bertrand Russell. After a year of teaching at Yale, he went to Columbia from 1915 to 1920 and taught in John Dewey’s department.

It is interesting to note that T. S. Eliot was a seminar student under Dr. Costello at Harvard, and that he has taught eleven men who are now heads of philosophy departments in large universities.

Many former students will remember Dr. Costello’s course in Social Ethics (Philosophy 2) and his delightful discussions on the mores of Middletown, U. S. A. In recent years he has had to discontinue it when too large sections strained his physical capacity. His History of Philosophy course has always been well known to undergraduates.

Dr. Costello is a member of the American Philosophy Association, History of Science Society, Psi Gamma Mu and Phi Beta Kappa. He is the senior book editor for the Journal of Philosophy, and has contributed articles to American Philosophy Today and Tomorrow and the Columbia Studies in the History of Ideas.

It is indeed fortunate that this wise man has retained his active interest on the Faculty Library Committee and that he has shared a major responsibility in the selection of many of the Library’s collections.

DR. HARRINGTON

If you have recently wandered about the third floor of Boardman Hall, your eye would be attracted to the fish tanks in Dr. Robert W. Harrington’s office. Perhaps the grim warnings not to turn off the electric lights would make you want to discover what was going on there. And should the keen, eagle-eyed professor of vertebrate zoology stroll in, an immediate discussion of the experiments with their array of pumps, filters, aerators, automatic light switches, and thermostats would proclaim the ingenuity of this lean Yankee from the Granite State.

Born in Concord, New Hampshire, forty-one years ago, Professor Harrington graduated from Bowdoin in 1934, and after two years in business returned to his alma mater to become a Teaching Fellow in Biology and assistant Field Director at the College’s scientific station on Kent Island in the Bay of Fundy. He taught at the Isles of Shoals Marine Biological Laboratories and at the University of New Hampshire where he was awarded his master’s degree in 1940. After his return from three years’ overseas duty in the China-Burma-India Theatre he received his doctorate from Cornell. He had held a teaching assistantship in Comparative Anatomy there before the war.

In India, he was commissioned in the field by General Joseph Stilwell, and assumed command of a malaria control unit. His assignments carried him to West Bengal, East Bengal (now Eastern Pakistan), the Brahmaputras valley of Assam, and along the Ledo Road and the Burma Road across northern Burma to China. Under his supervision miles of drainage ditches were hand-dug by Indian coolies. It was his task to try to locate the type of mosquito species serving locally as the chief carrier of the malaria parasite and to ascertain the extent of infection among the populace. This work enabled him to penetrate into remote villages as well as to become acquainted with the people.

Dr. Harrington came to Trinity in 1947 and was promoted to Assistant Professor two years later. Currently teaching General Biology, Genetics, and Vertebrate Embryology, he has published on the life cycles and behavior of fish in nature and upon the effects of experimental modification of environmental factors on the fish sexual cycle. One species of fish on which he has been experimenting normally spawns in June, but by regulating the light and temperature they have bred in January. A real June-July romance!

In recent summers Dr. Harrington has worked as a fisheries biologist for the conservation departments of Connecticut and of New Hampshire.

His wife, the former Eleanor Lucey Sheehan of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, is also a biologist. After attending the University of New Hampshire, she completed for the doctorate when she had most of her work completed for the doctorate when she had most of her work completed for the doctorate.

The 14th Faculty head is expected to have this able and attractive couple living on campus, and as the years roll by many Trinity men will greatly benefit from Dr. Harrington's teaching.

New Chapel Organ Record

Classic Editions recently published a long playing record of the works of Arnold Schonberg and Olivier Messiaen, played on the College Chapel Organ by Professor Clarence W. Eatters. The publishers cited Professor Watters as the "leading authority on French organ music in this country" and quoted Canadian comments calling him "America's finest organist."

About the New President

An eight-man committee of Trustees is interviewing top prospects for the college presidency. The 14th Faculty head is expected to take office before college opens in the fall. Meanwhile, Dean Arthur H. Hughes continues to serve as acting president.

Cagers Win 14; Charlie Wrinn Top Rebounder

Closing with seven straight wins, the Hilltoppers finished their season with a fine 14-5 record. Sporting a scoring average of 68 points a contest, the Oosting men also had the leading rebounder of small college hoopers in Charlie Wrinn who averaged over 26 per game. Charlie's uncanny ability to snare the ball off the boards pulled Trin out of many a tight spot as well as making it possible to set up many fast breaking plays.

All around balance and fine team play of Captain Dave Smith's five enabled the Bantams to develop into a speedy and smooth functioning unit. Middlebury, Worcester Tech, and Upsala all fell as the team played steady ball. A new College record of 95 points was racked up against Union, and Tufts was easily defeated at Medford with all the gate receipts going into the Trinity Student Emergency Fund.

Displaying alertness and deadly accuracy the Blue and Gold evened the season's competition with arch rival Wesleyan 73-68. Mazeurek and Chistolini repeatedly stole the ball to set up scores, and Novak made two baskets in the last minute to turn back the battling Cardinals.

In the final game against Coast Guard, Wrinn's hook shot hit consistently for 25 points as the team came from behind to pull out a 59-52 victory.

During the Christmas holidays the team played in the Hofstra College Invitation Tournament defeating St. Lawrence 66-50 before succumbing to powerful Wagner 63-53.

After an easy win over M.I.T. in the season's opener, high scoring Yale packed too much all-around ability for the Blue and Gold. Norwich and Bates were turned back fairly easily, but Bowdoin did not yield until the last half minute when Dave Smith tapped in a rebound for a 73-71 victory.

The offense clicked against Massachusetts, but Holy Cross simply had too much court knowledge though the Blue and Gold made it an interesting contest in the first half.

The loss to Colby by one point in the last seconds was most disappointing as Trin's scrappy five nearly turned in a startling upset. Amherst was beaten 52-49 in a hard fought struggle. Wesleyan overcame a tremendous lead to turn in a well earned victory in the final minute 63-61. Chistolini had a brilliant night scoring 28 points.

Freshman Basketball

Fred Booth's yearlings scored seven victories in 14 starts. Dave Roberts, Lou Magelaner, and Scotty Price, have been the leading scorers.

Football

As the 1951 football season fades away it will be remembered chiefly for the final three games—the high scoring Amherst contest with its ten touchdowns, the startling 6-3 upset by a courageous Wesleyan team, and the near tragic accident to plucky Captain Bill Goralski against Tufts. It was another exciting season with plenty to cheer about as the Blue and Gold compiled its 6-2 record of 240 points against 92. And it marked the end of a three-year era of twenty-one victories and only three defeats.

Great credit goes to Captain Goralski and to the other seventeen seniors who were the main cogs in making this possible. As yearlings their team was undefeated; as sophomores they sparked New England's only undefeated-untied team; as juniors they came within inches of duplicating 1949's fear; and as seniors they dominated both the offense and defense.

Bill Goralski, Red Ratcliffe and Ed Kulas were selected for the Connecticut Small College All Star Team by the state's Sports Writers Alliance. This is the second year that Bill was chosen despite the fact he missed two games. His speed and all-around football instinct plus his leadership and indomitable spirit made him one of the best ever to wear the Blue and Gold. Ratcliffe, who tips the beam at 200 pounds, played offensive center and his blocks were an important factor in the team's quick-breaking line jabs. Kulas never played football in school, but the 193-pound Glastonbury boy developed into one of the finest tackles seen on Trinity Field in recent years. Captain-elect Hum DelMastro, a powerful fullback and able pass defender, and Al Magnoli, speedy halfback, were selected on the All-Connecticut second team. Hum had a brilliant season, particularly against Amherst when he averaged over eight yards in twenty-one carries. Al was a constant inspiration to the team even though bothered by a bad knee which should have kept him on the bench.

Special mention should be made of Bill Vibert's direction of the team on the offense and his excellent place kicking record. His selection of plays was of the highest order; his passing executed with poise and good accuracy; and his place kicking for his four years of play showed a total of 107 points—a new Trinity record.

Goralski, DePatie, Kulas, Magnoli, McElwee, Ratcliffe, Rathbone, Simmons, G. Smith, Vibert, Wentworth, and French were awarded gold footballs for winning three letters.
With the graduation of so many lettermen the 1952 squad will not have depth, but there are a dozen good line prospects and Captain DelMastro will get support from speedy Dick Rancati, Hal Wynkoop and Mike Thomas. Fred Booth will send up several promising freshmen including Lou Magelaner and Frank Solomita, backs, and Frank Lentz, Don Valz, John Burton, Earl Dickinson; Captain Lentz, Don Valz, John Burton, Earl Lindenmeyer, and Cliff Thatcher, linemen.

The schedule is:—Sept. 27, at Dickinson; Oct. 4, Hobart; 11, Tufts; 18 at Colby; 25 at Middlebury; Nov. 1, Coast Guard; 8, Amherst; 15 at Wesleyan.

Soccer

The soccer team finished its season with a 1-1 tie with Wesleyan; victories over Worcester Tech, M.I.T., Tufts, Massachusetts University, and Clark; and losses to Yale and Amherst. This record gave them the standing of fifth place in the 16 team New England League. Captain-elect Neil Mutschler at inside left led the attack with eight goals and was chosen to play on the All-American Intercollegiate team.

Co-captain Putty Scott was awarded the Peter S. Fish trophy as the team's most valuable player, while hard working Bill Tryon received the Harold R. Shetter trophy as the most improved player.

Coach Lloyd McDonald next year will have nine returning lettermen plus a strong Freshman team that defeated M.I.T., Cheshire and Wesleyan and held Choate to a 3-3- tie.

Varsity Swimming

Despite losses to powerful Bowdoin and Amherst, the swimmers should have another fine season. Captain Tony Mason and Walt Toole are having another good season in the dashes and Ray Parrott is unbeaten in his 200-yard breaststroke specialty. Bill Godfrey, a sophomore, has shown amazing development in the dives.

The team turned back Tufts and M.I.T., but like last year, Bowdoin and Amherst showed too much depth. The victory trail was resumed against Worcester Tech and Boston University. Bud Toole won both dashes as Wesleyan sank 43-32.

Freshman Swimming

The freshman team came within three inches of pinning the season's first defeat on Canterbury School. Amherst's yearlings nosed them out by one point, but Deerfield was turned back and Williston tied.

Varsity Squash

The racquetees defeated M.I.T. 6-3 and narrowly missed upsetting Amherst. McGill, Navy, Harvard, Yale, Army and Williams showed too much depth for the Blue and Gold. The first Wesleyan contest was a 5-4 defeat while we won the return 6-3.

Freshman Squash

The freshmen report victories over Wesleyan and Williston, and a loss to Choate and Deerfield.

New Coach

Karl Kurth, Jr., athletic director at East Hartford High since 1947, has been appointed Assistant Professor of Physical Education. He succeeds Stuart L. Parks who resigned December 31 to become director general of education in El Salvador, Central America. Karl will be head track coach, assistant football coach and an instructor in physical education.

TRINITY PLAN OFFERS ANSWER

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 31.—(AP)— A statement issued today by Trinity College gives that institution's answer to the problem of overemphasis of intercollegiate sports. Do like Trinity does and the problem will disappear.

"Colleges wouldn't be troubled with overemphasis in sports if they generally adopted Trinity's practices," is the way athletic director Ray Oosting, who is basketball coach, put it.

"We (the coaches) are all full-time faculty members, with the same tenures as any faculty members," he said. "We operate our sports program on an unestablished budget, the same as our chemistry or English departments. Gate receipts never met the cost of intercollegiate sports."

Trinity, a 129-year-old liberal arts college with an enrollment of 500 men, listed in its statement these policies:

- No out-of-season sports, such as spring football.
- No discrimination in scholarship administration, for or against the student who also is an athlete. The percentage of scholarships given to varsity athletes is about identical with the percentage for the student body as a whole.

- Originated by Trinity's Public Relations Office, this article is printed as it appeared in the Denver, Colorado, Post. It was prominently displayed in substantially the same form in almost every major newspaper in the country. Nationally syndicated columnist Dan Parker followed with a full column. Trinity's statement was the first defending "sane" colleges. It was followed three days later by an Ivy League statement and by various other colleges in succeeding weeks.

- Influencing student and alumni opinion to the idea that sport is a character-building activity for all students, not a business.
- No firing of coaches because of a losing season or losses.
- For evidence that coaching at Trinity can be a lifetime job, Trinity points to Oosting himself, 27 years the basketball coach; to Dan Jesse, starting his 20th year as football and baseball coach, and to Joe Clarke, swimming coach since Trinity built a pool in 1929.
- Trinity points to its athletic record for evidence that its policies pay off.
- The football team has lost only two games in the last 20, was New England's only unied, unbeaten team in 1949 and also had undefeated seasons in 1934, 1915 and 1911.
- Last season's basketball team won 13 of 18 and went to the finals of the New England invitation tournament. The swimming team tied Brown for the New England Association championship.

Fund to Help Goralski Oversubscribed; Full Recovery Hope of Plucky Athlete

The College Student Emergency Fund under the chairmanship of Charles Kingston, Jr., '34, successfully reached its immediate goal of $15,000 to pay for the medical and hospital expenses of Bill Goralski, who is recovering from paralysis caused by a spine injury in the Tufts game. Some $18,000 was contributed by 1,600 individuals and organizations in less than two months which should cover Bill's medical care and rehabilitation.

Bill was moved from Somerville, Mass., to the Hartford Hospital on January 11 and is making excellent progress in his battle for complete recovery. He is able to move his arms and legs freely, to sit up and is beginning to walk alone. His spirits have remained excellent and his nurses report that they have never seen a patient work so hard on the prescribed exercises.

Tremendous credit is due Chuck Kingston who so ably organized the committee and planned the business and legal details. His committee included Cliff Morse, '31; Don Viering, '42; Mr. Henry A. Redfield; Mr. and Mrs. James Bent, '28; Mrs. Ray Oosting; Mrs. Dan Jesse; Ted Thomas, '52; Nick Christakos, '52; Al Miller, '52; Dean Joseph Clarke and Bob Bishop. The cooperation of the Hartford sports writers and sportscasters was invaluable, particularly Bill Lee, Art McGinley, Owen Griffith, Joe Cassano and Bob Steele.

Dr. Allan Nevins, H '48 Is Mead Lecturer

Dr. Allan Nevins, Hon. '48, addressed the undergraduates on "The Art of Biography" on December 3rd. He was invited to the campus by the History Department under the terms of the Mead Bequest. He also spoke informally to a class and attended a tea to which all upper-class history majors and the heads of all departments were invited. His talk was filled with lively and pungent descriptions of the different styles of biography and was widely acclaimed by the students.

The History Department intends, using the means of the Mead Bequest, to bring a leading historian to the campus every autumn.

New Accident Policy Is National Model

The College has signed an accident policy for the student body which will cover all medical expenses for accidents up to $1,000, and 75 percent of all additional costs up to $13,333. Students will be covered for the entire year for accidents incurred anywhere, any way.

Four years ago when Steve Demopoulos of Wesleyan was so critically injured in the freshman game on Trinity Field, the College was unable to arrange for a similar policy. The Athletic Department, however, set aside $500 a year into a special insurance fund which had reached $2,000 this fall. Premiums for the new policy will be paid by the College until September 1, 1952, at which time the cost will be billed to each student bringing the total insurance charge to $15 each year.
