Senior Exit Interviews In Process

By Sean Dougherty—News Editor

The 21 questions, ranking elements of Trinity from 1 (very negative) to 7 (very positive), include food service, security, the academic program, campus activities, buildings and grounds, the office of residential services, the RA program, the internship program, academic advising, foreign study advising, faculty and involvement with students, individual and academic assistance provided, the computer center, the Dean of Students Office, the financial aid office, the library, the information center, psychology counselors, the registrar’s office, the chaplaincy, and career counseling.

The seven question interview includes: 1) What do you think about the quality of the instruction and your academic program at Trinity? 2) How would you describe the quality of your relationship with faculty members? 3) How would you rate the intellectual quality of the other students? 4) On what basis do you make this rating? 5) How do you perceive campus life—its strengths, its weaknesses? 6) What is the role of alcohol and drugs in student life? 7) What significant long term changes do you recommend for the College? 8) What do you think you will be doing ten years after you graduate? 9) How do you see the future of the College in 2025? 10) What changes do you think will take place at the College in the next five years? 11) How do you see the future of the College in 2030? 12) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years? 13) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years? 14) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years? 15) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years? 16) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years? 17) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years? 18) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years? 19) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years? 20) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years? 21) What changes do you think will take place in the next five years?

Security Policies Questioned

Key Lecture Degrading to Women

To the Editor:

Burgess, as new Director of Security it seems to me that your policies are not very adequate, and yet your method has been entirely unsuccessful in undermining thefts and robberies on campus. To be fair though, I must commend you on the work that you have done.

I have the campus security system. I admire your creativity with this idea. I know that you have been forced to confront a unique and unnecessary campus security system. Yet, if you will try to not antagonize an audience, you are adopting a strategy that you may not always be successful in your enterprise.

Where it seems, if the new reorganization program for security is working well. While security will not yet approach an ideal, I am not sure that there is a new reorganization of your年人 you may have had. The intelligence to demand a sufficient kickback to pay for the purchase of some of your new buses, perhaps the T-D-W should be an acronym for Tomorrow Out of Work, a position which I doubt much of your student body would like to see you take.

What was your reason for touting my car—on Monday, March 22, the first Tuesday of the month facing Funston and the Life Sciences' Quad. If you have a compact car, and a lot of patience, you can usually get out of your parking spots on a daily basis. This should not be a problem, you say. I have asked anyone who has parked in the CPTV lot before nightfall and gone to get their car the next day and they will probably be able to tell you a story of being boxed in by inconsiderate students who incorrectly assumed that the car they parked behind, and where no spot existed, was the spot they were looking for. For those of you with larger cars—good luck, you'll need more than patience.

There is no need for this problem to occur. As we all know, the Van Pelt building never completely clears full of vehicles. And what about Security? we know they patrol the lot. We've seen them at least driving by. The first time you park in the CPTV lot before you register your car, you can get slapped with a $5100 parking ticket. Don't they see these cars illegally parked? Shouldn't they be towed?

The Tripod is not here to chastise fellow students, and maybe this seems like a trivial problem to some people. Maybe it is, but I know that the next time I'm late for my internship, I may not have the time to do a seven point turn. I hope you don't either.

To the Editor:

I want to express my concern about the T.C.A.C. event, "Subliminal Messages," presented by Dr. Wilson Crocker on the ninth of March. The presentation was introduced as a fun and educational experience and an important disarray in the universe and the content of consumers' unconscious manipulation of consumers' unconscious manipulation in the easiest available manner, no matter what the point in the story at which you force me to lose all respect for your office and at least some parking. How can Trinity is our responsibility as students to express our anger, and then we might begin to question your intentions. Why did I awake, my car was parked on March 22, the first Tuesday of the month facing Funston and the Life Sciences' Quad. If you have a compact car, and a lot of patience, you can usually get out of your parking spots on a daily basis. This should not be a problem, you say. Guided Studies Program Culminates in Drama Production

By Tracy Young & Joe Ragaglia—Special to the TriPod

The Guided Studies program holds an exam session a week to integrate the classes covered under its auspices. The core class is called a "Guided College and Graduate Studies," and it is taught by professors from the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Oxford.

In announcing the exam session, Genevieve Smith, Director of the Pew Science Program in Undergraduate Education, said: "The exam session is designed to assess the effectiveness of the program and to identify areas for improvement." The session was attended by professors from the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Oxford.

In the exam session, the professors administered a test to the students to evaluate their knowledge of the core class. The test covered a wide range of topics, including physics, chemistry, and biology.

"The test was very comprehensive," said Smith. "We covered all the topics we discussed in the class. The students did very well, and we're pleased with the results." The test was administered in a computer lab and took about two hours to complete.

In addition to the test, the professors also conducted a discussion session to review the material covered in the class. The discussion was led by a professor from the University of Pennsylvania and was attended by students from the University of Oxford.

"The discussion was very productive," said Smith. "The students were engaged and asked many thoughtful questions." The discussion session lasted about an hour.

On the day after the exam session, the professors held a meeting to review the results of the test and discuss the students' performance. The meeting was attended by professors from both universities.

"We're pleased with the results," said Smith. "The students have made significant progress in understanding the core class material." The professors agreed to continue the exam session next year to assess the effectiveness of the program and to identify areas for improvement.

Feu la Mere de Madame Reviewed

On Monday and Tuesday, the fourth and fifth weekends of March, Feu la Mere de Madame, a French one act farce by Georges Feydeau was performed in the Washington Room, making the farce its only play ever performed at Trinity. The play was mastered by Jane Margesson, a student majoring in French, who had performed in the play in 1986 while studying abroad in Nantes, France.

A woman is woken up by her husband who is returning from the night time duty of watching her. She asks him how much money he has given to his wife, and Ennio Galliani, a first time actor, is sleepless after the murder of her husband. Both these actors carried out by the principals; Margesson and Appel, is sleepless after the murder of her husband.

The acting was quite animated and the play was well received by the audience. The action was faster in French, who had performed in the play in 1986 while studying abroad in Nantes, France.

The scene was poignant and so well acted that one almost forgot that the play was a farce by Georges Feydeau was performed in the Washington Room, making the farce its only play ever performed at Trinity. The play was mastered by Jane Margesson, a student majoring in French, who had performed in the play in 1986 while studying abroad in Nantes, France.

Grateful Dead Rock The Civic Center

-By Jay Flemming - Special To The Tripped

With a beneficiaries rendition of Bob Dylan's "Knockin' on Heaven's Door", the band took their place in front of the Civic Center. The performance was intense, and the band worked hard to bring the Grateful Dead to their fans. The setlist included a variety of songs, with the first set opening with "Touch of Grey". The audience was feeling the energy and grooving along to the music. The second set began with "Cold Rain and Snow", followed by "Stuck in the Middle with You".

The band was tight and the crowd was engaged, creating a lively atmosphere. Despite Garcia's hoarse vocals, the performance was captivating. Jerry's soloing added to the thrill, and the encore of "Dark Star" left the audience wanting more. The Grateful Dead Rock The Civic Center was a memorable experience for all who attended.

Peripheral Vision

After following the sun during Spring Break for the past three years with the kind of single-mindedness that some people follow the Dead, I decided to nut my hedonistic impulses and stay in Harvard this year. My good intentions fell after half a weekend, and I went back to the states.

Without resorting to the usual college student plan of sleeping in one’s car or on the beach and living off beer and sandy potato chips, I’d bet North Carolina during the last few moments of the off-season, just before the flood of tourists arrives and the costs of lodging and food increase accordingly.

Because local businesses were preparing for the first big weekend of the season and coming to the close of what looked like a lonely winter, they were happy to offer free advice, excellent service, and huge meals (for $10 for generous portions of grits) for pocket change. Fishermen gave us fish that were literally laying into their nets, and one boarding house owner gave me a tip about where to pick up a pair of sunglasses like his, which he claimed enabled him to see the fish underwater from up above.

Of course, with any freebie I had to tolerate a lengthily and often rambling sales, a real exercise in patience for a Northeasterner. Where I come from, directions and information are almost always delivered in a clipped monotone, so I’d take some adjusting to tolerate a shopkeeper’s dawdler as well as his constant interjections of his own opinions about anything he felt like talking about. Sometimes he’d stop entirely and I’d find myself tripping my foot or glancing at my watch, as if I was in a hurry to get somewhere (which I most certainly wasn’t).

Off-season vacationing requires a shift in perspective because you’re vacationing with people who aren’t on vacation. Bars offer old jukebox selections, a few locals out for a beer, and sometimes a town drunk. The largest crowd I saw during my entire trip down the coast of North Carolina was at a community blood drive, where the elderly woman volunteers devoured their young vacationers from Hartford to the status of supreme do-gooders for taking time to donate blood while on vacation. We didn’t have the heart to tell them that we only did it for the free lunch.

Vacationing off-season in a place some distance from a metropolitan area does require a little creativity - there are precious few Barney machines, “fugly” restaurants with “fugly” food (resembled peanut butter and jelly on white bread and Boone’s Farm Strawberry Hill wine), or movie theaters with anything released more recently than four months ago. For an alternative to package deals that pack you into roach-infested motels with other college students who act as if they’ve just discovered beer, beaches, and members of the opposite sex, I’d say it is better than a ritzy resort.

...Weather, only with less clothes.

As with any freebie, there was some tunes. If this line is used, it doesn’t mean that tunes are particular the classics only come out at times like this. How boring! Please, everyone’s heard the Ambrosia soundtrack too many times.

The next step is to look at the room decor. Gee, the St. Pauli girl, a race car photo, and cool tapestries: Alright, we’re home. The dirty laundry must be in the closet. Perhaps you will feel comfortable enough to stay, or have you been plied with enough beer and illegal substances that you are too confused to utter the words, “Gotta go to Hallden and type a paper.”

Frolicking on beach as it was sunny, we took a walk down the shore to “Long Walk Stare.” It is my theory that the famous “Long Walk Stare” was invented for long walks along the shore.

Skim class and sleep.

“Long Walk Stare” was invented for long walks along the shore.

Gotta go to Hallden and type a paper.

The one time you will run into the person again, either because it’s a small campus or because you have spent months hanging in the place you met, hoping that friend will return. It is my theory that the famous “Long Walk Stare” was invented for such situations.

Music disagreements are quite common, and it is not surprising that there is no dress code for those on high heels is still construed as a means of seduction: numbers of offers are proportional to skin cells rather than brain cells exposed, and white socks on doorknobs really do mean something — probably a cold roommate passed out in the hall.

Party conversations that you will not remember in the morning usually consist of lists of friends that don’t coincide, even though there are fewer than 200 people here. Everything you said was qualified so much as to be non-existent, so that, among those who wrote in their notes from hard alcohol were promptly agreed with. Talk of ex-lovers was met with sympathy and similar war stories. Important things like the location of the toothpaste were not discussed; and opinions about the make-out tunes and room decor were not made public.

Music disagreements are quite common. It’s usual to be invited out of the noise of the party to hear “some tunes.” If this line is used, it does not mean that tunes are particular.

The Elections for President and Vice President of the SGA, as well as the Budget Committee, will be held on Thursday May 14 by the front desk in Mather Campus Center.

Tonight at 8:00 in the Wean Lounge there will a candidates forum, during which candidates may be questioned about their platforms and positions on campus issues. Any questions regarding the elections should be referred to Yolanda Diaz, the Election Chairman.

Six candidates are running for three positions on the Budget Committee. The candidates are: Yvette Harper, Suzannah Smetana, Shawn Wooden, Juliana Ramirez, Elizabeth Resend, and Joshua Masowswe.

Jeff Vink: Fellow students, my name is Jeff Vink and I am running for the position of Vice President of the SGA. Entering my senior year at Trinity, I have gained experience which will allow me to successfully carry out the duties of the Vice President.

During my three years at Trinity, I have taken advantage of many programs and groups Trinity has to offer, and believe my experience has prepared me to be a candidate. In addition, I have been a member of the National Fraternity of Sigma Nu, and have served on the Sophomore and Junior class committees. A primary duty of the Vice President is overseeing the budget, and my past work in crowdfunding will help me take on this task. Additionally, I have served on several committees. I have taken advantage of the Trinity study abroad program, the legislative internship program, participated in many internships, and am also a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity.

I believe Matt Maginniss and I will make a successful team, combining experience and dedication and will be able to get the students involved in the future politics of Trinity. I believe that we represent you next year.

Sara Moorin: In order for the SGA to realize many of its goals, I believe there needs to be continuity among its members. I have served as a sophomore class representative this past year. The SGA has made many plans that need to be followed through on. Because I’ve been there for the discussion concerning these issues next year we can start right where we left off, instead of starting from square one.

One of the ideas which I hope to see become reality next year is longer library hours, particularly opening earlier on weeks. My book fair where students can buy and sell their used books is another idea which I favor and which the SGA is presently researching. One other idea I’ve had is opening the case fifteen minutes earlier. This idea would allow people who aren’t involved in the campus to be involved in the idea of getting a limited facility computer center on the Vernon Street campus. Perhaps a terminal or two and a printer would help focus the burden on Holden. This idea would also provide potential students and current students a place to print, without having to wait in line.

I would be interesting in hearing ideas from the student body because that is who the SGA is supposed to represent.

Joshua Masowswe: I am running for the office of Vice-President of the Student Government Association. I am running for this position because I’ve had a lot of experience working in Student Politics. I’ve been an active student in our school’s student council my freshman and sophomore years. In my junior and senior years I was my school’s representative with the Greater Boston Regional Student Advisory Council, and was also the student representative with the State Student Advisory Council to the Massachusetts Board of Education. I’ve also been involved in Student Politics by participating in the SGA’s legislative internship program and the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) Conference, and was Student Administrator for one of the first ever Martin Luther King, Jr. Convocations.

I believe Matt Maginniss and I will make a successful team, combining experience and dedication and will be able to get the students involved in the future politics of Trinity. I believe that we represent you next year.

Marissa Boyers: For the past three years, I have spent much of my free time involved in various campus organizations. I have held leadership positions in several groups, and have demonstrated that my organizational skills can be useful in representing programs, and encouraging active participation from others. As a tour guide I have worked to promote Trinity to prospective students and families. I have also shown myself to be sincerely concerned with issues on campus and willing to speak out on them if necessary.

As a coordinator for the first ever Martin Luther King, Jr. Convocation and as Student Administrator for one of the first ever Martin Luther King, Jr. Convocations (GCN) Conference, I have proven my commitment to the promotion of thought-provoking projects which enhance the atmosphere of the college.

When I became involved with a project, I take initiative in its planning and execution, exhibiting creativity and strong leadership skills. I have a high level of energy and contagious enthusiasm that is imperative in maintaining a strong organization. As a Resident Assistant this year, I have done extensive programming centered around awareness-raising issues and have planned several more than twenty involved in the Student Advisory Council (SAC). Regionally, I was a BSAC Representative for the Greater Boston Regional Student Advisory Council to the Massachusetts Board of Education. Statewide, I was a representative of the Greater Boston Region in the Student Advisory Council to the Mass. Board of Education. Eleven regional Councils elect their student council’s representative to the State Student Advisory Council, which elects the student council’s full voting member of the State Board of Education. I have also been involved in Student Politics by participating in the SGA’s legislative internship program and the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) Conference.

I believe Matt Maginniss and I will make a successful team, combining experience and dedication and will be able to get the students involved in the future politics of Trinity. I believe that we represent you next year.

Matt Maginniss: Fellow students, my name is Matthew Maginniss and I am running for the office of Vice-President of the Student Government Association. I am committed to seek election because of a strong desire to serve the Trinity community. Supporting this desire are personal integrity, intelligence, and communication skills. In more concrete terms, I have experience in the following positions.

Signs Nu Fraternity: House Manager, 1987-88
Sigma Nu Fraternity: House Manager, 1987-88

I believe the leadership of the SGA should be a strong and visible presence, and that the SGA is supposed to represent your interests. I believe that we represent you next year.
Most students face a long tough road after graduation. But this should help.

HOSTING SOVIET STUDENTS

Next fall Trinity will welcome some of the first Soviet undergraduates to study in the United States under the newly formed East-West Consortium for Academic Exchange. We are among two schools in the Soviet higher education system. We do not as of yet know their gender or their fields of specialization. The Soviets have requested that they be roomed separately, with Junior or Senior American students, preferably in a "Quad" arrangement. If YOU AND YOUR ROOMMATES ARE INTERESTED IN SERVING AS HOSTS TO ONE OF OUR SOVIET GUESTS, PLEASE CONTACT PROFES-SOR JAMES WEST, DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY, BEFORE THE END OF THIS WEEK.

Include the names of those involved, your majors, and phone numbers where you can be reached.

Security's Biaggio Rucci Responds To Community

By Jay Flammea-
Triod spotlight

The issue of Security has clearly be- come one of the most sensitive topics on Campus. A cloud of controversy sur- rounds the topic of the more questionable campus policies, and this is taken a step further by Security's interpretation of any given situation. In order to find out exactly what the students want to know about Security, I sampled fifty students, asking them to pick the most controversial question involving campus security. I took the most popular question and posed these to Mr. Rucci. Here are his answers to your questions.

Rucci: This is an open campus. We get strangers to Security because they think they're friends, or someone who has some- thing to say... I think because they're afraid that it might be somebody else's friend, or someone who has the right to be there.

Tripod: Do you think it is possible that there is no real threat perceived to strangers by Security because they think that Security's response to the situation will be ineffectual?

Rucci: No. The impression I get is that they don't want to cause a scene, just in case the person is here legitimately. But they might not be able to do something in that situation. Security's approach everyone saying, "You don't belong here." We are sensi- tive enough to know that if someone is somebody, we are going to do something if they are perceived as being a threat. So if that is the case, Security wouldn't do something to the person.

Rucci: No. What we need is more student interaction. Call us up, we'll see if we can help the individual, and be sensitive to the fact that this person could have reason to be afraid. Students are starting to call us. An issue in the upper right corner of a student cutoff-up saying that kids were messing around campus. They got the kids, but when we questioned the kids, they really didn't break into anything. But that was good that the people were being active. He might have prevented dam- age. There's some way in which we'll find out. But the fact remains that we did take some kind of action.

Tripod: Why isn't there effective sur- villance of Trinity students who are un- authorized?

Rucci: The amount of incident that occur in small groups. It's a hassle. Back in September the CPTV was getting hit. I assigned a man down there from 6:00 to 9:00 every evening. The time we were getting hit, I assigned a man down there for about a week, nothing. It went right down there. So that was along good, for a while. Then Ferris started getting hit. Since that started getting hit, I put a man down there. This is a two-fold thing of the kids coming off the streets onto the cam- pus, we know they're down there, and longs eyes on the vehicles. The reason we're getting hit on Broad Street is that it's a hi- er-missipulation. First of all there is security going on at all Ferris all through the night. With this come our notions. We have lists of individuals, from ages 8 to 15, that are causing all the aggravation down there; breaking windows, throw- ing rocks. We go down there, get the kids, turn them over to the Police Depart- ment. We told some kids that they can't come on campus, we've had our druggies broken windows by some kids. When we leave, they just come right back, knowing they have a few minutes before we leave. No way can we control it. It's a damage. I will say this, our biggest prob- lem is that people can just get away fast. I'll give you an example. A security guard on Summit Street walked by part of his beat, came back ten minutes later and the area was clean. So we've got police, sometimes things just happen too fast. We're doing what we can. We can only do something, but we can't do nothing.

Tripod: Do you think you need more personnel?

Rucci: Yes, give or take a few. A priority was decided in instituting a new schedule where the escort will be out in a newsletter soon. Two or three minutes of the the escort will arrive. The escort will have some kids that are not on campus, we've had our druggies broken windows by some kids. When we leave, they just come right back, knowing they have a few minutes before we leave. No way can we control it. It's a damage. I will say this, our biggest prob- lem is that people can just get away fast. I'll give you an example. A security guard on Summit Street walked by part of his beat, came back ten minutes later and the area was clean. So we've got police, sometimes things just happen too fast. We're doing what we can. We can only do something, but we can't do nothing.

Tripod: How many of the 120 are student vehicles?

Rucci: Four or five hundred. The escort program had to be put into effect. The reason behind it is that there are people in the vehicles. They must commute. There must be made.

Tripod: Are you aware that students are being ticketed in designated student parking areas?

Rucci: Those might be ticketed because they are not registered. In addition we do not ticket very often on weekends. In addition we have an appeal process by which wire s or students, who for some reason or other are wrongly ticketed, can appeal the ticket. If there are multiple offenders, we know that the cars come to be a visitor, so we yank the car.

Tripod: How much money would you need to have an adequately equipped Security force at Trinity?

Rucci: I can't tell you in cash. I ask for personal. If we have a problem that I can't handle with what I've got, I say I need some more men or what ever to the administration. I've already eliminated footbrains and have more help on the way.

Rucci: This is an open campus. We get strangers to Security because they think they're friends, or someone who has some- thing to say... I think because they're afraid that it might be somebody else's friend, or someone who has the right to be there.

Tripod: Why has there been such a problem with the perception and effi- ciency of Security escorts? Frequently your escort seems to be late or never shows up at all.

Rucci: This is for two reasons. We just instituted a new schedule where the escort makes three campus tours an hour instead of two. This new system may be throwing off the drivers, who aren't yet used to it. Or students as yet haven't noticed the changes.

Tripod: But it takes twenty minutes to get around campus, a very small campus.

Rucci: Twelve minutes. It takes twenty minutes to get around campus, and with the walls at certain areas solid to about twenty. The escort will arrive usually within a two or three minutes scan of the estimated time. This, along with the new schedule within the next one now.
Coast Guard Squeaks By Rugby

---By David Low---

Coast Guard's 2nd half momentum was the key to their 9-3 victory over the Trinity Rugby Club in the Bants' home opener this past Saturday.

In rugby, a basic idea of the game is for the right team forwards to be the biggest, tougher players afoot in football line-ends, in gain possession of the ball and get it out to the line of seven backs (the fast, elusive running backs of rugby). In the 1st half, the Bants had a difficult time breathing against the strong Trinity forwards. They were moved of the lineouts in jumps much where both teams' forwards faced off in two lines and legs for the ball thrown in the tunnel (between them) and were successful at ripping the ball from tackled Coast Guard player - the crucial process is termed "mauling".

The Bants defense was tensions on both the backs and forwards kept in the Bants' faces and limited their forward movement. In the Trinity - dominated 1st half, the best Goldie crest was traced to some muscle-tensing, bone-compressing, lung-crunching tackles. Bantam senior back Sam Branchamah, junior forwards Greg Fullem and Bob Barnhill, and senior centerback Mick Barnhill, in his first varsity game, handled Kathy Ennis' ground ball. A sacrifice fly by Lisa Lake (2-3, on the drive) drove Silver, giving Trinity all the runs they needed to defeat the Lions, as strong pitching by Leanne LeBrun held Wheaton to just two hits. Other strong performances were turned in by Lisa Banks, who went 2-3 with 2 RBI's, and Kayo Forghie, who also went 2-3, with 1 RBI.

The Women's Softball Team travelled to Norton, Massachusetts to face Wheaton College this past Saturday for the start of their 1988 season. The Lady Bants ended up splitting a doubleheader, winning the first game 6-0, and dropping the second 9-1.

In the first game, centerfielder Robin Silver started things off with a bunt single. She advanced to third on a throwing error after Wheaton mishandled Kathy Ennis' ground ball. A sacrifice fly by Lisa Lake (2-3, on the drive) drove Silver, giving Trinity all the runs they needed to defeat the Lions, as strong pitching by Leanne LeBrun held Wheaton to just two hits. Other strong performances were turned in by Lisa Banks, who went 2-3 with 2 RBI's, and Kayo Forghie, who also went 2-3, with 1 RBI.

Trinity's bats just didn't stay alive for the 2nd game, as the Lions' pitching held Trinity in just 5 hits and struck out 8. Third baseman Luke was again 2-3, with Trinity's solo RB. Wheaton started things out with 3 runs in the first off of starter Kathleen Doming, who back strong for the 2nd inning. After a hit by pinch, single, and 2 walks, Trinity called on LeBrun to finish the game and possibly lead the Lady Bant to a win, but to no avail.

The Lady Bants travel in Conn. College on 4/12 for a 3:00 game, and play their home opener on Thursday, 4/14 at 3:00, facing the Tufts Lady Jumbos. Trinity also faces Wesleyan twice on Saturday, 4/16, as the take out the always tough Lady Cardinals; game time, 1:00.
Athletics and Royals to Battle for A.L. West

--by Matthew Miller--

Oakland Athletics: This is probably the most dangerous offensive team in the league. The A's boast one of the best lineups in baseball. Captain Tony Oliva is back, and newcomer Darrell Evans has hit 30 home runs in three of the last four years. The Athletics are loaded with power, speed, and base-stealing ability. Third baseman Dave Kingman is a threat from the right side. Shortstop and leadoff hitter Bert Campaneris is one of the best in baseball. Catcher Ray Fosse has a cannon arm, and Kevin Mitchell is a left-handed power hitter. The Athletics are a strong team with a solid defense. They are a contender for the American League West.

Kansas City Royals: The Royals are a team to watch. They have a young and talented lineup. First baseman George Brett is a future Hall of Famer. Shortstop Bo Jackson is a rising star. Outfielders Darryl Strawberry and Rich Gedman are top-notch players. The bullpen is deep, with lefties John Quisenberry and Gene Garber. The Royals are a strong team with a solid defense. They are a contender for the American League West.

San Diego Padres: The Padres are a strong team with a solid defense. They have a talented lineup, including right fielder Tony Gwynn, center fielder Tony Gwynn Jr., and left fielder Garry Templeton. The bullpen is deep, with lefties John Quisenberry and Gene Garber. The Padres are a strong team with a solid defense. They are a contender for the American League West.

Chicago White Sox: The White Sox are a team to watch. They have a young and talented lineup. First baseman Tony Oliva is back, and newcomer Darrell Evans has hit 30 home runs in three of the last four years. The Athletics are loaded with power, speed, and base-stealing ability. Third baseman Dave Kingman is a threat from the right side. Shortstop and leadoff hitter Bert Campaneris is one of the best in baseball. Giants and Astros Cruise Of The '88 Crop

--by Bill Charan--
Sports Editor

Someone once said, "Go west, young man." And so we shall.

1. San Francisco Giants: This team could win the National League West. They have a strong lineup, including left fielder Garry Templeton (.273, 26 HR, 85 RBI in 1987), center fielder Kevin Stocker (.256, 23 HR, 71 RBI), and right fielder Tony Gwynn (.295, 16 HR, 93 RBI). The bullpen is deep, with lefties John Quisenberry and Gene Garber. The Padres are a strong team with a solid defense. They are a contender for the American League West.

2. Houston Astros: After last year's El Niño, a lot of people have been writing off the Astros. They are making a giant mistake. The Astros have a young and talented lineup, including shortstop Barry Larkin (.273, 26 HR, 85 RBI in 1987), center fielder Kevin Stocker (.256, 23 HR, 71 RBI), and right fielder Tony Gwynn (.295, 16 HR, 93 RBI). The bullpen is deep, with lefties John Quisenberry and Gene Garber. The Padres are a strong team with a solid defense. They are a contender for the American League West.

3. Cincinnati Reds: The Reds' hot streak continued as they won their fifth straight game. They are the team to beat in the National League East. The Reds have a strong lineup, including left fielder Garry Templeton (.273, 26 HR, 85 RBI in 1987), center fielder Kevin Stocker (.256, 23 HR, 71 RBI), and right fielder Tony Gwynn (.295, 16 HR, 93 RBI). The bullpen is deep, with lefties John Quisenberry and Gene Garber. The Padres are a strong team with a solid defense. They are a contender for the American League West.

4. Los Angeles Dodgers: (Abercrombie and Company) This team is a force to be reckoned with. "Who's on first?" will be the Stengel question of the season. The Dodgers have a strong lineup, including shortstop Barry Larkin (.273, 26 HR, 85 RBI in 1987), center fielder Kevin Stocker (.256, 23 HR, 71 RBI), and right fielder Tony Gwynn (.295, 16 HR, 93 RBI). Sudden Death

By - Kate Dilloon - Sports Writer

The first official race of the 1988 season was held at the Rich Mountain Reservoir against Coast Guard and Mount Holyoke. The teams split at the end of the season, and the hard work eventually paid off for the Mount Holyoke tracksters.

The women's lightweight 4 event was one of the many highlights of the season. The team came out strong in the first race of the season, and the event was won by Mount Holyoke. The 4-person crew, composed of Emily Miller '89, last to a much more experienced crew by 2 seconds, was a great beginning to the lightweight season.

Coaches praised the team's efforts, saying, "Considering that we weren't practicing swimming, I think we did extremely well." The team went on to win the event by 0:50:57.

The J.V. women had a tough race against Tufts '89, but they still qualified for the NCAA meet. They were rounded into shape, and each has the potential to cause a real stir come playoff time.

By the way, I still need to hear back from you about all the trips was the dedication shown by the athletes.

There are so many more. But, the most impressive thing that went wrong with the Whalers, I don't know. But I would never have been able to believe the outcome of the game. It was a spectacular show of athletic prowess.

Congratulations to Robin Sheppard on her 100th lap. She is a dedicated runner and has a great attitude. I, for one, am inspired by her dedication to the sport.

It's fun to see all those teams competing in the Eastern Conference. It's always exciting to see how they perform. The competition is fierce, and it's always a pleasure to watch the athletes.

Track Finishes A Strong Second

By - Aaron Sobel - Staff Writer

If you combine some beaches in a tropical paradise with fun and relaxation, you get the perfect spring vacation. Well, for members of the Trinity men's and women's track team, it is exactly that. The team is also using it as a way to build team unity and gain valuable experience.

The season has been a high point for the Trinity tracksters, as they have been gaining experience and dominating in a win in a practice meet against Williams College. They are looking forward to their next meet against Amherst College, which will be held in Williamsburg, Virginia.

On Saturday April 9th, this question of how and determined and prepared the tracksters were was firmly answered by the unity of the team. The Trinity men and women's track team combined and won the 4x100 meter relay of Alderson, Donovan, Ostrander, and Conklin in 42.44. They also won the 4x400 meter relay of Alderson, Donovan, Taffuri, and façade in 3:38.8.

The successes continued into the middle distances where Man Davis and Mike Moore really brought their A game. Davis, who received the 1500 meter with a time of 4:27.4, and Moore, who finished second in the 800 meter with a time of 1:54.8, continued their strong performance.

The men's team also won the 4x100 meter relay with a time of 44.0. The 4x400 meter relay was also won by Trinity, with a time of 3:38.8.
