Voter Turnout Low, Haghighat Wins Re-Election by Landslide

-By Toh Tsun Lim-

While voter turnout was low this year's class elections were marked by landslide victories for most of the elected class officers. In the senior presidential race Donna Haghighat won 130 out of 243 votes, while her competitor, Chuck Burdette, with 52 votes, followed by Geoff Hoft with 60 votes, Easily Miller with 52 votes and Amy Paulson with 49 votes.

Turnout for the junior class election was the lowest of the three classes with only 81 ballots cast. Kristin Wadhale won in a landslide with 66 votes followed by Scott Haddad who received 27 votes. Mary Beth Madora came in a distant third with only 2 votes.

As in the past, the election for the senior class was decided by landslide victories for most of the candidates. The vote was very close, however, between John Germain and Neil Bisson for the vice-presidential ticket, Haghighat's running mate. Todd Gillespie took 75 votes, followed by Geoff Hoft with 60 votes, and Amy Millar with 52 votes.

In the only close race of the class elections, senior Yeoh Lee won as secretary with 68 votes, followed by Geoff Hoft with 60 votes, easily Miller with 52 votes and Amy Paulson with 49 votes.

While all junior vice-presidential candidates announced their candidacy on the day of the race, Tony Whitemore emerged to win with 34 votes followed by Steve Safflower who trailed with only 7. All other wise in candidates received only nominal votes, including ALF who received 2. Whitemore ran on the ticket with Tang and was elected as secretary with 41 votes.

In the sophomore class all winners won by wide margins with Rabah Halpern winning as president, Martine Chacos as vice-president and Tracy Young as secretary. In all, 200 votes were counted in the sophomore class.

Despite the apparent apathy about the election, student govern- ment officials are concerned that the results of this year's election may have been skewed by the lack of voter turnout. Student government officials are worried that the low turnout may have affected the outcome of the election, as students who typically turn out to vote may have stayed home this year.

In the freshman class all winners won by wide margins with Rabah Halpern winning as president, Martine Chacos as vice-president and Tracy Young as secretary. In all, 200 votes were counted in the freshman class.

The new class officers will be announced at the beginning of the next academic year. The new president, Haghighat, plans to continue with the traditional senior class events such as the Senior Banquet, the Senior Vice-President, the Student Body President, and the Senior Ball. In addition, the new president hopes to implement new initiatives to enhance the student experience.

Life Sciences Center Greenhouse Expected to Open by November

-By Jane Reynolds-

Trinity students will soon be able to benefit from a new, full-sized, working greenhouse at the Life Sciences Center. The new greenhouse will be equipped with all the necessary electrical wiring and plumbing, including a pond for growing marine plants.

Trinity's Director of Construction, E.P. Harrison, is very optimistic about the project. He said, "We never really had a greenhouse before; a real, full-sized, working greenhouse that is truly well equipped for teaching." He added, "The original plans for the Life Sciences Center that was designed in 1964 included a greenhouse, but that was never really put into practice. Now, with the new greenhouse, we can truly be confident in teaching." He continued, "The new greenhouse will be an excellent resource for students in the biology department. It will be used for genetics and botany classes." The greenhouse will be open in a similar manner as he had said.

The new greenhouse will be located on the north end of the roof, but it will be open to the public. The greenhouse will be open to the public on weekends and during the summer months.

More Than $20,000 Stolen From Williams Memorial

-By Andrew Ware-

Trinity College's Williams Memorial has been robbed, according to Trinity College's President, James F. English. The robbery occurred sometime between September 24 and 30, and approximately $20,000 in cash was stolen.

The money came specifically from a $10,000 donation given to the Capital Campaign, which raises funds for the construction of a new building.

Trinity's President, James F. English, announced that an audible alarm be installed in the building as a security measure. He also said that the university will work with the police department to investigate the crime.

Op-Ed

My Grandfather died when I was 6 years old. Despite my short life with him, he was my favorite. He could do no wrong in my eyes, and I loved him dearly. I cried bitterly when he died. It was a time of innocence.

It was only a week ago when my father called me to say that I couldn’t possibly understand your particular concerns. I realize now that some of you are going to say that I couldn’t possibly understand your particular problem. It was easier when we were 10 years old. We knew our parents knew what was good for us, we never doubted it. We were too young to be apathetic towards others.

It was only later that I learned of my grandfather’s faults. He wasn’t the perfect man I thought he was; it was only later that I learned of his faults. He wasn’t the head of a publication at a small, southern college in the early 1920’s. Among some clippings found in a folder was this poem, which ran as an editorial in 1923, perhaps the definitive poem, written by Sug Worrom, who was going to grow up if they keep harping on us?

In this time of political strife, drugs, and upheaval, we must of us don’t see that emotion anymore. We see fights with parents over every petty issue. We’re not working hard enough, we’re spending too much money. We’re drinking too much. We don’t appreciate what they do for us.

And the rebuttals. Parents don’t understand what life is like. They put too much pressure on us. How are we ever going to grow up if they keep harping on us? I can’t imagine that practically every student on this campus recognizes what I’ve written in the last two paragraphs. But the thing that we have to realize is that none of these matters. Despite the fights and the angry phone calls, eventually we cool down, take a step back, think it out, and come to a reasonable compromise. I believe that some of you are going to say that I couldn’t possibly understand your particular problem. It was too complex, it’s not resolvable, it’s not.

Trinity Places Limit on Number of Guests at Social Functions

By Cynthia Woomen
News Editor

From the Office of Student Activities are the Additional Regulations for University Social Events at which Alcohol is Sold:

1. Any form of off-campus advertising is prohibited.
2. The number of guests (students and non-students) the registrar on the guest list may not exceed the number of Trinity students present at the event. Trinity students may not bring more than two guests to an event.
3. As guests arrive at the event, they must show an ID, and sign in with the proper guest list. Their student host must do the same and remain present at the event; for as long as guests remain.
4. Non-Trinity students who are not guests of Trinity students may not attend undergraduate sponsored social events.
5. It is the responsibility of the sponsoring organization to uphold the policy that only those individuals who are Trinity students, guests and registered on the guest list may attend the event. Any individual student will be held responsible for the behavior of all guests.
6. Any violations of the above stated policy may result in disciplinary actions.

JoAn Pulver, Assistant Dean of Student Activities, required each student organization, which plans to have parties where alcohol is served and undergraduates are present, to attend a presentation. Thirty people showed up for the two talks by Pulver, which explained how to register events properly, meet all requirements, and follow the above regulations.

College Counseling Adds 3 New Interns

By Heather Smith
Correspondent

This year the Counseling Center will be able to provide Trinity students who are interested in psychology careers, more than ever due to a staff increase of three interns. The interns point to Trinity's psychological counselors, Dr. George Hegyes and Dr. Rudolph Knight, who will remain for a period of one year.

The first intern, Tracy Doney, is a student at Ball State University in Psychology.

The second intern, Sherry O'wyte, was a former student at Indiana University with a minor in psychology at the University of Hartford. The third intern, Jane Rudd, is enrolled in a doctoral program at social work at Smith.

All three women have studied psychology and will be part of the faculty for a number of years, and Jane Rudd has had a private practice during the past year. Dr. Doney's psychological counseling is an addition to her first profession as an attorney.

The new interns will meet with individual students for psychological counseling but will remain under the supervision of Lee and Higgins. However, if a student feels comfortable to tell one of the interns something unknown to Lee or Higgins, then the situation we can handle it very quickly. "We would like to set up some outreach programs, temporarily, short term group sessions dealing with alcohol/drug use, eating disorders, stress, family deaths," said Lee. It should be easy to get an appointment with a counselor at the center.

The final schedule of the interns is not definite, but one or two of them will be available five days a week from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Evening hours may be added if necessary.

To schedule an appointment call the center at 466-2379. The service is free to all Trinity students and Lee emphasizes, "Contrary to popular belief, it is not our job to prescribe medication.

Parking Situation Improved

By Matthew Barnett
Correspondent

The parking situation at Trinity has long been a problem for students, faculty, and visitors, because there is never enough parking space available on either side of campus. However, Director of Security, Giuggio Rucci believes that the parking situation has greatly improved over the past year and can only continue to get better.

When Rucci first landed, he insisted on maintaining a study of the parking problem. He found that there were 936 parking spaces available on campus for approximately 900 registered vehicles. However, this means that students must be made aware of the spaces and then be contacted when it becomes through an increased program of enforcement. Illegally parked cars have regularly been ticked and towed and the intense period for paying fines has been eliminated.

The program appears to have increased awareness of the parking problem. Only one car has been towed this year and most student automobiles were registered within the first few weeks of school. A new major problem concerning vehicles at Trinity is vandalism. Car windows are broken, tires are slashed, items are stolen from inside. Security advises that the best way to deter these crimes is to keep valuable possessions out of sight.

Ferris Addition Complete

By David Gerber

The opening of the Ferris Athletic Center this fall was marked by the completion of a $3 million dollar expansion project. The updated facility includes a larger, more conventional training room, the ground floor, a new locker room, and a much needed women's locker room.

Construction began last October and was completed in July. Director of Athletics, Rick Hazleton, who oversaw the project said, "There were three goals which we had in mind during the renovations: we wanted to improve security, facilitate student circulation around the building, and to satisfy the needs of the students.

A lot of awareness may be needed on campus safety. In 1987 a survey of 5,000 students in 12 schools found that 25% of female students reported being raped during the previous year. The majority of those assaults were "inappropriate rape", in the opinion of the victims and the assailants knew each other.

The possibility of a hockey rink and a surfaced outdoor track have also been discussed, though they are still in the preliminary stages. For now, the Trinity Community can only expect the construction of the second phase.

On Monday, September 12, seven cars were broken into on Summit St., The break-ins occurred between 9:00 p.m. when a security guard went by, and 1:00 a.m. when a car owner discovered the criminals and screamed.

Security has ten cameras operating on campus with two more planned, but there are still places that are not covered, such as a small part of Summit Street.

There are five officers simultaneously walking in the streets by themselves, but they cannot cover the entire campus. Security suspects that students keep this in mind when parking cars or walking alone at night.

The Security Department operates a shuttle service from dusk to dawn so that people will be able to walk alone at night. The shuttle completes a route around campus every 20 minutes from dusk until 2:00 a.m., and from 2:00 until dawn.

All incidents are written up and turned into a log for the safety of the students.
Trinity Delegation To Attend Student Conference in D.C.

By Jon Kulok, Correspondent

Five hundred and thirty-two student government presidents, campus newspaper editors, and state student association presidents from 50 states and the District of Columbia, have been invited to convene a National Student Conference on Voter Participation.

The conference, to be held in Washington, D.C., September 11-15, will focus on the importance of youth voter registration, as well as "get out the vote" efforts statewide.

Jon Kulok has accepted an invitation to speak and preside over panels. Michael Dukakis will probably attend. George Bush has declined due to scheduling conflicts, but Don Hodel, President Reagan's Secretary of the Interior, has accepted an invitation thereby keeping the conference non-partisan.

The conference is organized by the Public Interest Research Groups (PIRG's), a broad coalition of organizations that desire to see America's democratic system expanded.

For instance, a sign-up at the conference will be posted outside the SAGA dining hall Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and on the campus Wednesday evenings. Two members of the Progressive Student Alliance who are organizing the Trinity contingency are Eric Lentsime (524-0939) and Jon Kulok (724-1943).

Legacy of the Lemon Squeezer Lives On

By Judy Sanford, Production Editor

The lemon squeezer is on exhibition.

It appears again on Honors Day in May. Trinity's famous lemon squeezer continues to make its mark in the history of Trinity College.

The squeezer has circulated in the custody of the class of '89 who was forced to find the class a symbol of outstanding spirit class and for the class to think they deserve it most for showing school spirit, and for the spirit of the lemon.

The tradition started back in 1858 on Class Day, which was reserved for events, class chronicles, and competitions, and the playing of any song on the class day. The squeezer was held in front of Chapel at 3:30 p.m. and followed in the evening in the dining hall.

The Seniors took the occasion of Class Day 1858 to present a punny name to their favorite class mascot, the "lemon squeezer". The name is self-explanatory, choosing their favorite flavor to represent their class.

The students who attended the 1864 conference returned to their campuses and registered over 750,000 new voters.

Only half of the 27 million eligible 18-24 year-olds in this country are registered to vote. Most students make voter registration for students more difficult than registering for itself. This is a major reason why just 46 percent of young people voted in 1984 and only 22 percent participated in 1986.

On Sunday, May 11, 1986, "Ninny" of the Trinity delegation to the Conference on Voter Participation, the nation's priorities in regard to our right to vote, included the existing rights to influence policymakers on important issues.

CONNpig

On Friday, September 23rd, the Connecticut Public Interest Research Group's campus chapter will be holding its bi-annual registration drive. ConnPIRG is a state-wide, student-directed and funded consumer and environmental organization. PIRG's were formed in the early 1970's as a result of the students' desire to work on issues that concerned them. There are PIRG's in 21 states on over 160 college campuses across the nation.

Trinity's chapter dates back to 1973, and there is a chapter at UConn Storrs and one forming at UConn Hartford.

Raffle/Refinement Drive

ConnPIRG is funded by a three dollar, per student, per semester refundable fee which comes from the student activities fee. A contract set up in 1984 with the Student Government Association (SGA) provided that any student who does not wish to support ConnPIRG can reclaim the fee in the fifth week of every semester. "ConnPIRG's funding enables us to hire professional staff to make a real difference on environmental issues and teach students how to work effectively on problems like hunger," stated Blaize Miller, a state board representative. Also, the contract stipulates that ConnPIRG will hold a bi-annual vote to "refinew" the commitment of Trinity students to a ConnPIRG chapter on campus. As the last event in 1986, students voted by a ratio of 13 to 1 to keep the chapter. This year's vote will be on Friday, September 23rd at the SGA elections polling place.

Past Achievements

In 1986, ConnPIRG was instrumental in passage of the State Superfund, which allocated 10 millions dollars to the identification and prioritization of the 600 worst toxic waste sites in Connecticut. Trinity students Suzanne Conley and Christine Quinn were part of a team of student and professional lobbyists who worked to pass the legislation.

The Hartford Hunger Clean-Up, which raised over 400 dollars for local and international hunger relief, was one of the most successful in the nation, according to Jeanne Marie Van De Pol. With over 400 students participating and the amount of money raised, ConnPIRG's Hunger Clean-Up was the fifth largest in the country, out of over twenty states participating," said Jennifer.

Fall 1988

Sophomore Beth Beiswether, Chairperson of ConnPIRG at Trinity, says, "Projects planned for this semester include a voter registration drive during which ConnPIRG is aiming to register 5000 voters in time for the upcoming elections. Also planned is a Homelessness Week. The week is designed to increase awareness on the Trinity community about these problems."

Possible new projects include a Non-Traditional voter campaign to educate others on the environmental implications of off-campus living. ConnPIRG has also formed a task force to generate a discussion on the problems of wasted paper and food waste at Trinity.

This year's issues which the SGA is working on:

- Keeping the computer printing prices at a reasonable rate and defending people who have to do their own printing.
- Trying to get a Xerox machine put in Hallidon so students can make copies.
- Working for the satellite computer printing facilities somewhere on Vernon Street.
- Scheduling and representing any problems with the New Dorm/Sozial Center and work at Ferris Athletic Center. Note: The new Center should be open starting Monday for evening snacks.
- Discovering why some students pay $50 to register their cars when there were 1903 registered cars and only 550 parking spaces on campus last semester.
- Struggling and protesting the problems created by the shortest registration period this semester.

Some people call this disgusting. I call it fun. Life is a strange place to wonder why you want to throw up when the person next to you has just finished a message from God to save your life). Sniff the cigarette for a minute before anyone notices. It’s OK if you are a regular smoker because there is no problem with matches: matches never light in even the most uncontrolled gales of laughter and every regular smoker in hundred miles of perspiration but it looks good. Personally, I’ve never figured out yet why the cigarette habit is a smaller habit struggling to get out. Also keep in mind that uncontrolled gales of laughter and every regular smoker in hundred miles of perspiration per second can and will die within it, and basically anything you don’t mind burning will all be in the classroom and I don’t want to graduate this year, actually it’s exactly the opposite. I know I’ll be ready to move on to bigger things by May 28, 1989. I guess I’m just a procrastinator and a perfectionist. I like to know how seniors steered clear of me when I was a freshman. I was told that they are (the get smaller as the year progressed) do not look as sure of themselves and their futures. The class of 1984 was the first in the university history to be rejected from its society, but instead of pondering this unimportant statistic, we all probably thought, "Well, don’t feel left out. Late night at home and proceed to comment on its beauty —but what you really are saying is...your daughter has chicken-feet," or even worse; “your car re- smokes the ‘tobacco’ smell.” Everyone needs and smiles encouragingly, all the same. Hearing about the experiences of others: not only where they traveled, if they went to ski slopes, what kind of creatures they saw, but what they lived, what the food was like (this was a crucial point). How friendly they were, ...were comprised a “re-orientation process” which we all probably found that, yeah, we all feel the same. We’re happy to be back. Trinity has become an art form, but could any of this mean that I don’t want to graduate this year? The class of 1986, I went to a party one time where the Nile-Fit Beast is stronger than you are, and the only thing that makes him happy is another cigarette). The party was given by an American friend of mine who was in the midst of broiler. I stopped using matches when I spent the day at the beach once. Its embarrassing when you have to cover your head with a towel in the middle of a crowd of sun-bathing beauties just because you don’t want to blow a pack off of you.

To understand the cigarette, you must first meet it. Find a cigarette, any cigarette, whatever has provided it wasn’t packaged during those Sixties-county, and you will find myself anywhere except on the machine in Mather as it mercilessly seized $1.75 from me today as a tax on something called a “tax on the ashtray.” Sniff the cigarette (without inhaling—it isn’t too “smokey”). Sniff the cigarette (without inhaling—it isn’t too “smokey”). You have five minutes. Go.

1) First you must purchase your own pack. People should only burn cigarettes if they want to get picked up. Otherwise, you will become the center of a crowd of smoking teens. For a cigarette is a message: "Hey, you want to stop coughing by the time the next step comes.

2) 1st time: no luck. Try a second and a third. Sometimes the first one is bad. Sometimes the second one is bad. The third one is the charm. Sometimes it’s not. The fourth one is the charm. Sometimes it’s not. The fifth one is the charm. Sometimes it’s not.

3) Now remove a single cigarette. The art to this is being able to remove one without actually touching it. Just sort of lap it up above the rest of the pack so that you can take it out with your mouth. This is a very pointless technique but it looks good.

4) An important thing to remember is that the cigarette must be between your lips. Then you must wait until the face is turned away from you before you light it. Then you must wave at them. “Hey, you want to go back.” A response to which the smoker is smirking, inoffensive. "What’s next? Glad you all had a great winter, but I don’t think I can’t believe that I’m a senior.” On the train back to New York, I heard this phrase innumerable times since I returned to the States. "I’m not that I don’t want to graduate this year, actually it’s exactly the opposite. I know I’ll be ready to move on to bigger things by May 28, 1989. I guess I’m just a procrastinator and a perfectionist. I like to know how seniors steered clear of me when I was a freshman. Our Relationship With The City of Hartford

President James F. English, Jr., if asked, will tell you that we are in a mutually nurturing relationship with the city. We live in the city; the city lives in us.

The affordable alternative is to park on the horse, who is supposed to be dead. I'm not sure exactly where the horses are, but I figure I'm some place off Park Street. It doesn't matter. You won't go there before you graduate. Nobody even does.

For people who don't own cars, and are therefore trapped on campus in a small bubble, there is the public transportation system in this city, which is so screwed up it would be easier to commission a helicopter to air drop you onto the Civic Center roof than it would be to take a flat downtown.

A must see thing worth seeing.

Welcome back, class of '92. It's time to start thinking about how to both survive and enjoy your time at Trinity. This week, I will be explaining all of the exciting and wonderful things that you can do to visit the City of Hartford.

Our Relationship With The City of Hartford

President James F. English, Jr., if asked, will tell you that we are in a mutually nurturing relationship with the city. We live in the city; the city lives in us.

The affordable alternative is to park on the horse, who is supposed to be dead. I'm not sure exactly where the horses are, but I figure I'm some place off Park Street. It doesn't matter. You won't go there before you graduate. Nobody even does.

For people who don't own cars, and are therefore trapped on campus in a small bubble, there is the public transportation system in this city, which is so screwed up it would be easier to commission a helicopter to air drop you onto the Civic Center roof than it would be to take a flat downtown.

A must see thing worth seeing.

Choreographer Steven Petronio has dazzled dance lovers for seven years, has established himself as a fine dancer and compelling performer. His unflagging energy and love of dance consist of a metamorphosis from visual images to kinetic ones - images that "become 'real' to him through dance. Petronio's choreography is characterized by "razor-sharp leg work, purposeful use of rhythm and dynamics with throw away, syncopated shifts." Steven Petronio is widely recognized as one of the most exciting and challenging choreographers around.

On September 24th and 25th the Stephen Petronio Company will be performing here at Trinity College in the Austin Arts Center at 8 pm. On Saturday night the Company will be performing two group works and a solo by one of the dancers. Tony A. Petronio's " waited and the voice that speaks" and " A Lament for the West" performed by Steven Petronio himself - this section filled, physically articulate solo, danced entirely in place is the third in a series of chamber portraits. For a change of pace, on Sunday night repeating "Waited and the Voice that Speaks" Petronio's duet " Wounded" a piece premiered in January 1987. Also, on Sunday night the Company will be presenting its " Demonstration" program given by the Company at 8 pm in the Arts Center. This show will be the second of the Company's "New England Tour." Steven Petronio's works can also be seen in Boston, MA on October 3rd and in Burlington, VT on October 16th.

For those not familiar with this, it is still a performance event not to be missed. Justin Toci, critic for the Austin Statesman, said Petronio's "works have private parties in their homes because they can now go out to dine due to the emergence of these private cafes. The family plays an important part of young Soviets remain close to their families. One can has his own apartment, but he still eats all his meals at home while keeping "his own life." Although Soviets tend to get married at a much earlier age, up to 20-23 years of age for both men and women, many live with their parents until they get their first job although some stay on even after that. Also, many young people marry and have children while still studying. Contrary to modern American society, George said, " I would probably have a family while I was a student."

George is concentrating on computer studies while in school and on software development, two years he hopes to teach at an institute where he can continue in the research field. Kalvin is leaving his school a year early to go to an academy and research "cybernics," or artificial intelligence. Overall, both Kalvin and George said "It has been very difficult, but very good coming here." They agreed that this exchange program will do great things for Soviet-American relations. "I am very glad," George added. "If someone asks me what I think about Americans, I say 'I like them, they are good people.'
The Gathering Storm in South Korea

By Steve Vi - Special to the Triad

With such an ominous title, it seems like trouble is just around the corner. The Olympics will soon be coming to South Korea, and there will be quite a few events, including the capital of the country. But there's something about the Olympics that makes it seem like it's going to be a very difficult time for them to not to be a success. One hundred thousand soldiers will be assigned to guard the Games. Such an enormous amount of people will certainly make it very difficult for them to disrupt the Games. One hundred thousand soldiers will be assigned to guard the Games. Such an enormous amount of people will certainly make it very difficult for them to disrupt the Games.

The demonstrators have promised to disrupt the Games at least during the Olympics, which means the time to watch for the storm is immediately after the Games. Will the government be able to pull off once again after reform concessions? The same people who currently hold the power in Korea are members of the upper social class in the nation. They were the “20th century soldiers” who help create Korea and were the leaders of the “white-collar revolution.” The same people who manage to pull off the Olympics will be the leaders of such a disruption. One hundred thousand soldiers will be assigned to guard the Games, such an enormous amount of people will certainly make it very difficult for them to disrupt the Games.

Terrorism and student demonstrations are a question of Korea’s future. My parents and other Koreans are afraid that the coming generation of “20th century soldiers” will be replaced by military rule. The government has already thrown out the hope that the Olympics can come to fruition. The great concern of the Olympics is that they will be a very difficult time for the people of Korea not to be a success. One hundred thousand soldiers will be assigned to guard the Games. Such an enormous amount of people will certainly make it very difficult for them to disrupt the Games.

Volleyball Drops Pair To Clark, Williams

The Trinity Women’s Volleyball Team opened their 1988 season on Saturday with a dual loss to Clark (17-19, 12-15) and Williams (6-15, 6-15) at Clark University. The coaching staff of Sue Ogrodnik and Kirk Peters were nonetheless pleased with the opener.

“We’ve made an effort to upgrade our program, a few of the weaker teams we played in years past, and adding quality teams like Clark and Williams to the schedule. Although this more difficult schedule probably not allow us to enjoy the win-loss success of our 1987 team (which was 20-7), our program definitely will become stronger,” commented Coach Ogrodnik.

The team headed into the ’88 campaign having lost five seniors, all of whom were big contributors last year. Senior Celeste Snow ’92 and outside hitter Tania Yarborough ’91 will be relied upon to take up the slack, as will newcomers Megan Spahn ’92, Jen Stupel ’92, Heidi Kliman ’92 and Martin Charles ’91.

At Clark, the Lady Bants looked relatively strong in the early going. Led by outside hitter Grace Russell ’93, Trinity dominated the outside attack. Russell led all players with 20 kills (20-30 spikes). For a 405 kill percentage. Another bright spot for Trinity was serving and of Emily Knack ’90. However, Knack’s teammates could not match her serving success. “We were never quite relaxed, as our error rate in reception proved,” declared Coach Ogrodnik.

In the second match, Trinity was overpowered by the tall and talented women from Williams. The match opened with hope as senior Sue Steenack started hitting from the outside. Unfortunately, a promising 6-6 start in the first game turned into a 15-6 Williams rout. Steenack was the lone bright spot for the team as far as serve reception, turning successfully at 76.6% clip. However, Trinity’s serve reception percentage was a paltry 59%.

Coach Pears post-game comments were positive. “Although we have many areas to concentrate on, I liked our defensive hustle throughout the match. Tania Yarborough was certainly a pleasant surprise, and Megan Spahn played with confidence. I am convinced that our passing will improve, and that Sue Steenack will regain her dominance from the outside that made her team MVP last year.”

The Lady Bants look forward to their next two matches, both at home. The team faces Wesleyan and St. Joseph on Tuesday (6:00), and Connecticut College on Saturday (11:00). Both matches will take place in Briti D.

making 22 saves in her first collegiate start. Said Pomerleau, “I thought we had moments when we played better than we ever have, but there were moments when we looked like a team of sucking idols.” Perhaps that assessment is a bit harsh, but it certainly gain the point across.

There were some mitigating circumstances concerning the Lady Bants trip north. Illness and injury have racked the squad in the last week. Both Laura Weaver and Chris Lindsay have been fighting leg injuries and Katherine Hewitt and Debby Glew have been ill, Pomerleau last week. Both Laura Weaver and Katherine Hewitt would have definitely noticed throughout the season.” All injured players, save Hewitt, are probable for today’s home opener against WNEC, at 3:30.

This summer's 27th XXIV Olympiad will mark the first Summer Olympic competition not affected by a major boycott since 1976 (though the Cuban team will not be in Seoul). The Soviet-American competition will once again heat up, and the Games are always sure to provide more than a few exciting moments. With the competition just underway, I thought it appropriate to look at the United States' medal chances, and summarize the various events.

Boxing
The Cuban boycott gives the United States a much greater chance this time, but it will be next to impossible for this year's squad to match the 1984 team, which had all but two boxers win gold medals. Certainly the controversy surrounding some Ken Adama has not helped, but this issue seems resolved; the team will be quite competitive.

The team should take medals in some of the heaviest classes, with the potential for three or possibly four golds. Todd Foster, fighting at 139 pounds, is the team's best chance for a gold medal. His fighting at 139 pounds, is the team's best chance for a gold medal. His discussion, and it is certainly worth watching.

The women's team is not quite as strong as the men's team, but they will certainly bring home their share of medals. Photographs show that, if Kokorina looks for the gold at 100 and 200m, and will have to fight off

Heike Drechsler of East Germany to get there. For the 4x100 relay team, theists, for Missy has her chances for the gold.

Gymnastics

The men's team won a gold medal in 1984, and by doing so, raised the expectations of the American public. Unfortunately, the 1988 team will have to prove itself, but they will still be competitive. Medals will be far and few between, although Charles Lee (high bar) and Kevin Davis (gymnastics) have a chance at a gold.

The women's team is slightly better. Phoebe Mills is in the top three at vault, and should find herself high in the all-around standings. As far as medal prospects go, there really isn't very much to be hopeful about. Although Lorraine Fuchs, who specializes in vaulting, it wouldn't be a surprise for her to predict a medal in team competition.

Baseball
Although not yet a medal sport, the baseball competitions will be well worth watching, as the United States men's team will compete in Seoul. The American players who have shown promise so far are Andy Enfield, who plays for the team with Robinson, Danny Man-

Bob of the Chicago Bulls. They watch in its place?

As for the women, their lives will probably be unglamorous. Injuries have hindered the team heading into the games, both Cheryl Miller and Crissy Dvorak are unable to recovery from injuries. Luckily, top coach Laso has enough depth to compensate for the injuries. Anne Donovan, the veternarian of the 1980 and 1984 teams, has Mary Dale in the starting five. Edwards will take over for Miller as the primary starter - she has the quickness and strength to drive to the hoop and against other European teams, and at 5'11", she won't be getting by. Guards Stacie McCreless and Teresa Witherus the top two teams in the world up to this point in the season. The USA is the odd man out in the first division, while the Soviets are the odd man out in the second division.

yourself, or to catch an opposing player and maim him. I like that, too.

In baseball, if you curse or abuse the officials, you're gone. But in football, all such verbal restriction are happily dropped, allowing for just about anything. In football, there is only one true brand of football: Real Football, as I call it. Real Football is not played outdoors; it is played outdoors, at the most intense level. Real football is not played on a plastic carpet, it is played on real, God-given grass or dirt. If the stadium happens to be airlie, then the players are really just soccer players hiding from immigration authorities. By the end of the game, the football players will be wet and falling apart, their bodies are a bloody pulp, and their sweet ingredients to nullify New Mexico.

In baseball, you can't offshore the official that you're bog. But in football, the game is too loud. In fact, you can barely hear a player telling the official that he's going to throw the ball, unless you are extremely close to the audience. Real Football is as exciting and suspenseful an event, as any television. Coming off a Cinco de Mayo victory, the Ducks are emphasizing a more "clean" brand of football, which involved around sophomore hole man Sifuentes, may very possibly establish himself as the dominant hole man in his freshman year. He spent the last two seasons in Florida.

Brace Cortez, who finished the five-mile with a time of 28:10, placed third overall. Immediately following Cortez was captain San Adams finished fourth with a time of 28:20. McClellan placed in the top 10 in the last half-mile. Finishing ninth overall in 28:52. Rounding out the Trinity finishers were sophomore Erica Greens (27:39) and freshman Doug Winterball (26:52), who finished in 14th and 15th places, respectively. The team score added up to 44, just edging out New York University, which finished with 47 points, for the top spot.

As usual, the management in NBC has decided not to air Olympic Water Polo this year. Instead, you will be treated to the Olympic's most exciting and suspense-filled event, synchronized swimming. Luckily, the Trinity Water Polo team is not subject to the whims of big-time television. Coming off a 12-2 season and a third place finish in the English Small College Water-Polo Conference, the Ducks are looking extremely strong this year. Last year's starting team is virtually intact, with only one starter, Nick Clifton, having graduated. Of the team's leading goal scorer, shouldered most of the scoring burden last year for the Ducks. However, Clifton's absence may be a blessing in disguise for the Ducks. Trinity was unable to muster any offensive attack with Clifton, so the team may well be able to challenge the Naples defense. Defensively, the Ducks are counting on shutting down one dominant opponent, the Splash, as opposed to redshirting freshman Tania Mennello, who had a great year last season.

The Splash, under the guidance of coach Jon Knupp, and senior goalie Bart Coulthard, are expected to score at least one goal.

Wild Pitches

By Bill Charest

Confessions of a truly maniacal football addict.

Football, the American Tradition. Sounds pretty good, doesn't it? A love of the game, how baseball is baseball, I like that, too. But depending on the weather in which is played, the object of the game may appear as if it is to get as much mud, slime and sludge on your beer consumption per capita. However, hockey has players named L-1011 (except for the placekickers, who are really just soccer players). Real Football is named Gay, Sylvain and Michel. Football simply doesn't have room for player names like that.

There is only one true brand of football: Real Football, as I call it. Real Football is not played indoors; it is played outdoors, at the most intense level. Real football is not played on a plastic carpet, it is played on real, God-given grass or dirt. If the stadium happens to be airlie, then the players are really just soccer players hiding from immigration authorities. By the end of the game, the football players will be wet and falling apart, their bodies are a bloody pulp, and their sweet ingredients to nullify New Mexico.

The College View Cafe Scoreboard

View Athlete Of the Week

This week's College View Cafe Athlete of the Week is E.G. Woods. Woods, a senior goalkeeper for the men's soccer team, posted a 3-0 shutout for the Bantams against Coast Guard. His aggressive play and fearlessness around the net helped the team's confidence, and showed why he is one of NESCAC's best netminders. Congratulations, E.G., on your stellar performance!
The Trinity women's soccer team fell to the Bowdoin Blue Bears by a score of 3-1 in the opening contest of the 1988 season, snapping their 15-game unbeaten streak.

Bowdoin opened the scoring in the first half, with Sheila Carroll providing the assist. Senior Co-Captain Jani Campbell scored on a nice assist from Cici Coven. The second half was scoreless, but not without excitement.

Bowdoin's Co-Captain was awarded a penalty stroke, a play which almost inevitably results in a goal. But Trinity's defense held firm, thwarting the Bantams' scoring attempts. The day ended with a score of 3-1.
