Amherst Jars Bantams 22-8

BY DON PAPA

NOV. 5, 1960—Hard-fighting Amherst摔倒 at home, Paul a steady defensive anchor as Amherst wins a 22-8 victory over Newton in Saturday afternoon action.

The winning edge was a product of Amherst’s inside rushes, quarterback Dave Lawrence’s effective passing and a superior and unyielding Amherst line.

Air Yard Attempt

After sailing through, Trinity took to the end in a desperate effort to score. Earl Price, a North Dakota player, for his part 60 yards left and got 24 on the run. The play was worth 20, as the ball was fumbled.

Langhorne will point out, an Amherst fumble on the 15-yard line is the difference. A 15-yard penalty on fourth down in Trinity’s possession brought the score down to 22-8.

The score battled evenly through a scoreless first quarter, and once the second period came, an immediate momentum shift ended when Haskell’s extra points were clinched to pay the Amherst boys three points.

Sunday Parties Allowed With May Limitations

The Department of Education has allowed Sunday parties, but with certain limitations. The parties are expected to be well attended.

students will be allowed to carry apples and a few other items, but the food will be kept to a minimum.

The parties will be held on the campus, and the students are expected to be well behaved.

The parties are expected to be a success, and the students are expected to enjoy themselves.
Fair Representation

The issue of fair representation in the current Senate is highlighted by the recent election of senators. When the current term ends, the upcoming Senate will have to be elected by the student body. This will provide an opportunity for the students to choose the representatives who will best serve their interests.

A MODEST PROPOSAL

A modest proposal is a sly, shocking, satirical tale—something in which the author satirizes the idea of an organization called the United Irishmen, with the intention of reforming the Irish system of allowing women to vote and gain access to education and work. In the tale, the author, a satirist, proposes that women should be taught to work and be independent, rather than relying on men for support. The tale is written in a humorous and satirical style, and is a classic example of the genre of satirical literature, which is often used to critique and satirize social and political issues.

A MORE MODERATE PROPOSAL

A more moderate proposal is a type of proposal that is intended to be more acceptable to a wider audience. This type of proposal is often used in a more formal setting, such as a business or political situation, where there is a need to present a more moderate proposal to secure approval from a larger group of people.

A MODERATE PROPOSAL

A moderate proposal is a type of proposal that is intended to be acceptable to a wide range of people. This type of proposal is often used in situations where there is a need to find a middle ground that can be accepted by all parties involved. A moderate proposal is often used in situations where there is a need for compromise, and is intended to be more acceptable to a wider audience than a more extreme proposal.
