Charity Bid Gets Started

On FIFTH REDEEMERDAY 1953, a group of undergraduates and faculty members at Trinity College decided to organize a charity bid to raise funds for a worthy cause. The event was held in the College's gymnasium, which was filled with students and faculty members who had gathered to support the cause.

The goal of the Campus was to raise money for the Freshmen, Junior Advisors, and other students who needed financial assistance. The bid was open to all students and faculty members, and the money raised would be donated to a charity of the group's choosing.

The campus was divided into teams, each of which would be assigned a specific bid. The team with the most money raised at the end of the night would be declared the winner. The money was donated to the charity of the winning team's choosing.

The event was a success, and the money raised was used to support a local charity. The campus was once again united in a spirit of generosity and support for those in need.

Trinity To Begin Telecasting ETV In September '61

By JOHN SPARKS

FEB. 5-The Connecticut Educational Television Corporation will begin non-commercial television on Saturday, September 3, with the second floor of Williams Memorial Library, President Jacobs and Conn. ETV President Given. According to the announcement, the College will provide studio and office space, and a seasonal employee will be engaged to serve as production manager. The college will be used experimentally for one year, beginning September 3 in the library at the College.

This will be the third college in the state to establish a station. State and local educational television stations have been established in the University of Connecticut and the University of Hartford, as well as a third college. These stations will be used to experiment with educational television and to provide programming for local audiences.

Four Program Areas

The new station will be under the general control of the Corporation's programming board, which will be in charge of the programming and the educational television programs.

There will be four program areas: the educational television programs, the educational television programs for the Connecticut Educational Television Corporation, the educational television programs for the New England Educational Television Corporation, and the educational television programs for the New England Educational Television Corporation, Inc.

FEB. 1-Let it snow, let it blow, the College won't close, students and faculty members were told. A random poll to determine whether classes would remain in session today was taken from a sample of 150 students who were in attendance at the College's fourth annual Embassy religious lecture series. The sample was drawn from a list of all registered students, and the results were compiled by the College's polling agency.

The poll revealed that 150 students favored continuation of classes, while 150 students favored cancellation of classes. The results were announced by President Roark, who stated that the college will remain open today.

ETV Comes To Trinity

President Jacobson announced yesterday that the college would provide space for courses for the Connecticut Educational Television Network. Trinity is now a full member of ETV and all educational television programs will be available on this station. Those interested in the network may write Mr. Charles K. Dyer, Registrar, for specific information.

Jeff's Chapel Goes Secular

The Saturday evening service at the chapel, known as the "Secular Student Service," was held for the first time. As the service was held for the first time, only one student was present.

Library Third In Student Books

The Third Library Conference, "Student Books," was held at Trinity College. The conference was attended by over 600 students from various colleges and universities in the area. The conference was held in the campus library and was attended by over 100 faculty members and students.

Professors Show Prowess In Snow, Students Struggle to Stay afloat in Exams

As the snow continued to fall, professors across the nation struggled to maintain their classes and students worked hard to keep up with the workload. Despite the difficult conditions, many professors continued to hold classes and students continued to study.

Trinity Theatricals Praised

In a recent survey, Trinity's acting and directing students were found to be the highest rated in the country. The college's theatre department has been praised for its innovative approach to theatre education and for the high quality of its productions.

"What makes Trinity's theatre program so special is its emphasis on collaboration," said Professor J. Bard McNulty, head of the theatre department. "Students are encouraged to work together and to take risks in their performances."

The theatre department has a long history of producing successful productions. In recent years, the college has produced productions that have been well received by critics and audiences alike.

Scores Determined

Recent events have raised questions about the validity of the scores determined by the Connecticut Educational Television Network. The scores have been criticized for being too lenient and for not accurately reflecting the quality of the productions.

"I don't think the scores are accurate," said one student. "I think they should have been higher."

BOWDOIN TOPS MEREN; MIT MEET ON SATURDAY

By FRED PRYOR
BOWDOWK, ME., JAN. 29—This afternoon the Bowdoin Polar Bears headed the Stairs for the West Wing of the Foreign Linguistics building and the first three floors of the Alumni Union, and in the process came face to face with the 121st annual meet of the Bowdoin College Athletic Association.

The meet, which was to begin at 1:30 p.m., was limited to the men of the college, and the Polar Bears were the first to arrive, followed by the Wesleyan and M.I.T. teams.

The meet was held in the Alumni Cage, which was packed to the doors.

In the first two events of the meet, the 100 yard butterfly and the 200 yard medley relay, the Polar Bears took the first two places.

In the butterfly, Bill Lane of Bowdoin won the race, with John Stewart of Wesleyan taking second place.

In the medley relay, the Polar Bears and Wesleyan were neck and neck throughout the race, but Bowdoin pulled ahead in the final stretch, winning by a narrow margin.

In the next event, the 300 yard sprint, the Polar Bears took the first three places, with Bill Lane, John Stewart, and Bob Brumfield leading the way.

In the 100 yard backstroke, Bob Brumfield of Bowdoin won, with John Stewart of Wesleyan taking second place.

The meet continued with the 200 yard backstroke, and the Polar Bears again took the first two places, with Bill Lane and John Stewart leading the way.

In the 100 yard breaststroke, Bob Brumfield of Bowdoin won, with Bill Lane of Wesleyan taking second place.

In the 200 yard freestyle, Bill Lane of Bowdoin won, with John Stewart of Wesleyan taking second place.

In the 400 yard freestyle, Bob Brumfield of Bowdoin won, with Bill Lane of Wesleyan taking second place.

In the 200 yard medley relay, the Polar Bears won, with Bill Lane, John Stewart, Bob Brumfield, and Bill Schaefer leading the way.
