Barkham Foresees Less Divided Africa

OCT. 12—John Barkham, Governor of the Overseas Territories, has said that the hope of preventing Kenya from becoming an African nation is so remote that it could become the most successful African nation.

"The Congo, because of its U.N. intervention, is entirely different," Barkham said. "It has the potential to be the most successful African nation, but it is unlikely to happen."

"They attempted to integrate and they've had two problems. One is the kind of student they admit, and the other is the kind of student they accept."

The second group, "Mixed Negroes," he said, consists of "a few students who are not fit for white inhabitants."

Protesting U-Conn Students Boycott Homecoming Rites

BY NELSON HOBBS

Protesters say that the homecoming activities at the University of Connecticut are too commercial and not close enough to the students.

"We believe that the homecoming should be more student-oriented," said one protester. "The current activities are too commercial and not close enough to the students."

Freedom Rider Stresses Integration Efforts to the Christian Association

OCT. 16—John Gager, a Freedom Rider, told the Christian Association that the integration efforts have been successful.

"We are all brothers in Christ," Gager said. "Our efforts have been successful in breaking down barriers and promoting integration."

Commitment: A Threat Posed

BY WILLIAM NILES

"The threat will be constructive," the professor said. "The threat is for nothing."

The university administration has been criticized for not doing enough to promote integration.

"I don't know how we got by with this," the professor said. "I don't know how we've done this."
Cannon Si! Unilateralism, No!

The Tripod is concerned lest the student government become overconfident in its efforts to control the activities of the university. This is because the students must have a real appreciation of the problems involved in running a university, both at the local and national levels. It is important that the students see the need for cooperation between the university and the government, and that they understand the implications of unilateralism.

The Tripod has been critical of the student government in the past, but we believe that the students have a real opportunity to prove themselves capable of managing the university. However, we believe that the students should be more involved in the decision-making process, and that they should be more aware of the responsibilities that come with the position of student government. It is important that the students understand the impact of their decisions on the university, and that they are willing to accept the consequences of those decisions.

Broduy Relates Impressions From Russian Trip; Sees 'Schizophrenia' Developing From Western Awareness

In traveling this summer I may certainly on the impressions received during a two-week stay in habituated. Because Moscow is the capital of the Soviet Union, one who would like to be a tourist, would do well to visit Moscow. The Hotel Metropol, where I stayed, is one of the best-known hotels in Moscow. It is located in the heart of the city, near the Red Square, and offers a wide range of amenities. The hotel has a large restaurant and a bar, as well as a swimming pool and a tennis court. The hotel staff is very friendly and helpful. It is an excellent place to stay if you are visiting Moscow.

In Moscow, I saw many of the famous landmarks, such as the Kremlin and the Red Square. I also visited the Hermitage Museum, which houses an impressive collection of art. The museum is quite large, and it would take several days to see all of the exhibits. I was particularly impressed by the collection of Russian paintings, which included works by some of the great masters of Russian art, such as Repin and Serov.

I also visited the Pushkin Museum, which is dedicated to the works of Alexander Pushkin, Russia’s national poet. The museum has a large collection of books, manuscripts, and paintings related to Pushkin's life and works. I was especially drawn to the exhibit of Pushkin's personal belongings, which included his writing equipment and clothing.

In Moscow, I also visited the Great Synagogue, which is one of the oldest synagogues in Russia. The synagogue is quite large, and it was interesting to see how it had been preserved over the years. I was also able to attend a service at the synagogue, which was quite moving.

In addition to the formal events, I also had the opportunity to meet with some of the Russian people. I was amazed at how friendly and welcoming they were. I was impressed by their sense of hospitality and their willingness to share their culture with others. It was a wonderful experience to be able to connect with the people in a meaningful way.

Overall, my trip to Moscow was a wonderful experience. I was able to see many of the famous landmarks and to get a glimpse of Russian culture and history. I would definitely recommend visiting Moscow to anyone who is interested in Russian culture. It is a fascinating city with a rich history and a vibrant present.
Cooper Joins Health Board
