IFC Defeats Motion On Discrimination

By WILLIAM NILES

Trinity's I. F. C. defeated a motion yesterday evening at the special Senate meeting called to discuss the proposed clause allowing prospective rushes to omit specifying the sex of their prospective rushes.

The debate began when Senator John H. O'Shea submitted a motion that the Senate allow prospective rushes to ommit specifying the sex of their prospective rushes. The motion was debated at length and the Senate defeated the motion by a wide margin of 107-21 votes.

The motion was defeated because it was seen as a way to foster an atmosphere of equality and prevent further discrimination in the rush process. The Senate was also concerned about the potential for harm to prospective rushes and pledged to take action to prevent such harm.

Senator O'Shea argued that the motion would allow more equality in the rush process. He also pointed out that the motion was only intended to allow prospective rushes to omit specifying the sex of their prospective rushes.

The debate was heated, with many Senators speaking out against the motion. Many argued that the motion would only lead to more discrimination and harm to prospective rushes.

In the end, the Senate voted 107-21 against the motion. The vote was a significant victory for the Senate and a step forward in the fight against discrimination.

Letters To The Editor

Black Shroud Confiscation

To the Editor:

The fraternity of Vernon Street, of which I am a member, met last Monday night to discuss the matter of the "black shroud" which has been confiscated by some of the fraternities. The meeting was called to consider the different possible courses of action and to determine the role of the fraternity in the situation.

The fraternity of Vernon Street is one of the many groups of fraternities on our campus. It is a large and influential group, and its actions are often considered to be indicative of the general attitude of the fraternity community. The "black shroud" is a symbol of fraternity membership, and its confiscation by the fraternity raises questions about the relationship between fraternities and the college administration.

The fraternity of Vernon Street has a long history of controversy and conflict with the college administration. It is known for its strong sense of tradition and its resistance to change. The confiscation of the "black shroud" is just one example of the ongoing struggle between fraternities and the college administration.

Smith Reviews 'Tropic Of Cancer', Thinks Ban Baseless; Objects To The Criteria Involved In Court Decisions

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1951

PAUL J. SMITH

The decision of the United States Supreme Court in the 'Tropic Of Cancer' case is a direct result of the growing anti-morality movement in the United States. The Court has decided that the book is obscene and should be banned.

The Court's decision is based on the following criteria: 1) The book is offensive to a person of ordinary prudence. 2) The book is offensive to ordinary decency and public morality. 3) The book is offensive to any reasonable person. 4) The book is offensive to the average person of the community.

However, Smith argues that these criteria are subjective and arbitrary. He believes that the Court's decision is based on a personal bias against certain books and authors. Smith believes that the Court's decision is a violation of the First Amendment and a threat to free speech.

Smith believes that 'Tropic Of Cancer' is not obscene and should not be banned. He argues that the book is a work of literature and should be free from government interference. Smith believes that the Court's decision is a threat to the freedom of speech and the right to read.

Smith calls on Congress to amend the obscenity laws and to protect the right to read. He believes that the Court's decision is a threat to the future of literature and the arts.

Frosh Crush Sabrinas 38-8 With Six Touchdown Attack

BY MARK HOBSON

Nov. 21—The Trinity frosh football team defeated the Amherst freshman today 38-8 in a six-touchdown attack. The Frosh went ahead with a graceful touchdown in the second period. Twelve points were added in the third period, capped by a Frosh touchdown, which was made in the final period. The Bantams, however, were played almost entirely through the third period. The Trinity field was taken over by the Frosh in the fourth period, when they scored a touch and two points.

THE FRSHMEN SAVED the day by a six-touchdown defensive showing. Twenty-one points of the Frosh touchdown were scored in the last 15 minutes of the game. The Frosh were able to produce the points when they expected most. The Frosh had a very good line.

The Frosh line held the ball on the Amherst 20-yard line in the third period. The Frosh line also prevented Amherst from scoring in the last 15 minutes of the game. The Frosh line also prevented Amherst from scoring in the last 15 minutes of the game.

Amherst Strikes Quickly For Three TD's, Nears Lambert Cup With 22-8 Victory

By STEVE PERREault

HALFBACK TOM CALABRELSE takes a short gain and returns it 23 yards in third period of Amherst game vs. Pratt Field team. At far right, and Cagey White attempts to keep Jeffs from getting through to senior Van Nort and out of play. Van Nort scored on three Sabrina touchdowns and stopped Calabrelse after a short gain.

The key factors in the contest were Amherst's ball control. The Bantams, who have a much needed lift — a win — from the kick-off and the third was set-up by a pass interception. But Amherst fumbled six times: two short gains into the New England area already stifling to the facet.

PASSING: MISSES, SCRONS

Alex Hallam, a sophomore, Trinity was the first opponent to provide a real test for the Bantams. They held the vaunted Amherst offense to its lowest point — the first quarter. Amherst had two other fumbles, but none in the second and third periods. The Bantams might have been quite pleased with his squad's strong showing in the first half. But Amherst fumbled the ball away on fourth period Amherst fumbles deep within Lord Jeff territory into counting seconds.

The entire contest was a cleanly played, but at some points an exciting one. Trinity's second-straight conference football playoff game promised, and have both!

Calabrelse, a halfback who has oftentimes during the season combined his shifty running with some terrific bursts of speed to fool many an Amherst defender.
