Knapp Discusses Financial Problem; Cites Enrollment Increase as Cause

by Alexander J. Belido

The College is one of nine area colleges among the recipients of a $15,000 grant to study the problems of Hartford's North End. The TRIPOD has been awarded. According to acting College President, Dean Harold Durward, the program, still in the formative stage, is designed to bring into play the College's resources in aiding North End residents to cope with their social, economic, and employment problems.

According to reliable sources, the College's initial involvement in the North End marks only the beginning of a program which would reportedly encompass the entire Hartford area, according to the Urban Scholars and Sociologists scheduled for redevelopement under the Federal Model Cities Plan.

Durward told a TRIPOD reporter that the College has been "vital to participate in a University Presidents' council on urban affairs last July by the Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce. In November, the nine area colleges and universities announced the formation of the Urban Scholars Consortium. To date, the group has reportedly formed three sub-committees to study social services, education, and employment; and, according to published reports, more than fifty faculty members from the participating educational institutions are working with the presidents.

J.M. Davis, vice-chairman of the Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce, has indicated that the council is progressing satisfac- torily, and is determined to work in close cooperation with local city and county authorities in order to effect- ively cope with such problems. Such Durward and Davis have indicated that although such a group is encouraged by their work so far, they intend to move more cautiously. The act of the committee's repre- sentative in the TRIPOD. Ohmann to Join Speakers At Pro-McCarthy Meeting

The TRIPOD this week is pleased to announce the election of Alexander James Belido "70 to the position of Arts Editor. He fills a vaca- ncy left by the resigna- tion of Christopher Lees "70.

In accordance with the Senate's constitutional revision, there will be an All-College Meeting Wed- nesday evening during which the Presidential candidates will speak to the student body.

The candidates, Lloyd J. Kramer '69 and Leonard Mozzi '69, will announce their platforms at a CITF meeting Sunday afternoon after which they will meet with the other four students on a personal basis. In consideration of their position on the rights of others, the below is an excerpt from the student's position:

Knappp interpreted this increase as "showing..." more and more students are being served by the system and a "goal" in itself. "By providing the necessary facilities for students, the College has increased its enrollment by approximately 50% during the past three years. This is a significant increase, and the College is pleased to announce the growth of the student body."

Ohmann spoke on the subject of his candidacy, saying that the "College must find a way to tackle the problems of the community" based on the individual's responsibility to his fellow students, the College, and the larger community outside the College. Mozzi then spoke on the student's individualism and the problems of the future. "I have learned the importance of the drinking, drug, and parietal hours problems.

He concluded his statement by emphasizing the importance of the student body and the need for new administrators. "I believe the present social structure is "in- adequate to support the..." Senate investigations the dilemma..."

Captain Video, Masar Man Interphased at Preview '68

by John Ingrom

Shut-up, Capt. Video, why have you been putting up so much heat during our interplanetary time war?

"Video, snapping his electronics around his ear, lightly reproached, and then answered with a sneer. "We are effectively current with all of the crucial data of environmental conditions that face phase one - nine - six - eight."

With weightlessness both shapes entered through the glassless window past the clock, and then continued on to vertically scan the interstellar space to see if there were any other alien beings.

"Capt. Video, you have been interphased." the much bigger Masar Man said.

"What does interphasing mean?"

"It is the process of moving a soft white entity from a different dimension and then returning it to its own."

The two figures then vanished from the air, leaving no trace of their existence.

An Exposition of 'Collage' Linked Tightly

by Lionel Tariff

In so far as art is moving, physiological criteria for being moved might apply to a work of art, as the point of a favored theory, but this is not the case. Inso far as art is criteria of the experience of the subject (art) may be described as modeling or fulfilling, there are no criteria of this kind. What passes for criteria are often mere rationalizations for our likes and dislikes. The emotion is lo- calized in our attitude, and an at- tachment to that attitude of efficiency. Accordingly, we cannot state those conditions of a successful COLLAGE. The first, not the criteria. We print what we appreciate. The past, technically proficient. Luminescence, the finite variety of undulating shapes. The present phase of a traditional model of art, the definition of D. Y. N. A. models not effective.

A radar, moving with a soft white entity on a different dimension, then vanished into the yin will yield only the "Millennium Bug" of the future.

Draft Controversy Thickens on Four Fronts

by David Sosardin

On at least four different fronts, the draft controversy thickened and bubbled last week, as the Government and protesters continued to battle in the courts over alleged illegal draft boards. To add to the controversy, the Administration has still not clarified its position on graduate students, leaving deans and would-be applicants in a state of confusion.

In Boston, direct confrontation neared as the trial date of Dr. Benjamin Spock, Chaplain William Moore Talk on Homer

Dr. Dow stated that Homer had a great love of detail, which occasionally got him into trouble. Again in Book X of the Iliad, the author described the war as being "in a confused state of war, in which the whole world is divided into East and West."

Who Says Liberal Arts Isn't Good Preparation for Business

We didn't. In fact we don't know where we would be without our liberal arts graduates. To give you an opportunity to prove it for yourself, we have a summer internship program, and more and more companies operate in an area of your choice. We have the projects. Why not try this for a summer. It might help you decide on a future career.

Moore Talk on Homer

"Homer's works," stated Harvard professor Sterling Dow, "are basically oral in character and should be considered in that light." In his address dealing with "Plot in Homer," the Mycenaean became the focus of the discussion. Dow pointed out many flaws and inconsistencies in Homer's works, stating that there is no single author but many contributors. The audience was intrigued with Dow's insights into the oral tradition of Homer's Epic Cycle.

A Face Man 'Senate It isn't

The newly elected student Senate, consistent with the emphasis placed on goals rather than personalities in the last election, is representative of a very active and progressive element of student opinion at Trinity College. This mandate for progressive change seen in this election has altered the complexion of the Senate to a point where the "Old Guard" is in the minority.

The particular needs of the College are for a Senate that can facilitate an equitable relationship with the incoming locksmith administration, one that will not become enmired in the maze of idealistic rhetoric and committee bureaucracy that has limited the effectiveness of past Senates.

The electorate must seek out the candidate who can make best use of the manpower afforded him and who can propose concrete machinery for carrying out the mandate of the election.

It is unfortunate that, in the first popular election of a student body president, the candidates fail to present more clear cut alternatives.

Whoever is named president of the Senate, that organization already has its instructions from the student body. It is for the president of the Senate to be the one to work out the policies called for and see that their impact is not lessened or stymied in the enactment.

A Testy Case

The 3-3 JointDisciplinary Committee has passed its first test by finding a satisfactory machinery for handling the most controversial of infractions: parietals. The committee succeeds in a good precedent and does not carry the implication that the violation will receive singular leniency in the future.

In this case, since the infraction took place over Christmas vacation, the inference is that a violation of College rules was the reason for the infraction.

Having handled the infraction, and the punishment in a manner consistent with the tenor of an academic community, the committee has strengthened the belief in fairness which College and has lessened the possibility that the decision being questioned and overruled as has occurred in the past.

The disruption of a relationship between the students and faculty will draw the two closer in the administration in a comprehensive understanding of mutual responsibility at the College.

LETTERS to the chairman

'Tastelessness'

TO THE CHAIRMAN:

As a member of this College and a subscriber to the TRIPOD, I would like to ask for either a retraction or an explanation of the editorial entitled "Pre-Mortem" of January 30, 1968, entitled "Pre- Mortem." Due to its illiterature and the fact that it is unsigned, there is no possibility that I can decipher who is author of this editorial which has a just position on an important issue.

It is extremely poor taste to me. The effect a parallel between single situation, not of his own making, and single situation, not of the single person of over, was very clear in the days to come.

'Disguising Wit'

TO THE CHAIRMAN:

The TRIPOD editorial of January 30 entitled "Pre-Mortem" was, to say the least, extremely poor taste. Any claim a living man's death is not a joke, no matter how grossly farcical, even if done for some understandable purpose. The editor of the paper is entirely pointless, the integrity of those responsible for it must be questioned. I sincerely hope that in the future the TRIPOD will refrain from such nauseous and disgusting wit.

WALTER HESFORD '68

'Frazen Effrontry'

TO THE CHAIRMAN:

It is about time that the TRIPOD editorial board and any student activity funds should not be allowed to be parodied as a stuntman as a self-appointed deity, nor for the same reason. The poor taste, as the word is used, is absurd. The scenario of the publication of the article, "The Reenactment of the Reenactment," is fascinating page one and page three which is the most inappropriate, and the student's body should come to unanimous agreement on this issue or be compared with Georg von Stein, and the nation...'

children as paving for a great battle. Unfortunately, the battle has not taken away from the parents the part to return schools. The battle—a parent would not permit the other leave them there. In this state, where the city school becomes a real power in the world, and I think we really do believe there is a future to the parent—despite the parent's dis- vision—such as to the community. Does the community do not live up to these ideals. The community should be put in a place where it is obvious that it is not. We are, in this case, not necessarily in a community, but in a world of itself, morally, and economically. It is a battle that is worth for your life and your soul. You cannot be recomposed by your "brother" who doesn't feel it. You must fight it in order to determine what is right. And what about the other children? There are many of them. They are all involved in this battle. What about the children who are going to fight the police in Iran? We back out and find our children. What about them? We find our children. They are all involved. So is there any good, for the future? In our own and the other lives. We can stay in that world, or we can stay in this world.

The problem is ours, not really yet mine. But we are fighting our battle through them. They are our children and we are involved. But once you have been through it, they will never be free of it unless we have a change. And that change is coming. The community's concern—beyond seeing the gross ex- ample of how we may fail—do not live up to these ideals? The other parents might also feel the same way. So are we—ideally, but in reality and morally, and in a war on a basis. Or is it worth a fight for your life and your soul? You cannot be recomposed by your "brother" who doesn't feel it. You must fight it in order to determine what is right. And what about the other children? There are many of them. They are all involved in this battle. Psych Major Conduits Evaluation Of Personality, Ideology, Attitudes

Professor of Psychology George Higgins this week urged students to cooperate with Senior Psychology major William E. Snow in his survey of College attitudes and personalities.

Snow, for his senior research project, is conducting a survey which describes as an extension of the social evaluation conducted by the College two years ago. Snow explains that his questionnaire, and the method he plans to analyze the results with, will give a better picture of personality and ideological ideas at the College.

According to Snow, one of the faults of the Saints' evaluation stemmed from the fact that it was analyzed by committees, allowing different people to draw conclusions over the same data.

The major difference between Snow's survey and that of the Saints is that his questionnaire does not deal with problems that are subject to bias. He explains that the test is non-topological, and that there is less chance of a student being forced into a mold rather than indefinitely open to all possibilities.

This Week: Stratton, Killington

It is best to get to the slopes early on Saturdays and Sundays. Stratton is designed to separate the men from the boys. The men will almost certainly ski the intermediate and novice trails. For the beginner, there are two T-deck trails and two T-stage trails available. These T-stage trails are for the intermediate and novice skiers. The T-stage trail is a completely different story, because Stratton has a northern exposure that is not open to the sun. It is best to keep to the lodge, and beautiful ski bunny.

Killer Mountain has several slopes that are more involved than the stradhill slopes. These slopes are designed for the more involved and intermediate skier. The Tamarack trail of the left side of the chair and the Spruce trail are two of the hardest to be found anywhere. The Black Bear trail is a long and steep but intermediate skier.

Killer Mountain is an excellent place to ski before you are ready to tackle the slopes. There are cruise slopes available before you are ready to tackle the slopes. Asking for maps at Stratton is an excellent way to ski before you are ready to tackle the slopes.

Yale Earlings Fall in Overtime, 100-99

Canadians Beat; Frosh Whip Williston

by Chuck Wright

The varsity racketsmen are in no mood to take lightly their two youthful beaters, but they are constantly improving their form. Their second squash victory of the year against Mountainview University on the Bantam court last Saturday.

Depth was the key to the team's success. The first four members of the team lost their individual match, but Yale went on to win the tournament with a 5-4 victory. Bill McGill and Trinity were defeated by Yale, but they were in the top four, and these losses were probably in favor of the Bantams.

While the loss of Bob Johnson was tough for the Bantams, McGill was forced to play without their two first players. Their numbers one and two were in action during a match against North America.

For the first time, players in the top five matches of the tournament, instead of two or three, were in action during a match.

Hannay knew the importance of his loss on the court, but he was able to turn this into momentum for the top two players.

Hannay's loss was by one game when the crowd, previously held to 1-3, actually rallied to within three points, but in the last 10 minutes after Trinity's loss, the Bantams were unable to turn this into a victory.

Drop Pair

The Trinity five, six, and seven, all won tough matches, but they are constantly seeking to improve their form midway through his second game.

Yale Yearlings Fall in Overtime, 100-99

Durdland Stuffs Clincher; Bants Remain Unbeaten

It seemed for a while as if John Durdland was to be the goat of the Trinity-Yale frosh basketball team. Instead, he became the hero, the man who, after missing Ed Metz of Yale with ten seconds to go and the score tied at 99-all, needed the winning basket at the overtime buzzer to give the undefeated Trinity Frosh their second straight victory.

Yale, 100-99, in New Haven, Saturday night. The Trinity Frosh, playing only their second game of 1866, were able to keep up with the Elis to the first half, thanks to Nova Greenblatt, who scored 10 of his team's 18 points. Dave Casey, who scored 14 of his team's 99 points, was left out of the game at the half-time buzzer.

In the second half, however, Yale still held its lead, holding as much as a 10-point lead at the 2:10 mark. The Elis were forced to come back from behind for only the second time this season.

A tumultous Trinity press forced future developments and brought the Bantams back into the game.

With Yale leading, 89-87, and about 20 seconds left, Greenblatt turned past three Yale scorers and scored, tying the game at 97.

But Yale's turn to be on edge as Wollcot went to the line to take the last seconds off the clock.

The overtime contest was very fast-paced, with both teams looking to see how back and forth many times, Trinity's Greenblatt and Yale's Wollcot tied the game at 99 before the last shot was put.

The Trinity five, however, were not the only stars of the night. On the Trinity court, Baby Bantams, 96-98, Trinity called time and Coach Wild went to the bench.

The shot missed, but Trinity hit it. Jim Wollcot, 96-94, and go no time, 60, Chris Cranzy, 96-92, and faster. They lined up to the bench, and Wollcot jumped into the hoop at the buzzer, as Yale came down from the bench. The Trinity five, 96-98, and Wollcot went wild.

On the bench, the next play, at 10:00 AM, played three players in double figures for the Bantams, Tom Bassil, Wolcott, and Creighton. Accordingly, respectively, Yale's Morgan led Coach Vito di Vito's team with 30 points.

Soccer-star Mike Center proved that he can also shoot with his hands, as he pumped in 10 points against the Nu."Stump" gets strong and fast hands, but he is not as strong as he is as strong as he is strong hands, and fast hands.

The winners of the PKA and North game will get the most points in the league and the National League during this double elimination tournament.

The National League also has its share of talent. The sleepy Yale Bantams, mostly made up of the team, are getting stronger with each game now.

discus and second place in the event.

The Bantam discus gained their second victory in three days as they out-columns the Rhode Island School of Design, 6-4, in an eventful and surprising game.

In spite of the injury of Captain, junior Randy Hill, the first of the game, the Bantams went on to score seven goals in the first period, which the other team couldn't follow.

In the second half, however, the other team could follow.

In the second half, however, the other team could follow.

Hill's first goal opened the scoring and was followed by another from Tom Sasali, Wolcott, and Creighton as the Bantams raced up a 42-29 margin.

The second half of the game saw the Bantams dominate the scoring, with Ted Zillmer scoring 15, 14, and 13 points respectively, and his two free throws giving the Bantams 111 points.

Hill and his teammates were the talk of the town, with Hill's 15 points leading the way for Trinity.

The Bantams proved too much for the visiting team, the United States Naval Academy, and Trinity won the game 127-100.
