Senators to Consider Resignation, Elections

The Senate will meet Sunday to consider a proposal calling for new elections.
The proposal came at the end of a long and confusing meeting Wednesday evening at which a constitutional amendment on a new executive committee was passed and an amendment on resident constituenties was defeated.

Also approved was a motion asking that the Senate officially support the Viet Nam Moratorium scheduled for October 15. The Senate voted as well to allocate $100 for a television, to be published during Moratorium week.
The proposal for new elections was made by Michael Jimenez '71, who alleged that "the Senate is psychologically and politically unprepared to deal with the crisis. The Senate is running out of time to resign," said Jimenez, "and call for the election."

Jimenez was a co-sponsor of the amendments the Senate acted on that evening. The first amendment, which barely received the two-thirds majority needed to pass, establishes a seven-member council designed to execute and administer Senate decisions. The committee consists of a President, Vice-President, Secretary, two senators from each of the five constituencies, and a Chair-a of the Senate elected by the Senate. The committee will be elected in March.
The second amendment called for restructuring of the Senate membership. Twenty-six senators would be elected from each constitu-tency, and three would be elected at large from each of the four subgroups. The terms for classes, however, would continue to be elected at large until the constitution is changed.

SDS Discusses Name Change, Organization

A meeting of the Trinity College Chapter of Students for a Democratic Society, was held Tuesday night to discuss the future of the organization. Most of those attending the meeting, including former SDS president Steve Keeley '71, called for a new name for the group and a reorganization of the chapter's executive structure.

In calling for a new name and a break with the policies of the national organization, Keeley declared that he was "independent of the group" and was unable to defend a series of national resolutions and stands. He also called the national organization "anti-libertarian" and "unfriendly to blacks." Keeley charged that the national organization was an "increasingly right-wing" student group.

Keeley argued that the College was expanding in a "Morningside Living and the Hartford Hospital campus in which it lives, Keeley asked for investigation of the College's real constituencies.

Other members asked for information about the students they charged were being kept secret by the Administration. In vestigation of the Senate passed Student Hill of Rights.

House Passes Measure Backing Student Loans

Legislation designed to help college students obtain tuition loans was approved this week by the House of Representatives.

Under the new bill, banks would be permitted to charge up to 16 per cent interest on student loans. The Federal Government would pay for the difference above that level on the first $1,000 per cent 7 percent limit.

In addition to paying the extra fee, described as "an incentive" in the bill, the Government would continue to pay the first 7 one per cent interest charge as long as the student was enrolled in college.

After leaving school, the student would make payments of the principal and pay off the payment of the interest. The Government, however, would continue to pay the interest at the rate of 7 per cent even after the student has completed his education.

Most banks have been reluctant to make student loans at the 7 per cent rate because the prime interest rate - the rate the banks charge their very best corporate customers - reached 8 1/2 per cent this summer.

The measure was passed by the Senate in August. The Senate bill also included the Government-backed loan program for students.

"Vietnam Moratorium' Planned for October 15

by Richard Klubien

Radical and liberal students from area colleges met with the Revered Joseph Duffy and former Trinity faculty member Janard Garber, Tuesday, to begin or-organizing a Hartford area group to participate in the nationwide October 15th "Vietnam Moratorium.

Plans for the day of protest, which the Trinity College Senate endorsed last Wednesday night, will include boycotts of classes at an estimated 500 colleges and universities including Yale, Yale-ian, the University of Connecticut, and the University of Hartford. Garber, noting that classes are not scheduled for October 15th at the College because of a week long "open period," asked that students devote the day to work within their communities including leafleting, silent vigils, and poss-dible door to door canvassing.

Resolutions calling for the universal withdrawal of American troops will be introduced in both the Senate and the House of Representatives on the day of the moratorium, according to Garber.

National leaders of the "Vietnam Moratorium' movement have cal-called for a "generalization of business as usual" including "a labor withdrawal from normal business routines in order to organize locally for peace."

Leaders of the moratorium movement and almost 500 student leaders have joined in declaring that an increasingly long moratorium will be held each month until the war ends or a rapid withdrawal of American forces is announced. They asked that local organizations do not be used to lay the ground-work for longer and more effective protests.

Students at the meeting tentatively approved plans for a rally in Bushnell park during the afternoon of the day of protest. Several students suggested that those who revolt at the College during the open period join with students and faculty of the University of Hartford for a protest march through downtown Hartford.

A number of radical students at the meeting questioned whether they should join with the liberal Caucus of Connecticut Democrats, headed by Duffy, in the day of protest. Steven Keeny '71, for-president of the Trinity Chapter of Students for a Democratic Society, called the Caucus' announcement of the reasons for the protest "jelly-like." Other SDS members asked that a joint statement be written which would include condemnation of other aspects of American foreign and military policy.

(Continued on Page 4)

Cornell Gets Disciplinary Regulations

Cornell University students will participate in the tryout for replacing of faculty members under a new disciplinary system at the Thacher, New York Institute.

According to Cornell President, Dr. Dale R. Corson, the new disciplinary regulations establish "a separate category of offenses namely misconduct sufficiently serious to constitute a violation or threat to maintenance of public order. This category will apply to faculty, administrators, and other staff members, as well as students."

Any disciplinary cases which come to the opinion of the University's Judicial administrator fall under the new category, will be referred to a special hearing board. The board will have 11 members - 4 faculty members, 4 students, an administrator, a member of the academic staff, and a member of the non-academic staff.

The faculty will elect its representatives to the board. As yet, there has been no decision as to how the members, including students will be chosen.

The hearing board will be able to hand out punishments ranging from the case of students and dismissals in the case of faculty members.
Viet Nam Moratorium

President Nixon's decision to withdraw 35,000 more troops from Vietnam sadly reaffirms that the present Administration is not committed to its election pledge to bring a swift and honorable settlement of the war. The announcement renews that substantial change in policy; it reconfirms the validity of United States involvement.

The TRIPOD lends support to the Vietnam Moratorium called "to maximize public pressure to end the war." Given widespread support for a recurring moratorium can be effective. It is essential that members of the college community recognize the first day of moratorium October 15 and work towards building a strengthened two day movement for November.

In the past the anti-war movement has been critically curtailed by so-called moves for peace which have been carefully calculated to undermine domestic opposition rather than to stimulate a compromise settlement. The President's assertion that "the withdrawal of 60,000 troops (the yearly total) is a significant step" towards meaningful negotiations reflects his desperate attempt to placate dissidents at home rather than to commit peace to commitment. No political theorist, American or Vietnamese, could conceivably consider the removal of a mere 60,000 from a force of well over 500,000 a notable move towards peace. Especially, seeing that they are only to be replaced by Vietnamese soldiers. The earnest level of conflict must not be altered, but insignificantly de-americanized. North Vietnam cannot be expected to capitulate while the U.S. maintains its present war level and continues its resultative support of the Saigon government rather than the case of peace.

Yesterday's announcement that there will be large cuts in the draft call "for the months immediately ahead" represent further efforts to inhibit the building momentum of anti-war forces evident with the Vietnam Moratorium call. It thus becomes increasingly important that discontent and continuing concern with the course of the war be reasserted. Remaining silent would in effect be granting the Administration a blank check to continue the present war effort and its questionable, half-hearted attempts at negotiation.

Students across the nation for the last two years have shown a special, rather ill-defined commitment to peace. If the war is to end, students must mobilize public support, forcing the government to abandon its vain hopes for military victory or a miracle breakthrough in the negotiations and take steps necessary to bring the conflict to an end. Massive support of the moratorium in its goal to get diverse sectors of society to cease "business as usual" is worthy of the support of all students, teachers, and one member of the college community.

If we insist on endless debate, we will most certainly end in a series of confrontations.

1. INCLUSION. All members of the college community, students and faculty, are to be included, not excluded. In our view that the Alumni should be included, for example, is one that forces the Administration to make all the lesser decisions which would allow this college to become a new system of governance to new, rather than a few who achieve it without losing the spirit of shared development.

2. SPEED. The President offered no timetables or deadlines, but the pressure of the times is upon us. We are at present in an extraordinarily enviable position. Nixon's commitment both to students and the Trusteess came a year earlier than it did on many campuses. It was followed by a new Administration which has proven itself to be both open and receptive to new approaches. We have completed one calm year and now enter a new one, one in which old terrors and mistrust come as specific as possible with the threats to our campus freedom.

If we insist on endless debate, we will most certainly end in a series of confrontations.

It is of little value...to construct an elaborate system of governance which is to operate in all cases "except emergencies."

President Lockwood has invited us—the members of the college community—to give our opinions and our advice and their Inclusion, their participation, and their present war effort and its questionable, half-hearted attempts at negotiation.

Students across the nation for the last two years have shown a special, rather ill-defined commitment to peace. If the war is to end, students must mobilize public support, forcing the government to abandon its vain hopes for military victory or a miracle breakthrough in the negotiations and take steps necessary to bring the conflict to an end. Massive support of the moratorium in its goal to get diverse sectors of society to cease "business as usual" is worthy of the support of all students, three administrators, two secretaries, and one member of the college community.

This group would pass on all new proposals, from academic programs, scholarships allotments, salary schedules, the size of the College curriculum, to the structure of the College itself. It would handle all disputes or differences of opinion which might arise. It would include, for example, is one that forces the Administration to make all the lesser decisions which would allow this college to become a new system of governance to new, rather than a few who achieve it without losing the spirit of shared development.

The formula of representation in this or any plan is of course open to lengthy (though I hope not endless) debate. The President's view that the Alumni should be included, for example, is one that forces the Administration to make all the lesser decisions which would allow this college to become a new system of governance to new, rather than a few who achieve it without losing the spirit of shared development.

Because I believe speed is important, I would like to propose a specific plan here. I assume that it will be only one of many, I present it with the hope that discussion on this matter will be wide, open, and free from ambiguities as any document can be. I assume that we are not merely a collection of individuals, but are part of a community which requires many different types of professions and occupations. Non-teaching em-

The TRIPOD is published twice each week except during vacations by the students of Trinity College. Printing facilities are provided by the students of Trinity College. Student subscriptions are included in activities fee; others must have a voice. The fact is that we are not merely a collection of individuals, but are part of a community which requires many different types of professions and occupations. Non-teaching em-

The TRIPOD is published twice each week except during vacations by the students of Trinity College. Printing facilities are provided by the students of Trinity College. Student subscriptions are included in activities fee; others must have a voice. The fact is that we are not merely a collection of individuals, but are part of a community which requires many different types of professions and occupations. Non-teaching em-

The TRIPOD is published twice each week except during vacations by the students of Trinity College. Printing facilities are provided by the students of Trinity College. Student subscriptions are included in activities fee; others must have a voice. The fact is that we are not merely a collection of individuals, but are part of a community which requires many different types of professions and occupations. Non-teaching em-

The TRIPOD is published twice each week except during vacations by the students of Trinity College. Printing facilities are provided by the students of Trinity College. Student subscriptions are included in activities fee; others must have a voice. The fact is that we are not merely a collection of individuals, but are part of a community which requires many different types of professions and occupations. Non-teaching em-

The TRIPOD is published twice each week except during vacations by the students of Trinity College. Printing facilities are provided by the students of Trinity College. Student subscriptions are included in activities fee; others must have a voice. The fact is that we are not merely a collection of individuals, but are part of a community which requires many different types of professions and occupations. Non-teaching em-

The TRIPOD is published twice each week except during vacations by the students of Trinity College. Printing facilities are provided by the students of Trinity College. Student subscriptions are included in activities fee; others must have a voice. The fact is that we are not merely a collection of individuals, but are part of a community which requires many different types of professions and occupations. Non-teaching em-

The TRIPOD is published twice each week except during vacations by the students of Trinity College. Printing facilities are provided by the students of Trinity College. Student subscriptions are included in activities fee; others must have a voice. The fact is that we are not merely a collection of individuals, but are part of a community which requires many different types of professions and occupations. Non-teaching em-
THE LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

‘vorn street’

To the Editor:

In his article, “Death on Vorn Street?”, Charles Yaeger’s proposition of having a lottery selection process for fraternity bids may very well confront the problems now facing the houses.

Historically, the lottery system has been a process instituted to combat the problem of exclusiveness. This year very few people were rejected by fraternities. Several houses were quite comfortable with the membership numbering well under their ideal capacity. Many others sadly faced taking far less than they expected. It would be fabrication to assume the entire campus was completely from rush did so out of fear of reproachment. Actually, many of the leading fraternity was reprimand.

While the selection processes of the houses are in most cases undeservingly incorrect, it is quite evident that this is a relatively insignificant problem. Exclusiveness is no longer the issue. Today’s young man is being recognized by becoming totally to his house. These individual, however, do not desire the fraternities. While some students remain in those fraternities they have committed themselves to living in the larger academic context. They are able to admire their administration will help them potential the campus. Carl Yeager’s article indicates clearly that the campus should offer. So far the fraternities have remained unresponsive. Carl Yeager’s article article is an excess, it is -3 the depth of per-

PACT!

To the Editor:

Bill Searle ‘70

‘the city election’

To the Editor:

For many years the city has become a nightmare. The problem of inner city crime, especially the “living in the city” have grown worse in recent years. Certainly most of us are at least superficially aware of the racism, brutality, and lawless behavior that is going in our city.

Hartford’s city election this year offers an opportunity to work for a candidate in the election. Though the various political institutions within which they work, and perhaps help change some of the candidates wish to work for. We have fact sheets on all the candidates and will meet with numerous people with political experience in order to make sure that the candidates.

The Community Action Center is prepared to work with the candidates they wish to work for. For the best film critic of the 20th century, Godard’s film is not only entertaining, but RULES OF THE GAME remains the single most overwhelming experience I have ever had. This film will be shown on Saturday at 5 p.m.

‘Cellulose: Two Views of Jean Renoir’

Film Expresses Unity Of Man and the World

by John C. Grzeskiewicz

Having just celebrated his 75th birthday last Monday, Jean Renoir (an occasional resident of Beverly Hills) is actually getting the recognition that is due him in this country. This week, he is the subject of a retrospective showing at the Museum of Modern Art’s Film Department, in New York. Last month he was the subject of a New Yorker “Profile” written by Penelope Gilliatt. Tomorrow, the 20th of September, at 8 p.m., the Trinity Film Society will present one of Renoir’s greatest masterpieces, THE RULES OF THE GAME, in Kriehoe Auditorium. According to many critics, it is simply the masterwork of this generation: RULES OF THE GAME. . . .

To the Editor:

Ronald Z. Shapiro

by Ted Koven

“Sentiment without Sentimentality’

For the first time at Trinity College, the Film Society will present a film made by Jean Renoir, the great French director and son of the famous Impressionist painter. This film, also released, just a few weeks before the outbreak of the Second World War, has been a process instituted to combat the problem of exclusiveness. This year very few people were rejected by fraternities. Several houses were quite comfortable with the membership numbering well under their ideal capacity. Many others sadly faced taking far less than they expected. It would be fabrication to assume the entire campus was completely from rush did so out of fear of reproachment. Actually, many of the leading fraternity was reprimand.

While the selection processes of the houses are in most cases undeservingly incorrect, it is quite evident that this is a relatively insignificant problem. Exclusiveness is no longer the issue. Today’s young man is being recognized by becoming totally to his house. These individual, however, do not desire the fraternities. While some students remain in those fraternities they have committed themselves to living in the larger academic context. They are able to admire their administration will help them potential the campus. Carl Yeager’s article indicates clearly that the campus should offer. So far the fraternities have remained unresponsive. Carl Yeager’s article article is an excess, it is -3 the depth of per-

PACT!

To the Editor:

Bill Searle ‘70

‘the city election’

To the Editor:

For many years the city has become a nightmare. The problem of inner city crime, especially the “living in the city” have grown worse in recent years. Certainly most of us are at least superficially aware of the racism, brutality, and lawless behavior that is going in our city.

Hartford’s city election this year offers an opportunity to work for a candidate in the election. Though the various political institutions within which they work, and perhaps help change some of the candidates wish to work for. We have fact sheets on all the candidates and will meet with numerous people with political experience in order to make sure that the candidates.

The Community Action Center is prepared to work with the candidates they wish to work for. For the best film critic of the 20th century, Godard’s film is not only entertaining, but RULES OF THE GAME remains the single most overwhelming experience I have ever had. This film will be shown on Saturday at 5 p.m.

‘Cellulose: Two Views of Jean Renoir’

Film Expresses Unity Of Man and the World

by John C. Grzeskiewicz

Having just celebrated his 75th birthday last Monday, Jean Renoir (an occasional resident of Beverly Hills) is actually getting the recognition that is due him in this country. This week, he is the subject of a retrospective showing at the Museum of Modern Art’s Film Department, in New York. Last month he was the subject of a New Yorker “Profile” written by Penelope Gilliatt. Tomorrow, the 20th of September, at 8 p.m., the Trinity Film Society will present one of Renoir’s greatest masterpieces, THE RULES OF THE GAME, in Kriehoe Auditorium. According to many critics, it is simply the masterwork of this generation: RULES OF THE GAME. . . .

To the Editor:

Ronald Z. Shapiro

by Ted Koven

“Sentiment without Sentimentality’

For the first time at Trinity College, the Film Society will present a film made by Jean Renoir, the great French director and son of the famous Impressionist painter. This film, also released, just a few weeks before the outbreak of the Second World War, has been a process instituted to combat the problem of exclusiveness. This year very few people were rejected by fraternities. Several houses were quite comfortable with the membership numbering well under their ideal capacity. Many others sadly faced taking far less than they expected. It would be fabrication to assume the entire campus was completely from rush did so out of fear of reproachment. Actually, many of the leading fraternity was reprimand.

While the selection processes of the houses are in most cases undeservingly incorrect, it is quite evident that this is a relatively insignificant problem. Exclusiveness is no longer the issue. Today’s young man is being recognized by becoming totally to his house. These individual, however, do not desire the fraternities. While some students remain in those fraternities they have committed themselves to living in the larger academic context. They are able to admire their administration will help them potential the campus. Carl Yeager’s article indicates clearly that the campus should offer. So far the fraternities have remained unresponsive. Carl Yeager’s article article is an excess, it is -3 the depth of per-

PACT!

To the Editor:

Bill Searle ‘70
Dathmen Dominate Quinnipiac Contest

With a few outdoor practices and a full game scrimmage under its belt, Trinity's soccer team seems to be in fine shape as the season opener against M.I.T. approaches. Coach Chet McPhee returned from his 36-year sabbatical to find a squad that impressed him greatly. Although this starting lineup does not necessarily have to remain as is, Dath hinted that this could very well be his choice of starters for the M.I.T. opener. However, Dath was quick to point out the recent fine play by several sophomores, including Will Wheeler, Greg Stein, David Duffey, Barry Fleischer, Rick Palamar, and Steve Hill. These players could figure strongly as they fight for starting roles.

As far as season outlook goes, each won't comment, due to an exceptionally tough Bantam schedule, and they expect the main asset of the Freshman line to the Hierodouphs at the Quin- nipiac scrimmage. It seems safe to say that Trinity is not about to abandon its position in New En- gland soccer supremacy.

Although the emphasis was on offense during the opening practic- es, Dr. McPhee has had some time to evaluate the defensive abilities of his club. At an intrasquad game one week ago, he noted that Gary Skerker and Ted barrel were strong in the line. Phil Smith played a solid defensive end, and cornerbacks John Mellemak made some brutal tackles. The main concern of any coach is to win games, McPhee is also concerned with getting his boys ready for the Tulane competition. A two photon system will be used as much as possible, thus limiting the number of boys who will have to play both ways. Like any small team, the Frosh will try to win a wide open game to utilize their size to the best advantage. Four weeks of practice still remain before the first Fresh- man game against Tulane.

The V.I.P. Set

Preseason Predictions

by Sheldon Crabbe

After a dull summer of NISC "Games of the Week" football, last Sunday was the official opening of the American Football League, and Monday the official opening of the "Second Guerilla" League. This year's pro football could be exciting. Vince is out to reestablish his reputation, and his material.

Generally, the NFL is strong. Baltimore is easily the best team, but after that dreary by Kansas City, I haven't heard any thing from him.

The Vikings have some big strong boys, but Joe Kapp still shines like a gold coin. The Pack will not be back.

Detroit, with Bill Mason, Earl Cambell, and Paul Hornung, hasn't already proved its explosiveness, but after their loss to the Eagles last year, I'm surprised they still have a franchise.

I try not to think of Cleveland's chances of Leroy Kelly ever getting better.

Charlie Johnson is finally back with the Cardinals, but not even he can make miracles.

Chicago has Gayle Sayers, nasti- ness of the touchdown, and Jack Concannon, master of the Intercep- tion.

In being fired by the Giants, George Allen was predicting an- other "Year of the Bomb." But after that drubbing by Kansas City, I haven't heard anything from him.

The real problem so far appears to be the interior line. The candidates are few in number, and unless more boys come out Mc- Pike will be forced to convert some of his big backs into guards and tackles.

Although the emphasis was on offense during the opening practic- es, Dr. McPhee has had some time to evaluate the defensive abilities of his club. At an intrasquad game one week ago, he noted that Gary Skerker and Ted barrel were strong in the line. Phil Smith played a solid defensive end, and cornerbacks John Mellemak made some brutal tackles.

The main concern of any coach is to win games, McPhee is also concerned with getting his boys ready for Tulane competition. A two photon system will be used as much as possible, thus limiting the number of boys who will have to play both ways. Like any small team, the Frosh will try to win a wide open game to utilize their size to the best advantage. Four weeks of practice still remain before the first Fresh- man game against Tulane.

Renoir

(Continued from page 3)

original version of the film was unavailable, with only badprint prints being circulated, and it was only in the late fifties that the film was reconstructed anyway, intended by piecing together frag- ments of two hundred cans of film, or film, throughout Europe.

THE RULES OF THE GAME was Renoir's last pre-war French film and can be seen as the culmination of a series of films that expressed the "Natural unity," as the great critic Bazin termed it, "of people and world about them." Films like NANA (1926), LA CHIENNE (1931), TONI (1934), LA GRANDE ILLUSION (1937), etc. Ostensibly it tells the story of a weekend hunt with the poacher. Nora plays the poacher. Nora plays the poacher. Nora plays the poacher. Nora plays the poacher. Nora plays the poacher.

Quarterback Jay Bernardoni surveys the defense during an intra-squad scrimmage.

Speed, rather than size will be the main asset of the V.I.P. Set. Handicap this year, Coach Chet McPhee returned from his 36-year sabbatical to find a squad that impressed him greatly. Although the emphasis was on offense during the opening practic- es, Dr. McPhee has had some time to evaluate the defensive abilities of his club. At an intrasquad game one week ago, he noted that Gary Skerker and Ted barrel were strong in the line. Phil Smith played a solid defensive end, and cornerbacks John Mellemak made some brutal tackles.

The main concern of any coach is to win games, McPhee is also concerned with getting his boys ready for Tulane competition. A two photon system will be used as much as possible, thus limiting the number of boys who will have to play both ways. Like any small team, the Frosh will try to win a wide open game to utilize their size to the best advantage. Four weeks of practice still remain before the first Fresh- man game against Tulane.

The real problem so far appears to be the interior line. The candidates are few in number, and unless more boys come out Mc- Pike will be forced to convert some of his big backs into guards and tackles.

Although the emphasis was on offense during the opening practic- es, Dr. McPhee has had some time to evaluate the defensive abilities of his club. At an intrasquad game one week ago, he noted that Gary Skerker and Ted barrel were strong in the line. Phil Smith played a solid defensive end, and cornerbacks John Mellemak made some brutal tackles.

The main concern of any coach is to win games, McPhee is also concerned with getting his boys ready for Tulane competition. A two photon system will be used as much as possible, thus limiting the number of boys who will have to play both ways. Like any small team, the Frosh will try to win a wide open game to utilize their size to the best advantage. Four weeks of practice still remain before the first Fresh- man game against Tulane.

Renoir

(Continued from page 3)

original version of the film was unavailable, with only badprint prints being circulated, and it was only in the late fifties that the film was reconstructed anyway, intended by piecing together frag- ments of two hundred cans of film, or film, throughout Europe.

THE RULES OF THE GAME was Renoir's last pre-war French film and can be seen as the culmination of a series of films that expressed the "Natural unity," as the great critic Bazin termed it, "of people and world about them." Films like NANA (1926), LA CHIENNE (1931), TONI (1934), LA GRANDE ILLUSION (1937), etc. Ostensibly it tells the story of a weekend hunt with the poacher. Nora plays the poacher. Nora plays the poacher. Nora plays the poacher. Nora plays the poacher. Nora plays the poacher.

Quarterback Jay Bernardoni surveys the defense during an intra-squad scrimmage.

Speed, rather than size will be the main asset of the V.I.P. Set. Handicap this year, Coach Chet McPhee returned from his 36-year sabbatical to find a squad that impressed him greatly. Although the emphasis was on offense during the opening practic- es, Dr. McPhee has had some time to evaluate the defensive abilities of his club. At an intrasquad game one week ago, he noted that Gary Skerker and Ted barrel were strong in the line. Phil Smith played a solid defensive end, and cornerbacks John Mellemak made some brutal tackles.

The main concern of any coach is to win games, McPhee is also concerned with getting his boys ready for Tulane competition. A two photon system will be used as much as possible, thus limiting the number of boys who will have to play both ways. Like any small team, the Frosh will try to win a wide open game to utilize their size to the best advantage. Four weeks of practice still remain before the first Fresh- man game against Tulane.