To the Editor:

I was disturbed to see that the first paragraph of my letter made no sense due to the omission of an entire line.

It should have read: The most recently available U.S. Office of Education figures reveal that there are approximately three times as many coeducational colleges as there are institutions for men or women "only." Donald D. Hook Assistant Professor

Department of Modern Languages

Professor Hook is right, of course, and so were the many others who questioned the wording of his letter in the Winter issue of the Magazine. Apologies.

To the Editor:

Commenting in the winter edition on the generalization of criteria in applying for admission, and attempting to highlight the benefits Trinity could derive as a coeducational institution, Professor Donald D. Hook argues:

Acceptance of women to Trinity sumptuous and grandiose school is a valid reason for initiating coeducation at the undergraduate level.

Coeducation would seem to help the psycho-sexual development of an individual. He recites the platitude that the presence of a woman makes a man feel like a man in defense of psycho-sexual improvement.

The presence of women in the classroom is conducive to an attractive, competitive group, as young men would dress more prudishly and respond more carefully, all of which inspire the teacher.

Distinction could be won by Trinity by beating Wesleyan to the punch in becoming "the first of its kind" to adopt coeducation within a geographical area of obvious importance to Professor Hook.

As women are superior in word disciplines, it follows they are better mimics and, thus, by implication, better linguists.

Graduate and summer schools are specific in educational direction. Usually, students at this level have selected their future endeavor. They may be slightly older and more willing to conform to the task at hand. Conversely, I believe the undergraduate years, especially at Trinity, afford the student necessary time to absorb and analyze thought to enhance his ability to reach a sound selection of his subsequent career. I cannot agree that coeducation furthers this important selection process; most young women are too busy in the selection of their future mate and do little more than to connive a career of their design for their selected one.

Professor Hook would have us believe that the psycho-sexual development of "many" preparatory school graduates is retarded by the all-male Trinity society. Perhaps the same would be true for public school graduates but Professor Hook does not mention these and I thus presume the latter "many" and the former otherwise. Must Trinity become coeducational to cater to the psyche-
To the Editor:
I would offer the following comments on the subject of coeducation at Trinity. Not having taken part in previous discussions, I realize that some of my observations may have already been considered and disposed of, but possibly you will find a grain of wheat among the chaff.

First, I feel that Trinity should not embark on a program of admitting under­graduate co-eds, unless we can do it on a basis which will not reduce the college to the lev­el of a men’s college. The report of the Board of Fellows suggests that co-eds would be admitted on a non­resident basis, making the point that this would provide a service to the commu­nity, which in turn would result in greater financial support, etc. This doesn’t appeal to me as the sort of co­education program that we should be interested in. Even allowing for the saving of the cost of room and board, the tuition charges at Trinity are much higher than those at UConn., the U. of Hartford, Hartford College for Women, and Central Conn. State. How many local girls would feel that, living at home, the Trinity edu­cation would be worth such higher costs? Also, would they have a feeling of being akin to “poor relations”? The policy of the college has been to house the student body on campus and this has been largely accomplished. I believe to expand the stu­dent body to include co-eds, shouldn’t we provide dormitories for them in keeping with the college policy?

As for increased financial support from the community, my feeling is that this would not amount to much, if we confine our program to non­resident co­eds and not very many, at that.

Second, there would be increased costs to the college, if the program did increase the student body to an appreciable degree. Additional faculty members would be needed. I understand that dining room facilities are already being taxed to the limit, which means either building another dining hall, or using some of the other areas in the Mather Student Center for dining purposes. Would it be neces­sary to provide new facilities, locker rooms and a swimming pool? The social side of college life would have to be thought of. Would the co­eds want to establish clubs, or even sororities? If so, where would these be housed?

Over the past 45 years, Trinity has grown from a student body of about 250 to the present projected size of 1,250. Each increase has called for full ex­penses: administrative, faculty, scholar­ships and buildings. It has seemed that each time we have reached one plateau and have begun to catch our breath, we are confronted with another surge for­ward. The cost problem has been compoun­ded by the upward trend of the price level. The progress of our Alma Mater and they have supported the college generously, I would say. However, if the introduction of co­education would mean any appreciable increase in the cost of running the college, requiring more finan­cial support from the alumni, great care should be taken to ascertain costs and the attitude of the alumni before going ahead.

The suggestion that Trinity would de­rive some advantage in being first to adopt coeducation among the small private­endowed colleges does not impress me as of such value that the alumni would make sacrifices to bring this about. With its much greater endowment, Wesleyan could adopt co­education on a full scale without calling upon its alumni to help foot the bill. Amherst has the ideal set­up, in my opinion, with Smith and Mt. Holyoke Colleges nearby, thus permitting the exchange of students for certain classes, without any great burden of added costs. Maybe, we should think along these lines and explore the possibili­ties of developing similar exchanges with St. Joseph College and the Hartford Col­lege for Women. This would bring those bright and shining, upper­class young men who are so impatient to get away from the girls into our classrooms and might stimu­late better dress habits and increased scholastic zeal among our young men. As for improving the psycho­sexual develop­ment of the boys, I wouldn’t know, as we didn’t give such matters much thought in our undergraduate days, so long ago.

SYDNEY D. PINNEY ’18

AISEC

To the Editor:
Following is a list of Trinity under­graduates who have been accepted for AISEEC for the coming summer. It is expected that there will be additions to the list before the end of the term.

- C. Nicholas Edwards ’68, Turun Osuuskunta (department store), Finland.
- R. Christopher Klemm ’68, Vorwerk & Co. (electrical equipment), Haus­app, Germany.
- Donald L. Livingston ’67, Bank of Japan, Tokyo.
- Tan J. Platt ’69, Kastrup (packaged wine and artglasses), Copenhagen.
- Michael P. Seitchik ’68, A/S Frames mek (ship builders), Sandefjord, Norway.
- Richard S. W. Shepard ’68, Al­gemeene Bank Nederland. Rotterdam.

- Frederick Uehlein ’69, Gras Saoye & Co. (insurance), Lille, France.

I would hope our alumni who are in executive positions in this country might help in future years in arranging for ex­change programs for some of our Trinity students.

JOHN F. BUTLER ’33
Director of Placement

- AISEEC stands for “Association Internationale des Etudiants en Sciences Eco­nomiques et Commerciales.” Founded in 1948, it is a reciprocal business exchange program for college students in 42 coun­tries throughout the world. Trinity is one of 82 participating colleges and univer­sities in this country.

Goof

To the Editor:
I was surprised and somewhat flattered to see the enclosed photo in my copy of the winter issue of the Alumni Magazine. “Flattered” to think that of the thousands of alumni of Trinity, someone recalled my name. And “surprised” because the picture is not of me.

However in all fairness I must report that impartial observers indicate a strong resemblance. (Not being altogether fa­miliar with the appearance of my left profile, I consulted a third party before re­porting.) I enjoy the Magazine immensely but couldn’t resist commenting on the minor “goof.”

JOHN P. MORESCHI ’59

- Left profiles can be tricky. Even Joseph A. Esquirol Jr. ’54, whose photo it really is, apparently didn’t recognize himself as he has not called our attention to the error.

LETTERS

Letters to the Editor are welcome. Letters for publication must be no longer than 300 words and signed. The printing of any letter is at the discretion of the Editor. Address communications to: Editor, The Alumni Magazine, Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut 06106.
'16 Alumnus Honored

Details about the new athletic center named for George M. Ferris

From Dean to President

Ending a 20-year association, Robert M. Vogel leaves the Hill to head Bradford Junior College

Abracadabra

Recollections of "The Great Osram" alias A. Everett Austin

A Busy Spring

A report on the 9-point program of calendar and curriculum changes approved by the faculty

The End of Four Years

Eight members of the Senior Class – their undergraduate accomplishments, some thoughts about the College, the future

Views of the Quad

Random comments about things in general as seen from the open window

Trustee and Benefactor

A profile of James Lippincott Goodwin Hon. '63 who died March 2

In Memory

Book Reviews

Campus Notes

People and events in the news

From the Board of Fellows

Reports in the areas of faculty interests and intercollege cooperation

Sports Scene

The win-loss records during a cold, rain-soaked spring season and a view from the bench

Association Notes

A report of gatherings around the country and in Tokyo

Class Notes

Vital statistics and reports of happenings among the alumni

FRONT COVER

President Jacobs and George M. Ferris '16, study the architect's rendering of the new athletic center named for Mr. Ferris.

'16 ALUMNUS HONORED

New Athletic Center

Named for

George M. Ferris

As the George M. Ferris Athletic Center begins to rise in the coming year on the Trinity campus, bricks and mortar, concrete and steel, will go into the foundation work.

But the true foundation will be stronger, more durable, than bricks and mortar.

The true foundation will be a concept – an idea nurtured in the mind of Mr. Ferris since his undergraduate days as a member of the Class of 1916. Even more than that, it will be an idea given increasingly effective form through the past four decades by sane policy well carried out.

The credo of Ray Oosting, for 42 years teacher, coach and director of athletics and physical education, and his successor, Karl Kurth, was summarized the other day by Professor Kurth.

"The contributions which collegiate athletics and physical education programs should make to the general educational objectives of an institution can be achieved only if these programs are conducted as a part of the total educational experience," he said.

It is appropriate that the carefully planned athletic facilities should bear the name of George Mallette Ferris, '16, Life Trustee of the College, and dedicated alumnus. Though his business and civic interests as one of the leaders of his Washington, D.C. community have necessarily engaged a major portion of his attention, his alumni activity on behalf of Trinity has been varied and meaningful. His class of 1916 has always been one of the most enthusiastic in alumni projects, a fact well noted as its members turned out for their golden anniversary reunion last June. The men of '16 were a versatile group, good athletes as well as good students. Mr. Ferris himself was a track and baseball man. Others provided the sinews of the second undefeated football force in Trinity's history - the team of 1915. Messrs. Ferris, Robert B. O'Connor and Robert S. Morris are the 1916 men who have received the Eigenbrodt Trophy.

Formal announcement that the handsome addition to the hilltop campus will be known as the George M. Ferris Athletic Center was made simultaneously in Hartford and Washington, D.C., April 19. The Washington announcement followed a dinner given by President Jacobs for Mr. Ferris at the Columbia Country Club in Chevy Chase, Md. Several longtime Trinity friends of Mr. Ferris, as well as some of his trustee colleagues and college officials were among the dinner guests, along with a number of Mr. Ferris's Washington associates. During the evening Dr. Jacobs unveiled a handsomely framed sketch in color of the projected Center. The event was well reported in the Washington Star the next day - the story of the tribute to Mr. Ferris of his "small New England alma mater" for a "half-century of dedicated service."

The Trinity memories of Mr. Ferris and his contemporaries who made their class famous in the college annals are warm, indeed. The warmth hardly extends, however, to the old gymnasium they knew at Alumni Hall.

Contemplate one startling note. When Alumni Hall was built there was no provision for basketball. But don't blame Mr. W. C. Brocklesby, Class of 1869, who was the architect. The game of basketball, you see, was not invented until 1891, some years after he had labored over his architectural plans for the building. But Mr. Brocklesby did include a "baseball cage," a bowling alley, showers, locker and, says the 1887 academic catalogue, "the most modern apparatus and latest patented appliances" available. Generous donors of Hartford and elsewhere, one of the most generous of whom was Mr. Junius S. Morgan, brought the building fund of $35,000 to its desired goal, and with some added endowment.

Those, of course, were pioneering days in physical education. Eight decades later, refinement of method and breadth of scope have increasingly marked physical education. Now, in a time when the lives of busy men grow steadily more sedentary after college, it becomes increasingly essential to build the health and physical

The architect's rendering of the new Ferris Athletic Center illustrates how the four-building addition will integrate with the existing facilities of the Field House (A) and Trowbridge Memorial (B).

The new varsity basketball building (C) will house two courts and feature retractable bleachers with a 2500 seating capacity. An additional 1000 chairs can be accommodated for convocations and other special events. The main floor will also contain an entrance foyer and an administrative unit. The second floor will have a press gallery and provide expanded office space for the physical education staff. With the erection of this building, the Field House will have greater utility as an indoor practice area for football, baseball, track and other sports, and for PE activities during inclement weather.

The building in the center of the new facility (D) will house on the first floor a wrestling room, special exercise room and a crew room and, on the second floor, locker and shower areas, and visiting team rooms. It will also contain the main equipment room, laundry room and training room. Ramps will connect the building to the others for easy access to both inside and outside areas.

The new squash racquets and gymnastics building (E) will add eleven squash courts to the present six in Trowbridge and provide areas for fencing and gymnastics.

The physical education building (F) will house facilities for intramural basketball, volleyball and for non-competitive PE activities.

The four buildings, comprising approximately 75,000 sq. ft., will be of rigid steel frame construction with precast concrete and brick exterior walls for design compatibility with existing structures.

It has been estimated that, at the time Alumni Hall was built in 1887 as the College's athletics center, the total inside physical education facility was 102 sq. ft. per student. In 1948, with Alumni Hall, Trowbridge and the then-new Field House in use, the per student area amounted to 61 sq. ft. With completion of the Ferris Athletic Center - and with Alumni Hall no longer housing any PE activity - the facility for the intercollegiate, intramural and physical education programs will be 100 sq. ft. per student.
I

6

Alumnus Honored

skills provided by an enlightened athletic and physical education program. One of the earliest experiences of the new freshman at Trinity is his physical fitness test. On its results are patterned largely the year's work in physical education and, to some extent, in sports. But a modern program demands modern equipment; and approximately 40 percent of today's total program for 1150 students is still conducted in Alumni Hall which in 1887 served a student body of 102.

“This is largely because the Field House, with its clay floor, is a ‘special purpose building’ not designed for basketball and other activities that demand a ‘gymnasium floor,’” explains Director Kurth. “The portable basketball floor and stands make it impossible six months a year to conduct activities that need a gymnasium.”

Trinity’s overall program in the area has three distinct phases.

“In a triangle, the base, the bottom third, would represent students enrolled in the required program,” he said, “The middle third would represent students of motivation and skills justifying participation in intramural competition. The top third, the smaller group, would hold those whose superior ability and intense motivation make them intercollegiate representatives in varsity and freshman sports. Trinity sends into action 25 such teams each year, though fencing and hockey are still informal. Indoor track and wrestling will be added as facilities become available.”

Trinity’s program includes every student in one way or another, but it is not entirely a program of groups. In a completely effective set-up, there must be provision for the exceptional needs of certain individuals. This is an area, Mr. Kurth declares, to which most colleges have failed to give sufficient thought and effort. “But we hope to do so to our satisfaction when new facilities make it possible.”

Thus does Trinity, through the George M. Ferris Athletic Center, plan to build toward the concept of physical education and intercollegiate sport as an integral part of the total educational experience.

Investment Banker, Community and Alumni Leader

When George Mallette Ferris received the Eigenbrodt Cup, the citation included a sentence of particular significance.

“As an undergraduate at Trinity,” it read, “his potential was clear.”

In the half-century that has followed his undergraduate years, that potential has been fulfilled. In finance, while still a relatively young man he became a senior partner in an important investment banking firm in Washington, a firm that bears his name. A member of the New York Stock Exchange, he is also a former president of the Washington Stock Exchange and a director and officer of important companies.

In his Washington and Chevy Chase communities, he has accepted posts of leadership in the work of the public causes—work as costly in time and effort as it is gratifying to the willing volunteer. He has served several hospitals in the Washington area as officer or director, has been board chairman of the National Cathedral School for Girls, and board member of Gallaudet College.

And for Trinity he has been longtime trustee, member of the Board of Fellows, past-president of the Baltimore-Washington Alumni Association, active leader in the Program of Progress. He is the donor of the George M. Ferris Scholarship for students from the Washington area, and in 1957 he was the founder of the increasingly distinguished George M. Ferris Lectureship in Corporation Finance and Investments.

That the most modern athletic and physical education facility in a New England college is now to bear his name will be a cause of satisfaction and pride to Trinity men. But not a reason for surprise.

In 1918, as a young lieutenant at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas, Mr. Ferris wrote a letter to the then president of Trinity, Dr. Flavel Sweeten Luther. Commenting on some of his Army experiences, Lt. Ferris concluded: “You do not know how proud I am to be on the graduate roster of Trinity College.”

A Trinity alumnus reading this might be moved to remark: “And that, Mr. Ferris, goes both ways.”
Robert M. Vogel
To Head
Bradford Junior College

For the second time in twelve months, a member of the Trinity administration has been honored by being named president of another college.

Just a year ago, Albert E. Holland ’34, vice president of the College, was elected president of Hobart and William Smith Colleges.

On May 9 it was announced at a meeting of the faculty that Robert Maier Vogel, Dean of the College and a member of the Trinity community for 20 years, has been selected to head Bradford Junior College in Bradford, Mass. The first man to be president of the 141-year-old liberal arts college for women, Dr. Vogel will succeed the retiring Miss Dorothy M. Bell. He will assume his new duties September 1.

Dr. Vogel, a native of Columbus, Indiana, received his A.B. degree in 1935 from Wabash College. While studying for his Master’s degree at the University of Michigan which he earned in 1940, he was an instructor in English at Adrian College. From 1940 to 1942, he was a member of the English Department and Director of Dramatics at the University of Rochester. During World War II he served as a lieutenant in the U. S. Navy and took part in the invasions of Normandy and Southern France, and was awarded the Bronze Star for gallantry during the invasion of Okinawa.

At the end of the war, Dr. Vogel attended Columbia University for work which led to his doctorate in education. Meanwhile, he joined the Trinity faculty in 1947 as an assistant professor of English and dramatics director. In 1949 he inaugurated the first arena theatre in Greater Hartford. In 1951 he was given the added duties of Director of the Evening and Summer Schools. In 1957, he was named Dean of Graduate Studies.

In the years he directed Trinity’s program of graduate studies and the summer session, Dr. Vogel introduced educational programs which gained national recognition.

He originated and developed the Trinity Transition to College Plan, which offers selected secondary school students an opportunity to take college-credit courses in the summer, and served as director of the program for six years. As an adaptation of the Plan, he developed the Summer Engineering Laboratory in 1963.

Dr. Vogel initiated the program to promote teaching of Advanced Placement courses which encouraged many schools to introduce such courses in English, Latin and history. He was responsible for establishing graduate degrees in the departments of classical languages, economics, government, mathematics and physics.

During the planning and construction stages of the Austin Arts Center, Dr. Vogel was the college representative to the architect. He has been the college’s liaison officer for an urban renewal study of Hartford’s South End. He is a trustee of Kingswood School, West Hartford.

Dr. Vogel has been an active member of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and served as a member of evaluation teams for the accreditation of colleges in New England.

Dr. Robert M. Vogel’s decision to accept the Presidency of Bradford Junior College is a tremendous loss to Trinity. His twenty years of devoted, dedicated and highly constructive service have added greatly to the stature of the College. As a teacher and as an administrator he has in his quiet, understanding and extremely efficient way handled his important responsibilities most effectively and most wisely.

He will long be remembered at Trinity for his extremely valuable contributions: among others, as the significant builder of our modern and highly outstanding Summer Term with its many meaningful and unique programs which he so thoughtfully devised; as the real founder of Trinity’s eminently successful Program of Graduate Studies of which the College is so proud and which renders such a fine service to the community; for his amazingly skillful service during the last three years as Dean of the College.

We wish Dr. and Mrs. Vogel Godspeed, all success and happiness as they assume their new and important responsibilities. Trinity loses two very dear friends, two great human beings.

DR. ALBERT C. JACOBS
President

Dorwart Named Dean

Dr. Harold L. Dorwart, Seabury Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy since 1949, has been named to succeed Dr. Vogel as Dean of the College for the academic year 1967–68. Dr. Dorwart will relinquish his department chairmanship July 1 (see Campus Notes).

Dr. Dorwart completed his undergraduate work at Washington & Jefferson and received his doctorate from Yale University. Before joining the Trinity faculty, he taught at Yale, Williams College and his alma mater, W & J, where he held assistant, associate and full professorships.
Fond Recollections of “The Great Osram”

By T. Robert Stumpf ’32
(With an assist from William W. Sisbower ’33)

Spring of 1932. The Trinity campus was verdant, but there was little ready green around as the nation struggled to recover from the great crash of October, 1929. Even museum directors were hard put to get money for their special activities. A. Everett Austin, Instructor in Fine Arts at Trinity, was no exception.

As director of the Wadsworth Atheneum and Morgan Memorial in Hartford, “Chick” Austin had been concerned each spring with raising money for paints, pencils, sketch blocks, and other art supplies to be used in summer art classes held in the museum for the underprivileged children of Hartford. In previous years Chick had raised money for this children’s project by holding special cinema shows at the museum. The films he exhibited were the experimental works of new directors and producers—generally from Europe. Costs of producing such a cinema evening were fantastic ($400–$500) in relation to the returns received from the museum’s patrons who constituted the principal audience.

Chick Austin hit on the idea of a low-cost magic show running several evenings to replace the imported film show. Insurance would be lower, no union projectionists were required, no special fireproof booth was needed, duties and rental fees were eliminated—all this saving was made possible because Chick Austin was an amateur magician.

From the art classes at Trinity he enlisted Herb Norman ’32 and this writer to wear lion-tamers suits and be his on-stage assistants. Harris Prior ’32, as business and advance agent, and Bill Sisbower ’33, as stage manager, served as the off-stage manipulators backing up the magical feats.

The show lasted about two hours and was filled with illusions, rabbits, birds, and escape tricks. One of the birds—a yellow canary—caused endless trouble when an over-zealous museum assistant let it escape from its cage. The resolute bundle of feathers had a wonderful night of freedom flying about the museum and using the frames of French Impressionists as perches on which to preen and chirp. Just before the performance the next day, a guard caught the bird on a surprised visitor’s shoulder and returned it to its cage. The show went on with complete cast.

The magic shows at the museum made more than satisfactory returns for the museum’s special fund for children. However, the lingering depression obviated Chick’s annual trip to Europe that summer. So, he sold his magic team on the idea of a barnstorming road show through New England for the summer. A panel truck and a Ford Phaeton made up the caravan. White doves (dirty pigeons) replaced delicate canaries. Naturally, advance publicity, posters, and promotional hoopla were needed to get the Grange and Redmen’s Halls filled to make the show pay. One night, in Dover, New Hampshire, there was an audience of one—the building custodian—even though tickets were given away. The show went on. On other occasions the posters filled the halls.

Most important of all, an impressive stage name was needed, and this was derived from the new Austin house in West Hartford which contained some European lamps. From an Osram light bulb—voila!—“The Great Osram—Masked Master of Multiple Mysteries” was born.

From his environmental background, too, was conceived the magic show poster reproduced here. Deeply interested in the modern painters (although in later years at the Ringling Museum in Sarasota, Chick’s collection of old masters became famous), he had hanging in his office a Mondrian on loan from the then unknown Philip Johnson. And so was created “The Great Osram” poster—with overtones of Mondrian.

The poster came to light recently in a collection of prints and designs that the writer started shortly after his graduation from Trinity. Now, finally, the poster has returned to Trinity as a bit of memorabilia of the early days of A. Everett Austin in Hartford.
Faculty Approves 9-Point Program of Calendar and Curriculum Changes

By Robert M. Vogel
Dean of the College

During this academic year, particularly in the Trinity term, the Faculty of Trinity College has as a body been very busy. Several changes, each of them relatively small in itself, have been made the action of the faculty. Collectively they go far toward making the curriculum more attractive, more logical, more up-to-date.

New Calendar

The introduction of a new calendar, under which one term will be completed prior to the Christmas holidays, is designed to provide alternate periods of pressure and respite from pressure. It is anticipated that the result will be a more sane life for students and faculty and a higher level of achievement by students. Almost as if it were done by mirrors, a very slight change in the opening date of college has led to the possibility of providing a vacation period of three and one-half weeks between the Christmas and Trinity terms and, in the middle of the Trinity term, a vacation of three weeks which students will be expected to divide between rest and concentrated study in preparation for the completion of term papers, theses, and study for General Examinations.

Pre-medical Major

The pre-medical major, an anomaly in this day when medical schools are expecting a broader education of their applicants, has been terminated.

Course Load

After several years of experience with a pattern of study under which freshmen and sophomores were normally enrolled in five courses each year and juniors and seniors in four courses each year, the conclusion was inescapable that the freshman year was unduly heavy. To help our students, especially those expecting to major in one of the sciences, this load has been readjusted to provide for four courses in the freshman year, five in the sophomore and junior years, and four again in the final year when students must concentrate on preparation for the General Examination.

Basic Science Requirements

Among our Basic Requirements (six courses which must be completed in the first two years) is "one laboratory science course." To those courses which satisfy the requirement in science have been added introductory laboratory courses in astronomy and experimental psychology. At the same time the offering of an introductory laboratory course in geology, in which interest had been diminishing almost to the point of none at all, has been for the present terminated.

Honors Scholars

In an attempt to make our curriculum more attractive to those students who come to us with the very best pre-college preparation the Faculty conferred on its Committee on Admissions authority to designate up to 50 entering students as Freshman-Sophomore Honors Scholars. These young men will be permitted, with counsel of course, to omit those of the Basic Requirements in which they are not particularly interested, or more likely in which they feel they are adequately prepared. This will permit addition to our student body in future years of a few students who are remarkably talented in one direction but who might be deterred from applying to Trinity because of the rigidity of our Basic Requirements. It will also give the Faculty some evidence, not typical to be sure, of the interest of entering students in the kind of general education the Basic Requirements are designed to provide as well as of the effect should some of this general education be taken for granted on the basis of the better preparatory education entering students now bring.

Foreign Student Language Requirement

For many years our requirements have specified that students must achieve a certain level of competency in a list of specified foreign languages – French, German, Italian, Russian, Spanish – or in one of the two classical languages, Latin or Greek. Under a modification of this regulation, foreign students who are able to prove competency in their native tongue will be exempted from this requirement. Thus belated recognition has been given to the existence of national cultures other than those in which the College happens to provide language instruction.

Educationally Disadvantaged Students

Almost every college is today making a real effort to admit to its student body students from educationally disadvantaged backgrounds. The purpose is twofold: to provide diversity in the student body and to assist in solving the nation's most pressing problem. As colleges of high quality have continued to improve their quality, and thus without specific design to increase their expectations of their students, the accommodation of those whose environment has not been privileged has become increasingly difficult. Regardless of their basic intelligence, they often cannot proceed at so fast a pace as those who have had from birth greater privileges. In an attempt to solve this problem the Faculty granted to the Committee on Academic Standing and Discipline authority to adjust such college regulations as those for normal course load, dates by which particular courses must be completed, probation, etc., for students who should in their own interests be encouraged to proceed at a slower pace.

Curriculum Revision

For the future, the Faculty in April elected a committee of six of its members to begin the lengthy and difficult task of making recommendations for changes in the curriculum and in the calendar as related to the curriculum. This committee will as a part of its responsibility consider the always recurring question of advisability of Saturday classes.

Faculty/Trustee/Student Participation

In subsequent action in the same week the Joint Committee on Educational Policy, responding to a request from the Student Senate that there be student representation on this curriculum revision committee, voted that the committee favored student participation and asked the Faculty Committee as its first order of business to devise a mechanism for meaningful student participation. Responding to the question of the form and extent of trustee participation in the revision of the curriculum, the committee asked that the Faculty Committee provide for appropriate trustee involvement as well as a method for periodically informing the Joint Committee on the progress of deliberations. Finally, responding to the nationwide problem of rapport and communication among students, trustees, faculty and administrative officers the committee established a subcommittee to consist of one trustee, one faculty member, and one administrative officer selected from the committee and three students selected by the Student Senate. It is intended that this committee meet with some regularity to maintain a dialogue with the college community. These actions by the Joint Committee were on the following day, April 15, approved unanimously by the Board of Trustees.

THE END OF FOUR YEARS

Eight Seniors - Their Undergraduate Accomplishments, Some Thoughts About the College, Future Ambitions

David Downes was born in the Missouri Ozarks ("Sort of a hillbilly but I've become very metropolitan," he claims), now lives in New York City. He prepared at St. Paul's in Garden City.

An English major, Dave has had an active and varied career during his four years on campus. He was a Junior Adviser, a Goodwin Fellow, a former vice president of the Jesters, Head Acolyte and a Lay Reader. He was editor of The Triport, served as a student member of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, is a member of Theta Xi.

Although he notes improvement in the situation, he feels that "provincialism" is still a problem at the College. At least, he says, growing recognition that the problem exists is, in itself, a step in the right direction.

With increased academic pressures, there are increased social pressures, he states, and coeducation at Trinity is inevitable.

Dave has been awarded a Phillips Andover Summer Teaching Fellowship. In the fall, he will join the Peace Corps. "I want to do something for somebody other than myself for a change."

After the Peace Corps? Perhaps graduate school. Perhaps a teaching career.

Last summer Peter S. Heller participated in the Experiment in International Living Program, living for two months with a family in Shikoku, Japan, and teaching English. As a result of his visit, he acquired the ability to converse in the language and developed a lively interest in the game of Go, the Japanese version of chess.
An economics major and Holland Scholar, a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Pi Gamma Mu, Peter is also a member of the Senate, a past president of the Atheneum. He has been a tutor and an assistant in the departments of mathematics and history. A native of New York City, he prepared at Bayside High School. Peter feels that coeducation at Trinity is logical and that it would in no way reduce the value of a Trinity education. He also argues that a curriculum revision is needed, perhaps in the direction of more pass-fail courses.

Offered both Lehman and Woodrow Wilson Fellowships, he accepted the latter and will do graduate work at Harvard University. Later, he hopes to attend law school and eventually enter government service or the field of life insurance law.

Edward B. Hutton Jr., of Duxbury, Mass., admits Trinity was not his first choice, but he also admits that his acceptance at Trinity was "probably the best thing that ever happened to me." He prepared at Noble Greenough School.

Ted played baseball his freshman year, then concentrated on soccer and squash racquets. During the past year, he was captain of both sports and won the College squash championship.

He is a member of Medusa, served the Campus Chest for two years, is president of Alpha Delta Phi. He obviously believes in the fraternity system but feels that, if it is to continue in the future, more attention must be given the social life of independent students. He views coeds at Trinity negatively, believes association with girls should be limited to weekends.

Improvements at the College? Among other things, he says, closer liaison between faculty, students, and administration, and smaller classes for greater student participation.

Ted will be married in June. Before entering the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth College, he will take part in the Bankers Trust Summer Program.
Although Douglas G. Jacobs started as a history major, he decided early in his undergraduate days on a career in medicine. This necessitated an unusually heavy schedule, including a summer session last year. But the work load has not interfered with other activities.

Doug played baseball his sophomore year, was a three-letter winner in football as a tackle. He said of last year's winning season: "It was a real team effort. We had no real stars, just a united team that was out to win. The greatest moment was taking that last game."

Doug was a Junior Adviser, a member of Cerberus and Alpha Delta Phi. He prepared at Staples High School in his home community of Westport, Conn.

As to coeds at Trinity, he votes yes. After all it is a more natural way of life, he says, and trying to restrict a social life to two days a week is not very satisfactory. "There might be some distractions," he admits, "but people who are going to study will study anyway."

Doug will enter the University of Pennsylvania Medical School in September, has set his sights on becoming a practicing physician.

Donald L. Livingston is as much at home behind the wheel of an ambulance as he is behind a bass drum. A resident of Darien, Conn., he prepared at Suffield Academy and, the year before entering Trinity, attended Malvern College in England.

An economics major, Don has a part-time job as a driver and attendant for a local ambulance service. In his freshman year, he took part in the Companion Program at the Connecticut Hospital in Middletown. As a sophomore, he devoted one afternoon a week to recreational activities with a group of underprivileged boys at the Central Baptist Church. He has been a bass drummer in the "Pipes and Drums," and is a member of Delta Phi.

Last summer Don joined the AIESEC foreign exchange program (during the past year he headed the program at Trinity) and worked on agricultural projects in the Netherlands. This summer he will work in the Bank of Japan in Tokyo. Following his two month assignment in the Land of the Rising Sun, he will join the Peace Corps. Eventually he hopes to do graduate work in some phase of international relations.

G. Theodore Ruckert IV points to soccer (four years of playing it) and his activities with Cerberus as "two of my most pleasant memories of undergraduate days." He also served as a Junior Adviser. is a member of the Senate, a brother in Alpha Chi Rho. Ted prepared at Brighton High School in a suburb of his hometown of Rochester, N.Y.

He decries the lack of school spirit and the fact that undergraduates do not get together as a group. On the subject of Trinity becoming coeducational: Emphatically, no!

A biology major, Ted has been on the Dean's List for the last two semesters. Upon graduation he will enter the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University with two of his classmates. They will join nine other Trinity graduates currently enrolled at P&S.

Participation in the Companion Program at the Connecticut Hospital in Middletown, work in the Hartford Tutorial Project and Trinity Seminar Program, have led David D. Ward to a decision to seek a career in secondary school teaching. "I found my own education experience rewarding and I would like to continue working with others."

Dave prepared at Radnor High School in his hometown of Wayne, Pa. He has been a George F. Baker Scholar, an English major, a Junior Adviser, and member of Theta Xi.

He has been busy in other areas, too. He was a two-letterman in lacrosse, winner of a gold football for three years on the varsity and, at the end of the past season, was named the "most valuable player," an award that came as a complete surprise to him. His football coach says of him: "One of the most faithful and consistent boys I've ever coached. He was always in there with a winning effort."

Dave has been accepted at Temple University in an intern teaching program which will combine a full-time teaching assignment in the Philadelphia area with attendance at night classes.

Geoffrey J. White started his undergraduate days at Trinity—the first college campus he ever visited—as a pre-architectural major in fine arts and mathematics. In his sophomore year, he became a religion major.

Geoff credits communications authority Marshall McLuhan for the stimulus behind a paper he has written for the Archives, "Urban Elementary School Architecture," which relates design to contemporary thinking. The McLuhan influence is also prominent in a TV color film which he has been working on, showing the birth of a rock and roll composition.

He is a strong advocate of coeducation. "Why should a college be a retreat from the real world? Why condense your social life between Friday and Sunday?"

Geoff was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, is a member of Cerberus, the Senate, plays French horn in the band, was a member of the Dorm and Bookstore Committees. He is a Theta Xi. He prepared at Rye High School, Rye, New York.

This fall he will study architecture at the Graduate School of Fine Arts, the University of Pennsylvania.

STATEMENT OF OWNERSHIP MANAGEMENT AND CIRCULATION FOR TRINITY ALUMNI MAGAZINE

As required by the Act of Congress, October 23, 1962

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section 4369, Title 39, United States Code</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Date of filing of statement: October 1, 1966</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Title of publication: Trinity Alumni Magazine</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. Frequency of Issue: 4 times a year</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Location of known Office of Publication: Trinity College, Summit St., Hartford, Conn. 06106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. Location of Headquarters: Trinity College, Summit St., Hartford, Conn. 06106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. Publisher: Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7. Editor: L. Barton Wilson, Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. 06106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8. Owner: Trustees of Trinity College, Summit St., Hartford, Conn. 06106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9. Known Bondholders, Mortgagees and other Security Holders owning or holding 1 percent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages or other securities: the United States Housing and Home Finance Agency, Washington, D.C.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

I certify that the statements made by me above are correct and complete.

L. BARTON WILSON
Editor
Views of the Quad

Not often has the utterance of a liberal arts college president received wider or more thoughtful response than was accorded the opening sections of the recently published annual report of Dr. Jacobs, in which Trinity's 143rd academic year was reviewed.

Looking across the country at the "current attitudes of young people, students and non-students alike," and the current "spirit of unrest and frustration," Dr. Jacobs declined to place the blame, or a major part of the blame, on the young people themselves.

"It gives us a lift," said Dr. Cherbonnier, "to realize what strong ties our alumni feel for the Department of Religion and to see at firsthand the signs that they have been able to apply and to amplify what they learned as majors."

Perhaps a good-sized room in the University Club will not be large enough for next year's reunion.

Only a few years ago, writers were viewing with disquiet the failure of American undergraduates to be articulate on public questions. They pinned on college students the label of the "Silent Generation."

Times have changed.

Enlivening one campus week on successive April days were a conference on "Black Power," a speech by Herbert Aptheker, Marxist theoretician, and Robert Welch, the John Birch Society founder. Messrs. Aptheker and Welch came on invitation from the undergraduate Political Forum and the students, skeptical but curious, turned out in some numbers. Dr. Aptheker dropped no verbal bomb. He was rather calm, even as he inveighed against Jim Crowism, as so many others not of his political persuasion have done for so long. Mr. Welch was funnier. He tickled the risibilities of his audience with strange answers to pointed queries in the Q. and A. period.

Word had come that an anti-communist group planned to picket the Aptheker appearance, but no pickets appeared.

Then, on April 21-22, came the student planned and directed symposium on "Control of Social Change in a Democracy." A student committee headed by Michael Seitchik '68, worked on this one for a year or more. They invited a number of speakers, some quite well known, in the search for answers to such questions as: "What are the issues of human rights in our rapidly changing technological society?" And "What are the economic implications of human rights?" And "What forms of democratic planning are needed to insure human rights in government, industry, labor, education, and communities?" And "Does centralization destroy human rights?"

These are large topics, and some men heard frequently these days on campus across the country came to try to answer them – Mr. Saul Alinsky, director of the Industrial Area Foundation, Chicago; Mr. W. H. Ferry, of the Center for Study of Democratic Institutions, Santa Barbara, Calif.; the Rev. Mr. James Breeden, director of the Commission on Religion and Race of the National Council of Churches; Mr. Claude Brown, author of Manchild in the Promised Land, and others. There were workshops, panels and lectures.

The questions were a big order – too big for one conference, one speaker said – but the undergraduates and their dates turned out in good numbers. No one, of course, expected to get all the answers. Some of the good ideas weren't new, and some of the new ideas, perhaps, weren't good. But there was evidence of undergraduate awareness that problems are waiting to be solved, and that's good. – R.H.
TRUSTEE AND BENEFACtor

James Lippincott Goodwin, Hon. '63

To a degree not always noted on the campus when death comes to a longstanding and generous friend of the College, there was a feeling of personal loss when the news came on an early-March afternoon that James Lippincott Goodwin had died in Winter Park, Florida. He and Mrs. Goodwin had been spending the winter at their home on Lake Maitland in Winter Park, and the word had been that he was having a "good winter" and was looking forward to the return to Hartford with warmer weather. His illness was a brief one. He had entered the Winter Park Memorial Hospital only a day before.

The sense of genuine loss felt on the campus was due in some part, of course, to the fact that every student knows of the role Mr. Goodwin played in the conception and construction of the Austin Arts Center. And they know that the Center is a memorial to A. Everett Austin, the remarkably versatile and creative man who founded the department of Fine Arts at Trinity. Mr. Austin was a young man of rare imagination, inspiration, taste and talent, qualities that helped him to bring the Wadsworth Atheneum to the high position it has since maintained as a nationally respected institution. Mr. Austin was the husband of the former Helen Goodwin, a favorite cousin of Mr. Goodwin.

Goodwin Theatre

And every student knew, of course, that the handsome and handsomely equipped theatre which provides for the presentation of the College's lectures, plays, concerts and operas, is the James Lippincott Goodwin Theatre. The undergraduate "Goodwin Fellows," founded with the encouragement and blessing of Mr. Goodwin, carry on their work in the building, and in a very real way help to achieve for it the kind of purpose for which it was intended. They fill it with activity, and it is activity that looks forward, not back. It is lively, and it is creative, and it helps the Fellows, as well as the campus generally, to give their days and evenings and weekends a flavor that would otherwise be lacking. The Center and the Theatre, have indeed added a new dimension to the campus. Nearly every day you hear someone ask: "How in the world did we get along without the Arts Center for so many years?"

Mr. Goodwin, of course, realized that the Austin Arts Center was having this leavening effect on Trinity's life, and his friends said it pleased him greatly. It is likely that none of the other projects he aided so generously in the public interest pleased him more. He was present on the sunny day in May, 1965, when the Austin Arts Center was dedicated in a pleasant outdoor ceremony, and he smiled happily as the program progressed. When, finally, he received from the hand of President Jacobs a Gold Key encased in a small, rosewood box, he was obviously pleased. This was not the traditional, out-size ceremonial key designed to fit no lock. This was a precisely engineered master key, fashioned in gold and capable of opening all principal doors of the building. The gift symbolized the part Mr. Goodwin had played in helping so greatly to open new opportunities for the students.

Conservationist

Mr. Goodwin spent his life looking forward. It was interesting to him, but perhaps not particularly significant in the context of present-day life, that his great-grandfather had been one of Trinity's founders, and that there has been in each succeeding generation a member of the family on the College's board of trustees. He had forward look in his campaigns for conservation of Connecticut's natural resources, an interest kindled during his graduate work in Forestry at Yale. The first graduate school of its kind, the School of Forestry had been established as a result of a gift from the Goodwin family to Yale. The James L. Goodwin State Forest, on acres provided by him in Hampton and Chaplin, will be a lasting reminder of this man as future generations enjoy the woodlands.

Cultural Interests

He had aided the Wadsworth Atheneum and the Hartford Symphony, again looking to future as well as present cultural interests of the city. The forward-looking stance invariably marked his work as a Life Trustee of Trinity, beginning in 1928. He respected the past, and he wished it, increasingly and in ways perhaps yet to be discovered, to be of use to people yet to come. Little wonder that, when he received Trinity's honorary LL.D. in 1963, he was cited as a man "who has been known for his benefactions in the public interest and for his services to the common good." He perhaps would have wished no other "premiere." He was able to come out to the theatre for the world premiere on last October 20 of the Arnold Franchetti opera, As a Conductor Dreams (Notturno in L A), presented by Trinity's Cesare Barbieri Center for Italian Studies. This is a "percussion opera," perhaps important in the novelty of its musical style, paying scant homage to the past, but looking ahead, in the tradition of A. Everett Austin — and Mr. Goodwin.

During the evening, Mrs. Goodwin remarked that they were going to Florida the next day. Thus it came about that the evening in the Goodwin Theatre and the Austin Arts Center, proved to be his last visit to the Center and to Trinity, and his last evening in Hartford. Sharing that evening the atmosphere of adventure that always marks a premiere, he perhaps would have wished no other "last evening" setting if the choice had been his.

An editorial in the Hartford Courant on the day after Mr. Goodwin's death closed with these lines: "He was a gentle, good man, completely without side, a very real person who will be missed for his personal qualities more than he probably would have realized."
Henry Crocker Kittredge, Hon. 1938

Henry C. Kittredge, retired Rector of St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H., died February 19 in Barnstable, Mass. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Gertrude Channing Livingston; a son, James Gordon Kittredge; and a daughter, Mrs. Barbara L. Shepherd.

Born January 4, 1890, in Cambridge, Mass., a son of the late Dr. George Lyman Kittredge, Hon. Lit. D. 1939, and Frances Evelyn Gordon, he prepared for college at Noble and Greenough School. He entered Harvard College in 1908 and graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1912. After teaching at the Adirondack-Florida School for four years he joined the faculty of St. Paul's School in 1916 and stayed until his retirement in 1954 except for two years service in the Army 1917-1919. He was a member of the school's Board of Trustees and their History; Shipmasters Sons of the American Revolution.

Theodore Grafton Case, 1900

Theodore G. Case, one of the College's oldest alumni, died February 2nd in Hartford Hospital. He lived in Granby, Conn. Born November 20, 1875 in Simsbury, Conn., a son of the late William Cullen Case and Margaret Turnbull, he prepared for college at the Collins St. Classical School and graduated there in 1899. He entered Trinity in 1900 and was a member of the Elks, Odd Fellows and Sons of the American Revolution.

After graduation he studied law with his father for two years and then entered Yale Law School as a special student. He practiced law in Hartford with the late Percy S. Bryant, Trinity 1870, in the firm of Bryant, Case and Bloomer. Mr. Case served as judge of probate in Granby, as town counsel, and was a representative of Granby in the General Assembly for many years. He also was named Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas in Hartford.

His widow, the former Miss Christine E. Loomis, and a nephew, John R. Case, survive.

William Parker Wharton, 1901

Word has reached the Alumni Office of the death of Dr. William P. Wharton on October 6, 1966, in Germany. It is hoped that more details of his life will be sent to the College.

Born August 4, 1878, in Ralston, Neb., a son of the late Rev. Paul Ziegler, Trinity 1872, and Mary Virginia Graham, he prepared for college at the Holderness School, Plymouth, N.H., but remained at Trinity for only two years. His fraternity was the Alpha Chi Chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Mr. Wharton graduated from Columbia University in 1902 with the Bachelor of Arts degree, and received the Master of Arts degree in 1905 from Columbia. In 1912 he was awarded the Ph.D degree from New York University.

For some years he taught at the High School of Commerce in New York City.
and Belle Jameson Dobie, he prepared for college at Peekskill Military Academy, Peekskill, N.Y., and entered Trinity in 1901 with the Class of 1905. As an undergraduate he was a member of the Mandolin Club for three years; Literary Editor of the Tablet; the 1905 IVY Board; the Sophomore Dining Club and the Junior Promenade Committee. At graduation he was chosen Class Poet. His fraternity was the Alpha Chi Chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

After teaching at the Belair High School and the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute where he was head of the Modern Language department, he became associated with the National Life Insurance Company of Vermont in 1916. Until this past March he remained active with the company. A pioneer in the Chartered Life Underwriters movement, he received the C.L.U. designation in 1930 and was trustee of the American College of Life Underwriters from 1932–1945.

VICTOR EUGENE REHR, 1906

Victor E. Rehr, retired metallurgist and realtor, died December 15 in Overbrook, Pa. He leaves his wife, the former Dorothy Colmer, and two daughters, Mrs. Aimee Stoykovich; Mrs. Howard M. Vosburgh.

For many years he was with the Marcus Ward Inc., Co. of Long Island City and the Sherman Envelope Co., which merged in 1939 to form the Eastern Tablet Co. The following year he was named President but resigned in 1943 for health reasons. Later he joined the C.J. Bates & Son Co. of Chester as a consultant and was manager of the Envelope Division with rank of Ensign.

"Slats" was a prime mover in the formation of the Essex, Deep River and Chester Regional School District 4, and was the first Vice-President of the Regional High School Board of Education in 1948–G.C.C.

JOHN BOOTH CLARK, 1910

The Rev. John B. Clark, who spent his entire ministry in South Dakota, died in Huron, S.D., March 12. He is survived by four daughters; Mrs. Robert Matthey, Mrs. Charles Pell, Mrs. Lester Westling, and Mrs. Guy M. King Jr.; and two sons, John W. and the Rev. David Clark, Class of 1945. His wife, the former Miss Rebecca Miller, died December 9, 1956, and a son, Robert, some years ago. His brother, the Rev. Thomas Clark, Class of 1910, and another brother, the late Robert H. Clark, Class of 1917.

Born November 13, 1887, in Schuylerville, N.Y., a son of the late Rev. Aaron Baker Clark and Elizabeth Blacker, he prepared for college at Kearney Military Academy, Kearney, Nebr., and entered Trinity in 1906 with the Class of 1910. As an undergraduate he was associate editor of the 1910 IVY and vice-president of his Class as a junior.

Graduating from Trinity in 1912, he enrolled in the Berkeley Divinity School and was ordained deacon on August 8, 1915, and advanced to the priesthood the next year. He served at the Rosebud Mission, the Sisseton Mission and the Standing Rock Mission. In addition, he was priest in charge of St. James Church, Mobridge, from 1940–1957 and super­ tendent of Episcopal Indian Missions in North Dakota from 1948-1957. After his retirement in 1957, he was awarded a gold Niobrara Cross at the Niobrara Convocation — a rare tribute to his many years of service among the Indians. — G.C.C.

ELLIOTT FIELDING PETTIGREW, 1912

Word has reached the College of the death of Elliott F. Pettigrew January 18 in Wilmington, N.C. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Dorothy Shipman; a son, Elliott, Jr. and two daughters, Mrs. George Stewart Edie Jr. and Mrs. Patricia P. Swart.

Born May 19, 1892, in New York City, he prepared for college at Trinity School, New York City in 1910, and entered with the Class of 1912. As an undergraduate he was a member of the Freshman Junior Banquet Committee; the Sophomore Social Committee; the Sophomore Women's Dining Banquet Committee; the Junior Promenade Committee; the College Choir; and manager of the track team. His fraternity was the Phi Kappa Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi.

During World War I he served in the United States Navy for a year and a half, being discharged with the rank of Ensign.

For many years he was employed by Air Reduction Co., Inc., in New York City as sales manager. He retired several years ago and moved to Wilmington, N.C. from Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y. — H.W.

CORTLAND WHITHEAD SAYRES, 1913

Cortland W. Sayres, who taught 44 years in the Detroit school system, died April 3 in Botsford General Hospital, Farmington, Michigan. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Dorothy Abbott, two sons, Dr. William Sayres and Thomas Sayres, and two daughters, Anne and Jeanne Sayres. His brother, Archer P. Sayres, is Trinity 1913.

Born October 8, 1892 in Montivideo, Minn., a son of the Rev. William Seaman Sayres and Anna Stevens, he prepared for college at Central High School, Detroit and entered Trinity in 1909 with the Class of 1913, but because of personal reasons left in 1912. He pitched on the baseball team for two years and was a member of the Mandolin Club. His fraternity was the Phi Psi Chapter of Alpha Chi Rho.

After graduating from the University of Michigan in 1914, he was awarded a degree in 1930 in the University of Michigan in 1914. He was awarded the second Alumni English Prize for two years and the First Whitlock English Prize. He was Secretary of the Senate; Editor of the 1918 Yearbook; and Editor of the Triodip. His fraternity was IKA, now the Sigma Chapter of Delta Phi.

THOMAS COOK BROWN, 1915

Thomas C. Brown, chief editorial writer from 1943 to 1956 for the Buffalo Courier-Express, died December 31, 1966, in Niagara Falls, New York. He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Helen Strudwick Barnwell, and a sister, Miss Charlotte S. Brown.

Born July 23, 1893, a son of the late Augustus Franklin Allen Brown and Elizabeth Margaret Cook, he prepared for college at the DeVeaux School, Niagara Falls, N.Y. At Trinity he was awarded the second Alumni English Prize for two years and the First Whitlock English Prize. He was Secretary of the Senate; Editor of the 1918 Yearbook; and Editor of the Triodip. His fraternity was IKA, now the Sigma Chapter of Delta Phi.

After leaving college Tom worked for the Courier-Express, Evening Journal and Morning Post; the Niagara Falls Journal; the Buffalo Express; the Washington Post; the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin; the Bradford, Pa., Era, before joining the staff of the Buffalo Courier in 1922. In 1917 he served in the Infantry of the U.S. Army from Officers' Training Camp, Fort Niagara, N.Y.

While on the Courier-Express he became author of the column "Retrospect" in the Sunday paper. When he retired as chief editorial writer in 1960, he retained the title of editorial writer emeritus for five years. He was a member of the first National Executive Committee of the American Newspaper Guild, and former Chairman of the Board of the Buffalo Newspaper Club.

Tom always loved Trinity. From 1948–1950 he served as President of the Buffalo Alumni Association, and from 1950–1956 was a Senior Fellow of the College. In 1957 he was awarded an Alumni Medal for "Excellence in the discharge of his office as a "beloved citizen of Buffalo, has made himself the renowned chief editorial writer and columnist of the Buffalo Courier-Express, please I mention to you, Sir, his history of those centur shades of Willie Mays, those once horse-} splayer, the New York Giants? I present to you for the medal of honor a Horatian character who not only sends us from Buffalo heartbeats of alumns but is ever singing of his Lailage—Trinity.

For some twenty years he was a lecturer on journalism at the University of Buffalo. He was an undergraduate in the improvement of Greek-American relations, and on October 27, 1963 was decorated with the Golden Cross of the Order of Phoenix for his role in this work. He was an alumnus trustee of the DeVeaux School from 1943—1952 and a presentdor of his Old Boys Association.

Trinity. He has lost a devoted alumna; the Class of 1915, a loyal friend. — R.H.B.

OGDEN DOREMUS BUDJ JR., 1915

Ogden D. Budd, New York City insurance broker, died March 14 in Scarsdale,

N.Y. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Mary Elizabeth, a sister, Miss Annie N. Budd; a brother, Bern, Class of 1908; and a nephew, Bern, Jr., Class of 1937. His brother Thomas G. Budd was the Class of 1906.

Born November 5, 1892, in New York

City, a son of the late Ogden Doremus

Budd and Grace Jackson Budd, he prepared for college at Trinity School, New York. He was graduated from the member of the Sophomore Hop, the

Junior Smoker, and the Junior Prom

Committees. He was secretary-treasurer of the Jesters and also secretary-treasurer

to his class as a senior. His fraternity was the Alpha Chi of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

In World Wars I and II he served in the

U.S. Army in World War I, he joined the

Lincoln National Life

brokerage firm of Kidder Peabody Co., in

Boston, Mass. In recent years he had been personnel manager at the Verney

Mills in Brunswick, Me. — C.B.F.B.

ROCCO JOSEPH SAGARINO, 1915

Rocco J. Sagarino, a former Hartford

alderman, died March 12 in Phoenix,

Arizonia. He leaves his wife, the former

Miss Ethel Cudero of Hartford; and two sons, Frank J. and John; and a daughter,

Mrs. Vita Rossi.

Born October 16, 1895, in Hartford,

Conn., a son of Frank Sagarino and

Maria Teresa Di Ciwanco, he prepared for college at St. Thomas Seminary and entered

Trinity in 1915 with the Class of 1919, but only remained in residence for one year. His fraternity was the Epsilon

Chapter of Delta Psi.

After serving in France with the U.S.

Army in World War I, he joined the brokerage firm of Kidder Peabody Co., in

Boston, Mass. In recent years he had been personnel manager at the Verney

Mills in Brunswick, Me. — C.B.F.B.

RICHMOND RUCKER, 1917

Richmond Rucker, well known lawyer in Winston-Salem, N.C., died suddenly in that city January 7. He leaves his wife,

Mrs. Melissa R. Rucker; and three sons,

Richmond W., Thomas J., and William W.

Budd. Born May 10, 1896, in Winston-Salem, a son of the late Thomas Saunders Rucker and Mary Ellen Marion, he prepared for college at public and private schools in

Winston-Salem and entered Trinity in 1913, but only remained in residence for two years. His fraternity was the Epsilon

Chapter of Delta Psi.

After college, in the National Guard, he saw action in World War I on nine divisional fronts, including the drive through the Argonne Forest in France.

After his discharge from the Army he attended the University of North Carolina

Law School, where he was on the Law

Review Staff in 1922. For some 25 years he practiced law in Winston-Salem with John Ingle, and in 1929 the firm became

Ingle, Rucker and Ingle. The firm dissolved in 1958.

"Rich" collaborated with the late John

Henry Wigmore in preparing the 1943 supplement to Wigmore's book on evidence. He also continued to prepare annual supplements to this treatise. In 1931, he aided in the revision of Dr. Walter S.

Lockhart's "Handbook on the Law of Evidence for North Carolina." — J.R.

CHARLES ADAMS WOOSTER, 1917

Word has reached the College of the death of Charles A. Wooster on January

29, 1967. He leaves a daughter, a son, Mrs. Virginia Bodley, and a

Charles Bidwell Wooster. His wife, the former Miss Alice Veda Bidwell of Thomasville, N.C., died in Hartford.

Born in Tariffville, Conn., December

27, 1893, a son of the late Dr. Charles

Morris Wooster and Martha Adams, he prepared for college at Hartford Public

High School. At Trinity he was on the Junior Promenade Committee, a member of the Mandolin Club. His fraternity was the Alpha Chi Chapter of Delta

Kappa Epsilon.

After working for the Hartford

Insurance Co., the Travelers

Insurance Co., and the London Guarantee Co., he joined the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. in 1926 as general agent covering Southeastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey. He retired in 1956.

FREDERICK NELSON OLMSTED, 1919

Word has reached the College of the death of Frederick N. Olmsted in May,

1965, in Portland, Me., after a long illness.

He was born May 11, 1897 in Pomfret

Centre, Conn., a son of the late Rev. Willliam Beach Olmsted, Class of 1887, and

Anne Nelson Starkweather and prepared for college at Hartford Public

School.

He was called to Faith Seminary in 1931 for two years when he was a Deputy to the General Convention of

Negroes and whites. He was three times

a member of the Sophomore Hop, the

Junior Smoker, and the Junior Prom

Committees. He was secretary-treasurer

of the Jesters and also secretary-treasurer

to his class as a senior. His fraternity was

the Alpha Chi of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

In World Wars I and II he served in the

U.S. Army in World War I, he joined the

Lincoln National Life

brokerage firm of Kidder Peabody Co., in

Boston, Mass. In recent years he had been personnel manager at the Verney

Mills in Brunswick, Me. — C.B.F.B.

ROCCO JOSEPH SAGARINO, 1915

Rocco J. Sagarino, a former Hartford

alderman, died March 12 in Phoenix,

Arizonia. He leaves his wife, the former

Miss Ethel Cudero of Hartford; and two sons, Frank J. and John; and a daughter,

Mrs. Vita Rossi.

Born October 16, 1895, in Hartford,

Conn., a son of Frank Sagarino and

Maria Teresa Di Ciwanco, he prepared for college at St. Thomas Seminary and entered

Trinity in 1915 with the Class of 1919, but only remained

in residence for one year. His fraternity was the Epsilon

Chapter of Delta Psi.

After serving in France with the U.S.

Army in World War I, he joined the brokerage firm of Kidder Peabody Co., in

Boston, Mass. In recent years he had been personnel manager at the Verney

Mills in Brunswick, Me. — C.B.F.B.

D AVID JOSEPH LOUGHLIN, 1922

David J. Loughlin Sr., former practicing attorney in Hartford, died February 9

in West Hartford. He leaves his wife,

Mrs. Veronica McGuire Loughlin; two daughters, Sister John David Loughlin of the Sisters of St. Joseph, Rutland, Vt., and

Mrs. Marilyn L. Conn; a grandson, John David Loughlin of the Olmsted entered Trinity in 1915 with the Class of 1919, but only remained in residence for one year. His fraternity was the Epsilon Chapter of Delta Psi.

After serving in France with the U.S. Army in World War I, he joined the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. in 1926 as general agent covering Southeastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey. He retired in 1956.

FREDERICK NELSON OLMSTED, 1919

Word has reached the College of the death of Frederick N. Olmsted in May,

1965, in Portland, Me., after a long illness.

He was born May 11, 1897 in Pomfret

Centre, Conn., a son of the late Rev. Willliam Beach Olmsted, Class of 1887, and

Anne Nelson Starkweather and prepared

for college at Hartford Public

School.

He was called to Faith Seminary in 1931 for two years when he was a Deputy to the General Convention of

Negroes and whites. He was three times

a member of the Sophomore Hop, the

Junior Smoker, and the Junior Prom

Committees. He was secretary-treasurer

of the Jesters and also secretary-treasurer

to his class as a senior. His fraternity was

the Alpha Chi of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

In World Wars I and II he served in the

U.S. Army in World War I, he joined the

Lincoln National Life

brokerage firm of Kidder Peabody Co., in

Boston, Mass. In recent years he had been personnel manager at the Verney

Mills in Brunswick, Me. — C.B.F.B.

D AVID JOSEPH LOUGHLIN, 1922

David J. Loughlin Sr., former practicing attorney in Hartford, died February 9

in West Hartford. He leaves his wife,

Mrs. Veronica McGuire Loughlin; two daughters, Sister John David Loughlin of the

Sisters of St. Joseph, Rutland, Vt., and

Mrs. Marilyn L. Conn; a grandson, John David Loughlin of the
IN MEMORY

Housing Administration in the Boston, New York and Washington offices in 1942. He returned to Hartford in 1951 as counsel for the Office of Price Stabilization. He was clerk of the Court of Common Pleas in Hartford until his retirement in 1962. — B.G.

DANIEL ABRAMSON, 1924

Dr. Daniel Abramson, noted obstetrician and associate clinical professor at the Harvard Medical School, died suddenly in Boston, Mass. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Miriam Copellman; one son, David; and three daughters, Miss Phyllis Abramson, Mrs. Maureen Cogan, and Miss Constance Abramson.

Born September 24, 1902, in Hartford, Conn., a son of the late Morris Abramson and Sophia Rickman, he prepared for college at Hartford Public High School and entered Trinity in 1920 with the Class of 1924 but only remained in residence for one year.

He graduated from Harvard College in 1924 and from Harvard Medical School in 1928. For many years he practiced medicine in the Hartford area and was the senior obstetrician and gynecologist at the Boston Hospital for Women, Lying-In Division, and also director of its Out-patient service for ten years.

Dr. Abramson was a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists; past president of the Greater Boston Medical Society; a member of the New England Obstetrical and Gynecological Society; the International College of Surgeons and the New York Academy of Obstetrics and Gynecology. In addition, he was a diplomate of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology, and a life member of the Brandeis Associates.

FRANCIS LUDWIG LUNDBORG, 1924

Dr. Francis L. Lundborg, medical director at the College since 1948, died April 15 at Hartford Hospital. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Dorothy Martindale Dodge; and three sons, Francis L., Jr.; Carl B., Class of 1963, and Richard D. His brother, Walfrid G. Lundborg, is the Class of 1929. In addition, he was a diplomate of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology, and a life member of the Brandeis Associates.

JOHN JOSEPH WURDIG, 1926

John J. Wurdig, who had practiced law in Hartford for many years, died at St. Francis Hospital, Hartford, March 14. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Emily Catherine Baker, and three brothers, Frank, Harry and William.

Born June 22, 1903, in Hartford, Conn., a son of Frank Ferdinand August Wurdig and Ida Wurdig, he prepared for college at Bloomfield High School, Bloomfield, Conn. He entered Trinity in 1922 with the Class of 1926, but only remained in residence for two years.

He then enrolled in the Albany Law School and graduated in 1927. For a short while he was with the Hartford law firm of Seymour & Parmelee. He practiced law on his own in Hartford and was also both Prosecutor and Justice of the Peace for the town of Bloomfield. — N.R.P.

ABRAHAM I. KATZ, 1928

Abraham I. Katz, former attorney for the Hartford Fire Insurance Co.'s Administration, died suddenly January 1 in Boston, Mass. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Ida Miller; his mother, Mrs. Lena Schendel; and two sons, Michael and Jeffrey. His brother, Herman J. Katz, is a member of the Class of 1928 and his cousin, Henry Katz, is a member of the Class of 1917.

Born in Hartford, Conn., May 14, 1906, a son of the late Lipman Katz and Lena S. Katz, he prepared for college at Hartford Public High School. He entered Trinity in 1924 and remained in residence for two years. He was a member of the tennis team.

Receiving his law degree from Boston University School of Law, he was admitted to the bar in 1931 and practiced law for fifteen years. He was associated with Francis P. Pallotti and the Veterans' Administration where he worked in the Adjudication Division and Rating Board.

In 1948 he joined the Benson Insurance Agency. At his death he was a self-employed insurance agent. — R.C.B.

ELLIOTT MAURICE PERLSTEIN, 1929

Dr. Elliott M. Perlstein, well-known podiatrist in the Hartford area, died February 21 in Hartford. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Elva Alberta Kimball, and a son, James. His brother, Abraham, is Class of 1929.

Born December 6, 1906, in Hartford, a son of the late Hille Perlstein and Libby Sherry, he prepared for college at Weaver High School. Entering Trinity in 1925 with the Class of 1929, he only remained in residence for one year. He attended Amherst College and then transferred to Hartford, graduating in 1929.

After working in New York City with the brokerage company of Stellman-Birkins Co., G. Fox & Co. of Hartford, and the Hartford Library, he began the study of podiatry at the Illinois College of Foot Surgery, graduating in 1938.

A World War II Army veteran, he served in Europe from 1942 to 1946. Dr. Perlstein was a member of the Connecticut Podiatry Association, a staff member of McCook Hospital, the Hebrew Home for the Aged and the Hartford Dispensary where he was active in the Bloomfield Indoor Racquet Club.

— J.V.W.

JOHN STEELE MARTIN, 1937

Word has reached the College of the death of John S. Martin at his home in Norwood, N.J., April 24, 1966.

Born July 17, 1914, in Waterbury, Conn., a son of the late Harold Charles Martin and Irma Burnham, he prepared for college at the Crosby High School in Waterbury. He attended Roanoke College for two years and Trinity in 1935. As an undergraduate he was president of Le Cercle Français.

Since his graduation he had been a securities analyst for Lever Brothers, Edgewater, N.J.

His wife, the former Miss Ruth Judith Pulford, died recently. He leaves a son, John S., Jr. and a daughter, Doris Jeanne.

THEODORE MCCAUSSLAND CHILD, 1940

Theodore M. Child died March 25 at his home in Sherman Oaks, Calif. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Ruth C. Hubbard, and two daughters, Mrs. David Hatheway, and Miss Eileen M. Child.

Ted was born February 8, 1919 in Hartford, Conn., a son of the late Irving J. Child and Irene McCausland Child. He prepared for college at Bulkeley High School and entered Trinity in 1936 with the Class of 1940, but left after three years.

He joined the Ætna Casualty and Surety Co. in 1939 in the mailing department. In 1956 he transferred to a superintendent in the underwriting department, and recently had been named manager of underwriting at the Los Angeles office.

Ted was interested in tennis and for some 14 years was the organizer of South Park Methodist Church, Hartford.

During World War II Ted served in the Army for three years. — R.K.M.

DONALD STEPHEN WEINSTEIN, 1958

Donald S. Weinstein, vice president since 1965 of the plastics company Ray- pan Development Industries, Huntington Park, Calif., died January 20 in Encino, Cal. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Bedonna Lois Koppelman; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Weinstein; and two daughters, Deborah and Alyssa. Arthur D. Weinstein '31, is his uncle.

Born July 1, 1936, in Hartford, Conn., a son of Nathaniel and Esther Herman, he prepared for college at Mt. Hermon School, Mt. Hermon, Mass. At Trinity he played on the soccer team for three years.

After graduation he moved to California and worked for the Raymond Development Industries (now Raypan) as assistant to the president from 1958-1961, and then became marketing manager of the Textile Division. He was a director of the American Technion Society and Rusco Industries; secretary of the Edward Koppelman Foundation; and a guest lecturer on marketing and reinforced plastics at the University of Southern California.

— B.W.P.

MICHAEL PETER GETLIN, 1962

Captain Michael P. Getlin of the 5th United States Marine Division was killed in action in Vietnam. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Roberta Borus; a daughter, Jennifer; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Getlin, and a brother, Lommy Donald Getlin, of the 5th Marine Division. — B.W.P.

Memorial services were held April 6 at Grace Episcopal Church, Kirkwood, Mo.
Born October 26, 1939, a son of Joseph Vol and Thelma Getlin, Mike prepared for college at Solebury School, New Hope, Pa. There he was president of the school and starred on the football and baseball teams. He was named to the All-Trenton preparatory school football team.

At Trinity, Mike played freshman football and won his varsity letter as a sophomore. He played lacrosse for four years and received two varsity letters. Mike was a member of the Sophomore Dining Club and manager of swimming. His fraternity was the Phi Kappa Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi.

After graduation Mike joined the Marine Corps and was promoted to Captain last year and had been serving as a Company Commander. - W.G.M.

BOOK REVIEWS

The History of Trinity College - Volume I
By Glenn Weaver (Trinity College Press, 1967)
Associate Professor of History
Reviewed by
GEORGE MALCOLM-SMITH '25

"Truly remarkable" it is, as President Jacobs comments in his introduction, that a history of Trinity College had to wait 144 years for the writing. Truly fortunate it is, though, that the writer should be Glenn Weaver. Also that his book should turn out to be such a handsome job of printing and picture reproduction. It's a creation that was well worth waiting for.

Having lacked for so many generations an authoritative chronicle of Trinity's past, all of us have entertained certain legends concerning the early years of the College. It is one of the virtues of Dr. Weaver's work that, while dispelling these myths, he supplants them with facts that are even more engaging.

If Dr. Weaver has bags beneath his eyes, he can boast that they were acquired in a worthy endeavor. His bibliography contains more than 2,500 references. (You'll be pleased to learn that the notes on his sources, instead of being footnotes that would clutter the main text, are stored compactly in the back of the book.) There are many facts here that will be revelations to those who 'till now have had no access to them. For example, that the college had an antecedent, in an academy in Cheshire, Connecticut, and that it might have been located in New Haven, Norwich or Middletown. And that the present location of the College was once known as Gallows Hill, where public hangings were held. And again, that Mark Twain had a close tie to the institution.

Also, while we're on the subject of Little Known Facts, you'll learn how the tradition of the lemon squeezer began. (It was back in the 1850's, and you'll enjoy the account of the lemon squeezer episode of 1863 - - - and how "'Neath the Elms" came to be written (we can thank Augustus Burgwin '82 who did it while on suspension) - - - and how the Bantam became the college mascot (thanks for that go to Judge Joseph Buffaloington '75 and an incident involving Princeton alumni in Pittsburgh)."

Granted, the first chapter or two, laden with names of the obscure and the forgotten, are a bit plodding. Dr. Weaver must have recognized this, for he hooks onto every available anecdote to tell along the way. Once unburdened of necessary impediments, the pace quickens and the narrative assumes a zesty momentum.

Incidentally, here's a notion of what life for the student was like in the 1830's: "Morning prayer at 6:00 (at 5:30 during the summer term) ... and from 6:30 to 7:30 the first classes met. Breakfast was followed by the long morning recitation and study period until noon. Between 1:30 and 4:30 were study hours. From 6:00 until lights out at 10:00 students were to be in their rooms ... Students had to find their board in nearby houses approved by the College."

Rules included prohibition of "throwing objects ... being concerned in any bonfire, fireworks or unauthorized illumination ... being an actor or spectator at a theatrical entertainment ... playing at cards, dice or any other unlawful game."

Dr. Weaver is candid. You'll marvel that the College ever survived some of the intrigues among the early administrators, the economic crises and the unholy shenanigans of the student body. You'll also be wryly amused by accounts of some of the feuds in which the College became involved. There was the discord in the early days between the Congregational-Yale-General Assembly entente and the College, which represented the Episcopalian-Tory minority. Nastier than that was the animosity between town and gown during the Civil War, when the College found itself a Republicanism." Copperheads" was the cry endured by students and faculty as they ventured from the hill down into the streets.

We are all familiar with the names Brownell, Seabury, Northam and Jarvis, but we learn one more from Dr. Weaver that has been ungratefully forgotten by most of us. The name is Nathaniel Wheaton. Here was a fund-raisers' fund-raiser, who backed the 1830's railroad both sides of the Atlantic to gather the financial cash required to keep the College afloat. Good man.

But that one tiny word of complaint. It concerns the line: "With the dead wood pruned from the Board (no pun intended) ... " Oh come on now, Glennie Pal. "No pun intended," Indeed.

RAYMOND ALLEN DRATE, 1963
Word has reached the College of the death of Raymond A. Drate at Berkeley, California, February 6th. He leaves his father, Philip Nathan Drate, and a brother, Ira.

Born June 25, 1942, in Brooklyn, N.Y., a son of Philip Nathan Drate and the late Catherine Lees (Drate), he prepared for college at James Madison High School, Brooklyn, N.Y. At Trinity he was active in the Jesters, Band, Chamber Players, Archive, and on the fencing team.

At graduation he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and received honors in Mathematics. He enrolled at Trinity in 1961, he was active on the fencing team and was elected its captain in 1965. His fraternity was the Sigma Chapter of Delta Phi.

Born May 5, 1943, a son of Thomas Taylor and Charlotte Valentine Taylor, he prepared for college at Noble and Greenough School, Dedham, Mass. Entering Trinity in 1961, he was active on the fencing team and was elected its captain in 1965. His fraternity was the Sigma Chapter of Delta Phi.

The History of Trinity College - Volume I

THOMAS HEYWARD TAYLOR, 1965

Thomas H. Taylor died suddenly April 10 in Ipswich, Mass. He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taylor, 21 Fairmount St., Brookline, Mass.; a brother, Robert G. Valentine Taylor; and a sister, Mrs. Anne French Taylor.

Born May 5, 1943, a son of Thomas Taylor and Charlotte Valentine Taylor, he prepared for college at Noble and Greenough School, Dedham, Mass. Entering Trinity in 1961, he was active on the fencing team and was elected its captain in 1965. His fraternity was the Sigma Chapter of Delta Phi.

He had been working at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston as a photographer. - D.J.G. left-handed: witness the ambidextrous hammer, saw, cup and bow. Lefties had “equal rights” throughout much of Ancient Times; writing methods seem to have been left-handed: witness the ambidextrous hammer, saw, cup and bow. Lefties had “equal rights” throughout much of Ancient Times; writing methods seem to have been

We learn that the Israelites were twice defeated by 700 picked left-handed Benjaminites (Does deKay know that Benjamineans read “left hand”?) . Rome was tough on lefties with its invention of the right handshake, the fascist salute (rightist gesture!) and the left-to-right alphabet which favored right-handed writers and stone-carvers. It was

The Left-Handed Book

By James T. deKay ’52 (M. Evans & Company, Inc., 1966)

Reviewed by ROBERT P. WATERMAN ’31

Associate Professor of Modern Languages

"In today’s confusing world of matter and anti-matter, where anti-plays, anti-notebooks and anti-voices swirl about us, it is not easy to be sure what or who confronts us. As an anti-matter expert recently phrased it: "How do we know we are not dealing with an ordinary right-handed man and not a left-handed anti-man?"

A partial answer may be found in this handbook of "leftist" consolation and revolt, written and illustrated by Jim deKay, one of Trinity’s best campus cartoonists a few years back, and now a Madison Avenue Michelangelo.

The Left-Handed Book is a satirical survey of the history and problems of the left-handed, in which many entertaining tidbits of information are brought out. It is dedicated to such distinguished southpaws as Alexander the Great, Hans Holbein, Ted Williams, Charlemagne, Caravaggio, Basilio, Lord Nelson and Paul and Ringo of Beatles fame. The fact that Michelangelo, Raphael and Leonardo da Vinci were left-handed indicates, of course, that left-handers tend to be more imaginative and creative!

The problems of the hostile, right-handed world range from manipulating gum wrappers to maneuvering portable power tools. Although only ten percent of the population, left-handers account for almost half of those taking remedial reading courses. Prehistorically (H. G. Wells notwithstanding!) man was often
The poet himself as seer is the subject of another centrally located poem.

Poet
Into the abyss have I gone,
Into the vale
Descending banks of sorrow
To starless places
Dark with pain.
Cotton numb
To insensibility falling
Eager and willing prey.

Upon my eyes of flesh
The muted glare of globules
In trauma of insight Dissolving.

The taste of salt upon my palate
Trickling from wound unseen
Along the grotto of my silent being.

Of desire bereft
And loathe to stir,
Despounding sweet and bitter moist,
I lay my head upon chagrin
Into the folds of hurt.

The inversion of the first line—a persistent characteristic of Dr. Marzi's style—and the diction reflect the gifts a knowledge of other idioms than English bring to his composition in that language, while the daring imagery of the second stanza displays the rewards of freedom from conventional sensibility this teacher-poet-water colorist (another of Dr. Marzi's accomplishments) may permit himself. The final stanza surpasses the second. The poet, like Cooper's wounded deer, has first gone into an abyss or vale, has then become by emotive projection the vale or grotto itself, and then succeeds in laying the traumatized head of the grotto "upon chagrin into the folds of hurt." Art does indeed here define a new way of life and allows others to see it.

To show something of the "great variety" of Dr. Marzi's readers are invited to see newly, we may turn to a WINTER poem near the end of the volume.

Occident
And what of Wao Tsung
Who says that petals are not petals
Like my own?

Some weep for love by a jaded fan or feel the wayward flute.

And must be an earth
With love, like a sun,
Upon the half.
A bitter orange cut in twain.

These tears of sheng are mine.

It is reassuring in times characterized by what T. S. Eliot has called the "dissociation of sensibility" to discover in the verse of Alfeo Marzi a move toward restoration of the poetic virtues of the 17th Century. Here at least there is association. It would be too much to say everywhere at once, but these poems, marked by compound "associations of sensibility" are surely a step in the right direction.

Above all the motif of belief in youth with all its heroics. As Marzi writes in a SPRING poem which confirms by way of a question:

How can you recall
My bundle of red flannel,
The tepid night
When you, in urine folds,
Would deeply marinate, as innocents do
In gauzy baskets of infant slumber?

The strong affirmative comes in a subsequent SPRING poem

But I love a colt in the snow
Gamboling wild in the silken flakes,
Pure joy.

Knowing the new
Before the knowing,
Gamboling wild in the white supreme.

Professor Marzi is in process of translating some of the works of the French author Max Jacob and was honored in 1950 by the Alliance Francaise for his treatise on Balzac's "Cousine Bette."

The Loeb Josephus
(Volume IX: Jewish Antiquities, Books XVIII-XX)

By Louis H. Feldman '46 (ed., tr.)
(Harvard University Press)
Associate Professor of Classics,
Yeshiva University
Reviewed by
HORST R. MOEHRING
Brown University

Feldman's final volume in the Loeb Josephus again uses basically the Greek text of Nieze's editio maior; there is a limited critical apparatus. The translation is smooth and, as far as I could check it, accurate. In dubious cases (e.g., corrupt text) an alternate translation is provided in the footnotes. But Feldman's main contribution lies undoubtedly in the numerous and sometimes extensive explanatory notes, which offer an amazing amount of information. Feldman has obviously worked through the entire Josephus literature of the last decades and is thus able to provide the reader with material otherwise difficult to find. At some points he corrects the notes by his predecessors (cf. on Thackeray at 18:60). The reader will always want to check all the parallel passages in the Jewish War and the Antiquities.

Over twenty appendices offer selected bibliographies on special subjects (e.g., almost three pages on the Testimonium Flavianum). The general index (224 pages) is "primarily an index of names," but covers the entire works of Josephus. The references contain a brief indication of the content of the passage involved. No one would expect such an index to be exhaustive; it is certain to provide the basis for any detailed reading.

The Loeb Library contains volumes of rather uneven quality. The Feldman Josephus will be counted among the stronger ones. It also constitutes a worthy conclusion of the work done on Josephus previously by Thackeray, Marcus, and Winkler.

(Reprinted with permission from The Classical World, February 1967.)

Book
Collectors
Contest

It may be significant in connection with the always increasing intellectual level of the Trinity student body, and it may not be—but for what it's worth, a freshman for the first time has been awarded the top prize in the Student Book Collectors contest, sponsored by the Trinity College Library Associates.

In any case, the fact will be of interest to Dr. Jerome P. Webster, '10, trustee of the College and one of the founders of the Library Associates. Dr. Webster established the prize a dozen years ago.

You will recall, of course, that the Class of 1970 was greeted on arrival last fall as the most promising ever among Trinity entering classes.

The recently announced winner of first prize in the Student Book Collectors contest and a stipend of $150 was Michael J. Paszek, '70, of Newington. His is a notable collection of works on "Submarine Vehicles." You may think the submarine is a relatively modern craft. If so, you will be interested to know that the first submarine is generally conceded to have been built about 1620 by C. J. Dreibel. It was a rowboat completely covered with leather and propelled by oars.

The second prize, $100, was won by James A. Nathanson, '68, of West Hartford. His is a collection on "Nineteenth and Twentieth Century Medical Books." This is a theme doubtless appealing to Dr. Webster, whom the medical profession at home and abroad long ago recognized as the most distinguished plastic surgeon of our times. Dr. Webster, himself a noted bibliophile, has an internationally known collection of works on plastic surgery and kindred subjects housed in the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York, where he has practiced for many years.

Third prize was won by the collection of Elicr J. Endersby, '68, of Princeton, N. J. It is devoted to the "History of Architecture to 1900." Endersby, who heads the Goodwin Fellows, is an indefatigable researcher on architecture in its relationship to the fine arts. Presently he is by way of becoming an expert on William Burges, the outstanding proponent of the Gothic revival in England in the nineteenth century. The Burgess design of Trinity's great complex of buildings fronting the "Long Walk" and centered around Northam, is the only work ever done in America by the noted Englishman who died in 1881.
Three Trinity undergraduates were recipients of the Memorial Awards honoring the work of the late Samuel S. Fishzohn '25 in the fields of welfare and social work. Michael P. Seithchik '68 and Peter Gross Jr. '69 received awards for their activities in civil rights, race relations and minority group problems in Hartford. Peter H. Ehrenberg '69 was cited for his involvement with social issues in the community. Dr. Albert E. Holland '34, president of Hobart and William Smith Colleges, presided at the second annual awards dinner.

Juniors Samuel H. Elkin and Keith M. Miles have been selected to participate with approximately 50 other undergraduates from Northeastern and Middle Atlantic colleges in a summer program in business internship conducted by Harvard Business School. Twenty-five corporations will take part in this pilot effort to present students a realistic picture of a business career. The program will combine three weeks of academic work at the School with five weeks of on-the-job experience.

Author Robert W. St. John '25 introduced author-teacher-lecturer Dr. Odell Shepard, who gave a reading, at a recent gathering of undergraduates and former students of Dr. Shepard in the Goodwin Theatre.

Juniors Samuel H. Elkin and Keith M. Miles have been selected to participate with approximately 50 other undergraduates from Northeastern and Middle Atlantic colleges in a summer program in business internship conducted by Harvard Business School. Twenty-five corporations will take part in this pilot effort to present students a realistic picture of a business career. The program will combine three weeks of academic work at the School with five weeks of on-the-job experience.

The latest acquisition of the Austin Arts Center, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. O'Connor '16, is this handsome polychromed wood sculpture of the praying Virgin, probably carved in South Germany during the 16th century. One authoritative opinion places the work from the school of Tilman Riemenschneider, German Renaissance sculpture. It is also supposed the piece was painted in the 17th century as the color combinations are characteristic of that period.

An exhibition of paintings and drawings of Italian scenes by Nelson C. White, Connecticut-born landscape and marine artist, is currently on display at the Austin Arts Center. The exhibit is jointly sponsored by the Cesare Barbieri Center for Italian Studies and the Department of the Arts.

Two veteran professors will become chairmen of their departments July 1. In both instances, the present department heads will have reached 65, the age when chairmen must relinquish their position.

Juniors Samuel H. Elkin and Keith M. Miles have been selected to participate with approximately 50 other undergraduates from Northeastern and Middle Atlantic colleges in a summer program in business internship conducted by Harvard Business School. Twenty-five corporations will take part in this pilot effort to present students a realistic picture of a business career. The program will combine three weeks of academic work at the School with five weeks of on-the-job experience.

The latest acquisition of the Austin Arts Center, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. O'Connor '16, is this handsome polychromed wood sculpture of the praying Virgin, probably carved in South Germany during the 16th century. One authoritative opinion places the work from the school of Tilman Riemenschneider, German Renaissance sculpture. It is also supposed the piece was painted in the 17th century as the color combinations are characteristic of that period.

Professor Richard B. Scheuch, named the G. Fox & Company Professor of Economics, will succeed Professor Lawrence W. Towe, chairman since 1942.

Juniors Samuel H. Elkin and Keith M. Miles have been selected to participate with approximately 50 other undergraduates from Northeastern and Middle Atlantic colleges in a summer program in business internship conducted by Harvard Business School. Twenty-five corporations will take part in this pilot effort to present students a realistic picture of a business career. The program will combine three weeks of academic work at the School with five weeks of on-the-job experience.

The latest acquisition of the Austin Arts Center, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. O'Connor '16, is this handsome polychromed wood sculpture of the praying Virgin, probably carved in South Germany during the 16th century. One authoritative opinion places the work from the school of Tilman Riemenschneider, German Renaissance sculpture. It is also supposed the piece was painted in the 17th century as the color combinations are characteristic of that period.

An exhibition of paintings and drawings of Italian scenes by Nelson C. White, Connecticut-born landscape and marine artist, is currently on display at the Austin Arts Center. The exhibit is jointly sponsored by the Cesare Barbieri Center for Italian Studies and the Department of the Arts.

Two veteran professors will become chairmen of their departments July 1. In both instances, the present department heads will have reached 65, the age when chairmen must relinquish their position.

Juniors Samuel H. Elkin and Keith M. Miles have been selected to participate with approximately 50 other undergraduates from Northeastern and Middle Atlantic colleges in a summer program in business internship conducted by Harvard Business School. Twenty-five corporations will take part in this pilot effort to present students a realistic picture of a business career. The program will combine three weeks of academic work at the School with five weeks of on-the-job experience.

The latest acquisition of the Austin Arts Center, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. O'Connor '16, is this handsome polychromed wood sculpture of the praying Virgin, probably carved in South Germany during the 16th century. One authoritative opinion places the work from the school of Tilman Riemenschneider, German Renaissance sculpture. It is also supposed the piece was painted in the 17th century as the color combinations are characteristic of that period.

An exhibition of paintings and drawings of Italian scenes by Nelson C. White, Connecticut-born landscape and marine artist, is currently on display at the Austin Arts Center. The exhibit is jointly sponsored by the Cesare Barbieri Center for Italian Studies and the Department of the Arts.

Two veteran professors will become chairmen of their departments July 1. In both instances, the present department heads will have reached 65, the age when chairmen must relinquish their position.

Juniors Samuel H. Elkin and Keith M. Miles have been selected to participate with approximately 50 other undergraduates from Northeastern and Middle Atlantic colleges in a summer program in business internship conducted by Harvard Business School. Twenty-five corporations will take part in this pilot effort to present students a realistic picture of a business career. The program will combine three weeks of academic work at the School with five weeks of on-the-job experience.

The latest acquisition of the Austin Arts Center, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. O'Connor '16, is this handsome polychromed wood sculpture of the praying Virgin, probably carved in South Germany during the 16th century. One authoritative opinion places the work from the school of Tilman Riemenschneider, German Renaissance sculpture. It is also supposed the piece was painted in the 17th century as the color combinations are characteristic of that period.

An exhibition of paintings and drawings of Italian scenes by Nelson C. White, Connecticut-born landscape and marine artist, is currently on display at the Austin Arts Center. The exhibit is jointly sponsored by the Cesare Barbieri Center for Italian Studies and the Department of the Arts.

Two veteran professors will become chairmen of their departments July 1. In both instances, the present department heads will have reached 65, the age when chairmen must relinquish their position.

Juniors Samuel H. Elkin and Keith M. Miles have been selected to participate with approximately 50 other undergraduates from Northeastern and Middle Atlantic colleges in a summer program in business internship conducted by Harvard Business School. Twenty-five corporations will take part in this pilot effort to present students a realistic picture of a business career. The program will combine three weeks of academic work at the School with five weeks of on-the-job experience.

The latest acquisition of the Austin Arts Center, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. O'Connor '16, is this handsome polychromed wood sculpture of the praying Virgin, probably carved in South Germany during the 16th century. One authoritative opinion places the work from the school of Tilman Riemenschneider, German Renaissance sculpture. It is also supposed the piece was painted in the 17th century as the color combinations are characteristic of that period.

An exhibition of paintings and drawings of Italian scenes by Nelson C. White, Connecticut-born landscape and marine artist, is currently on display at the Austin Arts Center. The exhibit is jointly sponsored by the Cesare Barbieri Center for Italian Studies and the Department of the Arts.

Two veteran professors will become chairmen of their departments July 1. In both instances, the present department heads will have reached 65, the age when chairmen must relinquish their position.

Juniors Samuel H. Elkin and Keith M. Miles have been selected to participate with approximately 50 other undergraduates from Northeastern and Middle Atlantic colleges in a summer program in business internship conducted by Harvard Business School. Twenty-five corporations will take part in this pilot effort to present students a realistic picture of a business career. The program will combine three weeks of academic work at the School with five weeks of on-the-job experience.

The latest acquisition of the Austin Arts Center, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. O'Connor '16, is this handsome polychromed wood sculpture of the praying Virgin, probably carved in South Germany during the 16th century. One authoritative opinion places the work from the school of Tilman Riemenschneider, German Renaissance sculpture. It is also supposed the piece was painted in the 17th century as the color combinations are characteristic of that period.

An exhibition of paintings and drawings of Italian scenes by Nelson C. White, Connecticut-born landscape and marine artist, is currently on display at the Austin Arts Center. The exhibit is jointly sponsored by the Cesare Barbieri Center for Italian Studies and the Department of the Arts.

Two veteran professors will become chairmen of their departments July 1. In both instances, the present department heads will have reached 65, the age when chairmen must relinquish their position.

Juniors Samuel H. Elkin and Keith M. Miles have been selected to participate with approximately 50 other undergraduates from Northeastern and Middle Atlantic colleges in a summer program in business internship conducted by Harvard Business School. Twenty-five corporations will take part in this pilot effort to present students a realistic picture of a business career. The program will combine three weeks of academic work at the School with five weeks of on-the-job experience.
Professor Roy A. Dath, department of physical education, who came to the College in 1952, received his B.S. from Westchester State College and his M.A. from Trinity. In 15 years as coach of varsity soccer, his teams have won 92 games, lost 25 and tied seven. His varsity tennis teams have an 81–31 win–loss record. Mr. Dath is recognized as one of the leading coaches in New England collegiate soccer.

Mr. Dath, who was appointed associate professor in 1962, has assumed much of the responsibility for the administration of the physical education program under Athletic Director Karl Kurth.

Professor Theodor M. Mauch, department of religion, a member of the faculty since 1951, received his A.B. from Elmhurst College and his B.D., S.T.M. and Th.D. from Union Theological Seminary. He was appointed associate professor in 1960.

A Biblical historian, Dr. Mauch contributed 130 articles to the four volume "Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible" published in 1962. He is currently on sabbatical leave working on a book on Bible interpretation.

Dr. Mauch is a Kent Fellow of the Society for Religion in Higher Education, treasurer of the Biblical Theologians, a member of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, the American Academy of Religion and the American Schools of Oriental Research.

Professor Richard K. Morris, department of education, joined the faculty 11 years after receiving Trinity's B.A. degree in 1940. In the interim he received M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Yale and spent six years teaching at Loomis School, Deep River High School and Chester High School.

In 1961 Dr. Morris received a Danforth Foundation Grant for Summer Study and, as a post doctoral Fulbright Scholar, participated in the Summer Seminar in Indian Civilization in Hyderabad, India. In 1964 he was an associate member of the East-West Philosophers' Conference held at the University of Hawaii.

He is the author of several articles in national journals and a book, John P. Holland – Inventor of the Modern Submarine, published last December.

Professor August E. Sapega, department of engineering, who came to Trinity in 1951, was appointed associate professor in 1959. He was named in 1965 by Governor John Dempsey to the five-man State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from Columbia University.

An electrical engineer, Mr. Sapega evolved a new course and laboratory study in materials science, instituted general instruction in computer use and established a computation laboratory.

He served with the U.S. Navy as a salvage and diving officer and with General Electric before coming to Trinity.

Professor Robert C. Stewart, department of mathematics, joined the faculty in 1950. He received B.A. and M.A. degrees from Washington and Jefferson and an M.A. from Yale. Mr. Stewart served in the U.S. Army in the E.T.O. during World War II. His major field of teaching is modern algebra.

Mr. Stewart is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the American Mathematical Society, the Mathematical Association of America and the American Association of University Professors. At Trinity he is a member of the Freshman Advisory Council, the Committee on Student Organizations and the Poetry Center. He was appointed an associate professor in 1960.

* * *

Professors Morris and Stewart currently serve as members of the Editorial Board of The Alumni Magazine.

Seven members of the faculty have been promoted from assistant to associate professor, effective September 1.

Professor Ward S. Curran, department of economics, an Illinois Scholar while a Trinity undergraduate, received his B.S. with honors in history in 1957. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in economics from Columbia University.

Dr. Curran, a native of Springfield, Ill., joined the faculty in 1960. He was promoted to assistant professor in 1962 when he was named the George M. Ferris Lecturer in Corporation Finance and Investments.

Dr. Curran, a specialist in corporation finance and price theory, has written a number of articles for journals in his field and is currently working on a textbook entitled The Economics of Business Finance and Regulation.

He is a member of the American Economic Association and the American Finance Association.

Professor Howard DeLong, department of philosophy, a native of Reading, Pa., came to Trinity in 1960 as an instructor after receiving his B.A. from Williams College and his Ph.D. from Princeton University. He was promoted to assistant professor in 1962. Dr. DeLong is a member of the editorial board of Social Science.

Professor Albert L. Gastmann, department of government, was born in Arnhem, The Netherlands, the son of a career diplomat. During the war he served in the Dutch Air Force and Navy, and spent several years in the foreign service as a code officer in London and Chungking, China.

Dr. Gastmann studied at College Pierre Viret, Lausanne, Switzerland, and then at Columbia University where he received his B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees. From 1950 to 1954 he served as a teacher and principal of Abraham Lincoln Night School, Lima, Peru.

Dr. Gastmann first came to Trinity in 1954 as instructor in modern languages. In 1957 he left Trinity for further research and travel and returned in 1959. He joined the government department in 1961. His professional teaching specializations include Spanish, German, French and Dutch languages, and international politics and government.
CAMPUS NOTES

Professor James K. Heeren, department of chemistry, is a native of Fitchburg, Mass. He came to Trinity in 1962 as an assistant professor after spending a year as a Fellow of the School of Advanced Study at M.I.T. A graduate of Cushing Academy, he received his B.S. and M.S. in chemistry from Tufts University. He earned his Ph.D. at M.I.T.

From 1954 to 1956 and 1960-61, Dr. Heeren was a research chemist at American Cyanamid Company. His major field of research is organic chemistry. He has published several articles in chemistry journals.

Dr. Heeren is a member of the American Chemical Society, the American Institute of Chemistry and the American Association for Advancement of Science.

Professor Albert J. Howard Jr., department of physics, who received his B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Yale, joined the Trinity faculty as assistant professor in 1962. A native of New Haven, Dr. Howard specializes in nuclear physics and thermal diffusion physics. He has published articles in journals related to his fields.

Professor C. Freeman Sleeper, department of religion, is a native of Hamden, Conn. He came to Trinity in 1961 as an instructor and was appointed an assistant professor in 1964. He received his B.A. from Colby College and his B.D. from Yale Divinity School. He earned his Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University.

Dr. Sleeper taught Latin at Hamden Hall Country Day School in 1956-57 and was assistant pastor of the First Congregational Church in Guilford in 1957-58 where he was ordained to the ministry. His specialties are biblical studies and contemporary theology.

Donald G. Miller, recently named head football coach as reported in the last issue of the Magazine, has also been promoted to associate professor, department of physical education.

FROM THE BOARD OF FELLOWS

Faculty and College Clusters
Subjects of Two Reports

The Board of Fellows has submitted a comprehensive report on the faculty of the College to President Jacobs and the Board of Trustees. Like the Fellows' first report (printed in the Fall 1966 and Winter 1967 issues of The Alumni Magazine), this report is structured in relation to the overall question—"What Role Should Trinity College Fill During the Next Ten to Twenty Years?" Although the study and recommendations are confidential, Chairman Robert Toland Jr. has revealed that the information covers many areas of faculty interests.

"We are most encouraged," said Toland, "by the dialogue that is now established with the Trustees concerning this vital part of Trinity's future. Our Board looks forward to further discussions on the findings and recommendations with the Trustees."

In addition, the Board of Fellows recently voted final approval on a report dealing with Intercollege Cooperation. This study will be forwarded shortly to the Trustees.

"We found the field work very stimulating," Toland stated, "particularly our visits with President Mendenhall of Smith College, President Gettell of Mount Holyoke, President Patterson of Hampshire College and Acting Dean Wright of Amherst.

"There are some 87 cooperative college clusters in the United States today. Ten years ago there were less than half a dozen. We believe the long-range possibilities are intriguing and the opportunities for leadership exciting."
SPORTS SCENE

Cold and rain. Wind and rain. Then more rain. That has been the weather pattern in New England which caused eleven spring sports contests to be postponed or cancelled. Here are the results to date.

BASEBALL
Pre-season practice was confined almost entirely to the Field House with the result that, in the opener against Spring-field, the sun had everyone a little confused and the Maroons collected 15 hits for seven runs. The Bantams went scoreless. In a 6½ inning contest, called because of you-guessed-it, Amherst took the win, 1-0. In a two-game road trip to blustery Maine, Trin stopped Bowdoin 6-2 on a grand-slammer by catcher Brian Titus, then dropped an 11-1 decision to Colby. A lead-off homer by reserve outfielder Wally Burns set the stage for an 8-3 win over Wesleyan in Dan Jessee's second outdoor meet, a 12-hit assault by Trin's pitching. Up next, Williams dropped Trinity and six by the men from Worcester — probably set some kind of a record. When the dust settled in the free-hitting contest, it was a 14-7 win for the Bants. The next day, Trinity posted a win at Amherst over WPI, 9-5, when a new one-on-one offense paid off. With Bruce Fraser hitting the net five times and assisting on three other goals, Trinity registered a 15-3 win over Nichols, then dropped a 5-4 decision to Tufts.

LACROSSE
With the smallest squad in his ten years as coach, Chet McPhee and his charges, headed by All-New England and honorable mention All-America Alex Levi, opened against Baltimore Jr. College and dropped a close 4-3 decision. Returning to home ground, Trin lost to Oberlin, 6-4, and, in thoroughly miserable weather, lost to Amherst, 11-2. First victory of the season, 9-5, was recorded on a visit to WPI, when a new one-on-one offense paid off. With Bruce Fraser hitting the net five times and assisting on three other goals, Trinity registered a 15-3 win over Nichols, then dropped a 5-4 decision to Tufts.

Lacrosse action at the goal

It was a 9-3 victory for Union. Then the Connecticut Lacrosse Club — composed of college graduates and former All-Americans, including goalie King Hurlock, Trinity '66, — edged the Bants, 8-7. A win over Holy Cross, 9-3, with Dan Haden scoring four and Fraser three. Against UMass, it was Fraser leading the scoring with four goals in an overtime win, 8-7.

TRACK
Captain and hurdler Jesse Brewer sparked a 62-47 win in an indoor meeting with Wesleyan in early March. In the first outdoor meet, Trin suffered a 75½-55½ loss to R.P.I., but Bantam Fred Vyn's record-setting performance in the pole vault, clearing the bar at 13' 2¾" (8' over the record set a year ago), was a bright spot in defeat. Then four wins in succession. It lost 76-44 over Amherst, 75-70 over Union with top scoring honors to Bill Shortell. The 88-52 victory over Middlebury was followed by an 83-57 win over Coast Guard.

CREW
Highlight of the crew season, the second as a recognized sport, was the performance of the freshmen eight. Until the finals of the Dad Vail, they were undefeated which has encouraging implications for the future. In the first meet, Trin's varsity posted a win at Amherst over Amherst and C. W. Post when the Wesleyan eight suffered a mishap and grounded seconds before the finish. The JV's lost to Amherst by one-half length but the freshmen eight took their first in a string of victories. In the fourth running of the Mason-Downs Cup Regatta, the LaSalle varsity led Trinity by two seconds in the only at-home meet. The freshmen continued to be impressive with a length victory over their rivals from Philadelphia.

In a windswept President's Regatta at Poughkeepsie, the Trin varsity, trailing St. Joseph's by two lengths, finished in second place ahead of Marist, Drexel and Iona. The JV and freshman crews took their events with the freshmen rowing the 2000 meter course in 6:38, fastest time of the day. Wesleyan regained the previous loss to Trinity by capturing the Rusty Callow Cup Regatta, regarded as the New England small college championship. Gaining another second place, the Trin shell was followed across the finish line by Marist, Amherst, Clark, AIC, Holy Cross and Rhode Island. The JV boat finished second to Amherst and the freshmen continued their winning form. In the season's finale, the Dad Vail on the Schuylkill in Philadelphia, the varsity event was won by Marist for the second straight year. The Trin heavweights were fifth in the final qualifying event. In the JV and freshmen finals, Trinity gained a third and fifth, respectively.

TENNIS
With no organized outdoor practice, Coach Roy Dath's varsity lost the opening match to Amherst, 9-0, then gained wins over WPI (9-0) and Rhode Island (8-1). Army, which posted the only win over the Bantam netmen last season, won a 9-0 sweep. Then it was three wins in a row. Over Union it was 8-1, Springfield, 9-0, and Wesleyan, 7-2.

GOLF
Three lettermen led a seven-man varsity squad that split the first two triangular matches. Wins over the U. of Hartford (7-0) and Middlebury (4-3), then losses to Rhode Island (5-2) and Wesleyan (4-3). Later, they posted a 5½ to 1½ win over Amherst.

As this is written, there are several contests remaining to finish out the 1967 Spring Sports calendar. But the rains that have plagued the teams all season have started falling again — so perhaps this is it.
It was just another game but then it wasn't. It was the end of an era in Trinity athletics, one that had started in the fall of 1932.

Saturday, May 13 - the first day of really spring-like weather in Hartford marked the last appearance of Dan Jessee in a Trinity uniform. As he stood at home plate, jaw rhythmically chewing a wad of gum and knocking out sharp grounders in his last fielding practice, you wondered what was going through his mind.

When he returned to the bench, you knew he wasn't thinking about his retirement. He was thinking about the game at hand with M.I.T.

"They've got a left-hander pitching and we've got an all right-handed lineup," he said to no one in particular.

"Yeah," somebody answered, "first one we've seen, isn't it?"

"The heat's gonna help my arm." It was Bob Brickley who was one of two pitchers Dan could count on. So far he was one and five for the season, had developed arm trouble on the Maine trip, but was scheduled for duty today.

Now you'd see a lot of hustle out there. Get right on top of it! Let's check that wind direction..."

"Come on, let's go. And remember, if you don't win this one, I'm going to stay," Dan reportedly pulled that one in the locker room during the half of last year's football game at Wesleyan and it had worked miracles then.

"That makes up my mind for me," said Brickley, as he picked up his glove and headed for the mound.

The first M.I.T. batter was safe at first on a wide throw.

"See that," Dan said, "he kept his foot on the bag and tried to reach for the throw and he couldn't get it. He should've stepped off the bag and caught the ball and tagged the runner. When will they learn?"

The first baseman was to hear about that strategy when he reached the bench - and with emphasis.

"Playing first is ¾ bravery and ¼ skill. Where's that moxie. Don't be afraid of the runner. Tag him."

Later on in the game the first baseman did what his coach had told him and his coach was pleased.

"See, Just like I told him."

Trinity's half of the first saw the only Bantam scoring but it had a moment of frustration.

With the bases loaded, M.I.T. committed a series of miscues that allowed the first three runs to cross the plate but not before two Trinity players suddenly found themselves occupying second base. Dan was on his feet.

"Run! When the bases are loaded, dammit, you gotta run."

Trinity scored their fourth run but the last batter missed the signal and that set Dan off again.

"Didn't you see the signal! You were supposed to take a delayed swing and let that man on first steal!"

The answer was a weak, "I guess I missed it."

"These 600 college board guys!"

"I call all the signals," Dan said.

"Sometimes I leave them on their own but I call 'em all. Every pitch calls for different strategy. Like if there's a man on first and the batter has a 2-1 count and we're a couple of runs behind..."

Suddenly you were lost in baseball strategy you didn't know existed. Then Charlotte walked over to the bench with Dan's sunglasses.

"Thank you, dear," he said. His quiet gentleness was in marked contrast. But it was fleeting.

"Why didn't you go for that ball. Get that bat up and away."

A solid triple to left but the next batter struck out.

Then it was M.I.T.'s turn and during their half of the second, they tried a steal. Out at second.

"Look at that. Four runs down and they try to steal!!"

He waved the rightfielder over.

"Too much of a hole out there."

The batter lifted a towering fly and the outfielder didn't have to move three steps. "If he doesn't catch it, he'll get hit in the head. That's just a case of self-defense."

The next batter hit a fly to short center field and the centerfielder caught it at the edge of the base path on the dead run.

"That was the shortstop's ball. An outfielder has the right-of-way but that shortstop should've driven him away. He just stood there and watched it. That centerfielder could've broken his neck!"

shortstop heard about it even before he was halfway to the bench.

The first batter in the bottom of the fourth got a quick lesson in stance before he went up to hit.

"Stand up. Don't get into that crouch. You can't swing the bat."

"Atta boy, now wind up on one of those."

As the fifth inning began, a woman appeared from nowhere and started trotting along the cinder track that bisects right field.

"Time," Dan yelled. "Good Lord, I've seen everything now." The woman was finally out of range and the game proceeded.

"Come on, now. Let's get some runs. Godamighty!"

"Let's see you rocket!"

Then a Bantam slid into second on a steal and was tagged off the bag.

"Sure, he slid off the bag. Too damn careless!"

"I gotta get somebody in there who can hit!"

He complained about that the rest of the game but it didn't do any good.

The top of the sixth was when M.I.T. collected their three runs and Dan didn't like it one bit. The plate umpire heard about it a few calls later. Dan.

"We've been messin' around out there doing stupid things. Now they've got a run!"

Then they got two more and that ended the scoring for the afternoon but in the eighth and ninth, it was nip and tuck. A double in the eighth.

"Well, there's your tie ball game."

He repeated it when the catcher lost a pitch and the man on second took third. But a few minutes later the runner was tagged out at home and the man at first was caught trying to steal second.

Trinity went down one-two-three in the eighth on successive pop flies.

"How can they do that. They couldn't do it if they tried!"

M.I.T. opened the ninth with a sharp double to deep left. The runner reached third on a fly ball. The next batter was out, pitcher to first. No advance. Brickley struck out the last batter. The game was over.

"O.K. Let's get those balls. How's the arm, Brick?"

Three or four people came down from the stands, including President Jacobs, and shook hands with him. Again, you wondered what Dan was thinking about.

He was probably still wondering why they couldn't hit today, how two people could possibly end up on second base, why the shortstop...

Last Fall they carried him off the field in triumph after the game with Wesleyan. That had been his first game.

This had been his last baseball game but there was no move to make a big thing of it. The boys were too busy collecting their equipment.

Dan picked up his jacket and headed for the Field House along with his squad.

"The wind's getting a little chilly, isn't it?"

You wanted to ask him how it felt to be closing out a 35-year career, what his plans were and the other questions you ask a man about to retire. For some reason, you didn't quite have the guts.

All you could say was, "Thanks for permission to sit on the bench, Dan. It's a lot different than sitting in the stands."

L.B.W.
DETROIT
At the annual dinner April 5 at the University Club the Association elected Louis Raden '51, President; E. Rust Muirhead '56, Vice President; and Frederick Campbell '50, Secretary-Treasurer.
John Mason '34, Alumni Secretary, spoke for the College, and Don Miller, new football coach, discussed some of the athletic department's problems. He gave a forecast for next fall, and showed the second half of the Trin-Wes football game last November.

FAIRFIELD
"Who is in Charge Here?" was the title of Dean Robert M. Vogel's provocative and thoughtful talk to the Fairfield Alumni and their ladies March 31st at the Riverside Yacht Club, Riverside, Conn.
Many alumni asked questions afterwards of the Dean who certainly brought a timely and well-presented message.

HARTFORD
Despite two cancellations because of snow storms in February and March, the monthly luncheon program of the Club has proceeded well under the chairmanship of Wen Stephenson '50. The final luncheon will be Tuesday, June 6, at the City Club in honor of retiring professor Dan Jessee. As we went to press a committee under the chairmanship of Jim Glascos '50 was making final arrangements for the musical benefit The Boy Friend to be held at the Austin Arts Center Friday, May 12. The Club's annual dinner will be held at the College, Friday, November 3.

LOS ANGELES
President Dave Pinsky '45 kindly made informal arrangements to greet Dave Tyler III '67 and Bill Bacon '68 when they visited Los Angeles with Coach Bob Slaughter for the National Collegiate Swimming meet March 16 and 17.

NEW BRITAIN
A dinner meeting was held February 25 at Trinity to meet with the area freshmen, and then attend the Trinity-Brandeis basketball game. President Tom Claros '50 made the arrangements.

NEW YORK
The annual Spring Frolic was held Saturday, May 20, at "Meadowlawn," the beautiful home of Dr. Jerome "Dan" Webster '10, Dodge Lane, Riverdale-on-Hudson.

PITTSBURGH
Don Miller, assistant professor of Physical Education and new football coach, and John Mason '34, Alumni Secretary, attended the Association's spring dinner April 3 at the H-Y-P Club, President Dick Royston '55 handled the arrangements for alumni and their ladies.

ROCHESTER
The annual meeting was held March 21 at the University Club in Rochester. Tom Decker, sports director of WROC-TV, introduced Dr. Dan Jessee, Professor of Physical Education and head football coach since 1932. Dan was his usual mirthful self.

SOUTH FLORIDA
The kind and generous Joyce and Ted Petrikat '30 again played hosts for the College Glee Club at their lovely home in Cocoanut Grove on Easter Sunday, March 26. It was a most pleasant occasion and even the four parakeets whistled 'Neath the Elms!

WASHINGTON
The Washington and Baltimore alumni held an informal reception for the Honorable Thomas J. Meskill '50, U.S. Congressman from Connecticut's 6th District, March 16, at the National Lawyers Club, Washington, D.C. Tom gave a most interesting discussion on some of the personnel problems of the N.S. House plus some of his views on Viet Nam. A lively question and answer period followed.

John Mason '34, Alumni Secretary, represented the College.

4TH ANNUAL CAPE COD LUNCHEON
The Fourth Annual Trinity Cape Cod Luncheon will be held Monday, August 14, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Bainbridge '37, Barn Hill Road, West Chatham, Mass.
If you expect to be on the Cape at that time and have not received prior luncheon notices, please advise Alumni Secretary John A. Mason '34 who will send out a detailed announcement in late July.
ENGAGEMENTS

1958  Robert F. Gibson III to Barbara G. Fisk
      Walter R. Wolk, DDS to Janet E. Audette

1959  John C. Hartz to Catherine A. Burley
      Laurence C. Ward III to Anne Pendleton

1960  Louis P. Gerundo Jr. to Sheila M. O'Donnell
      W. Barnes Hunt to Martha Keniston

1961  John D. Avallone to Sara A. Feurt
      George R. Pare to Carol A. Pacholski
      Thomas B. Wilson to Gayle L. Davis

1962  David F. Gates to Nancy McKenny
      Henry D. Kisor to Deborah Abbott

1963  Leland L. Moyer to Nina M. Vosters
      Lt. John M. Richardson to Patricia H. Gorman

1964  Donald H. Levy to Diane P. Sezzen
      Donald L. McLagan to Barbara F. Beers
      Robert A. Spencer to Anne B. Robertson
      Thomas S. Wadlow Jr. to Dorothy D. Harden

1965  Robert D. Beck to Mary E. Tierney
      William P. Gregg Jr. to Julie A. Grimm
      Ralph V. Katz to Barbara J. Frey
      Vincent S. Lombardo to Lina Veneziano
      Sebastian Mozzicato to Dorothy Dziedzic
      David O'Neil to Catherine B. Currier
      Robert R. Stroud Jr. to Carol L. Tuach

1966  Charles M. Barringer Jr. to Therese Overloop
      Michael V. Dawes to Lynn E. Cameron
      Lee R. Nolan to Jean L. Pazera
      Richard D. Rothbard to Terry Yodoff
      Alexander T. Scoulas to Cornelia H. Lewis
      George S. Wiedemann III to Barbara H. Symmers

MARRIAGES

1957  Michael N. Leeming to Margaret A. Smith
      March 11

1958  Robert I. Oliver, M.D. to Marsha J. Gear
      November 5

1959  T. Denny Hoag to Ann E. Hummel
      February 4

1960  Joseph A. Broder to Andrea L. Goldstein
      February 23

1961  Irving J. Angell Jr. to Nancy L. Osborne
      February 4
      Tristram C. Colket Jr. to Ruth M. Mueller
      February 4

1962  Michael W. Creighton to Elizabeth H. Goodridge
      December 30
      John A. W. Densern to Helen Hikade
      February 25
      Robert W. MacLeod to Barbara B. Wimerding
      April 15
      Andrew J. Miller to Donna Rosen
      June 26, 1966

1963  S. Anders Yocom Jr. to Kathleen Bougere
      February 4

1964  Richard P. Brainerd to Rebecca L. Sharp
      February 4
      Donald A. Durkee to Charlene R. Covey
      March 17
      Michael E. McGurkin to Mary Lou Fasolino
      April 1

1965  Roland R. Carlson to Rosemary Lacko
      March 18
      Mark E. Johnson to Lauriann B. Raymond
      June 24, 1966

1966  Gunnar E. Walmet to Linda Kahn
      January 28
BIRTHS

1942  Mr. and Mrs. James D. Mirabile
     Lawrence James, May 6, 1946

1946  Dr. and Mrs. Louis H. Feldman
     Mark James, December 24

1951  Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Wack
     Peter Norman, January 5

1952  Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. DePatie
     Diane M., November 22

1953  Mr. and Mrs. James Coulter
     Robert C., March 30
     Mr. and Mrs. William Hayward
     Susan Elizabeth, December 14
     Mr. and Mrs. Ernest P. Lewis Jr.
     Christopher M., February 13
     Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moskow
     Lisa Beth, March 19

1956  Mr. and Mrs. Merrill B. Callen
     Elizabeth Driscoll, February 16
     Mr. and Mrs. James P. Tewksbury
     Bradley, November 10

1957  Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Arrington
     Mary Lynn, November 19
     Mr. & Mrs. Richard L. Behr
     Elizabeth Ann, March 29, 1966
     Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Cataldo
     Joseph Paul, April 10, 1966
     The Rev. and Mrs. John Hall
     Elisabeth, March 12
     Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Hamilton
     Henry Waller, January 26
     Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hiebert Jr.
     John Matthew, September 24
     Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Marion
     John Addison, July 17, 1966
     Dr. and Mrs. Myron M. Pisetsky
     Helena, December 11
     Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Stevenson Jr.
     Anna Louise Griffith, January 26

1958  Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Back
     Gregory Franklin, February 7
     Mr. and Mrs. James F. O'Reilly
     Sean Thomas, January 5
     The Rev. and Mrs. Borden W. Painter
     Beth Ann, March 6

1959  Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Murray
     Hilary Lyn, March 28

1961  Mr. and Mrs. W. Maxwell Hankins III
     Lydia Christine, February 12
     Mr. and Mrs. William J. Zousmer
     Michael Ian, February 6

1962  Mr. and Mrs. William D. Lackey
     Timothy Compton, January 28
     The Rev. and Mrs. David E. Lee
     Benjamin David, January 10
     Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Sears II
     Timothy, February 18
     Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Smith
     Louisa Morris, January 29

1963  Mr. and Mrs. Wiley A. Jones Jr.
     Wiley A. III, January 23
     Mr. and Mrs. John D. Watson
     Carrie Lea, February 12

Nominees for Alumni Trustee

Edward R. Barlow '38
Raymond C. Parrott '53
Robert Toland '44
Clarence Hahn has been studying the causes of cancer since 1910. While working at the Bureau of Fisheries Laboratory at Wood's Hole, Mass., he discovered indications of what appeared to be the epithelioid tissues of carcinoma from causes of cancer since 1903. Among cancer research centers throughout the United States, he believes to be a one-celled parasite related to the Myxosporidia. As a result of this long study of the subject he has summarized his findings in a paper which he has circulated among various cancer research centers throughout the United States. He has received encouraging replies, leading to the hope that research may eventually cause his theory of the origin of cancer to be accepted and tested widely. Now retired, he lives at 33-14 Murray Lane, Flushing, N.Y. 11354.

Frederick C. Hinkel Jr. 63 Church Avenue Islip, L.I., N.Y. 11751

Bill Bulkeley, the Venerable William F. Bulkeley, retired archdeacon of Utah, was honored in January by the Society of the Rural Workers Fellowship of Utah for his distinguished church service in the small towns and rural areas of Utah for many years. Following graduation from Trinity, Bill graduated from Berkeley Divinity School of Middletown, Conn. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1909 and was assigned to the Salt Lake area. He served with distinction as missionary, vicar, organizer of Church Schools, district administrator and archdeacon. Bill received in 1914 a Doctor of Divinity degree from the Church Divinity School of the Pacific. He retired in 1949 and at the age of 86 lives at 75 P St., Salt Lake City, Utah.

Frederick C. Hinkel Jr. 63 Church Avenue Islip, L.I., N.Y. 11751

Edwin J. Donnelly 124F Farmington Ave. West Hartford, Conn. 06107

The Rev. Paul H. Barbour 30 Outlook Avenue West Hartford, Conn. 06119

We noted a handsome picture of the Very Rev. Paul Roberts in the September 15th issue of the Cape Codder. Paul delivered the sermon at the service of Institution of the Rev. David White, new rector of the Church of the Holy Spirit, Orleans, Mass. Also pictured was the Rev. Lawly B. Sheen '41, former rector of the parish, and now minister of St. John's Church, Westwood, Mass.

George C. Capen 87 Walbridge Rd. West Hartford, Conn. 06119

The Rev. John H. Rosebaugh 1121 Louisiana St. Lawrence, Kan. 66044

We read last January of the birth of an oryx at the Phoenix, Arizona, Zoo. It was named Annie after Mrs. Sherman Haight, who, with her husband, Sherry, was instrumental in obtaining a number of oryx from Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. Should you be interested, an oryx is a long-nosed, cow-like beast weighing about 175 pounds. It has a splendid set of horns that often reach 2½ feet and curve back from twin humps above the large eyes, and were much prized by Arabian hunters. Your Secretary represented the College at the inauguration of Dr. James E. Doty as President of Baker University April 22 in Baldwin City, Kansas.

We are sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. Dorothy Geer Dissell, widow of Edward E. Dissell, on April 11.

Harry Wessels 55 Winthrop St. New Britain, Conn. 06052

Kenneth B. Case 1200 Main St. Springfield, Mass. 01103

Robert E. Cross 208 Newberry Street Hartford, Conn. 06114

"Arch" Walker has recently moved into an apartment at 361 Mills Avenue, Spartanburg, South Carolina 29302.

Harrison Noyes was hospitalized with a heart attack, but has recovered and is back at his desk as president of the Norwich Bulletin Company.

Ed Bartlett has informed me that he has been selected to represent his school board at a meeting of the national association of school boards in Portland, Oregon. General "Ted" Wessells is recovering from an operation on his hip and is now able to get about with the help of a cane.

"Joe" Ehlers was in Hartford recently. He had just returned from an extensive tour of the Hawaiian Islands and has a new address. It is 303 West Glen Oaks Boulevard, Glendale, California 91202.

The Rev. Samuel Edsall is now living at Rte #1, Box 118, Sanibel, Fla. 33957. Nicholas Zipkin is recovering from eye surgery. The Rev. Edward Cowles is serving as interim minister at the First Congregational Church, Southampton, Mass.

Robert S. Morris 100 Pearl Street Hartford, Conn. 06103

It would seem appropriate to devote this Class Letter to the subject of our Class Scholarship Fund. In so doing I have been inspired by a check just received from Mrs. Frank Achatz for $500.00 to be added to our Fund. This is the second such contribution from Mrs. Achatz which puts the corpus of our Fund well above $71,000.

This splendid contribution to our Fund reminds me to tell you from time to time of the letters which come to me yearly from recipients of the Fund. I hold one such in my hand as I dictate these notes. Letters of this character invariably express gratitude to our Class for making a scholarship available, the lack of which would put a strain on the recipient's pocketbook, and in some cases perhaps prevent him from pursuing his education.

In this general connection, had you noticed that in the issue of the Alumni Magazine containing a wrap-up of contributions by classes to our current capital campaign as well as to the Alumni Fund, 1916 led all classes? No wonder we are all everlastingly proud to have been a member of this illustrious class over this long span of years.

The absence of any class notes this time merely reflects the fact that I am not hearing from you good gentlemen as frequently as a reporter would like. How about breaking down and letting me know what you are doing and thinking? that he practiced law in Atlanta. He hopes to write a book about his family, which included his late brothers, George, Trinity 1911, and Naaman, Trinity 1913.

Ham Barber writes that the Stan Leekes and the Herb Pressays dropped in to say hello at Ham’s winter home at Belleair Beach, Fla.

The February 27 Hartford Courant had an editorial telling of the discussions of the Connecticut Knights of Columbus and the Masons to prepare a program for cooperative efforts on a state and national scale. Irv Partridge was one of the prominent Masons present. He is past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut.

Vincent Potter and his wife flew to Switzerland in mid-April. They will later visit Parma on the Isle of Majorca, after which they will tour in Spain and Portugal before returning to New England for a visit with Vinc’s family.

Joseph Hartzmark
2229 St. James Parkway
Cleveland Heights, Ohio 44106

Beaufort R. L. Newsom
36 Waterside Lane
Clinton, Conn. 06413

Norm Strong is this month a member of the 40-year Corps of the Equitable Life Veteran Legion. He has helped to make it the Superior Sales Force of the entire life insurance industry.

Jack Reitemeyer, publisher of the Hartford Courant, presented a plaque from the newspaper industry to Ralph A. Hart, president of Heublein Inc. The plaque was in the form of a copy of his newspaper advertisement.

Beau Newsom spoke before the winter meeting of the Connecticut League of Historical Societies on the subject “Homosontic Plantation.” The Clinton Historical Society was host to the gathering of league members from throughout the State.

Bert C. Gable Jr.
61 Clearfield Road
Wethersfield, Conn. 06109

Ned Kendall has retired as manager Office Administration department of Des Moines, Iowa, field office of the Travelers Insurance Co.

So far I have heard (with checks) from Freddie Tansill, Glover Johnson and Jack Carey concerning our 45th reuonion. Let’s have some more; we want this to be a good one.

I heard from Eddie Cram, who now lives in Florida. He is going to do his best to make it in June.

Your Secretary retired April 30 after almost 45 years with Connecticut Printers, Incorporated.

James A. Calano
35 White Street
Hartford, Conn. 06114

Walt Canner and Joe Manion expect to attend reunion June 9 and 10. Walt is all aglow in anticipation of the 45th reunion next year. So are the Bowdidges. Canner and Bowdidge just refuse to retire. They are a couple of old war horses.

Your Secretary will be retiring about October 1st. I am happy to report my wife is on the mend after undergoing surgery at Hartford Hospital last February.

Arthur B. Conrad
1910 Coles Rd.
Clearwater, Fla. 33515

Raymond A. Montgomery
North Racebrook Road
Woodbridge, Conn. 06525

Your Secretary is back home after a year of travel. We saw many colleges on the west coast, but none can compare with our beloved Trinity.

New Addresses: Dr. Robert E. Fleming, One Mt. Vernon Square, Boston, Mass. 02108; James G. McNally, 1404 Brightridge Drive, Kingsport, Tenn. 37664; Dr. Julius G. Weiner, 1119 Trout Brook Drive, West Hartford, Conn. 06105.

Dr. Odell Shepard attended the second annual Samuel S. Fishzohn Memorial Awards dinner at the College April 10 and warmly praised his former student and friend, Sam. His remarks were warmly applauded.

N. Ross Parke
18 Van Buren Ave.
West Hartford, Conn. 06107

Congratulations Ken Stuer – T’26 and Tim are proud of you as we learn you have won the Texas World Trade “Man of the Year” award. We’re with you and hope and pray your dear Helen is ever improving. We all send our deepest sympathy and prayerful love to the Wuridges as we share with them in the loss we all have suffered in the passing on of our good classmate, John Joseph Wurdig, March 14th.

Again we thank Joe Hubbard for his Pictorial News Letter – which may be procured for a small fee as long as they last from our Alumni Secretary, John Mason ’34.

If any of you stout lads are contemplating retirement or have retired, please write in and let us know so we may rejoice with you.

Your Secretary is grateful to be able to report having had a successful one-man exhibit at the Hartford National Bank & Trust Company branch at Bishop’s Corner in West Hartford, through the months of January and February.

Bob Sheehan had another fine article in the January issue of Fortune Magazine – “The Rich, Risky Life of a University Trustee.”
The College Library Newsletter, Vol. 1, No. 6, March 1967, has an article about our Class Memorial Book Fund which is now under the guidance of Karl Koenig, Hon. '66. Classmates may make a gift of $15 in memory of deceased classmates, and the College Librarian, Don Engley, purchases appropriate books with the funds and the books receive a special bookplate carrying the name of the donor and the memorialized. Karl's address is Johnny Cake Hill, Hamilton, N.Y. 13346.

Incidentally Karl is coordinating a program of "neglected languages" — Hindu, Urdu and Chinese — at Colgate.

Philip M. Cornwell, M.D.
115 Jefferson St.
Hartford, Conn. 06103

Dr. Robert P. Waterman
149 Forest Lane
Glastonbury, Conn. 06033

All the best to Cliff Morse who has taken early retirement at Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. Cliff was marketing vice president and had been with Phoenix for 34 years. He lives at 3 East Lane, Bloomfield, Conn.

It was nice to hear from Harold Disco who writes that he was recently appointed Director of Personnel at Mystic Seaport, Mystic, Conn. He lives in Norwich, Conn., summers at Block Island (sounds like an invitation to all classmates).

Bill Grainger has just dug a well on his Vermont farm — 321 feet — and promises to supply branch water for '32's 35th Reunion.

This from Nate Glassman: "Plan to retire shortly from my job as Chief Engineer, Army Vehicle Development, Army Material Command. Will look for job which is not as hectic, possibly in Civil Engineering or teaching. Son is in Army, daughter in college (art major). Wife, Daye, with me here in Florida for a winter vacation, and recuperation (mine). Expect to return to Falls Church about April 1. Have noted with interest that Keith Funston is also changing jobs about the same time as I. Hope to be able to get to the reunion. Will certainly do so if possible."

Ed Greene, who is in the Science Information Exchange of the Smithsonian Institute, Wash., D.C., writes that his daughter, Patricia, graduates from Manhattan College of Sacred Heart, Purchase, N.Y. in June. Daughter Emily is a junior at Nazareth College, Nazareth, Kentucky — art and sociology majors respectively.

Speaking of Judge Ray Adams made the local front page when he issued a marriage permit on St. Valentine's Day to a young Hungarian refugee couple who needed parental consent — said parents being behind the Iron Curtain. The law was checked, red tape cut, and Cupid (according to the headlines) received a valuable assist from the Good Samaritan.

Keith Funston, now chairman of the board at Olin Mathieson, will be free to give valuable advice on the stock market to all interested classmates who return for the 35th!

Congrats to Hugh Campbell, who was recently advanced to Senior Vice President and Counsel at Phoenix Mutual's director's meeting. Hugh is a member of the 35th reunion committee and along with Mike Zazzaro, Dave Galinsky, Ev Gledhill and using分泌物Monday evening and night for YOU. Will you be with us?

Recently in the Hartford Courant was a picture of handsome St. Bernard being tomatostaminal dink.

Capt. Len "Slim" Jahnke has recently moved from the Station Hospital at the Marine Corps Station, Cherry Point, N.C. to Washington, D.C., where he is Director Aerospace Medicine, Operations Division, of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy. He may be addressed Capt. L. F. Jahnke MC USN, Director of Aerospace Medicine, Bureau of Medicine & Surgery Code 51, Navy Dep't., Washington, D.C. 20390.

More news about our Associate Justice John P. Cotter on April 11 he recommended a five-point program to streamline trial courts. Also on April 4, 1942, twenty-five years ago, Police Court Prosecutor, John P. Cotter, said that about a dozen warrants would be issued for the arrest of the more flagrant violators of a recent blackout test.

Our fortunate classmate, George Ogg, is now more or less permanently living in Port Salerno, Florida. His address is Box 507, Port Salerno, Florida 33492. In his letter he states, "Weather has been very good except for the past week. Windy as all get-out. Have to play golf this afternoon and the wind is gusting past 30 knots, . . . I'll see you at our next reunion next year, if the Lord is willing."

John A. Mason
Trinity College
Summit Street
Hartford, Conn. 06106

New jobs, Coates Coit has left Etna Insurance Co. to be Area Director for Northern Hartford County of General Business. Continental, Inc., of Washington, D.C. John Godford has left Pratt & Whitney and is with the Medicare department of Travelers Insurance Co.

John F. Butler
Placement Office
Trinity College
Hartford, Conn. 06106

Very sparse news. The only thing I ran across was a picture of Jack Campion and our last year's football captain indicating he was first and last captains. I might add that Jack is not asvelte as he was back in the early 30's. Hope to hear from some of you soon as to what you are doing or what your children are doing.

Our deepest sympathy goes to Class Agent Shed McElroy on the death of his wife, Anne, on March 2. The usual flurry of change of address cards tell Your Secretary that Col. Pearse (Alex) Alexander and Mal Goslee have made some sort of a move. Further your Sherlock — I mean secretary — deduced that Jim moved closer to Trinity.

Merci beaucoup Bill Wetherell for really sending some notes for the Alumni News. Bill, who is now president of D. A. Henderson & Co., is in the insurance brokerage business, remarried in 1963 — name Lucille whom we hope to meet at an early class reunion, Bill has made his mark in many areas, being a '32 Degree Mason, a member of the Cherry Hill Exchange Club Board of Directors, District Representative of the N.J. Exchange Club, member of the Board of Directors of the Camden County Exchange Clubs and an active member of Camden Rotary Club and the Camden Reciprocity Club. Whew! How did you ever find time to get married?

Bob Rodney is making his presence known in both the literary and the educational world. Bob, who is Professor of English and director of the graduate English program at Northern Illinois University, is obviously a respected authority on Mark Twain. He recently had published by the University of Oklahoma Press The Birds and Beasts of Mark Twain which followed an earlier treatise The Art, Humor, and Humanity of Mark Twain. He is picking materials in American and European libraries for a full treatment of Twain's reception in England and throughout the British Empire. Bob has flown to England and up as official adviser to Hal Holbrook.

Our venerable Alumni Secretary advises Your honored Secretary that he saw a conversation in the "jubilant" Mimi Marrone to Ike Bussner at the Trin NYC dinner in November — Jubilant hmmm!
Several points between these, Bill Haight, Clyde Carter, Bill Hull, June 9 and.

Who are they? Tom Whaples (Treasurer) brought out many faces, all good to see, soon to be enlarged to make definite among them Frank Ferrucci, Bart Wilkerson, no longer with the FBI, is Rundbaken, no longer with the FBI, is organizing to catch up to him. Herb Vinick, Bill Peterson, Andy Anderson, Earl H. Flynn, 147 Goodale Drive Newington, Conn. 06111

Frederick E. Haight II, has recently presented the College Library with several hundred sporting books in memory of his grandfather, Frederick E. Haight '87, and his great uncles Austin D. Haight '06, and Charles S. Haight, Yale 1892. The major sports covered in the collection are fox-hunting and yachting with many others represented, including polo, cricket, baseball and fishing.

This collection, formed by the son of Sherman P. Haight '11, and the brother of Sherman P. Haight Jr. '46, is a fitting memorial to a large family whose every member has been devoted to the outdoor life. The gift comes at a most propitious time when the Sherman C. Parker '22 Izaak Walton Room is under construction. The Haight collection will join those books on fishing which Mr. Parker has recently given to his alma mater along with a handsome "gentlemen's library room" for the enjoyment of sporting books.

Dr. Richard K. Morris 120 Cherry Hill Drive Newington, Conn. 06111

Your Secretary wishes to state that he did not write the immodest note about his book in the last issue of the Alumni Magazine, and this in spite of the use of the first person singular. Carmine Lavieri, acting as counsel for the engineering societies of Connecticut, recently addressed the Consulting Engineers Association on the subject of bills he drafted and had introduced into the General Assembly (the State Legislature to non-residents). Carmine is a partner in the Waterford law firm of Howd, Lavieri and Finch.

Caroline "Bob" Pye has written an interesting letter about his career since leaving Trinity. He had a long and enviable record in the Army during World War II, both in this country and overseas. He was the recipient of the croix du guerre avec palme, a unit meritorious service citation with cluster, three campaign ribbons, and then sent overseas to the Orient for mapping up operations against the Japanese. After the armistice, he was discharged as a technical sergeant, which simply proves that not all heroes were officers. In civilian life, Bob went into insurance, and his residence in Atlanta, Chicago, Kansas City and back to Chicago where he is currently employed with Zurich-American Insurance Company, has been identified as a writer of twin sons (now six feet-two inches tall) whose physical prowess is matched by intellectual achievements to such a degree that the family is interested in "Mensa" and it is reported that "Dad" was accepted into the organization in February. He inquires, does Trinity have a chapter? Answer: no. With all this activity, Bob finds time for busy roles in Boy Scout leadership, the Masons, Elks and the American Legion—no mention of winning a golf trophy along the way. He sends his best to all.

Frank A. Kelly Jr. 21 Forest Dr. Newington, Conn. 06111

In January Ted Kurek was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Hartford Lodge of Elks. Ted was presented with a plaque commemorating his work as coach of Weaver High School's unbeaten football team.

In a mid-winter account of fun and games at Palm Beach, The New York Times social correspondent reported that music was all the rage among the tanned torso set and that one of the singers was Alvin T. Fuller Jr. It didn't report what he was singing ("Neath the Elms") or what the occasion was. Possibly, he was waving away from a New England winter, by itself, is enough to stimulate the vocal cords.
The Hartford Times recently reported on the experiences of Lou Buck's daughter Diane, who spent last summer in the Republic of Cameroon as a representative of the Experiment in International Living. (If you don't know where it is, I won't tell you. Look it up in an atlas.) She spent a month with a native family and then toured the country before returning to her job in the fashion office of G. Fox & Co. carrying a leopard stool and a talking drum.

John Carpenter has been appointed Assistant Vice President in charge of Business Development, Advertising and Public Relations for the Chittenden Trust Co., Burlington, Vt. Since 1951 he had been a sales representative with Eastern Magnesia Talc Co.

42 Martin D. Wood
19 Tootin Hill Road
West Simsbury, Conn. 06092

25TH REUNION!

Dick Paddon was recently appointed Chevalier de l'Ordre de la Couronne by H. M. King Baudouin, King of the Belgians, for "meritorious service in promoting Belgian Maritime interests in the United States."

Don Vincent '42

Don Vincent was promoted to Secretary—Life Division, Insurance Company of North America in Philadelphia. Clayt Jensen has assumed a position of Chief, Supporting Research Group, Office of the Federal Coordinator for Meteorology, Washington, D.C. Dr. Roger G. Conant has been elected President of the merged Heart Association of Greater Hartford.

Harold Johnson has been elected a director of Fuller Brush Co. He is also secretary and general counsel of the company. Change of Address: John R. Gardner, Harrington, Righter & Parsons, 430 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60611; The Rev. John H. Payne, St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Box 888, Big Spring, Texas.

43 John L. Bonee
McCook, Kenyon and Bonee
50 State Street
Hartford, Conn. 06103

Harry Tamoney, prominent Greater Hartford surgeon specializing in the cancer field, addressed the Hartford Parent-Teacher Association Executive Council at the Noah Webster School Tuesday evening, March 21, 1967, on the subject of smoking and its association with lung cancer, a most enlightening discussion which Your Secretary thoroughly enjoyed.

Jim Murray, syndicated sports columnist of the Los Angeles Times had an article on Page 17 of the Winter Edition of the Trinity Alumni Magazine entitled "Time . . . What Have You Done?", which every member of the Class of 1943 ought to read if he has not already read it. The editor's note concerning it stated "... it was devoted to Dan Jessee with a bit of nostalgia that would stir a few memories."

New Addresses are reported as follows: Dick Cheetham, Box 352, Mile Creek Road, Old Lyme, Conn. 06371; Bill Hinson Jr., 3612 Schenley Ave., Ash tabula, Ohio 44004; Leslie Hipson Jr., 88 Riverknolls, Avon, Conn. 06001; Larry Kavanaugh, P.O. Box 111, Christiansted, St. Croix, V.I.; Grenville McVickar, 746 Gypsy Lane, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Please send Your Secretary news of yourself and your families for printing in these columns.

44 Harry R. Gossling, M.D.
85 Jefferson Street
Hartford, Conn. 06103

Robert Toland is a candidate for Alumni Trustee. Bob, as Chairman of the Board of Fellows, wrote a most interesting report concerning the academic role of the college in the next generation. This was presented to the Board of Directors of the College for their consideration and was presented in the last Alumni Bulletin. I suggest that you read it. The report offers interesting speculation as to what the College should be, and I believe will be stimulation for much discussion.

It is the hope of Your Secretary to hold a meeting of some local members of our Class during Alumni Weekend to determine what project, if any, we should adopt for the College in recognition of our 25th Anniversary of graduation. You will be hearing more from us in this regard after June 12th, 1967.

Dick Doty '44

Late flash! Dick Doty has joined Group One, Inc., Fort Lauderdale, Fla., as president. Group One handles idea-development and production for television, radio, public relations and sales promotion industries. Since 1962 Dick has been director of regional operations for WTVJ-Channel 4, Miami.

45 Andrew W. Milligan
15 Winterset Lane
West Hartford, Conn. 06117

George Oberle '45

George Oberle has joined Walston & Co., Inc., New York City, as national commodity sales manager and has been elected a vice president of the firm. George is currently serving his second term as chairman of the board of the New York Cotton Exchange. Also he is president and a founder of the Citrus Associates of the Cotton Exchange. Congratulations, George.

46 Charles S. Hazen
10 Oxford Drive
West Hartford, Conn. 06107

News of the Class is sparse this time. All we need is an occasional note or postcard to keep informed of your whereabouts and progress. Send in something today!

Jim Wickenden reported in from Denver that he is now Secretary-Treasurer of the Western Empire Life Insurance Co. Except for the showing of the Denver Broncos, Jim remains a contented Westerman.

Cmdr. Bill Beckwith is back on duty at the U.S. Naval Hospital in San Diego, Calif. 92134. John Kosmos now can be found at 122 Franklin Ave., Hasbrouck Heights, N.J. 07604.

Dave Klickstein has been named president of Amalgamated Leather Companies, Inc., Wilmington, Del.

47 Paul J. Kingston, M.D.
27 Walbridge Road
West Hartford, Conn. 06107

A new book entitled Far from the Wren by Alfeo Marzi has just been published. It is a poem in eight voices on the theme of social martyrdom. He is the author of several other collections of poetry, the most comprehensive being Bronx Crossing. Dr. Marzi has also written four plays. His present address is 16 Fort Charles Place, Bronx, New York 10463.

This year I had the opportunity to visit the Austin Arts Center on several occasions. The building in itself is a remarkable structure and well worth seeing.
In addition, it is being used for many and varying functions. The two plays that I have seen there have been very well done. Having an art gallery to visit at intermission only adds to the pleasure of the evening. I strongly urge all of you who can to make a point of visiting the center, whether it be for a given function or just to browse.

The following are some recently received changes of address: Sanford Cobb, M.D., 868 Highview Terrace, Lake Forest, Illinois 60045; Edward M. Friedlander, Apt. 701, 10201 Grosvenor Place, Rockville, Maryland 20852; Eugene T. Kelly, 121 Mountain Road, Manchester, Conn., 06040; Irving J. Poliner, M.D., 235 State Street, Portland, Maine 04101; Martin Wish, 44 Hollbrook Road, West Hartford, Conn. 06107. The Alumni Reunion is June 9th and 10th. This year our class is not planning any active reunion as a class, but all would be welcome at the festivities.

Notes of personal interest from any of you would be most welcome and would certainly be of interest to all.

48

The Rev. E. Otis Charles Saint John’s Church Washington, Conn. 06793

John Fandel, associate professor of English at Manhattan College, read from his own works March 30 at Trinity. Poetry editor of Commonwealth since 1953, he received the Reynolds Lyric Award of the Poetry Society of America and the Hudson Review Travelling Fellowship in Italy.

Dick Elam has been named a vice president of the Chicago marketing consulting firm, Lochrider & Bess, Inc. He also is the company’s director of executive recruitment.

John Gaisford has been appointed principal and director of the Institute of Living, Hartford, new high school which is scheduled to open this fall and will serve some 100 youngsters at the hospital. John is presently on the faculty at Conard High School, West Hartford. 1948 is expected to count among its number, Dr. Theodore D. Lockwood, President-elect of the College.

49

Well 49’ers, we really hit bottom this time, there is absolutely no news to report other than Your Secretary has qualified again for the Million Dollar Round Table and will be attending their meeting in Lucerne, Switzerland in June. So what’s new with the rest of you? Surely the following address changes must indicate news items, such as: new jobs, promotions, increased families or new found wealth! Bob De Rosa moved to 68 Dean Road, East Lyme, Connecticut; Wendell Blake to 1603 Medkiff #244, Midland, Texas; Marvin Fishman to 102 West Street, B-2, Rocky Hill, Connecticut; Joe Julavits to 4914 Bissone Drive, Metairie, La.; George Simonian to 6 Overlook Drive, Chelmsford, Mass.; Rev. Sherman Beatle moved all the way from Buffalo to 2689 Franklin Court, Columbus, Ind.

At Buffalo: George Truscott ’59, Russell Anderson ’49, Marion McNairy, Philip McNairy ’59, Robert Spitzmiller ’59

Russell A. Anderson will represent the College at the inauguration of Dr. Martin Meyerson as President of State University of New York at Buffalo May 29.

50

James R. Glassco

Ed Albee’s Delicate Balance opened in Boston where it received extra­ordinary acclaim such as: “incontestably the best the American theatre has produced this year” and “an astonishing show of sheer virtuosity.” Your Secretary saw it at the Martinbeck in N.Y.C. and was fascinated by the dialogue and the originality of the theme (parental love vs. loyalty) and the plot: what should a well-off suburban couple do if after their best friends have mysteriously moved in with them, during the same weekend their 36-year-old daughter—her 4th marriage—returns home.

Scott Billowy is now living in N.Y.C. and is working for five publishers as a book salesman. Roy Fash has been named women’s fashion advertising manager for Holiday magazine. Jim Brainerd has moved up to be one of the Senior Brokers representing Estabrook & Co. In May 1967 he will move his office to a ground floor site in Hartford’s Constitution Plaza.

Frank Brainerd will be visiting his Connecticut and Cape Cod relatives next summer. With his wife, three children. Frank is a Vice President of the Colorado National Bank of Denver.

Hans Erickson is now living at 1872 Boulevard, West Hartford, Conn.

Ron Watson has been appointed President of Whippenny High School in Whippany, N.J. For the past year Ron has been doing a great deal of traveling (he visited Trinity recently in behalf of his school district) investigating possible curriculum and also recruiting teachers. We wish him well in his new assignment. Ron is father of five children.

Bill Robinson has been appointed executive vice president of the Massachusetts Hospital Association.

Pete Detwiler has been elected to the Board of Directors of Tesoro Petroleum Corp. The company owns working and royalty interests in some 400 producing oil and gas wells in the United States and Canada. Pete is a vice president of E. F. Hutton Co., N.Y.C.

51

John F. Klinger

At Notre Dame: Donald B. Ireland ’57, Thomas B. Ireland ’59

Touchdown! Lambert R. “Whitey” Oberg is the new manager of the Hartford IBM office. Welcome home from Pennsylvania. They are living at 40 Uplands Drive, West Hartford.

Smiling at us from the cover of the South Kent School Quarterly, Duane Newton is shown proudly standing between the school’s two football co-captains who had just completed an undefeated season. Duane is the head of the school team to an unbeaten season back in 1947.

King Howard, who was formerly with Brigham’s, Inc. of Cambridge, has recently accepted a new position with Howard Johnson’s in Boston. Someone told me recently that the first HJ of the highways was built in Orleans on Cape Cod. Is that true “Little King?”

Congratulations to Al Botters! The Phoenix Mutual announced that Al has been named operations manager in the company’s data processing department. He was formerly Senior Systems Analyst.

Jim Grant has been president of Hess and Grant for over three years. This company is an investment house and also a member of the N.Y. Stock Exchange. Pat and the three sons are fine, and all reside in Valley Forge, Pa.

Joe Kane is head of the mathematics department of Simsbury High School, Conn.

Dr. John Weikel, who is with Mead Johnson, Evansville, Ind., was one of nine company employees selected to receive the company’s President’s Award for 1966. This award is the highest honor for employees and consists of a medal, certificate, and a cash award for contributions to corporate effectiveness substantially above normal responsibilities.

Bob Elliott represented the College at the inauguration of Dr. John Summerfield as the seventh president of San Francisco State College May 2nd.

Warner Behley has accepted a new position with Consolidated Packaging Corp. in Chicago as manager of Operations Analysis. He is living at 11 West Hiawatha Trail, Mt. Prospect, Ill. 60056.

Brownie Dickey has formed his own company, Paul D. Dickey Co. in Cos Cob., Conn., as a marine manufacturers representative. Tom Ferguson, copub-
Bill Minter is living at 225 Madison Ave., Morristown, N.J. 07960. He is with the realty firm of Griffith-Prideaux, Inc., Morristown. John Parsons has been appointed to the Investment department, with Ætna Life & Casualty, Hartford. He lives at 11 Hatters Lane, Farmington.

The New York Times has a vivid account of the Rev. Finley Schaefer's Easter morning service at the Washington Square Methodist Church. The pastor's costume and the dancing of the congregation caught the reporter's eye.

Wally Barrett has purchased an old (150 year) farm house on two acres of land in Rumson, N.J. He is an executive with N.Y.C. brokerage firm, Davis Dorland & Co., 99 Church St. He also owns property on Fire Island.

Peter MacLean is presently serving as Chaplain, U.S. Marine Corps, OCS, Quantico, Va.

Chandler Pratt is with Anaconda Metal Hose Division, Anaconda American Brass Co., Atwater, Minn. He is home spending any members of 1952 in his travels around the Southeast.

Dr. Ben Wilmot spent last November with the Care-Medico team in Santa Rosa de Copan, Honduras, teaching and practicing pediatrics.

Paul A. Mortell 508 Stratfield Road Bridgeport, Conn. 06604

Roy Nutt has given the college a gift of $100,000. Under the terms of the gift Roy's parents will receive the income from the gift for the rest of their lives. After their deaths, the entire amount will provide endowment for faculty salaries. Roy is a mathematician who found success in the field of computers. His firm, Computer Sciences Corp., is the largest publicly owned organization in the field of information sciences.

Robert Smith has been appointed a vice president by the Chase Manhattan Bank. Robert handles commercial banking business at Chase Manhattan's Times Square office.

Irving Adams was recently appointed to the State National Bank of Connecticut. Orison Marden has joined the Labor Relations Department of C.B.S. as Assistant Director. In his new post, Orison will be primarily responsible for the contracts with major talent guilds.

Aurlan Kurland has taken a position with the American Bar Association.

Major Bernie Bogoslofski is currently based in Southeast Asia and is flying combat missions over North Vietnam. His wife, Maureen, lives in Tampa, Fla. We hear indirectly from Steve Plum and Glen Gordon who both live in San Antonio. Steve is with the Piltuck Advertising Co., and Glen is with the Piltuck Advertising Co.

Dick Stewart is still the old master at the Hartford Golf Club's squash courts. He won the club championship April 6th.

The following address changes have been received:

Sheldon Berlow, 158 Admiral Road, Buffalo, N.Y. 14216; Bernard Braskamp Jr., 6829 Cherry Lane, Annandale, Va. 22003; David Bunnell, Pembroke Court, Apt 30-K, Plum Borough, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15239; Charles Cables, 84 Briarwood Lane, East Hartford, Conn. 06118; Alexander Campbell II, 628 W. Lynn Shore Circle, Virginia Beach, Va. 23452; John Craig Jr., 927 Center Road, Wilminton, Del. 19807; Robert Dillan, 18 Rockledge Road, Apt. 2-A, Hartsdale, N.Y. 10530; Frederick Gilson, Sudstrasse 12, Zurich 8008, Switzerland; Thomas Hill, 37 La Campana, Orinda, Cal. 94563; James Leigh, 6213 Pinto Drive, Indianapolis, Ind., 46220; Richard Lewis, 18 Cedar Road, Clinton, Conn. 06413; Jerome Raube, 13095 NW Oakmont Loop, Bea-
The Trinity class of 1955 may be involved in a probing search for the famous Lemon Squeezer of 1857—the symbolic treasure which designated a certain superiority of one class over others while at Trinity.

Robert Morris of the Trinity class of 1916 is spending many valuable hours attempting to bring the great history and traditions of the college together for those individuals who appreciate this aspect of life. He has spent countless days on the hill. One of Trinity's most valuable bits of memorabilia is the Lemon Squeezer, which at this writing cannot be found! A fake Squeezer has been used at times during the course of history, but ever since May of 1954 the real Lemon Squeezer has not been seen on the Trinity campus. Mr. Morris has reminded me in his correspondence that members of the Class of 1955 had admitted in an anonymous note the successful abdication of the Squeezer. Mount Archer, who had been jumped and trussed during the theft, was unable to identify any of the culprits. Unfortunately, the whereabouts of the Squeezer remains a mystery. Hopefully it is in the hands of a sympathetic individual who will realize the relic now belongs more properly in the forthcoming "Alumni room" where Trinity's past will be displayed for appropriate moments of nostalgia. Any form of help in recovering the Squeezer would be greatly appreciated; now for news of our classmates, far and wide.

Dick Hines '54

John Woodbury's new address is 1021 David Drive, Bensonville, Ill. He is with Moore Business Forms Inc., out of Des Plaines, Ill. The Stan Muirheads are making room for a little stranger—number three. Dick Hines has been named chief product engineer for Associated Spring Corporation, Bristol, Conn.

Toby Schoyer will represent Trinity at the dedication of Fairleigh Dickinson University's Marine Biology Station at St. Croix June 20.

George Cosby '54 has been named manager of the underwriting, casualty-property department at the Travelers Insurance Co. in Bloomfield.

Somerville Dillon and Jim Hill have been promoted to the rank of Major with the Air Force. Somerville is stationed at Luke, Arizona, and has received two Commendation Medals—one for service in Thailand. Jim has also been awarded an Air Force Commendation Medal for his service with the 19th Bomb Wing. He has been attending a session at Harvard Business School under the Air Force program.

Dwight Mayer has been named the new chairman of the Connecticut Federation of Young Republicans. He lives in Wilton, Conn. Your Secretary and Bob Johnston were in Miami in March where we attended an IBM "Business Meeting." Hal Morrison and Bernie Bruskamp were also there. Don Read is a broker with D.A. Campbell Co., 76 Beaver St., New York, N.Y.

Dan Miller '55

55 E. Wade Close Jr. 229 East Waldheim Pittsburgh, Pa. 15215

The Trinity class of 1955 may be involved in a probing search for the famous Lemon Squeezer of 1857—the symbolic treasure which designated a certain superiority of one class over others while at Trinity.

Robert Morris of the Trinity class of 1916 is spending many valuable hours attempting to bring the great history and traditions of the college together for those individuals who appreciate this aspect of life. He has spent countless days on the hill. One of Trinity's most valuable bits of memorabilia is the Lemon Squeezer, which at this writing cannot be found! A fake Squeezer has been used at times during the course of history, but ever since May of 1954 the real Lemon Squeezer has not been seen on the Trinity campus. Mr. Morris has reminded me in his correspondence that members of the Class of 1955 had admitted in an anonymous note the successful abdication of the Squeezer. Mount Archer, who had been jumped and trussed during the theft, was unable to identify any of the culprits. Unfortunately, the whereabouts of the Squeezer remains a mystery. Hopefully it is in the hands of a sympathetic individual who will realize the relic now belongs more properly in the forthcoming "Alumni room" where Trinity's past will be displayed for appropriate moments of nostalgia. Any form of help in recovering the Squeezer would be greatly appreciated; now for news of our classmates, far and wide.

Dick Hines '54

John Woodbury's new address is 1021 David Drive, Bensonville, Ill. He is with Moore Business Forms Inc., out of Des Plaines, Ill. The Stan Muirheads are making room for a little stranger—number three. Dick Hines has been named chief product engineer for Associated Spring Corporation, Bristol, Conn.

Toby Schoyer will represent Trinity at the dedication of Fairleigh Dickinson University's Marine Biology Station at St. Croix June 20.

George Cosby '54 has been named manager of the underwriting, casualty-property department at the Travelers Insurance Co. in Bloomfield.

Somerville Dillon and Jim Hill have been promoted to the rank of Major with the Air Force. Somerville is stationed at Luke, Arizona, and has received two Commendation Medals—one for service in Thailand. Jim has also been awarded an Air Force Commendation Medal for his service with the 19th Bomb Wing. He has been attending a session at Harvard Business School under the Air Force program.

Dwight Mayer has been named the new chairman of the Connecticut Federation of Young Republicans. He lives in Wilton, Conn. Your Secretary and Bob Johnston were in Miami in March where we attended an IBM "Business Meeting." Hal Morrison and Bernie Bruskamp were also there. Don Read is a broker with D.A. Campbell Co., 76 Beaver St., New York, N.Y.

Dan Miller '55

Many thanks to Dick Kopp, Paul Moock, John Newlin, Bob Shay, Phil Truitt, and Lance Vars for their fine support to the Capital Campaign. Dan Miller has been promoted to assistant secretary in the data processing department at Travelers Insurance Co. Gerry Heldrich is practicing law in Northbrook, Ill. He resides at 103 Midway Road, Northbrook, Ill. 60062.

Gordon Reece represented the College at the dedication of Marquette's Wehr Chemistry Building March 30th. Capt. Charlie Simons of the U.S. Air Force has been decorated with the Air Medal by Colgate-Palmolive from Portugal to Sao Paulo, Brazil. Henry Pado has moved back to Hartford. Dick Roat has made a major switch in relocating from Miami Beach to Hollywood, Calif. Super-salesman Bob Shay has a new house in Danvers, Mass. Phil Truitt and growing family have made the big move to "country" living—out from Manhattan to Wilton, Conn. How do you like the commuting, Phil? Steve Tudor has left Oregon University and is a member of the English department at Washington University in St. Louis. Tom Ullman is now living in Barrington, III. Bob Werner has moved to Guilford, Conn. Ed Yeoman has travelled cross country to settle in La Mesa, Calif. at Udorn Royal Thai AFB, Thailand. He received it for meritorious achievement as a search and rescue pilot in Southeast Asia.

John B. Newlin is living at 323 East 51st St., New York City.

Bob Donahue is a vice president with Progressive Insurance Companies, 3600 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, Ohio 44115.

Edward A. Montgomery Jr., Country Club Road Sewickley Heights, Pa. 15143

The winter weather must have frozen all of our writing hands. The few notes I do have, I hope, are not representative of all our activities. During the Spring would you please all make an effort to send a postcard to me or the College telling us of your activities.

Dr. Anderson, toward the end of 1966, returned from Colombia for a two month stay in the United States. Every two years, he and his family get a two month vacation in the United States. Don is in the International Department of the First National City Bank of New York. He has been working in a branch in Baranquilha, Colombia, and now moved to Bogotá. As much as Don enjoys returning to the United States, he wants to remain in International Banking.

Merrill Callen and Maggie had their first child in February, named Elizabeth. They are living in Charlotte, N.C., which they like, but they do miss the ocean, which is 200 miles east. Merrill and his family, however, get to the ocean some weekends.

Jim Tewksbury and Joan had a boy in November named Brad. This is their first child in February, named Elizabeth. They are living in Charlotte, N.C., which they like, but they do miss the ocean, which is 200 miles east. Merrill and his family, however, get to the ocean some weekends.

Merrill Callen and Maggie had their first child in February, named Elizabeth. They are living in Charlotte, N.C., which they like, but they do miss the ocean, which is 200 miles east. Merrill and his family, however, get to the ocean some weekends.

Ron Foster '57

The Worthington Corporation announced the promotion of Ron Foster to southern zonal manager for the Company’s construction equipment sales. The appointment takes the Foster family to the Dallas, Texas, sales headquarters. Ron leaves Worthington’s construction equipment division in Holyoke where he was manager of portable compressor and contractor tool sales. He is living at 2961 Maydelle Lane, Dallas, Texas 75234.

Dick Behr has been elected a director of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Philadelphia. He is with Penn Mutual Life. Steve Bradley is an account executive with E. F. Hutton & Co., N.Y.C. Dr. Louis Brown writes he will be chief in General Surgery next July at Kings County Hospital, Brooklyn.

Paul Cataldo has retired from the Massachusetts Legislature after four years of service because of the pressures of his law practice. He has a new son, Joseph Paul, and a new boat on which the C's cruise Nantucket Sound. Bob Douglas has a new job — Director of Engineering, Noble & Westbrook Division, Bristol Brass Corp., East Hartford.

Jack Hiebert is with Owens-Illinois Glass Co., Scarsdale, N.Y., as an Order Analyst. Gene Lockfield has a new job with Hooper Holmes Bureau as an insurance investigator. Bill Morrison has been promoted to manager of Purchasing and Material Control for the Small Motor Division of Westinghouse in Lima, Ohio.

He is currently vice president of the Lima Chapter of the National Association of Purchasing Agents.

Dr. Myron Pisesky will be leaving the Army soon and joining the Institute of Living, Hartford Psychiatric Center in July. He has been stationed at Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colorado.

John Sherman is an Operations Officer aboard the USS John King (DDG-3) out of Norfolk, Va., where he lives with his wife, Norma, and their four children. He recently returned from Morocco, where he served as U.S. Naval Attaché.

Mike Leeming is a bio-medical engineer and is presently engaged in cancer research at the Department of Anesthesiology of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, New York City.

Dr. Nick Vincent is a resident in Ophthalmology at the Presbyterian Medical Center in San Francisco. He and wife, Sue, often see Frank and Sally Bulkeley, who live in Berlin, as have been made his L.t. Cmdr., M.C., U.S.N.R. He has published several articles on eye research.

John Woodward is teaching American History at the Hill School, Pottstown, Pa. He is on the Admissions Committee. Douglas MacLeod represented the College May 6th at the dedication of the new library at Hofstra University, Hempstead, N.Y. Bob Drayton is a petroleum analyst with W. E. Hutton & Co., 14 Wall St., N.Y.C. He is also a member of the New York Society of Security Analysts.

Don Ellwood is working in the initial program in educating emotionally disturbed pupils of the Hartford school system. He is also doing advanced graduate work in guidance and psychology at U. Conn. and U. of Hartford.

Capt. Hugh McCracken Jr., writes he has had over 150 combat missions in South Viet Nam. He has been stationed in Okinawa since last September. His address is 35th T.C.S., Box 1286 CMR #1, APO San Francisco, Cal. 96235.

The Rev. Borden Painter 58 Gifford Road
West Hartford, Conn. 06119

This is always the quiet time of year for the Class of '58. I expect, however, that the present trickle of information will soon give way to a flood of news. Please add your own little drip or drop to said flood by writing to Your Secretary as soon as possible.

I do have some news, of course, about the globe trotting Captain Jim Studley. Now it seems he is spending quite a bit of time rescuing downed U.S. pilots in North Vietnam. Jim is thriving on this diet of work but his tour of duty in Thailand ends this June and then it is off to BERMUDA (1) on a three-year assignment. We hope the Studleys move into large quarters — preferably right on the beach with plenty of room for visiting classmates. Jim's wife flew to Hawaii to meet Jim recently when he had a two weeks leave.

I am pleased to announce that Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis, Members of the New York Stock Exchange, were pleased to announce recently that Buck Kisor joined their Research Department.
He'll be working on “implementing and directing the application of mathematics and the computer to investment research.”

Capt. Gerry Vaughan was a member of an airlift team cited for setting an unofficial world’s record for low-altitude airdrops by C-141 Lockheed Starlifter.

Mike Wallace has been promoted by L. S. Ayres & Co., Indianapolis, to the post of Budget Store divisional merchandise manager for ladies’ and children’s apparel and accessories as of May 1.

Captain George Bogert is stationed at Kadena Air Base, Okinawa, and is on round-the-clock aerial defense east of Red China between Japan and Formosa.

We are delighted to learn that the Rev. Durstan ‘Fred’ McDonald will be the new Chaplain at Hobart College next September.

Mike Schacht is with the N.Y.C. printing firm of Davis & Delaney Printing Co., 141 East 25th St.

Mike Wallace has been promoted by Ayres & Co. of Indianapolis to the director of Merchandising for the company for their son Del. A.

Mike Filurin has moved to 106 Longwood Ave., Apt. #2, Brookline, Mass. 02146.

Dick Hall will be a teacher-supervisor of Romance Languages at the School for International Training in Brattleboro, Vt., this summer.

Bob Johnson is in the Industrial Relations Dept. of the National Vulcanized Fibre Co., Wilmington, Del.

Fritz was planning an art show at the Church of the Heavenly Rest where he is curate. He could have been planning his Trinity Sophomore Hop for he is still mighty youthful.

No one could have been happier during basic training. Now living in Fayetteville, N.C., this summer. Bob Johnson is in the sales division of Musak and will be getting out of the National Guard soon. On May 6th, he was married to Mary Anne Young in Fayetteville.

Our doctors continue to be the best correspondents. Don Rotenberg graduated from Boston University Medical School in 1963 and is now completing his residency at the Beth Israel Hospital in Boston. Don, his wife, Maureen, and recent addition, Donald Charles Erik, will be heading for parts unknown in the Public Health Service this summer, where he will be doing research in cardiology. The Rotenbergs hope to return to the Boston area after his hitch.

Del. A. Shilkret 166 Fairfield Avenue Hartford, Conn. 06114

Now that Hartford's worst winter since we were seniors has passed, spring has arrived. No matter how much the student body has changed in the past five or so years, the green Quad still attracts the touch football players, the sunbathers, and the small class meeting.

Two of our classmates stopped in to see me while on campus. Pete Kreisel was a sub-freshman around. He is still with Virginia Puff in New York City, single, and enjoying his ski trips. Gil Yule was taking a short holiday from his teaching at the Forman School in Litchfield, Conn. After serving in the Armed Forces, he finished his degree at Westchester State in Pennsylvania. In addition to teaching history at Forman, he is the Assistant Varsity Hockey Coach.

In March I had a phone call from John Romig. The last time I saw him was in the Chow Line at Fort Dix where he was dishing out potatoes with real gusto. No one could have been that happy during basic training. Now living in Fayetteville, New York, John is working for the sales division of Musak and getting out of the National Guard soon. On May 6th, he was married to Mary Anne Young in Fayetteville.

Our doctors continue to be the best correspondents. Don Rotenberg graduated from Boston University Medical School in 1963 and is now completing his residency at the Beth Israel Hospital in Boston. Don, his wife, Maureen, and recent addition, Donald Charles Erik, will be heading for parts unknown in the Public Health Service this summer, where he will be doing research in cardiology. The Rotenbergs hope to return to the Boston area after his hitch.

Michael Weiser graduated from Downstate Medical School and spent a year in surgery at the Albert Einstein Institute in New York. Mike is also in the Public Health Service in Washington, D.C., assigned to the Drug Administration, Bureau of Medicine. Another of our classmates, Bob Honish, is working there, too, checking out some of the new drugs. Prior to his current status, he graduated from Tufts Medical School and then moved to Collingswood, New Jersey, where he served a rotating internship at the Cooper Hospital.

After his public health stint, he might go into general practice or a residency in internal medicine. His wife, Jennifer, is teaching, but she recently "retired" from the Alexandria school system to await the birth of her first child.

Frank Broscoll and his family, including recently born Bonnie, live in Elkins Park, Pa. while he finishes his residency at Hahnemann Hospital. Ben Hubby is now in Residency at Baby's Hospital of Columbia University Presbyterian Medical Center. A graduate of the Medical School at the University of Virginia in 1963, Ben interned at Bellevue Hospital in New York, will complete his residency in medicine at the University of Washington and returning to Cornell Medical School as a faculty member.

Chris Hodges and family are now at the Marine Air Base in North Carolina. Chris got his "Wings" in January. Another classmate on the move is Kit Illick. He has left Brown, Wood, Fuller, Caldwell and Ivey to become associated with the Corporate Financing Department of Paine, Webber, Janssen and Curtis.

Tom Snyder has been traveling quite a bit since his law school days at the University of Virginia. After spending some time working in Spain, Tom, his wife and son moved to their new home in Nassau. His work continues to draw him to various parts of the world.

During the Christmas holidays, my wife Ellen and I had a visit with Doug and Judy Fitzsimmons. They were in the States for a short time with their son, William Tyler, born last year. Doug, as you know, works for Socony Mobile Oil in Libya.

In a recent Hartford Times article by Art McGinley, Dr. Charles Gianetti of Wethersfield was featured. He is serving as a captain in Vietnam. The article included some information that appeared in The Redleg Courier, the Sixth Bn., 27th Artillery publication. "The medical section of the Sixth Bn. had traveled to the tiny village of Linh IV for the express purpose of treating the villagers. Capt. Gianetti and his interpreter went to the ARVN post outside the village. There was a steady parade of unwashed, but fairly healthy people, all Vietnamese, but there were the sick, too, and he was able to guide his interpreter, to learn what most of their ailments were. A local barbershop had been set up for the occasion."

"Soon 'Doc' was surrounded, almost engulfed, by people, mostly children. Many of them were not sick, merely curious. Dr. Gianetti even pulled teeth, something he had never done before."

"It's a 17th Century country practicing 13th Century medicine," he commented. "You cannot give much medical aid in a five minute examination. Much of the disease is psychological."

The Terry Mixters in Korea moved into their new home in November. They write, "It is a Korean styled house with Western-style bathroom facilities and a kitchen which is big enough to hold a refrigerator and stove. Korean floors are heated and covered with paper. The house was designed to heat the floor of one room (the kitchen is below the other rooms) and the remaining rooms have individual fires built under the floors. Coal briquettes are used for fuel and the fires are tended from outside twice a day."

Lt. Michael Alofna writes from Vietnam where he has been skipper of a PCF for about a year. Although he has been stationed near Cam Ranh, Mike has been as far north as Hue (near the 17th Parallel) and as far south as Phu Quoc Island on the Cambodian border. He expects to be assigned to the Mekong Delta area shortly. In the last few years, Mike has seen Singapore, Bangkok, Taiwan, Japan, Hawaii, Okinawa, Hong Kong and the Philippines.

Councilman-at-large William A. Sullivan of Warren, Ohio, has announced his candidacy for a four-year term as mayor of the City of Warren in the May Republican primary. The Warren Jaycees awarded Bill their Distinguished Service Award. As councilman-at-large, Bill is chairman of the council's building and grounds subcommittee and vice chairman of the city development, legislative and public safety committees. A series of Newsletters will be used as in-depth studies (white papers) of Warren.

Peter Knight '61

Capt. Peter Knight has been decorated with the Purple Heart for wounds received in Vietnam. He has also been awarded the Bronze Star Medal and four awards of the Air Medal. He is with the Air Force at Tan Son Nhat.

William G. McKnight, III
125 East 87th Street
New York, N.Y. 10028

FIFTH REUNION

5th REUNION: Jeff Shelley reports that acceptances are rolling in as he and his team coordinate what could be the greatest and wildest weekend – June 9 and 10. Remember to book rooms early!

In and around the New York area quite a lot has been happening to our classmates. Bill Duncan was promoted in February to Assistant Manager in Chemical Bank New York Trust's Rockefeller Center Branch. Peter "Stork" Bundy has returned from Washington, D.C., works for the FBI and lives with his bride in West New York, New Jersey (great address!) Rich Kroczyznski writes he is building a new home in Denville, N.J. into which he and his wife Marilyn will move in May.

Dave Gates recently received his Ph.D. in Economics from Princeton and has started work for Research Analysis Corporation in McLean, Va. Also in that area, Don Woodruff, just out of the U.S. Coast Guard (LJG.), has started teaching in the Arlington County (Va.) Public School System. He is also working on his Master's in History at American University.

Jim Whitters writes he has headed up to Boston College Law School after an interesting year working in East Harlem under The Poverty Program auspices. Allan Rudnick has joined Oppenheimer & Co. as a securities analyst specializing in the Airline Industry.

Across the country comes word from George E. Raymond way up in Vancouver, B.C. University Professor, Professor in the Psychology Department at the University of British Columbia. New address, 4314 West 13th Ave., Van­­ouver, B.C. Recently, MacKay has accepted an appointment as Assistant Rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Billings, Montana. Jim Sweeney hopes to make the reunion festivities from Winnipeg. Bill "Wawa" Wood may have taken to the stage as the grapevine has it he played a leading role in a play at Killington Ski Lodge (Vt.) this winter. Can anyone report further?

Wayne Mehringer is now in New York City with the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, 830 Park Ave.

Dorsey Brown has returned to Baltimore, joining Robert Garrett & Sons, an investment banking house. He and Ollie Finn recently took in some high altitude skiing in Aspen, Colo. Ollie will be at Wharton Business School next September.

Our Class is strong in surgeons and doctors: Charles Classen is, at present, a resident at the University of Virginia Medical Hospital in Baltimore. After another year there as a resident in general surgery, Charlie will spend three years at Johns Hopkins Hospital as a resident in Orthopedic Surgery.

Another member of our Reunion Coordinators is Sam Bailey. Sam was just awarded the Airman's Medal by the U.S. Air Force for saving a fellow officer's life while stationed in the Philippines. Sam, now back in the Hartford area, is treasurer of his First Year class at the University of Connecticut Law School.

Ian Bennett plans to be in Trin in June, after graduating from Wharton School of Finance. Future plans are still in the air. Capt. Carl Carlson has been stationed in Germany at Rhein/Main Air Base and is due to return Feb. '68 to the States.

Charles Johns has joined Ringold/Kaish & Co., a Philadelphia advertising and public relations company. Ernie Anastasio has received his Ph.D. in Psychology and is working with computer applications in areas of artificial intelligence and information systems design.

Bill Chase is working as a research assistant in a Labor Market Study for New York City government. He hopes to go abroad after his course is finished at New York University.

Dick Cummeen left in March for South east Asia for a year with the Air Force.

John Densdem and his bride, Helen Hikade, are living at 24 Revere Drive, Apt. # 3, Bloomfield, Conn. The bride's parents are still in the air. Capt. Carl Carlson has been stationed in Germany at Rhein/Main Air Base and is due to return Feb. '68 to the States.

Charles Johns has joined Ringold/Kaish & Co., a Philadelphia advertising and public relations company. Ernie Anastasio has received his Ph.D. in Psychology and is working with computer applications in areas of artificial intelligence and information systems design.

Bill Chase is working as a research assistant in a Labor Market Study for New York City government. He hopes to go abroad after his course is finished at New York University.

Dick Cummeen left in March for South east Asia for a year with the Air Force.

John Densdem and his bride, Helen Hikade, are living at 24 Revere Drive, Apt. # 3, Bloomfield, Conn. The bride's parents are still in the air. Capt. Carl Carlson has been stationed in Germany at Rhein/Main Air Base and is due to return Feb. '68 to the States.

Charles Johns has joined Ringold/Kaish & Co., a Philadelphia advertising and public relations company. Ernie Anastasio has received his Ph.D. in Psychology and is working with computer applications in areas of artificial intelligence and information systems design.

Bill Chase is working as a research assistant in a Labor Market Study for New York City government. He hopes to go abroad after his course is finished at New York University.

Dick Cummeen left in March for South east Asia for a year with the Air Force.

John Densdem and his bride, Helen Hikade, are living at 24 Revere Drive, Apt. # 3, Bloomfield, Conn. The bride's parents are still in the air. Capt. Carl Carlson has been stationed in Germany at Rhein/Main Air Base and is due to return Feb. '68 to the States.
Inundated as usual by a veritable flood of spontaneously supplied information pouring in from the various far-flung corners of the globe, it is once again time to generate another edition of class notes.

Firstly military games. Some of us are climbing on the merry-go-round just as others climbing being commissioned after graduation from OTS at Lackland, 2nd Lt. Terry Carruth has been assigned to Vance AFB for pilot training. Among the last days of the late-day-liberal Rich Wheelock and his wife in a Hong Kong bar. Apparently, I had seen since the day he doffed his cap was only the second one of our class he entered in Brattleboro, Vermont, we hope out a sign.

Lackland, 2nd Lt. Terry Carruth has been assigned after graduation from OTS at Lackland, 2nd Lt. Terry Carruth has been assigned to Vance AFB for pilot training. Among the last days of the late-day-liberal Rich Wheelock and his wife in a Hong Kong bar. Apparently, I had seen since the day he doffed his cap was only the second one of our class he entered in Brattleboro, Vermont, we hope out a sign.

Standing with them are Lt. Mal Graham, who has been pining away in pastoral St. Albans, Vermont, and Lt. Pete Haskell, who has been plowing through the Tonkin Gulf on a variety of destroyers plucking pilots out of the water. Both Mal and Pete are currently planning to enter the world of commerce by way of as yet undesignated business school.

Referred to as Annual Reports. Keep them in mind if others climb off.

Scott Spitzer had moved to such an unlikely place - Tom's is named Polly Ann and Andy's is named Kathy. In the latter case, the scene was TC Chapel with Chaplain Tull doing the honors and Scott Reynolds and Pete Linberg standing by to help out with the champagne which they apparently did with commendable dispatch.

I was so surprised to read that Bob Spitzer had moved to such an unlikely location as Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, that I felt compelled to call up for the full story, which was in essence that Harrisburg might not be heaven on earth for the typical recent University of Chicago Law School graduate. Bob has already resigned from the firm of McNees, Wallace and Nuriak and having passed the Bar exam, will be on the market as soon as he is admitted to the Bar. We wish you the best, Bob.

Another would-you-believe case is Kirby Talley, who is currently teaching English at Hampton Institute, a Negro College in Hampton, Virginia. He has already been accepted for next fall at Trinity College, Dublin, where he will attend regardless of whether or not he is selected for a Fulbright.

And as always, back to New York. Bob Perrin, who has settled into 230 East 60th after a year on the Continent, is on the sales side of an exciting new firm, Typographical Communications Inc. They specialize in type design, but do other kinds of graphical design work such as Annual Reports. Keep them in mind if you are in this field.

We hear that Brian Brooks will be out of the service this summer and that John Richardson will be discharged from the Air Force in July and expects to join Bankers Trust Co. We gather that Dick Ulrich is stationed on the U.S.S. Providence.

Peter Langylkke is another of our number who has turned up in New York. After a taste of graduate psychology work at Rutgers, he moved into midtown where he is now selling picture frames at Kuliike Frames on East 78th. Now that you know, there is no excuse for having your framing done anywhere else.

John Adelstein has left Wells Fargo Bank and disappeared without a sign.

The only other news collected in San Francisco was such non-information as the fact that Stone Coshead has left Wells Fargo Bank and disappeared without a sign.

With the summer season just about on us many members of our class will be finishing up their final years in graduate school and will be taking their bar exams. With the exception of a few perennial students most of us will be starting and struggling for several years.

Bill Minot has decided that life is much better in the academic atmosphere of the Harvard Business School, which he will be attending in September.

Bruce MacDougall and his wife made a recent visit to the Trinity campus after a skiing weekend in Vermont. Bruce will be leaving for Vietnam where he expects to remain until his discharge in March, 1968. Bob Bennett will join the Classics Dept. of Kenyon College in September; his background was strengthened by last summer's journey through Greece, Turkey, Italy and England.

Dave Pyle was also among the number of alumni who have returned to the campus. He was impressed with both the arts center and the new dorm. Dave expects to take the long march to the altar sometime in the fall; he is still with the Defense Dept. and hopes to earn his M.A. sometime during the year. John Heldt plans to sever the cord with the teaching profession and come to New York City to work; currently, his interests tend toward banking.

First Lieutenant Arthur J. Querido is a volunteer English language instructor at Phan Rang, Vietnam. He teaches classes at Nguyen Cong Tru High School. It seems that with each issue I am reporting that Vic Adelstein has completed one more step toward his actuary society; he is now an associate. In the same field of insurance but with Connecticut General Life Insurance, Wilson Taylor has completed his exam for fellowship while Scott Gregory has attained his associate-ship.

Phillips Academy recently honored Tom Cone for his two years in the Peace Corps. Ron Quirk is finishing his third year at Brown and has been appointed a teach-in participant. George Kellner, who is with the United States Foreign Service, is Vice Consul in Tijuana.

I am sure this will be a shock to many of you, but — George Kellner is going to get married to "Bicky" Bicknell. Mike Malm and his wife Bonnie enjoyed a Spring vacation down in the Virgin Islands. They ran into MIke Mellor, who has a permanent address at 4815 Clayton Ave., New York, N.Y. Another one of our studious classmates pondering over the intricacies of the Soviet Novel is Sam Kassow. Sam may be reached for academic consultations at Apt. 5A, Wedderburn House, Wedderburn Rd., London, N.W. 3, England.

Chris McCurdy, working toward his doctorate in Economics at Columbia, was recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa. The attraction of Great Britain must be a great one for next Fall another of our history scholars, Sandy Mason, will go to Sussex University.

Recently I heard from Paul Crapo and Bill Carlson, who are working toward their doctorates in French at Yale. Both seemed to be enjoying themselves in sunny New Haven.

Bill Schweitzer is relaxing, we are told, in Washington and in his spare time is managing to fit Georgetown Law School into his busy schedule. Tom Guolta is another budding barrister at Columbia and may be reached at McBrain Dorm, 562 W. 113th St., N.Y., N.Y. Sandy Evans is enjoying his stint in grad school at Columbia and is intensely interested in the work he is doing.

We hear that Jim Belfiore paced the attack for the ëEtta Life basketball team's win over Travelers with 27 points. Alan Clune has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force and has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill. Bob Cooley is with the First National City Bank in N.Y.C.

John Gibson writes he is at Fort Knox doing basic training. He sees Fred Sargent who expects to graduate in June. Both hope to be in OCS. King Hurlock is playing for the Connecticut Valley Lacrosse Club. He is teaching at the Marveld School, Cornwall, Conn. Bob Powell is in the Army six months program. Next fall he expects to be with Johnson & Higgins, an insurance brokerage consultant firm in Philadelphia.
From the Introduction –

It is truly remarkable that Trinity College has actually reached the rather venerable age of one hundred and forty-four years without ever having undertaken an institutional history comparable in depth and magnitude to this present work... we found ourselves uniquely fortunate in having on our faculty one who was ideally suited to undertake this arduous and very demanding task... This history is both interesting and readable. It is also highly authoritative and accurate. True historian that he is, Dr. Weaver spent countless hours during the past several years gathering source material... I am confident that no matter how conversant the reader has previously been with the early years of the College "Neath the Elms," he will not be able to read Dr. Weaver's history without learning a great deal more concerning Trinity... one of the most fascinating features of the history has been the excellent choice of illustrations...

ALBERT C. JACOBS
President

This is the first comprehensive history of Trinity College ever written. The new 368-page book is the fascinating and detailed story of Trinity, from the founding in 1823 as Washington College, into the 1930's and the presidency of Dr. Remsen B. Ogilby - more than one hundred years of history and tradition written in an interesting style and illustrated with more than 150 photographs and drawings.

The author, Dr. Glenn Weaver, associate professor of history at Trinity, spent over five years of exhaustive study in his search for information about the founding of the institution, the problems of its early beginnings, its growth and periods of transition, its academic and student life. Hundreds of alumni and friends of Trinity contributed valuable information and source material that resulted in the story of the countless details and happenings important to the development of the College.

The History of Trinity College, Vol. 1, @ $12.50 plus handling and postage 25¢ Total $12.75

Please send check or money order made payable to The Trustees of Trinity College. (For delivery in Connecticut, add $0.38 per copy for state sales tax.)