As readers of this magazine know, the 1966 Lecturer-in-Residence at Trinity last Spring was Constantinos Doxiadis, probably the most highly regarded practitioner of city planning and urban renewal in the world.

It was disclosed by President Jacobs, as this magazine went to the printer, that Trinity, with the cooperation of the Hartford Hospital and the Institute of Living, will soon begin a study looking toward possible sponsorship of an urban renewal program in Hartford’s South End area which the institutions share as neighbors.

The firm of Doxiadis Associates, Inc., which has headquarters in Athens, offices in a dozen countries and operations in 30 or more, has been engaged to examine and report on the feasibility of such an undertaking.

“The three participating institutions have long and distinguished records of public service in Hartford,” said Dr. Jacobs, “and it is now their hope to play a significant role in the revitalization of the city as the core of a rapidly developing metropolitan area.

“They hope to help their neighborhood become an exemplary place in which to live and work,” he said.

In the United States the Doxiadis organization has been responsible for urban planning and renewal projects in many major cities, including Detroit, Louisville, Cincinnati, Washington and Philadelphia. In the latter city the $400,000,000 Eastwick urban renewal program covers 2,500 acres.

Dr. Doxiadis has been a visiting lecturer at the University of Chicago, Harvard, Yale, Princeton and M.I.T. as well as Trinity. His programs have included planning and redevelopment projects in Greece, Iraq, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon, and the creation of Islamabad, new capital of Pakistan. Trained in Greece and Germany in architecture and civil engineering, he blends the philosophical concept of the scholar with the expertise of the technologist.

“Thus it is particularly appropriate,” said Dr. Jacobs, “that the Doxiadis organization be asked to study the possible future relationships of our three neighboring institutions to their community.

“In the study, each of the institutions will attempt to look forward at least 25 years,” Dr. Jacobs added. “The objective will be a continuing increase in effective service, as well as the enhancement of the future of our immediate community.”
REFLECTIONS...

As a college campus should be, Trinity's campus was a lively and articulate place as summer approached. There was, for example, the outdoor "read-in" sponsored by a group known as "Students for a Democratic Society" to protest American policy and participation in Viet Nam.

The event, on a sunny afternoon in Funston Court, drew an audience which the Courant estimated at about 150. The young people and a sprinkling of faculty members heard a group of writers, poets, scholars and a former Broadway stage star. Most of them had appeared earlier in the series of similar meetings at Harvard, Columbia and other eastern schools. They read their own works or the works of others. The theme, of course, was the affliction of war—in particular the war in Viet Nam. Susan Sontag, critic and novelist, provided the keynote. She said she had come "to bear witness to our sorrow and anxiety and revulsion at the American war in Viet Nam." General Sherman said it more briefly in his observation that "War is Hell."

Agreeing or not with our national effort to find a solution to the incredibly complex puzzle of Viet Nam, one left the meeting with a feeling of satisfaction that dissent, earnestly expressed, remains a basic American tenet.

The so-called "draft exams" found several hundred Trinity students in Krieble Auditorium or the Field House poring over what they termed rather dull true-or-false questions. There was little stir. A few earnest dissenters waited outside with placards. One placard read: "We want draft beer, not draft exams." The protesters called the draft system "inequitable," asserting that "it helps a social elite based on intelligence to escape the draft, thus discriminating against those unable to get to college and to seek deferment." But many who took the exam emerged calling it a waste of time. They termed it a test that a high school freshman should polish off easily.

Dr. Jacobs, asked for his opinion, told a UPI reporter that "I agree with many of my academic colleagues that the present Selective Service policy can be improved and may with benefit be restudied." He added that "we must recognize the importance of a continuing flow of young people who are given no cause for cynicism and whose desire to contribute to our society as best they can remains unimpaired."

Summer brought another outdoor reading, this a unique presentation of T. S. Eliot's long poem, "Four Quartets." Arranged for four voices, soprano, alto, tenor and bass, it was staged in the early-evening shadows, with the Chapel's South Cloister the background. Professor James Gardner, increasingly known for his work on Eliot, had done an arrangement that constituted in a sense a new art form. Professor John Dando, Chaplain Tull, Amelia Silvestri, whom Hartford theater goes know well, and Betty Paine, of the Austin Arts Center staff, provided the voices. Then a fifth voice was heard reading the section of the poem known as the "lyric sermon." It was the voice of President Jacobs.

Somehow it seemed that even more than in other years a feeling for the humanism that underpins the liberal education marked Commencement. There was the traditional camaraderie of the luncheons and dinners and reunions leading to Sunday. Sunday came in sunny and pleasant. The academic robes and hoods of many colors blended strangely with the campus greenery. The inspiration of Bishop Dean's baccalaureate sermon moved a senior trustee to ask that the address be reprinted in a booklet at his expense and mailed to the graduates as a memento. In his Commencement address, Mr. Vance, the Deputy Secretary of Defense, asked the men of 1966 to accept their heritage as "a commitment to the aspirations of mankind." The ten who received honorary degrees were men whose careers attest to that commitment. For one of them, Albert E. Holland '34, this was a leave-taking, his last campus observance before departure to become the president of a sister liberal arts college.

There was quick but thoughtful applause when Dr. Jacobs in his charge to the seniors noted that "man reaches for the moon in his spacecraft while still unable to reach across the conference table for the hand clasp of understanding among peoples." And there was applause again, this time emotional, when Peter Duran of Stamford, coming to the platform guided by Dusty, his seeing-eye dog and constant companion, was asked to remain for a moment as Dr. Jacobs read a brief citation noting the service of the four-footed aide through Peter's Trinity years.

Soon it was over with the singing of "Neath the Elms." A member of the 50-year anniversary class, walking slowly away, said he could not remember a Commencement more notable.

Trinity increasingly becomes an institution national in scope with students from all but three or four states and alumni in every state and many foreign countries. But the College continues also to be a Hartford institution, aware of its responsibility to the city of its birth.

So it was with interest that local alumni read recently that Dr. C. Duncan Yetman, Trinity '40, had been appointed principal of Hartford Public High School. He will be the third Trinity alumnus currently in top administrative posts in Hartford's three public high schools. Frederick T. Bashour, Bulkeley High principal, is Trinity '34. Ezra Melrose, Weaver High principal, is on the roll of the Class of 1933. He was a recipient June 4 of the Alumni Medal for Excellence.
At precisely 11:28 A.M. on Friday, June 3, Rollin M. Ranson '21, Windsor, Conn., was the first alumnus to register for the varied activities of the 1966 Reunion Weekend. He was closely followed by Lloyd E. Smith '23, Racine, Wis., and, over the next day and a half, by some five hundred others who came from near and far to represent dozens of classes.

It was to be a weekend of greeting old friends, of reminiscing, of investigating the changes that have taken place in the campus since the last visit, of attending seminars and meetings, of gathering in small groups, and just talking. For perhaps the last time, the alumni would meet with members of the Senior Class as next year the Reunion Weekend will be scheduled for the week following graduation.

1:00 P.M. The first formal event of the afternoon, an Alumni Reading Program Seminar, was a panel discussion on “Democracy and Foreign Policy.” Mr. G. William Benz, instructor in government, acted as chairman. A second seminar—“Rebuilding the Cities”—was conducted by Professor Theodore R. Blakeslee II. Guest speaker was Mr. E. F. R. Horner, manager, regional development department, Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce.

2:00 P.M. A highlight of Friday afternoon was the first of a two-game weekend baseball series with Wesleyan. Robert E. Brickley '67 made it three in a row against the Cardinals by pitching a strong six-hitter for a 5–2 win. It was his sixth victory of the season.
3:00 P.M. In the meantime, the Board of Fellows and the National Alumni Executive Committee were convening in separate deliberations. Several of their decisions would be made known at the annual Alumni Meeting on Saturday.

4:30 P.M. Final event of the afternoon was the first panel of the Alumni Symposium. It was titled "Man's Past (Animal Origin and Evolution)" and Dr. Charles E. Jacobson '31 served as chairman. Panelists included Dr. J. Wendell Burger, J. Pierpont Morgan professor of biology, Dr. M. Curtis Langhorne, professor of psychology, and Dr. Richard K. Morris '40, associate professor of education.

6:00 P.M. Then it was the traditional beer and clams at the Field House, followed by a buffet dinner. The activities of the evening included a reading by Professor John Dando and, for the more adventurous, dancing to Dixieland music in Hamlin. Of course the reunion headquarters were in full swing and remained so until the small hours.
10:00 A.M. On Saturday morning, the Memorial Service in the Chapel honored the sixty-four alumni who had died during the previous twelve months. Participating in the service were the Rev. Roderic Pierce '16, the Venerable Lewis B. Sheen '41, and the Rev. Alan C. Tull, chaplain of the College.

10:30 A.M. At mid-morning, the second Alumni Symposium—"The Young Man—His Aspirations and Motivations Today"—was held in the Krieble Auditorium. The discussion was headed by Chairman Hugh S. Campbell '32 and assisted by panelists Dr. Richard Scheuch, professor of economics, Dr. Karl E. Scheibe '59, assistant professor of psychology at Wesleyan, William M. Polk '62, a graduate student at Union Theological Seminary, and E. Kingdon Hurlock Jr., a member of the Senior Class.

11:45 A.M. Shortly before noon, reunion classes were evacuated from headquarters rooms, once again in the same boisterous state of the previous evening. With reluctance, costumed alumni and wives posed in front of Jarvis for their formal class photos.

Noon As the clock in the tower of Downes Memorial struck the hour of noon, the marching music began and Parade Marshal Robert S. Morris '16, led the trek from the Bishop to the Field House. As usual it was colorful, noisy, and enjoyed by marchers and spectators alike. There were banners, signs, funny hats, blazers, and three antique cars, lent for the occasion by Edward A. Smith '44, which huffed and puffed their way along the precarious route.
12:30 P.M. Following the buffet luncheon, the Annual Meeting of the Alumni Association was called to order by Alumni President Seymour E. Smith '34. First order of business was the presentation of citations to retiring-Proffessors Ray Oosting and Louis H. Naylor, in recognition of their combined eighty-five years as members of the Trinity faculty. A special award was presented to Albert E. Holland, vice president of the College, and president-elect of Hobart and Williams Smith Colleges.

Alumni prizes were awarded . . . to the Class of 1916, the Board of Fellows Bowl . . . and the Jerome Kohn Award for the best class attendance . . . to William G. Oliver Jr. '41 from Buenos Aires, the award for traveling the farthest . . . to Victor F. Morgan '99, the prize for the oldest alumnus present . . . to the Boston Alumni Association, the Capen Trophy, for being judged the best all-around alumni area association.

Robert Toland '44, chairman of the Board of Fellows, then read the citation for the recipient of the Eigenbrodt Trophy, the highest honor the alumni can bestow upon a fellow-alumnus. Citing his contributions to College and community, Mr. Toland presented the coveted award to Melvin W. Title '18.

Lyman B. Brainerd '30, vice president of the Board of Trustees, presented to Dr. Jacobs the four winners of the Alumni Medal of Excellence. The medals and accompanying citations were given by the President to Ezra Melrose '33, Harold W. Messer '26, Raymond C. Parrott '53 and Lloyd E. Smith '23.
In a special ceremony, Thomas S. Gulotta, president of the Senior Class, presented Dr. Jacobs with a check for $1,000, the start of a fund which, when the Class of 1966 celebrates its twenty-fifth reunion in 1991, will be used for the formal class gift to the College.

F. Stanton Deland Jr., past president of the Parents Association, reporting for Harold T. White Jr., chairman, stated that $49,000 had been raised to date. (Ed. note. Since Mr. Deland's report on June 4, the parents fund goal of $50,000 has been surpassed.)

Dr. Jacobs then delivered his annual report on the State of the College and touched on many aspects of the College Community... the size of the undergraduate body... academic standing... athletic achievements of the past year... faculty promotions and appointments... changes in the administration... physical changes on the campus... finances of the College.

The President also reported the election of Dr. George W. B. Starkey '39 as alumni trustee for a period of six years... the reelection by the Trustees of Dr. Jacob C. Hurewitz '36 as a senior fellow for a second term of three years... the election of Dr. Clifford C. Nelson '37, as a senior fellow.

Thomas Burgess Jr. '32, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the proposed slate of national alumni association officers for 1966-67. The following were elected by unanimous vote: Andrew Onderdonk '34, president; Wilson Haight '37, senior vice president; James E. Bent '28, vice president, alumni fund; Ethan F. Bassford '39, vice president, campus activities; John L. Bonee Jr., '43, vice president, alumni areas; Gerald J. Hansen '51 and John T. Wilcox '39, vice presidents, interviewing and recruiting; George Malcolm-Smith '25, vice president, public relations; Norman C. Kayser '57, secretary; Brenton W. Harries '50, treasurer.

Elected to the executive committee for a one-year term: David B. Beers '57; Charles S. Britton '55; Morris Lloyd Jr., '60. For a two-year term: Robert M. Blum '50; Alfred J. Koeppel '54; Douglas T. Tansill '61.

John Gooding Jr. '31 was named to the athletic advisory committee. Elected junior fellows for a three-year term were William R. Pecle '44 and William T. O'Hara '55. Dr. Paul H. Twaddle '31 and James R. Glassco Jr. '50 were elected members of the nominating committee.

With the singing of "Neath the Elms," the annual meeting of the Alumni Association was adjourned.

2:30 P.M. For the remainder of the afternoon, most alumni became sports spectators... the hotly-contested baseball game at Middletown where Wesleyan ended a four-game losing streak to Trinity, winning 10-7... the tennis exhibition with William F. Talbert playing against Paul Cranis... the softball game that ended with victory for '56 over '61.

6:30 P.M. For the alumni, the climax of the 1966 Reunion Weekend were the twelve class dinners and the well-attended "1823 Dinner." The reminiscing that had begun the day before continued far, far into the night...
Baccalaureate

At the Baccalaureate Service, Sunday, June 5, the sermon was delivered by The Right Reverend Ralph S. Dean, D.D., Bishop of Cariboo, Canada, and Executive Officer of The Anglican Communion.

... As I reflect on my own university life, I am struck by the fact that the process was uncommonly like that experience by a group of young men, who nearly 2000 years ago, associated themselves with a teacher of the day. Whatever Jesus Christ was eventually to be seen to be — Son of God, Saviour of the World, etc. — even his enemies from the very beginning regarded him as a teacher. Thus, when we call his first friends disciples, we are being strictly accurate. The word “disciple” means “learner” and that is what the first disciples were. The relationship between a good teacher and respective student can clearly be seen in that early group. It is a relationship which alone validates a proper educational process — that of challenge and response. The aim and goal is not indoctrination, but education; not imposing from without, but drawing out from within; not brain-washing, but mind-stirring....

Throughout your time here, then, if you have profited from it at all, you have been involved in that dialectical exercise which forever keeps you at full stretch. So were the disciples of Jesus Christ. And for them, as for us, it was a terrifying experience. They had pre-suppositions — he upset them. They had a neatly rounded grasp of what they thought was the Divine purpose — he contradicted it; “It was said to you of old time, but I say unto you ....” etc. They had hopes for the future — he altered them out of all recognition. At every level, there was challenge and they had to make response or withdraw from the course. And have you noticed how the curriculum which Our Lord followed with his disciples was uncannily like a developing university course. His first contact with them was like first-year Arts — general, unspecific, foundational, such as would be of value for anyone at all. This is the pattern of the early part of Our Lord’s teaching ministry. There are general discourses to the multitudes, like the Sermon on the Mount. There were general ethics to large classes, and a kind of exam at the end of it, and not all the multitude passed. After the mysterious words near the beginning of His ministry about true life consisting in eating the flesh and drinking the blood of the Son of Man — “From that time on, many of his disciples withdrew and no longer went about with him. So Jesus asked the Twelve, ‘Do you also want to leave me?’ Simon Peter answered him, ‘Lord, to whom shall we go? Your words are words of eternal life. We have faith, and we know that you are the Holy One of God.’” There had been a challenge, you see, and only some had been able to make response. It is with them that Our Lord now directly concerns himself. The others were what we used to call in Canada “Christmas graduates.”

So from now on, there are smaller classes. Just like second, third and fourth-year Arts. And because this is the case, the pattern of the second part of Our Lord’s ministry is different too. No multitudes now, only a little group. No sensational miracles now, only solid teaching. No more general ethics now, but tremendous challenges as to what Christian discipleship really involves. And then comes the final exam — and there is only one question and there are no options: “When He came to the territory of Caesarea Philippi, Jesus asked his disciples, ‘Who do men say that the Son of Man is?’ They answered, ‘Some say John the Baptist, others Elijah, others Jeremiah, or one of the prophets.’ ‘And you,’ he asked, ‘who do you say I am?’ Simon Peter answered: ‘You are the Messiah, the Son of the Living God.’”

I want you to consider the claims of the Man who spoke like that and the challenge He represents. Remember, He claimed to be THE Way, THE Truth, THE Life. Not one way among many, but the only Way. Not a bit of the truth, or himself as merely true, but the incarnation, the embodying of all Truth. Not a way of life, but the only Life, in the light of which anything else is mere existence. What a challenge this is! What response will you make?

If what He says is true, then all the truth you have learned in the university leads to Him, runs up into Him — never away from Him. And involvement in truth, therefore, involves you inevitably with Him: if what He says is true. And so this is the challenge: Did He speak the truth or not? If he did, then you have no option but to throw in your lot with Him and with the Church — the whole Church which is His Body. For, as one scholar said recently, “In His Church Christ offers a new life of communion with God and in God and it is within this context that He brings new wishes to the mind and new power to the will.”

But suppose Christ did not tell the truth. Suppose He was not what He claimed to be. What then? Then you have to spurn Him utterly and completely as a liar, a deceiver, a blasphemer and a megalomaniac. Don’t you see ... the one thing you cannot do is to dither about in the middle. You cannot be content — the logic of the matter won’t let you — with any nonsense about His merely being a good man. If what He said and claimed was not true, then He is not a good man but an unmitigated liar. He claimed to be the way of God and the incarnation of the truth. If He was not, He was not a good man but the world's most terrible deceiver. As the old Latin Father said "Aut Deus, aut non bonus."

Either He is God, or He is not good.

In the confrontation with truth - any kind of truth - you are inevitably confronted with Christ. You can either cast your life at His feet - that life with your new honours, your new potential and new possibility - and live in His service, or you must denounce Him and fight against Him. That is the challenge and there must be a response. Neutrality is utterly impossible - intellectually, academically, morally or practically.

Let me put it in another light. There came a day when Jesus stood in the presence of a minor civil servant, the Procurator of Judaea, called Pontius Pilate. It was an occasion when the judge became the judged and the accused the silent accuser. In vain, the earthly judge seeks to evade his responsibility and turns to the mob for answer: "What then shall I do with Jesus which is called Christ?" They all said "Crucify Him." He said
"What evil hath he done?" But they shouted the more - "Crucify Him, crucify Him." And though Pilate took water and washed his hands, there isn't enough water in the world to wash away his responsibility. But you see the logic of the crowd, even if Pilate did not. If you will not follow Him, you have to crucify Him. If you will not serve Him, you have to destroy Him. This is the challenge ... the choice of responsibility is yours. It is only fair to tell you that the nagging uncertainty, the nameless fear, the unaccountable despair that grips all our hearts, will never cease till we have made a decision.

Let the blind old poet, George Matheson, have the last word:

O Cross that liftest up my head,
I dare not ask to fly from thee;
I lay in dust life's glory dead,
And from the ground there blossoms red
Life that shall endless be.

For Faith and Courage - Commendation

The story of Peter S. Duran, Trinity '66, of Stamford, Conn., created more than usual interest among news writers of Hartford and elsewhere at Commencement time. The evidence ranged from a page-one piece in The New York Times of June 6 to a lengthy, illustrated, and extremely readable feature by Paul Hodge in the June issue of Connecticut Life.

Peter Duran is the student who, sightless since early boyhood, was graduated near the top of his class as a math major. Now he plans to head for Michigan-Oakland University as a teaching assistant and for work toward the M.A. in Mathematics. The Ph.D. at the University of Wisconsin is the subsequent goal he has set for himself.

He'll make it, too.

"And why not?" asked a classmate who, with 20-20
eyesight, says he had difficulty seeing some of the complex problems that failed to awe Duran. "Why shouldn't he make it? Ever since he came to Trinity he has consisttenly accomplished what he set out to do." The classmate added: "And when you tackle some of the questions raised in a course such as 'Logic and Foundations of Mathematics,' you are not kidding around."

Duran has no misgivings with regard to a teaching ca­ Reer. As a junior he lectured twice to a junior colloqui­um.
During the past year, he worked in "help sessions," tossing the lifeline to less adept students who were threshing about in the rough seas of indeterminate forms, differential equations and double integrals, although they hit a curve ball well and can sight a pretty girl at 200 yards. Once at the blackboard, or armed with pencil and paper, Duran finds no problem in setting down the language of equations and symbols.

As you might guess, Duran is interested in public education for the sightless young person. Because school officials of his home community did not share his views on the educational potential of youngsters thus handicapped, his early years of study were by private instruction at home.

"I was bored silly," he told Mr. Hodge. "I was treated as though I were retarded."

On his own, young Peter ordered "talking books" - records - supplied by "Recordings for the Blind." The books he listened to included Origin of the Species; Dr.
Einstein and the University; Man, Apes and Morons.

His home-instructor concluded he was, after all, ready for school instruction and persuaded the officials to enroll him in the eighth grade. Peter, enjoying life, asking no favors, laughing at odds, planning always for the future, has been driving ahead ever since.

And now about Dusty, the guide dog, Duran's constant companion in the Trinity years -

With poise and dignity, dedicated to the job at hand, Dusty has walked the campus at Duran's side. On Commencement Day, Dusty was at his side as the graduating senior received his diploma.

Then, to the surprise of all but a few, Duran was asked to remain for a moment as President Jacobs read a brief commendation written for the four-footed aide.

If you were there, you need no description of the moment. If you were not there, adequate description is impossible. Let's note only that it was an emotionally moving moment.

The commendation read: "I admit you, faithful dog Dusty, as an honorary member of our society." The audience, which had been asked before the program began to refrain from applause until the end, broke the rule.

But the considerable clamor did not jar the guide dog.
With customary calm, Dusty steered the newest Trinity alumnus to the platform steps and back to the section of seniors.
COMMENCEMENT

At the 140th Commencement Exercises, Sunday, June 5, one hundred and seventy-six seniors received Bachelor of Arts degrees and fifty-six, Bachelor of Science degrees. Seventy-four Master's degrees were awarded. The Commencement Address was delivered by the Honorable Cyrus R. Vance, Deputy Secretary of Defense.

The peace and beauty of this lovely campus is not - unhappily - a universal symbol of the state of our contemporary world. “Peace,” said St. Thomas Aquinas, “is the tranquility of order.”

Unfortunately, there is neither much tranquility, nor much order in our world. It is complex and tangled in its relationships, and strained in its tensions. And it is beset by a litany of problems:
- There is the awesome presence of nuclear weapons: a somber hint of holocaust that hangs permanently as the backdrop to the tragedy of man’s hostility.
- There is the whole web of complexities that flow from the struggle for civil rights: a struggle that oscillates between the rational and the emotional, and sums up in itself all those frailties of human prejudice. In a senseless chain of reaction, one bigotry begets another bigotry; and one blindness, another blindness.
- There is the volcanic emergence of new nations around the world: some coming to term in violence; others born peacefully, but faced with severe pains of growth.
- There is the problem of hunger hanging over half the human race; the grim certainty of disease; the paralysis of human poverty, that saps ambition and drains away hope.
- There are the disheartening statistics of educational deprivation; the fact that after some six thousand years of civilization, six out of every ten human beings alive today cannot even read, much less enjoy the full fruits of learning.
- There are all these problems - and more.

None is easily solved. None will simply fade away. None - out of any inner necessity - will cure itself. Modern man, then, looks out on a world that is marred and pock-marked with old problems - and constantly plagued by new ones.

What is man to do in this situation? . . .

Some fundamental issues must be dealt with ultimately at the summit of authority, where the Congress and the Executive Branch have both the mandate and the means to cope with them.

But most problems are not solved merely by passing a law, or signing an executive order. Most problems involve people at every level of government - national, state, and local - and at every level of corporate and private society.

Civil rights is a classic illustration of this. Racial justice requires wise legislation, and equitable enforcement of the law; but no one can pretend that bigotry can be eliminated with the scratch of a pen, or the passing of a sentence.

Bigotry must be rooted out from its ultimate habitat; the human heart and mind. The government can assist in this process but ultimately each citizen - in his own milieu - must see to it that he himself renders to others the justice and respect that are their due.

Not everyone can be an activist in every cause. But every private citizen can have a public conscience. Every private citizen can be concerned with the basic issues of his time, and must take those steps he can to seek responsible solutions.

The two key words, it seems to me, are concern and responsibility.

If the individual is concerned, if the individual is responsible, what can he do?

He can, first, make himself aware that a specific problem exists. He can identify it. He can, with study and work and thought, determine for himself what issue is before him - and not accept the definition of another man. . . .

It need not be a public stand, although it can be. It need not be a stand that leads you to participation in an active movement, although it can be. But it must be your own stand, representative of your own thinking and your own conclusion. . . .

Now, what we have said of the individual - and his need to meet the major issues in a concerned and responsible way - is true of the nation as well.
Just as an individual cannot withdraw from the issues that confront him, so neither can a nation.

Just as an individual cannot deal with difficulties in isolation, so neither can a nation.

And just as an individual is strengthened by facing problems responsibly within the larger community of individuals, so too a nation is strengthened by facing problems responsibly within the larger community of nations.

Now the United States—as a nation—has a heritage of facing problems directly and openly, and dealing with them on the basis of fundamental principles.

That can be seen best by exploring the manner in which we dealt with the most important problem that any nation can face: our birth and independence.

The men meeting in Philadelphia in 1776 were revolutionaries. But they were revolutionaries acting with concern and responsibility.

They explored every alternative. They weighed every risk. They measured every consequence.

They thought the problem through to its conclusion.

They took their stand.

And they acted upon that stand.

They made a forthright and assertive Declaration.

There was no mistaking their meaning. With directness and dedication, they confronted the problems of the subordination of proud and able men to a distant and unreasonable power. They met the overriding problem head-on. They were totally committed in mind, in heart, and in principle.

They were aware of the risks.

The dangers were clear.

But so was the challenge.

The hardship was great.

But so was the reward.

This is our heritage: commitment to the aspirations of mankind.

It is not trite to repeat these fundamental principles—that all men are created equal, that all men are endowed with inalienable rights, that all men have a right to life and to liberty and to the pursuit of happiness.

Upon these truths we must base our course, as individuals and as a nation.

It is not an easy course today.

It will not be an easy course tomorrow.

It is never easy to stand for principle. But it is always worth the risk.

Today, as in the past, reality is rough-edged. It is abrasive, and the corners are sharp—and it is thorny to the touch.

The simpler thing is to avert one’s eyes from it; to wish and even to pray that it will go away; to hope blindly that it is not there at all.

But that is not our heritage.

I urge you today to heed that heritage.

I urge you to identify the issues, to grapple with them, and to commit yourself to their solution.

The choices are clear: confrontation and commitment? Or indifference and indecision?

There are, then, things to be done by all of you. What you must do is do them. If you accept this challenge to be a private citizen with a public conscience, as Emerson said, above all be “Brave men who work while others sleep, Who dare while others shy...” Your reward will be the fulfillment of self and the greatness of your country.
President’s Charge to the Class of 1966

Gentlemen of 1966. To each of you I extend sincere congratulations on the achievement your presence here represents. This day marks for you the successful conclusion of a significant period of your lives. It is the end of a beginning—a beginning that I trust has been a stirring experience in growth—growth in intellect, growth in resolve, growth in moral and physical sinew.

In your years under these towering elms that shade you now, dedicated scholars have drawn deeply on their knowledge, their skills, their energies and their wisdom to serve you in the noblest calling known to man—that of teaching.

I need not remind you that teaching at Trinity encompasses vastly more than the accumulation of facts. Your professors have not attempted to make you only repositories of information. The computer, that marvelous product of man’s technological genius, will be available to you as a tool as you take up your life endeavors. But the computer, so intricate and so swift in the assembling of data, will remain always a machine, without spirit, without soul, without humor. The computer can provide the materials on which your decision may be based. But the computer can never make that decision for you. Only man, with mind and intellect responsive to his spirit, his resolution, his reasoning and his emotion, is equipped to guide the course of man. And when man so guides his course in the interest of his fellow man and in his own enlightened self-interest, he may be said to have acquired a measure of wisdom. But only then.

It is toward the ways of reason and wisdom that your teachers have attempted to direct you in your years on this campus.

More than has been true of any prior generation, you have come into a world in which the exercise of wisdom is fraught with profound difficulty. Never before have events moved with the bewildering speed we know today as instant communication brings the upheaval of half a world away to our living room. True indeed is the observation of the distinguished anthropologist, Dr. Margaret Mead, that “no man dies in the world in which he was born.”

Literally, the world you now confront is an explosive world.

There is the explosion of the military weapon, with repercussions felt on our doorsteps, on our college campuses, in virtually every walk of life. Leaders of our troubled nation grope for solutions they believe will serve the cause of freedom and justice. It is a time for debate and for honest dissent, ever basic in our American philosophy. And for the young man on the threshold of a career, it is indeed a time of trial.

There is the explosion of knowledge—in the sciences, the social sciences, the earth sciences; in the conquest of outer space, in man’s knowledge of himself. It is an expansion almost frenetic, that makes our day the most dynamic mankind has known. To cite only one area of advance, that of the healing arts, it was stated recently by an authority on medical education that the achievements of the past three decades in medical research have been more important than the cumulative discoveries of all previous recorded history.

There is the population explosion, a grim illustration of which is provided by Professor Roger Revelle, who holds the Richard Saltonstall Chair of Population Policy at Harvard, and Director there of the Center for Population Studies. He points out that “Hundreds of thousands of years were required to produce by 1850 A.D. a living population of one billion people. The second billion took 75 years more, from 1850 to 1925, but only another 35 years, until 1960, were required for the third billion. The fourth billion will be here by 1980, and the fifth by 1990. Unless drastic changes in birth or death rates occur, the population increase between now and the year 2000 will be larger than the entire present population of the earth.”

And there is the explosion, this one so long overdue in our land, in the recognition of every man’s right to all the privileges and all the obligations of full membership in the community, regardless of race or color. A new ingredient, missing much longer than reasons of history and tradition can justify, is being introduced into the compound of the American formula.

But this explosion, clearly a beneficent, though belated, demonstration of the conscience of society, continues to be the cause of anachronistic controversy and strife in parts of our country and in some lands abroad.

My generation, which so signally has failed, calls upon you and your graduating colleagues across the land to help in turning the tide. Man’s wisdom, man’s ability to control his own destiny, have not increased in a manner commensurate with man’s talents in the acquisition of knowledge and in the application of his skills. Man reaches for the moon in his spacecraft while still unable to reach across the conference table for the hand clasp of understanding among nations and groups.

We honor this weekend members of the Trinity Class of 1916, celebrating their 50th anniversary. A half-century ago they joined an alumni body of 1,975 members. Today, that alumni roster is 12,996—men of science, education, commerce, the professions, church and public affairs, whose careers provide a striking evaluation of the Trinity experience. From this day on, yours is the responsibility to join them in the struggle against the forces of evil. Guard and cherish the values with which I trust Trinity has helped to endow you.

Doing so, each in your own way, you will play your part in the march of mankind toward what must be its ultimate goal of peace and understanding among all peoples.

May God bless each of you in this noble quest.
Of all undergraduate societies in Trinity, honorary or otherwise, the men of Medusa assume what are by far the most rigorous responsibilities. The College Handbook states that Medusa "has the function of upholding the traditions of the College as well as the discipline. To be tapped for Medusa is the greatest honor a Trinity undergraduate can attain."

In the latter area, that of discipline, there comes, fortunately infrequently, the moment when the collective opinion of Medusa varies in degree from that of established college administration. When that happens, patience, forbearance, understanding are called for on the part of both Medusa and college officials—and are invariably forthcoming.

The experience of many years indicates that the plan works. It works because Medusa selections are almost always wise. The membership of the past year—George E. Andrews, David C. Charlesworth, Joseph A. Hourihan, Walter W. Siegel, Robert B. Stepto, John M. True and Anthony D. Whittemore—eminently proved the point.

The incoming Medusa members, tapped in colorful ceremony in the early-evening setting of the quadrangle, promise similarly high standards. No strangers to the Dean's List, active in campus affairs, leaders in athletics and in the classroom, they are in the Medusa tradition. Here is the seven-man roster for 1966-67: John D. Craft, Perrysburg, Ohio; Steven V. Eliot, New York City; Edward B. Hutton, Duxbury, Mass.; Lynn M. Kirkby, Perrysburg, Ohio; Alexander H. Levi, Lutherville, Md.; John R. O'Neal, Naperville, Ill., and Morton E. Salomon, Jamaica, N.Y.
When the Class of 1916 was graduated, it listed 60 members. Trinity had a faculty of 29 and student body of about 250. All but four of the surviving ’16-ers came back to the campus in June for their golden anniversary. In the Commencement Parade and in their Jarvis 7 headquarters they presented one of the weekend’s highlights.

The 1916-ers, of course, were not the most venerable people around. Leading all the others in his honorable years was sprightly Victor Morgan, ’99 B.S., ’02 M.S., of Madison, Conn.

The five decades since they left the Long Walk have been no breeze, the 1916 men conceded. They have been turbulent, exciting, incredible, exhilarating and sometimes discouraging if one tries to make some sense of history’s pattern. These men have been through two world wars, the Korean conflict, the Roaring Twenties, a major depression, and now the dismal Viet Nam muddle.

A song-and-dance man named George M. Cohan was writing “Goodbye Broadway, Hello France” before they had much more than settled into their new work after graduation. The flying machine was a new contraption. Robert Morris remembers standing on the rocks across Summit Street to watch a single-motored biplane with no cockpit, but with pilot astride a bicycle seat, fly over on a student flight from Newington to the old ball park on Wethersfield Avenue.

“Now they are shooting pictures of the moon to choose spots where it will be nice to land,” he said. The career records of the class in varied fields such as architecture, medicine, business and finance, law, government service, farming, the church, education and the arts provide substantial proof the 1916 men have not been idle bystanders in their half-century.

This was a many-sided clan in college, foreshadowing what would prove to be remarkable versatility in the years to follow. As seniors the class provided 10 of 14 letter men that gave Captain Fred Castator’s ’15 football forces it unbeaten records. Trinity defeated Amherst, Wesleyan and Williams among others, and played a scoreless tie with the Brown University team that represented the East in the Rose Bowl at the season’s end.

In other sports, in the musical clubs and college choir, in Medusa and the Senate, in Jesters, Tripod and the Debating Club, the class had leaders. Six won Phi Beta Kappa keys. The late Edward Abbe Niles was a Rhodes Scholar.

The Niles career illustrated well the many-sided quality of the class. He became a distinguished lawyer, member of the New York firm of Cadwalader, Wickersham and Taft. A tennis enthusiast in college, he continued his interest, both as competitor and official. He became an authority on jazz music and collaborated with W. C. Handy, “Father of the Blues,” in The Blues: An Anthology, published in 1926. It is a classic. He arranged the American publication of works of E. R. Eddison, thus “discovering” that writer for this country. People of many walks of life mourned when he died in 1963 while umpiring a tournament tennis match at Forest Hills.

Dr. Ernest Caulfield, now retired and living in Old Lyme, Connecticut, combined a love of history and proficiency in writing with his great abilities in medicine. Alfred Harding has contributed much to the American theater as a writer, journalist and chiefly as a leading official of Actors Equity Association. The Rev. James F. English, holder of several academic degrees and an honorary D.D. from Trinity, is also credited with the unlikely distinction of having invented the “Red Tailed Green Dragon” wet fly. The Berkman Music Room in the Alfred C. Fuller Music Center of the University of Hartford will remind new generations of students there of the career of Samuel Berkman, Trinity ’16, long dean and now dean emeritus in the Julius Hartt School of Music.

Three members of the class have served the college as trustees. One is Robert O’Connor who, as a distinguished architect, has left his mark on notable buildings from New York and Hartford to Tokyo, where he helped to build International Christian University. Another is Robert S. Morris, indefatigable alumnus, historian of Trinity athletics and public-spirited citizen, who divides his time almost equally between Trinity and his considerable investment business. A third is George M. Ferris, important Washington financier, founder of Trinity’s George M. Ferris Lectureship and chairman of the steering committee for the new athletics center.

How has college life changed? Let Mr. Morris answer that. He sees more of the campus than most of his classmates.

“We worked hard, but I know most students work hard now,” he said. “The records prove the excellence of today’s undergraduate work. On the campus we had to entertain ourselves more than today’s student. Radio and TV had not invaded our lives, nor had the automobile appreciably. Perhaps a break for us. We sang more. We sang at table. The cup for interfraternity singing competition was a big thing.

“Formal in those days meant white tie and tails, not tux. The proms were events of dignity. Students’ mothers and faculty wives were patronesses. There was no stick in the punch. A smart guy put some rum in the punch one night. We tracked him down and made him regret it. We danced the two-step, one-step, the waltz. Varsity training rules, enforced by fraternity brothers, were simple — no smoking, no drinking, early to bed and keep up in your studies.

“Perhaps our relationship with the faculty was closer than today. Our respect for faculty and discipline was more apparent, perhaps not more real. Maybe today’s student is too sophisticated to show his true feelings. But don’t get the idea we were softies. Interclass strife was rougher than anything the boys know today. Perhaps it is just as well that the clashes, the warfare of Bloody Monday, and the St. Patrick’s Day rush have disappeared with the sophistication of the new generations.”
John F. Kennedy on Education
By William T. O'Hara '55
(Teachers College Press, Columbia University, New York) 1966. $2.95 paper- back.
Reviewed by Thomas A. Smith '44
Assistant Dean of the University of Connecticut Law School, William O'Hara has long been a spokesman for education as has his reviewer Thomas A. Smith, Associate Dean of Trinity College, who has served on the Board of Education in West Hartford for the past three years.
William O'Hara's John F. Kennedy on Education is a collection of excerpts from the late President's speeches, articles, and messages on the subject of education. It is a useful and important volume for anyone concerned with the development of the Kennedy career and political philosophy. It provides a very valuable means of understanding the causes for the tremendous increase in Federal activity in education and for the increase in Federal acceptance of responsibility in educational affairs in the United States.
In a helpful and well-informed introduction, Mr. O'Hara writes, "The late President felt compelled to play the role of educator to the American people." The conviction with which he played that role and his many sound reasons for choosing it are well documented. As Congressman, and as President, John Kennedy made it his business to discover what the basic needs and weaknesses of American education were. He had the breadth and imagination to understand how the improvement of education could affect the individual, the common good, and the national destiny. He had the skill necessary to devise and to stimulate effective legislation, and, finally, he was, in the face of difficult opposition, able to convince others that what he sought to achieve was urgently necessary.
Congressman John Brademas, Indiana, wrote the Foreword to John F. Kennedy on Education. His comments on Mr. O'Hara draw attention to the fact that he was Counsel to the special Subcommittee on Education of the House Education and Labor Committee during 1962 and 1963. This experience not only qualified Mr. O'Hara especially well for the work of compiling and editing his book, but also lends real authority to the useful introduction and to the comments which precede each selection in it.
Mr. O'Hara has divided his book into four segments, the first three covering Kennedy's career in Congress and in the Senate (1947-1960), the Presidential Campaign (1960), and the Presidential Years (1961-1963), the fourth on the Peace Corps. The special pleasure of reading through these excerpts in the first three sections is to trace the development of Kennedy's thoughts on the role of the Federal Government in education and to appreciate the immense knowledge of education which Kennedy acquired as his career unfolded and which he brought to the Presidency with him. By the time he had begun his Presidential campaign, Kennedy's program was well prepared, and he made education a major issue in the 1960 contest. In 1963, he presented to Congress one of the broadest and most ambitious educational programs ever conceived, an omnibus bill of six titles providing for the expansion of opportunities for individuals in higher education, for the expansion and improvement in higher education, for the improvement of educational quality, for strengthening elementary and secondary education, for the expansion and improvement of vocational and special education, and for the expansion of continuing education.
This program marked one of the high achievements of the Kennedy Presidency. The ultimate acceptance of most of the programs by the Eighty-eighth Congress marked also the acceptance of a new concept of Federal responsibility for the quality of and opportunities for education in the Nation. As Mr. O'Hara tells us in his introduction, "It is impossible at this time to assess John F. Kennedy's total contribution to education. It is safe to assume that the broad dimensions of his ideas will affect the role of the President of the United States as an educator. He placed major emphasis on education and its improvement—a memorable legacy to this generation, and to all future generations."
Without doubt the major significance of Mr. O'Hara's work is the insight and knowledge it provides of the man and of the circumstances which led to a higher level of Federal activity in education, but at the same time it provides the reader with a full opportunity to read Kennedy's thoughts on a variety of subjects related to the development of his main concern. A number of selections deal with the education of politicians and of citizens and with the very special need for diversity and quality of educational opportunities in a democratic state. Several deal with his reasons for opposing the National Defense Education Act provision for a loyalty oath. Each of these gives evidence of what Mr. O'Hara calls his "unique rapport with students and scholars." "When communicating," Mr. O'Hara writes, "he did not limit the dialogue merely to education but covered every aspect of life in our times...he often indicated what ideas he wanted the students and teachers to consider, ponder, and act on." One cannot help but speculate that Kennedy's influence directly and indirectly has given to the academic community a much greater sense of its relevance and direction in an active and changing democratic state.
Kennedy's Peace Corps program, its effect upon developing his own youth and upon developing a new type of American leadership in the world, was also a most significant achievement, and the fourth section of John F. Kennedy on Education is devoted to it.
In Kennedy's statements on the need for such a program, one sees at its best the qualities of idealism and imagination which attracted so many American youths to the New Frontier, but, even more important, the Peace Corps experience, from its inception to the present, gives, as Kennedy had known it would, evidence of the willingness of the numbers of Americans, not only young men and women, to respond to the need for public service.

THE FACULTY WRITES
The Trinity Tripod of May 17, 1966, published the following article by Donald G. Martin '68, which shows the wide range of publishing by members of Trinity's faculty.
In the Department of Religion, Dr. Alfred Rabin has in proof stage "Meroe-Ponty: Existentialist of the Socialist World," a book centering on the works of this important figure and dealing with existential philosophy in postwar France. Completing the draft of a book to be published in 1967 by the Association Press, Dr. Edmond LaB. Cherbonnier describes its thesis as a "re-definition of sin in the light of biblical scholarship." He also has in draft form a manuscript on the philosophical implications of the Bible. Some very positive themes about man are being traced by Dr. Theodor M. Mauch in a book to be entitled "The New View of Man in the Bible." Dr. Freeman Sleeper is developing manuscripts in two areas: "The Structure of Biblical Ethics" and the other a study of the relation of power and love in the New Testament. Dr. Sleeper has an article on methodology appearing this month in Interpretation.
In the Department of Economics, Dr. Richard Scheuch is planning to finish a textbook on labor relations to be used in upperclass courses. Dr. Ward S. Curran is also working on a textbook, "The Economics of Business Finance," to be used also in the junior by sophomores. Associate Professor Edward Bobko of the Department of Chemistry is compiling material for a book on organic chemistry to be used in the junior by sophomores. Bobko expects it to be ready for his class next year.
The Modern Language Review published in April an article, "Truth-Beauty" in the 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' and the 'Elgin Marbles,' by Professor James A. Noutopulos and in the same month another article, "New Texts of Shelley's Plato," appeared in the Keats-Shelley Journal. A manuscript on "Homer and Creton" is also ready for publication.
In the fall, Dr. Richard K. Morris, associate professor of education, will have a biography of John Phillip Holland published by the United States Naval Institute at Annapolis.

A book tentatively entitled "Anatomy of Literature" by Professors Robert P. Foulke and Paul Smith will be published by Harcourt, Brace and World in 1967. The work will be in part an anthology of English and American literature, poetry, short stories, and drama. There will also be long introductory sections outlining a theory of literature described by Dr. Foulke as "an adaptation of the work of Northrup Frye."

Assistant Professor Stephen Minot has written another book, "At the Sound of Sirens," which will be published early next spring. He also has a story appearing in Redbook and two in Carleton Miscellany.

Dr. James W. Gardner Jr., also of the Department of English, has completed a satire called "Commencement Exercise," and is working in book form his doctoral dissertation on Yeats and Jung for the Bollingen Foundation.

Dr. F. Woodbridge Constant of the Department of Physics is revising a draft of a book directed at college-level students. Dr. Albert J. Howard Jr. published six articles in 1965 dealing with research in nuclear physics. At a meeting of the Physical Society, Dr. Robert Lindsay reported on his work in the general area of magnetic properties of materials. He expects a paper to come out of his work in the near future. Dr. Charles Miller is planning to publish within the next year a paper on some theoretical calculations he is making on the modes of operation of lasers.

In the Philosophy Department, Dr. Richard T. Lee is working on a paper, "Whitehead and Ethical Cognitivism," which incorporates new material with some rewriting of his doctoral dissertation. From his study of ethical systems and from his teaching of ethics, Dr. Blanchard W. Hoffman has evolved a critical way of life which he is writing in book form. Dr. Howard DeLong is working on a project in symbolic logic for use in his classroom and eventually for publication.

Associate Professor of Engineering Theodore R. Blakeslee Jr. is working on a textbook which will include elements of nomenclature and elementary numerical methods, presentation of numerical data and numerical results by curves and charts, and derivation of empirical equations.

The Department of Mathematics has several men working on books and articles: Dr. Don Mattson has a paper appearing in Journal de Mathematique; Dr. Stephen P. Hoffman Jr. has written a text entitled "Advanced Calculus" designed for use by college juniors; Associate Professor Robert C. Stewart is working on a course for mathematics which could be understood and enjoyed by students in the humanities; Dr. Mario J. Poliferno is working on a calculus textbook with an emphasis on historical background; Dr. Donald D. Hook of the Department of Mathematics has completed three-quarters of a transformational grammar of German, which approaches the learning of the language through syntax. Dr. Robert P. Waterman is translating a critical study by a French authority on a modern poet, Henri Michaux.

In the Department of Biology, Dr. J. Wendell Burger has three papers in press, two dealing with electrolyte equilibrium in sharks and the other with the liver function in sharks. Dr. Frank M. Child III has several manuscripts in progress, most of which deal with studies in the development of cilia and flagella in protozoa. Dr. James M. Van Stone plans to continue his research on problems associated with the ability of animals to regenerate limbs. A paper by Dr. Donald B. Galbraith, "The Agouti Pigment Pattern of the Mouse," appeared in the February 1964 issue of the Journal of Experimental Zoology. His next paper will deal with the relationship between gene activity and the influence of cellular environment upon genetic control of pigmentation.

Dr. Steven J. Cool of the Department of Psychology is reworking his doctoral dissertation, a beginning investigation into aspects of visual perception, for publication in a psychology journal. A book by Assistant Professor of Government Albert L. Gastmann on the present political situation in Curacao and Dutch Guiana will be published in the fall of 1966 by the Caribbean Institute of the University of Puerto Rico. Assistant Professor of Government Clyde D. McKee published six articles on municipalities in the Connecticut State Journal, April, 1966, and is working on the revision of his doctoral dissertation, which is a study of the relationship of the council-manager form of local government to national political parties.

Both Professor John C. E. Taylor and Assistant Professor Michael Pappas of the Department of the Arts have work being exhibited at the New Britain Museum. The exhibition is being sponsored by the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts and the Connecticut Water Color Society. In yet another medium, Dr. Clarence Watters, professor of music, recently gave recitals of work by Dupré in New York City.

On to Graduate Work

Student evaluation of the courses they study and the teachers with whom they study has come to be an interesting undergraduate activity in liberal arts colleges. Trinity students, indeed, were pioneers in the device in 1962, and they are doing it again, with a report being readied for next Fall. The effectiveness of the stunt, of course, depends on the manner in which it is regarded by the student, and his effort to keep it from becoming a popularity contest. Trinity's survey is being carried on with commendable seriousness and with high interest.

There is another kind of evaluation of courses and teachers. John Butler, '33, Trinity's director of Placement, is busy gathering the materials for it this summer, as he does every summer.

This evaluation consists of the records he gathers on fellowships awarded, graduate school acceptances, business opportunities and reports of performances. As this is written, the data are far from complete on the Class of '66.

The sample, however, is sufficient to indicate that after the summer in which the education editors assert that graduate school admissions are considerably more difficult than in any previous year, Trinity '66 is hitting the academic target.

Richard Carlson - Noble Leadership Fellowship Grant for four years in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University. Carlson is also engaged this summer in the Hartford Hospital Fellowship program. Two other recent graduates, Royal Gay '65, and John Ogden '64, both students in the Yale Medical School, are members of the Hartford Hospital program.

Bruce Bodner - Harvard Law School on a fellowship.

George J. Cosgrove - Andover teaching fellowship, Phillips-Andover Academy.

Bruce Alexander - Princeton University for Philosophy, on National Defense Fellowship.

Martin Gall - M.I.T. on fellowship in Chemistry.

Peter Atwood - Princeton University for Mathematics on National Science Fellowship. (Atwood also received a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, which now becomes honorary).

Melvin Evarts - Vanderbilt University fellowship in Psychology.

Gerald H. Bausek - Stanford University fellowship in biophysics.

Paul Diesel - Harvard School of Business Administration on Paul W. Keston Memorial Fellowship.

Raymond Boulanger - University of Michigan fellowship in Economics.

Christopher McCurdy - Columbia University fellowship in Economics.

Michael Dawes - Union Theological Seminary on Rockefeller Fellowship.

Paul Crapo - Yale fellowship in language study.

Alan F. Farrell - Tufts University fellowship in language study.

John Cosgrove - Syracuse University fellowship in School of Communications.

Malcolm Carter - Stanford University on National Honors fellowship for Journalism.

Sam Kassow - Nottingham University, England, on Fulbright Fellowship for study in History. (Kassow also received Woodrow Wilson and Danforth Fellowships, but accepted the Fulbright).

Ocko - Yale on fellowship for History.

Francis M. Powers Jr. - University of Rochester fellowship for Psychology.

Peter Duran - Michigan-Oakland University fellowship for Mathematics.

Rockwell Williams - University of Pennsylvania fellowship for Social Work.
Harry K. Knapp '50, assistant director of development since he joined the administration in January 1965, has been named associate director of that office.

A native of New York City, Mr. Knapp attended St. Paul’s School before entering Trinity. He served the College as a class agent for five years and was a member of the alumni fund steering committee in 1962. In 1963–64 he was national chairman of the alumni fund.

Mr. Knapp was formerly an investment analyst for the Aetna Insurance Company and, before returning to Trinity, was associated with G. H. Walker & Company as a registered representative.

N. Robbins Winslow '57, former curate of St. John’s Episcopal Church in Passaic, New Jersey, has been appointed assistant director of development.

A native of Akron, Ohio, Mr. Winslow was a history major at Trinity and a member of Phi Beta Kappa. After two years in the Army as a history and mathematics instructor at the Army Education Center, Fort Bragg, he attended Episcopal Theological School and received his S.B.T. degree in 1963.

Mr. Winslow will be primarily concerned with the preparation of proposals to government, foundations and individuals.

Douglas L. Frost, '59, associate director of development, has been named vice president for development at the Maryland Institute, College of Art, in Baltimore. His appointment is effective August 15.

At Trinity, Mr. Frost has conducted the annual fund drives which have received national recognition for outstanding performance by the American Alumni Council. He has been engaged in capital fund-raising campaigns and other phases of development work.

Active in community affairs, Mr. Frost worked with a committee of students, faculty and administration in 1962 to commute the death sentence of Benjamin Reid who had been convicted of first-degree murder. He is vice president of Connecticut Hall Way House, an institution that provides a transitional period for past offenders.

Mr. Frost has published poetry and is currently preparing a manuscript on artistic response to the Spanish Civil War.

In addition to his Trinity B.A. degree, he holds a Master’s degree from Yale and has studied at Northwestern and the University of Hartford Art School.

Professor Alexander A. Mackimnie Jr., chairman of the education department, was recipient of a citation at the annual meeting on June 15 of the Greater Hartford Chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. In part, the citation read: “For outstanding contributions promoting the cause of good will and understanding among all the people of our nation... thereby fostering amity, justice and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews... helping to eliminate intergroup prejudices... bringing us nearer to the goal of the Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God.”

Earlier in the month, Professor Mackimnie delivered the address at the induction ceremonies of new members of the National Honor Society chapter at the Windham High School, Willimantic, Connecticut, where he served as principal from 1948 to 1951. The chapter at the school is named in his honor.

Over ninety Episcopal faculty, administrators and clergymen attended the 17th Annual Conference in Theology for College and University Faculty conducted on the campus June 16–21. The conference was sponsored by the College and University Division of the National Executive Council of the Episcopal Church and the Commissions for College Work in the First, Second and Third Provinces. It is the thirteenth year that Trinity has hosted the conference.

Three hundred community leaders paid tribute to Albert E. Holland '34 at a dinner June 13 at the Hartford Hilton in Hartford. The testimonial honored Mr. Holland for his contributions to many civic and charitable causes. Chairman of the event was Mr. William P. Gwinn, president, United Aircraft Corporation.

James E. Bent '28 was toastmaster. Speakers included Dr. Jacobs; Mr. Henry S. Beers '18, chairman, board of directors; Symphony Society of Greater Hartford; Mr. Richard B. Haskell, president, Greater Hartford Community Chest; and Mr. James C. Turner, executive director, Greater Hartford Community Chest.

On a bright and cheerful Sunday in late May, over 450 cars, with small triangular pennants fluttering from their antennas, overflowed the College parking facilities. Trinity was the first stop on a Mystery Tour of Connecticut, sponsored by the Hartford AAA, and nearly 2000 people, many visiting the campus for the first time, were escorted by student guides as they viewed the Chapel, the Long Walk, the Austin Arts Center and other points of interest.

The wives of the four departing members of the administration sit in the Trinity chairs presented to their husbands at a luncheon ceremony at the College. (Seated, left to right) Mary Holland, Patricia Bridge, Nancy Frost and Ollie Edwards. (Standing) Albert E. Holland '34, F. Gardner F. Bridge, Dr. Jacobs, who made the presentation and cited each for his contributions, Douglas L. Frost '59 and Jacob W. Edwards '59.
Dr. Glenn Weaver, associate professor of history, received an award as "outstanding teacher in the field of American history in a Connecticut secondary school or college" from the Connecticut Chapter of the National Society, Daughters and Founders and Patriots of America, Inc.

Baird Hastings, lecturer in music, conducted the Mozart Festival Orchestra in its seventh season at a concert at The Rockefeller University, New York.

Free public tours of the campus will again be conducted every Sunday during the summer. They will begin at the Chapel at 2, 3 and 4:00 P. M. Tour guides will be Edward J. Mullarkey '67 and Keith M. Miles '68.

A record number of graduate and undergraduate students enrolled the weekend of June 25 for the first of two five-week sessions of the Summer Term. Over 650 students registered for the first session and more than 425 are expected to enroll in the second session.

Approximately 140 of the students will be attending Trinity while still in high school as part of the Transition to College Plan, which has served as a model for similar programs at other colleges.

The college is offering 112 courses in the two sessions in both undergraduate and graduate fields. Twenty-eight of the 79 Summer Term faculty will be visiting from colleges across the country.

More than 350 registered for track and field events at the Diocesan Field Day and Acolytes' Festival held on the campus June 11. The Rt. Rev. John H. Esquirol, Suffragan Bishop of Connecticut was honorary chairman.

The faculty has approved an experimental "pass-fail" system to be launched next fall for juniors and seniors who wish to elect courses outside their major fields.

At the end of the course, the student would be given either a "pass" or a "fail" instead of the usual letter grade. If the student passes, he will receive quantitative credit towards his Bachelor's degree. The effect of the system will be to encourage students to attempt courses in areas other than their majors without being overly concerned about the consequences of possible low grades.

The program for the 36th Annual Trinity College-Greater Hartford High School Track and Field Meet was dedicated to Ray Oosting, professor emeritus of physical education. A similar honor was bestowed upon Karl Kurth Jr., professor of physical education and director of athletics, with dedication of the program at the 45th Annual Eastern Intercollegiate College Athletic Association Track and Field Championships, marking his fourteen years as secretary of the association.

The Phi Kappa Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi has instituted an award for the member of the senior class of the fraternity who has made an outstanding contribution to the college community. The award honors the late Peter Schaefer '64. First recipient of the award was scholar-athlete William H. Schweitzer '66.

Friends of Dr. Louis H. Naylor, colleagues on the faculty, members of the administration and former students who traveled from as far away as Durham, North Carolina, crowded Hamlin Dining Hall on an evening in late June to pay tribute to the man who has served the College since 1923. He is retiring as professor emeritus. Professor Gustave W. Andrian '40 acted as master of ceremonies. Dr. Jacobs, Seymour E. Smith '34, James D. Casson '64 and Dr. Andrian reminisced about the guest of honor and related, with nostalgia, the serious and humorous events that have been associated with him. As a momento of the occasion, Dr. Naylor was presented with a painting of the Chapel, the work of Professor Mitchel N. Pappas.

Karl W. Hallden '09 congratulated the winners of engineering prizes at the annual luncheon hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Hallden at the Waterbury Country Club. Left to right David B. Doll '66, winner of the Assistant Hallden Engineering Scholar Award; Mr. Hallden; Harvey F. Silverman '65, winner of the first annual gift award of $500 for his development of a computer device that may revolutionize automobile ignition systems; Lloyd M. Sigman '66, winner of the Hallden Engineering Scholar Award. In addition to twelve engineering majors, about 50 members of the faculty and administration were in attendance.

The wives of three faculty members were among the seventy-four receiving Master's degrees at Commencement. (Left to right) Virginia Archer Blakeslee (Mrs. Theodore R. Blakeslee II); Margaret Swering Sapega (Mrs. August E. Sapega); Margaret Penfield Andrian (Mrs. Gustave W. Andrian) who was valedictorian of the graduating masters. All received degrees in education.
Varsity Baseball Squad

Hustle and desire! Those are the two words that best describe what sparked the varsity baseball team to a winning 9–5 performance. Hustle and desire, plus a pitcher named Brickley, plus an infield that executed its assignments with almost flawless precision, plus hits when they were needed.

The pre-season prediction was not particularly promising and the 4–8–1 record of last year was still remembered. With nine lettermen from the 1965 varsity and seven freshmen numeral winners forming the nucleus, Coach Dan Jessee viewed his thirtieth season as baseball mentor on The Hill with some well-founded skepticism.

It started off as a give-and-take season but, by early May, it seemed certain that a winning year was in the making. The team trounced Amherst 9–0 after an initial loss to Springfield, went two-for-two against Coast Guard, two-for-three against Wesleyan, the Little Three Champs, and registered other wins over Tufts, A.I.C., W.P.I. and M.I.T. In addition to the Springfield loss, decisions were dropped to Colby, Bowdoin and Williams.

Righthander pitcher Robert Brickley '67 compiled a 6–2 record finished the season with a creditable 1.83 ERA and was an effective hitter. In recognition of his overall performance, he was presented the Dan Webster Most Valuable Player Award.

Lefthander John Greaney '67 fashioned a 3–3 pitching record, including a brilliant one-hitter against A.I.C.

Infielder Michael Hickey '67 led in the batting department with a .362 average, which earned him the John Sweet Batting Award.

Although it is difficult to single out other performers in a season that relied for its success on nine men playing as a coordinated unit, special mention should be made of the clutch-hitting of Robert Ochs '66 (.308 average) and the identical .286 hitting records of co-captains Joseph Hourihan '66 and Michael Moonves '66. The latter also took fielding honors with a .981 average and, on several occasions, received mention in the local press for his “scintillating” performance at shortstop.

Entering his fifteenth year as head track coach with a record of 56–35–3, Karl Kurth and his charges compiled another winning season in outdoor competition. The squad ran, jumped and hurdled to wins over Union, Vermont, Coast Guard, Amherst and W.P.I. and lost only to Middlebury.

Four new records were set during the regular season. Donald MacInnes '67 set a new mark in the pole vault with the bar set at 12' 6¾". In the half-mile event, Theodore Zillmer '68 posted a 1:56.1. In the triple jump, a new record of 44' 5¼" was accomplished by Pierre Schwar '68. Jesse Brewer '67, named next year's captain, lowered his own mark of :55 in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles to :53.8.

The Bantams placed second out of thirteen teams to compete in the Eastern Intercollegiate Track Championships won by Central Connecticut who hosted the annual event. Brewer and Schwar captured one and two gold medals, respectively.

Douglas Morrill '68, who participated in a number of events in dual events during the season, was awarded the Robert S. Morris Track Trophy.

Coach Chet McPhee's varsity lacrosse team, with nineteen lettermen and fifteen freshman numeral winners from last year's squads, posted a 5–9 record, scoring wins over Nichols, W.P.I., Tufts, Holy Cross and M.I.T. Contests were dropped to Amherst, Union and Wesleyan.

SPORTS SCENE

Captain and goalie Kingdon Hurlock was recipient of the John Francis Boyer Lacrosse Award, given each year to the outstanding player. He was also one of forty-six players selected to participate in the annual North-South game in his hometown of Baltimore.

For some Trinity undergraduates, Spring Vacation meant Florida, Nassau, Bermuda, or a relaxing visit home.

For members of the crew, it was a different story. The first daily practice session started at seven a.m. sharp and the second, at four in the afternoon. At neither time was the sun any comfort against the brisk breeze that ruffled the icy waters of the Connecticut River, penetrated the sweat suits and nipped the ears.

But Trinity's oarsmen were determined. They now represent an official sport of the College after five years as a club activity. Art Gilcreast, Trinity's first official rowing coach, was equally determined.

The result of this determination on the part of all concerned was a successful season for the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen crews.

In the first meeting of the year, Trinity was host to Amherst and C. W. Post College. Amherst overcame an early Trinity lead and won the varsity race over the 2,000-meter course by two-thirds of a length. The Bantam crews captured both the jayvee and freshmen events.

Trinity varsity and jayvee crews finished one-two against A.I.C. on April 20. In a second race, the freshmen defeated Springfield Technical High School.

In the third annual Mason-Downs Cup Regatta on April 23, the Trinity varsity captured the cup race in rough water with a length victory over Marist and Wesleyan. St. John's finished fourth. The Trinity junior varsity won their event and the frosh trailed the winner, Marist, by three-quarters of a length.

The following weekend at Poughkeepsie, Trinity became the first college in the history of the Marist College President's Cup Regatta to sweep victories in all three races. In the heavyweight contest, Trinity crossed the line two lengths ahead of Marist. St. John's finished third, followed by Iona. It was the third win for the jayvee boat in this event and the freshmen crew repeated last year's victory.

On May 7 the crews attended the Rusty Callow Regatta at Worcester. The junior varsity and freshmen, defending champions, won their respective races. The varsity shell trailed in fifth position behind Amherst, Wesleyan, U. Mass and Marist.

During the weekend of May 14, the crews participated in the Dad Vail Regatta, the small-college classic, in Philadelphia. The varsity qualified with the fastest time recorded by any of the 23 varsity eights, winning the opening heat over George Washington, LaSalle, Rollins, Wayne State and Marist. On the final day, Marietta scored a clean sweep. In the varsity final, Trinity finished fifth and, in the junior varsity event, the Trinity shell was third.

The oarsmen ended the season in a dual regatta with Northeastern on the Charles River in Boston on May 21. Favored Northeastern captured the three events.

At the annual dinner of the Friends of Trinity Rowing, Jonathan Ocko '66, stroke of the junior varsity, was presented with the Torch Award, given annually to the crewman who has done the most to foster and perpetuate rowing at Trinity.

Richard Charney '66, as the most improved oarsman and in recognition of his spirit of cooperation, was recipient of the Hartford Barge Club Rowing Trophy. John Ingram, outstanding member of the freshmen crew, received the David O. Wicks Jr. Rowing Prize.

Under the watchful eye of Coach Roy Dath, the varsity tennis team rolled to seven straight with victories over Springfield, Rhode Island, W.P.I., Union, Holy Cross, M.I.T. and Wesleyan. In the season's final, Army handed the team its lone defeat. Sophomore James Behrend was winner of the Craig Most Improved Player Award.

* * *

The varsity golf team, coached for the first time by Robie Shults, recorded an 8–2 season and a tie for ninth in the New Englands at Portland. John Sjoholm '67, winner of the varsity golf-team tournament, received the Wyckoff Award and Richard Stultz '67, the Pappas Most Valuable Player Award.

* * *

During the academic year 1965–66, Trinity varsity athletes, participating in twelve sports, recorded the best win-loss performance in fifteen years. They competed in 118 contests, winning 80 and losing 38 for an average of 67.8%, two percentage points shy of the 1950–51 record. The freshmen did not fare as well, winning 41 contests and losing 49 for a 45.6% average.

"All in all it was a nice way to end my career at Trinity," said retiring director of athletics Ray Oosting.
ASSOCIATION NOTES

ALBANY
Professor Edward Bobko of the College's Chemistry Department gave an informal talk of his ideas on the importance of science to the liberal arts education on May 19 at the University Club. John Mason '34, Alumni Secretary, also spoke.

The new officers are: Kenneth J. Lyons '60, President; Terrell E. Graves '59, Secretary; and Frederick J. Gleason Jr. '58, Treasurer.

BOSTON
Again Gordon Ramsey '61 and his family graciously opened their beautiful home "Tuppeny Towers" on Wingaersheek Beach, Gloucester, Mass., for the freshman picnic June 26. Unfortunately a cool breeze kept the attendance down.

Plans are being made for a "tailgate party" October 8 before the Trinity-Tufts football game in Medford.

Best wishes go with Marv Peterson '60 who has been a most effective area president. Marv is going to Ann Arbor to work for his Ph.D. Vice President Gordon "Red" Ramsay will be president until the annual election meeting.

CAPE COD
More than forty alumni and wives attended the third annual luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McKelvy Jr. '60 in Hyannisport July 19.

CINCINNATI
The new officers David J. Elliott '57, President, 6068 Stirrup Road, Cincinnati, and Robert L. Brown '61, Secretary, 1032 Springfield Pike, Cincinnati, are making plans for a fall get-together when one of the College's admissions officers is in the area.

Alumni Secretary, John Mason '34, visited the Club last May 10.

CLEVELAND
The Association held its annual spring dinner May 9 with Alumni Secretary, John Mason '34 bringing the latest college news. Several freshmen were present with their fathers.

The new officers are: Charles S. Britton, '55, President; Myles S. Phillips Jr. '44, Vice President; John T. Jaeger Jr. '65, Secretary; and William C. Daley Jr. '64, Treasurer.

HARTFORD
The Trinity Club's annual dinner will be Tuesday, October 18, at College with John F. Schereshewsky, headmaster of Rumsey Hall School, Washington, Conn., the speaker.

The regular monthly luncheons will be resumed Tuesday, October 4 with Professor John Dando speaking. On November 1 Professor D.G. Brinton Thompson will give his annual election predictions.

The Club plans to hold a picnic for the area freshmen Thursday, September 8.

MINNEAPOLIS
Alumni Secretary John Mason '34 visited the Twin Cities May 12 and brought the latest news from the Hilltop.

NEW BRITAIN
The new officers are: Dr. Thomas S. Claror '50, President; Richard J. O'Brien '26, Vice President; Richard F. Nissel '56, Secretary; and William W. Weber '61, Treasurer.

NEW YORK
Once again the officers and many alumni are grateful to Dr. "Dan" Webster '10 for permitting the Association to use his lovely home "Meadow Lawn" for the annual Frolic May 21.

The annual dinner meeting will be Tuesday, November 29, at the Columbia Club. All New York area alumni are asked to hold this date.

PROVIDENCE
The "kick-off" dinner for the Capital Campaign was held May 25 at the Biltmore with Professor James Gardner the main speaker.

ST. LOUIS
John Mason '34, Alumni Secretary, spoke informally at a dinner meeting May 11. William M. Vibert '52, 705 West Essex Ave., Kirkwood, Mo. is the area president.

HONORARY

1941 The Rt. Rev. Walter H. Gray, Bishop of Connecticut, has been awarded the Charter Oak Medal for leadership in community affairs by the Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce.

1943 Robert Cutler’s book No Time for Rest was published last April by Little Brown & Co. and The Atlantic Monthly.

1955 The Very Rev. Lawrence Rose, Dean of the General Theological Seminary in New York City, has retired after nineteen years as Dean.

1957 The Rt. Rev. Harry Kennedy has announced that Peter B. Ogilby, M.A. '52, has been appointed Dean of the High School and of the Faculty at St. Andrew's Priory School, Hawaii.

Memorial Day and Commencement time bring thoughts of yesteryear. To most Trinity alumni, the members of the classes of the first decade of this century must seem to be denizens of distant days, yet they were the very much alive Trinity scholars and athletes of those years. When the Class of 1905 was in college, then with a student body of about 200, we had more than a nodding acquaintance with the classes of 1902, '03, '04, '06, '07 and '08. So the members of these classes and perhaps others, as well as the '05ers, would like to recall the following members of 1905 as seniors: Edwin Baker, Roger Blakeslee, Bill Bulkley, Harry Boyd, “Scrappy” Burrows, Carroll Campbell, Edmund Carr, Charles Clement, Eddie Duffee, Bob Ewing, Mal Farrow, Jim George, Charles Gostenhoffer, Jarvis Harriman, Carlos Jones, Phil Kennedy, Fred Meredith, Ham Pelton, Kinney Remsen, Charles Rhodes, Bill Roberts, Walter Sherwood, Bill Stedman and Pete Welles. There were other 'sometime' members whose names and faces may be recalled. Today the ranks have thinned to six—Bulkley, Campbell, Carr. Your Secretary, Harriman and Stedman.

At Reunion: Giles Randall '08, Fred Hinkel '06, Ray Thomsen '41, Mrs. Fred Hinkel, Jack Doran '22 and Fred Tansill '22

The Reverend Arthur S. Kean, "retired" for some years, is working his head off at two churches in Las Vegas, Nev. Another indication that he is to be congratulated is that he is to conduct a pilgrimage from Nevada to the Holy Land in the spring. It will culminate in Holy Week in Jerusalem.

Our sympathy goes to Thornton McGee whose wife, Elsie Clemmons McGee, passed away March 2. She was a faithful companion of Thornton at our many reunions.

The Rev. Joe Barnett marked his 75th birthday March 21 at his mobile home at Palm Beach Home Park with a surprise party which included many of his friends and neighbors of Bethesda-by-the-Sea church where Father Joe is a Sunday assistant.

Joe Ehlers, Art Fenoglio, Charlie Senay and Ray Woodward were among those present at the Immortals Dinner.

Ed Barton is finishing his fifth year as a member of the Bloomsburg, Pa., school board. He is also chairman of the local authority charged with the task of constructing about two hundred additional off-street parking places, floating the loans and, if necessary, condemning the property needed for this purpose.

Our thanks to Charlie Senay and his daughter who rescued Joe Ehlers from that austere Trinity dormitory, Allen West, and nursed Joe back to health from a mean cold and chill.

Seen at Reunion in June were Bert Bailey, Og Budd, Vert Young and Nick Zipkin. Although we have had our 50th, Your Secretary still enjoys going back to campus, particularly at Commencement time.

We have learned that Ron Kinney has settled in Clearwater, Fla.

With 85% of our living members present, our 50th Reunion was a memorable event in our adult lives as Trinity alumni. It was a thrill to win the attendance plaque and the Board of Fellows bowl, but our cup ran over at the Reunion banquet where the keynote became "Eccle quam bonum quamque jucundum habitare frateres in unum.

Your Secretary is still basking in your kindness and generosity so evidenced by your much-appreciated gift.

It was significant that Cliff Perkins traveled from California to attend; Jack Townsend from Texas; Hoppie Spofford from Florida; and Charlie Plummer from the Midwest. For Tiny Elder, Warren Hale and Rod Pierce it was their first Class Reunion.

Dean Bob Vogel's address was most informative and timely.

Your Secretary apologizes for a lapse which left unread letters of appreciation from several recipients of our Memorial Scholarships.

Now let's begin to plan for our 75th.

The reunion number of The Bulletin delved so deeply into your lives that there is little current news to relate. However, Sam Berkman was signally honored in May by the alumni, trustees and faculty of Harriett College of Music, University of Hartford. Not only was the annual Alumni Concert dedicated to him for his 45 years of service to the college, but he was also the recipient of the Alumnus of the Year citation. In September he will assume a new role of dean emeritus in residence.

In May, Connecticut (Conn.) Training School dedicated a building to trustee Bob Morris.

Frank Johnson played the Trinity College carillon July 6. He was the second summer guest carillonneur. The concerts are held every Tuesday evening at 7:15 p.m. from June 29 through August 31.

Warren "Weary" Creemer retired June 30 after 44 years with the Connecticut State Highway Department. He was in charge of the super highway – the Merritt Parkway – which he still considers the most beautiful in the world. He also was in charge of some of the building of the Connecticut Turnpike.

Over the years he has held positions as highway designer, director of engineering and construction, principal technical highway engineer, and chief engineer (from 1951 to 1959). He retired as director of staff services for the department. He has won many honors and awards and is also the author of a book of poetry, A Roadmender's Rhymes, published some years ago.

We wish you, Weary, a long and happy retirement.

As usual, 1918 held its customary reunion with dinner at the University Club, Hartford, June 4. Those present were: Charlie and Flora Beal, Joe and Frances Buffington; Henry Beers; Ed Carlson and Mrs. Dorothy Gilmour; George Griffith; Woolsey and Mary Pollock; Syd and Louisa Pinney; Charlie Simmons; Mel and Fanchon Title; and Ham Barber '19.

In addition, Mel Shulthiess, Martin Robertson and Russ Hathaway attended the social hour at the Pinney's home in Wethersfield.

During the festivities from some point in western Ohio or eastern Indiana, Lippy Plaster phoned greetings. He was attending a reunion of AEF World War I Air Corps with Eddie Rickenbacker and others.

Your Secretary was sorry to miss our 45th reunion, but a trip to Europe prevented our being there. We hear a good time was had by those attending.

Dr. Nicholas Butler writes: "In 1957, I retired after practicing Radiology in Hartford for 30 years. I was on the staffs of St. Francis Hospital, Bristol Hospital and the Institute of Living.

"Since then, my wife and I have been doing some traveling. Incidentally, she received her M.A. from Trinity in 1935."

Olin Clark writes: "I retired from M-G-M pictures last June 1 (1965), after almost a quarter-century of service as Editorial Director. I now split my time between Bedford Village, N.Y., and my winter home in Pass Christian, Miss."

Glover Johnson informs us that in addition to literary interests and responsibilities he has taken on the job of president of the New York Protestant Episcopal Public School in New York, Nice going, Glover!

Sherman Parker lent a collection of books on angling to the Trinity College Library at a recent exhibition. One of them was a famous edition of Izaak Walton's The Compleat Angler printed in London in 1653.

Carroll Case was recently honored at a testimonial dinner by Hartford city employees on the occasion of his fortieth anniversary in the Engineering Department. He has been devoting his time recently to the Licenses and Inspections Department.

Mo Richman has changed his address to 30 Woodland St., Hartford, Conn. The Rev. Bob Plumb's article, "A Look at the Military Chaplaincy," appeared in the June 5 issue of the Living Church magazine.

A thousand thanks to our efficient reunion committee that put on a wonderful 40th, June 3 and 4. This same "team" has been unanimously reelected into office. They are: Reunion Chairman Ken Stuer; Class Committee members, Joe Hubbard and Dick Ford; Class Agent, Norm Pitcher; Class Treasurer, Harold Messer; and Class Secretary, Your Faithful Servant.

We are most grateful to Joe Hubbard for the fine pre-reunion letters they must have taken a tremendous time to prepare, but they were most welcome.

We all had a wonderful time. "Seven Trims" for the fine team of Bill and Dolly Walsh all the way from Mexico; Jimmy and Betty Burr from Grand Rapids, Mich.; Dave and Olga Loefler from Cleveland; Frank Pryor, all the way from San Diego; Marty Coletta and his new bride who flew from Florida for the occasion.

We were glad to have Professor Ray Osting and his wife, Betty, with us for the Class Dinner at the Hartford Golf Club, and we are delighted Ray is now an honorary member of 2T6.

Everyone agreed it was a most successful gathering and we look forward to 1971. May those who were unable to return last June be able to be with us then.

The Rev. Charlie Whiston, Professor of Theology at the Church Divinity School of the Pacific, conducted a retreat June 24-26 at Adirondack Bay, Bayfield, Mass. We missed you, Charlie, at our 40th. We were also sorry that Paul and Miriam Parsons were unable to come to Reunion, and we hope he makes a rapid recovery from his heart condition.

Your Secretary's fourth annual attempt at Class doggerel which appeared in the spring issue of Alumni Mag created a ripple which came ashore in Fullerton, Calif., resulting in a most interesting letter, with enclosures, from Mark Kertridge. The retired Navy captain received considerable пользу by donating his 1,000 book collection on fresh water angling to California State College at Fullerton. Mark reveals that summer plans include fishing expeditions to Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Utah, ending up in September in Oregon for steelhead. Happy landings, Mark, let us know how you make. With his assurance that he plans to be at Coll Trin Sane next June for our 40th, it should be hard for others living much nearer to find a plausible excuse for not being on hand to enjoy the 1977 festivities that Andy Forrester is planning.

Missed Commencement last June at Trin but had the pleasure of seeing my daughter get her BA degree cum laude in psychology in torrid Maine 94-degree weather.

All classmates should steel themselves for the receipt of letters from Chairman Andy relating to Reunion next June. You can depend on him to have things well in hand. Can he depend upon you?

Bob Gibson, Episcopal Bishop of Virginia, was chairman of a meeting at which delegates from eight major Protestant denominations, with 24,000,000 members, considered plans for a church merger. The planning is expected to take many years, this being the fifth annual meeting of the delegates. The Protestant Episcopal, two Presbyterian churches and the Methodist church are among those involved.

Congratulations to Fred Read who has been elected vice president of the Association of Life Insurance Counsel, a 53-year old organization of life insurance lawyers in the United States and Canada. Fred had previously served the association as secretary-treasurer, and as an Executive Committee member. He is general counsel of Home Life Insurance Co., 253 Broadway, New York, N.Y.

Hartford Steam Boiler and Inspection Co. has been celebrating its 100th anniversary recently. Its sixth President and our classmate, Lyman Brainerd, has been much in the news in this connection. We are told that he did a very professional job as uniformed conductor of an ancient train on a run from Hartford to Springfield, which was a featured part of the celebration.

The 35th Reunion has come and gone, leaving us with warm memories of old ties renewed. The highlight was the Saturday evening buffet at the Jacobson's in Manchester, after which inebriable treatment there was spirited reminiscing, harmonious and spontaneous singing, and fairly sedate story-telling. The goodnight handshaking was warm and sincere.

About twenty percent of our class (if we count seven wives as members!) came to our festivities. Among those gathering at HG Jarvis 14 or later at the buffet were Charlie and Dorothy Jacobson, Lew and Kay Griffin, Dent Hall, Tom...
Hughes (whose son is Trin ’68), George and Miriam Mackie, Harvey Mathiasen, Cliff and Arline Morse, Sheldon Roots (who flew in from Mackinac Island, Mich.), Jim and Dorothy Tobin, Paul and Ruth Twaddle, Bob and Marjorie Waterman and Herb Wilkinson.

Additions to the “grandfather” department: Lew Giffin now has three grandchildren; Harvey Dam is a prospective member (his daughter was married May 21st).

Ezra Diman, in addition to revealing he is a “grandfather,” sent a long letter of regrets at his reunion absence, explaining that he was going to be crossing the Pacific on a freighter, from Manila to San Francisco, on his way to a year’s study in England. Before he left Manila, Ezra reports, the water shortage was so severe that he was reduced to bathing in a bucket. After ten air crossings of the Pacific he looked forward to that “slow boat” from China (Hongkong).

Public and academic recognition division: Laurie Scaife, long the bishop of Western New York, was given the Distinguished Citizen’s Achievement Award by Canisius College on April 18; he was cited for his interest in fostering relations between the Anglican, Orthodox, Eastern and Old Catholic Churches. Also, at Kenyon College’s Commencement on May 30, Laurie was granted an honorary D.C.L. degree for his leadership in “civic education, church and ecumenical affairs.” He adds this honor to degrees granted him by King’s College in Halifax and the Russian Theological Seminary in Paris.

Charlie Jacobson has had a busy spring. In May he was awarded the “Mr. Success” citation by Hartford’s Radio Station WCCC for service to his profession; his being president of the Hartford County Medical Association may help to explain this. He has also been chairman of the 1966 Trinity College Reunion Committee, as we know, and chairman of the weekend’s seminar on “Man, Past and Present,” as well as 1931’s reunion leader. Our collective and individual gratitude go to him.

The Class of ’33 has been honored by Jack Cotter, who received an honorary L.L.D. from Trinity this June. Jack is also a senior member of the Board of Fellows.

Tom Cary’s son was graduated from Hobart this June. Jack Tracy, our busy Class Agent, is now residing with his family in a large farm house in Simsbury where Lois has enough room for their horses.

Bill McCurdy received a Master’s degree from Trinity this June, and at the same Commencement his son Chris was graduated with honors in economics.

’33 was also honored this June when Zeke Melrose was awarded an Alumni Medal.

On May 20 our Class tendered Bert and Mary Holland, president-elect of Hobart and William Smith Colleges, a most successful testimonial dinner at the Hartford Golf Club. Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. Haroutune M. Dadourian; Mrs. Thurman L. Hood; Professor and Mrs. Dan Jesse; Mrs. Vernon K. Krieble; Dr. and Mrs. Blanchard Means; Dr. Louis Naylor; Professor and Mrs. Ray Oosting; Professor and Mrs. Sterling Smith; Professor Odell Shepard and his son, Willard; and Professor and Mrs. Clarence Watters.

Dr. Shepard gave the main speech and likened Bert to an arrow being shot across the Hudson. In reply, Bert pointed out that he was too plump to be an arrow and also noted that it took him a long time to receive his Bachelor’s degree.

The Class presented Bert with a silver tray with 54 signatures engraved on it. All of ’34 wish Bert and Mary all the best as they take up their new duties at Hobart this July. We salute them for a job well done, and know that bright days lie ahead for Hobart.

Charlie and Ruth Tucker’s oldest daughter, Susan C., was married June 11 to Ronald E. Brackett ’64. The young couple will live at 929 Oliva St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

Congratulations to Chuck Kingston who has again completed all the requirements to be certified as a qualifying and life member of the 1966 Million Dollar Round Table.

With our 30th Reunion a thing of the past, we can pass along to others some of the information gleaned from it.

There were 25 at the class dinner at the City Club of Hartford, but only 15 alumni. It was nice to have the female complement and Dr. Louis Naylor was a delight to the group both in his short talk of old and new Trin and in his spirited and amusing style of leading, but it would have been nice to have seen some more alumni, especially those located in and around Hartford.

Mike Scenti, who is division engineer for the City of Hartford, manages to keep very busy with a variety of public service jobs. Mike has served for four years on the Wethersfield Zoning Board of Appeals and is currently president of the Hartford Chapter of Connecticut Credit Union League. However, with his three boys now growing up, Mike found it possible to relax from Little League duties this past spring.

Joe Greco’s oldest boy, Barry, was graduated from Trinity this past June. He also received his commission from the ROTC and will be joining the Air Force soon - a “chip off the old block.” Joe’s daughter, Susan, will be a junior at St.
Joseph College this fall.

Ray Patton’s daughter, Lyn, who will be a senior this fall at the Oxford School for Girls, had a most enjoyable trip to Spain this past spring.

Jim Brougel, who is lawsuit supervisor at the Hartford Insurance Group, reports almost a complete lack of political activity the past few years. Jim’s oldest daughter, Brenda, a teacher in Simsbury, is being married in August. A second daughter, Sheila, will enter her junior year at Vassar this fall, while another daughter, Andrea, will enter the Hartford College for Women as a freshman. Jim reports that his son, a freshman at Loomis, is studying certain elements of math equivalent to the theoretical math taken during the sophomore year at Trinity, those many years ago.

Bill Hulfs sons, Larry, received a Master’s degree in physics this past June

It is with regret that we learned of the death of Ernie Griswold on April 12 in the Hartford Hospital. He joined Pratt & Whitney shortly after graduation and was manager of engineering in the Cutting and Gage Division of that company. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Pi Gamma Mu. He was also a member of the American Society of Tool Engineers, the Society of Carbide Engineers and the Hartford Industrial Management Club.

Hofstra University announced the promotion of Joe Astman as Dean of Faculty of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Joe will be in charge of 18 academic departments within the college. Since graduation Joe has taught at Trinity and St. Joseph's Colleges and since 1948 has served on the Hofstra faculty. He is listed in Who's Who in America and the Directory of American Scholars.

Bard McNulty rounded out 25 years of service to Trinity College last May and was presented a Trinity chair by Dr. Albert C. Jacobs.

Jerry Piercey is director of research and development forVisirecord, Inc., Copiague, N.Y. He is living at Apt. 1-2M, 433 Lincoln Blvd., Happpauge, L.I., N.Y.

Charles Duncan Yetman has been named principal of the Hartford (Conn.) Public High School, effective August 1966. Duncan was promoted from his current position as vice-principal and di­rector of the Hartford High School Annex. The appointment comes to him after nineteen years of service in edu­cation, including three years as a teacher at Monson Academy (Mass.) and two years as a professor of English at Kutztown State College (Pa.). In addition to his degree from Trinity, Duncan holds an M.A. and Ph.D. from Yale University. His new position places him at the head of one of the largest high schools in the State of Connecticut.

Al Hopkins has been named a trustee of the Riverside Hospital, Boonton, N.J. His son, Paul, was graduated from Trinity at the June Commencement; his second son, Stephen, is a member of the Class of '69.

Professor Gus Andrian, co­chairman of the Department of Modern Languages at Trinity, will teach in the first session of the Summer Term at the College before leaving with his family on a motor trip across the country. His wife, Peggy, received her Master's degree at Trinity in the June Commencement.

Dr. Robert Cooper represented the College at the inauguration of President John D. Alexander May 3 at Southwestern University at Memphis, Tenn. The Episcopal Diocese of Vermont has named St. Paul's Church, Burlington, its cathedral church. The Rev. Robert Kerr, rector, has been designated as dean of the cathedral.

The 25th Reunion drew a large turnout. At one point or another in the proceedings, the following classmates made an appearance (most of them with their wives): Ken Adams, Dick Blasdel, Moe Borstein, Bob Broatch, Louis Buck, Jim Caffrey, Pete Callaghan, John Carpenter, Joe Clapis, John Clarke, Frank Claw, Ed Conway, Jack Crockett, Don Day, Roy Gilley, Gene Hungerford, Ed Hurwitz, Dick Insley, Alden Johnson, Frank Kelly, Ken Kelly, Ted Knurek, Doc Lane, Joe Lavieri, Tom Malley, Irwin Mancall, George Merwin, Frank Mulchay, Dick Nolf, Bill Oliver, Culley Roberts, Joe Russo, Bill Seedman, Phil Selh, Lew Sheen, the two Ed Smiths, Phil Smith, Jim Spencer, Ray Thomsen, Red Tyler, Don Walsh and Bill Wiley.

On Friday evening, before and long after the buffet supper at the Field House, there was a get-together at Jarvis 28. What with good liquor and good fellowship we enjoyed a very pleasant evening. In the mild June night the Long Walk, festively decorated with colored lights, didn't seem to have changed much over the years. Neither did the Class of '41. The next morning the Hartford Courant, in what could only be regarded as a gratuitous slur, mentioned "portly men in white skimmers saying: '1941.'" I don't know who they were talking about. As far as the rest of us could see the white skimmers were born by a youthful looking group of lads to whom maturity had only lent a touch of distinction.

On Saturday morning our class was undoubtedly outstanding in the alumni parade to the Field House, thanks to Ed Smith who drew on his collection of antique automobiles for the occasion. As the rest of the Class of '41, the Smith family the cars gleamed in the sun­shine and their engines purred like kittens as they made the trip to the Field House without a single flat tire. There's no doubt that Ralph Nader is right—they don't make automobiles the way they used to.

At the Saturday luncheon the class gained one award when Bill Oliver of Buenaventura Aires got the prize given to the alumnus coming the longest distance, and we shared some reflected glory when Vic Morgan, '99, an adopted son of 1941 for the week-end, was proclaimed the oldest alumnus present.

In the evening there was a cocktail party given by Irwin Mancall, whose generosity was appreciated by his grateful classmates. It was followed by a dinner dance in Hamlin Dining Hall. To say grace we engaged the professional services of Archdeacon Lew Sheen, the Class's ranking clergyman. The roast beef dinner which followed was excellent. Evidently the Hamlin cuisine has picked up considerably since our student days.
The music for the dancing which followed was provided by a really swinging combo which had been discovered by Don Day. Their efforts were supplemented on occasion by Dick Insley who displayed a good deal of talent as a vocalist and by a close harmony group composed of Dick Barnes, Gene Hungerford, Lew Sheen and Dick Blaisdel, reinforced at strategic intervals by Dick Insley, Bob Broatch, Ray Thomsen, Joe Clapis and Roy Gilley. In any comment on the dancing John Carpenter should be singled out for special mention. Carp arrived on crutches, due to some difficulty with an Achilles' tendon. But he was an inspiration to his classmates as he hopped through a dance on one leg.

All in all it was a fine weekend, and it seems too bad that we have to wait five years for another like it.

Phil Sehl, a former Mayor of Wethersfield, was presented the “Man of the Year” award of the Wethersfield Business Men’s and Civic Association at their annual on May 20.

Ken Adams is president of the Choral Club of Hartford which is now celebrating its 60th season. He invites all alumni who are interested in choral work and would like to join the Club to get in touch with him at his home at 205 Broad Street, Wethersfield. His telephone number is 520-2270.

Congratulations to Lou Buck who has been promoted to secretary in the casualty and surety division of Aetna Life & Casualty Co.

The Rev. Robert B. Hall, rector of St. Chrysostomos Church, Chicago, since 1958, was elected bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia, June 23. Elected on the fifth ballot the Rev. Mr. Hall was a surprise choice as he is not known within the state, and on his own admission knows only half a dozen rectors in that diocese.

Assuming he will receive the necessary consents from the other Episcopal bishops in the United States, the Rev. Mr. Hall will assist the present bishop, the Rt. Rev. Robert F. Gibson ’28, and will automatically succeed him.

The Rev. Mr. Hall prepared for Trinity at Shady Side Academy, Pittsburgh, Pa. At Trinity he majored in history and was a member of Pi Gamma Mu. He was elected president of the Seabury Society and the Political Science Club and also served in the College Senate. He is a member of Delta Phi fraternity.

After serving in the U.S. Army from 1943 to 1946, he enrolled at the Episcopal Theological School and received the B.D. in 1949. For the next nine years he was associated with Trinity Church, Huntington, W. Va., serving as assistant rector, associate rector and rector. In 1958 he was called to St. Chrysostom’s in Chicago as rector.

The Rev. Mr. Hall has been chairman of the Examining Chaplains Committee in West Virginia as well as a member of the Standing Committee and a Deputy to the 1955 General Convention of the Episcopal Church. He is a Fellow of the College of Preachers, Washington, D.C.; a Watson Fellow, Bexley Hall, Kenyon College; and a director of the Episcopal Charities Foundation in Chicago. Saturday evening, 56 met at the City Club for cocktails and dinner. Professor Jim Notopoulos was the guest of the classes and gave an interesting talk to the enjoyment of all.

The committee was pleased with the attendance of 29 alumni, and with some follow-up and class activity we hope to have a fine turnout for our 25th which has been tentatively set for 1971.

The following attended with their wives: Bill Blanchfield, Art Fay, Drew Milligan, Bud Moyer, Joe Rheinberger, Mel Smith, Bill Stack, Nick Marzialo. Those who attended stag were: Bob Hawkins, Ward Hart and Reed Schroeder.

Our Twentieth Reunion, jointly celebrated with the Classes of 1945 and 1947, was a huge success with lots of spirit generated throughout the weekend. Among those present from '46 were Cliff Botway, Paul Deutsch, John Ferrante, Dr. Bill Hart, Sig Kaufmann, Dick Kelly, Leo Rosen, Rev. Bill Studwell, Bill Weaver and Your Secretary, all except one accompanied by their better halves.

Fifty-six people attended our Class Dinner on Saturday evening at which Professor Jim Notopoulos was our honored guest and speaker. Nostalgia filled the room as he recalled some of the great faculty names of our undergraduate days. We were then given some insight into campus life today among the faculty and students. Dr. Jacobs provided a pleasant surprise when he dropped by to give greetings from the College.

A quick poll of those present indicated 100% support of future joint reunions with our friends from '45 and '47. Even the Class of '44 has expressed some interest in joining us when we next meet five years hence.

We learn of the marriage of Dr. Louis Feldman and his resultant change of address to 230 W. 108th St. in New York City. Louis continues as professor of classics at Yeshiva University and also as a prolific author and lecturer. He recently spoke in Miami Beach on "Hellenistic Alexandria and Contemporary American Jewry." Congratulations on all counts, Louis!

The combined Twentieth Reunion with the Classes of 1945, 1946 and 1947 was a success.

The total turnout of the loyal alumni of these three classes totaled 29 in all. This may not seem like an overwhelming number, but I can attest to the fact that this was far greater than we had previously experienced. We participated in the Friday night activities, the Saturday parade, the alumni luncheon and the class dinner.

Friday evening the new official reunion beret with a triangular patch containing the numerals for the three classes was displayed on time. They were well received and added a touch of unity to the proceedings.

Saturday night we were very fortunate to have Professor James Notopoulos as our guest speaker. He delivered a very entertaining and enjoyable talk.

The committee for the Reunion was ably headed by Chuck Hazen '46. Drew Milligan represented 1945 very enthusiastically and also obtained the facilities of the City Club for our dinner. Dick Kelly '46 manned the on-campus activity room and liquid refreshments for Friday evening. Leo Rosen '46 supplied us with colorful signs for the parade. Your Secretary supplied the money for the functions. When Professor Notopoulos heard of my duties he commented that there is an old Greek proverb, "When a hand is stuck into the honey jar, it is difficult not to have some of it stick when the hand is removed." With that in mind, I will have to have a fairly careful audit carried out.

Those attending the reunion activities from our class are as follows: John Daly, Robert Jennings, Paul Gates, Victor Polce, Paul Kingston, Melvin Rosen, Franklin Eisenberg, George Wicks, and William Thomesen.

All who attended the reunion had a wonderful time. Those who did not were dearly missed.

Republican leaders of the Hartford Probate District have endorsed Probate Judge James H. Kinsella, a Democrat, because of his efficient administration of his court since 1960. Congratulations.

Dr. Alfeo Marzi's new book "Bronx Crossing" has been published by the Branden Press, 36 Melrose St., Boston, Mass.

Trevor Lewis-Jones is now managing editor of Marine Engineering Log Magazine. He writes that he and his family are comfortably ensconced at 36 Hickory Drive, Maplewood, N.J. and he is just a "plain old" New York commuter.

Keron Horan is back in Connecticut and living at 19 Clover Hill Road, Trumbull. George Murray's current address is 14324 Roblar Place, Sherman Oaks, Calif. Leonard Harvey rabbis of the congregation in Wapping, Conn.

After several years on Spruce St. (Philadelphia), George Dessart has succumbed to New York. If you are passing through, his address is 305 East 86th Street.

Art Walmesley was the keynote speaker at the recent three-day conference of Hartford's Episcopal Metropolitan Mission. The conference sessions were held at Connecticut Plaza's spanking new Hotel America. A secretary of the Episcopal Church's Division of Christian Citizenship and has his office in the national headquarters building at 815 Second Avenue, New York.

Ernest Stires II is living at Bolton Landing, N.Y. Henry Foster, having departed Mexico, has pitched his tent amidst a number of loyal Trinity men in the lovely community of Garrison-on-Hudson.

Philip Threshie is now in Dublin, California, that is- and resides at 7720 San Sabana Court. Vern Burnett's address, since last fall, is 15 Lexington Drive, Manchester, Conn.

Trinity was represented at the inauguration of Wilbert E. Locklin as ninth president of Springfield College by Bradford Cogswell on April 30. Russell Pierce is now located at Meadow Run, River St., Norwell, Mass. Bruce Nicholson has a New York address 14324 Roblar Place, Sherman Oaks, Calif.

According to our most recent information, Orice Gracey is back in the New York area at Ft. Hamilton, Brooklyn. Ori is with the American Red Cross. He seems to have been all over the country in the last few years.

Leonard Greenberg, president of Coleco Industries, Inc., has been elected a director-at-large of the National Swimming Pool Institute. The institute is a trade association of more than 700 companies with headquarters in Washington.

William Glazier resigned as vicar of St. Paul's Church, Westbrook, and All Saint's, Ivoryton, in order to do graduate work. He is working for a doctorate at the Hartford Seminary Foundation.

Now a word from Your Secretary. As you can see, it's easy enough to keep up with address changes. If it was possible to think of a few more ways to say the same thing, I would include even more, the guys who simply move down the block or across town. Still, no matter how facile I might be at writing about addresses, it's pretty empty stuff. What the other fellows want to know is what you're doing. We'll soon be in the 25th reunion category. Let's hear something about the eighteen years already past. Send me the "stuff" and I'll see that it gets into our Class Notes.
We pass along the following poem entitled "Temerence" by John Fandel:

I traced in the stone a vein,
A river in the rain,
A forest in grain.

What I learned is much,
Most unorthodox and touch,
Or fancy, tracing such.

I might say in vain
The bean ring, the well clutch,
The joy of it, and pain.

Sam Goldstein has been elected a vice president of the Connecticut Association for Mental Health.

In early May '66 Brenton Harries was elected president of the Blue List Publishing Co., a subsidiary of the Standard and Poor's Corp., which publishes a list of new and unsold municipal bonds. At the same time, Brent was elected a member of S. & P.'s (Personnel) Management Committee, an important decision making group which concerns itself with salaries and titles for the 900 employees of the S. & P.'s organization. After seeing Brent in action at our 15th Reunion, none of us should be surprised at his promotion.

Major C. Dan Lohnes Jr. is serving as an intelligence officer with the Air Force in Northeast Thailand (town of Udorn) where he is training members of the Royal Thai Air Force. We wish him a safe tour of duty and a quick return to his family in Philadelphia.

Allan Zenowitz, Massachusetts Director of Civil Defense and Emergency Planning, recently completed a two-week inspection tour of "Emergency Measures and Civil Defense Organization" in the NATO Countries of Western Europe. Allan traveled under White House and Defense Department auspices.

Your Secretary presented a paper, "Use of the Computer in Financial Area - (of an Insurance Co.)," to the Life Office Management Association in Houston, Tex., in late May. Also, I visited the famed Astrodome and saw former Houston neighbors whom I had not seen since 1960.

Ben Torrey has been awarded membership in the President's Club of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. for the year 1966. This is his fourth year. Congratulations, Ben.

Bob Blum's son, Steve, was appointed an assistant to Mayor John Lindsay June 13. Bob is an assistant for His Honor and is in charge of the "little city halls" program.

Harry Knapp had a busy June. See the marriage column. He has moved to 21 Goodrich Road, Simsbury, Conn., with his bride and has taken the new title of Associate Director of Development at Trinity.

Jim Russell has received the degree of doctor of philosophy in history from the State University of Iowa June 10. Dr. Jim is chairman of the history department at Maumee Valley Country Day School, Maumee, Ohio.

J. Kneeland McNulty has been awarded the doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Miami June 12. He is with the Marine Lab at the University of Miami. Congratulations to our newest two doctors.

We hear that Steve Tudor received an M.F.A. from the University of Oregon in June and has accepted a teaching position in the English department at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., in September.

Congratulations to Jim Holland who has been named assistant secretary in the group division of Aetna Life & Casualty Co.

For those of you who missed our 10th Reunion, I will try to give a brief recap of quite a weekend. Some of the events I have forbidden to publish in this august manner. Many of us remained somewhat hazy after a long Friday night reunion party. In all seriousness, those of us who did return had a great weekend and only wish more of you had re­turned. On Friday night most of us went to the Field House for the clam­bake and then returned to Jarvis 39 to continue the evening’s activities. Some had such an excellent time that night that they were not seen for the remainder of the week­end. Those who survived scored another outstanding success by soundly defeating the “young punks” of the Class of 1961 in softball. The stars of the game, far too numerous to mention in this limited space, deserve the “deep appreciation” of all those who were physically unable to play—either through their duties as guards and samplers of the beer keg or those who could not make it back to Trinity. We should, however, mention our brilliant faculty as an instructor in 1961. He has such an excellent time that night that they were not seen for the remainder of the week­end. Those who survived scored another outstanding success by soundly defeating the “young punks” of the Class of 1961 in softball. The stars of the game, far too numerous to mention in this limited space, deserve the “deep appreciation” of all those who were physically unable to play—either through their duties as guards and samplers of the beer keg or those who could not make it back to Trinity. We should, however, mention our brilliant coach, Jerry Pauley, a left-handed third baseman named Ken Swanson, and some “Windy” batter who shut his eyes and was called out on a fly which was scored as a balk and three errors which won the game. Ron Warren will claim for the next five years that he is still the homerun king of the Class of 1956. For those of you who missed the Reunion, but can return for our 15th, I am sure that Ron’s memory of his exploits on Sat­urday night will have lost nothing. Saturday night we had 28 classmat­es and 25 wives at our dinner. We were also very pleased to have Mitch and Billie Pappas, Frank and Mary Marchese and Don and Joan Miller from the faculty present. Lar faculty present. Saturday night we were in unanimous agreement that our 10th Reunion had been a great time, and we only hope that more of you will make the effort to return for our 15th.

The following people attended reunion: Don McAllister — a dentist in Bristol Conn.; Dick Jette — assistant president and sales manager of Hyper Humus Co. in Newton, N.J.; Art Jarvis — was working as associate administrator of the Morris­ania Hospital in New York City and is now director of Medicare and Hospital Licensure for the State of Connecticut.

Bill Smith — Principal, management consulting firm, New York City; Don Abberg — Instrumentation, Pratt and Whitney, East Hartford; Aiden Knight — Teacher, Northwestern Regional High School; Joe Kelley — Research physicist, USAF, Bedford, Mass.; Roger Martin — Data processing coordinator, Aetna Life Insurance Co., Hartford; Bob Davis — Teachers College, Oklahoma City.

Galen Townley — Director of pur­chasing and services, Peoples National Bank, Jenkintown Pa.; Gordon Wood — Travelers insurance agent, Real Estate Developer, Sullivan, Ill; Bill Eastburn — Attorney, Bucks County, Pa.; Don Scott — USS Milliken Flotilla, New York City; Dave Kuryakin — Airlines and manufacturing of machine tools, Elmh­wood, Conn.

Leslie Chard has been appointed associate professor of English at the Univer­sity of Cincinnati. He received a Master’s degree from Trinity and a Ph.D. from Duke University. He was a part-time in­structor at Duke in 1957–58 and 1959–61 and he joined the Emory University faculty as an instructor in 1961. He became assistant professor in 1964. He has held a James N. Bishop and Duke—Woodrow Wilson Summer Fellow­ship. He belongs to many professional associations. He is married and has a son.

Dave Gims writes that he is now in the Air Force at Reynolds Army Hospital, Ft. Sill, Okla. Previously he had been prac­ticing internal medicine and cardio­logy in Long Beach, Calif. He is married and has two little girls. His Army commitment, he could not make Reunion but hopes to be back for our 15th.

Larry Smith attended Clark University where he received his M.A. (1938) and Ph.D. (1963). After serving in the AF, he is now in private practice in clinical psycholo­gy in San Antonio, Tex., working primarily with children. He is a consultant to the Pro­spectors Home and runs a clinic for students at Our Lady of the Lake College. In November, 1965, he was elected to the Texas Board of Psycholo­gical Examiners. After Larry’s stay in the AF, he was responsible for screen­ing and selection of the 1963 group of astronauts. David Scott was one of the first of that group to go into space. Larry is married and has six girls and one boy. (Can you top this?)
Still Running . . .

For an estimated 99.9% of the alumni, sprinting for the 7:28 is just about enough track workouts.

Not so for Robert G. Scharf '58, a construction cost accountant and resident of Chevy Chase, Md. Bob, a member of the Baltimore Olympic Club, is the ranking American marathon runner and jogs up to 170 miles a week to keep in trim. His trophy case is proof that the rigorous routine has had its rewards.

During the past year he . . . finished seventh in the National AAU six-mile event at San Diego . . . broke the National AAU 10,000-meter record . . . set a new National AAU record for a two-hour run on a 1/4-mile track, covering 22% miles, 191 yards and broke the 20-mile American mark by eight minutes . . . won the Cherry Tree Marathon in New York City, defeating eight-time U.S. Marathon Champion, John Kelley . . . and, in the same week (a record in itself), won the D.C. Marathon in Washington . . . finished eighth in the famed Boston Marathon . . . was second in the National AAU Marathon in Yonkers . . . and he is still running!

During his undergraduate days, Bob was captain of cross country, and, as a member of the track team, set new marks in both the one-mile and two-mile events his senior year.

Don Burr is rector of St. Andrew's Church, Belmont, Mass., and is a counselor with RESCUE, Inc. Don recently appeared on a TV program called "Contact" on which he counseled potential suicide cases.

Bill Reed is with Tmblyn & Brown, New York City fund raising firm. Merrill Callen writes he is with Ross Engineering Division of Midland-Ross Corporation, in Charlotte, N.C. He lives at 215 Wakefield Drive, Charlotte, and likes Carolina life but misses cruising the New England coast on his sloop which is up for sale.

"Skip" Lundborg received his M.B.A. from Tuck Business School at Dartmouth, June 12.

'57 Captain William N. Pierce Jr.
3150 W. Beauregard - Apt 19
San Angelo, Texas 76901

After nearly two months of living "out of a suitcase," Your Secretary and wife, Nancy, are comfortably settled in the West Texas city of San Angelo. The first weekend here we were greeted with more than 100 degrees! It is good to be back in America, after four years abroad, but many fond memories remain in Germany.

A letter from Lyndhurst, Ohio, reveals that Steve and Marilyn Bowen are kept busy by their seven children (9-8-7-6-5-4-3-1). Steve is in sales promotion manager for the Lubrizol Corporation, makers of chemical additives for fuels and lubricants, having recently been promoted from the position of employee communications manager.

This summer, Alex Kiselev is on an extended visit to Europe and Africa. He plans to spend four weeks in my old "stomping ground" of Frankfurt. Alex was graduated from Columbia University after spending several years with us at Trinity. He served six years with the U.S. Army where he attained the grade of captain. This fall Alex will return to the University of Pennsylvania where he is an instructor in Russian.

Captain Walt Crusberg is attending the Air University's Squadron Officer School at Maxwell AFB, Ala. Upon completion of the course he will return to Westover AFB, Mass., where is a B-52 navigator with SAC.

This fall Jack Daniels will begin duties as assistant professor of chemistry at Union College in Schenectady. This summer he is completing post-doctoral studies at the National Bureau of Standards in Washington.

Rob Winslow has been named assistant director of development at Trinity. His main work will be the preparation of proposals to government, foundations and individuals. Welcome back 'Neath the Elms, Rob.

Our congratulations to Captain Jim Studley on receiving the Distinguished Flying Cross. Jim was cited for an act of heroism at Da Nang Air Base on July 1, 1965. He managed a takeoff of his C-130 transport during a mortar and small arms attack, thereby saving his plane and crew. Jim is now stationed in Thailand for a year.

Frank Kury continues to keep active in politics. His latest venture was to run in the Democratic Primary of May as a candidate for representative in the Pennsylvania General Assembly. Frank's bid was in the 108th Legislative District which includes his native Sunbury. During the past few years, while practicing law in Sunbury, Frank has been active in a multitude of political and civic affairs, including work as legal counsel on state legislative matters. Frank, how did the primary come out??

Arky Vaughan continues to move about the country as a Captain in the Air Force. His latest move took him from New Hampshire to South Carolina and Charleston AFB. Some recent specialized training at Tinker AFB, Oklahoma, prepared Arky for his new job piloting the Air Force's latest model jet transport, the C-141 Starlifter.

And here is an interesting story about our distance runner, Bob Scharf, which appeared in the Washington Post but made it all the way to the New Yorker: "To keep in competitive trim, marathon runner Scharf runs up to 170 hours a week on the streets, in parks, on high school fields, anywhere and everywhere, morning, noon and night." Sounds like a mighty full week, Bob!

Frank Thorpe is now with the Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis as an assistant trust officer. He is on the lookout for Trin alumni in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin. Members of the Class of 58, where are you?
Ted Cass is on a leave of absence from Shaftesbury School and will be studying at the Middlebury Summer School. His fall he will go to Madrid to work for his Master's. The Rev. Rolfe Lawson will play July 27 on the Trinity College carillon, one of the visiting summer carillonneurs at the College.

Jim Law received the Bachelor of Divinity degree from the University of the South June 5. Harry Jackson has been named an underwriter, Group Pension Department, of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company. He joined the company after leaving Trin and in 1960 was promoted as a contract writer.

The Rev. Francis "Fritz" Creamer, left St. Paul's Church, West Hartford, June 30, where he was curate to take a similar position at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Ave. at 90th St., New York City this September 1st.

Curt Brown is on a leave of absence from the Middlebury Summer School, his fall he will go to Madrid to work for his Master's. The Rev. Rolfe Lawson will play July 27 on the Trinity College carillon, one of the visiting summer carillonneurs at the College.

Jim Law received the Bachelor of Divinity degree from the University of the South June 5. Harry Jackson has been named an underwriter, Group Pension Department, of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company. He joined the company after leaving Trin and in 1960 was promoted as a contract writer. Since October 1965 he has been an underwriting assistant.

The Rev. Rolfe Lawson and the Rev. Durstan "Dusty" McDonald attended the 17th annual Faculty Conference in Theology at Trinity June 16-22. Rolfe was organist and carillonneur for the conference. Dusty is Chaplain at the English Department at Valley Forge Military Academy.

The Rev. Francis "Fritz" Creamer, left St. Paul's Church, West Hartford, June 30, where he was curate to take a similar position at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Ave. at 90th St., New York City this September 1st.

Congratulations to George Wyckoff who received his B.S. degree from Trinity this June. He joined the firm of R. W. Pressprich & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange. Capt. Chuck Bozzuto is at Perrin AFB checking out his new job before he is to be transferred in September. He may be addressed at 804 South Travis St., Sherman, Tex. 75909.

Jon Widing has been ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church June 25 and will be in Philadelphia, Pa., with his new bride, the former Miss Carol Scharfe. Steve Kaechele is with Judge J. Edward Lumbard, U.S. Court of Appeals, Foley Square, N.Y.C., and lives at 257 West 86th St. He received his L.L.B. this spring from the State University of New York at Buffalo. His new job finds him undertaking legal research and aiding in the preparation of opinions of the court.

Lloyd McCall, Costley 219 Third N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20002

The 1960 Advisor Program is near completion. The diamond has been cut; alia jacta est. I received 100 cards from the Class, over one-third chose to participate—an outstanding show of hands. I would say it was organized in the proper form, so that I can drop it off at the College, enroute to a Boston wedding in late August. In any event, you should receive some young Trinmen over the summer if you are looking out for strays that would like to sing along, just send me a postcard with your name, your business and office addresses, type of career you chose.

The Boston wedding, supra, is that of George Black. Meanwhile, back in the Sunflower State, George Kroh's wedding took place May 28, weather permitting. In attendance: Tom Wyckoff, Al Caple, Chris Beebe, and George Graham '59. George writes that the honeymoon plans are to tour the south by bus.

The Business World: Richard Stockton is advertising: Benton & Bowles Inc., N.Y.C., present position is account executive—Beech Nut Life Savers, Inc. Peter Strasser is with Stein Hall & Co., Inc., in the sales field. Also in sales, this time in steel, is Tom Wyckoff of Wyckoff Steel Co. Hodell Anderson has accepted a position as a sales engineer with the Transition Electronics Corporation, Wakefield, Mass. Mal Barlow has been named a brand manager of Menley & James Laboratories, a division of Smith, Kline & French Co., Philadelphia. He will be responsible for brand management of Contac capsules and Contac Nasal Mist. Ray Greenelee has been promoted to accounting analyst in the Prudential Insurance Company of Newark, N.J., controller's division.

John Sargent is with Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co., Cleveland, Ohio. Murray Morse is involved with reinforced plastic and insulation sales to manufacturers in the Philadelphia branch of Owens-Corning. Carrington Clark has joined F. W. Dodge Co., a division of McGraw-Hill, Inc., as a salesman for Sweet's Industrial Catalog Services in Cleveland, Ohio. Mike Sienkiewicz has been named assistant contract manager for a region of Masland & Sons sales organization. Richard Anderson is now with West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company in the New York headquarters in the Traffic Department.

Come and get it: "Ted" Taylor is presently in business for himself, operating McDonald's Hamburger Drive-ins.

Roy Stephens is in restaurant management in Boston.

The Thinkers: Ying Young Yam is in the physics department of the University of Michigan. You recall Ying is our valedictorian; I remember several of us gave him a run for it; and then conceded at the end of Freshman Week. Michael Wade has received a Fulbright Hayes award and will be an exchange teacher this September at Kingswood School, Bath, Somerset, England. He has been on the faculty of Kingswood School, West Hartford, since 1961, teaching biology and music. Dick Schwiebert has joined the faculty of the Berkeley Preparatory School in Tampa, Fla., as chairman of the history department. Bruce H. Frank, Ph.D., has accepted a position as a senior physical chemist in the biochemistry-microbiology research division of Family Health and Company, an Indianapolis-based pharmaceutical firm.

Dick Hall is chairman of the French department at the Berkshire School, Sheffield, Mass. We might note that Dick is a graduate of the Middlebury French School, the Sorbonne, and spent one summer as a group leader in the Experiment in International Living in France. Pete Thomas will be teaching at Montclair Academy, Bloomfield Ave., Montclair, N. J., next September.

More and more nerve endings: Robert Kirk has taken a position at the G.E. Research and Development Center at Schenectady, New York, and was awarded a Ph.D. degree in June in chemistry from Yale University. He now works in G.E.'s super-pressure program which has already made diamonds and is now on to new and greater things. From the Southwest: Karl Koenig, as assistant professor at the University of New Mexico, is working this summer as a Field Assessment Officer for the Peace Corps. From the old town: Alan Goldhammer is finishing his Ph.D. in English at the University of Chicago.

Stewart Bentley '60
Park Avenue: Jim Tilzer has been involved in Pension Fund, Portfolio Management and is with Bankers Trust Company, 280 Park Ave. Fred Wagner, commercial banking, 349 Park Ave., with First National Bank.

The banks used to have all the money; no longer—Gordon Clarke is now a Class Chairman, and Del Shilkret, involved in Company, commercial banking, 349 Life and hopes soon to complete the requirements for actuarial fellow. Nell Coogan is a special assistant in the Underwriting Administration, Travelers Insurance Company. Ellis Lloyd is an insurance broker and consultant in the Public Ledger Building, Philadelphia, with Lukens, Savage & Washburn.

The Law: Michael Varbalow, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, is an attorney-at-law in Camden, N.J. Ed Seifert is with the law firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay. Boston lawyers: John Friedman and Ernest Haddad, John Wilcox, a graduate of Duke Law School, is in the trust department of the Colonial Bank and Trust Co. Watertown, Conn. David Golas is assistant United States attorney for Connecticut.

At Ease: Capt. Charles Bradley of the Air Force is presently attending the supply staff officer course on MacMillan Air Force Base, in logistics management at Maxwell AFB. Capt. Michael Canaday of the Marines is in the office of the Adjutant, Second Recruit Battalion, Parris Island. Carry on!

Radio and TV: James Tennant, the man with the radio and electronic complex in Elton Hall, freshman year, is a broadcast announcer-operator and station engineer with the station in Maine. Dave Rutherford is with the Voice of America as an Editor of "Dateline USA" which is broadcast worldwide daily. Sage Swanson works in the Videocorder Center in the Volunteer Program.

Roger Dickey is an accountant with Ernst & Ernst in New Haven, Conn. Bob Winter has edited a book of selected poems of his brother's, entitled The Bridge. Bill deColling represented the College at the inauguration of Dr. James E. Perdue as president of the State University of New York College at Oswego, N.Y., May 14.

We were pleased to hear that 1st Lt. Stewart W. Bentley of the 446th Strategic Missile Squadron has been selected as the most outstanding of all the new young men in North Dakota by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He will represent North Dakota in competition with the other branches of the local spring flood in Grand Forks, he contributed some 800 hours of his off-duty time. He has been in the Air Force for nearly three years and serves as a missile launch officer on a Minuteman II missile crew. Presently attending the University of North Dakota Graduate School, Stew holds a degree in political science from North Dakota State University, Washington, D.C.

The fifth reunion held over Commencement weekend was a great success. Approximately 40 members of the class put in an appearance at one or more of the events. Many thanks should be extended to Chairman George Lynch and his committee of Bob Bell, Bruce Coleman, Chris Gilson, Alex Guild, Spike Gummere and George Curran.

Saturday evening cocktails were served in the lounge of Jones Hall (New Dorm to most of us) which prompted one member to comment, "Well we finally found a use for this place." After dinner in Mather Hall (the Student Center), the results of the elections for Class Representative to the A.S. Council, Class Chairman and Class Secretary were announced. The results were: George Lynch—Alumni Council, Roger MacMillan—Class Chairman, and Del Shilkret—Class Secretary. The latter will manage Mather Hall 'Neath the Elms as of July.

The lounge of Jones Hall was active until the early hours of the morning. George Tattersfield told stories about the rug business; Tony Sanders told anyone who would listen how to play shortstop in softball; and Cliff Bernstein and Bill Scully just kept smiling.

The only disappointing news of the weekend was the softball game with the Class of 1956. Despite slick play in the field, the 1961 crew was defeated by 10-0. Chris Gilson, Tom Ramsey, Frank Gulotta, Gordon Ramsey, Joe Colen, et al could not stop a bottom of the ninth home run over Vinny Stempin's outstretched glove to break an 11-all tie. Jack Angel, Mac Weiner, Mike Kauff, Dale Peatman, Warren Simmons, Bob McCammon and Bill Sullivan led the cheering section.

Capt. Norman L. Tuomi, USAF, has entered the Air University's Squadron Officer School at Maxwell AFB. He has been at Travis AFB, Calif., as a navigator. A. W. West is teaching at Daniel Hand High School, Madison, Conn. His pupils are educably mentally retarded youths of high school age, and he finds his job an interesting and rewarding challenge. He is living with Frederick, Madison.

Neal Haynie is living at 2731 North Charles St., Baltimore, Md., and teaching English at Catonsville Senior High School. Robert Geib and the College were at the inauguration of Dr. Albert W. Brown as President of the State University College at Brockport, N.Y., May 19. Bob is with the department of physics and astronomy at the University of Rochester, N.Y.

The April 22nd issue of the Hartford Times ran an interesting article on Tom Boyd, Trin's frosh crew coach and an officer in the branch office of Hartford National Bank in East Hartford. Tom is living at 71 Ridge St., Glastonbury, Conn., and is out of Hartford politics.

Bill Byrne has been awarded a Master of Science degree in Engineering from the University of Alabama. LaRocca has joined the Hartford law firm of Less & Fink at 266 Pearl St. Boris Luts has left Heublein, Inc., and has joined the International Division of the American Brake Shoe Co.

1st Lt. Jim Maryak was awarded the Air Medal at Forbes AFB, Kansas, last spring for meritorious achievement. He demonstrated outstanding airmanship and courage while flying a B-47 Stratotet under extremely hazardous conditions.

Jim McAllister has been detached from the Navy after seeing duty in Viet Nam. He is attending Columbia Business School and living at 99 Prospect St., Apt-5D, Stamford, Conn. 06902.

Your Secretary has been promoted to an assistant treasurer and manager of the New City Bank of New York. Pete Meehan received his M.B.A. from Amos Tuck Business School at Dartmouth and is completing his M.B.A. College. He lives at 155 East 55th Street, New York, N.Y. 10028.

Bob Mason has received his M.D. from Western Reserve Medical School.

We note in the May issue of Squash Magazine that Don Mills reached the semi-finals of the Merion Cricket Club Invitation Squash Tournament. Don is with Pogue & Co., Cincinnati, and living at 8055 Buckingham Road, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Roger Nelson was ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church by Bishop Stokes of Massachusetts, June 25. He is at St. Thomas Church, 111 High St., Taunton, Mass. John Norman is with the Hartford Insurance Company Group. He has been with travelers. John lives at 12 Rockville St., Hartford.

Ken Pedini was graduated from the Boston University School of Medicine in May and will intern at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Boston. George Gammates he saw Bruce Thayer this spring. Bruce is finishing up at Tufts Medical School.

Bruce Robinson will be teaching at the Gannery School, Washington, Conn., next fall. He has been at Fay School, Southboro, Mass., and last year did graduate work in the Oriental Studies Department at the University of Pennsylvania.

Jeff Shelly is with F. I. duPont & Co., instrument engineers, in Hartford. Phil Stickwell has joined the Armstrong Cork Company. Jim Sweeney is completing his thesis in Papal-Hungarian relations in the 12th century and will be assistant professor of history at the University of Maryland this September. Dick Werner is living at 23 Church St., Pine Meadow, Conn. 06061.

Jim Whitters is going to Boston College Law School this fall. William Wiseman was graduated from Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Center, Mass., last May. He is serving as pastor of the First Baptist Church of North Oxford, Mass.

Cummings Zulli escorted West Hartford's pretty Mary Shimkus during her week-long reign as Queen of the Floral Pageant week in Bermuda May 1-7.
This season's crop of new graduates includes Hunter Marvel who received his M.B.A. from Columbia and has taken an esoteric position in the market research group at Fortune here in New York. Pete Densen and his Harvard M.B.A. are also here in New York where they have joined the management consulting staff of Lybrand, Ross Brothers and Montgomery. He reports that his area of responsibility will be financial and that he will be on the road some six-man mergers and acquisitions group.

Don Hersey, who has been teaching at Wethersfield High School at the same time that he has been working toward a Master's degree in education at the University of Hartford, has finally qualified for the latter degree and has celebrated by buying a house in South Windsor. He and Marge will be living just outside of Cleveland. Congratulations, Dan! As one who seriously considered the petroleum, I can vouch for the added scope and opportunity embarked in this new job.

Ted Scull is leaving Holland American Lines to study African Affairs at Columbia University. Mike Leinback has thrown in the paper towel at International Paper and will join our increasing numbers on the West Coast where he will work for his M.B.A. at Stanford. Charlie Dietrich, while still keeping his position on the faculty at the Westminster School, is enrolling at Wesleyan in a new multi-summer program leading to a Masters of Arts and Liberal Studies. It all sounds a bit lofty to the holder of a mundane M.B.A. Two additional members of our class who have been in preparatory education have made moves this year: Dudley Clark has moved to the Garland School in Chester, N.J., and Howie Emsley has joined the faculty at the Marvelwood School in Cornwall, Conn. Dick Brittain has received his Master of Arts degree from Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

Even with those of us permanently employed there has been an element of movement. Bill Niles, who is with Ted Bates, has been transferred to the media group which handles the Colgate account. Gary Kaisely reports that after a culturally centerd period of nine months in Cleveland he is being transferred back to New York where he will be in advertising sales at Time International. Bob Ebersold is a district agent for Etna in Hartford although he is still living in Hartford. Tom Halloran is a purchasing officer for the Hartford Board of Education and is living with other unnamed Trinity alumni in what has been described as a wild bachelor household in Hartford. A somewhat more traditional home is in Windsor Locks where Pete Landerman lives with his wife and two children. It should be a model household since Pete is professionally employed as a marriage counselor with the Family Service Society in Hartford.

In the banking fraternity, progress is being posted by Ted Raff who is to be appointed assistant manager of the Westminster National Bank on August first. Here at F.N.C.B. Dick Field has transferred from the national division to the metropolitan division. I imagine that the incongruity of a new bride and the heavy travel required in the national division had something to do with the change. Your Secretary has made a somewhat parallel move and I am now permanently attached to First National City Overseas Investment Corporation, a wholly-owned and largely subservient Edge Act subsidiary of F.N.C.B. The inference is that we will now be semi-permanent residents of New York.

In case any of you have reached the stage of substantial balances and are seeking to "put them to work," Al Holland, with Frances I. du Pont, and Pete Lindberg, with Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis, are both registered reps and are fully equipped to separate you from your money. On the topic of that all too familiar separation, Bob Knox has now diversified and is prepared to get you coming or going. As of the first of the month, he will be supplementing his income as a fund raiser for the American Cancer Society in Manhattan by taking over an old bar called Barrymore's at York and 76th. The plans are to degift it a bit and rename it the Sand Box. Drop in.

Kim Waterhouse writes of the joys of survival training at Fairchild AFB in Washington. By August he will be using his navigation skills to fly the Y-12 at Fairchild AFB in Japan. He is being assigned to a reconnaissance group so classified that he does not even know what they do. Hope you like Shaanah's correspondence. The Gary Powers lesson. On the topic of classified, John Wardlaw has received a promotion but due to his position with OSI his new rank is classified.

Just to prove that there can be glamour even in Amarillo, Texas, First Lieutenant Tom Smith has taken on a bride. He is lucky on another count: his assignment, which is in the rehabilitation of Air Force personnel who have court martialed, allows him to utilize a part of the training he received while earning his Master's degree in psychology at Tufts.

Bob "Thunderball" Bond has recently returned from Spain where his aquatic skills were used in the recovery of the lost NATO H-2. He is a Lt. jg, explosive ordnance disposal diver, and is stationed at Charleston, S.C.

In closing, let me make my usual plea for a little feedback from you members of the Class of 1966. It is to our advantage to yield a crop if one must continue cultivating the same fields.

'64 Thomas Monahan 2444 Farnsworth Apt. 11-M New York, N.Y. 10003

Tom Cone will be returning to the U.S.A. this summer after two years in the Peace Corps Volunteers in Africa and will commence teaching (biology) at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. in September. John Gordon has been working with U.S. Steel in Pittsburgh since July, 1965, in their traffic and transportation department; his address is 5848 Aylesboro Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15217. Mike Boyle, recently married to Karen Lombardi, is attending Georgetown Law School while posing as a security guard at the Capital Building in the evening.

Bruce referring to Columbia Medical School. Paul Kadle, also working with U.S. Steel but in Dallas, plans to be married in Louisville, Ky., in July. Bob Leonard is working with Minnesota Mining Manufacturing Company in Ridgefield, N.J. Larry Des Champs, Coast Guard officer, is stationed in Washington, D.C. One of our other classmates, Bob Roche (AXP - cook) attended a dance show at the Teaneck Armory with Joe Martire.

Fred Herdeen is reported to have just joined with S.M.C. Corporation. Ed Silansky received his M.B.A. from Wharton and will be going to work with the Morgan Stanley Company. Ted Petkus has made his name in advertising and is now associated with Papert, Koenig & Lois, Inc., N.Y.C. and working on the Xerox account. Juri Randmaa, first lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force, is a member of SAC. Larry Silver has been assigned to an Air Force unit as a F-4C Phantom II pilot.

Chris Molina has been selected by Columbia University to receive the Roche Award for 1966 as the outstanding second year medical student at the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Additionally, he has received a fellowship from the Joseph Collins Foundation. John Ogden, for the second straight year, has received a fellowship to work at the Hartford Hospital chemistry lab; John is at Yale Medical. Dave Collins' new address is Blg. M, Apt. 3, Stratford Apt. Shipley and Nagaman's Rd., Wilmington, Del. 19803. He will be with du Pont.

Mike Costello was recently appointed director of news bureau at Trinity. Mal has had considerable experience in the past two years, both as a news reporter and a management consultant.

Bruce Frier, studying for an advanced degree in classics at Princeton University, was among 16 winners of Rome Prize Fellowships in the American Academy in Rome. Bruce will spend this year in Rome continuing a study of Livy's Periochae.

Jon Haring, working with Internationale Harvester, is the proud father of an 8-lb. baby daughter. Dick Stowell is working with Booz, Allen & Hamilton in New York City. Reliable sources indicate that Charlie Todd is teaching fifth grade at the Jack Benny School. He is also anticipating coaching soccer in the fall and playing the Trinity freshmen.

While Sterling Miller has not been heard from, it is assumed he is teaching school in Long Island. Tom McMune spent his long awaited four-week vacation in Peoria, Ill.

Ron Spencer, studying at Columbia in history, expects to receive his doctorate in a few years. George Kellner will be working in Washington, D.C., for the summer and can be reached at 3219 Cherry Hill Road. Allan Anderson, recently returned from Switzerland, will spend the summer in Boston and then go back for another year of teaching abroad.

Bill Burnham will be employed again this summer with General Foods before he begins his four-year Air Force program.

Charlie Klotz, married on June 25, will work for a bank in Providence during the fall and playing the Trinity freshmen.

Roy Gay, at Yale Med School from September through June, will spend this summer as a "repeat ... RESEARCH FELLOW" at the Hartford Hospital. We congratulate him heartily.

Peter Knapp will enter the graduate program in history at the University of Rochester this fall with $2,000 credit on his first bill.

Vince Lombardo is now working with the Travelers Insurance Company at their Data Processing Center.

Riess Potterfield has decided to forego another action-filled year at Yale Divinity School and heed the "call" to the fertile hinterland of Newfoundland where he will be a teacher in a fishing village. We wish him well ... and his sanity.

Ronald Carlson, enrolled in the Hospital Administration Program at the University of Chicago, will spend this summer on the administrative staff at St. Thomas Hospital in London, England. He has received a Public Health Fellowship for next year at the University of Chicago.

The Alumni of QED presented eucharistic vestments and veils for the crosses to the Chapel in memory of Robert C. Crays at the Vesper service on Passion Sunday. I am sure that each one of you itch to see the town, a free tour can be arranged from 441 Midland Avenue. Reliable sources indicate that "enjoy," "lives," "expected," "a most pleasant occasion." Among those assembling included the Martires will be working in Washington, D.C., for the summer as a "repeat ... RESEARCH FELLOW" at the Hartford Hospital. We congratulate him heartily.

NECROLOGY

MOSES JAMES BRINES, 1900

Moses J. Brines, retired professor of psychology and public speaking at Rutgers University from 1933 to 1958, died April 1 in Coral Gables, Fla. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Judith Evans; a daughter, Mrs. Judith B. Wallboume; two sons, Dr. John K. and William S. Born August 23, 1877, in Westerly, R.I., a son of the late John Brines and Mary Kinkade, he prepared for college at Westerly High School. At Trinity he was a member of the Glee Club, the College quartet and Jesters for four years, being the leader of the former. As a freshman he was elected class president and as a junior to Medusa. His fraternity was the Phi Psi Chapter of Alpha Chi Rho.

For many years Mr. Brines was a professional singer. Before going to Rutgers University where he played an active role in starting the Graduate School of Banking, he was industrial secretary of the Massachusetts and Rhode Island YMCA's and director of the Whittinsville, Mass., Community Center. In 1934 he received the degree of Master of Arts from New York University.

After his retirement from Rutgers, Mr. Brines spent his summers in West Harwich, Mass., Cape Cod and has wintered at Coral Gables. He was devoted to his Alma Mater and many alumni will recall his faithful attendance at reunions and his joy in leading the singing of college songs. — J.A.M.

THOMAS BERNARD MYERS, 1908

Thomas B. Myers, loyal alumnus and chairman of the board of the First National Bank and Trust Co., Racine, Wis., died in that city March 24. He was buried at Canton, Conn., where he was born July 25, 1885, a son of Thomas Francis Myers and Ann Holloway. His brother, Edward J. Myers, was Class of 1914.

Preparing for college at Collinsville High School, he entered Trinity in 1903 with the Class of 1907 but affiliated with 1908. He played on the baseball team and was a member of the 1907 Ivy board.

After his graduation he worked for the Travelers Insurance Co. and the National Cash Register Co. In 1917 he joined Scovill Manufacturing Co., Waterbury, Conn., and went to Racine, Wis., in 1923 when Scovill acquired a controlling interest in the Hamilton Beach Co. In 1934 he was named a vice president and in 1948 a director of the parent company. When he was elected a general vice president of Scovill in 1954, he dropped his duties as Hamilton Beach general manager.

Elected president of the First National Bank and Trust Co. in 1933, he was three years later named chairman of the board. He was active in many philanthropic causes in Racine, including St. Mary's and St. Luke's hospitals and the Racine Community Chest.

Later years he set up a scholarship fund for Racine students to come to Trinity. In June 1960 Trinity awarded him an alumni medal of honor.

ARTHUR FRANK PEASLEE, 1913

Arthur F. Peaslee, president of A. F. Peaslee, Inc., Construction Co., died May 4 at his home in West Hartford. He leaves two sons, David and Stephen; a daughter, Mrs. David D. Frank; and twelve grandchildren. His wife, the former Miss Anita Ouigley Clark of Hartford, died some years ago.

Born March 9, 1893, in Plaistow, N.H., a son of the late Frank David Peaslee and Alice Marble Clark, he prepared for college at Hartford Public High School and entered Trinity in 1909 with the Class of 1913, but only remained in residence for two years. He was a member of the Phi Psi Chapter of Alpha Chi Rho.

Transferring to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he was graduated from there in 1914 and was elected to the Senior Honorary Society, Osiris. During World War I he was a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy.

He founded his construction company in 1923 and this firm constructed buildings at the University of Hartford; the Institute of Living; Connecticut College for Women and the American School for the Deaf. At Trinity he was contractor of Cook Dormitory and Hamlin Dining Hall (1931); the Clement Chemistry Building (1936); Goodwin and Woodward Dormitories; Ogilby Hall (1941); and the Memorial Field House (1948).

His firm also did work at the Wadsworth Athenaeum; the State Library; the Litchfield Hospital in Windham; and for several private schools in Connecticut. — K.B.C.

ETHELBERT TALBOT SMITH, 1913

E. Talbot Smith, retired career American Foreign Service Officer, died suddenly in Findon, Sussex, England, April 6. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Norah May Mitchell; and a daughter, Mrs. Jeree Lee Tompkins. His first wife, the former Miss Mabel Poulson, died Feb. 21, 1944. Richard F. Hanley, Class of 1941, and Dr. E. Hartley Smith, Class of 1954, are his nephews.

Born July 21, 1892, in Goshen, N.Y., a son of the late Dr. Edward Franklin Smith and Mildred Knorr, he prepared for College at Trinity Chapel High School, New York City, and entered Trinity in 1909 with the Class of 1913. As an undergraduate he was a member of the 1913 Ivy board, the Junior Prom Committee and the Glee Club. He was a Lemuil J. Curtis Scholar and won the first Alumni English Prize as a junior. As a senior he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. His fraternity was the Phi Psi Chapter of Alpha Chi Rho.

After graduating from Columbia Law School in 1918, he joined the New York law firm of Merrill, Rogers and Terry and left for two years service with the U.S. Army Ambulance Corps and was stationed in Italy. He was twice decorated with the Italian War Cross.

Bert worked for Travelers Insurance Company's legal department from 1920 to 1921 and then took Foreign Service examination and was appointed vice consul at Tientsin, China. He served in Germany, Norway, Italy, Scotland, Africa and Sweden before retiring in 1951 with the rank of consul general.

Bert was always of Bert and loved big game hunting, mountaineering—he climbed Mount Kilimanjaro which is 19,600 feet at the age of 48 — golf, tennis and skiing. He was an avid gardener and expert bridge player. He will be missed by 1913 and his many friends. — K.B.C.

ARTHUR FORD GEDDELOW, 1914

Dr. Arthur F. G. Edgelow, well-known obstetrician and chief of staff of the Wesson Maternity Hospital, Springfield, Mass., 1937 to 1954, died at his home in that city March 31. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Cybel Katherine Schuyler Lighthall of Montreal; and four daughters, Mrs. Halsey DeW. Howe, Mrs. Morris Levy, Mrs. John W. Ghoarey and Mrs. Gordon Hale.

Born October 19, 1891, in London, England, a son of the late Rev. Octavius Edgelow and Caroline Henrietta Bovell Hallowell, he prepared for Trinity at Racine College, Racine, Wis. At Trinity he played class baseball, was a member of the Junior Prom Committee and the 1914 Minstrels. His fraternity was IKA.

After receiving his degree in 1914, he enrolled at the Harvard Medical School and was graduated in 1918. This was followed by a year's service with the Canadian Army Medical Corps from which he was discharged with the rank of Lieutenant.

Dr. Edgelow interned at the Massachusetts General Hospital and the Boston Lying-In Hospital and then began his practice of obstetrics in Springfield, Mass., in 1922. Besides serving the Wesson Maternity Hospital, he was a staff member of Springfield Hospital and consulting obstetrician at Westover Air Force Base Hospital, Wing Memorial Hospital, Palmer, Mass., and the Mary Lane Hospital, Ware, Mass. A fellow of the American College of Surgeons and the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology, he was a past president of the Hampden District Medical Society and the New England Obstetrical and Gynecological Society. He had also been a member, since its inception, of the Massachusetts Committee on Maternal Mortality. Dr. Edgelow had been chairman of the Board of Trustees of the MacDuffie School for Girls in Springfield.

For many years Dr. Edgelow had been a chapter member of Christ Church Cathedral Episcopal and his funeral, held there, was attended by many of his friends and associates. — R.E.C.
Dr. John B. Barnwell, retired director of the tuberculosis service of the Veterans Administration, died May 4 in Philadelphia, Pa. He leaves two brothers, Frank L., Class of 1917, and Robert; two sisters, Mrs. Thomas C. Brown and Mrs. Fred Hardee. Mrs. Brown's husband, Thomas C. Brown, Class of 1915, Stephen E. Barnwell, Class of 1872, was his uncle.

Born March 15, 1895, in Selma, Ala., the youngest son of the late Rt. Rev. Robert W. Barnwell and Anna C. Brown, he was educated in local public schools and at DeVeaux School, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and entered Trinity in 1913 as a member of Class of 1917. As an undergraduate he served on the Tripod's staff; was manager of the track team in 1916; Junior Smoker Committee; and president of the Class of 1917 in his senior year. His fraternity was the Epsilon Chapter of Delta Psi.

During World War I he served in Troop B of the Connecticut National Guard as well as with the regular Army in France, being discharged a Captain in the 13th Field Artillery, 4th Division, A.E.F.

At the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, to which he was admitted in 1923, he received the Mary Ellis Bell Prize for outstanding undergraduate medical research. While an intern at the University Hospital he contracted tuberculosis and went to the Trudeau Sanatorium at Saranac Lake, N.Y. for treatment.

For 18 years Dr. Barnwell was associate professor of medicine at the University of Michigan Medical School and had charge of the tuberculosis center there at which many leading tuberculosis specialists were trained. In 1946, while Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Hon. 1949, reorganized the Veterans Administration, Dr. Barnwell was placed in charge of all VA tuberculosis hospitals, which then had some 9,000 patients. Under his leadership, research in many new drugs—notable among them streptomycin—was carried out.

In 1950 he was awarded the Trudeau Medal for distinguished achievement in the fight against tuberculosis. Three years later Trinity College awarded him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science, distinction.

Dr. Barnwell left the tuberculosis unit in 1956 to become an assistant chief medical examiner of the Veterans Administration in charge of research and education. Retired in 1960, and that year he received Trinity's Eigenbrot Trophy.

Modest, brilliant and practical, Dr. Barnwell never had a harsh word for anyone. He dedicated his life to the service of humanity, saying "My duties, first, last and always are to my patient..." His medical training, however, is not limited to this patient today, but to this patient's children and his children's children, even those yet unborn.

President Jacob, a long-time friend of Dr. Barnwell, said, "He was one of Trinity's most beloved and outstanding sons. In his charming, but quiet and self-effacing way, an unquestioned leader in his profession's field, he added greatly to the stature of his alma mater. For many years an intimate and a highly cherished friend, his loss will be felt by countless friends and associates. His name will live long in the College which he and his family over the years have done so much."

Dr. Jacob B. Sigal, retired attending surgeon at Hartford's Mt. Sinai Hospital, died May 9 in New London, Conn. He leaves his wife, Miss Nancy Sigal; two sons, Robert E. and Richard L.; and a daughter, Miss Sally-Ann.

Born February 17, 1897, in Hartford, Conn., Dr. Sigal attended late Trinity College and Flora Bebek, he prepared for college at Hartford Public High School. After attending Yale University for a year he entered Tufts College in 1916 as a sophomore with the Class of 1919. Upon graduation he enrolled at the Yale Medical School and after receiving his degree in 1923 interned at the Francis Hospital, Hartford. He also did some research in his field of urology in Zurich, Switzerland and Vienna, Austria.

Dr. Sigal retired in 1964. He was an accomplished violinist and a member of the Hartford County and American Medical Associations. During World War II he served in the Army's medical corps.

Gustav Peter Nordstrom, 1929

Gustav P. Nordstrom, well known Hartford attorney, died June 25 in Hartford Hospital. He leaves a sister, Miss Ruth M. K. Nordstrom of Hartford.

Born January 2, 1916, in Hartford, Conn., a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Frederick Nordstrom, he prepared for college at Hartford High School and enrolled at Upsala College for one year before transferring to Trinity in 1926 as a sophomore with the Class of 1929. He played junior varsity football, varsity football and was on the business board of the 1929 Ivy.

From 1951 to 1954 he was clerk of the Hartford Police Court. He was a member of the American, Connecticut and Hartford County bar associations. For some years he was a trustee of the Hartford Emanuel Lutheran Church.

Ever since his graduation from the University of Connecticut Law School in 1941 Gus has been a loyal Trinity supporter in many different ways. He was a member of the Century Club and a regular attendee at every football game. His delightful sense of humor and wit enlivened every Trinity occasion and made the Class of 1929 reunion get-togethers a bright and happy event. The class has lost a "fun" guy who lived life thoroughly and loved it. —E.A.H.

Morris Elder Vogel, 1931

Morris E. Vogel, prominent lawyer in Brooklyn, N.Y., died suddenly in that city April 28. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Dena Block, and two daughters, Sharon and Geraldine.

Born in Austria December 16, 1907, a son of the late Benjamin and Gusta Fried Vogel, he came to this country in 1922 and prepared for college at the Hartford Public High School. At Trinity he was a member of the French and Political Science Clubs; played junior varsity basketball; and held the Goodwin-Hoadley Fellowship. After graduating in 1931, he enrolled at the Columbia Law School and received his degree there in 1934. He practiced in New York City, specializing in immigration matters.

Morris was a past president of the Pan American Benevolent Society and a member of the Immigration Lawyers Association. He served twice as president of the Marine Park Lodge and at his death was vice president of the Metropolitan Council, B'nai B'rith. Active in many Jewish fund raising causes, he was elected in 1964 to the Brooklyn B'nai B'rith Hall of Fame.

During World War II he served with the Department of Justice from 1942 to 1946. From 1958 to 1961 he served as Class Agent for 1931. He will be missed by many friends and classmates. —R.P.W.

Ernest Sherman Griswold, 1938

He leaves his wife, the former Miss Alice Irene Bailey, and two sons, Ernest Griswold and Agnes Bennett Griswold, and prepared for college at Weaver High School. At Trinity he was elected Phi Beta Kappa and Pi Gamma Mu as a junior.

He joined Pratt & Whitney shortly after his graduation and was a member of the American Society of Tool Engineers, the Society of Carbide Engineers and the Hartford Industrial Management Club.

Clarke Williams Cady, 1947

Clarke W. Cady died suddenly at his home in Waterbury, Conn. June 3. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Martha Clarke Cady, and a brother, F. Wesley Cady.

Born May 5, 1922, in Waterbury, a son of the late Floyd E. Cady, he prepared for college at Crosby High School in that city and entered Trinity in the fall of 1944. He was a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. "Bud" taught school for several years at the public school in Moodus, Conn. He was active in Masonic circles in East Haddam, Waterbury and Bridgeport. He was a life member of the National Rifle Association and Seeing Eye, Inc., of Morris, N.J. —P.J.K.

Howard Charles Petersen, Jr., 1965

Howard C. Petersen Jr. died April 28 in Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, Mass., after a long illness. He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Petersen, of Radnor, Pa., and a sister, Mrs. Herbert J. Spiro of Philadelphia.

Born September 19, 1943, in New York City, he prepared for college at Haverford School where he was a member of the football and swimming teams. He also served on the boards of the school's paper and yearbook.

Entering Trinity in 1961 with the Class of 1965, he worked on the Ivy staff for two years, WRTC-FM; and the Jesters. His fraternity was the Epsilon Chapter of Delta Psi. —D.J.B.

—From the Introduction: As the 1966 Trinity Lecturer-in-Residence, Dr. Doxiadis stimulated the thought processes of all of us. No one who heard him relate his doctrine of Ekistics to the urban problems existing in the world today will ever again view the city and its complexities of growth with complacency, or without the knowledge that proper planning can help solve the problems, or that the happiness of man is not truly the ultimate goal of all such planning. . . .
