Pappas Death Stuns Campus

Funeral services were held December 13 in the Trinity College Chapel for Mitchell N. Pappas, associate professor of fine arts, who died unexpectedly on December 10. Mr. Pappas, a member of the Trinity faculty since 1947, was 53.

Mr. Pappas, a prize-winning artist and former director of the College’s Austin Arts Center, was well known throughout the College community and Greater Hartford.

The College has established a memorial scholarship in the arts, in his name.

Born and educated in Hartford, Mr. Pappas was a graduate of Yale University, where he earned both bachelor and master of fine arts degrees. He joined Trinity as a part-time instructor in 1947, was appointed to a full-time position two years later, named assistant professor in 1952 and associate professor in 1959.

From September of 1969 until the summer of 1970, he was director of the Austin Arts Center and was responsible for coordinating a wide range of activities in the visual and performing arts including stage performances, concerts, gallery exhibits and lectures.

Mr. Pappas, who specialized in portraits and watercolors, had his works displayed in group exhibits in several major cities, including some successful one-man shows in Boston and Hartford.

His awards included the Yale Gallery Portrait Award, the Rockport Art Association Watercolor Prize and the National Restaurant Institute Award for his murals in the former Sagan’s Restaurant in Hartford.

Mr. Pappas, who was then 12, with a portrait of his daughter Michelle, who died unexpectedly on November 10. Pappas, 53, had been a member of the Trinity faculty since 1947.

As a member of the Athletic Advisory Committee representing the alumni, I am anxiously soliciting your reaction and opinion on this important question. All alternatives will be considered: (1) dropping all or portions of intercollegiate athletics, (2) decreasing by half the reducing the coaching staff, (3) continuing upon our present course, and (4) expanding the program by means of increased women's program and staff.

The Alumni voice in these matters will carry considerable weight, and I am most anxious that I correctly convey your sentiments. Therefore, I urge you to express yourself by letter immediately to me.

AN UNUSUAL EXHIBIT OF ART, arranged by the Junior Seminar in Art History, was on view in the Widener Gallery of the Austin Arts Center during December. The exhibit will consist of such diverse objects as a prehistoric Chinese bronze dragon, porcelain of the Russian czars' imperial regiments, pre-columbian sculpture, American furniture, a "traveling museum" consisting of such small objects as a tiny, collapsible Calder mobile made to fit inside an envelope, and a number of paintings by such artists as Tanguy, Matta, Max Ernst, Giacometti, Milton Avery and Arthur Davies.

According to Dr. Michael Mahoney, chairman of the fine arts department, working on the project gave the students the opportunity, on a small scale, to be museum curators. He selected about 40 objects and assigned each student three or four without explaining how they were related. The students researched the objects, found a means to hang them together around a single theme and installed them with explanatory labels.

Duke University. In the same issue, PETER J. KNAPE' 57, former Harvard and Yale student, has an article on "The Rev. Thomas Prince and the Prince Library." Prince, according to Knapé, occupies a high place in the annals of American book collecting. He was the first to gather a collection relating to America for the purpose of preserving them for future generations.

Dr. DORI KATZ, assistant professor of modern languages, has a review of Denise Levertoir's translations of Guillermo, French contemporary poet, in the Spring issue of North American Review. The winter issue will contain a portrait of Miss Katz by G. W. Steiner.

Dr. HUGH GODDEN, chairman of the Trinity Poetry Center and assistant professor of English, will have a poem published in the spring issue of the North American Review.

A day-long symposium sparked by the recent actions and proposals of the Connecticut State Welfare Department, on December 13 at Mather Campus Center, is sponsored by the Office of Community Affairs, the Connecticut Public Information Office, the Connecticut State Department of Health, the Connecticut Board of Education, the Connecticut Board of Public Welfare, and the Connecticut Council on Industrial Relations. The symposium was directed to workshops, professional development panels, and a plenary session for future action. The flat-rate grant-to-allow pay and the request for the Connecticut Family Assistance Plan were the major discussion topics.

ROBIN WASSERUG has been appointed director of financial aid, according Thomas McNamara '64 who recently resigned from that post. Miss Wasserg will administer all distribution of scholarships, loans and bursary employment and will also act as assistant to the director of admissions. She has been assistant director of admissions since she came to Trinity in 1970.

Sunday, December 13, the Chapel was the scene of a medieval service accompanied by planning music and concluded with the yearly coronations of the 14th Century Eschatist. The spirit of the High Middle Ages was further expressed by vestments, lights, incense, distance and use of the Chapel's High Altar. Participating in the service in addition to Chaplain Tull and the Trinity Chapel Singers were Trinity Students, members of the faculty and clergy from the Hartford area.

PAPPAS

When Mr. Pappas opened his first one-man show in Hartford in 1954, a reviewer in a local newspaper commented that “First and foremost, he is a skilled craftsman and he believes in his work across this exhibition.” The same reviewer praised Mr. Pappas for “a subtle and distinguished perception of color, a sure draughtsmanship, a fine literate sense and a continually poetic approach.”

Classes were canceled during the morning of December 12 for the funeral service in the Chapel. Nearly 500 people attended, including alumni and friends from the Hartford area. Earlier in the morning, a funeral service had been held in St. George Greek Orthodox Church on Fairfield Avenue, where Hartford Mayor George Athanson delivered the eulogy. Burial was in Fairview Cemetery, West Hartford.

Mr. Pappas leaves his wife, Mrs. Belle Kerakes Pappas and a son Damon Pappas, both of West Hartford; a daughter, Miss Michelle Pappas of New York City; his mother, Mrs. Stephanie Pappas of Miami, Fla.; his father, Nicholas Pappas of Athens, Greece and a brother, John Pappas of East Hartford.

Burfeind, Heads News Bureau

Alfred C. Burfeind '64 has been appointed Director of the Trinity College News Bureau, replacing Paul J. Gallagher who resigned in October.

Burfeind, who began his new duties December 6, comes to Trinity from The Hartford Times, where he was assistant city editor.

His news experience includes nearly five full-time years with The Hartford Times, as well as extensive free-lance work with The Times and The Plainfield (N.J.) Courier-News. In 1963, while at Trinity, he was editor-in-chief of The Tripod.

A native of Plainfield, N.J., Burfeind was graduated from Trinity with majors in English and Religion. In 1967 he received a bachelor of divinity degree from Hartford Seminary Foundation, where he was awarded the William Thompson Fellowship and a prize in history.

He is currently on the Vestry of St. James Episcopal Church, Zion Street, Hartford, and a member of the Department of Communication and Interpretation of the Connecticut Council of Churches.

Burfeind and his wife Lynne have two sons: Paul, 4, and Matthew, 16 months. They live at 165 Thomson Street, Hartford.

Three Groups Will Report To President on Athletics

The Department of Athletics and Physical Education, the Athletic Advisory Committee and the College Board of Fellows are preparing preliminary reports on the future of athletics at Trinity which will be handed to President Theodore D. Lockwood by mid-February.

The reports requested by the President, are expected to lead to a statement of policy and guidelines for the department.

President Lockwood, in a memorandum issued last November, called for a "serious, careful and thorough review" of the department by the three groups, with special consideration given to:

• The future of intercollegiate athletics at Trinity.
• Meeting the needs of students, alumni and faculty in the programs offered by the department during a decade of "academic and financial constraints."
• Expressing the relationship of athletic programs "to the other educational obligations of the College."
• In his charge to the groups, Dr. Lockwood cited the "popularity and success" of athletic and physical education programs at Trinity, but stated that "it has been increasingly difficult for the smaller institutions like Trinity, dedicated to amateur participation, to field teams in all the sports in which there may be student interest."

He said that among the factors which should influence the deliberations are the "competing needs" within the sports program and the College as a whole, the "changes which have occurred with respect to physical education programs," the limitation on faculty dollars "now frozen" to a maximum strength of 130—which has "reduced the ease with which Trinity may respond to academic and athletic desires," and the presence of women on campus, which poses "its own set of questions with respect to the diversity of programs and the composition of the staff."

The review is especially pertinent, Dr. Lockwood said, at a time when "other faculty committees are obliged to consider the allocation of faculty strength and the deployment of what are regrettably limited funds."
The review is expected to produce guidelines which will "go far to anticipate the demands which may be placed upon the department now and in the future."

Among the expectations are that a "philosophy of athletics" can be developed for Trinity as well as recommendations concerning competitive and noncompetitive programs, staffing and financing.

Dr. Lockwood has asked that initial recommendations be presented before February 15.

It's unfortunate you all couldn't join us for our annual class dinner held at the Hotel Four Seasons on November 13. The annual class dinner was a delight for all of us, and we hope you all will come again next year.

Our 50th Reunion is now coming up on November 13, and the annual class dinner will be held at the Hotel Four Seasons. For many years, a holder of a pilot's license on a day-to-day basis, Mr. Uhlig was an assistant in the flight testing department of the company, where he was always busy, and his aerospace activities have been of great importance to the company. He has found time to visit Vancouver and Colorado, and he is considering working part-time as a pilot for the company.

The 30th reunion of our class, like all preceding reunions, was an outstanding success. As a class of '41, we were among the youngest. Our classmates might have remarked (and, come to think of it, did remark) that it was a "40-year-old fun like it was going out of style." To support the chairman in this laudable activity, there were on hand, at one time or another during the weekend, DICK BLAISELL, MOE BOTT, STEVE BRADISH, ROBYN CALLAGHAN, JOHN CARPENTER, JOE CLAYE, AL DUNBAR, AL DUGGAN, BILL FRENCH, DON HALEN, ALDEN JOHNSON, HENRY KAPLAN, FRANK KINSEY, TED KUDERSKI, LAVIERNI, IAN MANSALL, DICK MOODY, DICK NOLLE, BILL OLIVER, CULLEY ROBERTS, ED SHILKREIT, and JIM SHERIDAN.

As were accompanied by their wives. It was great to be able to single out for photographs a notable number of the former members of the Ladies Auxiliary since in the opinion of many of the alumni it is of great importance to be able, in short, supply in some respects, as the Reunion was over, to have something of their Reunion in their Hands.

As a former student of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, I was delighted to have been selected as the symbol of the class. My roommate was a member of the class and I was able to make many contacts with our class alumni.

The class motto is "Let's Go." This was the theme of our reunion weekend, and it was a fitting one. It was a great pleasure to see so many of our classmates and to share in the fun of our reunion weekend. I hope we can continue to enjoy these special occasions for many years to come.

Mr. Robert C. Langen

Winter Squads Open With Mixed Results

As the Trinity calendar moves rapidly toward Christmas and exam break, several of the Bantam winter sports teams have commenced combat with varying degrees of success.

The varsity hockey team has had its troubles defeating Hamilton 96-76 but losing two close decisions to Alfred 72-71 and M.I.T. 102-85 in overtime. Perhaps the biggest surprise thus far has been the quick start registered by the hockey club which defeated U.Conn. 5-3 with junior co-captain and goalie Carl Norris turning away 43 shots and shutout M.I.T. 3-0 with freshman goalie Rudy Montegna in the nets.

Coach John Danum, who captained the Brown University hockey team in 1964, is highly optimistic of improving on last year's 6-10 record. Danum, incidentally, was he is not coaching the Bantams, is an Assistant Attorney General for the State of Connecticut as well as a guard for the New Haven Flyers of the Southern New England Hockey League.

Another Bantam coach exuding optimism is Roy Duth who thinks that this year's squad is potentially one of his best. The raconteurs bombarded M.I.T. 8-1 in their opening match but were overwhelmed by a fine Navy Academy team 14-4. Except for the Navy match, Duth thinks that his squad can win or make it tough on its opponents for the remainder of the season.

Speaking of the military, the fencing team this year is coached by Colonel H. Thomas Kitch, who is in command of the Army Corp of Engineers as well as a 1944 Trinity graduate. The squad suffered an opening loss to U.Conn. 14-11 but with only two seniors on the squad, the team will have to rely on its own youth movement to carry through the season.

Fall Co-Captains Awarded Trophies

Co-captains Bayard Fiechter (soccer) and Tom Schakle (football), both recipients of the 1971 recipients of Most Valuable Player Awards for their respective teams.

It was the second consecutive year that Fiechter had been awarded the trophy—the first time soccer player to be so honored. This fall, Fiechter, along with co-captain Steve Hill led the varsity team to a 5-5 record showing tremendous improvement over last year's winless season.

Tom Schakle received the 1935 Trophy which is annually awarded to the most valuable player on the varsity football team, Schakle was a standout offensive lineman for the Bantams and started every game in the three years he was on the varsity. Schakle also received the coaches' Laxer Award for his outstanding performance on the offensive and defensive lines.

Junior Bob Gahney of Lindon, New Hampshire a two-year starter on the Bantam offensive line, received the Dan Jesse Blocking Award and junior linebacker Phil Poetier of Troy, New Hampshire won the coaches' Obfuscator Award which is given to the team's outstanding defensive player.

Soccer Coach Roy Duth awarded Richard Marshall, a junior from Shaker Heights, Ohio, the Most Improved Trophy.

Newcomers Pace Basketball Team

The varsity basketball team opened its 1971-72 season by taking third place in the Trinity-Hartford Invitational Tournament held on December 3-4 at the University of Hartford.

In a typical opening game night punctuated with many errors, the Bantams fell to Alfred University by a 72-71 score. Neither team was able to generate much offense as the score showed the Bantams ahead 11-9 after the first ten minutes of the game. The score was tied at 33-33 at intermission with both teams' shooting percentage hovering around 20 percent. Both squads warmed up in the second half but Trinity fell one point short of forcing the game into overtime period as junior forward Mike McGuirk brought his game total to 18 points with a layup at the buzzer.

If there was a bright note in an otherwise disappointing performance, it was the play of two newcomers to the varsity squad. Sophomore center Bill Fenkel, who started for the Bantams yearlings last winter, tallied 16 points and grabbed 17 rebounds in his first varsity game. Junior Keith Klevan, a transfer student from Bradley, also opened his varsity career in fine style by leading the squad with 22 points.

The next night, Trinity played Hamilton College which had upset a powerful University of Hartford combine (Hartford crushed Hamilton 102-85 and Alfred 97-67) to win the night before. The Bantams raced to a 49-29 halftime lead as Bill Fenkel continued his spectacular play. He finished the night with 26 points and 14 rebounds and was one of five players named to the A-B Tournament Team.

In the early second half, Trinity outscored Hamilton 15-4 and coasted to a victory.

A streak of poor shooting struck the team a few days later when it dropped a 108-90 contest against the Jumbos of Tufts University in a 9-0 game. The Bantams fell to Alfred University by a 72-71 loss followed by junior Mike McGuirk (no. 32) with 18 points and sophomore Bill Fenkel (no. 31) with 16.

New Winter Teams Face First Season

This winter marks the appearance of two new sports. A women's intercollegiate squash team will be coached by Miss Jane Milsap, a 1970 graduate of Springfield College and the coach of last fall's women's field hockey team which produced a 4-1-2 record.

Although the team is still in the process of scheduling matches, a definite highlight to the season will be the Women's National Intercollegiate Squash Championships which will be held at Trinity on February 25-26.

Richard Taylor, who was an assistant varsity football coach this fall, will coach a newly formed Trinity wrestling team. Taylor has previously coached wrestling at Toms River (N.J.) High School and the St. George's School in Newport, Rhode Island. The grapplers have three matches so far against squads from Amherst, UConn, and Yale.
