4 Area Colleges Unite To Improve Services

The Hartford Foundation for Public Giving has awarded a $60,000 matching grant to Trinity College, the University of Hartford, St. Joseph College and Hartford College for Women to fund a four-college consortium in Greater Hartford, the first in the area.

Basic objective of the consortium is to pool the resources of the four schools to avoid costly duplication, and to provide better services at lower cost. In a sense, the consortium could be regarded as a "common market" in private higher education for Greater Hartford.

The arrangement will enable each of the member institutions to offer students a broader choice of courses.

It is the outgrowth of a limited cross-registration program over the past several years involving students from Trinity, the University of Hartford, St. Joseph College and the Hartford Seminary Foundation. Under that program, called the Intercolligate Registration Program, students from one college were allowed to register at another college for courses not available at the "home" college, and without paying additional tuition.

The new consortium will expand that program in three ways:

- By combining enrollments, enabling the four schools to continue offering courses which have, in the individual schools, a small and uneconomic enrollment.
- By joint planning of graduate level courses and programs.
- By exploring possibilities of pooling common resources in administrative areas, such as computer services and specialized library resources.

Initially, the governing board of the Greater Hartford Consortium for Higher Education will consist of President Lockwood, Chairman; Dr. Archibald Woodraft of the U of H Sister Mary Consulata of St. Joseph College; and Miss Laura Johnson of Hartford College for Women.

The $60,000 "seed money" grant will be spread over a three-year period, starting with the current year. It will be supplemented by matching grants from the four participating institutions.

Membership in the consortium will not be limited to the four charter members, but may be expanded to include other institutions.

The Hartford Courant, commenting editorially on the project, said that "The regional approach to community problems has frequently been promoted here, but seldom implemented. But cooperation of the kind where there is little or no loss of identity is certainly sound—especially when money is conserved and services are improved. Educators ... in Greater Hartford have indeed found important keys to such cooperation."

Barclay Shaw Dies

Word reached the College as this issue went to press that Barclay Shaw '35, Chairman of the Trinity College Board of Trustees, died February 20 at his home in Mt. Kisco, N.Y. Details will appear in the next issue of The Reporter.

CLARENCE WATTERS, Honorary Organist of the College, at the console of the new Chapel organ.

1,000 Attend Recitals Inaugurating New Organ

More than 1,000 people—invited guests, Hartford residents and members of the College community—came to Trinity to hear Clarence Watters play two recitals inaugurating the new organ in the Chapel.

More than 350 attended the invitation-only recital and reception on January 21 and nearly 700 packed the Chapel for the public performance the following night.

There were standing ovations on both evenings, and reviewers gave high praise to both the artist and the instrument.

Theodore H. Parker, critic for The Courant, credited Mr. Watters with a "brilliant performance," and described the organ as "spectacular." Mrs. Dorothy Stowe, writing in The Hartford Times, called the recital an "auspicious beginning for a fine organ which will inevitably become a mainstay of the community."

Mr. Watters, she said, "played with great style and unfailing good taste." She observed that for him, the recitals were a "crowning moment in a life devoted to the organ and to music at Trinity."

Warren V. Taoghe '70, writing in the Tripod, described the organ as "an important contribution to the cultural life of the nation," and praised Mr. Watters' role in designing it and demonstrating it to be "a viable instrument for a wide variety of musical styles."

The organ is a gift of the late Mrs. Newton C. Brainard in memory of her husband, a trustee of the College for 41 years. A private service of dedication was held in the Chapel on January 15.

More Giving

More contributions, fewer dollars is the current story of the 1971-72 Annual Giving Campaign when compared with the giving record in the same period last year.

The most recent progress report shows 1,634 contributors, an increase of 25%. However, in dollars, the $255,377 raised so far in gifts and pledges is (see GIVING, page 2).
The Trinity College Library has joined several other area libraries, including those of the Brown University Library, Dartmouth, Mount Holyoke, Wesleyan and Williams in the Peabody Library Association of New England, and the Trinity Library Association of Connecticut. The Trinity College Library, a member of the Association, says that publication is expected by 1975. The purpose of the Association is to facilitate accurate listing of printed works dealing with the history of New England as a whole, as well as the six individual states which comprise the region.

The Annual dinner meeting of the Friends of the Trinity College Library was held on June 15, 1972. At that meeting, the Board of Trustees reported that the annual deficit in its operating budget was $11,800. This deficit was diminished through a gift by Mrs. greenbaum to Trinity's scholarship fund to aid disadvantaged students. Dr. McKee, associate professor of history, presented a paper on "The History of the Nation as a Whole," which was recognized by President McKee as an important contribution to the understanding of American history.

The Executive Committee of the Alumni Association has voted to reverse its 1966 decision concerning reunions. At that time, the plan adopted scheduled reunions for classes which had been contemporary during undergraduate years. The traditional plan was that in effect prior to 1966 will be followed. The 1972 Reunion is scheduled for the weekend of November 10-12 and the following classes will have formal reunions: 1917, 1921, 1937, 1942, 1952, 1962 and 1967.

Giving (from page 1) approximately $6,000 less than last year at this time. The amount raised to date represents 60% of the $42,000 goal. The drive ends June 30. In the only reversal of the overall trend, the Friends of Trinity Fund has exceeded its goal ($15,000), reporting gifts of $16,693. This compares with $4,898 raised in the same period last year.

The Trinity Community seeks their willpower which, according to those who knew him, has been a hallmark of the Trinity community. Students, faculty or staff were inspired for all of us. The program of bringing artists-in-residence to the campus will continue to be a major goal. The drive ends on June 30.

TREKKING IN NEPAL—With the Himal Chuli range as background, President Lockwood passed the trek on tour at arts colleges in February. The students were selected following competitions held at colleges throughout the state last fall by a committee which included: John Louis, Richard Eberhart, David Forry, William Mendel, James Mitchell and Richard Wilbur. A grant from the Connecticut Commission on the Arts will cover travel expenses.

A new book "Pre-Professionals and the Theory and Practice of Public Administration," co-authored by C.D. B. D. E. B. B. E. B. and S. SANDOLO BIANO, M.A., is the result of a research project conducted under the Graduate School Research Commission Grant. The study examines the problems and employment of the disadvantaged as pre-professionals in public service, and formulates guidelines to assist administrators in dealing with the problems. The book is available at the present price of $7,500, and will be published by the University of New Mexico Press.

New Trial Policy on Aid To Help During Leave

Ten students receiving financial aid from the College will be able to use their scholarship money to pay for study at other institutions, under a trial program approved by the College.

The liberal new policy will allow the students to receive financial aid while on Academic Leave of Absence from Trinity, during which they would be doing approved academic work in another college or university, or participating in a study abroad program sponsored by another institution.

Trinity has long encouraged students to take advantage of programs elsewhere which were not available at the College and which might be counted toward a Trinity degree.

Students on financial aid, however, were permitted to study only at certain other institutions which have a formal exchange program with Trinity. Financial aid was not available to students on Academic Leave.

Since study at any school outside the exchange system requires a Leave of Absence from Trinity and was either barred or financially barren from this kind of experience, according to Robbins Winwood, dean for educational services, "because the obstacles to meeting their financial need from extra-Trinity sources are generally insurmountable."

The trial program, which makes possible a more diversified education for students, was announced at the end of the 1972-73 academic year.
