4 Area Colleges Unite To Improve Services

The Hartford Foundation for Public Giving has awarded a $60,000 matching grant to Trinity College, the University of Hartford, St. Joseph College and Hartford College for Women to fund a four-college consortium in Greater Hartford, the first in the area.

Basic objective of the consortium is to pool the resources of the four schools to avoid costly duplication, and to provide better services at lower cost. In a sense, the consortium could be regarded as a "common market" in private higher education for Greater Hartford.

The arrangement will enable each of the member institutions to offer students a broader choice of courses.

It is the outgrowth of a limited cross-registration program over the past several years involving students from Trinity, the University of Hartford, St. Joseph College and the Hartford Seminary Foundation. Under that program, called the Intercollege Registration Program, students from one college were allowed to register at another college for courses not available at the "home" college, and without paying additional tuition.

The new consortium will expand that program in three ways:

• By combining enrollments, enabling the four schools to continue offering courses which have, in the individual schools, a small and uneconomic enrollment.

• By joint planning of graduate level courses and programs.

• By exploring possibilities of pooling common resources in administrative areas, such as computer services and specialized library resources.

Initially, the governing board of the Greater Hartford Consortium for Higher Education will consist of President Lockwood, Chairman; Dr. Archibald Woodruff of the U of H; Sister Mary Consolata of St. Joseph College; and Miss Laura Johnson of Hartford College for Women.

The $60,000 "seed money" grant will be spread over a three-year period, starting with the current year. It will be supplemented by matching grants from the four participating institutions.

Membership in the consortium will not be limited to the four charter members, but may be expanded to include other institutions.

The Hartford Courant, commenting editorially on the project, said that "The regional approach to community problems has frequently been promoted here, but seldom implemented. But cooperation of the kind where there is little or no loss of identity is certainly sound—especially when money is conserved and services are improved. Educators ... in Greater Hartford have indeed found important keys to such cooperation."

Budget Balanced In '71; Outlook Continues Good

Trinity College balanced its budget during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1971 and appears likely to have a balanced budget at the end of the current fiscal year, Treasurer J. Kenneth Robertson says.

Total expenditures and transfers in 1971, Robertson said were $7,719,646 (see BUDGET, page 2)

Barclay Shaw Dies

Word reached the College as this issue went to press that Barclay Shaw '35, Chairman of the Trinity College Board of Trustees, died February 20 at his home in Mt. Kisco, N.Y. Details will appear in the next issue of The Reporter.
CAMPUS NOTES

The Trinity College Library has joined several other area libraries, including those of the American Antiquarian Society, Amherst, Dartmouth, Mount Holyoke, Wesleyan and William & Mary, in the New England Historical Bibliography of New England history. Dr. James W. Votaw, a governor of the New England Historical Bibliography and a member of the Committee, says that publication is expected by 1973. The effort is an enormous undertaking, requiring an accurate listing of printed works dealing with New England history, and is one of the six individual states which comprise the region.

Dr. JEROME P. WEBSTER '70, trustee Emeritus and the first president of the Trinity College Library Associates, was honored at the annual dinner meeting of the Friends of the Columbia University Libraries. He received the Citation for Distinguished Service for leaving established and maintained at the University the Jerome P. Webster Library of Plastic Surgery, the largest collection of its type in the world. The collection consists of 3,000 books, including many rare first editions. Dr. Webster has recently retired as president of the trustees of the Watkinson Library and H. H. WOLFE of West Hartford has been elected to take his place. Dr. Webster has served as a Watkinson Library trustee since 1948 and played an important role in its development.

MAURICE SENDAK, noted children’s book author and illustrator, spoke at the College on November 29. His address was part of the series of Lectures in American Studies initiated by the American Studies Association/Connecticut, New Haven. Only a third of the audience was in attendance, indicating the division of the labor market into predominantly female and predominantly male occupational categories is the major obstacle to the development of equal opportunities.

CHANG SULTAN, a senior psychology major from Pakistan, who entered Trinity as a Scholar Athlete, was selected by the Connecticut Poetry Circuit as one of the "Ten Best" College Poets in Connecticut.

If his name is familiar to you, it was because Dr. Robert Lindsay, president of Trinity, has been a part-time instructor in dance, has been appointed to the position of chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Watkinson Library and has been elected to serve on the Board of Trustees of the Trinity College Library. He will be paid at Hartford, Connecticut. Dr. Lindsay accepted the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

NEW BUDGET

"Total operating income increased $960,138, the result primarily of an increase in the number of students and student body but contributions of $223,176 from the Alumni Fund and $185,165 from friends of Trinity will still required to assure the balanced operating budget.

In his annual report to the Trustees, Robertson recalled that during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1970, Trinity completed the Imperial Science Fund and made its policy, "$320,473 and observed that the 1971 budget was balanced after it was "rearranged according to the best interest of Trinity, and kept the institution from going to waste."

Following the "traumatic experience" of the 1970 deficit, Robertson said it was "with quite understandable satisfaction" that he reported the 1971 balance, and "further, that our budget projections for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1972 are similarly balanced.

President Lockwood said that to retain public confidence, it is important for Trinity "to demonstrate that we are prepared to get the right resources as effectively as possible and to show that we must be prepared to live within our means."

Commenting on the financial crunch faced by U.S. colleges, many of which are running deficits, Lockwood said that "to get by, in the long run, we've got to slow down the rise in costs and, if possible, reduce the growth of educational expenditures. "Other efforts must be one of the prime goals of educators in the United States. To allow "more of the same at higher costs" is both naive and irresponsible," he concluded.

TREKKING IN NEPAL—With the Himal Chuli range as background, President Lockwood and his wife, Mrs. Lockwood recently took in Nepal. The expedition began at Katmandu, capital city of the tiny monarchy in the Himalayas, and ended 225 miles later at Pokhara. They hiked the equivalent of 50 vertical feet up and down.

New Fund Memorializes Cancer Victim: Courage

A 1967 graduate of Marblehead High School, who received his bachelor of science degree at Trinity in 1970, has been memorialized at the College by the establishment of a scholarship fund to aid disadvantaged students.

Charles Zachary Greenbaum, who died on May 21, 1971, learned in the spring of 1970 that he had cancer. That fall, he was at Trinity, continuing his studies with a display of bravery, courage and sheer willpower, according to those who knew him, has rarely been seen. Few knew the seriousness of his illness. No favors or leniency was asked. He was determined to complete his academic work at the Warner Center, where he enrolled in the spring of 1971.

On Commencement Day, May 30, 1971, Charles Greenbaum earned a bachelor of science degree in physics. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Robert Greenbaum of 75 May Street, Marblehead, accepted the degree in his honor.

The first gift of $1,000 to the Charles Greenbaum Memorial Fund was made by Mr. and Mrs. Greenbaum. The projected goal of the Fund is $10,000, which as an endowment would yield income to provide annual scholarship grants for disadvantages students. Each year the

The fitting of $146,776 of the $250,000 goal has been raised as compared with $162,032 last year. On the bright side, the number of annual contributions has reached 2,428, an increase of 22%. In addition, 18 new donors.

In the Parents Fund, 320 contributors have pledged $46,777 toward a goal of $85,000. In the comparable period last year, 245 parents had contributed $50,603.

The Business & Industry category, 43 firms have pledged $35,619 toward a goal of $50,000, last year in the same period, $40,777 had been raised from 36 companies.

To date, support from Foundations is reported at $13,000.

The Charles Greenbaum Scholarship Fund (gifts of $150 to $999) number 292 as compared with 249 last year. Fifty-two donors have qualified for membership in the Founders Society (gifts of $1,000 or more), a slight increase over the previous year.

The Fund is primarily the result of a suggestion made by Dr. Robert Lindsay, professor of physics at Trinity and the last student’s advisor. Dr. Lindsay said that “Chuck” Greenbaum was a warm and friendly individual who always put concern for others ahead of his own feelings. "Chuck" had a great talent for science and he undoubtedly would have gone on to make significant contributions. He faced his illness with a courage and determination which were an inspiration for all of us. It was a race against time to complete his academic studies but he never weakened. It is highly appropriate for Trinity College to permanently recognize the values revealed to us by Charles Greenbaum by establishing this scholarship in his honor.”

Dr. Lindsay, chairman of the Fund, reports a heartwarming response has already been received from friends and relatives of Mr. Greenbaum as well as from the Trinity community. Students, faculty or friends who wish to make a contribution in memory of Charles Greenbaum may direct their gift to the Honorary Lindsay or the Development Office.

New Trial Policy on Aid To Help During Leave

Ten Trinity students receiving financial aid from the College will be able to use their scholarship money to pay for study at other institutions, under a trial program announced for spring 1973.

The liberal new policy will allow the students to receive financial aid while on Academic Leave of Absence from Trinity, during which they would be doing approved academic work in another college or university, or participating in a study abroad program sponsored by another institution.

Trinity has long encouraged students to take advantage of programs elsewhere which were not available at the College and which might be counted toward a Trinity degree.

Students on financial aid, however, were permitted to study only at certain other institutions which have a formal exchange program with Trinity. Financial aid was not available to students on Academic Leave of Absence.

Since study at any school outside the exchange system requires a Leave of Absence and was therefore barred by institutional and was therefore barred by institutional and financial considerations, "because the obstacles to meeting their financial need from extra-Trinity sources are generally insurmountable.

The trial program, which makes possible a more diversified education for students on financial aid, was approved at the end of the 1972-73 academic year.

Trinity to Host World Tennis Tournament

Plants have been made to hold the Atina World Cup Tennis Tournament, a match featuring top professionals from around the world in singles and doubles play, at Trinity's Ferris Athletic Center March 10-12. The tournament has been sponsored by the Atina Life and Casualty for the benefit of the Hartford Police Athletic League. A local organization which conducts recreational programs for inner-city youngsters. Thirty thousand dollars will be offered in prizes of $10,000 going to the winner and $10,000 to the losing team.

The United States team will include Arthur Ashe, Marty Riessen, Bob Lutz, and Charlie Pasarell while a strong Australian team will be made up of Rod Laver, John Newcombe, Tony Roche and Roy Emerson. All players in the tournament are members of World Championship Tennis, a players' organization from which the Banana-bread world cup tennis tour draws its players. The Association, which was organized in 1970, has sponsored two World Cup tennis tournaments at Hartford and Boston College during the past two years with the American and Australian teams each winning a match.

Tickets for the three-day tournament will be sold for $4 dollars for Friday and Saturday night and nine dollars for Sunday afternoon. A three-day ticket may be purchased for $20 dollars. Orders can be made by writing Atina World Cup, c/o Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce, 250 Connecticut Plaza, Hartford, Connecticut, or calling 527-8825.

Trinity College Athletic Association

Trinity College is a private liberal arts college in Hartford, Connecticut, founded in 1823. It is the oldest college in the state and is known for its strong academic programs and competitive athletic teams. The college's athletic teams are known as the Bantams, and they compete in a variety of sports, including football, basketball, and tennis.

Peter J. Carillo

Peter J. Carillo is a retired professional tennis player from the United States. He was born on March 28, 1954, in Springfield, Massachusetts. Carillo began playing tennis at a young age and quickly rose through the ranks of amateur tennis, eventually turning professional in the late 1970s.

Carillo played on the professional tennis tour from 1978 until 1990, during which time he won several titles and was ranked among the top 100 players in the world for most of his career. He is perhaps best known for his role in the 1981 U.S. Open, where he defeated defending champion John McEnroe in three sets to reach the semifinals. Carillo also played in several Davis Cup ties for the United States, helping the team win the title in 1983.

After retiring from professional tennis, Carillo continued to be involved in the sport as a coach and teacher. He has worked with many young players, helping them to develop their skills and achieve success on the professional tour. Carillo has also been a commentator for tennis matches and has written several books on the game.

In addition to his work in tennis, Carillo has been involved in a number of other activities throughout his life. He is a licensed pilot and enjoys flying, and he has also been a successful businessman, owning and operating several companies over the years. Carillo is married and has two children, and he currently lives in the greater Boston area with his family.
