TRICE Is Formed; Receives $112,655 Government Grant

Trinity and the Rensselaer Hartford Graduate Center have formed the Trinity Rensselaer Institute for Community Education (TRICE) and have already received a two-year federal grant of $112,655 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

TRICE was formed to respond to community needs, and will use the federal money to meet educational requirements of groups and individuals which are of special community concern. Programs will be directed toward the education of municipal and state employees, corporate executives and certain community groups and individuals.

Ivan A. Backer, director of community affairs, who wrote the proposal for TRICE, said that Trinity approached Rensselaer about forming the program, as it was felt that they brought to the program the technical areas such as management, computer science and engineering that would combine well with Trinity’s liberal arts for a more comprehensive plan. He said that both institutions want to respond to community needs.

Backer added that TRICE has already co-sponsored with the National Conference of State Legislatures a workshop on education, finance and appropriations for three committees of the Connecticut General Assembly.

He said that two Trinity faculty members will soon be conducting programs for TRICE. Dr. Francis P. Egan, assistant professor of economics, will give a mini-course in environmental economy designed for members of organizations concerned with environment in April and May. In May, Dr. Andrew J. Gold, associate professor of economics, will present seminars in zoning and planning for appointed boards in the Connecticut towns of Bloomfield and Windsor.

Campaign For Trinity Values

Contributions Now $4,878,468

More than $700,000 in new gifts and pledges have been received since the public announcement of the Campaign for Trinity Values on January 18. These new gifts, added to the $4,165,025 which were given or pledged in advance of the Campaign announcement, bring the total amount of contributions so far to $4,878,468.

Among the gifts added to the Campaign are $60,000 from Heublein, Inc., $5,000 from Mechanics Savings Bank, and $25,000 from the Loctite Corporation. Another gift of $90,000 from Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company is designated for both the Campaign for Trinity Values and Annual Giving, which is continuing during the $12,000,000 capital fund drive.

The advance gifts and pledges represent one third of the Campaign's goal, and the credit for that successful preparatory work goes to the National Campaign Committee, headed by Robert M. Blum '50, to the Major Gifts Committee, chaired by William R. Peele '44, and to the Business and Industry Committee, chaired by Stuart D. Watson. Chairmen and members of these committees worked with President Lockwood and Development Office staff to obtain these advance commitments.

Also, between New Year's and April 1, Campaign-related meetings have been held in more than a dozen cities on both coasts. At these meetings, alumni, parents, and friends began the initial preparation for conducting local campaign in each area. Those areas covered so far include Hartford, Springfield, Mass., Colorado Springs, Denver, Los Angeles, La Jolla, San Francisco, Dallas, Houston, Washington, D.C., Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston and Cincinnati.

Those who attended the meetings were given personal explanation of the Campaign's goals and objectives by Mrs. Constance E. Ware, Associate Director of Development, and William R. Peele, Jr. '70, Campaign Field Director. President Lockwood also attended these meetings as his schedule permitted.

Among the regional chairmen of these meetings were: Herbert B. McLea '54 (Baltimore); John T. Wilcox '39, Lyman B. Brainard '50 and Melvin W. Title '18 (Hartford); Roy Nutt '53 (La Jolla); Arthur Von Thaden '54 (San Francisco); David Blair (Springfield, Mass.); David Beers '57 (Washington, D.C.); George W. B. Starkey '39, Jacob B. Brown '53 (Boston), and Albert C. Turner '39 (Cincinnati). Similar meetings are planned in other cities as the Campaign continues.

Annual Giving At 61% of Goal

The 1974-75 Annual Giving Cam­paign, which is being conducted simultane­ously with the Campaign for Trinity Values, is presently at 61 percent of its $5,000,000 goal.

To date, more than 2,860 gifts, totaling more than $303,000, have been received from alumni, parents, business firms and other friends of the College. More than $230,000 of this has been in cash; the remainder is pledged.

Each year annual giving provides funds which support the ongoing academic program at Trinity. In recent years, Trinity has spent more than $500,000, enabling Trinity to meet increased costs of fuel, mainte­nance and necessary supplies, without sacrificing the quality of the academic program. The College is now in its sixth year of consistently balanced budgets.

Because of the importance of Annual Giving, it will be continued during and after the Campaign for Trinity Values.

I am sure this good letter from one of our "Class of 1916" scholarship students will interest you, especially those of you who contributed to this fund. "Dear Mr. Parke: As a recipient of one of the scholarships given by the class of 1916, I'd like to thank you for providing this aid to me as well as to other students at Trinity College. I am a sophomore English major and come from Rockland County, New York... fully appreciate the efforts of alumni in enabling students to attend Trinity by making up the financial deficits which many students encounter when attending a co-educational liberal arts college. My experiences here have been most rewarding in all aspects, only one of which has been the academic. One opportunity I feel I have been given at Trinity which I would not otherwise have received is the participation in the foreign exchange program, through which I hope to be able to spend next year studying in England. Once again, I wish to express my appreciation to all concerned for making for the support and continuation of the excellent quality of education at Trinity."

Three of the five pieces of news I have to report on this month come not from your own pers, but from the New Haven Register. Early in January the Register reported that RICH KREZEL, currently practicing law in partnership with his former colleague FORD, Plaives, Connecticut was seeking the position of town attorney in Southington, Connecticut. In February, BROWN announced that he had been offered the position of town attorney in South-

We also heard from the same paper that The Rev. D.WIGHT LUDGERUS assumes new duties as a pastor of the First Baptist Church in Waterbury, Connecticut. Previously, Dwight served as pastor of the First Baptist Church in St. Louis, Missouri.

BOB EGGLESTON was recently named the new curator of the New Haven Colony Historical Society, according to a feature story in the Register. As many of you know, Bob's museum work dates back to Trinity years when he spent summers at the Old Darmouth Historical Society and Whaling Museum in New Bedford.

Before joining the New Haven Society, Bob had been an assistant curator at Essex Institute, and among other responsibilities at the New Haven Society, he began work in January on a history of and exhibition.

We also heard recently from TED BART-LEY that he has moved to Simsbury, Connecticut and is now chief psychologist at Orange Memorial Hospital. Ted's the father of two future Groton students (four years and one month), and we're certain that Disney World is near, and we love to see old classmates when they are here in Orange, anyone?

Last, but certainly not least, JOHN HEYL, who has been at Trinity for five years as director of alumni relations and recently as director of the Class of 1973, has been doctor of Trinity officially on January 24 to become director of the Harvard Business School Fund.
While at College we will be miss his collection of wild plant parrots around Williams Church of Bradford, if you happen to see him we will assume he is in the early stages of building a new venture. Those of you in the Boston area who have thought of visiting the family office at Hall 6, Soldiers Field, Boston.

I'm sure the big story in the Register for news of the rest of you, and I don't hear from one of you soon, I may start making up stories.

CHARLEY KURZ wrote while flying to Stanford University Business School to the news that he is finishing a course on finance. Here is what he knows her class agent which means he's in charge of the Alumni Fund for our class. Last year we had one of the best class participation percentages but, as Charley pointed out, it was far from our class improving upon it and being the leader this year. It doesn't matter what size class participation one gives as long as we participate. If in the current economic crisis Trinity remains as strong an excellent school
it is, it will need our help.

IN MEMORY
New Outing Program
Open To Area Alumni

New to the campus this year is the Trinity Outing Program (TOP), organized during the Fall term by Michael Marlies, visiting assistant professor in philosophy, M. David Lee, associate dean of student services, and a small group of students. TOP has been able to offer an impressive program of outdoor activities to the Trinity community, including alumni and their spouses.

The response to the Program has been overwhelmingly enthusiastic among students, faculty, and staff members alike. The mailing list has soared to 200 and has included all the staff of the Spring semester, an estimated 75 people who have participated in TOP outings.

Day hikes are offered almost every weekend, mostly to locations within Connecticut. During vacations and the Open Period, more adventurous outings are held. In mid-February, a group of eleven camped for four days in Franconia Notch, in New Hampshire's White Mountains. Robert Simonson '78, Mr. M., and Mt. Lafayette, traversing the Lafayette — Little Haystack ridge. A smaller group camped out near Mt. Monadnock in Jaffrey, N.H. during January, climbing the ice-shrouded mountain on two successive days.

Cross-country skiing trips have also been held, but lack of snow locally has made this a slow season for skiers. Upcoming activities include a late winter back-packing trip to the Adirondacks, and, following the Spring Vacation, a number of canoeing trips and an introduction to technical rock climbing.

Alumni seeking information on how to participate should call the Mather Campus Center at (203) 527-3515 Ext. 274.

The purposes of the Program are various. In addition to helping to provide the joys of going into the wilds and seeing beautiful things, the Program is designed to add a new dimension to Trinity education. Outings are coupled with instructional programs in which participants can learn new techniques of hiking, climbing, skiing, canoeing, and wilderness living, and can learn how to do these things without damaging the environment. A newly-initiated leadership program will train leaders to take responsibility for the safety and enjoyment of their companions.

Yet another aspect of TOP is community service. In April, for example, members of TOP will spend a week-end cutting and clearing a new section of the Ninquock Trail in northeastern Connecticut. Clean-up trips, where trails and scenic areas will be cleared of garbage and refuse, are also being planned. TOP also offers services to faculty and alumni. In February, the Program sponsored and organized a sale in which members of the Trinity community were able to purchase a wide variety of camping equipment at reduced rates. TOP has an informatively written and organized Spring Schedule, which is available by writing to M. David Lee at the Mather Campus Center. The Schedule describes in detail all of the Program's planned trips and instructional sessions, and in addition describes the level of difficulty of the various outings, and the equipment that the participants will need.

Although pursuing a deliberate policy of not providing individuals with "personal gear," the Outing Program tries to provide participants with some of the more expensive and specialized equipment needed on some of the trips. However, while the Program has purchased some tents, ropes, ice axes, and snow shoes, it can as yet only look hopefully forward to a day when additional funds become available to purchase larger items.

As the Program has grown, more and more people on campus have taken on planning and organizational responsibilities. Students, faculty, and staff are, in increasing numbers, serving as trip leaders, planners, and instructors, giving TOP a broad base, and making it a vehicle for increased communication and understanding between various groups on the campus.
