REUNION WEEKEND — The Way It Was

Parking spaces were at a premium, the parties were numerous, the events were varied and plentiful, the decible level was higher, tailgate lunches abounded, and Trinity defeated Amherst before a capacity crowd on Jesse Field. That was the annual Reunion/Homecoming weekend beginning November 9 when the campus played host to more than 1,000 alumni and their families. Its theme: "The Way It Was."

Although one event followed hard upon the heels of another, there was plenty of time for relaxed reminiscing and throughout the weekend the campus was dotted with small clusters of graduates getting to know each other all over again.

"I knew it had to happen sooner or later and today was the day," said political science professor Sam Hendel. "A student of mine just introduced me to his father whom I taught at C.C.N.Y. about 24 years ago."

Alumni arriving on Friday visited classes in session, lunched in the faculty dining room and later many attended one (or more) of the 11 class cocktail parties and other informal gatherings. In the evening, football coach Don Miller showed film clips from previous seasons and presented his fearless forecast for the Amherst game. The Student Theatre Arts group presented a seldom-seen production of Machiavelli's "Man德拉qua," known to some as "The Mandrake." Saturday, the pace quickened with nearly a dozen events scheduled for the morning alone. Among them: an art exhibit in the Austin Arts Center, a Phi Beta Kappa meeting, a fencing exhibition, a symposium during which six alumni faculty members discussed (with the audience joining in) how the way it was in the interdisciplinary study now so necessary in liberal learning, permits a distinguished teacher like Professor Martin to offer courses outside the departmental frame. Thus, this appointment confirms the College's commitment to explore broadly the various academic fields represented in the Humanities."

A limited number are awarded nationally each year, Dr. Ranbir Vohra, professor of political science was the first Dana Professor on the Trinity faculty to be honored under the grant.

Martin, who served as president and chancellor of Union College and University from 1965 to 1974, is a nationally-known teacher, administrator and author. For fifteen years he was a lecturer in English and comparative literature, as well as director of general education, at Harvard University. He has received comparatively. The way it is, an alumni regatta, a talk by Connecticut's Commissioner of Education titled "Who Runs the Schools?" a show-and-tell presentation of his Patagonia trip by President Lockwood, and a soccer game. In the afternoon, more than 6,000 watched the Bantams powerhouse their way to a 24-17 win against Amherst for a season mark of 6-1. Half-time as usual was capped by the precision formations and perfect pitch of the Kazoo Marching Band. As he has for some years, religion professor Frank Kirkpatrick provided distinctive game commentary. "We have just received a partial score: Army, 5."

An unexpected divertissement was the appearance of three parachutists plummeting toward the field in a valiant attempt to land on a small, circular target. One did, and the other two came respectively close.

The game was followed by a reception in the Austin Arts Center and then dinner and dancing in the Mather Campus Center where the annual awards were presented (see photos on page 4). Somehow, time was found to elect new officers of the National Alumni Association. They are; President, Bernard Wilber, Jr. '50; Senior Vice President, George Lynch '61; Vice President — Alumni Fund, Thomas DePatie '52; Treasurer, John T. P. 'Pink' 44. Elected to the Executive Committee were Theodore Tams '54, Jeffrey Fox '67, Richard Morris '68, Elaine Feldman '76, and Robert Andran '75. Robert Chamberlain '35 was elected a Junior Fellow.

The sun early morning, after religious services and the dedication of twin planting urns at the entrance to Drucen's Memorial, a gift of the Class of '33, it was suddenly over. That was the way it was.

HIGH POINT OF HALFTIME at Amherst game was the diagonal descent of three parachutists trying to hit the target in front of the stands. This one made it; another came close and a third nearly settled on the refreshment tent.

Major Appointments Announced

James F. English, Jr., chairman of The Connecticut Bank and Trust Company, will become vice president for finance and planning at Trinity on July 1, 1977. English will remain as chairman of the board of directors at CBT.

In addition to monitoring the endowment, English will direct long-range planning and oversee development operations. He will also serve as liaison with the Consortium on Financing Higher Education.

Commenting on the appointment, Dr. Lockwood said: "Mr. English will bring us valuable experience in supervising our investments and in our long-range financial planning at a time when colleges need to exercise imaginative and careful management of their resources. Trinity is particularly fortunate to have in this senior position a person so experienced in investments and finance and, through his voluntary participation in education, so sensitive to the problems facing independent colleges and universities."

Dr. Harold C. Martin, president of the American Academy in Rome, has been appointed Dana Professor of the Humanities. The newly created professorship will be interdisciplinary in nature. The appointment is effective September 1, 1977. Martin will teach during the spring semester at Williams College.

According to President Lockwood, "Dr. Martin will be the first full-time professor at Trinity whose academic purview will include more than a single department. This concept, reinforcing
Horizons Talks At Mid-Passage

At the end of its first semester the innovative "Horizons" program appears to be an unqualified success. The one-semester course, which by next May will have presented 21 lectures from as many different academic departments, has been attracting—on a voluntary basis—between four and five hundred students each week.

This makes the course unusual in two respects: first, because it is probably by far the most multidisciplinary course being offered in the country and, second, because more than twice as many students are attending regularly than was anticipated. If the same proportion of the total student body at the University of Maryland were to register for the same program, for example, the enrollment would be over 8,000 for the course.

The objective of Horizons is to show Trinity undergraduates the current thinking in academic disciplines other than those in which they tend to concentrate. Lectures topics range from "Sexual Equality in Soviet Russia" to "Beyond the God-Beyond God: New Views on Divine Transcendence." The course is expected to be especially valuable for freshmen and sophomores who have not yet had the opportunity to attend Horizons. The first lecture on "Sexual Equality in Soviet Russia" was attended by about 200 people.

Beginning next January the number of persons exposed to the intellectual breadth of Horizons is expected to increase dramatically. The Connecticut Humanities Council is funding a series of half hour programs on Connecticut Public Television based on the Horizons series. Taping of the segments has already begun and CPTV officials (Hartford Channel 24) estimate the weekly viewing audience at more than 12,000. Name of the series "The Leading Edge."

Trinity Joins Computer Network

Trinity’s newest computer went on stream this fall. The event was signaled by a lecture given by Robert B. Tuttle ’67 who is director of operations and development in the department of computer science at Yale. Tuttle was one of the first Trinity students to become actively involved with the original computer installed in 1966. He has been awarded the M.S. and the M. Phil. in computer sciences from Yale.

The new computer, a Digital Equipment Corporation PDP 11/34, provides about seven times the storage capacity of the existing systems.

The new machine has twelve terminals which can be used simultaneously by students and faculty for teaching or research. A number of academic departments have become active clients of the computer services, among them Political Science, Engineering, Education, Economics and Sociology.

A new application promises to expand the usefulness of the system. The College has joined a national computerized network which gives immediate access to the results of research conducted at colleges and universities throughout the country. Use of other libraries and computers via the tie-in with "Teleren" is almost unlimited. This makes it possible for not only Trinity to have wide range of information from universities with larger computers and greater storage capacity, The Sociology Department, for example, can now pose questions about national census and election statistics and receive an almost instantaneous printout response from the computer at Yale.

Campus Hosts Parents Weekend

Unlike the previous year, the weather was kind to the hundreds of parents on campus for Parents Weekend in late October.

The weekend began with the annual parent’s reception where alumni clergy gathered in the Hartfort Hilton where President Lockwood told the capacity audience that "There is no way of forgetting the importance of education. Rather, we must use what we have learned so as to equip individuals with the right direction and skill, so necessary in the pursuit of the general welfare of a society. That is the task of liberal education. It can never be a luxury to deliberate thoughtfully about significant matters as they pertain to the critical issues of our time.

A number of events on Saturday gave the parents a panoramic view of campus life and issues. Lively discussions and question and answer sessions with President Lockwood and at a faculty-study panel showed a considerable amount of interest in the "open curriculum" and the student advisory system. Students introduced parents to faculty at luncheon and at a cocktail reception. Many attended sporting events and the Theatre Arts performed "Mandragola."

Graduating religious groups on campus held special services and the Lockwoods hosted a coffee reception in their home for all parents and students.

Free University Opens Its Doors

The campus this fall has been alive with a number of new, innovative and substantive programs, among them the Mellon Symposium and the Horizons series. Perhaps the most unusual is a program that originated with the students and speedily went on to enrapture the faculty and staff. Operating largely underground at first, it suddenly emerged as the Trinity "Free University" complete with 24 courses and a mimeographed catalog.

Within two hours after registration opened, three courses were oversubscribed. Absolutely precise figures are not available because administrative overhead is negligible but it is believed that more than 200 students, plus some faculty and staff, are participating in "Free University."

Courses are being taught by students, administrators and regular faculty. President Lockwood is teaching a course titled "Herman Hesse — The Game of Life." Vice President Thomas Smith has a course called "The Elements of Surfcasting." Lynn Boettger ’79 teaches a course in her apartment kitchen named "Baking." Robert Shor ’79 meets with a group on the roof of Elton dormitory for a course in "Observational Astronomy." Susan Penn ’77, Cheryl Kassow ’77 and Susan Kepnes ’77 are team-teaching a course in "Amazon Aesthetics." Two faculty members, history lecturer Michael Lestz and assistant psychology Professor Alison Black, are collaborating on "Topics in Psychology."

"Free U..." has stripped administration to the bone. As the catalog says, "In order to sign up for a course, one need only go to the front desk at Mather and write his/her name on the appropriate sheet in the notebook provided. Soon each course will meet to organize its direction, number of meetings, how long, etc. at a time which will hopefully be convenient for all involved. A note on each sign-up sheet will indicate either a time and locale of the first meeting or will simply state that members must come together."

The idea for the "school within a school" originated with Steve Kayman ’77 and has caught on like wildfire. Although Kayman was introduced to a shorter, less ambitious program being conducted there. The Williams Free University only operated during a low open period of a few weeks between mid-June and late August. Kayman thought this could sustain a full curriculum for an entire semester.

Kayman thinks that Trinity is the only college in the country to offer such an ambitious program. A somewhat similar program at Wellesley, he notes, is taught only by administrators.

Classes at the Trinity "Free University" run from two to ten or more sessions. There are no charges except for books, materials and, in one class, a shared model’s fee. Kayman and assistant psychology Professor Alan Fink are the major coordinators, assisted by religion instructor Larry Fader, assistant religion professor Leonard Mosesy and Dean of Studies J. Ronald Spencer. Students on the program. Kayman ’77, Roger Waugh, Kayman ’77, Karen Eerkel ’77, Barbara Grossman ’78, Douglas Meltzer ’80, Karen Calesnick ’78, Karen Eerkel ’77.

Kayman says, Kayman teaches a course titled "Renting: A Guide to Tenants’ Rights."

"We expect to double the number of courses offered for the spring semester."

First Annual Alumni Soccer Game

Distinguished alumni clashed with Trinity's powerful varsity in the First Annual Soccer Game on Sunday, September 26. The result was a 1-1 tie; although the alumni claimed a moral victory because of their aggressive play which caused "taking the high road" Alex Waugh, more than passing concern on many an occasion.

While the theme was on youth in alumni ranks — among others, Hbbie Porter ’76, Jeff Keltier ’76, Bob Andrian ’75 — there were also dedicated "oldsters" like Ben Tripken ’66, Roger Richard ’69, Peter Miles ’70, Mike Beauchamp ’69 and Greg Garby ’59.

After the contest, players and their families enjoyed conversation and a barbecue. Said one alumna as he went to his car, "Wait'll next year!"
Fall Mellon Series
Key Campus Event

The campus has been considerably enriched during the Christmas term this year by an outpouring of activity—lectures, colloquia, and symposia—from visiting scholars. Every week since the end of August has seen a program offered in the unique series funded by the Mellon Foundation. All the events are related to "The Search for Values in the Modern World: Interdisciplinary Lessons from the 19th Century." In addition to the five Trinity professors who are presenting the symposium, visiting scholars in the series have come from the University of Pennsylvania, Rutgers University, Wesleyan University, Clark University, the University of Pennsylvania, and Wesleyan University.

The purpose of the symposium is to permit a group of scholars from different fields to work in tandem on problems that arise in each discipline but whose solutions have important consequences for other disciplines. Scholars in the program who began last summer are: Dr. Frank G. Kierkegaard, professor of religion; Dr. Samuel D. Kassow, assistant professor of history; Dr. Alan M. Jacobs, professor of English, philosophy, and psychology; and Dr. Milla B. Riggi, assistant professor of English.

A sampling of the colloquia and lecture titles indicates the far-ranging nature of the exploration into the symbolic. "Moby Dick," " Hegel and Historicism," "Aesthetics and Politics," "The Self-Annihilation of Theology." . . . . . . "The Two Disciplines of Psychology: Reflections on Curriculum Implications and Myths and Realities." In addition, seminars were held twice weekly for study of Nietzsche, Darwin, Kierkegaard, Dostoevsky, Feuerbach, liberal theology, Freud, and early experimental psychology, and "Politics," "Myths and Propaganda." The reacting of the symposium is "tremendously exciting, probably the best thing I've ever done," said one of the participants.

All of the activities have been open to students and all have been well attended. Riggi estimates that between 70 and 120 students have been at each lecture.

President's Fellows For '77 Designated

President Lockwood recently appointed 26 members of the Class of 1977 as President's Fellows, each academic department and program at Trinity named one outstanding senior for this honor. The annual designation of President's Fellows was first begun in the Fall of 1974. The Fellows meet periodically with President Lockwood and are members of faculty and administrators for discussions of educational and other matters. Professor of Psychology Donald L. Casper, the President said in a letter appointing each Fellow: "I look forward to hearing your comments and suggestions. I am particularly interested to learn your views about the Trinity educational experience, since I have studied prejudice and values; our discussions will be to reflect on the value of the liberal arts as they are embodied at this institution."

One of the purposes of the President's Fellows program is "to honor undergraduates who have established truly superior academic records," the President said. "I am pleased to have this opportunity to recognize the kind of intellectual excellence for which Trinity stands."

The Fellows and the department or program which they represent are as follows:

OUT-OF-STATE
The Chinese Puzzle

Political Science Professor Ranbir Vohra Looks Behind the Iron Curtain

Within weeks of Mao Tse-tung's death a series of startling events took place in China, intriguing the scholar and baffling the layman. Mao Tse-tung (Chiang Ch'ing) and three of her close "radical left" associates (Hu Ya-biao, Wang Wen-yen, Chang Ch'un-chen), who had occupied positions of power in the Party and military during the Cultural Revolution (1966-68) have been publicly humiliated and eliminated from political life. They had been accused, among other things, of conspiring against the Party and the state, of plotting to assassinate Hua Kuo-feng (the current Prime Minister and head of the Party), and, according to some sources, of having even attempted to murder the ailing Mao Tse-tung. The four, once recognized as "Maoist purists," had earlier this year been behind the dismissal of the "moderate" Teng Hsiao-p'ing, who had lost power during the Cultural Revolution, had himself been dramatically ousted by Teng in early 1976, and was currently holding mass demonstrations to denounce the Chiang Ch'ing clique —"the Chiang Ch'ing cult" was the popular term. The enthusiasm were denouncing Teng not so many days ago!

The reasons are raised by these happenings: are we witnessing a ruthless struggle for naked power? Or is it a policy struggle? Is it a policy struggle why are those under attack, regardless of their policy alignments, invariably dubbed "revisionists" and "capitalist roaders?" Are the common people so naive that they can be manipulated to switch from one party line to another? Or are these attacks on the "two line struggle" merely a policy maneuver to solidify the power of the Party?
Alumni and Classes Honored at Homecoming

MEDALS FOR EXCELLENCE were awarded to (left to right) Karl E. Scheibe, '59, Thomas S. Johnson '62 and Paul M. Butterworth '09. A fourth recipient, Marvin W. Peterson '60, was not present.

THE EIGNBRODT CUP, the highest award given an alumnus, was presented by President Lockwood to Hugh S. Campbell '32.

ALUMNI ACHIEVEMENT AWARD, presented by Peter W. Nash '55 (right), chairman of the Board of Fellows to Wallace H. Howe '40 who accepted for his classmate and recipient of the award, The Rt. Rev. Albert W. Van Duzer who was not present.

BOARD OF FELLOWS AWARD was accepted by William H. Van Lunen for the Class of 1951.

JEROME KOHN AWARD was presented by Gerald Hansen (right), director of alumni and external relations, to Stewart M. Ogilvy who accepted for the Class of 1956.

1916 ALUMNI TROPHY, presented by Alfred Burfeind '64, assistant director of development (right), to Charles Kurtz who accepted for the Class of 1907. The 1934 Alumni Trophy was awarded to the Class of 1958.

FURTHERST DISTANCE PRIZE went to Bertram R. Schader '56 who traveled to Reunion/Homecoming from Spain.

DEDICATION OF PLANTERS at the archway of the Downes Memorial Clock Tower. Present for the dedication during the Reunion/Homecoming Weekend were (left to right) The Rev. Dr. Alan C. Tull, College Chaplain, William R. Peelle '44, a Charter Trustee of the College, Mr. Thornton McGee '13 and Kenneth B. Case '13. The planters are a gift of the Class of 1913.

President Lockwood will visit Washington, The First Alumni Boats Join Three Boats Join full length behind the leading boat. A length behind him was Andy's boat. A meters before and had dropped back to a bigger and better regatta next year.

Sixty-five sons and daughters of alumni stayed the night on campus early in October to inaugurate a new kind of orientation program for alumni offspring planning to enter college next fall. A joint effort of the Alumni and Admissions Offices, the September 30 to October 2 program introduced the high school seniors with special Trinity ties to the campus, the faculty, the students, and to the admissions process itself.

Among his trusteeships are the Roxbury Latin School, Hartford Collegiate School, Dudley Observatory, the Landis Arboretum and the HyUCK Preserve.

Dr. Martin is the author of "Logic and Rhetoric of Expression," "Style in Prose Fiction," and co-author of "Inquiry and Exposition" in addition to having written many articles on literature, teaching and administration. He also presented a fifteen segment ETV program on American literature.

Martin received the B.A. from Harvard, the M.A. from the University of Michigan and the Ph.D. from Harvard University.
During the 1975-76 fiscal year, the College received more than $4.3 million in gifts and pledges, including once again the half-million dollars in Annual Gifts needed for the year's academic program. Coming at a time when Trinity is engaged in its most ambitious fundraising program, this substantial support from alumni, parents, and other friends, from business and industry and from philanthropic foundations, is gratefully received.

As the Summary of Giving on the next page indicates, Annual Gifts totaled $501,168, the fourth consecutive year that contributions for the budgeted programs of the College exceeded a half-million dollars. Restricted designated gifts of $2,735,843 and bequests and deferred gifts of $1,104,773 bring total gifts and pledges to $4,341,784.

As a result, the Campaign for Trinity Values is now at $9.4 million of the $12 million goal, and we will be working steadily during the coming months to bring this capital campaign to a successful conclusion.

Our Annual Giving Program received national recognition last July in the form of a United States Steel Alumni Giving Incentive Award based on Alumni Fund performance during a prior year. That award-winning performance, I'm proud to report, was admirably sustained during the year just completed.

While capital gifts aid Trinity over the long term, it is the Annual Gifts which permit Trinity to continue to offer an outstanding academic program within the limits of a balanced budget. In this 1976-77 academic year, with a total College budget of $11.3 million, Trinity will again need $500,000 in Annual Gifts.

To all those who have joined with us in these efforts to sustain this venerable College and assure it a distinguished future, I extend my thanks and best wishes. Certainly the challenge is worthwhile.

Theodore D. Lockwood

Representatives of The Travelers Insurance Companies present a contribution of $5,310 to President Theodore D. Lockwood. The gifts from The Travelers was based on the number of Trinity alumni currently employed by the insurance company in the U.S. and Canada. From left are John V. Haldin, Manager of Personnel Administration for the Hartford Field Office; President Lockwood; Christopher J. Waldman, Director of Career Counseling at Trinity; H. Stuart Massie, Jr., Manager of Life, Health and Financial Services Department, Hartford Field Office, and Gerald J. Hansen, Director of Alumni and External Relations at Trinity. Trinity has 68 alumni employed at The Travelers, including seven recruited from the graduating class of 1976.

Mr. George C. Capan

West Hartford, CT 06119

On July 30 at Liberty Corner, New Jersey, to MORE CONRAD, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Conrad, in celebration of their wedding anniversary. They have three children, six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mr. Erbhard G. Schmitt
41 Mill Rock Road
Newington, CT 06111

Our emotional stub is now long past, and those of you not present have been sent programs of the installation of President Feeley and the Memorial Service.

I hope you were all glued to your TV sets on Saturday, July 31 to see the Sports Special Show by CBS from the ABC, showing the 1976 game winning the Ladies' Challenge Plate at Henley. We also saw how The College and England gave a splendid bel to it as all "Special Gifts" fund raisers for the College and gave a warm reception to Gerald H. Hansen, Director of Alumni and External Relations for his thoughtfulness in sending out the alert about the passing of our classmate, LLOYD MILLER on October 19 in Ogdensburg, New York. Ken says with authority that such pitching is entirely legal and that, just leave me to do it, and he will go to the World Series.

If you don't know that our good KEN SMITH is an actor - not bad one either. A rather talent has in it that I think we should be able to count on when he is out of trouble. He is now playing in a mid-season record-breaking hit that is only 275 blocks in three days. Where were the rest of our Trinity area fans?

Here is one old news item at the writer's desk that I think should be in a "This Week in Tudor Times" column. "The only news item at the writer's desk that I think should be in a "This Week in Tudor Times" column. The urge to travel seems to have taken a firm grip on a number of our classmates. JIM PARTRIDGE flew to London on May 26 and from there to Dublin. He spent June and July traveling in Northern Ireland and The Republic of Ireland. He spent two weeks at 1614 Clare Street, Belfast, Northern Ireland in a flat that he describes as " Sheep's Head". Next came a wedding with an acquaintance and a tour of Scotland, thence to Pittsburgh, on the Atrium Coast Road, then to Donegal, Sligo, but back home earlier this year.

Mr. Clifton F. Bull 72

Our Class had a good delegation at the national Deeds Day at the Hartford Club on May 23. This has been an annual event for those of us who have been active in this area and we are all enthusiastic about this get-together and derive great pleasure from it. The only news item at the writer's desk that I think should be in a "This Week in Tudor Times" column. I think it's a very good thing to get a number of our classmates. JIM PARTRIDGE flew to London on May 26 and from there to Dublin. He spent June and July traveling in Northern Ireland and The Republic of Ireland. He spent two weeks at 1614 Clare Street, Belfast, Northern Ireland in a flat that he describes as " Sheep's Head". We of '64 are all mighty grateful to learn that JIM PARTRIDGE flew to London on May 26 and from there to Dublin. He spent June and July traveling in Northern Ireland and The Republic of Ireland. He spent two weeks at 1614 Clare Street, Belfast, Northern Ireland in a flat that he describes as " Sheep's Head". Next came a wedding with an acquaintance and a tour of Scotland, thence to Pittsburgh, on the Atrium Coast Road, then to Donegal, Sligo, but back home earlier this year.

did hear from GEORGE BENT last summer who reports that he just had a new home in Pittsburgh. I also got a very nice long letter from TOM WENDER, who was not going to be able to get East for our reunion. That was a sad note.

apparently a few of our sources have been incorrect, as evidenced by a recent letter I received from PATRICK ROSENWALD. He comments on a recent news article I had written about him that was based on an untruth. I’m sure Bob would be a misinformed grapevine. To set the record straight, Bob has completed a fantastic short story featuring in Travelers. Bob is now a partner and principal in the United Engineers and Constructors, Inc.

68

When we heard from BOB BARKER, we were delighted to learn that he is still hiding in the mountains of Virginia, playing priest and fire fighter. But this time he’s moving to a new home in Radnor, Pennsylvania. We heard he is starting a new business with his wife, Joyce, and daughter, Kate, closer to the Hartford area. He has a better chance to feel free to call.

71

And now for a different sort of creation — BOB RUBEN. He has completed a dramatic short story featuring in Travelers. Bob plans to move to 369 N. California St., Los Angeles, and has plenty of room for visitors.

73

Also among professional lines, ROBERT JENKINS is now a partner and principal in the architectural firm of Chisholm/Tillon & Associates in Grand Junction, Colorado. He’s busy, his wife, Joyce, and daughter, Kate, have been living in Grand Junction for about three years, and the by the time you read this, you will probably have three children.

75

Also in Philadelphia Charles CURTIS, who has been teaching at the Episcopal Diocesan Center of New Jersey, has been going by enjoying his fantastic scenery. Bob plans to move to 305 N. American St., Los Angeles, and has plenty of room for visitors.

76

ANDY MASSE is a management assistant, director of communications and pension and profit sharing trusts at Anametrics Inc. in New York City. Andy’s new title is vice president.

TRINARY SPORTS ROUNDUP

VARSITY FOOTBALL

The 1976 version of Bantam football ended the season with a 6-2 record. The second half of the season was somewhat disappointing after Trinity had won its first four games. The season ended on a sour note as traditional rival Wesleyan took advantage of 11 turnovers to rout the Bantams 44-0.

This year's team was centered around a group of 19 seniors. Under the leadership of tri-captains Don Grabowski, Pat Heffernan, and Rick Usuki this senior group filled 14 of 22 starting positions. This is the largest senior class in several years and the impact of its graduation will be felt in 1978.

Coach Don Miller can be extremely proud of his defensive unit, particularly for their performance against the rushing game of opponents. Bantam defenders allowed only 701 yards rushing per game. Ends Usuki and Grabowski, linebackers Mike Levene '77 and Joe Delin. The Bantam rushers - Captain Grignon '77 and senior captains Greaves '77 were standout performers. Grignon missed the final game due to a knee injury, whereas Dave Pavlin also played well at defensive tackle after moving over from offensive guard.

The defensive backfield did not give up a touchdown by passing until the fifth game of the season, Cornerback Tony Trivella '77 was the defensive stopper, with six. Sophomore safety John Flynn broke into the starting lineup midway through the season and picked off five passes. He also made 45 tackles, placing him fourth among Trinity defenders.

Because of a scheduling change Trinity, accustomed to opening its season against Williams, traveled to Bowdoin for its first game of the season. The Bantams, who had lost seven of their last eight to the Polar Bears in 1975 but handled their new opponent easily. Trinity opened up its new year with a 24-7 rout of an injury-riddled Coast Guard squad. Senior quarterback John Gillespie had a good day and earned ECAC laurels for the final week in October.

Then came an always tough Amherst squad to challenge the Bantams on Reunion/Homecoming Weekend. After a strong performance at Wesleyan, Trinity used a strong running game to come from behind and take a 24-17 victory from the Lord Jeffs. The Bantams outgained Amherst for 180 yards and a touchdown, but the Amherst touchdown, a 58-yard pass, was the difference.

The Amherst win was only the third since coach Don Miller came to Trinity from Amherst in 1965. Each of the previous two had been a part of a 7-1 Trinity season, and the Bantams entered their final game hoping for a third such occurrence. But the Cardinals were determined to salvage a respectable season in what was expected to be a banner year. Wesleyan had been upset three times in seven weeks and vented all its frustration on the Bantams. The home team took advantage of numerous Trinity errors in piling up 37 seconds over 50 yards in a touchdown drive. Wesleyan won the game, 30-14.

The Crew opened its season against Mt. Holyoke. All 11 Bantams were appointed victorious in turn, but the victory was later disqualified because of a steering program error, which forced the crew to defer. Trinity was a winner across the board the next week against Mariot College. The varsity race victory allowed Trinity to retain the Goodwin Cup for the third straight year.

Trinity's perfect season was a total team effort. Senior running back Rob Shaub, who averaged 4.5 yards per carry for 233 yards and a touchdown, was the defensive hero with a producing two touchdowns.

The Bantam defense, anchored by defensive end Don Grabowski '80, had nine sacks among them. The 54 tackles in leading the charge of the 1976 defense. Senior John Grignon '70 anchored the interior defensive line from his tackle position.

GRABO SACKS THE QBI Senior tri-captain and defensive end Don Grabowski '80 had nine sacks among them. The 54 tackles in leading the charge of the 1976 defense. Senior John Grignon '70 anchored the interior defensive line from his tackle position.

VARSITY SOCCER

The varsity soccer team responded well to first year head coach Rob Shaub and produced a fine 7-4-1 record in the first winning Trinity soccer season in seven years.

The midfielders, who moved up to the varsity post in the absence of Roy Duft who was on sabbatical, credits his two senior captains, Len Greaves '78 and Jim Morken '79, for having provided the leadership and spirit which were important parts of the success.

The Bantam booters opened the season strongly with wins over Central Connecticut College 60-30, M.I.T. (4-1), and Wesleyan 1-0. The only setback was a 2-0 loss to a strong team, Babson (4-2) and Williams (4-1). Victories over Connecticut College (3-1) and Bentley (4-0) came before and after the important Trinity game. Trinity was called for two goals in the last seven minutes to tie the Jumbos (2-2). A road victory over Union (4-3) set the team up for a contest against cross-town rival University of Hartford. The Bantams were disappointed in that contest, but they controlled the tempo of the game, they came out on the short end of a 2-0 score. Wins against Coast Guard (4-1) and Amherst (1-0) brought Trinity's record to 7-3-1 with a lone game remaining against Wesleyan.

A victory for Trinity would give them a shot at post-season play, but the Bantam hopes were destroyed by the rival teams. Although Wesleyan earned the first half play, the score ended at 0-0. Trinity took the control early in the second half and won by a goal. Greg Madding '78 gave the Bants a 1-0 advantage with 30 minutes to play. Wes tied the game a few minutes later and went on to win the overtime. Everything collapsed for Trinity as Wes scored three goals in the overtime session for a 3-1 win.

Goalie Alec Waugh '78 played well all season, recording shutouts against Amherst and Bentley. The offensive leader for Triton was senior wing Duffe Sheo who collected 10 goals and two assists. Center Greg Madding scored eight goals while assisting on four others. Senior Mark Moore also added much to the Bantam attack with five assists.

Outstanding defensive players were McGath and sophomore Jeremy Meyer.

WOMEN'S CREW

The Trinity women's crew, in its first year as a varsity sport, had its most successful season since being formed five years ago. With a large turnout of women, Coach Lisa Learned '76 was able to form three boats (varsity, junior varsity, and novice) to compete with the regattas during a five-week racing season.

The crew opened its season against Mt. Holyoke. All 11 Bantams were appointed victorious in turn, but the victory was later disqualified because of a steering program error, which forced the crew to defer.
