New Program Ready for Fall

One of the enduring values of Trinity is its willingness to experiment. Soon to be announced is a new program, admittedly experimental, which proves the point.

The program thrills in three directions - toward the students, toward the faculty, and toward the general public. It is interdisciplinary to a degree never before known on the campus. It requires no formal registration. It will discuss complicated issues and theories more or less in layman's terms. It is designed for intellectual excitement. It will grant course credit without cost and without examination. Only a purchase of an expensive record is required. Plus a critique of the lectures attended. No grades, no failures ....

The title of the course is "Horizons," a title which is meant to indicate that the course will pursue the now and the future as well as the relevant past. Structured to introduce students to academic disciplines they might otherwise never experience, "Horizons" will focus on what is happening today in history, political science, psychology, mathematics and literary criticism, for example.

Altogether, lecturers from 22 different academic departments will discuss the key current or emerging ideas in their fields. As English Professor J. Bard McNulty, who is the program's coordinator, puts it, "We want to show the student what is 'up front.'"

Typical of the ground to be covered are such topics as how computers are changing the study and interpretation of history; new trends in literary criticism emphasizing psychology; the dynamics of urban and suburban stresses; the psychology of perception (precisely how does one see the 'same' person in photographs taken at ages 18 and 70?); and the implications of mind-altering drugs, food additives, birth control drugs and other chemicals.

Dean of the Faculty Edwin P. Nye also thinks the new program may have what he terms "a serendipitous effect."

He points out that faculty members work hard to keep abreast of developments in their own field, let alone others. "Here is a way for faculty to talk to each other in a different context," he says.

"Of course there will be doing," says Professor McNulty, who is also secretary of the faculty. "It is to provide accomplished lecturers who will discuss recent events and developments in their fields in terms that are 'popular' in the best sense - that is, intellectually rewarding and at the same time interesting to a wide spectrum of the community."

Senior Wins Watson Fellowship

A Trinity College senior has received a $5,000 fellowship grant which will enable her to study Scandinavian music for most of next year.

Stephen J. Thomas of Peoria, Ill., has accepted a Thomas J. Watson Fellowship grant to study the folk instruments and folk music of Norway, Denmark and Sweden. When the year is over, he hopes to have mastered such traditional instruments as fyl (fiddle), the nykkelharpa (key-fiddle) and the hurdum (a cousin to the Appalachian dulcimer).

In addition to formal study of archives, Thomas plans to travel from village to village, recording the music and playing with the village musicians.

In Sweden he expects to stay at least two months in the province of Dalarna. The recordings of the fiddlers from Dalarna I've heard are very beautiful and said to be the best in Sweden," he says. "I especially want to track down the spelmans, the local musician who is called for all weddings, celebrations, and funerals."

"As an accomplished guitarist and player-by- ear, Thomas says he expects few problems with the instruments or the music.

In Norway he plans to spend some time in the province of Hardanger. Here, he says, one of the few ancient folk instruments, the Hardanger fiolin, is still played and Thomas is arranging to study with Sigbjorn Osa, the finest living Hardanger fiolider.

Thomas defines folk music as that which "has been handed down orally, not written or recorded. This indicates the song's wide acceptance. The other important requirement is that the song be rooted in the country's traditional instruments."

He expects to buy a nykkelharpa as soon as possible and when he returns to the Swedish province of Dalarna "the midsummer festival will have begun and I can sit with my nykkelharpa and take part in the celebration."

Trinity College is one of only 35 private colleges and universities invited by the Thomas J. Watson Foundation to submit candidates for the prestigious fellowships. The fellowships provide a break in which the graduating senior may thoroughly explore his or her particular interest in a disciplined way while developing a more informed sense of international concern.

Presidential Campaign Issues File Created

The College Library is establishing a comprehensive Presidential Campaign Issues File. The File will contain all the position papers of each of the candidates now seeking the office of President, and will be located in the Government Documents Department of the Library.

The College Library has received the position papers of Ford, Carter, Byrd, Udall, and Carter, Udall, and Ford. Trinity expects to receive shortly the position material from Jackson, Wallace, Church, Harris and possibly, Shriver.

The project is the result of the combined efforts of Peter J. Knapp, Reference Librarian, and Clyde D. McKee, Jr., a member of the Political Science Department.

Professor McKee said, "There is an obvious need for the Presidential Issues File. Recently my environmental law students have been investigating which of the candidates had the clearest and strongest positions on environmental policy. None of the students had read any of the candidates' environmental position papers. The same true was with my state and local government students. With the File, faculty members will be able to prepare assignments using comparative issue analysis, an area that has been under-utilized as a teaching tool.

The purpose of the project is to provide a convenient resource for students, faculty members, reporters, and members of the Hartford community who wish to compare the policy positions of the various candidates.

Peter Knapp is enthusiastic about the project because it encourages students to delve deeper into the resources of the Library. He said, "Once students have examined the positions of the candidates, they may wish to research the issues thoroughly and thereby come to a conclusion. We are planning an excellent collection of government documents and reports in our Documents Department. We are one of the few depositories of government documents in the entire Capitol Region and are pleased to make the issues File available to members of the general public."

Apprentice Research Grant Awarded By NSF

Trinity College is one of only 165 institutions throughout the country to be awarded grants in the National Science Foundation's Undergraduate Research Participation Program. Altogether, 827 proposals were submitted by various schools for NSF consideration.

The NSF announced in March that it has awarded the College $19,000 to enable students to engage in independent research and study. The grant will fund research to be conducted this summer by ten Trinity students who will work in the areas of biological sciences, chemistry and engineering.

Professor James M. Van Stone, assisted by eight faculty members, will guide the students, mainly on a one-to-one basis. The interdisciplinary projects are designed to present the students' knowledge of basic research techniques and to help them develop scientific creativity.
From Dickens to Joyce to Berrone

It's a long way from Hartford to Padua, but Professor Andrea Bianchini '54, M.A. '58, followed the trail and struck paydirt. In February he came to Trinity with an exhibit and a lecture to tell what he had found.

The story began over a year ago when Dr. Berrone, now associate professor of English at Fairfield University, Connecticut, discovered in Richard Ellmann's biography "James Joyce" a reference to a letter Joyce had written to his brother in 1912. In the letter Joyce wrote: "Today I had to write my English theme. Dickens, and saw my English mind and ugly spinsters from the 'tide little island'—a most dreadful trump (reformed spellings)."

This was all Berrone needed. He knew that Joyce, badly in need of a job, had taken a series of exams at the University of Padua in order to qualify for a teaching position in Italian public schools. Berrone requested a sabbatical and went to Padua where he asked the university archives for the letter. He found something, to one had ever thought to do before. And there it was, Joyce's essay, which becomes an essay on the Renaissance, translations and assorted correspondence.

Berrone, quoted in the New York Times, said: "I was stunned. I am still stunned.

The University of Padua's exam records show that Joyce got 30 out of a possible 50 on his Renaissance essay, 50 out of 50 for the Dickens essay and for translation Italian into English 55 out of 60. This was more than enough to pass but he told that his Dublin degree wasn't good enough for the Padua degree. Had he been declined, it is possible that in the late thirties Joyce may have been a pensioner of the Italian public schools.

To Louis Berrone, the newly discovered essays provided invaluable insights to the creative, though seemingly unlikely, links between Joyce and Dickens.

Career Advisory Program Beyond Expectations

By Sue Weisberg '76

In less than four months the new alumni and parent career advisory program has achieved a remarkable level of participation. Since November about 900 alumni and parents in 43 states have volunteered to serve as career advisors.

In addition to talking with students about their own kind of work, 135 advisors have agreed to provide paid or volunteer internships, either during the summer or the semester, for the students.

The response has been so overwhelming that Gerald Hansen, director of alumni and parent programs, is now stationed in his office with his schedule of appointments.

Dr. Christopher Shinkman, director of career counseling, said, "This program can't help but broaden the students' horizons, teach them skills, and allow them to sample the world of work. It's a learning experience, just as it is for the advisors." Dr. Shinkman added that the program is "a win-win situation for all involved." The program is funded by unrestricted gifts for general budgeted operations and required study grants.

Dr. Shinkman explained, "This has been a startling response; there's an amazing outpouring for this institution. Our alumni are an enormous valuable resource that we ought to be making use of."

Because the program is in its early stages, not all the students have made use of it yet. Therefore, some of the alumni and parents who have volunteered as advisors may not be contacted for a while. Mr. Hansen and Dr. Shinkman said that they hope this does not inconvenience the advisors.

Annual Giving Now At Two-Thirds of Goal

About one third of the College's Annual Giving goals still remain to be raised before June 30.

According to President Lockwood, "progress is ahead of the goals for this year. Trinity needs to have raised $500,000 in annual gifts to sustain the educational program budgeted for this year. Since last fall, when the Annual Giving campaign began, many alumni, parents, and others have generously contributed with gifts totaling some $344,000.

"With each of our annual funds—the Alumni Fund, Parents Fund, Friends of the Trinity Fund, Business and Industry Associates—continuing during the Campaign for Trinity Values, it becomes even more essential that we attract more donors to both fund-raising efforts. Annual gifts are necessary for the short-term support of each year's programming, and capital gifts, such as we are seeking, over a period of years in the Campaign for Trinity Values, are needed to provide long-term strength.

"Without both kinds of help, independent colleges like Trinity could hardly hope to remain in the ranks of America's best institutions.

"We hope that the many alumni, parents, and others who have not yet contributed to the annual fund will be able to do so soon."

At the beginning of April, gifts to The Alumni Fund tallied $209,000, from 2900 alumni contributors. The Alumni Fund goal is $300,000. Gifts from 400 current and former students totaled $68,000, toward the Parents Fund goal of $100,000.

Gifts from friends totaled $24,000, toward a Friends of Trinity Fund goal of $30,000. Business and Industry Associates had contributed $44,000 toward a goal of $60,000.

The Annual Funds count only unrestricted gifts for general budgeted purposes of the college during each academic year. This is the fourth consecutive year that the Annual Giving goal has totaled $500,000. That amount has been attained in each of the past three years.

Grad Center Study

Trinity College will participate in the Greater Hartford Consortium's feasibility study for a center for graduate studies. The program is made possible by a grant of $45,000 from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving.

The Consortium, formed in 1972 with the help of a Hartford Foundation grant, consists of six private educational institutions including four which offer graduate programs. They are: Hartford Graduate Center (formerly R.I.U.P.), St. Joseph College, Trinity College and the University of Hartford.

The other institutional members are Hartford College for Women and St. Thomas Seminary, both offering two-year undergraduate programs.

The grant from the Hartford Foundation provided more than $30,000 to prepare a program and plan for a graduate center. Work on the plan will be concentrated this summer with a promotion expressed to begin early next year. The Consortium Board of Governors in September for review and refinement during the 1976-77 academic year.

Rome Summer Program Director Appointed

Assistant Professor Andrea Bianchini has been appointed director of the 1976 Summer Program of the Barbieri Center in Rome, Italy, formerly known as the Trinity College/Rome Campus. The Barbieri Center, situated high on one of the hills of Rome in a renovated convent, provides fall, spring and summer programs taught by adjunct faculty members of Trinity.

In addition to Dr. Bianchini, professors from Fordham and Wayne State University, as well as experts in their respective fields from colleges in Rome will teach in the summer program. Applications for the summer session, which includes trips to Tivoli, Ostia Antica, and Cerveteri plus free admission to all state monuments, museums and galleries, are being accepted now. Inquiries should be directed to the Barbieri/Rome Center, at Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut 06106.

Bianchini

Professor Bianchini received her B.A. from Barnard College in 1965. After studying in Spain she received the M.A. from Columbia University and the Ph.D. from Rutgers University in 1973.

Prior to coming to Trinity in 1973, Bianchini taught at Douglass College and Princeton University. She studied extensively abroad and was awarded a study grant in Spain by Barnard College, in addition to publishing in journals such as the "Medierranean Review."
BOARD APPROVES BALANCED BUDGET

On March 13 the Board of Trustees formally approved a balanced budget for 1976-77 which will increase student charges by about 7 percent. The increase is smaller, in some cases substantially, than those announced by comparable institutions.

Prior to submitting the budget to the Board, President Lockwood and the administration held a number of meetings with the faculty-student Financial Affairs Committee and also invited the entire student body to comment. Here are his remarks describing the rationale behind the document which will guide the College’s operations during the coming year.

The budget is balanced, a fact that both distinguishes it from the budgets of many private institutions, and is an important consideration in our ability to attract support for Trinity.

Revenues: Critical to the preparation of a new budget is an estimate of revenues which we may realistically anticipate during the coming year. In many categories we cannot expect any significant increases, as with interest earned on short-term investments. Endowment income, representing currently 18.7% of our total educational and general revenues, depends on the movements of the securities market as much as on the diversification of the portfolio.

Although our present capital campaign will add significantly to our endowed funds, much of that new money is in the form of pledges to be paid over the next five years. Moreover, this campaign will have the temporary effect of holding down income from our annual fund-raising efforts.

The College will propose an increase of $275 in tuition for next year, to a total of $3,600. At the same time the general fee will rise by $525 to offset the deficit in Mather Campus Center.

For students using the College’s dining facilities, the rise in the cost of food and services (for example, a hike in the wages and benefits to employees and helpers) requires an increase of $60 to $820 for the year. The room charge will remain at its present level. The increase for students will range between $500 and $360 or approximately a 7% rise.

The primary reason for these increases is inflation. Over the last six years, the adjustments in tuition have barely kept up with inflation, whether measured against the consumer price index or shifts in disposable income. For example, the cost of books and periodicals has risen an average of 15% per year.

Utility expenditures, now nearly $500,000 at Trinity, have risen dramatically as everyone realizes. To prevent a real decline in salaries, the College must also maintain annual increases for its personnel. Although there is some indication that the rate of inflation may decline this year, next year’s increases in tuition and board fees reflect the consequences of the past financial position of the College.

Expenditures: Trinity also wishes to use these additional revenues to sustain a reasonable level of support in its academic programs at a time when most institutions have been forced to cut back. This is most clearly seen by the fact that the instruction budget will increase by $277,000 or 9% over the 1975-76 budget. Instruction will be 38% of the total educational and general budget against 37.2% over the past two years. This allocation compares most favorably with that of other sister institutions and is the highest percentage at Trinity in the last eight years. In addition, we shall purchase a new computer. The College will increase its budget for student workers by $6,000 over 1975-76. The Concert Choir will be funded from College resources, rather than the student activity fee.

Library expenditures will go up 9.4% to ensure that our collections are maintained at an appropriate level. We shall install a library security system.

In the residence halls there has been a long-range program of major renovation which Trinity intends to continue during the coming year. We shall purchase more lounge furniture, and the Resident Assistants will receive compensation for their work. These latter two items amount to an increase of $25,000.

In Admissions we are providing for an additional position to handle the increased volume of applicants and to improve our recruitment and selection process. In response to rising student use of Career Counseling, we shall add staff to that operation.

Financial aid presents an especially difficult problem since both federal and state programs face close legislative scrutiny and a crunch on funds for government operations. Therefore, we have decided to increase the markets for scholarships provided directly from the College’s operating budget by 12% next year. Unhappily this will do little more than maintain our present position unless other sources, including gifts to endowed scholarships, rise also.

In conclusion, the increases proposed seek to meet the intractable inflation which has driven all costs up and to reaffirm Trinity’s commitment to provide the highest quality of undergraduate education possible. In comparison with other independent institutions, these increases are between $50 and $250 less than those already announced by similar colleges and universities in the northeast.

CAMPUS NOTES

Dr. RANBIR VOHRA, associate professor and chairman of the political science department, and Dr. ROBERT B. OXNAM, associate professor of history, who is presently on sabbatical service as director of the China Council of the Asia Society, were members of a special panel discussion on “China Today” at the College. Also, on the panel were Dr. Donald G. Gillen, professor of history at Vassar College and a specialist on Asian Studies, and Sarah J. Warden, a 74 graduate of Vassar, whose specialty is also Asian Studies. The program was sponsored by Trinity and the Vassar Club of Hartford.

PRESIDENT LOCKWOOD has been reappointed as a Director on the Board of the Institute of Living.

“The Vestry in Colonial New England,” an article by Dr. BORDEN W. PAINTER, associate professor and chairman of the history department, appeared in the December 1975 issue of The Historical Magazine of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The article tells how the vestries were developed in colonial New England Anglican Churches. Based on a study of colonial vestry records, it was originally part of his Ph.D. thesis for Yale.

GEORGE NICHOLS, professor and chairman of the theatre arts department, recently began reviewing for the Hartford Courant. He will not review Trinity productions for the paper.

A teacher in the Trinity Upward Bound Program for the past two summers, JIMMIE N. BROWN, was appointed to the Hartford Board of Education in February. A 29-year-old lawyer and poet, Brown is a graduate of Middlebury College and the University of California at Berkeley Law School. He is presently teaching at the University of Hartford.

Dr. CLYDE D. McKEE, JR., associate professor of political science, has been appointed by the President of The American Society for Public Administration to serve on the Ad Hoc Committee on Internships. McKeel, who is director of the Trinity College Legislative Internship Program and Coordinator of the New England Experiential Education Group, will join 18 other educators and public administrators in a nationwide study of the role ASPA should play in the sponsoring of public sector internships.

Hook Mackee

Dr. JAMES L. POTTER, associate professor of English, was the discussion leader for a film on literary criticism at a recent meeting of the Modern Languages Association meeting in San Francisco. Among the speakers were Professor Ignacio Colmenero of Brown University and Professor Norman M. Holland at SUNY, Buffalo.

An associate professor of modern languages at Trinity for 14 years, Hook had a second edition of “Conversations at German One” published in March. The book is unique because it is a complete textbook combined with a workbook in a single binding. It is co-authored with Lobah Kahn of Central Connecticut State College and published by D. Van Nostrand Company.

Despots, assassins, hangmen, hangmen, and mystics — 18 of them — are featured in a study by Dr. DONALD D. HOOK called “Madmen of History.” Published in February by Jonathan David Publishers, Inc., the book offers a closer look at notorious historical characters such as John Wilkes Booth, Ivan the Terrible, Adolf Hitler, Charles Guiteau (the assassin of President James Garfield), and Cervantes, the teenager who shot Archduke Franz Ferdinand, sparking World War I.

Dr. ALBERT L. GASTMANN, associate professor of political science, has returned from Curacao where he spent part of his sabbatical and leave of absence teaching at the Law School of the Netherlands Antilles. Gastmann, who, among other subjects, teaches international law, was specifically interested in studying colonial and inter-regional development in that area, especially as it concerned the independence of Surinam, Guyana and several of the new island nations.

The Trinity College English Department will make a strong showing at the Northeastern Modern Language Association Conference this Spring. Giving papers at the Conference are:

- Dr. DIANNE HUNTER, assistant professor, will present a paper entitled “Between Death and Art: The Mother-Daughters Conflict in Virginia Woolf.”
- Dr. ROBERT CROSMAN, visiting assistant professor, will give a paper on “Some Doubts About The Reader of Paradise Lost.”
- Dr. MILLA RICCO, assistant professor and acting chair of the department, will present a paper entitled “Out of the Spirit of Music: Wagner and Ibsen.”
- Dr. RICHARD P. BENJON, associate professor of English, was elected secretary for the Philadelphia Modern Language Studies Association and co-editor of its newsletter at the December meeting of the association in San Francisco held in conjunction with the Modern Language Association meeting. Also, Benton has contracted to furnish an annual column for the Theatre Arts department.

Current Poe Activities for Poe Studies, a scholarly journal published at Washington State University. He is a member of the Editorial Board for the journal. He also in the process of editing a series of scholarly studies on Poe’s novel "The Narrative of Arthur Gordon Pym" for the American Transcendental Quarterly.

Four members of the Trinity College faculty participated in the Trinity College Bicentennial Celebration during March and April.

Dr. SAMUEL HENDEL, professor of political science, conducted a colloquium on “Equity or Reverse Discrimination? Should Race Be Considered in the Admissions Policies of Graduate and Professional Schools?’’

Dr. JOHN C. WILLIAMS, professor and chairman of the classics department, discussed “Classics in the 18th Century.”

Dr. ROBERT A. BATTIS, professor and chairman of the economics department, spoke on “The Structure of the Economy and Income Distribution, 1770-1976.”

Dr. J. BARD McNULTY, professor of English, showed a slide presentation on “The Changing Face of Hartford.”

These events are among many lectures, musical events and films planned by the Trinity Bicentennial Commission, which is comprised of an enthusiastic, hard-working group of sophomores. Holy Cross and Conn, College, but our real competition will be Dartmouth and U Mass. But can we do it? I know it! Just remember to stay in control, easy up the slides, and dig on the drive! I want to feel that power! I want you to kick your guts out. Concentrate — think about what you’re doing. Most of all think about pulling harder. You’ve always got more to give, you can always pull harder! All right, let’s go ten!

Talk in the boat was minimal as we sprinted short power pieces down the course towards the starting line. It was raining lightly, just enough to soak us completely and to make the course our handles like wet sandpaper on our raw palms. The familiar rhythm of the oars — t-shush-click, t-shush-click — as they really cupped and pushed the water, then popped back forward again, relieved the humming tension in our heads. The mile and a third course seemed to stretch endlessly as we slogging, we reached the chaotic six-man! Come on! Give me their seven! Eight-tenths of a goddamn second. The boat shot forward, the stern surged past us... Robin, it looks like they're Two! Three! Four! ... Eight man! Give me their eight man! Gave me their six man! Another ten to pass! I've got their five man! Nine! Ten! I've got their four man! Another ten to go! Twelve! Give me their three man! Another ten to go! Fourteen! Give me their two man! Twenty! Give me their bow! PULL! PULL! PULL!

Numb with pain, blood choking my eye I could see Dartmouth’s stern. I couldn’t breathe; I couldn’t think, my body slid and kicked, my thoughts scattered, my eye I could see Dartmouth’s stern. Participation Key Says Bant's Prexy

By Pete Zenardi

The headline above led off the Hartford Times interview article with President Lockwood prior to the exhibition hockey game between the larger facilities at Northwood Prep in Lake Placid, N.Y., playing football, basketball, and baseball in addition to being a member of the ski team.

"I had a great opportunity in skiing," he says, and that was the reason I didn't play hockey. But I was a scholarship student and part of my responsibility was to be a manager with the hockey team and I sure played a great deal of hockey on other levels. It is perhaps ironic that the coach at Northwood was Jim Fullickton who coached present Trinity varsity mentor John Dunham at Brown University.

And it will not be Lockwood's debut as a hockey coach either. He was an assistant at Trinity-Pawling Prep in 1951 and 1952.

Lockwood, quite simply, has the right to talk about the glory of participation. Words like "sweat" have only positive meanings for him.

He has been where an awful lot of those multitudes of "experts" have not. He has played the game and he is still playing the game.

Dr. Lockwood is ready to take a look at - the best we can for Trinity over the next two years. Lockwood understands those motifs of glory. He was a four-sport athlete at Trinity College.

Lockwood understands those moments of glory. He was a four-sport athlete at Northwood Prep in Lake Placid, N.Y., playing football, basketball, and baseball in addition to being a member of the ski team.

"The very fact that college professionalism," he says. "The key, he declares, is 'participation, affording people the opportunity to play. Our goal is preparing young people to go to the library and prepare a student for a career in sports. We are not here to serve as a farm team for professional athletes.'

"Success or victory has become more than a cherished goal. It has become the only goal." He says.

Out of control

Lockwood admits he is worried about the "professionalization" of college sports today. "The very fact that college presidents are taking more of an active role in the handling of body check and, more important, the handling of those multitudes of 'experts' have not. He has played the game and he is still playing the game."

Merrill Trust Awards Grant For Library Expansion

Trinity College has received a grant of $50,000 from the Charles E. Merrill Trust. The grant will be used to assist in the building of a major building expansion of the Library.

Trinity's library, already one of the largest collections in the country for a small liberal arts institution, currently contains more than 35,000 volumes. This includes the Watkinson Library, a unique reference collection of volumes on American history and travels, witchcraft and demonology, the Civil War, early American textbooks, and the history of printing.

One purpose of the expansion is to relocate the Watkinson Library so that the collection will be more accessible to the public. Another is that the total library has more than doubled and the student body has nearly tripled since the library was constructed in 1952. Total cost of the program is estimated at $2.5 million.

Planned expansion of the library would increase the present square footage by 34,000 square feet (adding seating space, book shelf space, new work space, and additional room for Trinity's special collections. College estimates that the larger facilities will handle the projected needs of the institution for the next 20 years.

Unfortunately there's not much news this month, so only a few notes from our classmates.

From Sheffield, Massachusetts I received a letter from PETER PEELLE who is currently teaching math at the Berkshire School. In addition to teaching, he has also been acting as an assistant coach and baseball coach. Berkshire School, founded in 1907, is a private coeducational secondary school with an enrollment of 460 students.

Also residing in Massachusetts is HOWIE WIZKOSK, who has recently taken a new job as vice president of Multi-Bank Computer Corporation in Amherst. With his wife and two sons, James and Jason, Howie just moved to Partridge Road in Sutton, Massachusetts. They have taken up cross-country skiing and are really enjoying themselves. Howie reports news from other Massachusetts alumni—perhaps you can all arrange a rendezvous at the slopes (or on the planes).

REUNION

We received a note several months ago from TONY BOUGER who was promoted to associate brand manager to brand manager for Smirnoff Vodka, the largest vodka producer in the world. Tony, who lives in Hartford, Conn. with wife and kids, writes that he's now the associate manager for Pepe's, Inc., located in the U.S.S.R. The Boger family was also increased by one last January with the birth of their third child (see births).

As of the beginning of the year, MARK JOHNSON became the associate pastor of the First Covenant Church of Youngtown, Ohio. He and his wife are now living at 3228 Goyette Lane, Youngstown, 44512.

BILL ASTMAN writes that he is attending graduate school at the University of Hawaii (poor Bill), working towards his M.A. in Asian Studies. Including his Army time and his service in the Peace Corps, he has spent four years in Asia since graduation.

We also heard recently from BOB ORFINSON telling us about the birth of his son, Daniel Allen, who was born almost three years ago (July 6). Bob and his family are living at 714 William Circle, Chapel Hill, North Carolina, where Bob is assistant professor of psychology at the University of North Carolina.

That covers the news. We might offer an early reminder about our tenth reunion this fall. Seems very few from 1966 show up at homecomings here recently; why not plan to now get up to here on campus for the reunion. It will be good to see you.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

This year was a record-breaking year for the varsity basketball program. The team posted the longest winning streak in Trinity basketball history, became the first Trinity basketball team to be selected for the Eastern College Athletic Conference's Division II-III post-season playoff tournament and had two players who had already broken the 1,000 career points mark active on the same squad.

The team exploded for 12 successive victories beginning with a 12-3 win over Union.

In the early going the team's prospects had appeared dim. The Bantams came back from the holiday break with a disappointing 1-2 record. They dropped decisions to U. Hartford 85-70 and Amherst 75-64, while defeating Wesleyan 77-64.

The needed experience which these first few minutes provided the Bantams with a convincing 92-72 win over the Hobart 60-59, and the Amherst 74-60.

Winning streak must end sooner or later and Trinity's was no exception.

The Bantams streak ended when they traveled to Schenectady, N.Y. and received a 104-99 drubbing at the hands of Union. The cagers rebounded with a convincing 92-72 win over Queens in preparation for their match-up against the Jumbos of Tufts, ranked seventh in the nation in Division III.

The Jumbos humbled the Bantams 112-82 although most of the game was far closer than the final score indicated.

The first half was nip and tuck as Tufts headed into the locker room with a 55-54 slim 49-43 advantage. With 13.03 left in the final period Trinity had closed to within four at 64-60. During the remainder of the game Trinity was ice-cold from both floor and line and the Bantams hurt themselves with costly turnovers. The Jumbos took 68 percent from the floor, capitalizing on their advantage and outscores Trinity by a 67-22 margin in the final 13 minutes.

Returning to Hartford for their final two games of the regular season, the Bantams defeated a disciplined and scrappy Cadets five as they hosted the Coast Guard 68-64.

In their last scheduled contest the cagers hosted the University of Hartford Hawks before a partisan Trinity crowd of 2,200 in the Ferris Athletic Center only to sustain a heartbreaking one-point loss.

The Hawks led throughout the first half and at times appeared as though they might break the game wide open. But an emotionally charged Bantam squad continually clipped their opponents’ wings and the first half ended with the Hawks holding a slim two point 37-35 advantage.

Trinity came out hustling in the second half, scoring 12 unanswered points with 15:58 left in the game, and held a 59-51 lead with ten minutes to go. Crucial Trinity turnovers caused the Bantams to lose their defensive rhythm, and Hartford was able to knot the score at 63 apiece inside the three minute mark. With 13 seconds remaining the Hawks went ahead by two. Trinity’s fate was sealed with eight seconds on the clock when Bantam center Brent Cawelti was saddled with a travelling violation underneath his offensive board. Hartford responded with a point from the charity stripe and Co-Captain Steve Haydasz’s 35-foot desperation jump shot as the buzzer sounded left the Bantams one point short at 68-67.

The following weekend, the cagers found themselves bound for North Andover, Massachusetts and the E.C.A.C. playoffs. Trinity matched up against New England’s second ranked Division II squad, bowed to Merrimack College 76-77. While disappointed by the loss, the cagers were proud of their selection as a playoff contender and turned in an admirable effort against one of the best shooting teams in New England. Merrimack hit 34-of-62 shots as the Bantams were held to 38-of-72 attempts. Senior guard Arthur Blake had his finest game of the year as he pumped in seven of eight field goal attempts and two free throws for 16 points. Trinity finished the year with an overall record of 15 wins and six losses. One of the most pleasing surprises for the team was the development of sophomore center Brent Cawelti. Cawelti led the team in rebounding with 183 caroms. He finished as the squad’s third highest scorer with 225 points and proved to be a potent defensive player, blocking a total of 62 shots.

Other Barks finished the season as the team’s leading scorer with 455 points for a 21.1 average. He also led the team in assists with 61 and ended his Trinity career as the fifth highest all time scorer with 1120 points. Co-Captain Wayne Sokoleczyk was the cagers’ second highest scorer with 356 points and a 16.9 average. Wayne led the team in recoveries and was named to the E.C.A.C.’s 1975-76 All-Star squad. He ended his career in a Bantam uniform as the second highest scorer in Trinity history with 1397 career points.

WOMEN’S BASKETBALL

Sophomore forward Nancy McDermott emerged as Trinity’s leading scorer for a second consecutive season with 216 points and a 19.6 scoring average for the season. She scored better than 20 points in six games, her highest high of 25 coming in the Bantams 60-49 loss to Eastern Conn. Freshmen forwards Sue Levine was the team’s second highest scorer with 107 points and a 9.7 per game average.

VARSITY SQUASH

The varsity squash team completed the regular season with an unblemished 16-0 record to become the first undefeated squash team in the College’s history.

Among the many to fall victim to the Bantam raquetteurs were Army (6-3), Dartmouth (5-4), Amherst (4-0), Yale (5-4), Cornell (0-9), Franklin and Marshall (0-9), Stony Brook (9-0), Wesleyan (9-0), M.I.T. (9-0), Amherst (8-1) and M.I.T. (8-1).

Led by senior Tri-Captain Mal Owen, the Bantams swept every match in the season’s six contests. The team’s 16-0 mark included 15 shut-out victories over Bowdoin, Colby, Hobart and Wesleyan.

The Bantams turned in a solid effort in the post-season National Intercollegiate Squash Championships at Williams and finished the competition ranked fifth in the nation.

Junior Bill Ferguson led the Bantams with a perfect individual record of 16-0 while Co-Captain Mal Owen and Co-Captain Charlie Stewart, Trinity swept the two-day mid-season Mason Cup Round Robin Tournament for the second year in a row with 9-0, shut-out victories over Bowdoin, Colby, Hobart and Wesleyan.
