Heavyweight Crew Captures Henley

By Nancy S. Nies '77

HENLEY — that six-letter word that spells the best in world rowing — is an oarsmen's dream. And for Trinity College of Hartford, Connecticut, it was a dream come true.

On July 4, 1976, the Trinity varsity heavyweight crew celebrated the bi-centennial with a thrilling 1 1/2 length victory over Queen's University, Belfast, to capture the prestigious Ladies Challenge Plate at the Henley Royal Regatta in England.

The Henley win is the first in Trinity's crew history, having competed at this international event in three previous years only to be knocked out twice in the finals in 1969 and 1971. The Bantams are also only the second American crew to ever win the much-sought title.

"That was a good one," said Coach Norm Graf, cracking a smile. "I'm numb. It will take a few days before I realize what has happened," he said immediately following the race.

Coach Ivan Backer and Curtis Jordan and the four tough Trinity crews set off on June 20 for the picturesque town of Henley-on-Thames, the home of the world famous 137-year-old regatta. They joined 214 crews from nine countries vying for 12 silver cups. In addition to gaining the Ladies Plate, the Bantam heavies made Henley history by setting a new course record of 6:24 for that event when they beat the strong University College and Hospital of London in the second round. Trinity's performance was impressive indeed, for they shaved six seconds off the old record set the previous year by the University of London crew, holders of the Ladies Plate title.

The Trinity lightweight crew scored the first Bantam victory of the regatta by soundly defeating the Ibis Rowing Club of Chiswick, England, by four lengths in the opening rounds on Thursday. However, due to an unlucky draw, the Bantam lights found themselves up against the Eastern Lightweight Sprint Champions from the University of Pennsylvania on Friday. They fought impressively against the Penn crew but succumbed at last to lose by 2 1/2 lengths in the Thames Challenge Cup.

"We rowed a good race against an excellent crew," said coxswain William Lockwood as the regatta came to a close.

Graduate Scholar Program Begins

In August the Graduate Office announced another new program called "The Graduate Scholar Program." The GSP is designed to enhance the professional status of those who already have an M.A. and "want to keep growing intellectually, but not necessarily for academic credit," according to Graduate Studies Director Ivan Backer.

Graduate Scholars will be able to audit all graduate courses with the instructor's permission. Although the cost is about one-third less than a degree program and there are no mandatory written assignments, all other benefits of a normal degree program are available — faculty contact through lectures and consultations, access to the library, and class discussions. In addition, there are no time limits and privileges continue as long as courses are being audited. The Graduate Office will also keep a permanent record of the courses audited, if desired.

Reunion/Homecoming: A Time To Remember

It will be a time for handshakes and laughter: it will be a time for reporting on a new offspring (or grandchild); it will be a time for trying to match faces with names. But, when the 1976 Reunion/Homecoming gets under way Friday, November 5, it will mostly be a time for nostalgia — remembering a professor, a building that is no longer there, a departed classmate.

More than one conversation will begin with the familiar: "Do you remember the time...? And it will go from there. Memory Lane will suddenly be wider, longer and more beautiful.

The events planned for returning Trinity men and women are numerous and varied. Under the theme of "The Way We Were," there will be something for everybody.

On Friday, November 5, you can:

- Attend classes (remember there haven't been Saturday classes in years!)
- Raise a toast at your Class cocktail party
- Attend the Trinity Club of Hartford's annual smoker and hear Coach Don Miller speak with his usual 'cautious optimism' about the Big Game on Saturday
- Applaud the student Theatre Arts production of "The Mandrake"
- Attend a symposium where members of the faculty will discuss "A Great Leap Backward — Viewing the Present from the Past"
- Hear President Lockwood tell about his trip to far-off Patagonia (complete with color slides)
- Attend the Trinity-Amherst soccer game
- Be a part of the conviviality at the annual buffet luncheon in the Field House
- Cheer the Bantams on the gridiron at the Big Game — Trinity vs. Amherst
- Enjoy the post-game reception and the Reunion/Homecoming Dinner where the Eigenbrodt Cup, Alumni Medals and other awards are made (dancing to follow)

Sunday, November 7 will be a time for honoring in a Chapel service at 10:30 a.m. alumni who have died during the past year.

Formal reunions are planned for the Classes of 1931, 1936, 1941, 1946, 1951, 1956, 1961, 1966 and 1971. However, it is expected that many will also return from non-reunion classes.

"If early indicators are even partially accurate," says George Lynch '61, general Reunion/Homecoming chairman, "there will be a record turnout this year."

Editor's Note: Come join your classmates and enjoy the festivities. And be sure to bring a photo of that new offspring (or grandchild).
Largest Freshman Class Arrives From 28 States

As expected, 523 freshmen arrived on campus Sunday, August 29 for orientation, placement, vocational examinations and class meetings. Members of the largest entering class in Trinity's history came from 28 states plus the District of Columbia, Brazil, the British West Indies, Canada, Colombia, England, Hong Kong, Italy, Malaysia, The Netherlands, Nigeria and St. Croix.

Among the new arrivals are the following sons and daughters of alumni:

- Robert Turner Almquist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Almquist '52, East Hartford, CT
- Cathy Elizabeth Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. Anderson '49, Buffalo, NY
- Susan Smith Angelastro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Angelastro '52, West Hartford, CT
- Robert Heap, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Heap '41, Springfield, MA
- Thomas Angel Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Hunter '52, Glastonbury, CT
- David Joseph Koppel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Koppel '54, Kings Point, NY
- Sean William Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke F. Martin '48, Thomaston, CT
- Elizabeth Linda McGill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W.P. McGill Jr., '51, Glastonbury, CT
- John Brindon MEDFORD, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. BRINDON MEDFORD '52, Wallingford, PA
- Paul Peter Phelan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Phelan Sr. '49, Meriden, CT
- Susan Paine Proctor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Munro H. Proctor '48, Concord, NH
- Paul L. Ricord, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Ricord Jr. '55, Windsor, CT
- Lauri Ann Sivaslan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter K. Sivaslan '54, Torrington, CT
- Peter Chisholm Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Wilson '46, Princeton, NJ

Three Named Full Professors

Three faculty members have been promoted from associate professors to full professors. They are Drs. LeRoy Dunn, Dr. H. McKim Steele, Jr., and Dr. James H. Wheatley.

Admissions Event: For Alumni Progeny

Early returns from a recent letter to alumni regarding an admissions information program for alumni sons and daughters indicate it will be well-attended.

A joint effort of the Alumni and Admissions Offices, the three-day program (September 30-October 2) is designed to help clarify the admissions process.

This initial program is limited to second-year and junior students. It is planned as a yearly event, younger alumni sons and daughters will have an opportunity to attend in subsequent years.

From the time the serve Thursday, September 30, participants will have a busy schedule. They will hear Trinity faculty and students talk about the academic experience on campus, attend classes and counseling sessions, observe a mock admissions meeting where application files are discussed and the admissions procedures demonstrated, hear a general discussion on admissions and financial aid. Participants will eat and sleep on campus.

There will also be time for informal activities. "Saturday night 'house parties" at fraternities, a movie in Cinestudio and a varsity football game with Bates.

Alumni who desire more information should contact Mrs. John W. Martin '37, director of alumni and external relations, at (203) 527-3151, Ext. 214.

Illinois Scholars Now Total 27

Nine incoming Trinity students have been awarded financial aid by the private scholarship fund, Scholarships for Illinois Residents, Inc. Since 1943 the fund has enabled 272 Illinois residents to study at Trinity.

According to President Lockwood, the scholarships are "one of the ways Trinity tries to be of extra value to the community in which it lives. We are pleased to make a Trinity education possible for some of the best students from the Capital Area."

The new recipients of the four-year scholarships are: Giuseppe Capasso, Hartford; Kenneth P. Gorzkowski, Wethersfield; Ann C. Lescher, Windsor Locks; and Catherine A. Menard, Rockville.

Capital Scholars Begin 17th Year

Four Greater Hartford area high school students have been named as Capital Area Scholars at the College. The scholarships will total about $64,000 in financial aid over the next four years.

This is the 17th consecutive year that Capital Area Scholars have been selected at Trinity. Like their predecessors, they must rank in the top one-tenth or better in their classes academically, are involved in extracurricular activities and have worked part-time to defray educational expenses. Of the new scholars, there will be a total of 20 Capital Area Scholars studying at Trinity this fall in addition to other Greater Hartford area students attending the College on other scholarships and forms of financial aid.

According to President Lockwood, the scholarships are "one of the ways Trinity tries to be of extra value to the community in which it lives. We are pleased to make a Trinity education possible for some of the best students from the Capital Area."

The new recipients of the four-year scholarships are: Giuseppe Capasso, Hartford; Kenneth P. Gorzkowski, Wethersfield; Ann C. Lescher, Windsor Locks; and Catherine A. Menard, Rockville.

Three Named Full Professors

Three faculty members have been promoted from associate professors to full professors. They are Drs. LeRoy Dunn, Dr. H. McKim Steele, Jr., and Dr. James H. Wheatley.

Dr. Dunn joined the Economics Department in 1957. He is a specialist in public finance and economic theory, as well as the history of inheritance taxation in England. Prior to joining Trinity, Dunn taught at Brown University.

Dr. Dunn received the B.S. from American University and the Ph.D. from the London School of Economics of the University of London.

In addition to teaching, he has served in an advisory or research capacity for the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve Board, the Tax Institute of America, and the Library of Congress.

Dr. Steele came to Trinity in 1966. His major fields are African and Middle Eastern history, with emphasis on French colonialism. He has studied extensively in France and Algeria.

Dr. Wheatley is a member of the Societe d'Histoire Contemporaine and the African Studies Association. He is currently completing a study of French colonial rule in Africa and an extended essay on historiographical method.

Steele received his B.A. from Princeton University and the Ph.D. from Columbia University. Before joining Trinity's History Department, he taught at Middlebury College for five years.

Dr. Wheatley taught at the University of Illinois and Wesleyan University before joining the English Department of Trinity in 1968. He received his B.A. from Dartmouth College and the Ph.D. from Harvard University.

A third Trinity first-round victory was scored by Michael Mackey and Edward Pardee who came from behind to win easily by four lengths over their Scottish opponents from Edinburgh University. However, the Bantam coxless pair lost in the second round on Friday when they faced the top seeded Australian Olympic pair who went on to win the event two days later. "We were pleased with their performance," Coach Norm Graf of the highly competitive Silver Goblets race. "For such an inexperienced crew, they did well to make the second round.

On Thursday, the Bantams' only disappointment came when the coxless four stroked by Kenneth Bower won by four lengths over the Canadian pair in the second round.

The coxless coxswain was earned by Princess Alexandra, the crowd clapped and cheered, cameras clicked, and parents looked on proudly. Months of preparation, weeks of expectation, and hours and hours of practice were over. The Bantams had shot for the stars — and they had hit them.
Campus Host To Area Youths

The Trinity campus became a modest cultural and athletic mecca for about 500 Hartford area young people this past summer as the College provided facilities and staffing for programs throughout the year, including academic preparation and athletics.

One of the programs is in its eighth year.

The summer sports program primarily for inner-city, disadvantaged youths attracted about 250 Hartford youngsters daily. Trinity has offered the program for seven years and is one of only five colleges in New England to participate in the activity funded by the National Collegiate Athletics Association. Richard Taylor, assistant professor of physical education, once again served as program director for a schedule that included football, track, basketball, swimming, wrestling, gymnastics, tennis, golf, modern dance, soccer, softball and volleyball.

Another 100 low-income high school students participated in the fourth annual Upward Bound Program. The program funded by the U.S. Office of Education provides additional preparation for students planning to attend postsecondary institutions. A low-student-teacher ratio enabled students to receive near-peer-level of individualized instruction.

William D. Guzman directed the program, assisted this summer by Trinity student counselors Prince Riley '77, Earl Gardner '77, Tracey Wilson '77 and Elanora Rowan '78. Neil Stratton '75 coordinated activities in the arts, which culminated in an all-student talent show at the end of the six-week program.

The longest running summer program for area youths was the Summer Arts Program which completed its eighth year. Jointly run by Trinity and the Hartford Parks and Recreation Department, the program this year served more than 150 youngsters aged 10 to 15. Classes were held in pottery, painting, pantomime, swimming, sculptures and other media. Directed by Roger Shoemaker, assistant professor of theatre arts, the program concluded with theatrical, art and aquatic presentations.

Five Associate Professors Named

The College has announced the promotion of five assistant professors to the rank of associate professors. They are Dr. Francis J. Egan, Dr. Gary Jackson, Dr. Dirk A. Kuyk, Jr., Dr. William M. Mace, and Dr. Ralph E. Walde.

Dr. Egan received a B.A. from Providence College and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Fordham University. He joined the Economics Department at Trinity in 1967 and is a specialist in microeconomic theory, quantitative economics, and environmental economics. He is a member of the American Economic Association, the American Museum of Natural History and the Sierra Club.

Dr. Jackson joined the Political Science Department in 1970. He received the B.A. degree from Stanford University and the M.A. and Ph.D. from Yale University. His areas of interest include American political parties, public opinion, and politics and the media. He is a member of the Mellon-sponsored Interdisciplinary Symposium at Trinity.

Dr. Kuyk received a B.A. from the University of Virginia and his Ph.D. from Brandeis University. He has done graduate work at Northeastern University and Trinity. A reporter for the Richmond, Va. News Leader before joining the teaching profession, Kuyk is a specialist in William Faulkner and 18th-century literature. He joined Trinity's English Department in 1970.

Dr. Mace joined Trinity in 1971 and is chairman of the Psychology Department. He received his B.A. from Yale University and earned a Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota, where he held a Public Health Service Fellowship and served as research assistant.

His research concentrates on visual perception and the development of thinking abilities in children.

Dr. Walde graduated from the University of Minnesota Summa Cum Laude and received his Ph.D. from the University of California, Berkeley. He received a National Science Foundation Scholarship for three years and has co-authored "Introduction to Lie Groups and Lie Algebras." He is a member of the American Mathematical Society and the Mathematical Association of America. He has taught at Trinity since 1972.

Instructors Raised To Assistant Rank

Four members of the faculty have been promoted from instructors to assistant professors. They are Dr. Steven L. Christopherson, Dr. Samuel D. Kassow, Dr. Charles W. Lindsey III, and Roger D. Shoemaker. Dr. LeBaron C. Mosesy, Jr. of Hartford has joined the faculty as assistant professor.

Dr. Christopherson joined the Department of Education faculty in 1974. He received the B.A. from Stanford University and the Ph.D. in educational psychology from Cornell University. He had previously served on the faculty of the C.W. Post Center of Long Island University.

Dr. Kassow, Trinity '66, joined the History Department faculty in 1972. He received the M.S. from the London School of Economics under a Fulbright Fellowship. His M.A. and Ph.D. were earned at Princeton University where he was the recipient of Woodrow Wilson and Dantoff Fellowships. In 1971-72 he conducted research studies at Leningrad State University in Russia.

Dr. Lindsey joined the Economics Department in 1975. He received the B.S. and Ph.D. from the University of Texas where he served on the faculty after teaching and conducting research at the Ateneo De Manila University and the University of the Philippines. Roger D. Shoemaker received the B.A. from Yale University and his M.F.A. from Catholic University. He joined the Theatre Arts Department in 1974 where he has directed numerous productions including "The Three Penny Opera," the Brecht-Well Musical, and Goldsmith's "The Stoops to Conquer."

Dr. Mosesy, formerly an assistant professor at Harvard University and an assistant professor at Simmons College, received the B.A., M.A.T. and Ed. D. from Harvard University. He joined the Education Department faculty earlier this year.

PRICE OF ADMISSION — Suffering through physical examinations given by Dr. Harry H. Browne ’51 and Dr. Winfield T. Moyer ’45, two of the Trinity alumni physicians who volunteered to assist with the sports program for inner city youths, are Arman Caldwell and Olin Dukes, both of Hartford.

Mellon Grant Aids Unique Symposium

A grant from the Mellon Foundation has been providing a unique resource for a group of Trinity professors. Called the Mellon Symposium, the program drew this comment from Dr. Milla Riggio, assistant professor of English, who coordinates the series: "The grant enables us who are young faculty to regard it as one of the best in which we have participated. In the present college scene, it provides a really unusual opportunity. Usually, we are asked to teach or write — the private kind of scholarly writing which depends upon a narrowing for the sake of depth and profundity. What the Mellon grant enables us to do — and pays us to do — is to read and to talk with our colleagues in other fields. I have not heard of another grant like it.

As Riggio suggests, the purpose of the symposium is to permit a group of Trinity professors from different fields to explore in detail an area that arises in each field but whose solutions have important consequences for other disciplines.

The Mellon Symposium for 1976-77 is composed of Dr. Drew Hyland, professor of philosophy; Dr. Frank Kirkpatrick, associate professor of religious studies; Dr. Samuel W. Kassow, assistant professor of history; Dr. Alan Fink, assistant professor of psychology and Dr. Milla Riggio. The entire group met twice a week during the summer, joined by visiting theologian from Connecticut College as well as other members of the Trinity community. The summer symposium included five units with the first on the French Revolution, Rousseau and Kant with lecture and discussion meetings led by Drs. Riggio and Hyland. The second was on the English Romantic poets with selections of poetry and prose by Wordsworth, Coleridge and Blake led by Dr. Riggio. The third was on Goethe with Drs. Riggio and Fink as discussion leaders. The fourth was on Hegel with Dr. Hyland leading the discussion and the fifth was Dickens’ “Hard Times” with Dr. Riggio as leader.

This fall the regular bi-weekly meetings will be continued with sessions open to the Trinity community. The authors to be studied will include Marx, Feurbach, Darwin, Nietzsche, Kierkegaard, Melville, Web, Schumann, Schneider, Barth, Adler and Watson. Each symposiast will also present one public lecture for the Trinity community.

In addition, the series featuring well-known scholars in differing fields is scheduled.

Winer Appointed Student Dean

Dr. David Winer, associate professor of psychology, has been appointed dean of students. As dean, Winer would like to devise ways of keeping his finger on the student pulse.

He would like, for example, to establish a student advisory committee to provide students with a voice in campus policy, and to establish a forum for expressing student body concerns as well as providing the dean with the opportunity for discussing his concerns with student representatives.

In addition to his administrative responsibilities, Winer wants to become closely involved with the organization of student government and the Mather Campus Center. He sees an opportunity to extend and develop a sense of community on campus and he promises a weekly staff and desk duty for all students who want to see him.

Winer will continue to teach on a part-time basis.

Joining Trinity as assistant professor of psychology in 1966, Winer was promoted to associate professor in 1971.

He was assistant in psychoacoustics at the Shilling Auditory Research Center in Groton, Conn., from 1960 to 1962, research associate for Experimental Psychophysiology Laboratories at the Institute of Living since 1965, a consulting psychologist at the Newington Children’s Hospital since 1974 and co-director of the Graduate Program in Neurosciences at the University of Hartford/Trinity College/Institute of Living since 1975.

Winer

During 1964-1965, Winer was the recipient of a Predoctoral Fellowship by the National Institute of Mental Health and from 1970 to 1973 was a participant in a National Science Foundation General Science Improvement Program. He is also a participant at Trinity in a Mellon Foundation grant.

Winer is a member of the American Psychological Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Connecticut Psychological Association, the New England Psychological Association and Sigma Xi, a national honorary research society.

He is the author of numerous articles for publication in physiological and other professional journals.

an undergraduate at Trinity and, following his graduation in 1933, joined The Hartford Times full time, remaining with the paper until 1954. During that period he served as education editor, reporter, rewrite man and feature writer assistant city editor, and special writer.

In 1954 he joined The New York Times as a general science reporter, and won eight Publishers Awards from that paper for excellence in writing. In 1969 he became associate director of the American Press Institute, then at Columbia University, to help plan and conduct news seminars for the improvement of daily newspapers in the United States and Canada.

He retired in 1969, after suffering a stroke which had incapacitated him. Mr. Dean died November 22, 1975, while trying to save his dog from a fire in his New York City apartment.

Mr. Hofmann, now a special writer for the American Insurance Association, New York, was a reporter and editor for The Hartford Times from 1929 through 1954, working with Mr. Dean.

established a fund to honor Burger, M. Dean, an alumnus of the College Department, Dr. Frank Child.

The College has also received an Annual Giving goal for the improvement of daily newspapers in the States and Canada, 1965.

Burger’s award is particularly significant, as it is the first to be made any time during that period.

the income from the fund will be used to support lectures, seminars and other activities of the Biology Department.

Gifts received so far from faculty, alumni and friends enabled the fund to award the first scholarship last year’s Commencement “The J. Wendell Burger Prize in Biology,” an award given to a senior biology major considered by the department to have demonstrated the greatest promise in biological arts and sciences.

Peter Jay Morin ’76 from Bristol, Conn., a promising herpetologist who will pursue the Ph.D. in zoology at Duke University, was named the first recipient. At Durham he has also been appointed professor of Modern Languages at the State University of New York in Potsdam, N.Y., for three years.

Biology and Book Funds Established

The faculty of the Biology Department has established a fund to honor the distinguished career of J. Wendell Burger, long-time professor of Biology.

Burger was formerly a research chemist with the Olin Matheson Company and also taught at Washington and Jefferson College and at Northwestern University. He graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1949 from Western Reserve University and received his Ph.D. in 1952 from Northwestern University. Trinity promoted him to full professor in 1969.

His research on the synthesis and chemical characteristics of pyrimidines and arynes (a special group of organic compounds) has been supported by grants from the Research Corporation and the National Science Foundation. He is currently working on the spectroscopic evaluation of parameters correlating the chemical reactivity of an organic compound with its molecular structure.

He is a member of the American Chemical Society, which has published numerous articles by him, and the American Association of Advanced Scientists.

Kamber Chairs Languages Dept.

Dr. Gerald Kamber, who calls himself a generalist with special concentration in French and Italian Literature of the Renaissance and 19th century, has been appointed professor and chairman of the Department of Modern Languages.

Professor and chairman of the Department of Modern Languages at the State University of New York in Potsdam, N.Y., for three years.

Kamber received a B.A. from Rutgers in 1950, an M.A. from Middlebury in 1958 and a Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University in 1962. He also holds a Certificate, Institut de Phonetique, Universite de Paris, Certificat, Phylologie Romande, Ecole de Preparation and a Certificate, Litterature Contemporaine, Ecole de Preparation.

He also attended the Scuola estiva per gli stranieri, Universita di Firenze.

Kamber, who has taught at Rutgers, Goucher, Bowdoin, Kent State, was director of the summer program in French at Harvard in 1963, 1966 and 1969.

In 1964, Kamber was coordinator of an elementary French program conducted by the Peace Corps at Princeton and in 1965 was professor of linguistics and phonetics at a National Defense Education Act (NDEA) Institute at Hamilton College.

Johns Hopkins Press published his book “Max Jacob and the Poetics of Cubism” in 1972. A novel entitled “In Darkest America” is in progress and he has published many articles in leading scholarly journals.

Boebko To Head Chemistry Dept.

Dr. Edward Boebko, a member of the Trinity faculty since 1955, has been appointed chairman of the Chemistry Department.

Boebko was formerly a research chemist with the Olin Matheson Company and also taught at Washington and Jefferson College and at Northwestern University. He graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1949 from Western Reserve University and received his Ph.D. in 1952 from Northwestern University. Trinity promoted him to full professor in 1969.

Legislative Interns Study Media Reporting

"Reporters, Legislators Disagree on News Accuracy" read the headline in the Associated Press article carried by the New York Times in early September. The headline cited a study in which poor quality of reporting was found, and the newspaper's editors felt they were not being fairly portrayed. The study was conducted by Trinity's Legislative Internship Program directed by political science professor Bruce Wessel '77.

The study, which surveyed 16 reporters and 187 legislators, examined their perceptions of the media's role in the legislative process. The findings were presented at the annual Legislative Internship Seminar.

- Neutrality: Somewhat surprisingly, only 31 percent of the reporters considered themselves neutral in their reporting. Fewer than a third of the legislators agreed.

- Competitiveness: Questions involving competitiveness showed a wide divergence of viewpoint. Roughly half the reporters believed themselves either highly competitive or competitive with each other. Only one-third of the legislators felt that way; 46 percent of them felt that neither was true.

- Preparedness and Thoroughness: Both groups tend to agree that reporters are generally well-prepared for their job. Lawmakers expressed more concern about a lack of in-depth study and thorough coverage of issues before the legislature. Reporters, in turn, place the blame on a shortage of manpower.

- Accuracy: Here, the study touched a tender spot. Says the report, "A question inquiring about the accuracy of reporters polarized the two groups more than any other query. Seventy percent of the legislators felt the news media's accuracy was critical, with only five percent labeling the media as 'very inaccurate.' One legislator reflected a concern mentioned earlier. 'The problem is not accuracy — rather inadequate scope and depth in covering the issue.' Another said, 'Hopefully, the media could do a better job in both areas.'"

- Impact of Media on Public Opinion: "The state of the art is clearly that the media are a major influence on the actions of the legislature. Legislators and reporters, if properly informed, could be very effective in helping to move the public toward more responsible government.

- Role of the Media: All groups agreed that the media's role in the legislative process is to inform and educate the public about the legislative process and its events. The study also found that the media is in a powerful position to influence the public's perception of the legislature.

- Future Directions: The study recommends that future research should focus on the interplay between the media and the legislative process. It also suggests that more longitudinal studies are needed to understand the impact of the media on the public's perception of the legislature.

The study concluded that the media's role in the legislative process is complex and multifaceted. It is essential for both legislators and reporters to work towards a more collaborative relationship to ensure a more accurate and comprehensive reporting of legislative activities.

Twice widowed, he is survived by his third wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Spingerin, Mrs. Emily Beck, and Mrs. Catherine Cooper; and eight grandchildren. Professor Morison was born July 9, 1887 in Boston. He graduated from Harvard in 1908, and received his Ph.D. from that institution in 1912. He taught at the University of California before accepting his first appointment in 1925.

He served with the U.S. Army during World War II, seeing service as a member of Delta Psi fraternity, and was vice president of the university. In 1921, Dr. Morison went to Oxford University, accepting the first Harvard professorship in European history. In 1926, he was a member of the American delegation to the International Geological Congress.

Dr. Morison proposed to write an early account of the U.S. Navy's record in World War II, and in 1942 was commissioned as a lieutenant commander in the Navies Reserve. From 1942 to 1945 he covered nearly all battles and naval areas of the war. His notes, together with allied and enemy records and reports, became the basis of "The History of U.S. Naval Operations in World War II," a 15-volume work that was completed in 1962. During the war, he was editor of REA, a monthly journal of naval history.

In 1940 he was president of the American Historical Society, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the American Historical Association. Dr. Morison was elected to the Board of Fellows, Academy of Achievement in 1963, and was a member of the National Academy of Sciences.

Mr. Shoag had his bachelor of arts degree from Columbia University in 1972.
When the Trinity football Bantams journey to Brunswick, Maine on September 25 to open their season against the Bowdoin Polar Bears, they will be confronting several uncertain situations. The last meeting was in 1957. Such unfamiliarity leads to uncertainty and caution on the part of both teams. The most interesting aspect of these teams is that neither team nor fans will know what situations or final results to expect. There will be no surprises, only plenty of exciting action.

The opening game will be also the first test for the two uncertain units on the Trinity team, the offensive line and linebackers. These two units were hit hard by graduation and must be solidly rebuilt if the Bantams are to succeed in 1976. Some talented but inexperienced underclassmen will fill the vacant positions and their ability to overcome the inexperience will be important in carrying Trinity through its tough schedule of New England small college football.

Overall, the outlook is favorable for the football team this year. With 11 returning lettermen among a group of 31 lettermen, Coach Don Miller will field a team possessing good overall depth and experience. The defensive line will be the strongest unit and will be composed mostly of upperclassmen. There will be several experienced players in both the offensive and defensive backfields. The confidence of these experienced players should add a great deal of experience to the defensive line and linebacker units into cohesive and consistent parts of the team.

Senior quarterback John Gillespie will be running the offense for the Bantams. Gillespie saw considerable action last season, appearing in five games and completing 12 of 41 passes for 112 yards. He is a southpaw who likes to throw the ball as much as he likes to run; his style of play will add interest and excitement to the Trinity offensive attack. Gillespie will be backed up by junior Rob Claffin and sophomore Mike Foye, who led last year's freshman team to a 4-1 season.

The offensive backfield should be a productive area this year. There are several experienced runners returning who should add up to a strong running attack. Senior Mike Brennan and sophomores Joe Delano, Fred Heath, and John Flynn are the top candidates for the halfback positions. Senior Rick Sokolov and juniors Gene Harvey and senior Duffy Shea will play the wings. The middle of the forward line is talented and experienced in most positions. Many talented underclassmen were able to obtain valuable varsity experience this past season in 1975, and this should make Trinity's offensive line a cohesive and consistent part of the team for 1976. The wide open this fall. The services of the two players who shared the job in 1975 have been lost for the 1976 season; one has graduated while the other will be spending the fall semester studying in Rome. Three players will be competing for the goalie position. Junior Alec Waugh and sophomore John Rafferty will be joining incoming freshman Tom Adil in a battle for the starting nod.

Trinity soccer plays a demanding schedule, but it is a young team with a lot of talent. If they can put together all the individual talent along with a positive team attitude, the Bantam booters could produce a satisfying and impressive 1976 season.

New Coach For Varsity Soccer

The soccer team enters the 1976 season under the guidance of a new head coach, Robert "Robie" Shults. Shults takes over the coaching reins from Roy Dath, who is on leave of absence this fall. Dath coached soccer at Trinity for the past 24 years, compiling an impressive record of 135 wins, 71 losses, and 15 ties. Robie Shults has coached the freshman soccer team for 19 years with an overall record of 75 wins, 43 losses, and 6 ties, with undefeated seasons in 1957 and 1967. Shults is also head coach of basketball and baseball at Trinity.

Coming off a disappointing 3-7-2 season in 1975, the soccer team looks forward to this fall. The 12-game schedule is a challenging one, which opens with Trinity hosting Central Connecticut on September 28. With 11 returning lettermen, the team's experience is well-balanced, spread out both in the offensive and defensive positions. Many talented underclassmen were able to obtain valuable varsity experience last year, and this level of experience is a favorable quality for improving the success of Trinity soccer in the next few years.

Offensively the Bantams look good; the front line is talented and experienced. Senior co-captain Alexander Harvey and senior Duffy Shea will play the wings. The middle of the forward line will be a group of players with high scoring potential. Senior Mark Moore and juniors Greg Maddling and Tom Lenahan will probably be the starters in that group.

Controlling the end-to-end action is the job of the halfbacks, and Trinity has a good group of experienced returnees to play at the midfield. Senior Rick Sokolov and juniors Gene Ko, Mike Kluger, and Aaron Thomas will be the key performers at this position.

The defense will be anchored by senior co-captain Jim McGrath. He will be joined by capable fullbacks John Kendall '77, Bill Dodge '78, and Randy Pearsall '78. Sophomore Jeremy Merry should also see plenty of game time.
