Trinity is one of only 24 colleges and universities in the nation to be selected for a management development and training program funded by the Exxon Education Foundation. It is the only small private college in New England to be included in the program designed to improve the overall functioning of higher education organizations. More than 450 institutions asked to join the project.

The program, which has just begun, will be carried out by a non-profit corporation, the Higher Education Management Institute. According to the Institute, the program “will encompass academic, student and business affairs, coordinating their management development and training activities, while focusing on meeting the goals and objectives of the institution as a whole.”

As one of 24 pilot institutions, Trinity will work with the Institute in assessing its needs and in planning the management development and training activities required. The instructional program for management based on this is scheduled to go into effect next Fall.

Although the needs of the colleges will vary, the Institute thinks that the main training activities will be in four areas: institutional goals and objectives and the political, economic and social environment in which the school functions; skills for using modern procedures and techniques of resource acquisition, management, control and decision-making; individual and group motivation and decision-making techniques; and individual skills and interests.

President Lockwood said of the program, “We are committed to having a management capability in this institution that will allow us to deliver the best possible educational, research and public service activities in the most effective way. We believe that this program can significantly increase our capability to do this.”

Management Development Study

For the first time in the eleven-year history of the Austin Arts Center at Trinity College, a resident theatre company will offer a seven-week season of professional theatre, June 14 through July 31, under the artistic direction of Roger Shoemaker, assistant professor of theatre arts.

The Summertime is part of a program backed by the College designed to open the campus to the community, and will be supplemented by the ongoing carillon concerts, the chamber music series and the Trinity Film Society summer series.

The Festival, called TRINITY ALIVE, was instigated by Ivan Backer, director of graduate studies and community education, who secured a grant in July 1976 from the Connecticut Commission on the Arts, to study the feasibility of such a program.

With a favorable prognosis in hand, the College approved in mid-December.

In conjunction with the Festival, aspects of the program college credit workshops will be offered in theatre and dance with George Nichols III, professor of theatre arts and Judy Dworkin, assistant professor of dance.

On February 1, Nancy Fletcher, former promotion director for the Hartford Civic Center Shops and active volunteer arts publicist, was hired to coordinate the project. She and John Wolesley, Technical Director of the Austin Arts Center, are currently exploring the possibility of children’s theatre, Peace Train appearances, dance concerts, art exhibits and recitals. The Trinity-sponsored community programs, Upward Bound and Summer Arts will also be involved with the project.

Subscriptions for the summer theatre will be available. For ticket or program information, call 527-8062.
Pew Memorial Trust Announces Grant To Aid Major Library Expansion

Trinity has been awarded a $100,000 grant by the Pew Memorial Trust to assist in the financing of a major building expansion of the Library.

Referring to the gift, President Theodore D. Lockwood said, "Clearly, this grant provides a tremendous impetus to our current Capital Campaign and will be instrumental in funding our Library construction project." Total construction costs for Expansion of the Library are estimated at $2,500,000.

The Pew Memorial Trust, one of several charitable trusts established by the Pew family of Pennsylvania, was created in 1948 in memory of Joseph N. Pew, founder of Sun Oil Company, and his wife, Mary Anderson Pew.

New Faculty Members Join Trinity Staff

In addition to the regular faculty members profiled in earlier issues, 14 full-time faculty have joined the staff this academic year. They are: William K. Bellingler, instructor in economics. Bellingler received the B.A. from Michigan State University, the M.S. from Cornell, where he has served as a research assistant. William E. Bonnice, visiting associate professor in mathematics. He received the B.S. from Syracuse University and the M.S. and Ph.D. from the University of Washington. He has taught at the University of New Hampshire, Michigan State University, University of Western Ontario and the Middle East Technical University.

Lenaard J. Davis, visiting assistant professor of English. He received the B.A., M.A. and M.Phil. from Columbia University. He has been a preceptor at Columbia and an adjunct lecturer at City College, CUNY. He has also been a film critic and editor of "Noize," a poetry magazine.

Constance Holton, artist in residence. She received the B.A. from the University of Massachusetts and the M.S. from Smith College. She has studied at the University of Cronelie, France, the University of North Carolina and Villanova University.

Nancy O. Kirkland, assistant professor of psychology. She received the B.A. from Barnard College and the Ph.D. from Columbia University. A Postdoctoral Fellow in Psychology at Florida State University, she taught at Augsburg College and Columbia University.

Paul M. Kuznesof, visiting associate professor of chemistry. He received the B.S. from New Brunswick University and the Ph.D. from Northwestern University. He has taught at San Francisco State University, Universidad Estadual de Campinas (Brazil), and the University of Michigan.

Michael E. Leitz, lecturer in history. He received the B.S. from Trinity and the M.A. from Yale University where he was a graduate teaching assistant.

Susan McClary, visiting assistant professor in music. She received the B.A. from Southern Illinois University and the M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard University, where she spent four years as a teaching fellow.

John C. Metcalfe, lecturer in psychology. He received the B.A. from the University of Texas and the M.S. from Yale University, where he was a teaching fellow.

Phyllis Roberts, artist in residence, dance. She received the B.A. from Trinity and was a President's Fellow in Philosophy. She has been a member of the Trinity College Dance Program for four years.

Tamar Rudovsky, assistant professor in philosophy. She received the B.A. from Simmons College and the M.A. and Ph.D. from Brandeis University, where she was a teaching assistant.

Marianne Wedchel, visiting assistant professor in English. She received the B.A. from LaGrange College and the M.A. and Ph.D. from Purdue University. She has taught at the University of Connecticut.

Stephen Wood, artist in residence, Fine Arts. He received the B.F.A. and the M.F.A. from the Hartford Art School and has been a President's Fellow in Philosophy (Mexico) and Maryland Institute of Art. He has taught at the Hartford Art School, the Wadsworth Atheneum (Hartford) and has directed the Summer Regional Arts Program at Trinity.

Alonzo G. Grace, Jr., adjunct professor of computing. He received the B.S. from Trinity College and the M.A. from Yale University. He has taught at Trinity and has been associated with RCA and Travelers Insurance Corporation, where he was chief computer scientist. He has also been an independent computer consultant.

The major addition to the Library will increase its size by 34,000 square feet and provide, among other things, 250 new seating spaces, shelving for 200,000 more volumes, and an additional 2,650 square feet of work space.

President Lockwood said that the Library "has long been regarded as one of the finest, most extensive small college libraries in the country" but that growth of the student body and the increasing size of the book collection has reached the point where an expansion of the present facility is necessary. He noted that new books are being acquired at the rate of 10,000 volumes a year. The total number in the Trinity Library now exceeds 550,000 volumes.

In A Talk To Parents

President Lockwood Answers:

"Why Can't Education Be As Efficient As General Motors?"

With the recent release of the Financial Report of the Treasurer of the College for the year 1975-76, it seems apparent to a portion of the remarks President Lockwood addressed to the parents of Trinity students at the annual parents' dinner late in the fall. The report of Treasurer Robert A. Pedemonti noted that in fiscal 1976 "the College completed its sixth consecutive operating in the black. . . . It is gratifying to note that, as of this writing, our projections for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1977, indicate another successfully balanced year."

Dr. Lockwood titled this segment of his talk to parents "Why Can't Education Be As Efficient As General Motors?" His response is below.

"It is an unbecoming to attack a major corporation, but it is irresistible to counter by observing that our charges have not risen as sharply as have car prices year by year. Nor do we have to recalculate our models! But I will carry on that point long enough for anyone to start getting ideas. More seriously, we have always had to pay attention to the allocation that we never worried about costs and that we are never efficient according to some standard which, in truth, may be as mysterious as the dormitory lottery.

"What can we say? First, education is an enterprise whose product is not assembly-line produced, but designed for obsolence, and has no fixed price. Those words may carry some comfort, but the trouble is basically that our product cannot be compared with industry. Education is labor-intensive as the faculty economists remind me regularly: it is the engagement of older and younger scholars in a process that does not lend itself to efficiency experts, thank goodness.

"Second, education is non-profit. That does not mean that we pay no attention to the bottom line. As a matter of fact, Trinity has an almost unique record of running a surplus in the black during the recent period when so many institutions showed red ink. Also important is the susstainance supplied by donors. We have long been grateful for the unusual generosity of parents, alumni, and friends of Trinity. Our endowed funds provide, among other things, an additional $2,500,000. They are:

- The Henry and Edith B. Smith Fund
- The Theodore D. Lockwood Fund
- The Sun Mutual Life Fund
- The Emil H. and Frances B. Barnum Fund
- The Paul M. Kuznesof Fund
- The Constance Holton Fund
- The Wadsworth Atheneum Fund
- The Hartford Art School Fund
- The Summer Regional Arts Program Fund
- The Trinity College Dance Program Fund
- The Trinity College Student Government Fund
- The Trinity College Faculty Association Fund
- The Trinity College Alumni Association Fund
- The Trinity College Student Senate Fund
- The Trinity College Student Union Fund
- The Trinity College Student Activities Fund
- The Trinity College Student Life Fund

"There is more one can say. If we measure efficiency and cost consciousness by the accuracy with which we forecast budgets and manage money, our record at Trinity is impressive. What university can come within 1% of its projections eight months later? We have exercised austerity longer than the national economy, and we pass on to the consumer only those increases which are absolutely necessary and which reflect primarily salary increases and price increases which are not passed on by our suppliers. That is the mark of the efficient, not the inefficient entrepreneur.

"But perhaps most important has been our ability to improve the quality of education during a period of time when faculty and student population were expanding. We have added classrooms and laboratories, and increased our state-of-the-art facilities.

"On the face of it this is an unanswerable argument, yet when we pass on to the consumer only those increases which are absolutely necessary and which reflect primarily salary increases and price increases which are not passed on by our suppliers, that is the mark of the efficient, not the inefficient entrepreneur. And there is no charge.

Chair of Applied Science Established by Roosa—Bronzino Named Incumbent

Vernon D. Roosa, noted inventor and industrial designer, has contributed funds to establish a professorial chair of applied science. In announcing the professorship, President Lockwood said: "We are proud to establish this chair in honor of Vernon D. Roosa. It is especially fitting that Dr. Roosa, a distinguished and creative inventor himself, should fund a professorship to encourage practical creativity in others."

The Roosa Chair is scheduled for activation early this year and the first doctor of science for his original research of applied science. Dr. Roosa, who holds more than 300 patents, is adjunct professor of machine engineering at Trinity.

Bronzino, Dr. Joseph D. Bronzino, professor of applied science degree in electrical engineering from Worcester Polytechnic Institute in 1959, the M.S. from the Postgraduate School and in 1968 the Ph.D. from the University of Connecticut Health Center. Dr. Bronzino received the bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering from Worcester Polytechnic Institute in 1959, the M.S. from the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School and in 1968 the doctorate from Worcester Polytechnic Institute. He is a licensed professional engineer. He joined the faculty in 1968.

Roosa Dr. Roosa, who holds more than 300 patents, is adjunct professor of machine design at Trinity. In 1967 the College awarded him the honorary degree of doctor of science for his original research in diesel fuel injection systems.

The Roosa Chair is scheduled for activation early this year and the first doctor of science for his original research of applied science.

1977 REUNION DATES

The following dates have been announced for class reunions this year which fall on the weekend of the Williams game.

OCTOBER 8, 9

Barrett Appointed Dana Professor

Leonard E. Barrett, formerly associate professor of religion at Temple University, has been appointed Dana Professor of Religion and Intercultural Studies. His appointment as professor of religion is effective immediately and he will assume the responsibilities of director of the Program in Intercultural Studies in September, 1977. Dr. Barrett is a nationally known author and anthropologist.

Dana Professorships are awarded under a grant supported by the Dana Foundation which recognizes outstanding professors by underwriting a part of their salary. A limited number are awarded nationally each year. Dr. Barrett's is the third Dana professorship on the Trinity faculty and the second this year with an interdisciplinary emphasis.

Barrett

He has published five major books, the most recent being "Primitive Religion" and "Temple University. He has taught in public schools and has served as pastor of an Evangelical United Brethren Church, as well as colleges in Puerto Rico and Jamaica. While at Temple he was named visiting professor at Swarthmore College and at the University of Pennsylvania.
CAMPUS NOTES

David L. Reiner, assistant professor of mathematics, recently gave a talk at the American Mathematical Society Convention in Urbana, Illinois, entitled "Sequences of Fractional Binomial Type." He also presented the Mathematics Colloquium at Amherst. His talk was about Polya's "picture writing" and was titled "The Ultimate Reality in Mathematics" (tongue-in-cheek). A paper, "Multivariate Sequences of Binomial Type" will appear in Studies in Applied Mathematics.

An exhibition of environmental sculptures and drawings by Stephen W. Covey, artist, residence for studio arts, was held recently at the Footprint Galleries in Manchester, Conn. The show was titled "Between the Eye and the Brain."

MILLI SILVESTRI, assistant director of the Visual and Performing Arts, has been appointed to the Regional Advisory Committee for the Hartford Courant's annual Scholastic Writing Awards Contest. The committee helps recruit judges and provides a sounding board for making decisions about contest changes.

Judith Rohrer, instructor in fine arts, gave a lecture entitled "Catalanism and Modernismo: Antonio Gaudi, Spain 1909-1914" in October at the auspices of The Institute for Architecture and Urban Studies in New York City. She also taped a TV show for "Camera 3" on Gaudi in New York City at the CBS studio on December 6. Appearing on the program with her were such art celebrities as George Collins, Julia L. F. Sert and James Johnson Sweeney.

Alfred Garofolo, director of campus security, has been invited to serve as a member of an evaluation team which will review the effectiveness of the "Law Enforcement: Police Science and Administration" program at Tunxis Community College.

Dr. Ranbir Vohra, Dana professor of political science, was invited to give a paper on the Literature and Revolution in India in the panel on Indian literature at the American Association of Teachers of Indian Languages in Seattle in August 1976. Upon the death of Mao Tse-tung, Dr. Vohra was interviewed by Channels 3 and 30 and by Hartford newspapers. He also wrote an article "After Mao: A Crisis of Authority" which appeared in the Hartford Courant.

Frank Marchese, athletic equipment manager, was recently elected president of the Athletic Equipment Managers' Association.

A new book, "Modes of Literature," by Dr. J. Baro McNulty, James Goodwin Professor of English, was recently released by Houghton Mifflin Company of Boston. The book traces major changes in literary styles from the middle ages to the present. It is also the author of "Older Than The Nation: The Story of The Hartford Courant." Professor McNulty is currently working on a new project, a study of the narrative in the Bayeux Tapestry, which is an eleventh-century account of the conquest of England by William the Conqueror.

Dr. C. Brent Harold, assistant professor of English, joined a group of English teachers from various colleges and universities to help found a new magazine centered on the interrelationship of literary critical theory and the classroom teaching practice and our present socio-political situation. He serves on the editorial board. His article, "The Intrinsic Sociology of Fiction," has been accepted for publication by Modern Fiction Studies. Another article, "The Value and Limitations of Faulkner's Fictional Method," originally published in 1975 in American Literature, is being reprinted for use in a U.S. Information Agency seminar/lecture series in New Delhi, India.

Dr. Richard P. Benton, associate professor of English, has been honored by having a collection of essays dedicated to him. The essays appeared in the Spring 1976, issue of The Library Chronicle, a publication of the Friends of the Library of the University of Pennsylvania. The collection of essays on Edgar Allen Poe was edited by Dr. Benjamin Franklin Fisher, associate professor of English at Hahnemann Medical College.

George E. Chaplin, associate professor of fine arts and director of the program of studio arts, conducted a painting seminar for The Silvermine Guild of Artists in November.

Dr. Ward S. Curran, professor of economics, was a discussant in the Financial Management Association Meetings in Montreal in October.

Dr. Curran and Dr. Drew A. Hyland, professor of philosophy, were participants in a symposium sponsored by the Amuntuck Community College and the Enfield Rotary under a grant by the Connecticut Humanities Council. The theme of the symposium was "The State Income Tax — Friend or Foil?" Dr. Curran spoke against the tax and Dr. Hyland considered the question of fairness of an income tax vs. the fairness of a sales tax vs. the fairness of a lottery to raise state money.

Dr. Clyde D. McKee, associate professor of political science, was a consultant to the New Britain (Conn.) Charter Commission who are considering a reorganization of their town government.

Dr. McKee addressed the New England Regional Conference of the American Society for Public Administration in mid-October. He spoke on the influence of news media on the Connecticut State Legislature.

Dr. Craig W. Schneider, assistant professor of biology, presented a paper entitled "Biogeography of offshore North Carolina benthic algae" at the meeting of the North East Algal Symposium at the Marine Biological Laboratories, Woods Hole, Mass. He also published a paper in the Bulletin of Marine Science in April of 1976 entitled "Spatial and temporal distributions of benthic marine algae on the continental shelf of the Carolinas," and another in the March 1976 issue of Phycologia with R.B. Searles of Duke University entitled "North Carolina marine algae — VII. New species of Hypnea and Petrophora (Rhodophyta, Gigartinales) and additional records of other Rhodophyta." This latter paper is the seventh in Schneider's continuing series of papers on North Carolina seaweeds.

Contance Holton, artist in residence in the dance program, was interviewed by the University of Hartford's radio station recently, on "Women in Dance." Ms. Holton has just completed research in that area at the University of Chicago in a special dance history seminar. Her name has been submitted to the Committee on Research in Dance (CORD) as an alternate to present her material at the international conference held in Philadelphia this summer.

Dr. Samuel Hendel, professor of political science, was a participant in a symposium on the American Civil Liberties Union on current problems and a celebration of 50 years of the Academic Freedom Committee held at the City University of New York. The theme of the symposium was "New Frontiers for Academic Freedom." Dr. Hendel gave a talk on "Highlights of the First Fifty Years."

Roger D. Shoemaker, assistant professor of history and director of the American Studies Program, recently attended the annual meeting of the New England American Studies Association at the University of Massachusetts at Boston, where he was elected to the executive council of the organization. Leach will help plan the next national convention of the Association set for November 1977 in Boston.

Dr. Leonard L. Tsumba, assistant professor of economics, gave a talk on "The Impact of Multinational Corporations on African Economies" at the Second Annual Conference of the South African Research Association held at the University of Maryland.

Dr. John A. Gettier, chairman and associate professor of religion, gave a series of four lectures this Fall entitled "Political Leadership in Ancient Israel" at the First Church of Christ, West Hartford.

Peter Armstrong, artist in residence in the Music Department, gave a piano recital at the Hartford Public Library as part of a series of Saturday afternoon recitals in November. His program consisted of Busoni, Scriabin and Chopin.

President Lockwood has been appointed a member of the Connecticut Council for the Humanities.

Dr. Richard K. Morris, professor of education emeritus, delivered a series of lectures on "American Education: A Bicentennial Appraisal," at the University of Hartford, Galway, Ireland, in October. Also in October Dr. Morris was one of the principal speakers in Paterson, New Jersey, at the dedication of a national monument at the grave site of Irish-American theater artist, John B. Keating whose underwater craft became the first submarine of the United States Navy (SS-1). Dr. Morris is Holland's biographer.
OPEN SEMESTER:

"The World On Our Doorstep"

By Jeffrey L. Mandler '77

All colleges in an urban setting have a symbiotic relationship with their environ­ ment, particularly with the city as a whole and with the neighbor­ hoods immediately abutting the campus. Social, environmental, and economic strands are intrinsically interwoven. Trinity is no exception. My experience working within the community strongly suggests that Trinity’s ties with the community, while better by far than most city colleges, could be improved by even more cooperation and recognition of our interdepen­ dence.

One way for students to become active in the Hartford community is to work through the Open Semester Program. This program, operated by Robbins Winslow, dean of educational services, was established to provide work ex­ perience for upper class students. Open Semester can be either independent research, study, or an internship with a government or private agency. Although some students participate in the Open Semester in other cities, Hartford provides a special challenge for the program. As a result of the work done during the Open Semester, students must submit academic material to a faculty advisor in order to attain college credit for their activities.

Anyone who has visited Hartford re­ cognizes the need to notice the changes occurring within the vicinity of Trinity. For example, a degree of urban blight is slowly moving from the Park Street area toward Trinity’s campus. Some buildings are being destroyed or deserted, and many once stable neighborhoods are undergoing transitional periods. As a consequence, this urban decay is then inevitably experienced on campus as an increase in crime and vandalism. Thus, Trinity cannot remain a refuge from the City of Hartford. The school must become actively involved with its surrounding en­ vironment if both the city and the College are to prosper in the future.

As a student living off-campus for the first time, I soon had the opportunity to be aware of both the benefits and problems of Hartford. I then sought to utilize my interest in the city and my background gained at Trinity to become involved in the revitalization of our city. I took ad­ vantage of the Open Semester in order to help strengthen the bonds between the academic and civic worlds. Conse­ quently, I was later to join the Hartford Architectural Conservancy (HAC) for the fall semester of 1976 under this program.

The Hartford Architectural Con­ servancy is a non-profit organization in­ volved in historic preservation. They at­ tempt to revitalize specific areas by renovating buildings of distinction in that area. In this way they provide tangible examples for other property owners as to the feasibility of renovation. Often HAC also provides the needed impetus to encourage neighborhood stabilization.

HAC works in conjunction with the City Planning Department and they are in part, funded by this agency. They first began their efforts three years ago in the south Main Street area of Hartford. It was here that HAC successfully con­ vinced the City of Hartford to renovate the 19th century buildings around Con­ gress Street rather than proceed with the original plans to level almost a three block radius. This area was involved in the stabilization of the south Main Street area near the Colt Mansion. Their activities have also focused recently on the Park Street area of Hartford — Trinity’s backyard.

When I first joined HAC, I was given the rather tedious job of surveying every house in the Park Street area. I would spend entire days walking around the neighborhood with my pencil and paper marking interesting buildings, noticing new landmarks, and detailing buildings of architectural merit.

From this constant contact with the community, I was able to begin to under­ stand both the positive and some of the immediate problems that the neighbor­ hood was experiencing. At first I was ner­ vous walking up and down streets where groups of men were congregated and where the buildings were burnt down or decaying. Yet, I soon found that most of the people, ranging from the elderly to the children playing football in the street, were interested in my work and were grateful that we were at least receiving some help from the community.

From the survey that was taken, I pro­ ceeded to work with specialists in the HAC office on proposals for the improve­ ment of Park Street. These people in­ cluded an architectural historian, an architect, and a draftsman. We were also in consultation with the City Plan­ ning Department, local engineers and builders. After conducting the survey, I delved into the history of the area to un­ cover the distinct character of the past environment in order to relate it to the present. We then sought to unite the tra­ ditional makeup of the area with the cur­ rent demands for change by formulating a plan that would encourage future stabili­ zation.

The conclusions we reached were based on interacting considerations of architec­ tural restoration and economic and social revitalization. It would be difficult to dis­ cuss the details of the proposal in this short article. What is important to note, however, is that feasible recommenda­ tions are possible and current efforts should continue in both the private and public sectors, so that the Trinity neigh­ borhood can continue to be upgraded and improved.

In order to spur the improvement of Trinity’s environment, future actions by students need to be encouraged. The Open Semester is one road available to students who are seeking an alternative from the normal classroom experience. It offers the student both a working and learning experience which unites Trinity’s academic atmosphere with the world on our doorstep. Both the student and the community gain from the long term bene­ fits of such a progressive program.

Trinity has announced a new program in educational travel designed to provide an in-depth picture of the countries to be visited. The trips are scheduled to begin on June 5, will be to the Soviet Union. The 22-day visit to Russia will not be a tour in the usual sense. “We view it as an educational travel experience,” said Ivan Backer, director of graduate studies and community education at Trin­ ity College. “Trinity Students will explore the surface without really piercing the facade of a culture. The political and economic structure of Russia are so different from ours that tourists rarely gain insight into its actual meaning.”

The program is not for specialists or professionals,” said Backer. “Our trips abroad are for those who want to spend their vacations in a creative way, adding to their understanding of the global society we live in.”

The major emphasis during the trip will be Soviet education and child care; the Soviet economy; Soviet health care; the role and status of Soviet women; and the role of the media in determining modern Soviet consciousness.

Throughout the tour, seminars and dis­ cussions will be held with Soviet workers, executives and officials and experts on the various Soviet cultures, languages and history. Among the cities visited will be Moscow, Bratsk, Irkutsk, Tashkent, Baku, Baku, Kiy and Leningrad. Special emphasis will be placed on the differences between family life in Central Asia and in the European portion of the USSR.

In Moscow the group will visit the famous art collections from the Tsarist era, as well as the Kremlin’s palaces and churches. Visits to the Hermitage are scheduled, two in Moscow and one in Leningrad. Giant dams and hydroelectric plants, 400-mile long Lake Baikal (the deepest lake in the world), Bachara, the oldest city in Central Asia, the summer palace of Peter the Great, all are included in the agenda. All activities are student­ led visits to health clinics, secondary schools, and factories.

Three faculty members who will lec­ ture along with Professor Backer are Dr. Robert A. Batts, chairman of the Department of Economics; Dr. Samuel Hendel, Political Science; and Dr. Samuel D. Kassov, History. Pre-travel sessions will also be conducted by Dr. Michael P. Sacks, Sociology; and Dr. James L. West, History, to discuss the various aspects of the Soviet Union.

The total price of the 22-day tour of the Soviet Union is $2,340. The group is limited to 24 students. Arrangements have been made by the College Of­ fice of Community Education in coopera­ tion with the group travel company, Marendaz Travel Inc. of Hartford. Mandler is agent for the trip which will depart from Bradley International Airport.

On November 5, 1976 PHIL SMITH became executive secretary of the Connecticut School Review Board for Connecticut. Phil also relays a piece of family news, reporting that "Presently I have four grandchildren, two of whom were born January 1, 1973 (not twins). A girl, Laura, was born in Norwalk, Connecticut; a boy, Brian, was born in Springfield, Massachusetts. Laura was born to Sharon and T. Gary Broughton. Brian was born to Lyon and Philip C. Smith, Jr. They were born 20 hours and 30 miles apart.

BILL OLIVER, who spent a good many years in Burlington, has been named president and is vice president and general manager of all branches of The First National Bank of Boston in Haiti. Bill reports that they have a beautiful home with all that is needed for a Caribbean life. He is also president of First Commercial Bank, has been appointed chairman of the First National Bank of Boston, Beav 2211. Port-au-Prince, Haiti. Last September 16, LOU BUCK celebrated his 100th anniversary with Art and Leisure in Hartford.

JOE CLASIS'S family was in the news recently when his son, Leonard, age 16, dodged a bullet while he and a companion were in pursuit of two burglar suspects. Leonard is a member of a voluntary police Explorer group who patrol their southwest Hartford neighborhood. The patrolman, who acts as an adviser to the group, has recommended the two boys for several local and national law enforcement awards.

During a recent visit to Honolulu, Your Secretary and his wife were entertained by DUANE and Alice NEWTON 31. They are complete converts to the Hawaiian way of life although Newt expressed regret at the geographical barriers which prevented him from attending his 25th Reunion.

Another long letter came in recently from TED BARTLETT who continues to keep extremely busy as a psychologist at Convalescent Hospital in Orlando, Florida. Ted also has a small private practice as well. He says he has now been taken quite pleasantly with the South, and he writes that “it’s a small town with a large and clean lake in Windermere, Florida.”

Several months ago there was an article in The New York Times featuring Dr. RICH CARE­SON. We can’t do justice to either the tenor of the article or the attitudes expressed by Rich in a column as short as this, but essentially Rich had committed himself, after finishing medical school, to working primarily with the poor at Lincoln Hospital in the Bronx. This article outlines his disabilities describes Rich’s accommodation with many of the poor conditions and the lack of medical care facilities within the hospital a disappointing place for him to work. editorially, we would like to applaud Rich’s concern with many of the medical care problems which unfortunately do exist in our country, and we wish him well in his new position at the Al­bert Einstein College of Medicine in the North Bronx, New York.

We recently saw another interesting news­paper article describing TOM CHAPPLE and the work he’s been doing with his own company in Maine. Tom developed and marketed Clear Lake’s line of phosphate free detergents in Can­­aca. Although Clear Lake didn’t particularly make it because of the immediate production of other phosphate-free detergents, he was able to make a market for his product. Tom’s company, Kennebunk Chemical Company, is now the leading producer of phosphate-free detergents, soap, shampoo, skin lotion, and toothpaste in the country. In addition, we learned from the article that that it is “a very close cut market” in the profit margin but that his efforts have gone very far in the con­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­…

STEPHEN HOFFMAN has an M.A. in journalism from the University of Michigan and a job with the Boulder (Colorado) Daily Camera, Go West Young Men.

On June 20, 1976, THOMAS JENSEN was ordained to the Episcopal diaconate. He lives with his recent bride, JILL ENGLISH '70, in Ogden, Utah. Is Salt Lake really the capital of Utah?

KAREN KAHN桂林 is doing her doc-torate in clinical psychology at the Ohio State University Hospital.

ANTONIETTE LIGNE enjoyed August in Italy, purifyingly recuperating from the Connecticut Bar Exam. Successful results brought her an associate position in the Hartford law firm of Spada, Vinkels and Kristofak.

HERBERT SYMMES teaches psychology and sociology at Manchester (Connecticut) Community College. Mattatuck Community College, Waterbury, Connecticut, and this spring at the University of Hartford. Obviously he's much in demand.

DAN RUSSU studies law at Suffolk University in Boston, lives with his younger brother and digs Beantown.

With both an M.S. in immunology and a new husband, SANDRA YURCHFYK still finds time to study dentistry at the University of Connecticut.

PAUL DUMONT and his wife, Christine (see Weddings) live in Hartford and Paul works at the Aetna Life and Casualty Insurance Company, Hartford, as a forms control technician in the purchasing department.

Still waiting to hear from the SeaBury Giants, first independent team to capture the much coveted intermural trophy.

After a bucolic summer as park ranger in nearby Redondo Beach, Montana Park, I've returned to the flat lands of Denver.

With the death of Clarence H. "Pete" Barber Trinity College lost one of its great characters and an even greater teacher. I knew Pete as a musician and choir director, the President and tenor soloist of the Trinity College Glee Club.

I knew him also as a friend. Like many a student I was at first put off by the brilliantly witty and urbane mask that Pete wore with friends and strangers alike. It took me two years, I think, before I really relaxed in his company. By then I had discovered that his mask was a cover-up for an extremely shy, sensitive and generous soul.

During the War he was active in recreational direction in this country and in the European Theater of Operations. Upon the completion of hostilities he stayed in France and returned to the United States in 1946, Dr. Barber taught for three years in the music department of Fisk University in Nashville, Tennessee, attending to the responsibilities of the school's choral class of Robert Shaw and the Juilliard School of Music during summers. He next pursued graduate study and teaching at Harvard University, taking the year 1952 abroad for study in France under a U.S. Government grant. While in Paris, Dr. Barber achieved prominence for his work by election to the Societe Francaise de Musicologie, a rare honor for an American musician.

He also found time to earn a diploma in organ from the Ecole Normale de Musique and to perform the organ at the Haydn Society's premiere recording of Chappell's "Te Deum.

At Trinity, Dr. Barber's principal activities were the direction of the Trinity program in Music and the coordinating of the curriculum, student exchange and concerts of the Cooperative Program in Music between Trinity and Hartt College of Music (University of Hartford). Dr. Barber taught undergraduate and graduate courses at both institutions.

Dr. Barber is survived by his brother Lawrence Barber of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Mr. Miller graduated from Catisk Hill High School and entered Trinity College in 1912 with the Class of 1916. While at Trinity he was a member of Delta Phi (IKA) fraternity, circulation manager of the college newspaper, and a member of the American Legion Post 385 of the University of Hartford. After graduation, Mr. Miller served in the Army as a sergeant during World War I. Mr. Miller was married by Mr. Miller's father to Charlotte Pettengill in 1925 at the home of the bride's parents in Catskill, She died in 1971. Only five of Trinity's 13 winter athletic teams began their schedules in the short December portion of the winter season. The beginning of the second semester will bring a heavy slate of action for all sports as Bantam athletes seek to uphold the Trinity tradition in New England and national athletic competition.

ALEXANDER WEEDON '77 is top scorer for the Trinity hockey team through the first five games of its 1976-77 schedule. Weedon has scored six goals and handed out four assists for the Bantam skaters.

HOCKEY

The hockey team has looked good so far this season, compiling a 3-2 record after less than one-fourth of its 22-game schedule. This early season performance gives Trinity an optimistic feeling about the final record that will come out of this its third varsity season. Coach John Dunham is quite pleased with the way his team has played to date.

The Bantam skaters opened their season by beating Assumption 7-5 at the Glastonbury Arena. A solid 8-3 defeat of arch-rival Wesleyan upped the Trinity record to 2-0, but successive losses to Amherst (6-2) and Bryant (5-4 in overtime) marred the undefeated slate. The losses were not a surprise as Amherst and Bryant, a Division II competitor, are the first segment of its season on a powerful teams. The blue-and-gold closed its third varsity season. Coach John Dunham is quite pleased with the way his team has played to date.

The blue-and-gold closed the first segment of its season on a positive note by beating Bentley, five goals to three.

Senior center Sandy Weedon is the leading scorer through Trinity's first five games, collecting ten points on six goals and four assists. Junior co-captains Hank Finkenstaedt and Torry Lenahan are close behind in the scoring race with nine and eight points respectively. A pleasant surprise has been freshman winger Bob Plumb who has contributed four goals and two assists to the Bantam cause.

Ted Walkowicz '79 and Frank Judson '77 have shared the goalkeeper position with comparable success. Walkowicz played extremely well in the Bryant game, making 53 saves.

Looking ahead to the remainder of the season the Bantam pucksters find tough competition in New Haven, L'UConn, Amherst, Babson, and Bryant, but they have the talent and enthusiasm to finish up in fine form.

BASKETBALL

The varsity basketball team heads into the second part of its 20-game schedule with a record of two wins and three losses. The hoopsters opened the season at home with a 60-47 win over MIT. Two nights later Brandeis visited Hartford to take on the Bantams. Trailing by 18 at halftime, Trinity played a strong second half only to fall one point short as the Judges took an 87-86 victory. This disappointing loss lingered in the minds of the Trinity hoopsters as their play was dismal in a 75-62 loss to Amherst.

ARThUR BLAKE '78 steps the Trinity basketball team with an average of 21.6 points per game. Blake has been the high scorer for Trinity in each of its games. He was named to the All-Star team for the 1976 Trinity-U Hartford Invitational Tournament.

The 1976 Trinity-U Hartford Invitational Tournament took place at the Ferris Athletic Center on December 10 and 11. Trinity lost its opening round game to Wesleyan 67-57, but rebounded in the consolation game to wallop a strong Central Connecticut team, 103-93, to finish third. Hartford, who beat Central 79-78 in the opening round, slipped past Wesleyan 65-62 to take the title for the fifth time in the seven-year history of the tournament.

The women's basketball team, in its second varsity season, stands as the only undefeated Trinity team on the strength of its 49-36 win over MIT. Their offensive gain possession of both tournament assist records. Junior forward Arthur Blake was named to the All-Tourney team.

Blake has been the high gun for the 1976-77 hoopsters, averaging 21.6 points in the first five games. He has been the high point man for the Bantams in each game. Center Brent Cavelli '78 is averaging 14.6 points and 11.8 rebounds per game, while McBride hands out 8.0 assists in each contest.

The JV basketball team, under first year head coach Rayfield Perkins '73, has been involved in two games so far, both of them of the "nail biter" variety. An 87-86 loss to perennial prep power St. Thomas More Academy was followed up by a 73-70 double overtime win over Amherst.

The women's basketball team, in its second varsity season, stands as the only undefeated Trinity team on the strength of its 49-36 win over MIT. Their offensive punch is provided by junior center Nancy McDermott who was last year's leading scorer with a 19.6 average. The women hoopsters are a young team with eight freshmen and only two seniors. They are on their way to improving upon the 6-5 record of 1975-76.

WRESTLING

The only other Trinity team to see action in December was the varsity wrestling squad, who dropped a 40-9 decision to UPI. The team looks stronger this year with excellent leadership from senior co-captains Dave Coratti, who placed fourth in last year's New England tournament, and Rob Friedman, who sat out last year with an injury.

With tough competition awaiting them in January and February, the Bantam grapplers may be hurt by their one weakness, a lack of depth in all weight classes.

JUNIOR CENTER BRENT CAVELLI (30) scores an easy two points during this year's Invitational Tourney. Cavelli leads the Bantams in rebounds and is the second leading scorer.

The victory over Central was a big one for the Bantams. It was the first time they played well as a team for the entire 40 minutes and hopefully it will be a positive note on which to build a successful season. Trinity guard Paul McBride '78 collected 12 assists in the Central game and a total of 19 in the tournament to
