College Awarded $250,000 By Kresge Foundation

The Kresge Foundation of Troy, Michigan has awarded Trinity a $250,000 challenge grant toward the building expansion of the College Library. The gift, which will be credited toward the $12 million Campaign for Trinity Values, is one of the largest received thus far by the College for the Library project.

The Kresge Foundation was created through the gifts of the late Sebastian S. Kresge, founder of the S.S. Kresge Company, now known as Kmart Corporation. During the last 54 years, the Kresge Foundation has made appropriations of more than $283 million to institutions in the fields of higher education, health services, the arts, social welfare, and the care of the young and aging. Construction and major renovation of facilities are the Foundation’s primary concerns, and grants are usually made on a challenge-basis to encourage further fund-raising efforts.

The Library addition will provide 250 seating spaces, shelving for 250,000 volumes, and 2,650 square feet of study space. Construction is expected to begin in the fall, and is estimated to cost $3,000,000. The Kresge Foundation conditioned the grant on Trinity’s obtaining the balance of the funds by September 15, 1978. President Lockwood expressed optimism in the College’s ability to meet this challenge.

100th Anniversary Of Trinity Football

The opening of the football season on September 24 will begin the celebration of the 100th anniversary of Trinity College football. One hundred years ago, in the Fall of 1877, Trinity sent its first intercollegiate football squad against Yale University for its only game. The legendary Walter Camp was a member of that Yale team which beat the Bantam eleven despite being surprised and confused by the tight canvas jerseys greased with lard which the Trinity men wore. The Ivy League was able to tackle the slippery Bantams well enough to prevent any scores while they produced 13 touchdowns and seven goals (points after)

Yale proved to be an always tough opponent for the Trinity gridders. The Ells defeated the Bantams 18 straight times from 1877 to 1917, and there was a zero under Trinity on the scoreboard at the end of every one of those games.

The early years were tough for Trinity Football. As the College moved to its present site there was much student disapproval, and interest in athletics diminished; there was no varsity football team from 1879 through 1883.

Trinity did not win a football game until it defeated the Amherst Aggies (now the University of Massachusetts) 32-4 in 1887, the sixth football season in Trinity history. Twenty years later the Bantams won by their biggest margin ever with a 94-0 victory over the College of New York.

Trinity produced its first undefeated football team in 1911 with a record of six wins, zero losses, and two ties. The 1915 squad was also undefeated with a 5-0-2 record. In 1932 Daniel E. Jessee became head coach of the Bantams and this began an important era in Trinity football. From 1932 through 1966, the 32 squads that Jessee coached won 150 games, while losing only 76 and tying seven. Only seven of the 32 teams had season records under the .500 mark, while four teams (1934, 1949, 1954, 1955) produced undefeated and untied records.

Trinity made the national record books in 1969 with a game against Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. The final score, 43-43, stands as the highest tie score in the entire history of American intercollegiate football.

The first 100 years of Trinity College football have been interesting and enjoyable. There have been 92 seasons and 648 games played in the hundred year period. Twenty-five coaches have directed Bantam teams to 335 wins, 273 losses, and 40 ties against opponents ranging from Ivy League schools to New York Agricultural College and the Waterbury YMCA, Army, the traditional Little Three rivals and many other institutions, large and small.

The game, the College, and the competition have changed since 1877, but, as Trinity enters its second hundred years of football competition, the one thing that remains the same is the Trinity athlete. A scholar first, an athlete second, the Trinity football player lives in an environment which is not a stepping stone to professional sports. The "fun element" of athletic competition is vivid at Trinity, as it has been in the past, and will be in the future.

The 1977 season will provide a fine setting for celebrating Trinity's football history. The four home games will showcase fine football competition against Bowdoin, and traditional rivals Williams, Coast Guard, and Wesleyan.

Three Named Full Professors

The College has announced the promotion of three members of the faculty to the rank of full professor. They are, Thomas Baird, professor of fine arts, part-time; Donald B. Galbraith, professor of biology, and Stephen Moini, professor of English, part-time.

Baird received the B.A. and the M.F.A. from Princeton. He has studied French 17th Century theatre design as a Fulbright Fellow in Paris. Prior to joining Trinity in 1970 he was associate director of Harvard University's Town Gown Forum Explores Russia

Rounding out a decade of distinguished discussion, the Town Gown community will again present a fall series of lectures called the “Town-Gown Forum.” On October 10, Dr. Kassow, assistant professor of history, will give his talk by faculty specialists centered on the American experience. This year the scene shifts to the land of the tsriva, the Kremlim and the Hermitage. The five lectures on Russia will be open and free to the public on October 10, 17, 24, and 26. Dr. Kassow, assistant professor of history, will discuss “Russia: Enigma Within a Rich Plunder.” The talk highlights of Russian history and demonstrate that, contrary to popular opinion, Russia can be understood.

On October 11, Dr. James West, assistant professor of history, will examine the major themes of Russian history through the eyes of the artist. He will profile major themes of Russian history and society and create a living museum of major Russian art and culture.

A second lecture by Dr. Kassow “History: The Great Divide and Change” on October 18, will discuss the achievements of the Soviet State, the role played of the public for the future.

Dr. Samuel Hendel, professor of political science, will present a talk behind the scenes on October 25 as he analyzes “Some Basic Myths and Reality: Understanding the Political, Economic and Social Implications of the Soviet political system.”

On November 1, Dr. Robert A. graphics, an artist professor of economics, will call on the proposals post-Stalin Russia faces and attempting to rescue “Central Planning and a Declining Rate of Growth” with the demands for a wide spectrum of new products and high rates of growth.

Finally, Dr. Michael Sacks, assistant professor of sociology moves into the everyday world with “Work, Marriage and Children: Problems and Patterns of Everyday Life.” The November 8 talk will describe the worsening dislocations caused by the transition to the new form of the monolithic Soviet State.

The Town-Gown Lectures, sponsored by the waves of Trinity faculty, alumni, directors, administrators, and friends, are given on successive Tuesdays at 1:30 p.m. in the Goodwin Theatre of the Athenaeum Arts Center for the series is $15. Inquiries should be directed to Mrs. Jonathan Ahlgren, director of the Fine Arts Department, telephone 527-3511, Ext. 275.

CAMPUS NOTES

Dr. DAVID L. REINER, assistant professor of mathematics, and DAVID AHLEBNGREN, assistant professor of chemistry, participated in the Fifth Annual Conference on Instructional Computing held at Dartmouth College. Professor Reinser presented a paper, “Algorithms: Methods in Computer Calculus,” and Professor Ahlberg presented one entitled “The Use of DYNAMO in an Undergraduate Systems Analysis Course.” The conference was sponsored jointly by Dartmouth and NERC (New England Research Council). The presentations from faculty of several other New England institutions and institutions of higher learning, the University of Connecticut and the University of New Hampshire were shown in the Lions Gallery of the University of Connecticut.

A paper entitled “Current and Internal Group Influences in Connecticut Politics” by Dr. CLAYTON W. ADAMS, professor of political science, will be presented at the November annual meeting of the Connecticut Historical Society Science Association as part of a panel entitled “Patterns in State Politics.”

Dr. SAMUEL D. KASSOW ’66, assistant professor of history, and JOHN T. CHATFIELD ’94, lecturer in history, appeared on Connecticut Public Television, Channel 24, and discussed a recent trip to Russia.

An article entitled “Sexual Equality in Soviet Russia” by Dr. MICHAEL SACKS, assistant professor of political science, was published in the August issue of The Nation. Sacks recently read a paper, “Soviet Youth in Transition: The Impact of Economic Change on Early Careers,” at the annual meeting of the New England Slavic Association.

A paper, “AIDS and Heterosexuals: A Longitudinal Study,” was presented at the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association. The study was funded by the National Institute of Nursing Research.

Three members of the Fine Arts Department have been represented in recent exhibitions. A painting of Alfred L. Hendle, by Robert Cale, visiting artist in studio arts, was shown in the Lions Gallery of the University of Connecticut in the visual arts awareness at the Wadsworth Atheneum.

Paintings by GEORGE CHAPLIN, associate professor and director of studio arts, were exhibited in Boston, Germany, and The Hague. The Netherlands in an Art in Embassies Program sponsored by the U.S. State Department. Chaplin also had a one-man exhibition at the Hampshire College Gallery in Amherst, Massachusetts.

STEPHEN WOOD, artist in residence, was represented at the New Britian Museum of American Art in an exhibition entitled “Appraisals: American Art of the 1920s and 1930s.”

Dr. Jacobson, who will be on sabbatical leave from the College next academic year, will appear at a paper entitled “Reforming Campaign Finance: the Vehicle for a Better Democracy?” as a session at the Annual Conference of the University of Southern California. He also plans to complete a book on money in congressional elections.

TWO SUMMER PROGRAMS

National Youth Sports Program

For the eighth consecutive summer, Trinity hosted the National Youth Sports Program, providing recreation, social activities and instruction for over 250 Hartford youngsters.

Funded by the Hartford Community Services Administration, in affiliation with the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the program is designed to serve disadvantaged youngsters from the city. Trinity was one of the 145 institutions that can provide higher education programs and NYSF this summer, and the only program site in Connecticut.

Richard J. Hazlett, assistant professor of physical education, served as Program Director, heading a staff of 12 coaches and physical educators, 12 college student athlete aides and a nurse.

The participants, ages 10 to 18, were provided with daily bus transportation and medical and insurance. Instruction in 13 sports was available, along with programs emphasizing social responsibility, good nutrition and hygiene.

Two visits by Hartford Mayor George C. B. O’Brien and Finance Committee members highlighted the highlights of the summer. A group of 80 youngsters visited the NYSF at America’s International College in Springfield for competition in basketball, swimming, softball, track, and dance.

Upward Bound

The Trinity College campus was host this summer to the fifth annual Upward Bound Program. This program, funded by the U.S. Office of Education, is designed to prepare low income students for enrollment in post-secondary educational institutions.

One hundred high school students from the City of Hartford participated in the program. Almost all of these students plan to continue their education up in Elton and Jones dormitories, but there were several who commuted to the campus each day.

The program ran from June 27 — August 5, five day-a-week program.

An academic atmosphere prevailed as students enrolled in general college prep classes for four courses which met daily in the Life Sciences Center. Available topics of study were English, mathematics, science, social studies and Spanish, with several individual courses found under each topic. A major addition to this summer’s program was the fact that there was a laboratory open for all the science classes.

The afternoon activity period involved the students in either college career counseling sessions, academic tutoring, or recreational activities ranging from tennis and basketball to radio communication and mold removal.

In the evenings the students had a supervised study period followed by evening programs which were either popular movies, speakers such as college administrators, or cultural events, such as attendance of the Summerstage productions at the Austin Arts Center. A student talent show was held at the end of the program for the purpose of raising money for an Upward Bound scholarship.

The staff, headed by Director William Guzman, provided much

Galbraith

Galbraith came to Trinity in 1962. He received the B.S. from Grove City College and the M.A. in business administration from Brown University. He is a specialist in developmental genetics and has researched his included studies of hair growth, the genetic control of pigmentation in mammals, and interactions between embryonic tissues during development. The recipient of numerous fellowships and awards, he is currently conducting research with support from the National Center for Toxicological Research. Many of his articles have appeared in scientific journals.

Galbraith has taught at Trinity since 1969. He is the author of three books and more than 20 published short stories and articles. Galbraith received the A.B. from Harvard College and the M.A. from Johns Hopkins University. Prior to joining the Trinity faculty, he taught at Johns Hopkins, Bowdoin College and the University of Connecticut. He is the recipient of a fellowship award with the National Endowment for the Arts for 1976-77. Galbraith’s most recent book is a collection of short stories entitled “Crossings, Stories by Stephen Minot.” He has been published in the Atlantic Monthly, The Ladies’ Home Journal, The Kenyon Review, and Harpers, among others.

Annual Gifts in the range of $500,000 will again be needed to sustain the growth of our academic program this year. The annual appeal for unrestricted support will benefit a number of projects, including scholarships, student aid, and educational programs. The Annual Giving Campaign opens in late September and concludes June 30, 1979.

1978-79 Annual Giving totals $426,596 were received from these sources. According to President Lockwood. The continuing generosity of many individuals is one of the main reasons for Trinity's strength today. We are especially grateful to those who have recently responded to the College's annual and capital fund-raising appeals. During the past few years, as everyone close to the College knows, Trinity has been engaged in its most ambitious fund-raising program, seeking $10 million for a library addition as well as our ongoing Annual Giving. Now, as the capital campaign draws to a close, there is the opportunity to increase the resources available for the academic program through Annual Giving.

DAN HAWLEY, JON ENBERG, JIM FINKELSTEIN, and PETER GRAPE ‘75 joined CHARLIE MOORE ’75 for a gala July 4th celebration in Amherst, Massachusetts. An awesome time was had by all.

Well, the pen is a bit weary. This has to be the Class of ’76’s best representation in months — keep those cards and letters coming.

Mr. Gary Morgan
68 Independence Ave. SE2
Washington, DC 20003

A lot of people have written in this month from many different areas. I hope a good number of ’76ers will be able to make it back to school for homecoming this October.

From the north woods of Michigan, JEFF FORD writes that he is now a partner with Negro Associates, an excavating and general contracting firm. Jeff, who has been a carpenter for the last two years, finished building a big house for himself last summer. There is no room for the awe wielder, however, for Jeff was recently married, and will be adding on to make more room. Jeff says that he gets to see MIKE GETZ and ROB ROBINSON ’74 every now and then when they venture out of Detroit’s urban sprawl.

MIKE GETZ notes that he and his wife, Kathy, ROB ROBINSON and his wife Kiki, and MARK CLEARLY also spent a week in Mexico last June. Mike made no reference to the allegedly intolerable conditions of Guadalupe Pointe.

TOM TRAY is still with the Social Security Administration, and is now a social insurance claims representative. Tom was married to Mary Anita, and has now started social insurance claims representative. Tom is working at Fanning Personnel in Boston, Massachusetts.

JEFF SHREI notes that the work and the travel have cut into his summer at the Continental Group, N.Y. in the perishable products division.

Another eventful summer has passed and it would be interesting to hear from all of you about how you spent it. It is encouraging to see all the news that has come in so far.

In 1993, Mr. Britt was named to the National Register of Historic Places for his work in documenting the history of the American West.

WILLIAM J. FOLEY, 1936

We regret to report that William J. Foley, Jr., a resident of Foley Travel Inc. of Hartford, died July 14 in Hartford. He was 80 years old.

Mr. Foley was born in Hartford October 24, 1919, he lived in Hartford 34 years, 34 years, and in West Hartford 34 years, as a travel agent.

Mr. Foley entered Trinity with the Class of 1934, and graduated in 1936.

After his graduation, he worked for the New York Times in Washington, D.C., as a foreign correspondent.

Upon his return to Hartford, he entered the travel industry, and was a travel agent for Foley Travel Inc.

Mr. Foley is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret J. Foley, and two sons, Edward J. Foley, Jr., and Richard J. Foley, both of West Hartford.

KENT SHIRE KIRBY, 1917

William Kent Shire Kirby, 87, a former Trinity alumnus, died June 12, 1977, at his home in Allentown, Pennsylvania, at the age of 81.

Mr. Kirby was born in Bloomingburg, Pennsylvania, in 1917, and attended Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut.

He entered Trinity College with the Class of 1936, and graduated in 1938.

Mr. Kirby is survived by his wife, Mrs. Kent Shire Kirby, and two sons, Kent Shire Kirby, Jr., and Kent Shire Kirby, III, both of Allentown.

JESSE H. BAYER, 1947

We regret to report that Jesse H. Bayer, 87, a former Trinity alumnus, died June 6, 1977, at his home in Washington, D.C., at the age of 87.

Mr. Bayer was born in Hartford, Connecticut, in 1910, and attended Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut.

He entered Trinity College with the Class of 1934, and graduated in 1936.

Mr. Bayer is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Bloch Feldman, and a son, Daniel B. Feldman, both of Bethesda, Maryland.

In 1973 the Trustees of the Congregation Beth Shalom in West Hartford, Connecticut, re-elected Mr. Bayer to the board of trustees.

Mr. Bayer is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Bloch Feldman, and a son, Daniel B. Feldman, both of Bethesda, Maryland.
In 1976 the Trinity football Bantams used a schedule of five regattas as it prepares for the 1977 fall season, its second year of competitive activity. Andy Anderson ’75 is the women’s coach, having returned to Trinity last spring to coach the men’s freshman crew. His freshman program was quite successful, with the lightweight eight winning a national championship at the Dad Vail Regatta.

The crew will have the month of October to practice for their competitive season which begins with a full slate on the second weekend of October.

On October 8 the Bantam women will journey north on the Connecticut River to Holyoke, Massachusetts for the Greater Holyoke Regatta. Coach Anderson will take his team south to Middletown, Connecticut on the very next day for the Head of the Con­necticut Regatta. Last year Trinity was awarded first place medals for their performance in the Holyoke competition which was not completed because of wind and rains. The following Saturday, October 15, will see Trinity hosting the women’s crew from Sibnly High School. The only other home contest this season will be the Greater Holyoke Regatta. Coach Anderson will have his team south to Middletown, Connecticut on the very next day for the Head of the Connecticut Regatta. Last year Trinity was awarded first place medals for their performance in the Holyoke competition which was not completed because of wind and rains. The following Saturday, October 15, will see Trinity hosting the women’s crew from Simsbury High School. The only other home contest this season will be the Greater Holyoke Regatta.

The 1977 women’s crew outlook is bright as there was only one senior on the 1976 crew. Captain Anne Pickling will lead the experienced oars­women in enthusiastic preparation for the upcoming season.

Virginia Soccer Seeks Continued Improvement

This year’s varsity soccer team will have a lot of leadership and experience in the form of eight seniors, including tri-captains Charles Lemah, and Mike Kluger. In 1976, Coach Robie Shults’ first year varsity, the Bantams produced a fine 3-4-3 record. Their top performers were unbeaten in 1976. At the end of the season they were ranked #10 in Division I of the New England Intercollegiate Soccer League.

Women’s Crew Begins Second Varsity Season

In 1977 the Bantam booters will be a Division III member of the same league: playing the same schedule of opponents. Trinity has a good chance to equal or better last season’s record. The loss of only five seniors (three starters) to graduation should hurt more offensively than defensively.

The three captains return as starting halfbacks. Alec Waugh, who recorded two shutouts in 1976, returns to the goal. Last year’s defensive unit was young and inexperienced, allowing 25 goals against, but will be stronger this season. Big senior Bill Dodge, junior Jeremy Meyer and sophomores Joe Capasso will keep the back line. Only senior center forward Greg Madding returns as an offensive starter. The wing positions are wide open and many players, including some incoming freshmen, will be given the chance to compete for starting offensive unit.

Experience and depth should allow Trinity to achieve soccer success in 1977, the level of this success will depend upon Shults’ ability to develop an effective offensive attack.

Optimistic Outlook For Women’s Tennis

Coach Jane Millspaugh looks forward to the 1977 women’s tennis season with cautious optimism. There is a great deal of talent among the 30 women who have been selected for the varsity and junior varsity squads, and the competition is so intense that Millspaugh is not sure whom her top players will be.

Sophomores Wendy Jennings and Betty Wallace head the list of returning players. Only one senior graduated from last year’s team, which finished with a 9-2 record and second in the New England Intercollegiate Tour­nament, but two of the top four players will not be on the team this fall.

With the season opening in September, a major goal will be to beat Williams, the team which narrowly defeated Trinity for the New England championship in 1976.
