Security Conscientious Falters Despite Administrative Effort

by Megan White

"Every woman should carry in their purse a pair of brass knuckles. If she's surprised by an attacker in her dorm and is in case she were sexually assaulted," said Trinity student Hedda Rublin, a junior majoring in psychology, in an interview with the Student News. Rublin, who is very active on campus, said that in her dorm there have been two incidents of sexual assault in the past year. Rublin, who is very active on campus, said that in her dorm there have been two incidents of sexual assault in the past year.

Security feels this decision is related to the dorm incidents, in which, if students take an active role in reporting incidents instead of looking the other way, the security problems on campus will be able to continue.

Moffatt feels that the college has been fortunate in maintaining a low incidence of sexual assault, but adds that it is necessary to have a high level of safety. He has observed many instances of women walking alone at night, and that it is important to be careful in this situation.

The issue of sexual assault is a major concern on campus, and the college has implemented several measures to ensure the safety of its students. In addition to installing security cameras in all dorms, the college has also increased the number of security guards on campus.

Trinity student Hedda Rublin, a junior majoring in psychology, in an interview with the Student News. Rublin, who is very active on campus, said that in her dorm there have been two incidents of sexual assault in the past year. Rublin, who is very active on campus, said that in her dorm there have been two incidents of sexual assault in the past year.

Security feels this decision is related to the dorm incidents, in which, if students take an active role in reporting incidents instead of looking the other way, the security problems on campus will be able to continue.

Moffatt feels that the college has been fortunate in maintaining a low incidence of sexual assault, but adds that it is necessary to have a high level of safety. He has observed many instances of women walking alone at night, and that it is important to be careful in this situation.

The issue of sexual assault is a major concern on campus, and the college has implemented several measures to ensure the safety of its students. In addition to installing security cameras in all dorms, the college has also increased the number of security guards on campus. The college has also emphasized the importance of being able to defend oneself in an assault situation, and has stressed in the self-defense demonstrations that have been held on campus.

Despite these efforts, Moffatt expresses concern that the college is still not in complete control of the problem. He feels that if people use their heads and their locks, the campus is relatively safe. "There is no such thing as being too careful," he says. Moffatt encourages students to always do their walking on the Long Walk, and to be aware of what is going on around them.

The college has also installed a hotline for students who feel threatened, and has emphasized the importance of being able to protect oneself in an assault situation. Despite these efforts, Moffatt feels that the college is still not in complete control of the problem.

The issue of sexual assault is a major concern on campus, and the college has implemented several measures to ensure the safety of its students. In addition to installing security cameras in all dorms, the college has also increased the number of security guards on campus. The college has also emphasized the importance of being able to defend oneself in an assault situation, and has stressed in the self-defense demonstrations that have been held on campus.

Despite these efforts, Moffatt expresses concern that the college is still not in complete control of the problem. He feels that if people use their heads and their locks, the campus is relatively safe. "There is no such thing as being too careful," he says. Moffatt encourages students to always do their walking on the Long Walk, and to be aware of what is going on around them.

The college has also installed a hotline for students who feel threatened, and has emphasized the importance of being able to protect oneself in an assault situation. Despite these efforts, Moffatt feels that the college is still not in complete control of the problem.
More On Minority Counseling Complaints

cont. from pg. 1

Blacks, feels that the "different needs" of minority students are still not being adequately served.

Inman sees the problems at Career Counseling as a part of the larger problem of the position of minorities in the Trinity community. "There is not enough information on special opportunities for minorities, not just in Career Counseling, but in the school as a whole."

Inman pointed out that there are only about "four or five" black seniors, and of those, only one or two are participating in the organ- izing minority program. He also stressed that many minority stu- dents are interested in internships and special programs, but few, if any, of the programs offered appeal to blacks.

According to Inman, the Career Counseling office (C/O, the Internship Office and Educational Services) "doesn't have the right kind of services for minorities." He feels that they lack the services that they need. Inman mentioned that many of these office's job descriptions are not specific concerning their special responsibilities to minority students, so Dean Robinson-Jackson is forced to take the slack.

Robinson-Jackson is now in the process of arranging for campus visits by minorities who are now working in various professions. Among those who should be visiting the Trinity campus to speak about opportunities in their professions are a former New York district attorney, a computer engineer, and a consultant who holds an MBA.

Robinson-Jackson has also been in contact with a number of black attorneys in the Hartford area, and has helped them to inaugurate a black attorneys association which will work with the members of the minorities-pre-law association in aspects of their academic and career planning.

Robinson-Jackson also expressed the hope that these minority associations might generate interest among all students interested in different professions which would not be limited to minorities.

---

by Peggy Kenton

Kathy Frederick, Director of Media Relations, is presently compiling a press book listing the various areas of coverage the Trinity faculty and staff have been given during the past year. The book will increase the amount and efficiency of press coverage by "eliminating the middle man." The book contains complete press releases and pertinent news articles and will be distributed to newspapers, tele- vision and radio stations on both a local and a national level.

Haefele Loob At Local Government

by Stephen J. Cohnens

On a night more conducive to snuggling up by the fireplace, about seventy of the area's citizens ventured to Boyer Auditorium for the first of Trinity's three lectures in Charter Revision. The second lecture, for the February 1st engagement was Professor Edwin Haefele of the University of Pennsylvania.

The lecture was entitled Analyzing Political Systems: A Theoretical Perspective. Haefele's talk was centered around the traditional political theory of American government—"If you associate the people with certain issues, the process produces a set of policies to be sought after by the public, but, until now, in the majority of modern society there is no totally unconfined stratum of voting."

He explained that even when a vast majority volces a desire to move in a given direction, there are "several outcomes the American political process for political action not allowed": The law limits the range of decisions, because it does not allow any infringement on individual liberties developed in England and "codified" in the Constitution of the United States.

Haefele also cited the restraints of cultural symbols and political participation in foreign countries. A former New York district attorney, a computer engineer, and a consultant who holds an MBA.

Robinson-Jackson has also been in contact with a number of black attorneys in the Hartford area, and has helped them to inaugurate a black lawyers association which will work with the members of the minorities-pre-law association in aspects of their academic and career planning.

Robinson-Jackson also expressed the hope that these minority associations might generate interest among all students interested in different professions which would not be limited to minorities.

---

by Peggy Kenton

Kathy Frederick, Director of Media Relations, is presently compiling a press book listing the various areas of coverage the Trinity faculty and staff have been given during the past year. The book will increase the amount and efficiency of press coverage by "eliminating the middle man." The book contains complete press releases and pertinent news articles and will be distributed to newspapers, television and radio stations on both a local and a national level.

Haefele Loob At Local Government

by Stephen J. Cohnens

On a night more conducive to snuggling up by the fireplace, about seventy of the area's citizens ventured to Boyer Auditorium for the first of Trinity's three lectures in Charter Revision. The second lecture, for the February 1st engagement was Professor Edwin Haefele of the University of Pennsylvania.

The lecture was entitled Analyzing Political Systems: A Theoretical Perspective. Haefele's talk was centered around the traditional political theory of American government—"If you associate the people with certain issues, the process produces a set of policies to be sought after by the public, but, until now, in the majority of modern society there is no totally unconfined stratum of voting."

He explained that even when a vast majority volces a desire to move in a given direction, there are "several outcomes the American political process for political action not allowed": The law limits the range of decisions, because it does not allow any infringement on individual liberties developed in England and "codified" in the Constitution of the United States.

Haefele also cited the restraints of cultural symbols and political participation in foreign countries. A former New York district attorney, a computer engineer, and a consultant who holds an MBA.

Robinson-Jackson has also been in contact with a number of black attorneys in the Hartford area, and has helped them to inaugurate a black lawyers association which will work with the members of the minorities-pre-law association in aspects of their academic and career planning.

Robinson-Jackson also expressed the hope that these minority associations might generate interest among all students interested in different professions which would not be limited to minorities.

---

by Peggy Kenton

Kathy Frederick, Director of Media Relations, is presently compiling a press book listing the various areas of coverage the Trinity faculty and staff have been given during the past year. The book will increase the amount and efficiency of press coverage by "eliminating the middle man." The book contains complete press releases and pertinent news articles and will be distributed to newspapers, television and radio stations on both a local and a national level.

Haefele Loob At Local Government

by Stephen J. Cohnens

On a night more conducive to snuggling up by the fireplace, about seventy of the area's citizens ventured to Boyer Auditorium for the first of Trinity's three lectures in Charter Revision. The second lecture, for the February 1st engagement was Professor Edwin Haefele of the University of Pennsylvania.

The lecture was entitled Analyzing Political Systems: A Theoretical Perspective. Haefele's talk was centered around the traditional political theory of American government—"If you associate the people with certain issues, the process produces a set of policies to be sought after by the public, but, until now, in the majority of modern society there is no totally unconfined stratum of voting."

He explained that even when a vast majority volces a desire to move in a given direction, there are "several outcomes the American political process for political action not allowed": The law limits the range of decisions, because it does not allow any infringement on individual liberties developed in England and "codified" in the Constitution of the United States.

Haefele also cited the restraints of cultural symbols and political participation in foreign countries. A former New York district attorney, a computer engineer, and a consultant who holds an MBA.

Robinson-Jackson has also been in contact with a number of black attorneys in the Hartford area, and has helped them to inaugurate a black lawyers association which will work with the members of the minorities-pre-law association in aspects of their academic and career planning.

Robinson-Jackson also expressed the hope that these minority associations might generate interest among all students interested in different professions which would not be limited to minorities.

---

by Peggy Kenton

Kathy Frederick, Director of Media Relations, is presently compiling a press book listing the various areas of coverage the Trinity faculty and staff have been given during the past year. The book will increase the amount and efficiency of press coverage by "eliminating the middle man." The book contains complete press releases and pertinent news articles and will be distributed to newspapers, television and radio stations on both a local and a national level.
A debate over goals and funding of AIESEC dominated during the last Student Government Association meeting. Representing AIESEC (International Association for the Exchange of Students for Advanced Study), President Tami Voudouris stated, "The goal is to provide an opportunity for students to experience a culture other than their own."

President and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt will spend a week trip that will take them primarily on a long visit to Nepal. This will be in place of the Glaucache our breath.”

A general consensus was that the trip was over all a success and there are hopes that it will be the beginning of another “Lunch with President” event.

President Flaherty will be the next speaker at the event. It will be held on April 9, the last day of the Spring semester. Flaherty will give his annual report and will speak to the students.

AIESEC President Tami Voudouris stated that there was not much head for a partial scholarship. The amount of the award varied depending on the number of thefts and van thefts.

The magnitude of Flaherty’s, the Student Government Association, and the Hartford police department to the number of rapes and provides an opportunity for the student to meet other students who have been in the same situation.

The Trinity Tripod, February 6, 1979, Page 3

by Peggy Wess

The Student Government Association discussed the minority scholarship program on its agenda. The proposal was to set aside $6,000 for a full minority scholarship, but it was voted to hold the money for next year.

The TCAC asked for three hundred dollars to help finance speakers and a planned Play Day at Bushnell Park. The funds were unanimously approved. Also approved was one hundred and forty dollars to the Public Safety Committee to buy a back-up band for the lunch program. The lunch was an overwhelming success.

AIESEC was asking for four hundred and fifty dollars to help finance speakers and a planned Play Day at Bushnell Park. The funds were unanimously approved. Also approved was one hundred and forty dollars to the Public Safety Committee to buy a back-up band for the lunch program. The lunch was an overwhelming success.

The TCAC asked for three hundred dollars to help finance speakers and a planned Play Day at Bushnell Park. The funds were unanimously approved. Also approved was one hundred and forty dollars to the Public Safety Committee to buy a back-up band for the lunch program. The lunch was an overwhelming success.

AIESEC was asking for four hundred and fifty dollars to help finance speakers and a planned Play Day at Bushnell Park. The funds were unanimously approved. Also approved was one hundred and forty dollars to the Public Safety Committee to buy a back-up band for the lunch program. The lunch was an overwhelming success.

AIESEC was asking for four hundred and fifty dollars to help finance speakers and a planned Play Day at Bushnell Park. The funds were unanimously approved. Also approved was one hundred and forty dollars to the Public Safety Committee to buy a back-up band for the lunch program. The lunch was an overwhelming success.

AIESEC was asking for four hundred and fifty dollars to help finance speakers and a planned Play Day at Bushnell Park. The funds were unanimously approved. Also approved was one hundred and forty dollars to the Public Safety Committee to buy a back-up band for the lunch program. The lunch was an overwhelming success.

AIESEC was asking for four hundred and fifty dollars to help finance speakers and a planned Play Day at Bushnell Park. The funds were unanimously approved. Also approved was one hundred and forty dollars to the Public Safety Committee to buy a back-up band for the lunch program. The lunch was an overwhelming success.
As Goes The Faculty, So Goes The College

by Gary Abramson

At a time when academic institutions are being challenged by nearly all sectors of the population, from educators to parents to students, liberal arts schools such as Trinity College are discovering an urgent need to describe what they will be headed in the future.

One indicator of where Trinity might be going in the future is the shifting role and responsibilities of its faculty.

As a teaching college, the faculty is the foundation of the pursuit of the learning which constitutes a liberal arts education.
The major portion of a Trinity professor's time, then, is devoted to their student assistants, up to five proposals for leave funding;
(2) Up to $2,000 for Junior Faculty
Research Grant, up to four grants
will be awarded; and (3) Junior
Leave Extension. There will be one
$7,000 grant offered in the next
academic year to extend a sabbatical from one half to a full year.

The inspector for the move by
the college originates in the award
of a grant by the Andrew W.
Mellon Foundation which financed
independent research and symposia
through funds of approximately $60,000 per year from 1975
through the 1977-1978 academic year. With the termination of the Mellon grant, the college was obliged by terms of the award to institute its own funding of scholarly activity by the faculty.

The major sources of funding
for academic research are private charitable foundations, public institutions, and the federal government. Trinity faculty have relied on these sources prior to the Mellon grant, which supported
a small number of the total faculty
grant and research time.

These sources will continue to be the major source of funding,
even when the newly-approved
Mellon grants begin, since, as Thomas Lips, Director of Institutional Affairs, explained, "At a college like Trinity, the institute of its own funding of scholarly
activity by the faculty."

The sources of encouragement
towards scholarly work are being bumped this year by $35,000 of college funds to be awarded by the Faculty Research Committee
before March 15. It is the sponsors support for changing
programs and expanding of student assistants, up to five
proposals for leave funding;
(2) Up to $2,000 for Junior Faculty
Research Grant, up to four grants
will be awarded; and (3) Junior
Leave Extension. There will be one
$7,000 grant offered in the next
academic year to extend a sabbatical from one half to a full year.

The inspector for the move by
the college originates in the award
of a grant by the Andrew W.
Mellon Foundation which financed
independent research and symposia
through funds of approximately $60,000 per year from 1975
through the 1977-1978 academic year. With the termination of the Mellon grant, the college was
obliged by terms of the award to
institute its own funding of
scholarly activity by the faculty.

The major sources of funding
for academic research are private
charitable foundations, public
institutions, and the federal government. Trinity faculty
have relied on these sources prior to
the Mellon grant, which supported
a small number of the total faculty
grant and research time.

These sources will continue to
be the major source of funding,
even when the newly-approved
Mellon grants begin, since, as
Thomas Lips, Director of Institutional Affairs, explained, "At a
college like Trinity, the institute of
its own funding of scholarly
activity by the faculty."

The sources of encouragement
towards scholarly work are being
bumped this year by $35,000 of
college funds to be awarded by the Faculty Research Committee
before March 15. It is the
sponsors support for changing
programs and expanding of
student assistants, up to five
proposals for leave funding;
(2) Up to $2,000 for Junior Faculty
Research Grant, up to four grants
will be awarded; and (3) Junior
Leave Extension. There will be one
$7,000 grant offered in the next
academic year to extend a sabbatical from one half to a full year.

The inspector for the move by
the college originates in the award
of a grant by the Andrew W.
Mellon Foundation which financed
independent research and symposia
through funds of approximately $60,000 per year from 1975
through the 1977-1978 academic year. With the termination of the Mellon grant, the college was
obliged by terms of the award to
institute its own funding of
scholarly activity by the faculty.

The major sources of funding
for academic research are private
charitable foundations, public
institutions, and the federal government. Trinity faculty
have relied on these sources prior to
the Mellon grant, which supported
a small number of the total faculty
grant and research time.

These sources will continue to
be the major source of funding,
even when the newly-approved
Mellon grants begin, since, as
Thomas Lips, Director of Institutional Affairs, explained, "At a
college like Trinity, the institute of
its own funding of scholarly
activity by the faculty."

The sources of encouragement
towards scholarly work are being
bumped this year by $35,000 of
college funds to be awarded by the Faculty Research Committee
before March 15. It is the
sponsors support for changing
programs and expanding of
student assistants, up to five
proposals for leave funding;
(2) Up to $2,000 for Junior Faculty
Research Grant, up to four grants
will be awarded; and (3) Junior
Leave Extension. There will be one
$7,000 grant offered in the next
academic year to extend a sabbatical from one half to a full year.

The inspector for the move by
the college originates in the award
of a grant by the Andrew W.
Mellon Foundation which financed
independent research and symposia
through funds of approximately $60,000 per year from 1975
through the 1977-1978 academic year. With the termination of the Mellon grant, the college was
obliged by terms of the award to
institute its own funding of
scholarly activity by the faculty.

The major sources of funding
for academic research are private
charitable foundations, public
institutions, and the federal government. Trinity faculty
have relied on these sources prior to
the Mellon grant, which supported
a small number of the total faculty
grant and research time.

These sources will continue to
be the major source of funding,
even when the newly-approved
Mellon grants begin, since, as
Thomas Lips, Director of Institutional Affairs, explained, "At a
college like Trinity, the institute of
its own funding of scholarly
activity by the faculty."

The sources of encouragement
towards scholarly work are being
bumped this year by $35,000 of
college funds to be awarded by the Faculty Research Committee
before March 15. It is the
sponsors support for changing
programs and expanding of
student assistants, up to five
proposals for leave funding;
(2) Up to $2,000 for Junior Faculty
Research Grant, up to four grants
will be awarded; and (3) Junior
Leave Extension. There will be one
$7,000 grant offered in the next
academic year to extend a sabbatical from one half to a full year.

The inspector for the move by
the college originates in the award
of a grant by the Andrew W.
Mellon Foundation which financed
independent research and symposia
through funds of approximately $60,000 per year from 1975
through the 1977-1978 academic year. With the termination of the Mellon grant, the college was
obliged by terms of the award to
institute its own funding of
scholarly activity by the faculty.

The major sources of funding
for academic research are private
charitable foundations, public
institutions, and the federal government. Trinity faculty
have relied on these sources prior to
the Mellon grant, which supported
a small number of the total faculty
grant and research time.

These sources will continue to
be the major source of funding,
even when the newly-approved
Mellon grants begin, since, as
Thomas Lips, Director of Institutional Affairs, explained, "At a
college like Trinity, the institute of
its own funding of scholarly
activity by the faculty."

The sources of encouragement
towards scholarly work are being
bumped this year by $35,000 of
college funds to be awarded by the Faculty Research Committee
before March 15. It is the
sponsors support for changing
programs and expanding of
student assistants, up to five
proposals for leave funding;
(2) Up to $2,000 for Junior Faculty
Research Grant, up to four grants
will be awarded; and (3) Junior
Leave Extension. There will be one
$7,000 grant offered in the next
academic year to extend a sabbatical from one half to a full year.

The inspector for the move by
the college originates in the award
of a grant by the Andrew W.
Mellon Foundation which financed
independent research and symposia
through funds of approximately $60,000 per year from 1975
through the 1977-1978 academic year. With the termination of the Mellon grant, the college was
obliged by terms of the award to
institute its own funding of
scholarly activity by the faculty.

The major sources of funding
for academic research are private
charitable foundations, public
institutions, and the federal government. Trinity faculty
have relied on these sources prior to
the Mellon grant, which supported
a small number of the total faculty
grant and research time.

These sources will continue to
be the major source of funding,
even when the newly-approved
Mellon grants begin, since, as
Thomas Lips, Director of Institutional Affairs, explained, "At a
college like Trinity, the institute of
its own funding of scholarly
activity by the faculty."

The sources of encouragement
towards scholarly work are being
bumped this year by $35,000 of
college funds to be awarded by the Faculty Research Committee
before March 15. It is the
sponsors support for changing
programs and expanding of
student assistants, up to five
proposals for leave funding;
(2) Up to $2,000 for Junior Faculty
Research Grant, up to four grants
will be awarded; and (3) Junior
Leave Extension. There will be one
$7,000 grant offered in the next
academic year to extend a sabbatical from one half to a full year.
Getting acquainted with Capitol capriciousness

by Michael Preston

The full-sized Capitol serves as the spectator's program, and it is clear who is in leadership, what bills are forth-coming, with all the movements and public hearings may be found.

By the most prominent voice in the House during these days is Speaker Ernest Abele (D-Stamford), whose youthful and strong voice has helped propel him to the Speaker's chair this year, after having defeated incumbent Democrat, James Kennedy. Speaker Abele, a Kentucky native, rather starchy manner at the podium are likely to miss his chance at addressing the windup when swaying the gavel.

Also in the limelight on the House floor will be Majority Leader John Grasso (D-Winsted) and Minority Leader, William O'Neill on halls of government, former minority leader Gerald Stevens has returned to private life after his unsuccessful bid for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

In the Senate, Joseph Faustino (D-Hartford) and Joseph Lieber- man (D-New Haven) have become fixed institutions of Democratic leadership, having won re-election to the posts of President Pro Tempore and Majority Leader, respectively.

Minority leadership in the Senate was also reelected by the voters of the state, as former Minority Leader, Larry Brown (R-Middletown) has been re-elected to the post of President Pro Tempore and Majority Leader, respectively.

The early weeks of the 1979 session of the General Assembly are relatively quiet in the Hall of the House. Partisan wrangling will begin in earnest tomorrow when Gov. Grasso delivers her budget message to the Assembly.

Superwalking for March of Dimes

by Julie Johnson

The Secretary of State's office was filled to capacity last Thursday morning at the student press conference announcing the first annual March of Dimes "Superwalk". Representing the American Legion and the Women's Auxiliary, these groups wanted to be sure that all stations were given to the students, as the Nutshell is an important source of news for the local community.

The nutsell does provide excellent coverage of the local news, and it is always best to submit your stories to the editor rather than to the journalism department. The Nutshell is a great place to submit your stories, and it is always best to submit your stories to the editor rather than to the journalism department.

Superwalking is a neighborhood event, and the Nutshell does cover all the events that take place in the neighborhood. The Nutshell is a great place to submit your stories, and it is always best to submit your stories to the editor rather than to the journalism department.

Taking Courage at the Nutshell

The Nutshell is a neighborhood event, and the Nutshell does cover all the events that take place in the neighborhood. The Nutshell is a great place to submit your stories, and it is always best to submit your stories to the editor rather than to the journalism department.

The atmosphere is enhanced by people playing darts, the cold standard in English pubs, darts are incredibly fascinating to watch and demanding to play. Although one has to bring one's own darts, many of the regular players are quite friendly and willing to teach you the subtleties of the game. On some nights one may be lucky enough to seek advice from one of the members of that Nutshell's dart team which is in fifth place in the Northern Connecticut Dart League.

The Nutshell is a neighborhood event, and the Nutshell does cover all the events that take place in the neighborhood. The Nutshell is a great place to submit your stories, and it is always best to submit your stories to the editor rather than to the journalism department.
Trinity IDP Student Judith Shaw will be among the poets chosen. Supported by the Connecticut Commission of Arts, Connecticut colleges, and local organizations, poets are chosen. Trinity is eager for Judy Shaw to read.

IDP Student Touring Among Poets

by Barbara J. Selmo

On February 7, The Poetry Center will sponsor another poetry reading in Wean Lounge at 6:00 p.m. This reading will be by the four college poets of the Connecticut Poetry Circuit. Featured among these poets is a Trinity IDP student, Judith Shaw, who has proved herself as a poet par excellence.

The Connecticut Poetry Circuit was one at a time a reading tour by two well known national poets, who visited various colleges. About six years ago, there was instituted among Connecticut colleges a contest for students. Students submit their poetry to a judging panel at their respective colleges, who would in turn select one student as the college representative. This nominee would then be judged by a state panel. From all the nominees, four poets are chosen. Supported by the Connecticut Commission of Artists, who aids it financially, it is a way of encouraging poetry in Connecticut. College poetry is very proud to have Judith Shaw as one of the poets on tour.

A senior here, Ms. Shaw is also employed full time at the Oak Hill School, where she is teaching. She is also a graduate of Hartford School for Women, which she attended from the age of five years before her, that Ms. Shaw took creative writing and began to write. She is now an accomplished poet. Her poetry work shop she is currently taking, have been most helpful. The journal she started as a part of one of Hugh Ogden's classes, she feels, has been an excellent way of recording her ideas and thoughts that are such an integral part of her poetry. "Throughout the day, " Ms. Shaw said, "when a word or idea comes to me, it just sits down, so I won't forget.

Judith Shaw is a soft-spoken woman, with a very important, almost humble way of talking about her poetry. Acknowledging herself as a writer is a part of her poetry process, her poetry was, for a long time, a very personal part of herself, something she could not share. Her children, family, and the influence of her southern birthplace are subjects of her poems, but her life and its transformations are the real themes. Her poetry reflects the choices she made as a woman, about her life and how she was going to live it.

Involvéd in the women's rights movement, her attitudes, rather than the actual movements, is reflected in her poems. Ms. Shaw explains that her poetry is powerful with her emotions and oppressions, which is what made her so protective of it for so long. When Judith Shaw first started to write poetry, she never thought she would be reading it to a group, especially at her own college. Through the small exposure to public opinion that she gave her work in poetry classes, she learned to benefit from what she calls firm constructive criticism. Criticism is a tool for a writer to use from unfamiliar poems with poetry, she feels, can be as painful to a poet as much as a comment can help.

Through the feedback from her reading tour, Ms. Shaw hopes that the reactions and exposure will help her to become more at ease sharing her poetry. Public contact, the actual experience of speaking in front of an audience, is also helping her to get ready for the wide and varied criticism that comes with publication. Her life is now on a transition, moving outward, with stronger feelings about publicizing her work.

The poetry reading tour, which began very successfully at Central Connecticut State College two weeks ago, continues with a reading at the Ethel Walker School on Feb. 6, Trinity, Feb. 7, and Wesleyan, on Feb. 8. Ms. Shaw is excited about the tour. The experience is not only strengthening her confidence in her work, but it is giving her a wonderful opportunity to relate to many people and their ideas about her work. She loves poetry and does not want to stop writing it. Judith Shaw is eager for this reading at Trinity. The reading is sure to be a vital evening of remarkable talent.

Watters Given Warm Reception

by Sarah Jane Nelson

Organist Clarence Watters enjoyed a warm reception of smiles and applause before he even sat down at the organ to begin the service. The concert program consisted of pieces by Cesar Franck, Charles-Maries Widor, and Louis Vierne. The last piece, Wagner's "Dies Irae," was of special interest to audiences who love organ music.

Watters' renditions of Franck's works, particularly the "Major" and "Minor" choral pieces, were of a more subdued nature, yet still retained their beauty and tenderness. The Widor pieces, on the other hand, were more energetic and alive, with a feeling of joy and appropriateness to the liturgical moment. The众iers were well-received, and the audience gave a standing ovation as a sign of their appreciation and enjoyment.

Music Review

Le Carre Triumphant

by Jon Zonderman

The Honourable Schoobohan of Le Carre Le Carre Los Angeles

Alfred Knopf (Hardcover)

Bantam (Paper)

The spy-genre has become so hackneyed that a spy novel is almost antithetical to good literature. Very few practitioners of the low art of spy fiction write well; all almost antithetical to good literature. The spy-genre has become so low art of spy fiction write well; all

Le Carre began writing spy novels in the 1950s and has continued to write them ever since. His novels, such as "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold," "The Honourable Schoolboy," and "Smiley's People," are still considered classics of the genre.

"The Spy Who Came in from the Cold," published in 1963, is set in the early 1960s and follows the story of任性西, an MI6 officer who is sent to Berlin to uncover a Russian spy. The novel was a huge success and established Le Carre as a major figure in spy fiction.

"The Honourable Schoolboy," published in 1968, is set on the high seas and follows the story of a wealthy businessman who is blackmailed by a Russian spy. The novel was a critical and commercial success.

"Smiley's People," published in 1980, is set during the Cold War and follows the story of the British Secret Service as they uncover a Russian spy ring. The novel was a critical and commercial success and established Le Carre as one of the top writers of the 20th century.
The Hartford Stage Company has announced that Alexander Scourby will play the title role in its upcoming production of Brecht’s “Galileo.” This epic narrative dramatizes one of the most important episodes in the history of science, the protracted struggle to oust Galileo from his university position after he was accused of heresy. The show will run until March 11. Information, call 436-3164.

WRTC Plays Albums
WRTC will play the following albums in their entirety each weekday at 3:00 p.m.
Tuesday, February 6: Andy Mendelson “Maybe the Good Guy’s Gonna Win.”
Wednesday, February 7: Marc Tasman Band “No Escape.”
Thursday, February 8: Fats Waller “Phantom of the Night.”
Friday, February 9: The Baby “Head First.”
Monday, February 12: Muddy Waters “Muddy Mississippi Waters Line.”

2 DRINKS FOR 1 ON THURSDAY NIGHTS
Ladies Night
2-4:00 P.M.
Dance Lessons
Saturdays, 8-12:00 P.M.
Free Disco Dance Lessons
Mon & Tues • Free Disco Dance Lessons
To The 97 1/2%

By David Whiner

Is it fun? Is it cool? Does it gain prestige? And, of course, D.K. since others do it? Is it a function ofショウとしますか？Do you do it to be cool, to be part of the D.K. because it may not be directly relevant to your class, or is it just a simple fact of life?

The present, almost unbridled, reign of vandalism on campus is making the place where you live and work increasingly unpleasant. The range of vandalism is very broad, stretching from things we take for granted like cleaning up after our pets to the more elaborate criminal acts of defacing bulletin boards to those cretins who find joy in ripping out sinks, tearing down bathroom partitions, and breaking huge windows.

Locks are broken, fire extinguishers set off, campus decorations broken, beer bottles and cans smashed and left.

The previous administration, the "Animal House" charm, but the realities of the situation are ugly.

The situation has reached the point where the administration is restricting undergraduate privileges. Last week, as a result of repeated acts of destruction, we lost the privilege of using the student lounge for social activity. During a period when the Hamlin Hall meeting rooms were used almost constantly by both undergraduates, the lounge was trashed and the men’s room had a sink ripped out.

The widespread toleration of vandalism is a reflection of a lack of self-respect. We shouldn’t have to put up with it. The College, administrative and social, should be a place where people can feel safe. There are many possible solutions. For example, the students could be given trips to the Seminary or to the Archdiocese.

The increase in offenses requiring disciplinary action is real. Is it a function of our increasing insensitivity? As a human being I am sickened by the narrow-mindedness of some students toward others. As a psychologist I am appalled by the increasing income dropped so you now have to work five hours a week to earn beer money! We know that our sympathy empathizes with the victim although you may never have a good time at least, don’t drink and drive and get smashed. You didn’t make the first string on the team?

The present, almost unbridled, reign of vandalism on campus is making the place where you live and work increasingly unpleasant. The range of vandalism is very broad, stretching from things we take for granted like cleaning up after our pets to the more elaborate criminal acts of defacing bulletin boards to those cretins who find joy in ripping out sinks, tearing down bathroom partitions, and breaking huge windows.

Locks are broken, fire extinguishers set off, campus decorations broken, beer bottles and cans smashed and left.

The previous administration, the "Animal House" charm, but the realities of the situation are ugly.

The situation has reached the point where the administration is restricting undergraduate privileges. Last week, as a result of repeated acts of destruction, we lost the privilege of using the student lounge for social activity. During a period when the Hamlin Hall meeting rooms were used almost constantly by both undergraduates, the lounge was trashed and the men’s room had a sink ripped out.

The widespread toleration of vandalism is a reflection of a lack of self-respect. We shouldn’t have to put up with it. The College, administrative and social, should be a place where people can feel safe. There are many possible solutions. For example, the students could be given trips to the Seminary or to the Archdiocese.

The increase in offenses requiring disciplinary action is real. Is it a function of our increasing insensitivity? As a human being I am sickened by the narrow-mindedness of some students toward others. As a psychologist I am appalled by the increasing income dropped so you now have to work five hours a week to earn beer money! We know that our sympathy empathizes with the victim although you may never have a good time at least, don’t drink and drive and get smashed. You didn’t make the first string on the team?

The present, almost unbridled, reign of vandalism on campus is making the place where you live and work increasingly unpleasant. The range of vandalism is very broad, stretching from things we take for granted like cleaning up after our pets to the more elaborate criminal acts of defacing bulletin boards to those cretins who find joy in ripping out sinks, tearing down bathroom partitions, and breaking huge windows.

Locks are broken, fire extinguishers set off, campus decorations broken, beer bottles and cans smashed and left.

The previous administration, the "Animal House" charm, but the realities of the situation are ugly.

The situation has reached the point where the administration is restricting undergraduate privileges. Last week, as a result of repeated acts of destruction, we lost the privilege of using the student lounge for social activity. During a period when the Hamlin Hall meeting rooms were used almost constantly by both undergraduates, the lounge was trashed and the men’s room had a sink ripped out.

The widespread toleration of vandalism is a reflection of a lack of self-respect. We shouldn’t have to put up with it. The College, administrative and social, should be a place where people can feel safe. There are many possible solutions. For example, the students could be given trips to the Seminary or to the Archdiocese.

The increase in offenses requiring disciplinary action is real. Is it a function of our increasing insensitivity? As a human being I am sickened by the narrow-mindedness of some students toward others. As a psychologist I am appalled by the increasing income dropped so you now have to work five hours a week to earn beer money! We know that our sympathy empathizes with the victim although you may never have a good time at least, don’t drink and drive and get smashed. You didn’t make the first string on the team?

The present, almost unbridled, reign of vandalism on campus is making the place where you live and work increasingly unpleasant. The range of vandalism is very broad, stretching from things we take for granted like cleaning up after our pets to the more elaborate criminal acts of defacing bulletin boards to those cretins who find joy in ripping out sinks, tearing down bathroom partitions, and breaking huge windows.

Locks are broken, fire extinguishers set off, campus decorations broken, beer bottles and cans smashed and left.

The previous administration, the "Animal House" charm, but the realities of the situation are ugly.

The situation has reached the point where the administration is restricting undergraduate privileges. Last week, as a result of repeated acts of destruction, we lost the privilege of using the student lounge for social activity. During a period when the Hamlin Hall meeting rooms were used almost constantly by both undergraduates, the lounge was trashed and the men’s room had a sink ripped out.

The widespread toleration of vandalism is a reflection of a lack of self-respect. We shouldn’t have to put up with it. The College, administrative and social, should be a place where people can feel safe. There are many possible solutions. For example, the students could be given trips to the Seminary or to the Archdiocese.

The increase in offenses requiring disciplinary action is real. Is it a function of our increasing insensitivity? As a human being I am sickened by the narrow-mindedness of some students toward others. As a psychologist I am appalled by the increasing income dropped so you now have to work five hours a week to earn beer money! We know that our sympathy empathizes with the victim although you may never have a good time at least, don’t drink and drive and get smashed. You didn’t make the first string on the team?

The present, almost unbridled, reign of vandalism on campus is making the place where you live and work increasingly unpleasant. The range of vandalism is very broad, stretching from things we take for granted like cleaning up after our pets to the more elaborate criminal acts of defacing bulletin boards to those cretins who find joy in ripping out sinks, tearing down bathroom partitions, and breaking huge windows.

Locks are broken, fire extinguishers set off, campus decorations broken, beer bottles and cans smashed and left.

The previous administration, the "Animal House" charm, but the realities of the situation are ugly.

The situation has reached the point where the administration is restricting undergraduate privileges. Last week, as a result of repeated acts of destruction, we lost the privilege of using the student lounge for social activity. During a period when the Hamlin Hall meeting rooms were used almost constantly by both undergraduates, the lounge was trashed and the men’s room had a sink ripped out.

The widespread toleration of vandalism is a reflection of a lack of self-respect. We shouldn’t have to put up with it. The College, administrative and social, should be a place where people can feel safe. There are many possible solutions. For example, the students could be given trips to the Seminary or to the Archdiocese.

The increase in offenses requiring disciplinary action is real. Is it a function of our increasing insensitivity? As a human being I am sickened by the narrow-mindedness of some students toward others. As a psychologist I am appalled by the increasing income dropped so you now have to work five hours a week to earn beer money! We know that our sympathy empathizes with the victim although you may never have a good time at least, don’t drink and drive and get smashed. You didn’t make the first string on the team?
The classroom behavior I disapprove of is talking from your seat, whether for the sake of demonstrating the fact that there is really a mouth present in the room or from some other motive. It was foolishly naive of me to think so in my last week's commentary as the place to start. It was, of course, the middle of every student's intellectual apparatus sat on its thinking apparatus set to constantly. It isn't. The problem is misuse, a misuse that may be of particular interest in this context. Indeed, I believe that a great majority of the students here are of above average intellectual capacity. The starting point for this discussion is the intellectual atmosphere of the classroom. The atmosphere here is much closer to that of a country club than a college classroom and I believe that is precisely what is wrong with education at Trinity. The atmosphere really has nothing to do with what goes on in the classroom at all. Academic work is a given in every college in the country. That doesn't mean the college teaches academic work and how to do it. The classroom experience is part of the academic work.
Acer in law—without law school

Acer just three months of study at The Institute for Paralegal Training in Philadelphia, you can have an exciting and rewarding career in law or business—without law school.

A lawyer's assistant will be performing many of the duties traditionally handled only by attorneys. And at The Institute for Paralegal Training, you can pick up knowledge in many areas of law to study. Upon completion of your program, The Institute for Paralegal Training will work with you to find a responsible and challenging job in a law firm, bank or corporation in the city of your choice.

The Institute for Paralegal Training is the nation's first and most respected school for paralegal training. Since 1970, we've placed over 2,500 graduates in over 85 cities nationwide.

If you're a senior of high academic standing and looking for an above average career, contact us for an interview with our representative.

We will visit your campus on:

Friday, March 16

The Institute
Paralegal Training

Approved by the Paralegal Association

235 South 17th Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103

215-922-6600

Solar Energy Panel

The Solar Energy Association of Connecticut, Inc. will present a panel of speakers on "Appropriate Technology in Sun" on Sunday, February 11, 1979 at 2:00 p.m. at the College of Agricultural Education in the University of Connecticut in Storrs.

Study Away

The following general informational meetings will be held in Alumni Lounge on the dates and at the hours indicated:

Thursday, February 8, 1:30 to 2:00 p.m.
Tuesday, February 13, 11:00 to 11:35 a.m.
Thursday, February 22, 11:00 to 11:45 a.m.
Tuesday, February 27, 3:10 to 3:20 p.m.

Students are invited to come to the AIESEC meeting to obtain information for the first time or to ask further questions of Dean Winslow concerning study away from Trinity.

Lockwood

cont. from p. 3

Apparently, he does not expect the agent to be missed while he's gone. He commented, "At least there'll be fewer questions. I won't have to send them out no more."
Mountaineering #2.

SELECTING THE PROPER GEAR

The Busch label is where it all begins. Note the snowy, craggy peaks affixed thereto. They are the mountains.

You are the mountaineer. And this is an ad. The subject of which is selecting the proper gear for mountaineering. (It all fits together so nicely, doesn’t it?)

First and foremost, you’ll need to pop the mountain top. For this task, faithful mountaineers use a church key. Secular mountaineers use a bottle opener. Don’t be confused by these antics with semantics. Just remember, the opener is your primary tool. Be true to it and it will be true to you.

Second, choose a glass. Here the options become immense. German steins, hand-blown pilseners, that cute little March key used by faithful mountaineers. (Church key used by Mr. Boffo mug you’ve had since third grade.)

Comfort is crucial. If you mountaineer in public, pick a padded bar stool, preferably one that spins (to facilitate admiring the scenery). At home, a comfortable chair or sofa will do. Rule of thumb: if it feels good, and the police don’t seem to mind, do it.

Then turn on the tube or spin a tune or crack a good book. The choice is strictly between you and the dominant hemisphere of your brain. Of course, some mountaineers say the smooth, refreshing taste of Busch is entertainment enough. And thank goodness, because it’s an excellent conclusion.

Be adventurous. Experiment. Most mountaineers have a personal preference. You’ll develop one too.

Food is next. Proper mountaineering, not to mention proper nutrition, requires a smorgasbord selection of snacks. Some mountaineers have suffered from a potato chip deficiency, a pretzel imbalance or other serious dietary defects. Plan ahead.

Don’t just reach for a beer. Head for the mountains.
Basketball Clinics

Under the direction of Head Basketball Coach Dan Doyle, Trinity College has been sponsoring Basketball Clinics for local Hartford youngsters. Before the Coast Guard game on Jan. 20 over SMU Hartford Youth Club members attended such a clinic.

This past Saturday, prior to the JV vs. Northfield-Mt. Hermon and the Varsity vs. Cunn. Catholic conference matches, 1200 and girls ages 7-14, all students from Hartford's Elementary and Middle Schools, sat in Unit A of Ferris Athletic Center and listened and practiced as Coach Doyle demonstrated a half hour workout to improve the basketball game. After the clinic the youngsters were admitted free to the two contests.

Coach, Too Flashed In Judo Tourney

Carmen Palladino of Trinity's Athletic Department entered a Judo Tournament in Old Saybrook this past weekend, and won the first place trophy in the unlimited weight division.

Two Trinity freshmen, Amy Thompson and Julie Wolcott, also entered the Tournament. Although they only began their Judo in September, and although they were competing against much more experienced opponents, both achieved third place in their respective weight classes.

Basketball

The Trinity Bantams swept their 7-0 weekend in New England.

Fencing

The Trinity Fencing team swept victory over SMU by a score of 5-0.

The team's record now stands at 4-4. The only defeat was suffered at the hands of Yale, one of the toughest Ivy League fencing teams.

The Bantams' foil team had a rough week as they went down before SMU by a score of 3-2 and then lost to SMU 6-1 only to be handed a defeat because their SMU opponents had scored more touches against the gallant Lady Bants.

While every fencer shared equally in the victory, certain teams members shone while turning in some truly brilliant performances.

The most memorable one was to victory over UConn 18-9 and 13-3 by a score of 5-0.

Lacrosse Raffle Winners

The Trinity Varsity Lacrosse Team announced the winners of its raffle last week:

- First Prize—Steve Laminicki, a tugy party in his honor, plus dinner for two at the Last National Bank.
- Second Prize—Sara Klocke, $30 gift certificate from Eastern Mt. Sports.
- Third Prize—Chris Murphy, Concert tickets (winner's choice).
- Fourth Prize—Peter Hoibell, an original wooster print. Any questions contact Clinton Brown, 267-1247.

Any Cheering Interest

Anyone interested in cheering at Basketball games this season should contact Elim, at 324-0758.

Fencing Upends UConn, Squeaks By SMU

The Trinity Varsity Fencing team swept their 1-0 weekend in New England.

The Trinity Fencing team in its matches is that they do not understand what is going on in front of them. This first thing which must be remembered when one comes to a fencing match is that there are three different weapons: foil, sabre, and epee. Each weapon is slightly different in the way it is employed and in its target area (the area in which one has to be hit to have a touch scored against him). The epee is the third sabre, and not had his best day of the season with a 21-0 record.

One of the complaints which often hears from people who come down to Unit D to watch the fencing matches is that they do not understand what is going on. This means that fencing is a machine has not yet been developed which can handle the complexities of sabre touches.

In all three weapons, the bouts are presided over by a director who controls all the action. In the case of sabre, the bout is judged electronically. Sabre, on the other hand, cannot be judged, with the aid of machines because a machine would be a machine has not yet been developed which can handle the complexities of sabre touches.

The foil is a light thrusting weapon which was originally used to train duellists. A valid hit or touch can be scored if the point touches the torso of the fencer. To make matters easier, all fencing is touched electronically. If a fencer is hit on his torso a colored light goes off, but if he is hit so quickly that the white line is it. This saber is a cutting and thrusting weapon with the target area being the upper half of the fencer's body including the arms, hands, and head. The modern fencing saber is a direct descendent of the old cavalry saber and, because of its versatility, it is often used in old Hollywood movies (The Mark of Zorro). The saber is also the most exciting of the three weapons to watch because of the a tempo is faster and because most of the moves utilized by sabre fencers are cutting actions which are easier to follow than those which are used in the point weapons of foil and epee.

In foil and saber, the awarding of touches is ruled by the concept of the right of way. Whoever extends his arm first and initiates the move controls all the action. In the case of the epee fencers have been touched. Each bout in intercollegiate fencing run four minutes long. The bouts are conducted on a strip six feet wide by 66 feet long. If a fencer goes in order is scored against him.

An intercollegiate fencing meet consists of 27 bouts, nine in each weapon for the men's team and of 18 bouts for the women's team.

If you would like to see a fencing match, the final home match of the year takes place this Thursday, at Unit D at 7:00 p.m. against Brandeis.

Men's Hoop - Conquers Conn.

Men's JV Squash 1-0 For Week

The Trinity Bantam JV Squash Team lost to Yale 7-0 on Tuesday. Thursday evening saw another bout at Wesleyan 6-3 on Thursday. The Bants were led by the efforts of Van Dillion, Rich Gelin, and Ross Goldberg, as they upped their record to 3:2. This week's JV matches are home on Monday at 4:00 vs. Choate, away vs. Kent on Feb. 7 at 4:00, and away vs. Trinity Pawling on Feb. 9 at 4:00.

Chick's Chicks at 500

Trinity's Varsity Women's Squash Team swept their 1-0 weekend in New England.

The team's record now stands at 1-0. The only loss was to Yale by the narrow margin of 5-4.

The first thing which must be remembered when one comes to a fencing match is that there are three different weapons: foil, sabre, and epee. Each weapon is slightly different in the way it is employed and in its target area (the area in which one has to be hit to have a touch scored against him).

The foil is a light thrusting weapon which was originally used to train duellists. A valid hit or touch can be scored if the point touches the torso of the fencer. To make matters easier, all fencing is touched electronically. If a fencer is hit on his torso a colored light goes off, but if he is hit so quickly that the white line is it. This saber is a cutting and thrusting weapon with the target area being the upper half of the fencer's body including the arms, hands, and head. The modern fencing saber is a direct descendent of the old cavalry saber and, because of its versatility, it is often used in old Hollywood movies (The Mark of Zorro). The saber is also the most exciting of the three weapons to watch because of the a tempo is faster and because most of the moves utilized by sabre fencers are cutting actions which are easier to follow than those which are used in the point weapons of foil and epee.

In foil and saber, the awarding of touches is ruled by the concept of the right of way. Whoever extends his arm first and initiates the move controls all the action. In the case of the epee fencers have been touched. Each bout in intercollegiate fencing run four minutes long. The bouts are conducted on a strip six feet wide by 66 feet long. If a fencer goes in order is scored against him.

An intercollegiate fencing meet consists of 27 bouts, nine in each weapon for the men's team and of 18 bouts for the women's team.

If you would like to see a fencing match, the final home match of the year takes place this Thursday, at Unit D at 7:00 p.m. against Brandeis.

Men's Hoop - Conquers Conn.

Men's JV Squash 1-0 For Week

The Trinity Bantam JV Squash Team lost to Yale 7-0 on Tuesday. Thursday evening saw another bout at Wesleyan 6-3 on Thursday. The Bants were led by the efforts of Van Dillion, Rich Gelin, and Ross Goldberg, as they upped their record to 3:2. This week's JV matches are home on Monday at 4:00 vs. Choate, away vs. Kent on Feb. 7 at 4:00, and away vs. Trinity Pawling on Feb. 9 at 4:00.

Chick's Chicks at 500

Trinity's Varsity Women's Squash Team swept their 1-0 weekend in New England.

The team's record now stands at 1-0. The only loss was to Yale by the narrow margin of 5-4.

The first thing which must be remembered when one comes to a fencing match is that there are three different weapons: foil, sabre, and epee. Each weapon is slightly different in the way it is employed and in its target area (the area in which one has to be hit to have a touch scored against him).

The foil is a light thrusting weapon which was originally used to train duellists. A valid hit or touch can be scored if the point touches the torso of the fencer. To make matters easier, all fencing is touched electronically. If a fencer is hit on his torso a colored light goes off, but if he is hit so quickly that the white line is it. This saber is a cutting and thrusting weapon with the target area being the upper half of the fencer's body including the arms, hands, and head. The modern fencing saber is a direct descendent of the old cavalry saber and, because of its versatility, it is often used in old Hollywood movies (The Mark of Zorro). The saber is also the most exciting of the three weapons to watch because of the a tempo is faster and because most of the moves utilized by sabre fencers are cutting actions which are easier to follow than those which are used in the point weapons of foil and epee.

In foil and saber, the awarding of touches is ruled by the concept of the right of way. Whoever extends his arm first and initiates the move controls all the action. In the case of the epee fencers have been touched. Each bout in intercollegiate fencing run four minutes long. The bouts are conducted on a strip six feet wide by 66 feet long. If a fencer goes in order is scored against him.

An intercollegiate fencing meet consists of 27 bouts, nine in each weapon for the men's team and of 18 bouts for the women's team.

If you would like to see a fencing match, the final home match of the year takes place this Thursday, at Unit D at 7:00 p.m. against Brandeis.

Basketball

The Trinity Bantams swept their 7-0 weekend in New England.

Fencing

The Trinity Fencing team swept victory over SMU by a score of 5-0.

The team's record now stands at 4-4. The only defeat was suffered at the hands of Yale, one of the toughest Ivy League fencing teams.

The Bantams' foil team had a rough week as they went down before SMU by a score of 3-2 and then lost to SMU 6-1 only to be handed a defeat because their SMU opponents had scored more touches against the gallant Lady Bants.

While every fencer shared equally in the victory, certain teams members shone while turning in some truly brilliant performances.

The most memorable one was to victory over UConn 18-9 and 13-3 by a score of 5-0.

Lacrosse Raffle Winners

The Trinity Varsity Lacrosse Team announced the winners of its raffle last week:

- First Prize—Steve Laminicki, a tugy party in his honor, plus dinner for two at the Last National Bank.
- Second Prize—Sara Klocke, $30 gift certificate from Eastern Mt. Sports.
- Third Prize—Chris Murphy, Concert tickets (winner's choice).
- Fourth Prize—Peter Hoibell, an original wooster print. Any questions contact Clinton Brown, 267-1247.

Any Cheering Interest

Anyone interested in cheering at Basketball games this season should contact Elim, at 324-0758.
Sports

Women's Basketball Ups Record To 5-2

Crawford indulged herself in a little exhibition period, then she hit the floor after being fouled, to delight the crowd with scant minutes left in the premier stanza. Crawford's eleven rebounds in the first half paced the Bantam offense.

In the second act the Kathy Crawford Show continued. She stole the ball, she swished the rebound, she grabbed for the sphere clutched by a Cardinal, she was all over the court setting up play after play.

Cindy Higgins got into a little foul trouble, and it was felt wise for her to sit out for a bit. But from the bench her vocal support rallied the team to even further heights of glory.

A long, full court pass from Sue Levin to Kathy Schlein produced an easy lay up for the compact freshman. Levin then came up with a three point play of her own. Schlein continued to look super strong under the boards, but they didn't jealously guard her as they did in their numerous scoring opportunities. Sue Levin stripped an opponent of the ball more than once during this thrilla-minute stretch. Kathy Bants finished with 12. Co-captain Sue Levin's only star during the long afternoon. The 6-5 co-captain improved his technique in the 35 lb. weight with 35 in the shot by more than an inch. Best, he has placed fourth in the final. He then took the ball and produced a fine outside swish-shot, and finally capped her evening with a pretty three-pointer some minutes later.

Nice foul shooting by Cathy Anderson highlighted the final minutes of play, and Trinity took Wesleyan to the tune of 65-54.

For Delicious Pizza and Hot Oven Grinders

Come in and Eat in our NEWLY EXPANDED Dining Room!

Richard Staron

Helms House

prop.

Across from South Campus
287 New Britain Avenue
Hartford

Phone: 247-0234

Call when you leave - it will be ready upon arrival

Indoor Track At Williams Invitational Meet

Women's Basketball Ups Record To 5-2

Bants finished with 12. Co-captain Sue Levin's only star during the long afternoon. The 6-5 co-captain improved his technique in the 35 lb. weight with 35 in the shot by more than an inch. Best, he has placed fourth in the final. He then took the ball and produced a fine outside swish-shot, and finally capped her evening with a pretty three-pointer some minutes later.

Nice foul shooting by Cathy Anderson highlighted the final minutes of play, and Trinity took Wesleyan to the tune of 65-54.

For Delicious Pizza and Hot Oven Grinders

Come in and Eat in our NEWLY EXPANDED Dining Room!

Richard Staron

Helms House

prop.

Across from South Campus
287 New Britain Avenue
Hartford

Phone: 247-0234

Call when you leave - it will be ready upon arrival

Indoor Track At Williams Invitational Meet

This Week In Trinity Sports

by Alex Magoun

A recent graduate once said of track practice. "If you haven't thought about winning or losing during your intervals, then you haven't run fast enough." He was right, for the members of Trinity Track Team's scoring problems lie in the feet of the men in the running events. Through the field in which the Bantams have placed fourth in the final. He then took the ball and produced a fine outside swish-shot, and finally capped her evening with a pretty three-pointer some minutes later.

Nice foul shooting by Cathy Anderson highlighted the final minutes of play, and Trinity took Wesleyan to the tune of 65-54.

For Delicious Pizza and Hot Oven Grinders

Come in and Eat in our NEWLY EXPANDED Dining Room!

Richard Staron

Helms House

prop.

Across from South Campus
287 New Britain Avenue
Hartford

Phone: 247-0234

Call when you leave - it will be ready upon arrival

Indoor Track At Williams Invitational Meet

This Week In Trinity Sports

by Alex Magoun

A recent graduate once said of track practice. "If you haven't thought about winning or losing during your intervals, then you haven't run fast enough." He was right, for the members of Trinity Track Team's scoring problems lie in the feet of the men in the running events. Through the field in which the Bantams have placed fourth in the final. He then took the ball and produced a fine outside swish-shot, and finally capped her evening with a pretty three-pointer some minutes later.

Nice foul shooting by Cathy Anderson highlighted the final minutes of play, and Trinity took Wesleyan to the tune of 65-54.
Hockey 9-2 In Div. III After 2-0 Week

The Trinity College Men's Varsity Swimming Team concluded a 14-week season by conquering the Cardinals of Wesleyan 6-4, and succeeding to the Worms of MIT 83-28. The battle against Wesleyan was more indicative of the remarkable improvement of '97/98 Swim Squad. Coach McPhee's troops have now attained a 2-1 record with two important meets opening this week. Trinity's record of 24 is significant of the fact that some pre-season predictions forecasted that Trinity would not win any meets.

Last Wednesday night the Ducks journeyed to the grit of Middletown, CT, in pace to meet the Cardinals of Wesleyan. Trinity had been extremely well prepared for the meet as evidenced by their two previous week's heats in which Wesleyan had been outdistanced. The meet was forecast to be very close because where one team was strong, the opposing team was weak and vice-versa. However, the one difference between winners and losers is that winners are able to use their heads. Trinity changed their lineup in a way that Wesleyan would not expect and that proved to be the difference in the meet.

Wesleyan matched out to a win in the 400 Medley Relay but the next two events proved to be the focal point of the meet, Co-Op and Keenan. Kent Reilly moved up to swim the 500 free exemplified the meet. Co-capt. Mike Hinton's one-two finish to pretty much close the day as Trin's only individual win got the meet started. Hinton's 100 free led the visitors with 12 points. Scott Taylor and Peter Lawson-Johnston collaborated on a quicksand sandwich in last Saturday's action. Jack Slattery and Peter Lawson-Johnston collaborated on a Quinplac sandwich in last Saturday's action.

Swim Squad Slices Wes, Diced By MIT

Trinity's George Brickley, the ECAC Division III scoring leader, matched four goals against Quinplac.

On Saturday, Trinity ventured to the labs of MIT to battle the Worms. The tone of the meet was set after the first three events as MIT swept them all. Trinity swam thru the meet as each of the machines were able to sweep the first three events. Adam in the 50 and Katzman in the 100 were a couple of bright spots for Trinity. Hinton's 500 free exemplified the meet.

This upcoming week will be the most important week for McPhee's Indians. Tuesday, they will feature a close matchup between Trinity and the Beavers of Bucknell College. The Beavers have never lost to Trinity but today's meet should prove sweet for the Ducks. Everyone is invited to view Trinity at 400 at the Tracktown Pool this Tuesday. In addition, Trinity swam two other important meets this week—WPI on Thursday at 7:30 p.m., an important match against Central Connecticut State College at 400 on Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

More Sports

Men's JV Hoop Falls To 3-5

by Anthony Fichetti

The JV Bantams dropped three games last week to extend their losing streak to 3 games. The team now sports a 3-5 record.

Trinity opened the week with a 63-60 heartbreaking setback at the hands of Wesleyan. Scott Taylor enjoyed a fantastic game inside, his driving drives and running one-handers being the main source of Trinity points, as he shot his way to a game-high 32 points. As has been their habit Trinity fell behind early, with poor shot selection and defensive lapses causing numerous turnovers. The Cardinals took advantage of these errors and jettisoned from the gym by an 82-70 score. Brendan Davey of the Bantams was outstanding, in this reporter's opinion.

Wesleyan came out and scored the first four points of the second half, seemingly putting it out of reach. It was here, though, that the Bantams made their comeback.

Karl Nelson, the Flying Freshman, rallied for 5 goals and an assist as Trinity crushed the hapless Quinplac Braves on Saturday, 19-1. Lineup was at last an amazing total of 6 assists, and Rick Margenot, the third member of the terrifying trio, added a goal and two assists. It was a breather for both teams, as Pete Lawless-Johnston, playing at center with fellow defender Dan Barnard and Jack Slattery in the third period, slapped in two, Barnard also had a big hand in the scoring as he notched 5 assists. George Bricklebury upped his career point total to 42 as he tallied 4 goals and 1 assist. Joe Upton snagged his second goal in two games, as did Clint Brown and Tom Kerma.

Last Wednesday night the Ducks traveled to Fairfield on Wednesday, and Smithfield, Rhode Island on Thursday at 7:30 p.m., and an afternoon game at 2:00. Be sure to attend these remaining games and watch as Trinity makes an comeback.
More Sports

Wrestlers Fall To MIT, Brown

by Peter Bennett

On Wednesday the Trinity Bantam Varsity Squash Team was soundly beaten by an experienced Yale squad 8-1. The Bantams were sparked by the play of Chris Murphy, Page Lansdale, and Bob Dudley. Murphy defeated his Yale opponent in three games for Trinity’s lone win in the match. However, Lansdale and Dudley also performed superbly, as they both battled for five games before falling to their respective adversaries. Lansdale losing 17-16 in the final game.

Coach Sutherland cited the inexperience of the Bantams as a major determinant in the team’s initial loss, as the younger players had some difficulty adjusting to the tense atmosphere of the match. Peter DeRose commented: "Yale’s depth is tremendous; they’re a real solid club."

Over the weekend, the Trinity racquetteers traveled to Wesleyan where they participated in a Round Robin Tournament. On Friday, Trinity was victorious in the two matches they played, a 7-2 drubbing of Wesleyan, and an 8-1 triumph over Franklin and Marshall. On Saturday, the Bantams came out on the short end of a 7-2 score to Stony Brook. Peter DeRose, the 84 seed, was not able to play in the tournament due to an ankle injury, which is expected to keep him out of action until this coming weekend. Sutherland noted the loss of DeRose was a big handicap, for Stony Brook is very potent in their top three positions (earlier in the season, Stony Brook lost to Yale 6-3, but their top three players were victorious).

Page Lansdale, Bob Dudley, and Scott Friedman, and Captain Andy Storm, were all strong performers over the weekend for the Bantams, who raised their season’s record to 9-2, with both losses coming against teams ranked in the top ten nationally last season.

This weekend will be another tough one for the Bantams, as they host Amherst on Feb. 7 at 7:00, and Princeton on Feb. 10 at 7:00 at the Ferry Athletic Center. Hopefully the Bantams will return to their winning ways.

The Summit

by Nick Noble

"Let’s go, y’all," she shouted to her teammates from the bench. The ball careening out of bounds, and she stopped it with her hands, and held it out to the striped official approaching her from the court.

"Here you are sir," she deadpanned, flipping the sphere deftly in hands, and held it out to the striped official approaching her from the court.

"Thank you," he replied seriously. "You’re welcome." She answered tentatively, then her face broke into a grin, and she laughed. Kathleen W. Crawford, a senior from Rowayton, is one of the delights of any Trinity athletic season. Her effervescent, ebullient style of play make her at once a crowd favorite, adored by her teammates, enjoyed by the fans, and that has helped make bearable the long winter. As a freshman and sophomore she totalled 163 points and 162 rebounds. She spent her junior year in California, and of which she is constructed, this gave Trinity a capital advantage. Malkovitch was a 14-9 winner and nearly pinned his man, who fought desperately to keep from getting pinned.

The strength of this year’s team, co-captain John O’Brien at 86 and Davis Brooks at 90, were pivotal. Of a roster of eight, six are veteran racquet-women, and two are two of their own in grappling to a tie. The highlight of the day was Glenn McClaren’s pin in the heavyweight class.

Women’s Squash

Still Untied

Racquet Women Battle To Cup Fourth

Trinity’s Women’s Varsity Squash Team continued its winning ways this week both on the road and at home. The week was looking grim on Tuesday, as sickness and injury plagued Trin’s two best wrestlers. The strength of this year’s team, a school where crowds are thin and support is minimal, the situation is extremely precarious.

Though she doesn’t knit as well as the injured Mimi Coolidge, Kathy Crawford, a steadily healthy headed to Vassar, with a new face gracing the top seven; Emily Powell.

As a freshman and sophomore she totalled 163 points and 162 rebounds. She spent her junior year in California, and of which she is constructed, this gave Trinity a capital advantage. Malkovitch was a 14-9 winner and nearly pinned his man, who fought desperately to keep from getting pinned.

The strength of this year’s team, co-captain John O’Brien at 86 and Davis Brooks at 90, were pivotal. Of a roster of eight, six are veteran racquet-women, and two are two of their own in grappling to a tie. The highlight of the day was Glenn McClaren’s pin in the heavyweight class.

The Summit

by Nick Noble

"Let’s go, y’all," she shouted to her teammates from the bench. The ball careening out of bounds, and she stopped it with her hands, and held it out to the striped official approaching her from the court.

"Here you are sir," she deadpanned, flipping the sphere deftly in hands, and held it out to the striped official approaching her from the court.

"Thank you," he replied seriously. "You’re welcome." She answered tentatively, then her face broke into a grin, and she laughed. Kathleen W. Crawford, a senior from Rowayton, is one of the delights of any Trinity athletic season. Her effervescent, ebullient style of play make her at once a crowd favorite, adored by her teammates, enjoyed by the fans, and that has helped make bearable the long winter. As a freshman and sophomore she totalled 163 points and 162 rebounds. She spent her junior year in California, and of which she is constructed, this gave Trinity a capital advantage. Malkovitch was a 14-9 winner and nearly pinned his man, who fought desperately to keep from getting pinned.

The strength of this year’s team, co-captain John O’Brien at 86 and Davis Brooks at 90, were pivotal. Of a roster of eight, six are veteran racquet-women, and two are two of their own in grappling to a tie. The highlight of the day was Glenn McClaren’s pin in the heavyweight class.
Sports

Revenge Is Sweet! Trinity-4 Amherst-3

Nelson Has 5 Goals, Bullard 6 Assists In Quinnipiac Romp

By Nancy Lucas

In the Hockey Team's season opener, the hosts were implausibly ousted by the visiting Lord Jeffs of Amherst by a narrow score of 4-3. It was a different Bantam team that faced the bad boys from Amherst on Wednesday night in a pleasantly packed Glastonbury Arena, however, as they played the same tune.

The 79 Tris team came into the contest with an impressive 1-2 record in the Division compared to Amherst's 2-9.

To say that the Bants were psyched for the game would be an understatement. And Amherst, coming off a big loss in Fairfield earlier in the week, wanted just as badly to get on the winning track.

In an earlier game this week, the Trinity score went higher than the opposing goalies could handle. The third period was a story in itself. Amherst, determined to snap the hosts up by a 3-0 deficit, put pressure on. The Bants were equal to the task until mid-way through the period, when a tricky shot fooled Wacko and snuck one lowered header to light up the board for the Lord Jeffs. George Brickley, not willing to let the last goal go by uncounted, stole the puck at the Amherst blue line and went in 1-on-1 with the goalie. Needless to say, the score was now 4-1.

Soon after, the game was disturbed by a number of bad Tris breaks. Freshman center Bob Ferguson, who had been playing a

---

Winning Week For Men's Basketball

Rosshir's Jumper Edges Lord Jeffs At Buzzer

by Anthony Fancher

It's not often that the biggest and most satisfying win of the season for the Trinity Men's Basketball team. Wing, the breakout star of the team, drilled an 18 footer jumper with -0.2 left on the clock to lift the Bantams to a 44-43 victory over Amherst Thursday night.

The Bantams were off to a 1-0 start in the Ivies and were determined not to let the momentum slip away.

The Bantams inbounded and swung the ball around the perimeter, killing the clock and making obvious their intentions to take the last shot and either win it or lose it at the buzzer. With 0.2 seconds left, Trin called for time to set up the last play.

As the ball was inbounded, Amherst set up a solid defense to prevent Trinity from scoring. At the buzzer, the Bants weren't as fortunate. With 0.2 seconds left, the ball went to Jim Callahan in the corner, who swang it back to Rosshirt, who unleashed the game-winner.

Coutu Leads Bantams Over Camels 72-54

By John Mayes

Coming off their thrilling upset of Amherst, the Trinity Bants may have considered the Camels of Conn. College a breeze on the schedule. And although the final score (72-54 Trinity) might indicate a 1-0, Conn. College made it a close game until the second half.

In the first half, the Trinity Bants shot at a steady pace, with 10 field goals and 6 assists. They lead the Bants to a 20-9 victory over Conn. College.

In an earlier game this week, the Bants trailed by as many as 30 points. Robert Craft paced Trin with 18 points, 3 rebounds, and 4 assists. The Bants scored 18 points in the first half, despite the fact they went into the intermission down 26-23.

Needless to say, the score was now 4-1. Soon after, the game was disturbed by a number of bad Tris breaks. Freshman center Bob Ferguson, who had been playing a...