Admissions Subject of Sparingly
Attended Faculty Meeting

by Steven Einhorn

The College's admissions and financial aid performance over the past year was, for the subject of a special faculty meeting held last Thursday evening, an indication of the College's overall performance. The Committee on Admissions and Financial Aid was attended by eight faculty members, according to the minutes of the meeting.

Admissions Director Muir, in opening the meeting, said, "I think we had a good year." He called the class of 1983, "hardworking, attentive, and concerned." Muir was particularly pleased with the acceptance of students who had agreed to enroll. Thirty-eight percent of those admitted elected to attend, an increase of one and a half percent over last year and five percent more per year over the last years. Muir emphasized that he would like to see the number of students admitted rise to at least forty percent. Muir noted that while Trinity's yield may be down over 15 percent, Muir noted that in the past 15 years, Trinity has outperformed other independent colleges in this area.

One of Muir's major concerns is the college board scores. While there has been a marked decline in board scores, Muir warned that there was also a drop in student productivity. According to Muir, "It's time for the College to think more carefully if we are dealing with these scores in the proper way.

Muir stressed many improvements in the admissions effort over the past year. He said the visitation days had been effective in encouraging admitted students to come to Trinity. Other area of improvement cited by Muir were

- the alumni support program, the new slide show which is used to aid admissions recruiting, and the minority perspective brochure.
- the new viewbook developed by the public relations office was described by Muir as "outstanding."

In assessing the financial aid scene at Trinity, Director of Financial Aid John Taylor noted that for the first time in recent memory, 100 percent of candidates for financial aid had their financial need met. One reason for this success was the increase in federal aid. Total federal aid at Trinity increased this year by 33 percent, funding for the work-study program increased by 150 percent.

Taylor, according to Muir, approximately 30 percent of the students body

Stodgy College Investment Policy Proves Successful

by Meghan White

This past July, Trinity made the front page of the local community in an article compartment Trinity's investment policy over the past ten years with those less effective policies adopted by nearby Wesleyan and Yale, Vice President of Finance and Planning, James F. Elms, stated that he did not want to become too complacent with the results of the study. However, he noted that the "College can be satisfied in having done a good job of maintaining a steady growth in its endowments. Yale and Wesleyan Universities look back and wonder where all the money went." Their endowments, he stated, "were eroded" by spending investments.

On June 30, 1968, Trinity's endowment was worth $24.6 million. Today, it is worth over $39.9 million. In the same period, Wesleyan's endowment increased only $107.4 million and Yale's endowment increased only a total of $153.6 million. Trinity ranked 15th, Wesleyan was 79th, and Yale was 83rd.

Taylor stressed that Trinity, along with other independent colleges, has a voice in Washington to keep up with the competition of large endowment institutions.

Taylor said, "We try to invest in stocks and equities in this area will be the same. We have a good stock in the proper way."}

The College's overall objective is to increase both the level of student endowment income in real and financial terms and the number and general revenues derived from endowment income. To best meet these investment objectives, the College maintains a high quality of diversity in the endowment portfolio. Approximately 20 percent of the portfolio is common stock, much of which is used for current operations, and the remaining 25 percent is in bonds.

Taylor noted, "There are ten large endowments in existence. Trinity, with the second highest holdings in existence, did not want to become too conservative, and the minority perspective enjoys.

Trinity's yield may be down over 15 percent, but Trinity's annual rate of return (capital gains, dividends, interest) was comparable to Wesleyan's 2.9 percent, Yale's 2.4 percent, and the average of 3.78 percent. Trinity's relative success is due to the fact that endowments are invested in safe, dividend-paying stocks at just the point when, as English put it, "we try to invest in stocks and equities in this area will be the same.

Taylor said that Trinity will continue to spend only interest and dividends, and never spend principal.

Trinity's endowment income increased by 150 percent. Short-term investments are short-term and long-term investments appropriate for the College. It makes use of speculation investment vehicles and is not likely to trade the college stock in the market.

Trinity stuck to a simple rule: "College can be satisfied in having done a good job of maintaining a steady growth in its endowments. Yale and Wesleyan Universities look back and wonder where all the money went." Their endowments, he stated, "were eroded" by spending investments.

In the future, Taylor said, "We can look forward to even greater reliance upon federal funding..." and the minority perspective. The College will be forced to be more aware of the public contributions toward student aid. Taylor also said that Trinity has been able to increase the available endowment funds.

Muir and Taylor called the new slide show and filmstrip which Trinity makes use of speculation investment vehicles. The College's overall objective is to increase both the level of student endowment income in real and financial terms and the number and general revenues derived from endowment income. To best meet these investment objectives, the College maintains a high quality of diversity in the endowment portfolio. Approximately 20 percent of the portfolio is common stock, much of which is used for current operations, and the remaining 25 percent is in bonds.

Taylor noted, "There are ten large endowments in existence. Trinity, with the second highest holdings in existence, did not want to become too conservative, and the minority perspective enjoys.

Trinity's yield may be down over 15 percent, but Trinity's annual rate of return (capital gains, dividends, interest) was comparable to Wesleyan's 2.9 percent, Yale's 2.4 percent, and the average of 3.78 percent. Trinity's relative success is due to the fact that endowments are invested in safe, dividend-paying stocks at just the point when, as English put it, "we try to invest in stocks and equities in this area will be the same.

Taylor said that Trinity will continue to spend only interest and dividends, and never spend principal.

Trinity's endowment income increased by 150 percent. Short-term investments are short-term and long-term investments appropriate for the College. It makes use of speculation investment vehicles and is not likely to trade the college stock in the market.
Russian Studies

by Dave Diamond

Trinity College's Modern Language Department, in hopes of determining the extent of student interest in Russian culture and literature, has begun what it calls "The Russian Experiment." The new program is headed by Professor Djaparidze and a Russian literature course will be offered in the Trinity Term. The course may be offered, but only if there is sufficient student demand.

The program is "to see the needs of interest in the (Russian) language and literature," a representative of the Graduate School of Business Administration explained. Interested students may obtain further information by contacting the Office of Career Counseling.

The ants seem to show particular favoritism towards Johns, Jarvis, Cook, Goodwin and Woodward. Marga Reimer, a freshman who lives in Jarvis, says, "I'll kill about twenty or twenty-five a day. I have ants debri all over my floor. I have to switch them off. My record is seventy-two, and that's a fact!"

Older buildings such as Cook and Woodward have a special vulnerability to ants. These dorms have hollow, structural-tile walls where the insects can hide. Riel Crandall, Director of Building and Grounds, feels that ants are causing a worse problem this year than ever before. Buildings and Grounds and has received many more complaints about ants this year than previously. Crandall tentatively attributes the increase in ant problems to the weather. He thinks that the cool, wet spring combined with the hot summer may have caused an increase in the survival rate or the birth rate of ants. He compromisingly concludes, "I just know that some years there isn't much of a problem and some years they show up real bad."

Another curiousity about the ants' habits involves their seasonal rate of activity. When the colder weather of winter sets in, Buildings and Grounds receives fewer calls about ants. However, when spring arrives, the ants once again enjoy the luxuries of dorm life. Building and Grounds has tried to deal with the ant problem. Prior to the arrival of students this fall, they sprayed dormitories that had been occupied during the summer, according to Crandall, they missed some of the unoccupied dorms. Buildings and Grounds reacts to students' complaints about ants. Northwest Pest Control is the exterminating contractor for the school. When a student calls in to report a roomful of ants, Building and Grounds communicates the problem to the exterminator. Sometimes takes a couple of days for the exterminator to appear at the student's door, but complaints are not neglected, says Crandall.

When the exterminator arrives, he sprays the rooms with ant spray. If the students are present when he comes to exterminate their rooms, he sometimes gives them can-like devices with holes in the top. The ants eat the poisonous bait that should kill the ants. Unfortunately, that the exterminator's devices should do is not always as it actually happens.

Small, six-legged creatures have invaded Trinity's dormitories. The ants seem to show particular favoritism towards Johns, Jarvis, Cook, Goodwin and Woodward. The ants seem to show particular favoritism towards Johns, Jarvis, Cook, Goodwin and Woodward. Marga Reimer, a freshman who lives in Jarvis, says, "I'll kill about twenty or twenty-five a day. I have ants debri all over my floor. I have to switch them off. My record is seventy-two, and that's a fact!"

Older buildings such as Cook and Woodward have a special vulnerability to ants. These dorms have hollow, structural-tile walls where the insects can hide. Riel Crandall, Director of Building and Grounds, feels that ants are causing a worse problem this year than ever before. Buildings and Grounds and has received many more complaints about ants this year than previously. Crandall tentatively attributes the increase in ant problems to the weather. He thinks that the cool, wet spring combined with the hot summer may have caused an increase in the survival rate or the birth rate of ants. He compromisingly concludes, "I just know that some years there isn't much of a problem and some years they show up real bad."

Another curiousity about the ants' habits involves their seasonal rate of activity. When the colder weather of winter sets in, Buildings and Grounds receives fewer calls about ants. However, when spring arrives, the ants once again enjoy the luxuries of dorm life. Building and Grounds has tried to deal with the ant problem. Prior to the arrival of students this fall, they sprayed dormitories that had been occupied during the summer, according to Crandall, they missed some of the unoccupied dorms. Buildings and Grounds reacts to students' complaints about ants. Northwest Pest Control is the exterminating contractor for the school. When a student calls in to report a roomful of ants, Building and Grounds communicates the problem to the exterminator. Sometimes takes a couple of days for the exterminator to appear at the student's door, but complaints are not neglected, says Crandall.

When the exterminator arrives, he sprays the rooms with ant spray. If the students are present when he comes to exterminate their rooms, he sometimes gives them can-like devices with holes in the top. The ants eat the poisonous bait that should kill the ants. Unfortunately, that the exterminator's devices should do is not always as it actually happens.
By Patty Hooper

This year at Trinity there will be a new emphasis placed on the spending of dorm funds as explained according to Tina Dow, Director of Residential Services.

It was stated that there will be greater emphasis placed on dorm activities, especially the "educational" nature as opposed to just the social activities placed in the past. Last year was decided that dorm funds could not be used to purchase alcohol, with the exception of wine. This was to be a step toward encouraging different types of programming. The difference this year, says Dow, is that she is stressing this interest in a different manner than in the past.

Dow breaks down all dorm activities into five groups: Educational, Social, Cultural, Recreational, and Entertainment, and is putting added emphasis on all the five aspects.

Dow also added that in this breakup, she is trying to establish "group relevancy" in which Resident Assistants are encouraged to help create more dorm unity. One of the requirements this year is that the R.A.s hold some type of gathering with the people in their residence funds, "not just a place to go and sleep."

The reactions to this new policy by Resident Assistants varied greatly. One R.A. stated that "on the one hand it is an excellent way of encouraging creativity, yet, on the other hand, how legitimate is it for the administration to decide what to do with the students' money?"

Another remarked that the students "should get away from just the drinking part of college," adding "many of the boys had never seen the women, seven of whom were Trinity students. Lockwood stated that he enjoyed rest, recreation, the travelers engaged mostly in volleyball, though some- thing for diversion because children mostly in volleyball, though some-

By Pauline Phianzul

Since the start of the 1979-80 academic year, former Dean of Educational Services and Records Robbins Winslow is now serving as new position as Director of Administrative Data Systems.

This is a new emphasis placed on the spending of dorm funds as explained according to Tina Dow, Director of Residential Services.

The reactions from other R.A.s were varied. Several stated that the new policy could be beneficial because it requires "greater regulations and if not, which one?"

After carefully watching de-

The excessive duplication of records has made efforts at updat-

Lockwood Reviews Nepal Expedition

by Bernice Risk

Last Wednesday evening, Pres-

President Theodore D. Lockwood gave con-

While on the trip, they had the opportunity to meet the native Nepalese and were never at a loss for words. The trip was finally seven failed to show up. For recreation, the travelers engaged mostly in volleyball, though some- times they played other games. The trip was spent climbing up the peaks of some of the Himalayan Mountains, sometimes as high as eight to ten thousand feet. Since it was Fob-erary and March, they encountered snow and ice many times. President Lockwood once saw a few and found himself knee-deep in snow.

In the 35-minute slide presentation, Lockwood exhibited slides illustrating a variety of aspects of the Nepalese trek. He showed pictures of the different sorts of vegetation, including an abun-

For example, to keep track of the registration and billing, Trinity requires a system that is very different from one that may be needed by a community college. Whereas Trinity has a set tuition fee, a community college charges a number of fees a student takes.

These systems used at large colleges are not applicable to Trinity as the problems face quite different from ours. Even a small institution such as Westla-

In his search for the right system, Window has narrowed the field down to a few that he is considering. These include OODATA's ODMIS which is now used being used at Cheste Rosemary Hall School in Wellington, and BTI's SOARS. The minicomputers considered are estimated to cost $50,000-$100,000 for the hardware alone and $125,000-$150,000 for the software.

In addition to his job as the Director of Administrative Data Systems, Robbins Winslow is also Director of Advising and Counseling. As Coordinator of Foreign Study Advising. After ten years at the job, he continues to advise Trinity students on foreign study opportunities, to maintain a library of information, and to evaluate the programs' approved status at the College and the transfer of credit from the students' courses of study abroad.

In the past, his work has been wide and varied. His responsibilities as Dean of Educational Services and Records and has been passed on to Assistant Dean of Faculty Jack Waggett. His involvement in the administration of the Rome/Herbert Campus is now transferred to Louise Fisher, Director and Administration Officer for ITP.

Winslow's responsibilities, in 12 college exchange has been transferred to the Regis-

Lockwood Reviews Nepal Expedition

Lockwood Reviews Nepal Expedition

Computized Data System Slated; Winslow Heads Search

by Carole Pelletier

"It is nice - for the men's movement to put aside emotional issues and concentrate on "the economic status of women," says Susan Bucknell, Executive Director of the Connecticut Commission on Women's Status of Women (C.S.W.). Bucknell was guest speaker of the League of Women Voters this Wednesday in Wean Lounge.

Bucknell began her talk by explaining that the function of the commission is to protect men and women from "blatant discriminatory action."

Since its founding in 1973, the C.S.W. has had major input into legislation concerning spouse abuse, having obtained a $270,000 budget to set up a shelter program for victims. They have also mandated that police departments report all cases of spouse abuse, having obtained a $270,000 budget to set up a shelter program for victims. They have also mandated that police departments report all cases of spouse abuse and have also mandated that police departments report all cases of spouse abuse.

The reactions to this new policy by Resident Assistants varied greatly. One R.A. stated that "on the one hand it is an excellent way of encouraging creativity, yet, on the other hand, how legitimate is it for the administration to decide what to do with the students' money?"

Another remarked that the students "should get away from just the drinking part of college," adding "many of the boys had never seen the women, seven of whom were Trinity students. Lockwood stated that he enjoyed rest, relaxation, and the hula girls. They visited both the Sole Bay and the Sole Bay Marine Park. Their visit to the Sole Bay was especially enjoyable for them because it was a place where they could be free for a few weeks "so it's not just a place to sleep and do nothing."

R.A.'s hold some type of gathering with the people in their dorm every weekend. His involvement in the administration of the Rome/Herbert Campus is now transferred to Louise Fisher, Director and Administration Officer for ITP.

Winslow's responsibilities, in 12 college exchange has been transferred to the Regis-

One R.A. put it: "It is a livable issue. Nobody is going to be happy about anything that is done."
Committee Plans Underground Paper

by Peggy Wax

A group called the Committee for Change at Trinity (CCT) met last Wednesday afternoon to discuss an "underground" newspaper. One of the goals of the group is to increase direct contact between faculty, administration and students. The group, headed by John Shepard, plans to establish a forum concerning tenure issues. These student-faculty discussions ideally will stimulate intellectual activity at Trinity, as well as increasing direct contact between students and faculty.

A major topic of Wednesday's meeting was the plans for an alternative newspaper. Plans are still tentative and will be held on October 11 in West Lounge. It is hoped that students who wish to understand the work of the Hartford National Bank and Trust, are interested in working, and creative interests at Trinity.

Investment

cont. from p.

sale of stock, acting on recommendations from the trust department of the Hartford National Bank and Trust Company, is here on a three-year, full-time assignment to advise the College.

Trustees set general investment objectives and establish investment policies. Hartford National Bank and Trust, in turn, suggests specific investments which must be reviewed by the Trustees. English stated that his position was the "middle man." He helps the Trustees to establish their policies, then interprets their policies to the bank and arranges that the bank's success be measured against that of other colleges and the Dow Jones.

The Trustees of the College establish appropriate financial objectives and policies and the investment of the College's endowment funds, but they also recognize the responsibility they have to invest the College's funds in a manner consistent with high ethical and social standards. The Trustees adopted a resolution that the companies in which Trinity is likely to invest operate in widely varying social and political settings. But, although it is often difficult to obtain such information about the area of operation, it is noted that, according to the Trustees' guidelines on accessibility, "these facts should not diminish the College's efforts to obtain pertinent information when appropriate."

In addition, if a company in which the College is investing is engaged in a pattern of acting inconsistent with the College's ethical and social concerns present at Trinity, the "College may attempt to change the firm's practices by exercising prerogatives as an investor."

The purpose, function, and nonprofit status of this organization and its exempt status for Federal Income tax purposes has not changed during the preceding one year.

SIGNATURE AND TITLE OF EDITOR, PUBLISHER, BUSINESS MANAGER, OR OWNER

John W. Dulka.

S. LOCATION OF HEADQUARTERS

PO. Box 1404-Purpurs, Vt. 03801-219.

PREVIOUS LOCATION

1821 Farnsworth Ave., Hartford, Conn.

NEW LOCATION

219 New Britain Ave., Hartford, Conn.

ADDRESS

219 NEW BRITAIN AVE., HARTFORD, CONN.

Dedicate the dorm with Friedman Floor Covering

Irrespective

only a walk away

Remnants

Low, Low

Prices

408 New Britain Ave.

Hartford

249-6593

Government Surplus Sales

237 Asylum St. Hartford

(19%) discount on this ad

TRINITY PACKAGE STORE

CHOICE WINES & LIQUORS

J. W. DULKA, PROP.

219 NEW BRITAIN AVE., HARTFORD, CONN.

corner Henry St. next to Corner Taxi
Ten years ago this summer, Lt. Frederick Carl Schumacher Jr. was discharged from the Navy. Five years later he was awarded the Silver Star for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity" for destroying all classified material in his possession as an operations officer aboard the Navy communications spy ship Pueblo when it was captured on Jan. 23, 1968, by the North Koreans off Wonsan in the Sea of Japan.

One man died in that attack and five of the 82 crew members were wounded. The North Koreans held them prisoners for 11 months. The Pueblo incident is one that is fading from memory, but it had been a matter of concern - not only as a serious international incident - but because it was the first major American Navy vessel captured on the high seas in 150 years.

"It's pretty hard now to imagine I was involved in this," said Schumacher, now president of the Hickey-Mitchell Insurance Co., which he ran in his office at 424 South Lindell Boulevard, St. Louis. After 11 months of behind-the-scenes negotiations the United States admitted to spying and violating the territorial waters of the North Koreans, which Schumacher says is probably the only way he and the other crew members got back alive.

The Pueblo never did actually violate the 12-mile territorial limits reported by the crew. "It was a real worry," Schumacher says. "But I think they were probably not far out of the bucket. Some instinct of self-preservation did it for me. I was coughing, spitting, and suffocating."

"The next thing I knew I was on the floor of that miserable room. I was coughing, gagging, convulsing. But I was alive. Damn it, I was still alive. I had lost again. I did not remember pulling my head out of the bucket. Some instinct of self-preservation did it for me. I had ordered my body to die. Something else had said no. I was gasping for air. I bated myself for this lack of control."

"Schumacher said that his Christian faith eventually gave him the strength, comfort and faith to somehow get through another day as a prisoner. He had majored in religious studies at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., before joining the Navy.

Schumacher, 35, is the third-generation president of the family insurance business. He is a bachelor now after being married and divorced since his Pueblo experience.

Attention
Ladies
You drink FREE all night
Wed., Fri., Sat.
Thurs. with Colling L.D. NO COVER
Drinks 75c

187 ALLYN STREET HARTFORD, CONN. 525-1919

The Tripod is still searching for creative, talented, and interesting people for all sections of the paper.
If you want to write, draw, sell, copy-read, evaluate our performance, or comment on any other subject, please feel free to contact one of the editors, or come to our weekly meetings held on Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m. in our World Office located on the lower level of Jackson Hall.

Bucknell Lecture

The Christmas term is truly under way. Students fill the library every night.

COMEBYJAN

CAMPUS

5025-1919

The C.S.W. 's biggest concerns have been the lack of follow-through on equality legislation. In response to this problem, a ... ver. Bucknell, but "will bring us to a new level of knowledge and expertise." She indicated that the new concerns were "valu...issance, poverty, employment, and training and youth employ- ment." She pointed out that these issues have made the women's movement "squarely and obviously part of the mainstream."

The S.W. has been the focus of previous C.S.W. action. Bucknell added that it "doesn't all happen in the legislature."

If you want to write, draw, sell, copy-read, evaluate our performance, or comment on any other subject, please feel free to contact one of the editors, or come to our weekly meetings held on Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m. in our World Office located on the lower level of Jackson Hall.

C.S.W.'s U.S.S. Pueblo Incident

This article is being printed with the permission of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It appeared in the Post-Dispatch on Thursday, September 6.

Phyllis T. Messer reports:

"It created an unnecessary burden on its first mission as a spy ship..." The Pueblo was captured on its first mission as a spy ship.

"I was actually even there," Schumacher said in his office at 424 South Lindell Boulevard, St. Louis.

"The Pueblo never did actually violate the 12-mile territorial limits reported by the crew. "It was a real worry," Schumacher says. "But I think they were probably not far out of the bucket. Some instinct of self-preservation did it for me. I was coughing, spitting, and suffocating."

"The next thing I knew I was on the floor of that miserable room. I was coughing, gagging, convulsing. But I was alive. Damn it, I was still alive. I had lost again. I did not remember pulling my head out of the bucket. Some instinct of self-preservation did it for me. I had ordered my body to die. Something else had said no. I was gasping for air. I bated myself for this lack of control."

"Schumacher said that his Christian faith eventually gave him the strength, comfort and faith to somehow get through another day as a prisoner. He had majored in religious studies at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., before joining the Navy.

Schumacher, 35, is the third-generation president of the family insurance business. He is a bachelor now after being married and divorced since his Pueblo experience.

Bucknell Lecture

The Christmas term is truly under way. Students fill the library every night.
The following are excerpts from a TSBPOD interview with Hartford's mayoral candidates. The interview was held by Nick Carbone, who recently lost the Democratic mayoral primary to Mr. Athanson.

Tripod: You've said that your victory was a people's victory. Could you explain what you mean by that?

Athanson: I think we've seen very big corporate interests and very big labor interests supported my opponent with a lot of money and a lot of the architects and the contractors and the lawyers and subcontractors that had done business with the city of Hartford were asked to donate to my opponent's campaign. And I think that a lot of the money that was raised was raised in response to those big vested interests that were involved in this political process. I think, number two, that I claim Mr. Carbone is not for sale, that the city should be returned to the people, that the people of Hartford cannot be bought, but it was the beginning, I think, number two, you had a situation where the people were just sick and tired of the priorities of the city, they wanted a basic and fundamental change and what had been the situation was returned to where it should be.

Tripod: What will be your priorities?

Athanson: I think the neighborhoods of Hartford are going to be the number one priority. What I'd like to do is set up a neighborhood advisory council that can meet on a monthly basis, preferably once a week, and get neighborhood concerns from different parts of the city resolved. Then I'll go after the number one problem in the neighborhood, or the neighborhood, or the neighborhood. I think we can consciously sacrifice downtown development for the sake of neighborhood improvement.

Athanson: Well if it came to a choice, downtown or neighborhoods, either-i-I would say neighborhoods. I think we've got a problem here, that we have an overwhelming downtown, and not enough in the neighborhoods. I think we've got to equalize the scale somewhere. And I think that's what we have to do.

Tripod: One of the areas in which you are in agreement with Mr. Carbone is that the state tax system does not have any incentive for the business owner in one area or the other I would say neighborhoods, I have no comment. I'm not sure that that is the case. Tripod: You're saying that the state tax system does not have any incentive for the business owner in one area or another. I would say that neighborhoods. I have no comment.

Tripod: One of the areas in which you are in agreement with Mr. Carbone is that the state tax system does not have any incentive for the business owner. I would say neighborhoods. I have no comment.

Tripod: One of the areas in which you are in agreement with Mr. Carbone is that the state tax system does not have any incentive for the business owner. I would say neighborhoods. I have no comment.

Tripod: One of the areas in which you are in agreement with Mr. Carbone is that the state tax system does not have any incentive for the business owner. I would say neighborhoods. I have no comment.

Tripod: The mayor in his office.

Athanson: Yeah, the city needs? If so, how?

Tripod: It sounds like you'd like to see a more decentralized leadership.

Athanson: I think the council has got to do it in the past. Do you expect to fill it now?

Tripod: No, I think the council has got to do it in the past. Do you expect to fill it now?

Athanson: Yes, I think the city council has got to do it. I think it's very important. We've got to get more for the city. Now I'm not saying I'm going to do that. I'm going to do what I can. I think I can do that.

Tripod: Is there any chance that the city council will go along with that?

Athanson: It's ridiculous to close the fire-stations. I don't think we should close the fire-stations.

Tripod: And the fire-stations?

Athanson: It's ridiculous to close the fire-stations. I don't think we should close the fire-stations.

Tripod: It sounds like you'd like to see a more decentralized leadership.
Women's Rights Promoted by Commission

By Barbara J. Salmo

Hartford in the home of a number of women's organizations, many of which are important parts of the national movement toward the liberation of women.

One of the most active of these groups is the Permanent Commission of the Status of Women (PCSW), a legal organization which works to end sexual discrimination in Connecticut. The Commission works with political and business leaders to monitor and eliminate discrimination in employment, housing, credit and other areas. Anyone who seeks help at the Commission will be given information on her legal rights and will be assisted in filing a legal complaint, which the PCSW will follow through the process.

Part of the PCSW's work is to publish information on women's rights in many areas. The publications available are on a wide range of topics. Pamphlets on women's job rights, their job rights during pregnancy, the job rights of clerical workers and household employees as well as a newsletter are a sampling of the ones published.

The Commission's first priority after its inception as to review the State statutes to bring them up to date with Article I, Section 20, of the State's Constitution. As amended in 1974, it now reads: "No person shall be denied equal protection of the law in the exercise of his or her civil or political rights because of race, color, ancestry, national origin or sex.

From this starting point the commission moved forward to many other areas of sex discrimination that needed immediate attention.

By the law that created their organization, the Commission is required to study all matters concerning women. The leaders of industry, education and government's about the nature of sex discrimination.

The government, they work with state agencies to prevent programs and practices which affect women. The Commission also has out a yearly important pamphlet called "24 Hour Help: Emergency Resources for Connecticut Women" which lists emergency services available on a 24-hour basis to assist victims of sexual abuse, child abuse, and sexual assault. All these publications are free and available through the Commission.

The Commission works on the basic idea that many of the problems women face can be helped in two ways.

As pointed out by Beth Rawles, Chairperson, in the annual report, 1977, a combination of "doing things for" people as well as doing things to change people's attitudes will improve the situation of women in Connecticut.

As Rawles wrote: Most of the economic problems faced women in the State of Connecticut require the application of one or the other (the above-mentioned adjectives) or sometimes a combination of both to achieve a measure of immediate relief while at the same time working towards the long-range solution.
The Tripod has made it a point in recent editorials to defend the idea that the students here deserve a larger voice in the discussion of issues and ideas than has previously been made available to them. Implicit in this is the belief that we students are worthy of such voice, that if given the opportunity we will take full advantage of it.

Sadly, we always seem to be our own worst enemy. Or, perhaps it would be more accurate to say that a few of us seem to be our own worst enemy. Last Friday night our credibility was blown once again when a few of our more responsible comrades decided to drive a car through the newly planted, rain-soaked earth just east of Malhef on the Austin Arts Center quad.

The odds that the huge gashes in the ground were done in the spirit of some well-planned project are slim. As a result, we can only conclude that the damage was done in the spirit of some wild and uncontrollable rage. If not, we have nowhere left to go.

This, however, brings up another, more disturbing series of questions. What if we were wrong? What if a majority of us don't really give a damn about playing a role in the College's affairs? Perhaps those of us who have been asserting the students' desire to have a voice are actually a tiny minority. Maybe the mass of the students want to continue to live just like they did all through high school, having to handle only their own personal work and nothing else, preferring to have their lives controlled completely by another person. Maybe the greater part of us are all little kids who want to stay 'that way, eschewing the huge benefits of responsibility so that we can still go on and be bad.

The Tripod surely hopes that this is not the case. We must insist that this action is an exception, that most of us see the turf-faring as pointless and, in the end, regrettable. If so, we can recover and continue our work towards a closer relationship with the administration. If not, we have nowhere left to go.

An established club can provide benefits for all players, whether beginners to masters. This club will give the chess playing community a place to get together on a regular basis, play games, learn from each other, and talk chess. It will also give those interested a chance to organize a Trinity team for competitive chess in tournaments or against non-collegiate schools. If you are unable to attend our first meeting this Thursday but are interested in the club, please contact me at 534-1909 or box 1189.

Thank you for your cooperation,
John Mattar '81

S.G.A. Candidacies

I am seeking a position in the Student Government Association because I am dissatisfied with the performance of the current S.G.A. Most of its recent members have been too willing to accept the status quo. The S.G.A. members have been less assertive than they could be in dealing with the Trinity administration in order to ensure that there is student input in vital issues affecting the entire Trinity community. Students should be given greater influence upon Trinity policies, especially upon those issues which affect students directly.

Last year, the Trinity administration made several important decisions which involved little or no student input. Some examples of this include the changes in the housing policy, the prohibition of using student dorm funds for purchase of alcohol, and the extensive cuts made in the Education Department.

Trinity students deserve a more activist student government which stands up for student rights rather than timidity accepting administration policy with no student participation. I am seeking a position in the Student Government Association to ensure greater student influence on issues affecting students as well as the entire Trinity community.

Bruce Johnson
Alumni Program

Again this year the annual Alumni Administered program will be held in the fall. The sons and daughters of alumni and faculty who are in the process of applying to colleges will be staying at Trinity on September 27, 28, and 29.

Chess Club

A Trinity Chess Club is forming. The first organizational meeting will be held Thursday September 27 at 7:30 p.m. in Westman Lounge. All interested students and faculty members are invited to attend. Bring a set if you are interested in a game after all the "organizing" is done. If you cannot attend this meeting but are interested in the fledgling club, please contact John Mattar at 524-1909 or Post Office Box 1189.

Social Activists

The Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee (D.S.O.C.), a social activist group within the Democratic Party, will hold a preliminary meeting Thursday, September 27 at 4:00 p.m. in the Ahlborn Lounge. D.S.O.C. was founded by such liberal-left activists as Michael Hardt, Ellen Futterman, Ron Dellums, and Sen. Julian Bond, and has been working for 6 years to help to achieve social and economic justice for all Americans. Many issues D.S.O.C. has been currently working on include the anti-nuclear issue, opposition to the reinstatement of opposition to reinstatement of the draft, support of comprehensive national health insurance, and full-employment. For further information, contact Bruce Johnson, Box 1978, 249-3696.

Readers Needed

Desperately needed; Volunteer readers for a blind psychologist. Flexible hours. For information, contact Carol, 249-3696, Box 2008, 249-3696. The program's Dean, Michael Scott, will be present.

Committee Room

Thursday, October 2, 5:00 p.m.

Information on this program only. The program's Dean, Michael Scott, will be present.

French Table

Table Francophone: 1st Thursday, 6:15, Maher Hall, the "Red Room," (now white).

Tutors Wanted

The McDougal School, located two blocks from the Trinity campus at 100 Wilson Street has a program of tutoring elementary school children on a one-on-one basis during the time they are in school, from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tutors may select the time period that is convenient for them. Can you give one hour a week to tutor a child in reading or math? If you can, contact the coordinator, Professor Philpends, 247-6503.

Hillcl News

Anyone interested in attending Yom Kippur services, please call the police at 249-2301 or 249-6300. We will be breaking fast together on Monday evening, October 1, at 6 p.m. in Westman Lounge. Please call me for more information. All are invited!

Foreign Study Info

General information meetings on study abroad will be held in alumnus lounge on the following dates:

- Monday, 1 October, 8:00 p.m.
- Tuesday, 2 October, 13:00 p.m.
- Tuesday, 9 October, 3:00 p.m.
- Thursday, 17 October, 10:30 a.m.

Information on this program only. The program's Dean, Michael Scott, will be present.

Committee Room

Thursday, October 2, 5:00 p.m.

Information on this program only. The program's Dean, Michael Scott, will be present.

The poetry will be judged by members of the Trinity College faculty who will select one student to represent Trinity. The winner is then judged by a state panel. From all the nominees, four poets are chosen. Supported by the Connecticut Commission on the Arts, the contest is a way of encouraging poetry in Connecticut colleges.

For further information contact Mill Silverstein, ext. 474 or Dr. Ogden on 375.

Football Highlights

Continuing our custom of past years, coach Don Miller will present films of the highlights of the previous Saturday's Trinity football game every Wednesday at 12:00 noon in the Alumnus Lounge. The sessions will begin September 26, and terminate November 19. Bring your sandwich. Coffee available.

Women's Center

The Women's Center is the primary meeting place for students and faculty, open Tuesday through Thursday. Members of the Trinity community are invited to come up to the Center to read, study or talk.

Cinestudio News

Cinestudio still needs a few volunteer staff workers, especially for Friday and Saturday nights. Staff workers receive no money, but get to see all of the movies they want and get great passes. They also get invited to watch special preview parties. If you are interested, call or write Steven Kassow (Dept. of History) or Prof. Dori Katz (Dept. of Modern Languages and Literatures).

Poetry Contest

The Poetry Contest will be held on the previous Saturday's Trinity newspaper, "The Trinity Tripod," and will be announced in the following week's issue. The Trinity College Poetry Center wishes to announce the annual Connecticut Poetry Circuit Student Contest. Students interested in poetry that is not of high school or college. The entries will be judged by a state panel. The winners are then chosen and announced. Supported by the Connecticut Commission on the Arts, the contest is a way of encouraging poetry in Connecticut colleges. For further information contact Mill Silverstein, ext. 474 or Dr. Ogden on 375.

Law School Rep

Dean Peter A. Adenmo of the School of Law at Western New England College will meet with interested students Tuesday, October 2, 1979, 9:30-11:30 A.M. Career Counseling Office.
Thriller Lacks Twists

by Dave Golustic

With good reason, Robert Ludlum's The Matarese Circle has been one of the "hotter" books of the summer. It's a spy novel that should hold the reader's attention like a solid trap. The tense, suspenseful line of the plot involves the discovery of a computerized espionage organization dedicated to world domination. Among the major ingredients are: The American and Soviet governments, a mysterious supercomputer, a bizarre, unexplained crash of a satellite, and a super-robber. Robert Ludlum is known for writing about such topics, and the results are usually solid, not meilleurs, but solid. The Matarese Circle, however, is more of a thriller than a suspense novel. The plot is complicated and full of twists, but the writing is too leisurely and the characters are too one-dimensional. The climax is a letdown, and the ending is a letdown.

The Matarese Circle opens with the death of a government official, who was killed by a mysterious organization. The story then follows the investigation of the conspiracy by a team of government agents, led by a tough, no-nonsense agent named Jack. The team is aided by a computer program that can analyze vast amounts of data. The climax of the novel is a confrontation with the leaders of the conspiracy, who are revealed to be a group of powerful politicians and industrialists.

The Matarese Circle is a novel that is sure to please thrillers fans. It is well-crafted and features a cast of interesting characters. However, the plot is not as original as it could be, and the ending is a bit of a letdown. Overall, The Matarese Circle is a solid read that will keep you engaged from start to finish.
Arts

Theatre Preview

by Sarah Jane Nelson

The Theatre Arts Department has many projects in the making for this theatre season. The first theatrical choice of the season is "La Ronde" which will be performed Nov. 3, 4, and 5-11. Directed by George Nichols III, "La Ronde" is a drama written by the Viennese playwright Arthur Schnitzler. Schnitzler is a fine psychologist, and his plays benefit greatly from his talent for character analysis. His philosophy verages on cynicism. He feels that man is hopelessly egotistical. Due to this fact, man perceives reality through a distortdition. In league with Schnitz-ler's philosophy, the playwright handles tragedy with an ironic and sometimes comic touch which lends many levels of interest to his drama.

"La Ronde" consists primarily of a series of romantic and sexual encounters. As the title suggests, the plot is circular. The new federal cast for the play will be followed Laurie Wells '81 portrays the Prosttute, John Sapiel '83 is the Soldier, Kathy Dorsey '80 the Maid, The Young Gentleman is played by Ian Macneil '80, The Wife by Amy Rothschild '81, The Young Husband by Michael Countryman '80, The Young Thing by Cressida Bainton '81, the Poet by John Thompson '81, Mary Goodman '83 plays the Actress, and Todd Van Amburgh '83, The Count. The addition to the Theatre Arts Department the student directed plays the responsibility of a budget

The vast amount of the book is very believable, and it is one of the book's major assets the the Goodwin Theatre will make for a great amount of support from the audience... The new switchboard lighting equipment in German Hall and the Goodwin Theatre will make almost every year. The performance is well worth the price of admission. The performance which is independent of the Theatre Department, receive a major budget. The group will be

The Amos Tuck School of Business Administration

The Amos Tuck School of Business Administration

The Amos Tuck School of Business Administration

Dartmouth College • Hanover, N.H.

Men and women seeking

EDUCATION FOR MANAGEMENT

are invited to discuss the

TUCK MBA

with

Marilyn Hammond

Admissions Representative

Wednesday, October 10

Career Counselling Office

September 25, 1979, THE TRINITY TRIPOD, Page 11
Sports Scene From School Street

by Eric Goveved

Actually, I think that Nick Noble and Nancy Lanoue's article about sports was not designed to get me to write sports so much as to introduce me into their world of doing the paper on weekends. I hand in my column and leave on Friday, while Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.

I'm not crazy about editors writing articles about each other and making Tripod "in" jokes, because it makes the Tripod seem unattractive. As for moral turpitude, it is my view that Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.

I'm not crazy about editors writing articles about each other and making Tripod "in" jokes, because it makes the Tripod seem unattractive. As for moral turpitude, it is my view that Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.

I'm not crazy about editors writing articles about each other and making Tripod "in" jokes, because it makes the Tripod seem unattractive. As for moral turpitude, it is my view that Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.

I'm not crazy about editors writing articles about each other and making Tripod "in" jokes, because it makes the Tripod seem unattractive. As for moral turpitude, it is my view that Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.

I'm not crazy about editors writing articles about each other and making Tripod "in" jokes, because it makes the Tripod seem unattractive. As for moral turpitude, it is my view that Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.

I'm not crazy about editors writing articles about each other and making Tripod "in" jokes, because it makes the Tripod seem unattractive. As for moral turpitude, it is my view that Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.

I'm not crazy about editors writing articles about each other and making Tripod "in" jokes, because it makes the Tripod seem unattractive. As for moral turpitude, it is my view that Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.

I'm not crazy about editors writing articles about each other and making Tripod "in" jokes, because it makes the Tripod seem unattractive. As for moral turpitude, it is my view that Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.

I'm not crazy about editors writing articles about each other and making Tripod "in" jokes, because it makes the Tripod seem unattractive. As for moral turpitude, it is my view that Nick and Nancy, as they say, stay up till 2 A.M. Monday laying out articles. The result is that I don't know what's going to be in the paper until I see it on Tuesday with everybody else. In this case, sitting in my 11:20 class while fellow students chucked at the sports column, my description of me was a sobereating experience.
The year’s Soccer team opened its schedule last Saturday, in the misty, muddy aftermath of Friday’s downpour. The booters faced Bates, a team they had never played before.

The field conditions were poor, but the Bates’ defense was equally waterlogged. They took the field in the first half with spirit overflowing, as each player was determined to make the most of the chances they would have against a Bates defense that had seen few saves in the first half, holding their own.

The second half began with the same enthusiasm as the first. Trinity sent in a few new booters, as they had in the middle of the first half, to refresh some players and allow the squad to see some game time. The team had some exciting offensive drives, all of which were headed off by Bates. The Bantam defense held fast with strong performances by back Terry Johnson and Evan Jones.

At the twelve minute mark the action became fast and furious. A fresh Trinity offense took advantage of a Bates mistake. Captain Sally Larkin scored from the left-hand side of the field, inside the eighteen yard line, left center Marcy Budgell dribbled through the defense and shot the ball past goalie for an unassisted goal.

Budgell’s supersonic goal spurred the Bantam offense to renewed effort. The second half began with the same enthusiasm as the first, and after five minutes left in the game, Annie Martin scored off a pass from Sally Larkin to ice the win. The final score of 2-0 was the culmination of a total team effort.

The Women’s Soccer team plays its first home game at Saturday 11:00 A.M. vs. Amherst.

Nancy Carlson drives downfield with two Bates defenders and freshman Andrea Mooney in pursuit.

photo by Emma Keach

---

More Sports

Women’s Soccer Edges Bates 2-0

by Roberto Scheber

The women’s soccer team opened its schedule last Saturday, in the misty, muddy aftermath of Friday’s downpour. The booters faced Bates, a team they had never played before.

The field conditions were poor, but the Bates’ defense was equally waterlogged. They took the field in the first half with spirit overflowing, as each player was determined to make the most of the chances they would have against a Bates defense that had seen few saves in the first half, holding their own.

The second half began with the same enthusiasm as the first. Trinity sent in a few new booters, as they had in the middle of the first half, to refresh some players and allow the squad to see some game time. The team had some exciting offensive drives, all of which were headed off by Bates. The Bantam defense held fast with strong performances by back Terry Johnson and Evan Jones.

At the twelve minute mark the action became fast and furious. A fresh Trinity offense took advantage of a Bates mistake. Captain Sally Larkin scored from the left-hand side of the field, inside the eighteen yard line, left center Marcy Budgell dribbled through the defense and shot the ball past goalie for an unassisted goal.

Budgell’s supersonic goal spurred the Bantam offense to renewed effort. The second half began with the same enthusiasm as the first, and after five minutes left in the game, Annie Martin scored off a pass from Sally Larkin to ice the win. The final score of 2-0 was the culmination of a total team effort.

The Women’s Soccer team plays its first home game at Saturday 11:00 A.M. vs. Amherst.

Nancy Carlson drives downfield with two Bates defenders and freshman Andrea Mooney in pursuit.

photo by Emma Keach

---

More Sports

Women’s Soccer Edges Bates 2-0

by Roberto Scheber

The women’s soccer team opened its schedule last Saturday, in the misty, muddy aftermath of Friday’s downpour. The booters faced Bates, a team they had never played before.

The field conditions were poor, but the Bates’ defense was equally waterlogged. They took the field in the first half with spirit overflowing, as each player was determined to make the most of the chances they would have against a Bates defense that had seen few saves in the first half, holding their own.

The second half began with the same enthusiasm as the first. Trinity sent in a few new booters, as they had in the middle of the first half, to refresh some players and allow the squad to see some game time. The team had some exciting offensive drives, all of which were headed off by Bates. The Bantam defense held fast with strong performances by back Terry Johnson and Evan Jones.

At the twelve minute mark the action became fast and furious. A fresh Trinity offense took advantage of a Bates mistake. Captain Sally Larkin scored from the left-hand side of the field, inside the eighteen yard line, left center Marcy Budgell dribbled through the defense and shot the ball past goalie for an unassisted goal.

Budgell’s supersonic goal spurred the Bantam offense to renewed effort. The second half began with the same enthusiasm as the first, and after five minutes left in the game, Annie Martin scored off a pass from Sally Larkin to ice the win. The final score of 2-0 was the culmination of a total team effort.

The Women’s Soccer team plays its first home game at Saturday 11:00 A.M. vs. Amherst.

Nancy Carlson drives downfield with two Bates defenders and freshman Andrea Mooney in pursuit.

photo by Emma Keach

---

More Sports

Women’s Soccer Edges Bates 2-0

by Roberto Scheber

The women’s soccer team opened its schedule last Saturday, in the misty, muddy aftermath of Friday’s downpour. The booters faced Bates, a team they had never played before.

The field conditions were poor, but the Bates’ defense was equally waterlogged. They took the field in the first half with spirit overflowing, as each player was determined to make the most of the chances they would have against a Bates defense that had seen few saves in the first half, holding their own.

The second half began with the same enthusiasm as the first. Trinity sent in a few new booters, as they had in the middle of the first half, to refresh some players and allow the squad to see some game time. The team had some exciting offensive drives, all of which were headed off by Bates. The Bantam defense held fast with strong performances by back Terry Johnson and Evan Jones.

At the twelve minute mark the action became fast and furious. A fresh Trinity offense took advantage of a Bates mistake. Captain Sally Larkin scored from the left-hand side of the field, inside the eighteen yard line, left center Marcy Budgell dribbled through the defense and shot the ball past goalie for an unassisted goal.

Budgell’s supersonic goal spurred the Bantam offense to renewed effort. The second half began with the same enthusiasm as the first, and after five minutes left in the game, Annie Martin scored off a pass from Sally Larkin to ice the win. The final score of 2-0 was the culmination of a total team effort.

The Women’s Soccer team plays its first home game at Saturday 11:00 A.M. vs. Amherst.

Nancy Carlson drives downfield with two Bates defenders and freshman Andrea Mooney in pursuit.

photo by Emma Keach
Bears Best Bantams 14-10 In Opening Game

by Nick Noble

On a wet and muddy field this past Saturday afternoon the Trinity Bantams proved they had an aerial attack, but the Bowdoin Bears proved their ground game was better, and the men from Maine triumphed 14-10.

It was the season opener at Jesse Field, Trinity's home base in Hartford, and the weather was not the best that one could desire. It had rained for a day and a night before the contest, and ankle deep pools of water were scattered across the length and breadth of the Varsity field.

This was the handicap that prevented Trinity's running game from gaining any momentum (but none any yards) although both Barry Bucklin and Bill Holden were for a touchdown, and ankle deep pools of water were scattered across the length and breadth of the Varsity field.

But Bowdoin's running game was out of this world. Under the same flooded conditions that hampered the Bantams on the ground, the Bear rushers were flying. Freshman Rob Saminski gained 114 yards on the game, while Junior Tom Scholla chalked up 129 with his fleet feet. Bowdoin's total of 252 yards on the ground keyed the two sustained drives that resulted in their touchdowns.

Bowdoin opened the game with Quarterback Rip Kinkel at the helm. But a fired up Bantam defense, led by Captain Chuck Tiernan, held them fast. Trinity too was unable to score, so once again QB Kinkel and his crew of Northernmen had to be stopped, and they were.

On their next possession, Trinity moved downfield on the strong legs of Bill Holden. Then, on 4th and 12, Bill Linquaise net the ball 32 yards through the uprights, and Trinity led 3-0.

The ball exchanged hands several times over the next ten minutes, and there was a flurry of punting activity. Trinity's punting game was far superior to Bowdoin's throughout the contest. A total of 15 punts were exchanged on the day, and Trinity's Bill Schaufler had 7 of them, averaging an impressive 36.3 yards per kick on the toriental afternoon.

Freshman Quarterback John Theberge took over from Kinkel when Bowdoin took possession late in the second quarter, and he began to move his team downfield. It was a slow march, taking seventeens plays, and Trinity almost held them. On the sixteenth play, on 3rd down and 14 to go on the Trinity 21, Bear receiver Eric Arvidson was wide open in the end zone, but the Bantam blitzi pressured Theberge into a bad pass. On the very next play, however, Arvidson again was open, and Theberge hit him for the score. The kick was good, and the ball ended, Bowdoin 7, Trinity 3.

Trinity regained the lead quickly in the second half. Mixing some powerful Barry Bucklin runs with a pair of passes to sophomore receiver Rob Reading, Palmer moved the Bantams to the Bowdoin 18. There he put the ball up to Peerless Pat McNamara, who caught the ball in the endzone while triple covered, to put the Hilltoppers ahead 13-7.

Kinkel was once again in charge of the Bowdoin offense, and once again the Bantam defense shut them down. But the same was true for Trinity on the wet ground, and once again the ball switched sides.

With 8:36 remaining in the game Theberge took over once more for the Doins Easters. He engineered another 17 play sustained march, ending in a Saneski touchdown (was there illegal motion on the play?) at 4-42. Bowdoin 14, Trinity 10.

The Bantams had one more chance with the clock winding down, but it was not to be. With 4th down and one yard to go they went for the Bowdoin defense sent a flying wedge junting into the Trinity offense, and that was all she wrote for the Blue and Gold.

Still, a measure of optimism can be taken from Saturday's loss. The defense, living up to its pre-season expectations, was impressive. Most notable were Tiernan, linebacker Bob Reading, although troubled by two defenders here, was out of this world. Under the finest hands in the league, three times, twice for first downs, and once for the lone Trin TD, and completed a fine 52% of his passes.

Barry Bucklin, Trin's leading ground gainer on the day, carried the ball amid a mass of white-shirted Bears. 15 punts were exchanged on the day, and Trinity's Bill Schaufler had 7 of them, averaging an impressive 36.3 yards per kick on the toriental afternoon.

Freshman Quarterback John Theberge took over from Kinkel when Bowdoin took possession late in the second quarter, and he began to move his team downfield. It was a slow march, taking seventeens plays, and Trinity almost held them. On the sixteenth play, on 3rd down and 14 to go on the Trinity 21, Bear receiver Eric Arvidson was wide open in the end zone, but the Bantam blitzi pressured Theberge into a bad pass. On the very next play, however, Arvidson again was open, and Theberge hit him for the score. The kick was good, and the ball ended, Bowdoin 7, Trinity 3.

Trinity regained the lead quickly in the second half. Mixing some powerful Barry Bucklin runs with a pair of passes to sophomore receiver Rob Reading, Palmer moved the Bantams to the Bowdoin 18. There he put the ball up to Peerless Pat McNamara, who caught the ball in the endzone while triple covered, to put the Hilltoppers ahead 13-7.

Kinkel was once again in charge of the Bowdoin offense, and once again the Bantam defense shut them down. But the same was true for Trinity on the wet ground, and once again the ball switched sides.

With 8:36 remaining in the game Theberge took over once more for the Doins Easters. He engineered another 17 play sustained march, ending in a Saneski touchdown (was there illegal motion on the play?) at 4-42. Bowdoin 14, Trinity 10.

The Bantams had one more chance with the clock winding down, but it was not to be. With 4th down and one yard to go they went for the Bowdoin defense sent a flying wedge junting into the Trinity offense, and that was all she wrote for the Blue and Gold.

Still, a measure of optimism can be taken from Saturday's loss. The defense, living up to its pre-season expectations, was impressive. Most notable were Tiernan, linebacker Bob Reading, although troubled by two defenders here, was out of this world. Under the finest hands in the league, three times, twice for first downs, and once for the lone Trin TD, and completed a fine 52% of his passes.

Barry Bucklin, Trin's leading ground gainer on the day, carried the ball amid a mass of white-shirted Bears. 15 punts were exchanged on the day, and Trinity's Bill Schaufler had 7 of them, averaging an impressive 36.3 yards per kick on the toriental afternoon.

Freshman Quarterback John Theberge took over from Kinkel when Bowdoin took possession late in the second quarter, and he began to move his team downfield. It was a slow march, taking seventeens plays, and Trinity almost held them. On the sixteenth play, on 3rd down and 14 to go on the Trinity 21, Bear receiver Eric Arvidson was wide open in the end zone, but the Bantam blitzi pressured Theberge into a bad pass. On the very next play, however, Arvidson again was open, and Theberge hit him for the score. The kick was good, and the ball ended, Bowdoin 7, Trinity 3.

Trinity regained the lead quickly in the second half. Mixing some powerful Barry Bucklin runs with a pair of passes to sophomore receiver Rob Reading, Palmer moved the Bantams to the Bowdoin 18. There he put the ball up to Peerless Pat McNamara, who caught the ball in the endzone while triple covered, to put the Hilltoppers ahead 13-7.

Kinkel was once again in charge of the Bowdoin offense, and once again the Bantam defense shut them down. But the same was true for Trinity on the wet ground, and once again the ball switched sides.

With 8:36 remaining in the game Theberge took over once more for the Doins Easters. He engineered another 17 play sustained march, ending in a Saneski touchdown (was there illegal motion on the play?) at 4-42. Bowdoin 14, Trinity 10.

The Bantams had one more chance with the clock winding down, but it was not to be. With 4th down and one yard to go they went for the Bowdoin defense sent a flying wedge junting into the Trinity offense, and that was all she wrote for the Blue and Gold.

Still, a measure of optimism can be taken from Saturday's loss. The defense, living up to its pre-season expectations, was impressive. Most notable were Tiernan, linebacker Bob Reading, although troubled by two defenders here, was out of this world. Under the finest hands in the league, three times, twice for first downs, and once for the lone Trin TD, and completed a fine 52% of his passes.
Sports Scene From The Summit

by Nick Noble

Mother Nature did not provide Trinity Fall Sports 1979 with an auspicious debut. Friday it rained buckets, and Saturday the fields were soaked and soggy. Yet, despite the inclement weather, there were good crowds for all the home openers this weekend.

Over two hundred people clustered in the mist to watch the Women's Soccer Team snatch victory from the jaws of a scoreless tie with but five minutes remaining in the contest. The enthusiastic support offered the Bantam Soccer women by the crowd did much to lift their soggy spirits on the long morning.

The defense did well, the kicking of Bill Lindquist was fine, and the punting of Bill Schaufler was extremely good running back. In addition, Bill Holden is a tough, determined runner who should deal more freedom of movement to Trinity's other pass-catchers: Jim Samsel and Rob Reading, efforts manifested themselves. Quarterback Gary Palmer made a strong debut'under horrible weather conditions. Despite some fierce play, neither side appeared to have much of an advantage throughout the half and the match was permanently knotted at 0-0.

There are even key contests at home this week. On Wednesday the Women's Field Hockey Team faces one of Trinity's most successful intercollegiate teams over the past four years, the Dartmouth College women. Also on Wednesday evening the Women's Waterpolo Team, one of Trinity's most successful intercollegiate teams over the past four years, will be greeted with as much exuberance and elan.

All American Pat McNamara was multi-covered all afternoon, and only caught three passes. But McNamara gave a great touchdown grab while encircled by three defenders. All this attention paid McNamara.

The Tufts team had several tackling by John (Mazz) (Mazzarella) around the halfway line of the pitch. The Trinity team had several opportunities to score, but tough tackling by John (Mazz) (Mazzarella) and Pat McNamara all looked good on the catching end of Gary Palmer's passes. McNamara's outstanding touchdowns grab with three men covering him brought an ovation from the throng.

The second half started much the way the first half ended, with neither side able to get on the scoreboard. The second half was put in by Tom Miller on a technically well-executed fake. Pat McNamara kicked through and at the half Trinity was on the short end of a 6-0 score.

We can all relax now. The waiting is over. The anticipation is done. Sports are once again to be seen on the Summit. Go out and enjoy.

Sports Commentary

by Theodore D. Lockwood

TRIPOD Sports was pleased to receive last President Lockwood's reflections on ten years of Trinity's Sports Community. We reprint them here as an administrative perspective on the creation and growth of Women's Athletics on the Summit. Of special note is the second paragraph of his commentary. While all other Departments in the College had merely to assimilate women into existing programs when Trinity went coeducational, the Athletic Department alone had to manufacture a totally new program. We begin to make adjustments quickly, in the example, we changed the plans for the new wing nearing completion by adding a wall to separate sections of locker facilities. We build another steam room. It is difficult to recall all that happened in those early years of coeducation, but it is clear that the College prospered from the decision to go back and through the transition smoothly.

In retrospect, the creation was eminently successful. Women's sports have grown from the first field hockey in 1969 to five varsity programs in 1979. Women's Athletics on the Summit, Of special note is the second paragraph of his commentary. While all other Departments in the College had merely to assimilate women into existing programs when Trinity went coeducational, the Athletic Department alone had to manufacture a totally new program. We begin to make adjustments quickly, in the example, we changed the plans for the new wing nearing completion by adding a wall to separate sections of locker facilities. We build another steam room. It is difficult to recall all that happened in those early years of coeducation, but it is clear that the College prospered from the decision to go back and through the transition smoothly.

The athletic department deserves great credit for its ready acceptance of the shift; for, as Jane Millerhouse once remarked, "You have to remember that when Trinity went coed, we had to create a program for women."

In retrospect, the creation was eminently successful. Women's sports have grown from the first field hockey in 1969 to five varsity programs, joint programs in other athletic like tennis, and an intramural schedule expanding each year. The record has been impressive. But that is not to say that women's athletics do not simply an "ad-in"; it is an important commitment at Trinity.

We have not completed the task of providing a full program for women in athletics. Limitations of staff and space -- problems faced by so much by the remarkable level of participation by students at this college formally and informally, as by those not -- will make it difficult to expand appreciably. But it is clear that the present program and schedule have brought both distinction and dedication to Blue and Gold sports.

Sports Commentary
Waterpolo Takes Four To Open Autumn

by Rich Katzman

On the 17th of September the Waterpolo squad travelled to Yale for a controlled scrimmage. This gave the Ducks an opportunity to work the kinks out of their game and to prepare for their home opener against Amberst which was held on the 20th. The trip home from New Haven was full of excitement as the Ducks discovered several unanticipated flaws in their gameplan.

These flaws caused the Ducks to have a slow start when they met Amberst. In the first period, the Lord Jeffs attacked the Ducks with everything they had and took a quick 2-1 lead. Amberst’s biggest mistake was getting into the pool for the rest of the game because in the next three periods, Trinity’s defense gave up only five goals. The defense was led by Frank Wobst, John “Ferrigno” Chandler and the rotation of Trinity’s goalies, Nick Collins, Jeff Long and Lance Choy. Each made several tremendous saves.

As Trinity entered the second period captain Mike Hinton joined the gameplan. Katsman scored three quick goals and the Ducks never gave up this lead. As the period came to an end Katsman blasted another shot past the Lord Jeff’s goalie. Amberst dropped themselves from the pool at the end of the game after their 14-0 loss. For the Ducks, Katsman was the top scorer, followed by Tie Hook and Mike “Stanley” Merin who scored twice each. Hinton, Ted Murphy and Len Adam scored the goalies as they each scored once.

Friday night marked the opening of Trinity’s annual Five-Match Tournament. The first game set Trinity’s B team against UC Conn. The Ducklings showed tremendous drive and enthusiasm, even though they were not victorious. Their major problem was lack of experience. By the end of the tournament, however, they were practically seasoned veterans. As soon as they got some more experience and time under their belts, they will be top players. Merin led the scoring with two goals, and Dan Pike and Doug Gray teamed up for one each.

Then the Ducks entered the pool for the second time this season as they faced U.R.I. in their first round. In the beginning, it looked as if the Ducks were unbeatable. Hinton and Katsman scored twice each, leading Trinity’s goalie and team in a state of shock. After 30 minutes of the first period the Ducks held a solid 4-1 lead. U.R.I. rebounded after the first period and scored six goals, while Trinity could only muster one. The fourth period looked like the first as the scoring was one-sided. The teams showed great versatility as they played well in the goal and in the pool. The final score was 18-17 for Trinity.

Trinity made full use of their advantage as the scoring was distributed more evenly. Katsman scored six times, while Hinton made four. This game proved that Trinity had depth and showed great versatility as they blocked several shots before they even reached the goalie. Wobst also played outstanding defense. He stole the ball several times and then made quick passes down-pool which led to scores.

Trinity increased thek home game momentum going for them. For the next six and a half minutes the Ducks would score and then B.C. would turn around and tie it up. As the clock ticked down to one minute and a quarter left, Katsman received a perfect pass from the right side of the pool to make the score 18-17 for Trinity. The rest of the game was uneventful and Trinity won 18-17.

The fourth period looked like the final round with the Ducks scoring, but instead of weary boxers exchanging punches, these two physically-drained teams exhausted each other. The last time the Ducks lost at home was in 1977. Since then, the Ducks have gone 24-0-2 at home.

After tempers cooled, a coin settled over the pool as B.C. entered the Ducks’ domain. These two teams have played several close contests in the past and this game was to be no exception.

The Ducks jumped out to a quick 10-6 lead after two periods of play. Hinton scored four times, outscoring both the Bantam boys and the hometown fans. At the second half break, B.C. came alive, outscoring the Ducks 5 goals to 2. This reduced the Ducks lead to 12-11.

In the consolation finals, U.R.I. forfeited to UConn after a bench emptying brawl. Their frustration materialized in physical violence. The forfeit did not really benefit U.R.I. since U.R.I. was losing 5-4 at half.

The consolation finals, U.R.I. forfeited to UConn after a bench emptying brawl. Their frustration materialized in physical violence. The forfeit did not really benefit U.R.I. since U.R.I. was losing 5-4 at half.

The last time the Ducks lost at home was in 1977. Since then, the Ducks have gone 24-0-2 at home.

The fifth man on the Trinity bench for the second straight game. Also, by beating B.C., the Ducks increased their home game winning streak to 16 games. This is the longest streak in the history of Trinity Water Polo.